April 29.

THe Tumults in Scotland about the Service Book offered to be brought in, began July 23. 1637. and continued increaſing by fits, and hath now brought that Kingdom in danger. No queſtion but there is a great concurrence between them and the Puritan Party here in England; there was great aim there to deſtroy me in the King's Opinion, &c.

May 26. Saturday, James Lord Marqueſs Hamilton ſet forth, as the King's Commiſſioner, to appeaſe the Tumults in Scotland. God proſper him for God and the King.

June, My Viſitation then began of Merton College in Oxford, by my Viſitors, was adjourned to my own hearing, again upon October 2.

October 2, 3, 4. I ſat upon this Buſineſs theſe three days, and adjourned it till July 1. Inter horas primam & tertiam, Lambeth. The Warden appeared very foul.

October 19. News was brought to us, as we ſat in the Star-Chamber, that the Queen-Mother of France was landed at Harwich; many and great apprehenſions upon this Buſineſs.

October 31. The Queen came into London, and ſo to St. James's.

November 13. The Agreement between me and A. S. &c.

November 21. Wedneſday, The General Aſſembly in Scotland began to ſit.

November 29. Thurſday; The Proclamation iſſued out for diſſolving of the Great Aſſembly in Scotland, under pain of Treaſon.

December 20. They ſat notwithſtanding, and made many ſtrange Acts till December 20, which was Thurſday, and then they roſe; but have indicted another Aſſembly againſt July next.

February 10. My Book againſt Fiſher the Jeſuit was Printed, and this day, being Sunday, I delivered a Copy to his Majeſty.

Tueſday, Feb. 21. That Night I dreamed that K. C. was to be married to a Miniſter's Widow, and that I was called upon to do it: No Service Book could be found; and in my own Book, which I had, I could not find the Order for Marriage.

Mr. Secretary Windebank.

New-England.

‘His Majeſty and the Board taking into conſideration the frequent reſort to New-England, of divers Perſons ill-affected to the Religion eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, and to the good and peaceable Government of this State. However, upon the humble Petition of the Merchants, Paſſengers, and Owners of Ships now bound for New-England, and upon the Reaſons by them repreſented to the Board, His Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed at this time to free them from a late Reſtraint, and to ſet them at liberty to proceed on in their intended Voyage. Nevertheleſs His Majeſty well knowing the factious diſpoſition of the People (for a great part of them) in that Plantation, and how unfit and unworthy they are of any Support or Countenance from hence, in reſpect of the great Diſorders and want of Government amongſt them; whereof ſundry and great Complaints have bin preſented to the Board, and made appear to be true, by thoſe that being well-affected, both for Religion and Government, have ſuffered much loſs in their Eſtates by the unruly Factious Party, did think fit and Order, That Mr. Attorney General ſhall forthwith draw up a Proclamation, expreſſing his Majeſty's Royal Pleaſure to prohibit all Merchants, Maſters, and Owners of Ships from henceforth to ſet forth any Ship, or Ships, with Paſſengers for New-England, till they firſt obtained ſpecial Licence on that behalf, from ſuch of the Lords of His Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, as are appointed for the Buſineſs of Foreign Plantations by ſpecial Commiſſion.

Miniſters and Tithes in adjacent Pariſhes to London.

‘Whereas an humble Petition was this day read at the Board unto the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty, in the Names of the Parſons, Vicars, and Curats of the adjacent Places to the City of London, namely, of St. Margarets Weſtminſter, St. Clements Danes, St. Giles in the Fields, St. James Clarkenwel, St. Leonard Shoreditch, St. Martins in the Fields, St. Mary Whitechappel, Savoy Pariſh, St. George, St. Thomas, and St. Mary Newington. In Southwark, St. Magdalen Bermondſey, St. Saviours Southwark, St. Katharine Tower, Lambeth, and St. Olaves in Southwark; Shewing unto His Majeſty the great increaſe of New-Buildings of late Years, erected in the Petitioners 'ſeveral Pariſhes; and that the number of People is now ſo much 'augmented, that the ſaid Livings are for the preſent incompetent, 'and in no proportion meet for the diſcharge of ſo great Cures, ſome 'of the Petitioners receiving no Tithe at all, the reſt far ſhort of that 'which of right ought to be paid unto them; that great numbers of 'Pariſhioners in the aforeſaid Pariſhes, now living in Houſes, lately 'built upon that Ground which heretofore hath paid Tithes and other 'Rights (to the ſaid ſeveral Churches) pay now to the Petitioners, 'either nothing, or but 2 d. at Eaſter, and 3 d. at the moſt, beſides 'the Obventions of ſmall value; and therefore humbly beſought his 'Majeſty, amidſt His Gracious Thoughts towards the Clergy of London, to take the Caſe of the Pariſhioners into His Princely Care, and 'to take ſome courſe for the better maintenance of the Petitioners, 'and for the eſtabliſhing of their Right. And whereas by former 'Order hath the ſaid Parſons, Vicars, and Curats, and alſo the Church-'Wardens, and divers of the principal Pariſhioners of the ſaid Pariſhes 'appeared this day before His Majeſty and their Lordſhips, in whoſe 'hearing and preſence, the ſaid Petition being again read, they the 'ſaid Clergy, and Church-Wardens, and Pariſhioners, were demanded by His Majeſty whether they were ready and willing to ſubmit to 'His Majeſty's Pleaſure and Determination in the things which were 'moved and deſired in the ſaid Petition; whereunto the ſaid Clergy 'readily aſſented, but the aforeſaid Church-Wardens and Pariſhioners 'alleadged themſelves to be no way authorized thereunto. It was 'thereupon by His Majeſty ordered, That the ſaid Clergy ſhould 'forthwith prepare their Submiſſions reſpectively. And that the 'Church-Wardens and Veſtry-Men of the aforeſaid ſeveral Pariſhes, 'ſhould with like diligence and expedition aſſemble their Pariſhioners; 'and communicating the Petition of the ſaid Clergy unto them, withall acquaint them with His Majeſty's Pleaſure touching their Submiſſion; and they the Pariſhioners by Writing, ſigned with their hands, 'fully to authorize their ſeveral Veſtry-Men, or Church-Wardens, to 'return unto His Majeſty their Anſwer therein. And that both the 'ſaid Clergy, as alſo the Veſtry-Men, or Church-Wardens of each 'Pariſh ſo authorized, fail not to give their attendance, with their 'ſaid Submiſſions and Authorizations, upon Sunday the 6th of May 'next. Whereof all Prrties are required hereby to take notice, and 'to govern themſelves accordingly.

May the 4*th*.

Another Order of the Lords of the Council concerning St. Gregory's Church.

'THis day upon conſideration, as well of the Petition of the Pa'riſhioners of St. Gregories, as of certain Articles propounded 'by the Pariſhioners of St. Gregory's aforeſaid, to the Pariſhioners of 'Chriſts-Church, and of others propounded by the Pariſhioners of 'Chriſt-Church to thoſe of St. Gregory's, concerning the accommodating 'the Pariſhioners of St. Gregory's in the Weſt end of Chriſt-Church, 'for the exerciſing of Divine Service there. It was by the Board 'ordered,

'That the Pariſhioners of St. Gregory's ſhall place no Pews in Chriſt-Church, but ſuch as ſhall be moveable, to the end that Burials may 'not be hindered, when thoſe of Chriſt-Church have occaſion to bury 'there.

‘That for the ſaid Pariſhioners of St. Gregory's coming in and going, they ſhall make uſe of the Weſt Doors only.

‘That they ſhall depart and leave the ſaid Weſt end of the Church at the Feaſt of St. John Baptiſt, which ſhall be in the Year of Our Lord God 1641.

‘That thoſe of St. Gregory's ſhall leave the Church as they found it, and as well repaired in all reſpects, ordinary uſe and wearing excepted.

‘That thoſe of St. Gregory's ſhall have liberty to bury ten of their Pariſhioners every Year (if there be occaſion) within the Weſt end of Chriſt-Church, for that they have no other place where to bury their Dead.

‘That the Pariſhioners of Chriſt-Church and St. Gregory's, ſhall from time to time ſubmit themſelves to the Arbitrement and Commands of the Lord Biſhop of London and his Succeſſors for the compoſing of all Differences which ſhall ariſe between the ſaid Pariſhioners.

‘And laſtly; Their Lordſhips do hereby order and require, That the Church-Wardens, Common-Council-Men, and Sidemen, as well of the Pariſh of St. Gregory's, as of that of Chriſt-Church ſhall ſubſcribe to the performance of all the aforeſaid Articles; and that ſuch their Subſcription, together with this their Lordſhips Order, ſhall oblige reſpectively both the one and the other ſide to the due performance of the ſame, and every part thereof. And upon this Subſcription, which is forthwith required, thoſe of Chriſt-Church ſhall preſently deliver the Keys of that part of the Church to thoſe of St. Gregory's. Hereof as well the Pariſhioners of Chriſt-Church, as thoſe of St. Gregory's, are to take notice, and conform themſelves accordingly.

A further Order concerning Tithes as to the Out-Pariſhes.

‘THis day Information was given to His Majeſty and the Board, That where His Majeſty's Order of the of April laſt, touching the Submiſſion of ſixteen of the Out-Pariſhes in the Suburbs of London, and the Liberties of Weſtminſter, unto His Majeſty and the Board, concerning the Increaſe of Maintenance to their Miniſters, in ſuch manner as other Pariſhes within the City of London had done, 'was publiſhed within the Pariſh Church of St. Giles in the Fields, upon Aſcenſion day laſt paſt; That one George Winder, qualifying himſelf a Meſſenger Extraordinary of His Majeſty's Chamber, did, in the midſt of a great Aſſembly of the Pariſhioners, who then ſeemed inclinable to return unto His Majeſty a modeſt and reſpective Anſwer to His Pleaſure ſignified unto them, did in a moſt uncivil and inſolent manner, afront Mr. Dr. Heywood, one of His Majeſty's Chaplains in Ordinary, Parſon of the ſaid Pariſh, and Lawrence Whitaker Eſq; one of His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, an Inhabitant in the ſaid Pariſh, when they delivered the Points of the ſaid Order to the Aſſembly, and perſwaded them to ſubmiſſion therein required, whereby, and by his peremptory carriage, and affirming of untruths, the Votes of the ſaid Pariſhioners were diverted from giving ſuch ſatisfaction to His Majeſty's Propoſitions as were expected. It was therefore ordered by His Majeſty and the Board, That the Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold, ſhould be prayed and required to call the ſaid George Winder before him, and examine him touching the ſaid Offence; and if he found it to be as was informed, that he ſhould then take ſuch order for his Puniſhment, either by taking from him the countenance of his pretended Service, or otherwiſe, as his Lordſhip ſhall find his Offence to deſerve.

Unconformable Miniſters.

'VVHereas it is obſerved, That ſuch Miniſters who are unconformable to the Diſcipline and Ceremonies of the Church here, have and do frequently tranſport themſelves to the Summer-Iſlands, and other His Majeſty's Plantations abroad; where they take liberty to nouriſh and preſerve their Factious and Schiſmatical Humours, to the ſeducing and abuſe of His Majeſty's Subjects, and the hindrance of that good Conformity & Unity in the Church, which His Majeſty is careful and deſirous to eſtabliſh throughout His Dominions. We are therefore in His Majeſty's Name, and by His expreſs Command, hereby to pray and require your * Lordſhip to take a preſent and ſtrict Order, That no Clergy-Men be from hence-forth ſuffered to go over into the Summer-Iſlands, but ſuch only as ſhall have approbation in that behalf, from Our very good Lords, the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury his Grace, and the Lord Biſhop of London. And that for all ſuch of them as are already gone thither, without ſuch Approbation, that you cauſe them forthwith to be remanded back hither. And ſo expecting a good account hereof from your Lordſhip, we bid you very heartily farewel.

* The Lord Admiral.

Inſtructions for Captain William Legg, concerning the Ordnance, Arms, and Proviſions ſent to Kingſton upon Hull.

Arms and Ammunition at Hull:

'YOu are, with the Aſſiſtance and Atteſtation of the Mayor of the ſaid Town for the time being, to take a particular view and tale of the reſpective Proviſions that ſhall be there landed, and which are committed, by the Office of the Ordnance, to John Spencer, one of His Majeſty's Gunners, and the ſeveral Maſters of the Ships wherein they were ſent, comparing the Indentures with the Charge of 'the Indentures, and accordingly give a Diſcharge to ſuch as tranſported them, and not otherwiſe.

'You are alſo, with the like Aſſiſtance and Atteſtation, to take a particular view and tale of the reſpective Proviſions, being 800 Muſquets compleat, and 2000 Pikes, and all other Proviſions which are to be brought out of the Low Countries by Sir Jacob Aſhley; and you are to indent, as well for what you receive from the Low-Countries, as for what you receive out of the Ships from the Tower, and to ſend your Indenture for all the ſaid Proviſions into the Office of the Ordnance.

'You ſhall take care that all the ſaid Proviſions be lodged in a convenient and ſafe Store-houſe, and in ſuch order and decency, that the ſame may not only be freed from all danger and detriment, but be ready upon all occaſions; to which purpoſe you are to keep particular Memorials, or Liſts, of the Place and Order wherein each nature of the Proviſions committed to the charge is placed.

'You, with the aſſiſtance of the Mayor, are to ſell Powder, Match, and Muſquet-ſhot only, (and no other Proviſions in your Charge at Hull) to ſuch Perſons of the ſaid Towns or Counties thereabouts, as ſhall bring Certificate from one or more of the Deputy-Lieutenants of the ſaid Counties, or of the Mayor, and two other Magiſtrates of any Corporation reſpectively, That the ſaid Buyers are fit and reſponſible Perſons to be furniſhed with ſuch Munitions.

'You are to keep a particular account of the Sale of all, or any the ſaid Proviſions, expreſſing therein to whom, at what time, and at what rates the ſame are ſold; and the Accompt to be returned to the Office of the Ordnance, and the hands of your ſelf and the Mayor of the ſaid place, at which time the ſaid Certificates of the Deputy-Lieutenants, and the Magiſtrates, is likewiſe to be delivered into the Office, and an acknowledgment under the hands of the Party or Parties that ſhall buy any of the ſaid Proviſions, what he hath received, and what he hath paid.

'When any conſiderable proportion of Powder, Match, or Muſquet-ſhot ſhall be ſold, you are to give ſuch timely notice to the Maſter of the Ordnance, that ſupply accordingly may be returned unto you.

'The Monies proceeding from ſuch Sales, is to be from time to time delivered to ſuch Perſons as the Lord Treaſurer ſhall appoint to receive the ſame from you.

'As for the iſſuing or diſpoſing of any other part of the ſaid Proviſions committed to your truſt, beſides Powder, Match, and Muſquet-ſhot, you are to receive further Orders and Inſtructions, either from his Majeſty, the Lords of the Council, or Maſter of the Ordnance.

'You having received your Munition from hence, and thoſe Arms from Holland, and diſpoſed of them in ſuch ſafety as aforeſaid, ſhall repair to Newcaſtle with the Engineer; and if Sir Jacob Aſhley ſhall not be come to Hull, you ſhall notwithſtanding go to Newcaſtle, and diſpatch there according to your further Inſtructions concerning that Town, leaving Mr. Leonard Pinkney, the Bearer hereof, to attend Sir Jacob Aſhley's arrival, and to receive the Arms by him brought thither, and to diſpoſe of them as you ſhall direct before you go.

14 Caroli.

‘During which time of your abſence at Newcaſtle, you ſhall depute ſuch as you ſhall think fit; who with the atteſtation of the Mayor, according to the former Inſtructions, ſhall iſſue and make ſale of ſuch Powder, Match, and Muſquet-ſhot as is ordered and warranted as aforeſaid until your return.

‘You are likewiſe to take knowledg, That upon ſignification of your Letter, his Majeſty is pleaſed, for the better encouragement of the Inhabitants, to fortify the Town, to lend them ſix Demi-Culverings of Iron, with their Field-Carriages, mounted upon unſhod-Wheels, with Ladles and Spunges belonging to them; they indenting for the ſame with the Maſter and Office of the Ordnance, according to courſe.

‘You are further to certify the Maſter of the Ordnance, what ſtores of Ordnance and other Munition have bin formerly in charge at Hull.

‘And laſtly; In regard that neither the Proviſions that ſhall come from the Tower to Hull, nor thoſe out of the Low-Countries, can be ſtowed without Mony, Men, and Labour, you are to adviſe with the Mayor touching the Hire uſually given to Labourers there; and thoſe you imploy, to give them Wages accordingly; and the ſame courſe you ſhall take at Newcaſtle. And to enable you thereunto, you ſhall receive 300 l. by John Spencer; whereof you are to render an Accompt of your ſeveral Diſburſements, ſubſcribed by the ſeveral Perſons whom you imploy, atteſted by the reſpective Mayors of Hull and Newcaſtle. As alſo out of the ſaid Monies, to pay to Thomas Heath ſuch Monies as he ſhall neceſſarily diſburſe for his Majeſty's Service in ſtowing or iſſuing of the Munition or Arms upon Certificate thereof, ſubſcribed by the Magiſtrates of the Town.

The Prices of Powder, Match, and Arms to be ſold, viz.

Powder	18 d. the pound.
Match	1 l. 10 s. the C. Weight.
Muſquets	18 s. 6 d. the Piece.

The Qu. Mother of France comes to England.

October the laſt, Mary de Medicis, the Queen Mother of France, came to London, and ſo to St. James's, The People were generally Malecontent at her coming, and wiſh'd her farther off; for they did not like her Train and Followers, which had often been obſerved, to bring the Sword or Peſtilence, ſo that ſhe was beheld as ſome Meteor of ill ſignification. Nor was one of theſe Calamities thought more the effect of her Fortune than Inclination, for her reſtleſs and unceſſant Spirit was prone to embroil all whereſoever ſhe came. Her impetuous banding and combining with Monſieur the Duke of Orleans, and the improſperity of that enterpriſe, made France too hot for her, and drave her, in the Year 1631, to Bruſſels, where the Cardinal D' Infanta, treated her a while with moſt honourable Careſſes and Reſpects; but Flanders, which at firſt ſeemed her place of Refuge, became afterwards her greateſt Danger, ſhe being (as her own Manifeſto ſets forth) ſo hunted and purſued with continual Imprecations and Curſes there, as ſhe began to fear ſome violence to her Perſon; ſo that quitting that Country, ſhe betook her ſelf to the Protection of the Prince of Orange 1637. Long ſhe ſtaied not there, but having received an invitation from the Queen her Daughter, reſorted hither.

To find Horſe and Arms.

‘THis day, his Majeſty being preſent in Council, was pleaſed in his Provident and Princely Care for the Safety and Defence of the Realm, to take into Conſideration amongſt other Particulars, the making compleat, and increaſing all that conveniently may be, the number of Horſe in every County, as a moſt important part of the Strength of the Kingdom. And for the better advancing and putting in execution thereof, it was taken into deliberation what proportion of Lands and Eſtate within the County ought to be chargeable with the finding of Horſe; and upon mature advice thought fit and reſolved, That every perſon having Lands of Inheritance of the clear yearly value of two hundred or three hundred pounds per Ann. within the County, or other Eſtate equivalent thereunto, ſhould be chargeable with a Horſe, viz. two hundred pounds per Annum with a Light Horſe, and three hundred pounds per Annum with a Lance, at the diſcretion of the Lord-Lieutenant of that County for the time being. And whereas it was now likewiſe taken into conſideration that the ſparing of ſome Perſons doth open a gap to excuſes and backwardneſs in others; to the weakning both of Horſe and Foot. And for that by Letters under his Majeſty's Roial Signature, bearing date 24*th* day of May, And by a Minute of Letters from the Board, ſent together with his Majeſty's ſaid Letters to the Lords Lieutenants of every County, it appeared that his Majeſty's pleaſure was then declared and ſignified to be, That no Man's Purſe ſhould be ſpared in theſe Services, upon any Excuſe or Pretence whatſoever; And that his own Servants, and thoſe that attend him in Court, ſhould be priviledged only, and ſpared from perſonal and actual Duties, but their Lands and Revenues to be as liable as any others to the Charge of finding Arms in thoſe Counties where the ſame do lie. It was therefore (according to his Majeſty's expreſs will and pleaſure now again Declared) Reſolved and Ordered, That the direction and Command given on that behalf, by his Majeſty's former Letters, ſhould be perſued and put in Execution by the Lords Lieutenants of every County. And that the like Rule ſhould be held and obſerved as well concerning the Perſons as the Lands and Revenues, of all and every the Miniſters and Officers of any his Majeſty's Courts of Juſtice, or any others that pretend Priviledge by reaſon of any relation to his Majeſty's Service, or dependence upon any great Officer in reſpect of his Place and Office, which however it was not ſo particularly expreſſed in his Majeſty's former Letters, yet (as his Majeſty was now pleaſed to obſerve and declare) the ſame was ‘ neceſſarily implied; for that if none of his own Servants were to be ‘ priviledged and exempted in their Lands and Eſtates from being ‘ chargeable with Arms, much leſs was it intended that the Miniſters

‘ and Officers of any of his Courts of Juſtice, or any other pretending ‘ Privilege by his Majeſty's Service, or by dependence upon any great ‘ Officers in reſpect of their Offices, ſhould in a like caſe have any great ‘ Priviledge or Exemption allowed them. Hereof a Copy is to be ‘ forthwith ſent to the Lord Lieutenant of every County.

This Accompt coming to our hands, we thought meet to preſent it for the Reader's more particular ſatisfaction.

Affairs in Scotland.

Now we beg leave for a while to make a ſtep into Scotland, to give an Account of the Tranſactions of Affairs in that Kingdom ſince the Month of December in the preceding Year 1637. The Scots begin their Year always with the Month of January, according to Foreign ſtile; ſo the firſt thing that offers it ſelf in order of Time is, That his Majeſty ſent the Earl of Roxborough, Lord Privy-Seal (then at the Court in England) to Scotland, with certain Inſtructions to the Council, who were to meet at Dalkeith, to conſider of the Diſordered Affairs of that Kingdom. And the Council removed the Seſſion [or Term] from Linlithgow to Sterling, twenty four miles from Edinburgh, to the end the Multitudes might be diſperſed, under pain of Treaſon; but nevertheleſs they came in great Tumults to Sterling alſo, and the Earl of Traquaire, Lord Treaſurer of that Kingdom, being newly returned back from the King, went with the reſt of the Council to Sterling, where they cauſed a Proclamation to be made for the diſperſing of the huge and dangerous Tumults there aſſembled, and to aſſure the King's Subjects of his Majeſty's ſincerity towards the Religion Eſtabliſhed in that Kingdom, and cauſed the Proclamation to that purpoſe (following) to be made publick accordingly.

CHARLES by the Grace of God, King of Great-Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To Our Lovits, &c. Our Sheriffs in that Part conjunctly and ſeverally, ſpecially conſtituted, greeting.

A Proclamation to beat down Superſtition. The King hath ordained a Common-Prayer Book.

Foraſmuch as We, out of Our Princely Care of maintenance of the true Religion already profeſſed, and for beating down of all Superſtition, having ordained a Book of Common-Prayer to be compiled for the general Uſe and Edification of Our Subjects, within Our Ancient Kingdom of Scotland: The ſame was accordingly done. In the framing whereof We took great care and pains, ſo as nothing paſt therein but what was ſeen and approved by Us, before the ſame was either divulged or printed; aſſuring all Our loving Subjects, That not only Our intention is, but even the very Book will be a ready means to maintain the True Religion already profeſſed, and beat out all Superſtition, of which We in Our own time do not doubt but in a fair courſe to ſatisfy Our good Subjects: But having ſeen and conſidered ſome Petitions and Declarations given in to Our Council againſt the ſaid Book, and late Canons of the Church, We find Our Royal Authority much injured thereby, both in the Matter and in the Carriage thereof; whereby We conceive theſe of Our Nobility, Gentry, Burroughs, Miniſters, and others, who kept and aſſiſted theſe Meetings and Convocations, for contriving and forming the ſaid Petitions, or who have ſubſcribed the ſame, to deſerve and be liable to Our high Cenſure, both in their Perſons and Fortunes, as having convened themſelves, without either Our Conſent or Authority; yet becauſe We believe, That what they have done herein, is out of a prepoſterous Zeal, and not out of any Diſloyalty or diſaffection to Soveraignty, We are graciouſly pleaſed, ſo far forth as concerns theſe Meetings, for conſulting or ſubſcribing of theſe Petitions, or preſenting the ſame to any Judge or Judges in Our ſaid Kingdom, to diſpenſe therewith, and with what may be their Fault or Error therein, to all ſuch as upon Signification or Declaration of Our Pleaſure, ſhall retire themſelves as becometh good and dutiful Subjects: To which purpoſe Our Will and Pleaſure is, and We charge you ſtraightly, and command, That theſe Letters ſeen, incontinent you paſs, and in Our Name and Authority, make intimation hereof to all Our Lieges and Subjects, by open Proclamation, at all places needful, wherethrough none pretend ignorance thereof; and therewith alſo that you in Our Name and Authority, diſcharge all ſuch Convocations and Meetings in time coming, under the pain of Treaſon. And alſo that you command, charge, and inhibit all Our Lieges and Subjects, That none of them preſume, nor take in hand, to reſort nor repair to Our Burgh of Sterling, nor to no other Burgh where Our Council & Seſſion ſits, till firſt they declare their Cauſe of coming to Our Council, and procure their Warrant to that effect. And further, That you charge and command all ſundry Provoſts, Bailiffs, and Magiſtrates, within every Burgh, That they and every one of them, have ſpecial care and regard to ſee this Our Royal Will and Pleaſure really

An. 1638. ally and dutifully obeyed in all Points, and that no violation thereof be ſuffered within their Bounds, under all higheſt Pain, Crime, and Offence, that they may commit againſt us in that behalf. As alſo that you command and charge all and ſundry Noblemen, Barons, Miniſters, and Burroughs, who are not actually Indwellers within this Our Burgh, and are not of the Number of the Lords of Our Privy Council and Seſſion, and Members thereof, and are already within this Our Burgh, that they and every one of them, remove themſelves, and depart and paſs forth out of Our ſaid Burgh, and return not again without the Warrant aforeſaid, within ſix hours after the publication hereof, under the ſaid pain of Treaſon. And as concerning any Petitions that ſhall hereafter be given Us, upon this or any other Subject, We are likewiſe pleaſed to declare, We will not ſhut Our Ears therefrom, ſo that neither the Form nor Matter be prejudicial to Our Regal Authority; the which to do, We commit to you, conjunctly and ſeverally, Our full Power by theſe Our Letters, delivering the ſame by you duly execute and indorſed again to the Bearer. Given under Our Signet at Sterling, the 19th day of February, and of Our Reign the 13th Year, 1638.

Per Actum Secreti Concilii.

Upon the publiſhing of this Proclamation, it met with this Proteſtation.

For God and the King.

February 19. WE Noblemen, Barons, Miniſters, Burgers, appointed to attend his Majeſty's Anſwer to our humble Petition and Complaint, and to prefer new Grievances, and to do what elſe may lawfully conduce to our humble Deſires; That whereupon the 23d of September laſt, we preſented a Supplication to Your Lordſhips, and another upon the 18th of October laſt; and alſo a new Bill relative to the former upon the 19th of December laſt, and did therein humbly remonſtrate our juſt Exceptions againſt the Service Book, and Book of Canons; and alſo againſt the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops of this Kingdom, as the Contrivers, Maintainers, and Urgers thereof, and againſt their ſitting as our Judges, until the Cauſe be decided; earneſtly ſupplicating withal, to be freed and delivered from theſe and all other Innovations of that kind, introduced againſt the laudable Laws of this Kingdom, as that of the High Commiſſion, and other Evils particularly mentioned, and generally contained in our foreſaid Supplications and Complaints; and that this our Party Delinquent againſt our Religion and Laws, may be taken order with, and thoſe preſſing Grievances may be taken order with, and redreſſed according to the Laws of this Kingdom, as by our ſaid Supplications and Complaints doth more largely appear; With the which, on the 19th of December laſt, we gave in a Declinator againſt the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops as our Parties, who by conſequence could not be our Judges: whereupon Your Lordſhips did declare, by Your Act at Dalkeith, the ſaid 19th of December, That You would preſent our Petitions to His Majeſty's Royal Conſideration, and that without prejudice of the Declinator given in by us the ſaid Supplicants, whereupon we ſhould be heard at time and place convenient, and in the mean time ſhould receive no prejudice, as the ſaid Act in it ſelf beareth. And whereas whereas we your Lordſhips Supplicants, with a great deal of patience, and hope alſo grounded on ſundry Promiſes, were expecting an Anſwer to theſe our humble Deſires, and having learned that upon ſome Directions of his Majeſty anent our Supplications and Complaints unto your Lordſhips of the Secret Council, your Lordſhips admits to the conſulting and judging anent our Supplications, and his Majeſty's Anſwer thereunto; the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops our direct Parties, contrary to our firſt Declinator propounded at Dalkeith, and now renewed at Sterling; and contrary to your Lordſhips Act aforeſaid at Dalkeith, and contrary to our Religion, and Laws, and humble Supplications; therefore leſt our ſilence be prejudicial to this ſo important a Cauſe, as concerns God's Glory and Worſhip, our Religion, Salvation, the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, or derogatory to the former Supplications and Complaints, or unanſwerable to the truſt of our Commiſſion; out of our bounden duty to our God, our King and native Country, we are forced to take Inſtruments in Notaries Hands, of your Lordſhips refuſal to admit our Declinator, or remove theſe our Parties, and to proteſt in manner following.

First, That we may have our immediate recourſe to our Sacred Soveraign, to preſent our Grievances, and in a legal way to proſecute the ſame before the ordinary competent Judges, Civil or Eccleſiaſtical, without any Offence offered by us, or taken by your Lordſhips.

Secondly, We proteſt that the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops, our Parties complained upon, cannot be reputed or eſteemed Lawful Judges, to ſit in any Judicatory in this Kingdom, Civil or Eccleſiaſtical, upon any of the Supplicants, until after lawful Trial judicially, they purge themſelves of ſuch Crimes as we have already laid to their charge, offering to prove the ſame whenſoever his Sacred Majeſty ſhall pleaſe to give us audience.

Thirdly, We proteſt no Act nor Proclamation to follow thereupon, paſt, or to be paſt in Council or out of Council, in preſence of the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops, whom we have already declined to be our Judges, ſhall be any ways prejudicial to us the Supplicants, our Perſons, Eſtates, lawful Meetings, Proceedings or Purſuits.

Fourthly, We proteſt that neither we, nor any whoſe Heart the Lord ſhall move to join with us in theſe our Supplications, againſt the aforeſaid Innovations, ſhall incur any danger in Life, Lands, or any Political or Eccleſiaſtical Pains, for not obſerving ſuch Acts, Books, Canons, Rites, Judicatures, Proclamations introduced without or againſt the Acts of General Aſſemblies, or Acts of Parliament, the Statutes of this Kingdom, but that it ſhall be lawful to us or them to uſe our ſelves in Matters of Religion, of the External Worſhip of God, and Polity of the Church, according to the Word of God, and laudable Conſtitutions of this Church and Kingdom, conform to his Majeſty's Declaration the 9th of December laſt.

Fifthly, Seeing by the legal and ſubmiſſive way of our former Supplications, all thoſe who take theſe Innovations to heart, have bin kept calm, and carried themſelves in a quiet manner in hopes of redreſs; We proteſt that if any Inconvenience ſhall fall out, which we pray the Lord to prevent, upon the preſſing of any the foreſaid Innovations or Evils, ſpecially or generally contained in our former Supplications and Complaints, and upon your Lordſhips refuſal, to take order there-anent, the ſame be not imputed unto us, who moſt humbly ſeek all things to be reformed by an Order.

Sixthly; We proteſt that theſe our Requeſts, proceeding from Conſcience, An.1638. and a due reſpect to his Majeſty's Honour, do tend to no other end, but to the preſervation of the true Reformed Religion, the Laws and Liberties of his Majeſty's moſt ancient Kingdom, and ſatisfaction of our moſt humble Deſires contained in our Supplication and Complaint, according to his Majeſty's accuſtomed Goodneſs and Juſtice; from which we do certainly expect that his Sacred Majeſty will provide and grant ſuch Remedy to our juſt Petitions and Complaints, as may be expected from ſo gracious a King towards his moſt Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, calling for redreſs of ſo preſſing Grievances, and praying to God that his Majeſty may long and proſperouſly raign over us.

After this their Proteſtation, they did erect a great number of Tables (as they called them); in Edinburgh four Principals, one of the Nobility, another of the Gentry, a third of the Burroughs, and a fourth of the Miniſters. And the Gentry had many ſubordinate Tables, according to their ſeveral Shires. Theſe ſeveral Tables did conſult of what they thought fit to be propounded at the General Table, which conſiſted of ſeveral Commiſſioners choſen from the other four Tables. And from this time they proceeded in framing and ſubſcribeing of their Covenant; concerning which, ſaith Dr. Belcanqual, the reputed Penman of the King's Declaration, That the firſt Dung that which from theſe Stables was thrown upon the Face of Authority and Government, was that lewd Covenant, and Seditious Band annexed unto it; which followeth in theſe words.

The Confeſſion of Faith of the Kirk of Scotland, ſubſcribed at firſt by the King's Majeſty and his Houſhold in the Year of God 1580; thereafter by Perſons of all Ranks in the Year 1581, by Ordinance of the Lords of the Secret Council, and Acts of the General Aſſembly; ſubſcribed again by all ſorts of Perſons, in the Year 1590, by a new Ordinance of Council, at the deſire of the General Aſſembly; with a General Band for maintenance of the True Religion, and the King's Perſon, and now ſubſcribed in the Year 1638, by us Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and Commons under ſubſcribing; together with our Reſolution and Promiſes for the Cauſes after ſpecified, to maintain the ſaid True Religion, and the King's Majeſty, according to the Confeſſion aforeſaid, and Acts of Parliament; the Tenure whereof here followeth.

'WE all, and every one of Us under written, do proteſt, That after long and due examination of our own Conſciences in Matters of True and Falſe Religion, are now throughly reſolved of the Truth, by the Word and Spirit of God; and therefore We believe with Our Hearts, confeſs with Our Mouths, ſubſcribe with Our Hands, and conſtantly affirm before God and the whole World, That this only is the true Chriſtian Faith and Religion, pleaſing God, and bringing Salvation to Man, which now is by the Mercy of God revealed to the World by the preaching of the bleſſed Evangel. And received, believed, and defended by many and ſundry notable Kirks and Realms, but chiefly by the Kirk of Scotland, the King's Majeſty, and three Eſtates of this Realm, as God's Eternal Truth, and only Ground of Our Salvation; as more particularly is expreſſed in the Confeſſion of Our Faith, eſtabliſhed and publickly confirmed by ſundry Acts of Parliament; and now of a long time hath bin openly profeſſed by the King's Majeſty, and whole Body of this Realm, both in Burgh and Land. To the which Confeſſion, and Form of Religion, we willingly agree in Our Conſciences in all Points, as unto God's undoubted Truth and Verity, grounded only upon his written Word; and therefore We abhor and deteſt all contrary Religion and Doctrine, but chiefly all kind of Papiſtry in general and particular Heads, even as they are now damned and and confuted by the Word of God, and Kirk of Scotland. But in ſpecial, We deteſt and refuſe the uſurped Authority of that Roman Antichriſt upon the Scriptures of God, upon the Kirk, the Civil Magiſtrate, and Conſciences of Men; all his Tyrannous Laws made upon indifferent Things againſt our Chriſtian Liberty; his Erroneous Doctrine againſt the Sufficiency of the Written Word, the Perfection of the Law, the Office of Chriſt and his bleſſed Evangel; His corrupted Doctrine concerning Original Sin, Our natural inability and rebellion to God's Law, Our Juſtification by Faith only, Our imperfect Sanctification and Obedience to the Law, the Nature, Number, and uſe of the Holy Sacraments; His five Baſtard Sacraments, with all his Rights, Ceremonies, and falſe Doctrine, added to the Miniſtration of the true Sacraments, without the Word of God. His cruel Judgments againſt Infants departing without the Sacrament; his abſolute neceſſity of Baptiſm; his blaſpemous Opinion of Tranſubſtantiation, or real preſence of Chriſt's Body in the Elements, and receiving of the ſame by the Wicked, or Bodies of Men. His Diſpenſations, with ſolemn Oaths, Perjuries, and degrees of Marriage, forbidden in the Word; his cruelty againſt the Innocent divorced, his deviliſh Maſs; his blaſphemous Prieſthood; his prophane Sacrifice for the Sins of the Dead and the Quick; his Canonization of Men calling upon Angels or Saints departed, worſhipping of Imagery, Relicks, and Croſſes; dedicating of Kirks, Altars, Days, Vows to Creatures; his Purgatory, Prayers for the Dead, Praying or Speaking in a ſtrange Language; with his Proceſſions and blaſphemous Letany, and multitude of Advocates or Mediators; his manifold Orders, Auricular Confeſſion; his deſperate and uncertain Repentance; his general and doubtſome Faith; his Satisfactions of Men for their Sins; his Juſtification by Works, Opus Operatum, Works of Supererrogation, Merits, Pardons, Peregrinations and Stations. His Holy Water, baptizing of Bells, conjuring of Spirits, Croſſing, Saning, Anointing, Conjuring, Hallowing of God's good Creatures, with the Superſtitious Opinion joined therewith. His worldly Monarchy, and wicked Hierarchy; his three ſolemn Vows, with all his ſhavelings of ſundry ſorts; his erroneous and bloody Decrees made at Trent, with all the Subſcribers & Approvers of that cruel and bloody Band conjured againſt the Kirk of God. And finally, We deteſt all his vain Allegories, Rites, Signs, and Traditions, brought in the Kirk without or againſt the Word of God, and Doctrine of this true Reformed Kirk. To which We join Our ſelves willingly, in Doctrine, Religion, Faith, Diſcipline, and Uſe of the Holy Sacraments, as lively Members of the ſame, in Chriſt Our Head, promiſing and ſwearing, by the Great Name of the Lord Our God, That We ſhall continue in the Obedience of the Doctrine and Diſci-

'pline of this Kirk, and ſhall defend the ſame according to Our Vocation and Power all the days of Our Lives, under the pains contained in the Law, and danger both of Body and Soul in the day of God's fearful Judgment. And ſeeing that many are ſtirred up by Satan, and that Roman Antichriſt, to Promiſe, Swear, Subſcribe, and for a time uſe the Holy Sacraments in the Kirk, deceitfully againſt their own Conſciences, minding thereby, firſt under the External Cloak of Religion, to corrupt and ſubvert ſecretly God's True Religion within the Kirk; and afterwards, when time may ſerve, to become open Enemies and Perſecuters of the ſame, under vain hope of the Pope's Diſpenſation, deviſed againſt the Word of God, to his great Confuſion, and their double Condemnation in the Day of the Lord Jeſus.

'We therefore willing to take away all ſuſpicion of Hypocriſy, and of ſuch double dealing with God and his Kirk, proteſt and call the Searcher of all Hearts for Witneſs, that Our Minds and Hearts do fully agree with this Our Confeſſion, Promiſe, Oath, and Subſcription: ſo that We are not moved for any worldly Reſpect, but are perſuaded only in Our Conſciences, through the knowledg and love of God's True Religion, printed in Our Hearts by the Holy Spirit, as we ſhall anſwer to him in the Day when the Secrets of all Hearts ſhall be diſcloſed. And becauſe we perceive that the quietneſs and ſtability of Our Religion and Kirk doth depend upon the ſafety and good behaviour of the King's Majeſty, as upon a comfortable Inſtrument of God's Mercy granted to this Country for the maintenance of his Kirk, and miniſtration of Juſtice among us, we proteſt and promiſe with Our Hearts under the ſame Oath, hand writ, and pains, that We ſhall defend his Perſon and Authority, with Our Goods, Bodies, and Lives, in the defence of Chriſt his Evangel, Liberties of Our Country, Miniſtration of Juſtice, and Puniſhment of Iniquity, againſt all Enemies within this Realm, or without, as We deſire Our God to be a ſtrong and merciful Defender to Us in the day of Our Death, and coming of Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; to whom, with the Father and the Holy Spirit, be all Honour and Glory eternally.

'Like-as many Acts of Parliament not only in general do abrogate, annul, and reſcind all Laws, Statutes, Acts, Conſtitutions, Canons Civil or Municipal, with all other Ordinances and practick Penalties whatſoever, made in prejudice of the True Religion, and Profeſſors thereof; or of the True Kirk Diſcipline, Juriſdiction, and freedom thereof; or in favours of Idolatry and Superſtition: Or of the Papiſtical Kirk, as Act. 3. Act. 31. Parl. 1. Act. 23. Parl. 11. Act. 114. Parl. 12. of King James the 6th. That Papiſtry and Superſtition may be utterly ſuppreſſed, according to the intention of the Acts of Parliament reported in Act. 5. Parl. 20. King James the 6th. And to that end they ordained all Papiſts and Prieſts to be puniſhed by manifold Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Pains, as Adverſaries to God's True Religion preached, and by Law eſtabliſhed within this Ream, Act. 24. Parl. 11. King James the 6th, as common Enemies to all Chriſtian Government, Act. 18. Parl. 16. King James the 6th, as Rebellers and Gainſtanders of Our Soveraign Lord's Authority, Act. 47. Parl. 3. K. James 6. and as Idolaters, Act. 104. Parl. 7. K. James 6. but alſo in particular, (by and attour the Confeſſion of Faith) do aboliſh and condemn the Pope's Authority and Juriſdiction out of 'this Land, and ordains the Mainteiners thereof to be puniſhed, Act. 2. Parl. 1. Act 51. Parl. 3. Act 106. Parl. 7. Act 114. Parl. 12. of K. James 6. do condemn the Pope's erroneous Doctrine, or any other erroneous Doctrine repugnant to any of the Articles of the true and Chriſtian Religion publickly preached, and by Law eſtabliſhed in this Realm; and ordains the Spreaders or Makers of Books or Libels, or Letters or Writs of that nature, to be puniſhed: Act 46. Parl. 3. Act 106. Parl. 7. Act 24. Parl. 11. K. Jam. 6. do condemn all Baptiſm conform to the Pope's Kirk, and the Idolatry of the Maſs; and ordains all Sayers, wilful Hearers, and Concealers of the Maſs, the Mainteiners and Reſetters of the Prieſts, Jeſuites, traffiquing Papiſts to be puniſhed without any exception or reſtriction; Act 5. Parl. 1. Act 120. Parl. 12. Act 164. Parl. 13. Act. 193. Parl. 14. Act. 1. Parl. 19. Act. 5. Parl. 20. King James 6. do condemn all Erroneous Books and Writs containing Erroneous Doctrine againſt the Religion preſently profeſſed, or containing Superſtitious Rites and Ceremonies Papiſtical, whereby the People are greatly abuſed; and ordains the home-bringers of them to be puniſhed, Act. 25. Parl. 11. K. Jam. 6. do condemn the Monuments and Dregs of by-gane Idolatry; as going to Croſſes, obſerving the Feſtival Days of Saints, and ſuch other Superſtitious and Papiſtical Rites, to the diſhonour of God, contempt of true Religion, and foſtring of great Errors among the People, and ordains the uſers of them to be puniſhed for the ſecond fault as Idolaters; Act. 104. Parl. 7. K. Jam. 6.

'Like-as many Acts of Parliament are conceived for maintenance of God's true and Chriſtian Religion, and the Purity thereof, in Doctrine and Sacraments of the true Church of God, the Liberty and Freedom thereof, in her National, Synodal Aſſemblies, Preſbyteries, Seſſions, Policy, Diſcipline, and Juriſdiction thereof, as that Purity of Religion, and Liberty of the Church was uſed, profeſſed, exerciſed, preached and confeſſed according to the Reformation of Religion in this Realm. As for inſtance: Act. 99. Parl. 7. Act. 23. Parl. 11. Act. 114. Parl. 12. Act. 160. Parl. 13. K. Jam. 6. ratified by Act. 4. K. Charles. So that Act 6. Parl. 1. and Act. 68. Parl. 6. of K. Jam. 6. in the Year of God 1579, declares the Miniſters of the bleſſed Evangel, whom God of his Mercy had raiſed up, or hereafter ſhould raiſe, agreeing with them that then lived in Doctrine and Adminiſtration of the Sacraments, and the People that profeſſed Chriſt, as he was then offered in the Evangel, and doth communicate with the holy Sacraments (as in the Reformed Kirks of this Realm they were preſently adminiſtred) according to the Confeſſion of Faith, to be the true and holy Kirk of Chriſt Jeſus within this Realm, and decerns and declares all and ſundry, who either gainſays the Word of the Evangel, received and approved as the heads of the Confeſſion of Faith, profeſſed in Parliament in the Year of God 1560, ſpecified alſo in the firſt Parliament of K. Jam. 6. and ratified in this preſent Parliament, more particularly do ſpecify; or that refuſes the Adminiſtration of the holy Sacraments as they were then miniſtrated, to be no Members of the ſaid Kirk within this Realm, and true Religion preſently profeſſed, ſo long as they keep themſelves ſo divided from the ſociety of Chriſt's Body. And the ſubſequent Act 69. Parl. 6. K. James 6. declares, That there is no other face of Kirk, nor other face of Religion, than was preſently at that time by the favour of God eſtabliſhed within this Realm, which therefore is ever ſtiled God's true Religion, Chriſt's true Religion, the true and Chriſtian Religion, and a perfect Religion. Which by manifold Acts of Parliament, all within this Realm are bound to profeſs to ſubſcribe the Aritcles thereof, the Confeſſion of Faith, to recant all Doctrine and Errors repugnant to any of the ſaid Articles, Act. 4. & 9. Parl. 1. Act. 45, 46, 47. Parl. 3. Act. 71. Parl. 6. Act 106. Parl. 7. Act 24. Parl. 11. Act 123. Parl. 12. Act 194. & 197. Parl. 14. of King James 6. And all Magiſtrates, Sheriffs, &c. on the one part, are ordained to ſearch, apprehend, and puniſh all Contraveners: For inſtance, Act 5. Parl. 1. Act 104. Parl. 7. Act 25. Parl. 11. K. Jam. 6. And that, notwithſtanding of the King's Majeſty's Licences on the contrary, which are diſcharged, and declared to be of no force, in ſo far as they tend in any ways to the prejudice and hindrance of the execution of the Acts of Parliament againſt Papiſts, and Adverſaries of the true Religion, Act 106. Parl. 7. K. James 6. On the other part, in Act 47. Parl. 3. K. James 6. it is declared and ordained, Seeing the Cauſe of God's true Religion, and his Highneſs's Authority are ſo joined, as the hurt of the one is common to both; and that none ſhall be reputed as loyal and faithful Subjects to our Sovereign Lord, or his Authority, but be puniſhable as Rebellers and Gainſtanders of the ſame, who ſhall not give their Confeſſion, and make Profeſſion of the ſaid true Religion; and that they who after defection ſhall give the Confeſſion of their Faith of new, they ſhall promiſe to continue therein in time coming, to maintain our Soveraign Lord's Authority, and at the uttermoſt of their Power to fortifie, aſſiſt and maintain the true Preachers and Profeſſors of Chriſt's Religion, againſt whatſoever Enemies and Gainſtanders of the ſame: and namely, againſt all ſuch of whatſoever Nation, Eſtate, or Degree they be of, that have joined and bound themſelves, or have aſſiſted, or aſſiſts, to ſet forward and execute the cruel Decrees of Trent, contrary to the Preachers and true Profeſſors of the Word of God, which is repeated word by word in the Articles of pacification at Pearth the 23*d* Feb. 1572, approved by Parliament the laſt of April 1573, ratified in Parliament 1578, and related Act 123. Parl. 12, of King James 6. with this addition, That they are bound to reſiſt all treaſonable Uproars and Hoſtilities raiſed againſt the true Religion, the King's Majeſty and the true Profeſſors.

‘Like-as all Lieges are bound to maintain the Kings Majeſty's Roial Perſon and Authority, the Authority of Parliamants, without which neither any Laws or lawful Judicatories can be eſtabliſhed, Act 130. Act 131 Parl. 8. K. James 6. and the Subjects Liberties, who ought only to live and be governed by the Kings Laws, the common Laws of this Realm allanerly, Act 48. Parl. 3. K. James 1. Act 79. Parl. 6. K. James 4. repeated in Act 131. Parl. 8. K. James 6. which if they be innovated or prejudged, the Commiſſion anent the Union of the two Kingdoms of Scotland and England, which is the ſole Act of 17. Parl. K. James 6. declares ſuch confuſion would enſue, as this Realm could be no more a free Monarchy: becauſe by the fundamental Laws, ancient Priviledges, Offices and Liberties of this Kingdom, not only the Princely Authority of his Majeſty's Roial Deſcent hath been theſe many Ages maintained, alſo the Peoples ſecurity of their Lands, Livings, Rights, Offices, Liberties and Dignities preſerved. And therefore for the preſervation of the ſaid true Religion, ‘Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, it is ſtatute by Act 8. Parl. 1. repeated in Act 99. Parl. 7. ratified in Act 23. Parl. 11, & 14 Act of K. James 6. & 4. Act of King Charles, That all Kings and Princes at their Coronation and Reception of their Princely Authority, ſhall make their faithful Promiſe by their Solemn Oath in the Preſence of the Eternal God, That during the whole time of their Lives they ſhall ſerve the ſame Eternal God to the utmoſt of their Power, according as he hath required in his moſt holy Word, contained in the Old and New Teſtaments, and according to the ſame Word ſhall maintain the true Religion of Chriſt Jeſus, the Preaching of his holy Word, the due and right Miniſtration of the Sacraments now received and preached within this Realm (according to the Confeſſion of Faith immediatly preceding;) and ſhall aboliſh and gainſtand all falſe Religion contrary to the ſame; and ſhall rule the People committed to their Charge according to the Will and Commandment of God revealed in his foreſaid Word, and according to the lowable Laws and Conſtitutions received in this Realm, no ways repugnant to the ſaid Will of the Eternal God; and ſhall procure, to the utmoſt of their Power, to the Kirk of God, and whole Chriſtian People, true and perfect Peace in all time coming: And that they ſhall be careful to root out of their Empire, all Hereticks and Enemies to the true Worſhip of God, who ſhall be Convicted by the true Kirk of God of the foreſaid Crimes. Which was alſo obſerved by his Majeſty at his Coronation in Edinburgh 1633, as may be ſeen in the Order of the Coronation.

‘In obedience to the Commands of God, conform to the practice of the Godly in former times, and according to the laudable Example of our worthy and religious Progenitors, and of many yet living amongſt us, which was warranted alſo by Act of Council, commanding a General Band to be made and ſubſcribed by his Majeſty's Subjects of all Ranks, for two Cauſes: one was, for defending the true Religion, as it was then reformed, and is expreſſed in the Confeſſion of Faith above written, and a former large Confeſſion eſtabliſhed by ſundry Acts of lawful General Aſſemblies, and of Parliament, unto which it hath relation, ſet down in publick Catechiſms, and which had bin for many Years with a bleſſing from Heaven Preached and Profeſſed in this Kirk and Kingdom, as God's undoubted Truth, grounded only upon his written Word: The other Cauſe was for maintaining the King's Majeſty, his Perſon and Eſtate; The true Worſhip of God and the King's Authority being ſo ſtraightly joined, as that they had the ſame Friends and common Enemies, and did ſtand and fall together. And finally being convinced in our minds, and confeſſing with our mouths, that the preſent and ſucceeding Generations in this Land are bound to keep the foreſaid National Oath and ſubſcription inviolable,

‘We Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and Commons under ſubſcribing, conſidering divers times before, and eſpecially at this time, the danger of the true Reformed Religion, of the King's Honour, and of the publick Peace of the Kingdom, by the manifold Innovations and Evils generally contained, and particularly mentioned in our late Supplications, Complaints, and Proteſtations, Do hereby profeſs, and before God, his Angels, and the World ſolemnly declare, that with our whole Hearts we agree and reſolve all the days of our life conſtantly to adhere unto, and to defend the foreſaid true Religion, and forbearing the practice of all Novations,

An. 1638.

'already introduced in the matters of the Worſhip of God, or approbation of the Corruptions of the publick Government of the Kirk, or civil Places and Power of Kirkmen, till they be tried and allowed in free Aſſemblies, and in Parliaments, to labour by all means lawful to recover the Purity and Liberty of the Goſpel, as it was eſtabliſhed and profeſſed before the foreſaid Novations: And becauſe after due examination We plainly perceive, and undoubtedly believe, that the Innovations and Evils contained in our Supplications, Complaints and Proteſtations have no warrant of the Word of God, are contrary to the Articles of the foreſaid Confeſſions, to the intention and meaning of the bleſſed Reformers of Religion in this Land, to the above written Acts of Parliament, and do ſenſibly tend to the reeſtabliſhing of the Popiſh Religion and Tyranny, and to the ſubverſion and ruin of the true Reformed Religion, and of our Liberties, Laws and Eſtates; We alſo declare, that the foreſaid Confeſſions are to be interpreted, and ought to be underſtood of the foreſaid Novations and Evils, no leſs than if every one of them had bin expreſſed in the foreſaid Confeſſions; and that we are obliged to deteſt and abhor them, amongſt other particular Heads of Papiſtry abjured therein; And therefore from the knowledge and Conſcience of our Duty to God, to our King and Country, without any worldly reſpect or inducement, ſo far as humane infirmity will ſuffer, wiſhing a further meaſure of the Grace of God for this effect, We promiſe and ſwear by the great Name of the Lord our God, To continue in the profeſſion and obedience of the foreſaid Religion; That we ſhall defend the ſame, and reſiſt all theſe contrary Errours and Corruptions, according to our Vocation, and to the utmoſt of that power that God hath put into our hands all the days of our life. And in like manner with the ſame Heart we declare before God and Men, That we have no intention or deſire to attempt any thing that may turn to the diſhonour of God or the diminution of the King's Greatneſs and Authority; but on the contrary we promiſe and ſwear, That we ſhall to the utmoſt of our power, with our Means and Lives, ſtand to the defence of our dread Soveraign the King's Majeſty, his Perſon and Authority, in the defence and preſervation of the foreſaid true Religion, Liberties and Laws of the Kingdom; As alſo to the mutual Defence and Aſſiſtance, every one of us of another, in the ſame Cauſe of maintaining the true Religion, and his Majeſties Authority, with our beſt Counſels, our Bodies, Means and whole Power, againſt all ſorts of Perſons whatſoever. So that whatſoever ſhall be done to the leaſt of us for that Cauſe, ſhall be taken as done to us all in general, and to every one of us in particular. And that we ſhall neither directly nor indirectly ſuffer our ſelves to be divided, or withdrawn by whatſoever Suggeſtion, Combination, Allurement, or Terror from this bleſſed and loyal Conjunction, nor ſhall caſt in any Let or Impediment that may ſtay or hinder any ſuch Reſolution, as by common conſent ſhall be found to conduce for ſo good ends: but on the contrary ſhall by all lawful means, labour to further and promove the ſame. And if any ſuch dangerous and diviſive Motion be made to Us by Word or Writ, We and every one of Us, ſhall either ſuppreſs it, or (if need be) ſhall incontinently make the ſame known, that it may be timouſly obviated. Neither do we fear the foul Aſperſions of Rebellion, Combination, or what elſe our Adverſaries from their Craft

14 Caroli.

'and Malice would put upon Us, ſeeing what We do is ſo well warranted, and ariſeth from an unfeigned deſire to maintain the True Worſhip of God, the Majeſty of Our King, and the Peace of the Kingdom, for the common happineſs of Our ſelves and Poſterity. And becauſe We cannot look for a Bleſſing from God upon Our Proceedings, except with Our Profeſſion and Subſcription, We join ſuch a Life and Converſation as beſeemeth Chriſtians, who have renewed their Covenant with God; We therefore faithfully promiſe, for Our Selves, Our Followers, and all other under Us, both in publick, in Our particular Families, and perſonal Carriage, to endeavour to keep Our ſelves within the bounds of Chriſtian Liberty, and to be good Examples to others of all Godlineſs, Soberneſs, and Righteouſeſs, and of every Duty We owe to God and Man. And that this Our Union and Conjunction may be obſerved without violation, We call the Living God, the Searcher of Our Hearts, to Witneſs, who knoweth this to be Our ſincere Deſire, and unfeigned Reſolution, as we ſhall anſwer to Jeſus Chriſt in the great Day, and under the pain of God's everlaſting Wrath, and of Infamy, and of loſs of all Honour and Reſpect in this World: Moſt humbly beſeeching the Lord to ſtrengthen Us by his Holy Spirit for this end, and to bleſs Our Deſires and Proceedings with a happy Succeſs, that Religion and Righteouſneſs may flouriſh in the Land, to the Glory of God, the Honour of Our King, and Peace and Comfort of Us all.

'In Witneſs whereof We have ſubſcribed with Our Hands all the Premiſes, &c.

This Covenant was no ſooner framed, but it ſo took, as it was preſently ſworn, firſt, at Edinburgh, in the Month of February 1638 Scotiſh ſtyle, And then ſent every-where through the Country, to be ſubſcribed according the Example of thoſe in Edinburgh.

R. D. p. 7.

It is obſerved in the King's Declaration, That whereas the Band annexed to the former Confeſſion, was made in defence of the King's Authority and Perſon, with their Fortunes, Bodies, and Lives, in defence of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and Liberties of the Kingdom, &c. But to this Covenant (ſaith the Declaration) they have added a mutual Defence of one another, and made againſt all Perſons whatſoever, who ſhall oppoſe them in their Courſes, not excepting the King himſelf; neither was the King's conſent to this their New Covenant ever granted, nor ever ſo much as once asked.

The Proclamation dated Feb. 19, and publiſhed at Sterling, was ſo far from giving ſatiſfaction, that it produced greater confuſion; for it met with a Proteſtation ſent from thoſe of the Tables, who notwithſtanding the Proclamation, continued to ſit. Whereupon the Council appointed a ſolemn Meeting to be upon the firſt of March at Sterling, for the examining of Things, that they might ſend their Advice to Court. When the firſt of March came, the Lord Chancellor ſent his Excuſe, the reſt of the Biſhops declined to come, except Biſhop Brechin: Neverthleſs the Lords of the Council went on, and continued conſulting and debating four days together; the Iſſue of which was, to ſend Sir John Hamilton, the Juſtice Clerk, to the King with Inſtructions, to this effect.

An. 1638.

Inſtructions from His Majeſty's Council to the Lord Juſtice-Clerk, whom they have ordained to go to Court for His Majeſty's Service.

‘IN the firſt place you are to receive from the Clerk of the Council, all the Acts paſt ſince Our meeting upon the 1*ſt* of March inſtant.

‘Item, You have to repreſent to his Majeſty, That the Diet of Council was appointed to be ſolemnly kept, by the Advice of the Lord Chancellor, and Remanant Lords of the Clergy being at Edinburgh for the time, who aſſured Us, That they ſhould keep the Diet preciſely; but at Our meeting at Sterling, We received a Letter of Excuſe from the Lord Chancellor, which forces Us to proceed without his Lordſhips preſence, or any others of the Lords of the Clergy, except the Biſhop of Brechin, who attended Us three days, but removed before the cloſing of Our Opinions anent the Buſineſs.

Item, ‘That immediately after We had reſolved to direct you with a Letter of Truſt to his Majeſty, We did ſend Our Letter to the Lord Chancellor, acquainting him with Our Proceedings, and deſiring him to conſider thereof; and if he approved the ſame, to Sign them, and to cauſe the Remanant Lords of the Clergy neareſt unto him, and namely the Biſhop of Brechine, who was an Ear and Eye-Witneſs to Our Conſultations, to ſign the ſame, and by their Letter to His Majeſty, to ſignify their Approbation thereof; or if his Lordſhip did find ſome other way more convenient for His Majeſty's Honour, and the Peace of the Country, that his Lordſhip by his Letter to the Lord Treaſurer or Privy-Seal, would acquaint them therewith, to the effect they might convene the Council for conſulting thereabout.

Item, ‘That you ſhew His Majeſty, That His Majeſty's Councils, all in one Voice, find, That the Cauſes of the general Combuſtions in the Country, are the fears apprehended of Innovation of Religion and Diſcipline of the Kirk, (eſtabliſhed by the Laws of the Kingdom) by occaſion of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion, and from the Introduction thereof, contrary to, or without Warrant of the Laws of the Kingdom.

Item, ‘You are to preſent to His Majeſty, Our humble Opinion, that ſeeing, and as We conceive the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion (as it is ſet down) are the occaſion of this Combuſtion; and that the Subjects offer themſelves upon peril of their Lives, to clear, That the ſaid Service-Book, and others aforeſaid, contain divers Points contrary to the Religion preſently profeſſed, and Laws of the Kingdom, in matter and manner of Introduction, that the Lords think it expedient that it be repreſented to his Majeſty's gracious Conſideration, if His Majeſty may be pleaſed to declare, as an Act of His ſingular Juſtice, That He will take Trial of His Subjects Grievances, and the Reaſons thereof, in his own Time, and in His own Way, according to the Laws of this Kingdom; and that His Majeſty may be pleaſed graciouſly to declare, That in the mean time he will not preſs nor urge His Subjects therewith, notwithſtanding any Act or Warrant made in the contrary.

‘And in caſe his Majeſty ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to approve of our humble Opinions, you are thereafter to preſent to his Majeſty's gracious and wiſe Conſideration, if it ſhall not be fitting to conſult his Majeſty's Council, or ſome ſuch of them as he ſhall be pleaſed to call to himſelf, or allow to be ſent from the Table, both about the Time and way of doing it.

‘And if his Majeſty (as God forbid) ſhall diſlike of what we have conceived moſt conducing to his Majeſty's Service, and Peace of the Kingdom, you are to urge, by all the Arguments you can, That his Majeſty do not determine upon any other Courſe, until ſome at leaſt of his Council from this, be heard to give the Reaſons of their Opinions: And in this caſe you are likewiſe to preſent to his Majeſty's Conſideration, if it ſhall not be fitting and neceſſary to call for his Informers, together with ſome of his Council, that in his own preſence he may hear the Reaſons of both Informations fully debated.

‘You ſhall likewiſe ſhew his Majeſty, That this Council having taken to their Conſideration what further was to be done for compoſing and ſetling of the preſent Combuſtion within that Kingdom, and diſſipating of the Convocations and Gatherings within the ſame, ſeeing Proclamations are already made and publiſhed, diſcharging all ſuch Convocations and unlawful Meetings; the Lords after debating, find they can do no further than is already done herein, until his Majeſty's Pleaſure be returned to this our humble Remonſtrance.

Theſe Inſtructions were ſeconded by a private Letter to the King, ſigned by Traquair and Roxborough, to the effect following.

Moſt Sacred Soveraign,

Although the miſerable Eſtate of this poor Kingdom, will be ſufficiently underſtood by your Majeſty from this Gentleman Sir John Hamilton*'s Relation; yet we conceive our ſelves in a ſpecial manner bound and obliged to repreſent what we conceive does ſo nearly concern your Majeſty's Honour and Service; and therefore give us leave truly and faithfully to tell your Majeſty, That ſince the laſt Proclamation, the fear of Innovation of Religion is ſo apprehended by all ſorts of Subjects, from all Corners of this Kingdom, that there is nothing to be ſeen here but a general Combuſtion, and all Men ſtrengthening themſelves by ſubſcribing Bands, and by all other means, for refuſing of that which they ſeem ſo much to fear. This is come to ſuch a height, and daily like to increaſe more and more, that we ſee not a probability of Force or Power within this Kingdom to repreſs this Fury, except your Majeſty may be graciouſly pleaſed, by ſome Act of your own, to ſecure them of that which they ſeem ſo much to apprehend by the inbringing of the Books of* Common-Prayer, and Canons.

The way which the Subjects have taken, and daily go about in the proſecution of their Buſineſs is inexcuſable, and no ways agreeable to the Duty of good Subjects. But your Majeſty is wiſely to conſider what is the beſt and ſafeſt courſe for your own Honour, and Peace of your Government: And ſince Religion is pretended to be the Cauſe of all, if it ſhall not be a ſafe Courſe to free them at this time from Fears, by which means the wiſer ſort will be ſatisfied, and ſo your Majeſty enabled, with leſs pain or trouble, to overtake the Inſolencies of any who ſhall be found to have kicked againſt Authority.

We are the rather moved at this time to be of this Opinion, That having found it the Opinion, not only of thoſe to whom your Majeſty wrote in particular, (except of the Marqueſs of Huntley, who as yet is not come from the North) but of moſt of the Noblemen, and Men of reſpect within this Kingdom. We find few or none well ſatisfied with the Buſineſs, or to whom we dare adviſe your Majeſty to truſt in the proſecution thereof; and if any have or ſhall inform your Majeſty to the contrary, give us leave humbly to intreat your Majeſty to be pleaſed to call them before your Self, that in our preſence you may hear the Reaſons of both Informations fully debated.

So praying God to grant your Majeſty many happy days, and full contentment in all your Roial Deſigns, we humbly take our leave, and reſt, Sterling, March 5.

There was alſo a publick Letter written by the Council to the Marqueſs, dated at Sterling the 5*th* of March, ſent by Sir John Hamilton, informing the Marqueſs, ‘That they did find the Subjects Fears and ‘Stirs to increaſe ſince the laſt Proclamation, and appointed the Coun‘cil to meet then to conſult upon the growth of publick Evils, and 'Remedies thereof. After the Council had ſpent four days in adviſing, they reſolved to ſend Sir John Hamilton, one of their number, with a Letter from them to his Majeſty, to whom they have imparted their Opinions and Reaſons of the ſame Publick Ills, and Remedies of the ſame, to be repreſented to his Sacred Majeſty, becauſe the Buſineſs is ſo weighty and important, that in their Opinion the Peace of the Country was never in ſo great hazard; they have thought fit to recommend the Buſineſs to your Lordſhips conſideration.

Signed by the ſame Privy-Councellors, whoſe Hands were to Sir John Hamilton's Inſtructions.

After Sir John Hamilton's arrival at the Court at Whitehall, and having preſented to his Majeſty what was committed to his truſt and care, his Majeſty conſulted with his Inward Council, as to the Scotiſh Affairs, and reſolved to ſend Marqueſs Hamilton as High-Commiſſioner to Scotland for that Service, hoping by ſuch an Authority to quiet the Fury of the People; and Sir John Hamilton was immediately diſpatched again to Scotland, to give notice of the King's Reſolution, and that his Majeſty's Pleaſure ſhould be further known when his High-Commiſſioner came down.

The Covenanters not long after the Lord Juſtice Clerk his arrival at Court, made their Application to the Scotiſh Lords then at Court, complaining of the Privy-Council for harſh uſage; and withal ſent up their Grievances, ſigned by Rothes, Caſſils, Montroſe, to the effect following.

Articles for the preſent Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom of Scotland.

The eight Articles of Grievances propoſed by the Covenanters.

'IF the Queſtion were about ſuch Matters as did come within the compaſs of our own Power, we would be aſhamed to be importunate, and ſhould be very eaſily ſatisfied, without the ſmalleſt trouble to any; but conſidering that they are the Matters of God's Honour, of the Kingdom of Chriſt, and the Peace of our Souls, againſt the Myſtery of Iniquity, which we clearly perceive to have bin unceſſantly working in this Land ſince the Reformation, to the ruin of True Religion in the end: it cannot ſtand with our Duty to God, and to our King, to our Selves and Poſterity, to crave or be content with leſs than that which the Word of God, and our Confeſſion of Faith doth allow, and which may againſt our Fears eſtabliſh Religion afterwards.

1. 'The diſcharging of the Service-Book, the Book of Canons, and of the late High Commiſſion, may be a part of the ſatisfaction of our humble Supplications, and juſt Complaints; which therefore we ſtill humbly deſire; but that can neither be a perfect Cure for our preſent Evils, nor can it be a preſervation in time to come.

'When it is conſidered what hath bin the Troubles and Fears of his Majeſty's moſt Loial Subjects from the High Commiſſion, what is the Nature and Conſtitution of that Judicatory; how prejudicial it proves to the lawful Judicatory of the Kirk and Kingdom; how far ‘it endangers the Conſciences, Liberties, Eſtates, and Perſons of all the ‘Leiges, and how eaſily and far more contentedly all the Subjects may ‘be kept in Order and Obedience to his Majeſty's Juſt Laws, without ‘any terror of that kind, We look that his Majeſty's Subjects, who have ‘uſed to obey according to the Laws, ſhall be altogether delivered from ‘the High-Commiſſion, as from a Yoak and Burden, which they feel and ‘fear to be more heavy than they ſhall be ever able to bear.

3. ‘Remembring by what ways the Articles of Perth were intro‘duced; how ſtrangely, and with what oppoſition they were carried ‘in the Aſſembly; upon what Narrative they were concluded; how ‘the Ratification in Parliament was not deſired by the Kirk, but ear‘neſtly ſupplicated and proteſted againſt; how they have bin intro‘ductory of the Service-Book, whereof they are now become Mem‘bers, and in their nature make way for Popery, &c. Whatſoever ‘hath bin the Intentions of the Urgers, and withal, what Troubles ‘and Diviſions they have cauſed theſe twenty Years in this Kirk and ‘Kingdom; and what Jealouſies between the King's Majeſty and his ‘Subjects, without any Spiritual Profit or Edification at all; as we can ‘ſee no reaſon why they ſhould be urged by Authority, ſo can we not ‘find but we ſhall be more unable to digeſt them than in the begin‘ning, when we had not as yet taſted and known how bitter and un‘wholſome they were.

But for further ſatisfaction, ſee the reſt of theſe Articles in Hamilton's Memoires, p. 40, 41.

Before the Marqueſs begun his Journey from London, his Majeſty called to him the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury and St. Andrews, alſo the Biſhop of Galloway, Brechin, and Roſs, into his Cloſet at Whitehall, and the King declared unto them the choice he had made of the Marqueſs, whom he intended to ſend to Scotland, with the Character of High-Commiſſioner, for eſtabliſhing the Peace of the Country, and the Good of the Church. And upon the 7th of May, Letters were ſent into Scotland, giving notice of the King's Reſolution; and the Marqueſs wrote to his Friends and Dependors to meet him the 5th of June.

May the 16*th*, the Marqueſs received his Inſtructions to the effect following.

C. R.

May 16. The ſubſtance of the Marqueſs's Inſtructions relating to his Commiſſion.

‘Before you publiſh the Declaration which We have ſigned, you ‘ſhall require all the Council to ſign it; and if you find that it ‘may conduce to Our Service, you ſhall make all the Council ſwear to ‘give their beſt aſſiſtance in the execution of the ſame; but this of ‘putting them to their Oaths, We leave to your diſcretion to do as you ‘ſhall find occaſion: But if you ſhall find it fit to put them to their ‘Oaths, thoſe that refuſe, muſt be diſmiſſed the Council till Our fur‘ther Pleaſure be known.

‘We give you power to cauſe the Council to ſit in whatſoever place ‘you ſhall find moſt convenient for Our Service, Edinburgh only ex‘cepted, and to change the meeting thereof as often as occaſion ſhall ‘require.

‘You

‘You may labour to prepare any of the Refractory Perſons to conceive aright of Our Declaration before it be publiſhed, ſo that it be privately and underhand.

‘If any Proteſtation be made againſt Our Declaration, the Proteſters muſt be reputed Rebels, and you are to labour to apprehend the chiefeſt of them.

‘If Petitions be preſented, to demand further ſatisfaction than that we have already given by Our Declaration, you are to receive them, and to give them a bold Negative, both in reſpect of the Matter and the Form, as being preſented from a Body which you are no ways to acknowledg.

‘You muſt admit of no Petition againſt the five Articles of Perth, but for the preſent you are not to preſs the exact execution of them.

‘When-ever the Town of Edinburgh ſhall depart from the Covenant, and petition for Our Favour, We will, That you bring back the Council and Seſſion to it.

‘All Acts of Council that enjoin the uſe of the New Service-Book are to be ſuſpended, and to be of no force hereafter.

‘You are to cauſe inſert ſix weeks in Our Declaration for the delivery up of the Covenant, and if you find cauſe, leſs.

‘You ſhall declare, That if there be no ſufficient Strength within the Kingdom to force the Refractory to Obedience, Power ſhall come from England, and that my Self will come in Perſon with them, being reſolved to hazard my Life, rather than to ſuffer Authority to be contemned.

‘You may likewiſe declare, (if you find cauſe) That as We never did, ſo by God's Grace We never will ſtop the courſe of Juſtice by any private Directions of Ours, but will leave Our Lords of Seſſion, and other Judges, to adminiſter Juſtice, as they will be anſwerable to God and Us.

‘If you cannot (by the means preſcribed by Us) bring back the Refractory and Seditious to due Obedience, We do not only give you Authority, but command all Hoſtile Acts whatſoever to be uſed againſt them, they having deſerved to be uſed no otherwiſe by Us but as a Rebellious People: For the doing thereof, We will not only ſave you harmleſs, but account it as acceptable Service done Us.

And on the 20*th* of May he received his Commiſſion as followeth.

May 20. The King's Commiſſion to Marqueſs Hamilton, under the Great Seal of England.

At the ſame time thoſe Biſhops who ſtayed in Scotland, ſent up their Complaints and Grievances alſo to ſuch Biſhops of Scotland as were at Court, to the effect following.

Articles of Information to Mr. Andrew Learmouth for my Lord Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews, the Biſhop of Roſs, &c. And in their abſence for my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury his Grace.

The Biſhops Articles of Information to other Biſhops at London.

1. ‘YOU ſhall ſhew their Lordſhips how they have changed the ‘Moderator of the Preſbytery of Edinburgh, and are going ‘on in changing all the Moderators in the Kingdom.

2. ‘How they have abuſed Dr. Ogſtone the 9th of May in Edinburgh; Mr. George Hannay at Torphichen the 6th of May; Dr. Lammond at Marckinch the 9th of May; Mr. Robert Edward at Kirkmichael, whom Kilkerni is forced to entertain at his own Houſe.

3. ‘That the Preſbytery of Haddington have given Impoſition of ‘Hands to Mr. John Ker’s Son to be his Colleague without the know‘ledge of the Biſhop; and likwiſe the Preſbytery of Kircaldy to Mr. ‘John Gilleſpy’s Son, to the Church of the Weems; and the Preſbytery ‘of Dumfrieze to one Mr. John Wyer to the Church of Morton, within ‘two miles of Drumlenerick; and that they of Dumfermling have ad‘mitted Mr. Samuel Row (a Miniſter baniſhed from Ireland) to be ‘Helper to Mr. Henry Macgill; and they of Aire Mr. Robert Blair to ‘be Helper to Mr. William Annand; and that the Town of Dumfrieze ‘have made choice of Mr. James Hamilton to be their Miniſter; and the Town of Kirkudbright one Mr. John Macklennon, all of them baniſhed from Ireland; and Mr. Samuel Rutherford is returned, and ſetled in his Place; and they intend to depoſe Mr. John Trotter, Miniſter of Darlinton: and how they intended to uſe the Regents.

4. ‘That the Council of Edinburgh have made choice of Mr. Alex. Henderſon to be Helper to Mr. Andrew Ramſey, and intend to admit him without the Advice or Conſent of the Biſhop.

5. ‘That the Miniſters of Edinburgh who have not ſubſcribed the Covenant are daily reviled and curſed to their faces, and their Stipends are withheld, and not paid; and that all Miniſters who have not ſubſcribed, are in the ſame caſe and condition with them.

5. ‘That they hound out raſcally Commons on Men who have not ſubſcribed the Covenant; as Mr. Samuel Cockburn did one John Shaw at Leith.

7. ‘That his Majeſty would be pleaſed by his Letter to diſcharge the Biſhop of Edinburgh to pay any Prebends Fee to thoſe who have ſubſcribed the Covenant; as alſo by his Royal Letter to diſcharge the Lords of Seſſion to grant any Proceſs againſt the Biſhop for their Fees.

8. ‘That his Majeſty would be pleaſed in the Articles of Agreement with the Nobility, to ſee Honeſt Men, who ſhall happen in this Tumultuous time to be depoſed from their Places, reſtored, and ſetled in them; and others, that are violently thruſt in, removed; and that the Wrongs done to them be repaired.

9. ‘That if it ſhall happen his Majeſty take any violent courſe for repreſſing theſe Tumults and Diſorders, (which God forbid) that in that caſe their Lordſhips would be pleaſed to ſupplicate his Majeſty that ſome ſpeedy courſe may be taken for ſecuring the Perſons of thoſe Honeſt Men who ſtand for God and his Majeſty.

The Marqueſs takes leave of the King.

The Marqueſs having received his Inſtructions and Commiſſion, took leave a few days after of the King; and his Majeſty ordered him to write often to Him, and to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, (being the only Engliſh Perſon entruſted with the Secrets of the Scotiſh Affairs.)

The Marqueſs arrives at Berwick,

Meets with ill News of Diſcouragement.

Saturday May 26 the Marqueſs began his Journey, and on the 3d of June he arrived at Berwick, where the Earl of Roxbrough met him, who told him in what diſorder all People were, and how ſmall hopes there remained of prevailing upon the Grounds he was to go on, for that they would never give up the Covenant; that they would have the Articles of Perth aboliſhed; Epiſcopacy limited, ſo that it ſhould be little more than a Name. And if theſe things were not granted them, and a General Aſſembly and Parliament ſuddenly called, they would call an Aſſembly themſelves before the great Crouds at Edinburgh were ſcattered. But the Marqueſs reſolved to go on, and try what his Authority as High Commiſſioner would do.

The Marqueſs when he came to Berwick, expected a great Appearance of Noblemen and others to attend him, as the King's High-

An. 1638.

Commiſſioner, to Hally-Rood Houſe at Edinburgh, and eſpecially his own Kindred and Relations, Attendants and Vaſſals; but all failing, except ſome very few who had not ſubſcribed the Covenant, and they inconſiderable: for the Tables of the Covenanters required that none who had taken the Covenant ſhould give any attendance upon the Marqueſs: Yet when he came near Dalkeith, he was Nobly and Honorably received and conducted to Dalkeith by all the Secret Council, moſt of the Lords of the Seſſion, who are the Judges of the Law, great Troops of the Nobility and Gentry who had not ſubſcribed their Covenant.

A little after the Marqueſs's arrival at Dalkeith, the Citizens of Edinburgh ſent certain Commiſſioners unto him with a Supplication, That he would be pleaſed to repair to the King's Palace at Hally-Rood Houſe, where they might more conveniently attend his Grace's Directions. To which the Marqueſs returned this Anſwer;

'That if they would undertake to be Maſters and Governours of 'their own City; that their Citizens would behave themſelves as good 'and dutiful Subjects; and take Order that the Multitudes now preſent in their City, who called themſelves Covenanters, ſhould do ſo too; 'and that the Guards about the Caſtle of Edinburgh ſhould be diſmiſſed 'and diſcharged, then he would within a day or two repair to the 'King's Palace at Hally-Rood Houſe, otherwiſe not: for that he did 'hold it not agreeable to the King's Honour, that he his Majeſty's Commiſſioner and Council, ſhould reſide at the ſaid Palace, which is ſituated at the one end of the City, when the Caſtle ſeated at the other 'end of the ſame, ſhould be blocked up with Guards. All which theſe Commiſſioners undertook to perform, and by their words deſired to approve themſelves moſt loyal Subjects, hoping to clear themſelves from many Aſperſions laid upon them, when his Grace would be pleaſed to hear and examin their Proceedings.

Whereupon the Marqueſs, according to his Promiſe, did remove himſelf from Dalkeith to the King's Palace at Hally-Rood Houſe, attended by all the Secret Council, abundance of Nobility, Gentry, and others, and about two or three miles from Edinburgh was met with the whole Body of the Nobility and Gentry of the Covenanters then reſident at Edinburgh, who were all mounted on Horſback, and conſiſted of divers thouſands; and beſides, at a nearer diſtance from Edinburgh, he was attended by Miniſters on foot, conſiſting of many hundreds.

The Marqueſs being ſetled at Hally-Rood Houſe, with the Aſſiſtance of the King's Council, he deſired the Covenanters to diſmiſs their great Multitudes, which accordingly they did. And then the two main Propoſitions which he offered to their conſideration were theſe.

Firſt, What they ſhould expect to hear in the King's Name for accommodating their Grievances.

Next, What might be expected from them for returning to their former Obedience, eſpecially in renouncing and delivering up their late Covenant.

Both which Propoſitions they received: but nothing but a General Aſſembly and a Parliament would give ſatisfaction; and thereupon new Guards were clapt upon Edinburgh Caſtle, and the Guards and Watches of the City multiplied.

The Preachers adviſed the People to take heed of crafty Propoſitions; and when the Marqueſs deſigned to go to the King's Chappel to hear Divine Service and Sermon at Hally-Rood Houſe, they ſent him word not to read the Engliſh Service-Book, and nailed up the Organs; and the Miniſters Covenanters proceeded ſo far, as to write a Letter to the Marqueſs, and every one of the Council, admoniſhing them to ſubſcribe their Covenant; which Letter followeth in theſe words.

May it pleaſe your Lordſhip,

VVE the Miniſters of the Goſpel, convened at this ſo neceſſary a Time, do find Our ſelves bound to repreſent, as unto all, ſo in ſpecial unto your Lordſhip, what comfortable experience We have of the wonderful favour of God, upon the renewing of the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant; what Peace and Comfort hath filled the Hearts of all God's People; what Reſolutions and Beginnings of Reformation of Manners are ſenſibly perceived in all parts of the Kingdom, above any Meaſure that ever We did find or could have expected; how great Glory the Lord hath received thereby, and what confidence We have (if this Sun-ſhine be not eclipſed by ſome ſinfull Diviſion or Defection) that God ſhall make this a bleſſed Kingdom, to the contentment of the King's Majeſty, and joy of all his good Subjects, according as God hath promiſed in his good Word, and performed to his People in former Times: And therefore We are forced from Our Hearts, both to wiſh and entreat your Lordſhip to be Partaker and Promover of this Joy and Happineſs by your ſubſcription, when your Lordſhip ſhall think it convenient. And in the mean while, that your Lordſhip would not be ſparing to give a free Teſtimony to the Truth, as a timely and neceſſary expreſſion of your tender Affection to the Cauſe of Chriſt, now calling for help at your hands: Your Lordſhip's profeſſion of the true Religion as it was reformed in this Land, the National Oath of this Kingdom ſundry times ſworn and ſubſcribed, obliging us who live at this time; the Duty of a good Patriot, the Office and Truſt of a Privy-Counſellor; the preſent Emploiment to have place amongſt thoſe that are firſt acquainted with his Majeſty's Pleaſure; the conſideration that there is the time of trial of your Lordſhip's affection to Religion; the reſpect which your Lordſhip hath unto your Fame both here and hereafter, when things ſhall be recorded to Poſterity; and the Remembrance, that not only the eyes of Men and Angels are upon your Lordſhip's Carriage, but alſo that the Lord Jeſus is a ſecret Witneſs now to obſerve, and ſhall be an open Judg hereafter to reward and confeſs every Man before his Father, that confeſſeth him before Men: All of theſe, and each of them, beſides your Lordſhip's perſonal and particular Obligations to God, do call for no leſs at your Lordſhip's hands, in the cauſe of ſo great and ſingular Neceſſity. And we alſo do expect ſo much at this time, according as your Lordſhip at the hour of Death would be free of the Terror of God, and be refreſhed with the comfortable remembrance of a word ſpoken in ſeaſon for Chriſt Jeſus, King of Kings, and Lord of Lords.

The Marqueſs perceiving this violent Humour in the People, not to hear of any Proclamations, unleſs with the diſcharge of the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, &c. durſt not adventure to publiſh his Majeſty's Declaration, knowing it would be affronted with a Proteſtation; whereupon the Marqueſs forbore the ſame, and gave the King an accompt how he found things; letting the King know, That he muſt either reſolve to yield to all their Demands, or haſten down his Fleet quickly, with Land Souldiers in it; and to put Souldiers into Berwick and Carliſle, and to reſolve to follow in Perſon with a Royal Army; yet withal moved his Majeſty, That he would conſider how far in his Wiſdom he would connive at the madneſs of his own poor People, and how far in Juſtice he would puniſh their Folly.

On the 15*th* of June the Marqueſs received an Anſwer from the King, to the Account which he ſent to his Majeſty from Berwick, dated at Greenwich, June 11. to the effect following.

HAMILTON,

I Expect not any thing can reduce that People to Obedience, but Force only: In the mean time your care muſt be how to diſſolve the Multitude; and (if it be poſſible) to poſſeſs your ſelf of my Caſtles of Edinburgh and Sterling, (which I do not expect); and to this end I give you leave to flatter them with what hopes you pleaſe, ſo you engage not me againſt my Grounds, and in particular, that you conſent neither to the Calling of Parliament, nor General Aſſembly, until the Covenant be diſavowed and given up, your chief end being now to win time until I be ready to ſuppreſs them.

But when I conſider that not only now my Crown, but my Reputation for ever lies at Stake; I muſt rather ſuffer the firſt, that time will help, than this laſt, which is irreparable. This I have written to no other end, than to ſhew you, I will rather die than yield to theſe impertinent and damnable demands (as you rightly call them); for it is all one as to yield to be no King in a very ſhort time. So wiſhing you better ſucceſs than I can expect, I reſt,

Your aſſured conſtant Friend,

C. R.

POSTSCRIPT.

As the Affairs are now, I do not expect that you ſhould declare the Adherers to the Covenant Traitors, until (as I have already ſaid) you have heard from Me that my Fleet hath ſet ſail for Scotland, tho your ſix weeks ſhould be elapſed. In a word, Gain time by all the honeſt means you can, without forſaking your Grounds.

The Rude Covenanters rail againſt the Marqueſs.

But all the Miniſters hearing the Covenant muſt be given up, or no Treaty made, their Pulpits did ring with it, and all declared they would never quit the Covenant but with their Lives. A Proteſtation was alſo reſolved on when-ever the Declaration ſhould be publiſhed; which made it be delaied a little longer, and the Marqueſs writ to the King not to proceed in his Warlike Preparations till things were more deſperate. To which Letter, the Marqueſs afterwards received this Anſwer.

1. That he had gained a conſiderable Point, in making the heady Multitude begin to diſperſe.

2. That he will take his advice to ſtay publick Preparations for Force, but in a ſilent way; but (by your leave, ſaith the King) I will not leave to prepare, that I may be ready upon the leaſt advertiſement.

On

The Covenanters declare they will be no longer delaied.

On the 16th of June, the Covenanters came and preſented their Petition to the Marqueſs, craving a preſent redreſs of their Grievances, for they would be no longer put off by delays; and deſired that he would propoſe the Matter to the Council, and give them a ſpeedy Anſwer. To which the Marqueſs replied, That he did reſolve to call both an Aſſembly and Parliament for the redreſs of all Grievances. They went away no ways ſatisfied with this Anſwer; and the Marqueſs found all the Lords of the Council inclined to the granting of what the Covenanters demanded; ſo that he durſt call no Council about it, leſt they ſhould have ſided with the Covenanters. Of which he advertiſed his Majeſty; and that they preſſed him to repreſent to his Majeſty, That the Covenant was not illegal; and that if his Majeſty would allow of the Explanation of the Bond of Mutual Defence, which they offered, that they meant not thereby to derogate any thing from the King's Authority, and ſo all things might be ſetled without more trouble, either to the King or Country.

The Marqueſs fears the Council will incline to the Covenanters; And informs the King thereof.

And of the Explanation of the Covenanters.

And as to the Explication of the Covenant, this Draught following was made, by the Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews.

The Explication.

WE the Noblemen, Barons, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and others, that have joined in a late Bond or Covenant for the maintaining of the true Religion and Purity of God's Worſhip in this Kingdom, having underſtood that Our Soveraign Lord the King's Majeſty is with this Our doing highly offended, as if We thereby had uſurped his Majeſty's Authority, and ſhaken off all Obedience to his Majeſty, and to his Laws: for clearing Our ſelves of that Imputation, do hereby declare, and in the preſence of God Almighty, ſolemnly proteſt, That it did never ſo much as enter into Our thoughts, to derogate any thing from his Majeſty's Power and Authority Royal, or to diſobey and rebel againſt his Majeſty's Laws: And that all Our proceedings hitherto by Petitioning, Proteſting, Covenanting, and whatſoever other way, was and is only for the maintaining of the true Religion by us profeſſed; and with expreſs reſervation of Our Obedience to his moſt Sacred Majeſty, moſt humbly beſeeching his Majeſty ſo to eſteem and accept of Us, that he will be graciouſly pleaſed to call a National Aſſembly and Parliament for removing the Fears We have not without cauſe (as We think) conceived, of introducing in this Church another form of Worſhip than what We have bin accuſtomed with; as likewiſe for ſatisfying Our juſt Grievances, and the ſetling of a conſtant and ſolid Order to be kept in all time coming, as well in the Civil as Eccleſiaſtical Government: Which if We ſhall by the Interceſſion of your Grace obtain, We faithfully promiſe (according to Our bounden Duties) to continue in his Majeſty's Obedience, and at Our utmoſt Powers to procure the ſame during Our Lives.

The Marqueſs ſent again a new Diſpatch to the King, and gave his Majeſty a large account of the Explanation which was offered to that Part of the Covenant, by which they were bound to Mutual Defence, and to which his Majeſty wrote this following Anſwer.

Greenwich, 25 of June, 1638.

The ſubſtance of the King's Anſwer to the Explanation.

As concerning the Explanation of their Damnable Covenant, (whether it be with or without Explanation) I have no more Power in Scotland, than as a Duke of Venice; which I will rather die than ſuffer: Yet I commend the giving ear to the Explanation, or any thing elſe to win time, which now I ſee is one of your chiefeſt Cares, wherefore I need not recommend it to you. And for their calling a Parliament, or Aſſembly, without Me, I ſhould not much be ſorry, for it would the more loudly declare them Traitors, and the more juſtify My Actions: Therefore in My mind, My Declaration would not be long delaied; but this is a bare Opinion, and no Command.

The Marqueſs threatned the Covenanters to leave them, and would beg liberty of the King for leave to wait on his Majeſty with their Deſires, and return them an anſwer within three Weeks or a Month: But the true Reaſon that moved him to deſire Permiſſion to go up, was that thereby he ſhould gain ſo much time, and ſee in what forwardneſs the King's Preparations were; but chiefly to try what he could prevail about eſtabliſhing the Confeſſion of Faith, which had paſſed in Parliament 1567, hoping that it might give full ſatisfaction to all, that there ſhould be no Innovation in Religion.

The King gives the Marqueſs leave to come to Court, and to bring with him all their Demands.

And accordingly the King, by his Letter dated at Greenwich the 29*th* of June, gives him leave to come up, and to bring with him all the Demands of the Covenanters, whereby to gain more time; and adviſed him not to mediate for any thing that is againſt his Grounds, and that no more Subſcriptions be urged upon any, eſpecially of the Council or Seſſion.

Before the Marqueſs took Journey, he did on the 4*th* of July, preſent the King's Declaration to the Council, and got it ſigned by them all: And an Act paſſed, That the Subjects ought to reſt ſatisfied with it, and was immediately ſent to the Market-Croſs and Proclaimed; but notwithſtanding it met with a Proteſtation; which Declaration and Proteſtation followeth.

Greenwich, June 28. the King's Declaration.

CHARLES by the Grace of God, King of Scotland, England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith. To Our Lovits, Heralds, Meſſengers, Our Sheriffs in that Part conjunctly and ſeverally, ſpecially conſtitute, greeting.

The King promiſeth to call a free Aſſembly, and a Parliament, and diſcharge all Acts of Council concerning the Service-Book.

Foraſmeikle as We are not ignorant of the great Diſorders which have hapned of late within this Our ancient Kingdom of Scotland, occaſioned, as is pretended, upon the introduction of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion, fearing thereby Innovation of Religion and Laws. For ſatisfaction of which Fears, We well hoped that the two Proclamations of the eleventh of December, and the nineteenth of February, had bin abundantly ſufficient. Nevertheleſs finding that Diſorders have daily ſo increaſed, that a powerful rather than a perſwaſive way, might have bin juſtly expected from Us; yet We out of Our innative indulgence to Our People, grieving to ſee them run themſelves ſo headlong into ruin, are graciouſly pleaſed to try if by a fair way We can reclaim them from their Faults, rather than to let them periſh in the ſame; and therefore once for all We have thought fit to declare, and hereby to aſſure all Our good People, that We neither were, are, nor by the Grace of God ever ſhall be ſtained with Popiſh Superſtition; but by the contrary, are reſolved to maintain the true Proteſtant Religion, already profeſſed within this Our Ancient Kingdom. And for further clearing of Scruples, We do hereby aſſure all Men, That We will neither now, nor hereafter, preſs the practice of the Service-Book, or the foreſaid Canons, nor any thing of that nature, but in ſuch a fair and legal way as ſhall ſatisfy all Our loving Subjects, That We neither intend Innovations in Religion or Laws; and to this effect have given order to diſcharge all Acts of Council thereanent. And for the High-Commiſſion, We ſhall ſo rectify it, with the help and Advice of Our Privy-Council, that it ſhall never impugn the Laws, nor be a juſt Grievance to Our Loyal Subjects; and what is further fitting to be agitated in General Aſſemblies and Parliament, for the Good and Peace of the Kirk, and peaceable Government of the ſame, in eſtabliſhing of the Religion preſently profeſſed, ſhall likewiſe be taken into Our Roial Conſideration, in a free Aſſembly and Parliament, which ſhall be indicted and called with Our beſt conveniency: And We hereby take God to Witneſs, That Our true meaning and intention is, Not to admit of any Innovations, either in Religion or Laws, but carefully to maintain the purity of Religion already profeſſed and eſtabliſhed, and no ways to ſuffer Our Laws to be infringed. And though We cannot be ignorant, that there may be ſome diſaffected Perſons, who will ſtrive to poſſeſs the Hearts of Our good Subjects, that this Our Gracious Declaration is not to be regarded; yet We do expect that the behaviour of all Our Good and Loyal Subjects will be ſuch, as may give teſtimony of their Obedience, and how ſenſible they are of Our Grace and Favour, that thus paſſeth over their Miſdemeanours, and by their future carriage make appear, that it was only fear of Innovation that hath cauſed the Diſorders which have happned of late within this Our Ancient Kingdom, and are confident that they will not ſuffer themſelves to be ſeduced and miſled, to miſconſtrue Us or Our Actions, but reſt heartily ſatisfied with Our Pious and Real Intentions, for maintenance of True Religion & Laws of this Kingdom. Wherefore We require, and heartily wiſh all Our good People carefully to advert to theſe dangerous Suggeſtions, and not to permit themſelves blindly, under pretext of Religion, to be led in Diſobedience, and draw on infinitely, to Our grief, their own Ruin, which We have and ſtill ſhall ſtrive to ſave them from, ſo long as we ſee not Royal Authority ſhaken off; and moſt unwillingly ſhall make uſe of that Power which God hath endued Us with, for reclaiming of diſobedient People.

Per Regem.

Proteſtation againſt the King's Declaration, dated Jun. 28. 1638.

‘WEE Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burrows, Miniſters and Commons, That whereas We his Majeſty's true and loyal Subjects, who have ever eſteemed it our greateſt happineſs to live under a Religious and Righteous King, and our greateſt Glory to teſtify our beſt Affections to our gracious Sovereign, have been in his Majeſty's abſence from his Native Kingdom heavily preſſed for a long time paſt, and eſpecially of late, with divers Innovations, which both in themſelves, and in the way wherein they have been urged, do manifeſtly tend to the prejudice of the King's Honour, and of our Religion, Laws and Liberties; And by which We have been brought to ſuch extremity, that there was no way left betwixt the Rock of Excommunication, and the high pain of Rebellion on the one part, and the deſperate danger of forſaking the Way of True Religion, and the breach of our Covenant with God on the other, but to preſent our Caſe, and preſent our Supplications to the Lords of Secret Council, that being equally pondered by them, they might either be anſwered by themſelves, or by their Recommendation might aſcend to his Majeſty's own Conſideration: And therefore We did in all humble manner to this effect ſupplicate their Lordſhips. We were not willing (for the modeſt following of our Supplications) to obey their Directions in chooſing Commiſſioners for the great number of Supplicants, who flocked together from all parts of the Kingdom; were careful to order our ſelves in all quiet and Chriſtian carriage, and againſt the many and tedious delays did wait for a long time with very great Patience, till at laſt they were pleaſed to receive our Supplications, Complaints and Bills; and conceiving them to contain weightier matters then could by themſelves be determined, they did promiſe and undertake to repreſent and recommend the ſame, according to their more than ordinary importance, unto his Majeſty's Royal Conſideration, and to report his Majeſty's Anſwer.

‘While his Majeſty's good Subjects of all ranks throughout the whole Kingdom, had their minds weakned, and their hearts filled with the expectation of a gracious and ſatisfactory Anſwer, worthy his Majeſty's pious and equitable Diſpoſition; in the month of February laſt, incontinent a rumour flies through the Country, and fills all Ears, That the Lords of his Majeſty's Secret Council were commanded to make ſuch a Proclamation concerning the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and the Peaceable Meetings of his Majeſty's good Subjects in time coming, as we were perſwaded to have been procured by the ſecret working and malignant miſinformation of our Adverſaries, ſeeking for their own private ends, without reſpect to his Majeſty's Honour, and welfare of this Kirk and Kingdom, to ſtop the courſe of our legal Proceedings, and to eſcape their own due Cenſure; and therefore intending to make known to the Lords of the Secret Council, what was noiſed concerning the Proclamation, how far the whole Kingdom had been by ſome ſiniſtrous miſinformation fruſtrate of their hopes, and their conſtant deſire to have ſome courſe taken by their Lordſhips Advice, how his Majeſty being further informed, might deliver his good Subjects from ſo great Greivances and Fears, and eſtabliſh a ſure Peace in this Country for the time to come: we found our ſelves tied by order of Law, to decline thoſe againſt whom we had made our Complaint, unleſs we would admit our Judges to be parties; and in caſe our Declinator ſhould not be accepted, we behoved to proteſt that we might have immediate recourſe to the King himſelf &c.

‘Thereafter, in the month of March, finding by the aforeſaid Proclamation the Innovations ſupplicated againſt were approven, our lawful Proceedings condemned, our moſt neceſſary Meetings prohibited, there being no other way left unto us, we were neceſſitated to renew the National Covenant of this Kirk and Kingdom, thereby to reconcile us to God, provoked to wrath againſt us, by the breach of his Covenant within this Land, to clear our Sovereign's mind from all jealouſies and ſuſpicions, ariſing from our Adverſaries miſ-informations of our intentions and carriage, and ſo to make way for his acceptance of our humble Supplications, and grant of their lawful remedies, to guard this Land in defence of Religion, Authority, and Liberty, againſt inward diviſion,and external violences. And that our actions might be anſwerable to our holy Profeſſion, We afterwards drew up an humble Supplication, containing our Greivances, and deſires of the ordinary remedies thereof, to have been delivered to the King himſelf: in the mean time,we were directed by thoſe, who were intruſted by his Majeſty, to attend his Declaration here in Scotland, which would free us from all fears of Innovations of Religion, and prove ſatisfactory. And leſt for want of true information of our juſt Grievances and Deſires, it ſhould fall out otherwiſe, We expreſſed to them with the greateſt modeſty we could, our Deſires in ſome few Articles, and with great patience have attended his Majeſty's Pleaſure thereanent; and all this Month by-gone being frequently convened to hear the ſame delivered by his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, the Right Noble Lord, James Marqueſs of Hamilton, &c. We preſented a new Petition to his Grace, as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, craving moſt humbly the indiction of an Aſſembly and Parliament, as the only Remedies thereof. Like-as finding a Miſinformation or miſtake of our Covenant with God, as if it had been an unlawful Combination, to be the main hindrance of obtaining our Deſires in a new Supplication, We have fully removed that Impediment, renewed our Deſires of thoſe ſupreme Judicatories, to be indicted with diligence for ſetling of the Kirk and Kingdom; but being only anſwered with delays after theſe nine months attendance, and with this Proclamation, that contained his Majeſty's Declarations of his Pious Intentions, not to admit any Innovations in Religion or Law,nor any ſtain of Popiſh Superſtition; but on the contrary,to be reſolved to maintain the true Chriſtian Religion profeſſed in this Kingdom; which We were ever ſo far from calling into queſtion, as in our Supplications, Complaints and Bills; We uſed the ſame as one cauſe of our Deſires, one ground of our Confidence of a gracious Anſwer, and Argument of our Adverſaries malignant Miſinformation of ſo Religious a King; and now moſt humbly (on bended Knees and bowed Hearts) thank our gracious Sovereign for the ſame, wiſhing and praying the Lord of Heaven truly and fully to inform his Majeſty how far theſe Books, Judicatories, and all our other Evils and Grievances, are full of Idolatrous Superſtitions and Popiſh Errors, deſtructive of the Reformation of Religion in

An. 1638.

‘this Land, and of the Laws and Liberties of this Church and Kingdom, and ſo directly contrary to his Majeſty's Pious Intention and Declaration: Yet ſeeing that no Proclamation could ſufficiently remove the preſent Evils, nor ſettle our Fears, nor ſecure us from the re-entry of any Evil or Innovation, which it ſeemed to diſcharge, or prevent the like in time coming, nor ſatisfy our humble Supplications, craving the Indiction of a free Aſſembly and Parliament, as the only Remedies of our Evils, and means to prevent the like. And ſeeing this Proclamation doth not ſo much as make mention, or acknowledg any of our Supplications, Complaints and Grievances, or any juſt cauſe thereof, except under the name of the great increaſe of Diſorders, Faults and Miſdemeanors, but only our Fears of ſome future Innovation of Religion or Laws, occaſioned only (as is pretended) by the Introduction of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion; which Fears his Majeſty hoped to have been abundantly and ſufficiently ſatisfied by his two former Proclamations, of the 9th of December, and the 19th of February, and by this his preſent Declaration, unleſs his Subjects be (under pretext of Religion) blindly led unto Diſobedience, doth misken, paſs over, and ſo in effect deny all our Supplications, Bills, Articles, and Deſires, eſpecially our Complaints againſt the Prelats our Parties. And that once for all, in a fair and perſuaſive way, even after the receipt of our laſt Supplication, clearing us from the Calumny of unlawful Combination, doth not diſallow nor diſcharge any of the Innovations and Evils complained upon, but only aſſureth that his Majeſty will not preſs their practice but in ſuch a fair and legal way as ſhall ſatisfy his Subjects of his Intentions; which (joined with the other clauſe, allowing and confirming the Proclamation of the 19th of February) evidenceth the liberty left to any Prelat or Perſons to practiſe the ſame, and by all other fair ways to perſwade others thereunto; and his Majeſty's Reſolution to preſs their practice in a fair and legal way, and alſo confirmeth the former Declaration, that the Service-Book is a ready mean to maintain the true Religion already profeſſed, and to beat out all Superſtition, and no ways to be contrary to the Law of this Kingdom, but to be compiled and approved for the univerſal uſe and edification of all his Majeſty's Subjects; doth not aboliſh, but promiſeth to rectify the High-Commiſſion, with the Advice of his Privy-Council, implying the King's Power, with conſent of his Council, to eſtabliſh this or any Judicatory within this Kingdom, without conſent of the three Eſtates convened Parliament, contrary to the fundamental and expreſs Laws thereof; and by conſequent with the like Reaſon, to eſtabliſh Laws and Service-Books without conſent of the Aſſembly and Parliament; which is contrary to the main ground of our Supplications againſt the manner of their introduction; doth only promiſe to take into his Conſideration in an Aſſembly and Parliament, which ſhall be called at his beſt convenience, while, as the evident and urgent neceſſity for ſetling the Combuſtions, threatning the total diſſolution and deſolation of this Church and State, excuſeth Our inceſſant and importunate calling for theſe preſent Remedies; doth inſinuate the continuance and execution of any pretended Laws for theſe Innovations in Worſhip, and Corruptions of Church-Government, and Civil Places of Church-men, which by our Covenant we have obliged Our ſelves to forbear, and the reſtabliſhment of theſe Evils in 'an Aſſembly and Parliament which he will call in his beſt conveniency, to wit, for that end, and ſatisfying of his Subjects Judgments anent the Service-Book and Book of Canons, doth condemn our former Proceedings, even our ſupplicating, complaining, proteſting, and ſubſcribing of our Covenant, together with our continual Meetings, as great Diſorders, increaſe of great Diſorders, deſerving juſtly a powerful rather than a perſwaſive way; a running headlong into Ruin; a periſhing in our Faults; a blind Diſobedience under pretext of Religion; and doth threaten and denounce, now once for all, if We be not heartily ſatisfied, and give teſtimony of our Obedience after this Declaration, but continue, as by our former Proceedings, to draw on our own Ruin, that although unwillingly, he muſt make uſe of that Power which God hath endued him with, for reclaiming ſo diſobedient People.

'Therefore We in our own Name, and in the Name of all who will adhere to the Confeſſion of Faith, and Reformation of Religion within this Land, are forced and compelled out of our bounden Duty to God, Native Country, our King, our Selves, and our Poſterity, leſt our Silence ſhould be prejudicial to ſo important a Cauſe, as concerns God's Glory and Worſhip, our Religion and Salvation, the Laws and Liberties of the Church and Kingdom, or derogatory to our former Supplications, Complaints, Proteſtations, Articles, and Proceedings, or unanſwerable to our ſolemn Oath of our National Covenant with God, to declare before God and Man, and to proteſt;

'Primo, That we do and will conſtantly adhere, according to our Vocation and Power, to the ſaid Reformation in Doctrine, uſe of Sacraments, and Diſcipline, and that notwithſtanding of any Innovations introduced therein either of old or late.

'Secundo, We Proteſt we adhere to the Greivances, Supplications, and Proteſtations, given in at Aſſemblies and Parliaments, to our late Supplications, Complaints, Proteſtations, and other lawful Proceedings againſt the ſame, and particularly againſt the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, as main Innovations of Religion and Laws, and full of Popiſh Superſtition, and ſo directly contrary to the King's Declaration, and againſt the High Commiſſion, as a Judicatory eſtabliſhed contrary to the Laws and Liberties of this Church and Kingdom, and deſtructive of other lawful Judicatories, which both in reſpect of the nature of it, and manner of Introduction, without conſent of the three Eſtates in Parliament, cannot any ways be rectified, but abſolutely diſcharged.

'Tertio, We proteſt that we adhere with our Hearts to our Oath and Subſcription of the Confeſſion of Faith, the ſolemn Covenant betwixt God, this Church and Kingdom, and the particular Clauſes therein expreſſed and generally contained; and to Our laſt Articles for the Peace of this Kirk and Kingdom, drawn out of it, and to all the matters therein contained, and manner therein of Remedy deſired.

'Quarto, We proteſt that this Proclamation, or Act of Counceil, or any other Act or Proclamation, or Declaration, or Ratification thereof, by Subſcription, or Act, or Letter, or any other manner of way whatſoever, or any Precondemnation of our Cauſe or Carriage, before the ſame be lawfully heard and tried in the Supreme Judicatories of this Kirk and Kingdom, the only proper Judges to National Cauſes and ‘Proceedings, or any Certification or Threatning therein denounced, ſhall be no way prejudicial to the Confeſſion of Faith, Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, nor to our Supplications, Proteſtations, Complaints, Articles, lawful Meetings, Proceedings, Purſuits, Mutual Defences, nor to our Perſons or Eſtates; and ſhall be no way diſgraceful, either in Reality or Opinion, at Home or Abroad, to Us or any of Us. But on the contrary, any Letter, or Act, or Subſcription of the Council, carrying the approbation of the Declaration, and condemnation of our Proceedings, indicta Cauſa, is and ought to be reputed and eſteemed unjuſt, illegal, and null, as here before God and Man we offer to clear, and to verify both the juſtneſs of our Cauſe and Carriage, and the injuſtice of ſuch Acts againſt Us, in the face of the firſt General Aſſembly of the Church and Parliament of Eſtates; unto whom, with all Solemnities requiſite, We do publickly appeal.

‘Quinto, We proteſt, That ſeeing Our former Supplications, laſt Articles, and Our laſt Deſire and Petition to his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, which petitioned for a preſent Indiction of a free General Aſſembly and Parliament, according to the Law and Cuſtom of all Nations, and of this Nation in the like caſe, to hear the Deſire, eaſe the Grievances, and ſettle the Fears of the Body of the Church and Kingdom, are thus delaied, and in effect refuſed: To wit, once for all, till his Majeſty's conveniency for the end contained in this Proclamation, that We continue by theſe Preſents to ſupplicate his Majeſty again and again for granting the ſame; and whatſoever trouble or inconveniency fall out in this Land in the mean time, for want of theſe ordinary Remedies, and by the practice of any of theſe Innovations and Evils, contrary to our Supplications, Articles, and Confeſſion, it be not imputed unto Us, who moſt humbly beg theſe lawful Remedies; but alſo that it is, and ſhall be lawful unto Us to defend and maintain the Religion, Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, the King's Authority in defence thereof, and every one of Us one another, in that Cauſe, of maintaining the Religion, and the King's aforeſaid Authority, according to our Power, Vocation, and Covenant, with Our beſt Counſel, Bodies, Lives, Means, and whole Strength, againſt all Perſons whatſoever, and againſt all external and internal Invaſion menaced in this Proclamation, like-as that in the great exigency of the Church, neceſſitating the uſe of the ordinary and lawful Remedies, for ſetling the Commotion thereof; it is and ſhall be leathſome unto Us to appoint, hold, and uſe the ordinary means, Our lawful Meetings and Aſſemblies of the Church, agreeable to the Laws of God, and practice of the Primitive Times of the Church, the Acts of the General Aſſemblies and Parliaments, and the Example of Our worthy Reformers in the like caſe.

‘Sexto, We proteſt, That Our former Supplications, Complaints, Proteſtations, Confeſſions, Meetings, Proceedings, and mutual Defences of one another in this Cauſe, as they are and were in themthemſelves moſt neceſſary, and orderly means, agreeable to the Laws and practice of this Church and Kingdom, and in no wiſe to be ſtiled or accounted great Diſorders, Miſdemeanours, blind Diſobedience, under pretext of Religion, and running headlong into ruin, &c. ſo they proceeded only from Conſcience of Duty to God, Our

'King, Native Country, and our Poſterity; and do tend to no other end, but to the preſervation of the true Reformed Religion, the Confeſſion of Faith, Laws and Liberties of this his Majeſty's moſt Ancient Kingdom, and of his Majeſty's Authority in defence thereof, and ſatisfaction of Our humble Deſires, contained in Our Supplications, Complaints, and Articles; unto the which we adhere again and again, as We would eſchew the Curſe of Almighty God, following the breach of his Covenant; and yet We do certainly expect, according to the King's Majeſty's accuſtomed Goodneſs and Juſtice, that his Sacred Majeſty, after a true information of the Juſtice of our Cauſe and Carriage, will preſently indict theſe ordinary Remedies of a Free Aſſembly and Parliament, to Our juſt Supplications, Complaints, and Articles, which may be expected, and uſed to be granted, from ſo juſt and gracious a King, towards moſt loial and dutiful Subjects, calling for Redreſs of ſo preſſing Grievances; and praying heartily that his Majeſty may long and proſperouſly raign over us.

Before the Marqueſs's departure, the Covenanters yielded to an Explication of their Covenant, by way of Supplication, as followeth.

To His Majeſty's Commiſſioner:

The Supplication of the Noblemen, Barons, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and Commons, here attending his Majeſty's Gracious Anſwer of Our former Petitions, Complaints, and Deſires.

Humbly ſheweth,

THat whereas We expecting from your Grace, as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, a gracious Anſwer of Our former Supplications, Complaints, and juſt Deſires, have preſented to your Grace a Petition, humbly craving a free Aſſembly and Parliament, as the ordinary Remedy of our Grievances, and the only means to put this Kirk and Kingdom to quietneſs. It pleaſed your Grace to ſhew, that his Majeſty, from his princely care of this Kirk and Kingdom, would be moſt willing to indict a free General Aſſembly, and call a Parliament, for thoſe good Ends, but that your Grace, as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, hath conceived the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant, lately renewed by us his Majeſty's Subjects, to be an unlawful Combination againſt Authority, thereby to caſt off Our dutiful Obedience, and not a Covenant for maintaining of True Religion, of his Majeſty's Perſon and Authority, and of the Laws and Liberties of the Kingdom. And we being moſt willing to remove that, as the main hinderance of the obtaining of Our Deſires therefore, and for clearing our Loyalty, and vindicating our Selves from ſo great an Imputation, We do now in all humility remonſtrate to your Grace, as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and declare before God and Men, That we are heartily grieved and ſorry that any good Man, but moſt of all Our dread Soveraign ſhould ſo conceive of Our doing. And that We were, and ſtill are ſo far from any thought of withdrawing our Selves from our dutiful Subjection and Obedience to his Majeſty's Government; which by the deſcent, and under the Raign of 107

Kings;

An. 1638.

Kings, is moſt chearfully acknowledged by Us and Our Predeceſſors, that We never had nor have any intention to deſire to attempt any thing that may turn to the diſhonour of God, or the diminution of the King's Greatneſs and Authority. But on the contrary, We acknowledg our Quietneſs, Stability, and Happineſs, to depend upon the ſafety of the King's Majeſty, as upon God's Vicegerent, ſet over Us for maintenance of Religion, and miniſtration of Juſtice, have ſolemnly ſworn, not only Our mutual Concurrance and Aſſiſtance for the Cauſe of Religion, but alſo to the utmoſt of Our Power with our Means and Lives, to ſtand to the defence of Our dread Soveraign the King's Majeſty, his Perſon and Authority, in the preſervation and defence of the True Religion, Liberties, and Laws of the Kingdom. And therefore We his Majeſty's Loyal Subjects, free from that and all other Imputations of that kind, moſt humbly beſeech your Grace to eſteem, That our Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant to have bin intended, and to the largeſt teſtimony of our Fidelity to God, and loyalty to our King, and that hinderance being removed, muſt ſtill ſupplicate that your Grace would be pleaſed to indict a free General Aſſembly and Parliament, which will undoubtedly redreſs all our Evil, ſettle the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom, and procure that chearfulneſs of Obedience which ought to be rendred to his Majeſty, carrying with it the offer of our Fortunes and beſt Endeavours for his Majeſty's Honour and Happineſs, as a real teſtimony of our Thankfulneſs, and our hearty Prayers to God, that his Majeſty may long and proſperouſly raign over us.

At this time Marqueſs Hamilton told the Covenanters, That he had no Authority to indict an Aſſembly, unleſs ſome Particulars were agreed upon, both concerning the Conſtitution of the Aſſembly, and the preſent ſetling the Peace of the Kingdom; and delivered the Particulars of the King's Demands to the chief Lords of the Covenanters in ten Articles, which they utterly diſliked; and then the Marqueſs afterwards reduced them to theſe two, viz.

1. 'If the Lords and the reſt will undertake for themſelves and the reſt, that no Laicks ſhall have Voices in chuſing the Miniſters to be ſent from the ſeveral Presbyteries to the General Aſſembly, nor none elſe but the Miniſters of the ſame Presbytery.

2. 'If they will undertake that at the Aſſembly they ſhall not go about to determine of things eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, otherwiſe than by Remonſtrance or Petition to the Parliament, leaving the determining of Things Eccleſiaſtical to the General Aſſembly, and things ſetled by Act of Parliament to the Parliament, then I will preſently indict a General Aſſembly, and promiſe, upon my Honour, immediately after the Aſſembly, to indict a Parliament, which ſhall Cognoſce of all their Complaints.

This highly diſpleaſed the Heads of the Covenanters, who began preſently to think of the Election of Commiſſioners for the General Aſſembly. But the Marqueſs told them, That if they did proceed to the Election of any Commiſſioners for the Aſſembly before his return, he would not go his Journy at all, but leave them to their own ways. At laſt having conſulted with their Tables, they agreed that the Election of Commiſſioners ſhould be delaied until his return.

The Marqueſs by his Induſtry had got ſome of the Privy-Council, who were not ſatisfied with the Declaration, to be abſent from the Divers of the Council who ſubſcribed to the Declaration, do retract the ſame.

Council that day; but divers of thoſe who had ſigned the Act, That Subjects ought to reſt ſatisfied with the Declaration, came afterwards to him, telling him, That upon ſecond thoughts, they found they had wronged their Conſciences, therefore they deſired he would call a New Council, that they might retract what they had done; and ſaid plainly, If he called not a Council, they would find another way to make their Retractation to be known, and that was, to ſubſcribe the Covenant. The Marqueſs imparting this to the whole Council apart, found that three parts in four would immediately fall off, if he gave them not ſatisfaction; and judging that ſuch a viſible breach in the Council would ruin the King's Affairs, and the Act ſo ſigned not being Regiſtred, but only Subſcribed, he thought it beſt to tear it before their Faces, by which means he got the Storm calmed.

The Marqueſs moves the King to renew the Confeſſion of Faith.

When the Marqueſs came to Court, he gave the King a full Account of all that had paſſed in Scotland, and of the Strength and Rage of the Covenanters, together with the unconſtancy of many of the Secret Council, and propoſed to his Majeſty to renew the Confeſſion of Faith ratified in Parliament 1567. And to that his Majeſty did readily conſent, and reſolved to enlarge his Inſtructions, which he did to the effect following.

London, July 27, 1638.

CHARLES R.

YOu ſhall try by all means, to ſee if the Council will ſign the Confeſſion of Faith, eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, with the New Bond joined thereunto: But you are not publickly to put it to voting, except you be ſure to carry it, and thereafter that probably they will ſtand to it.

If the Council do ſign it, though the Covenanters refuſe, you ſhall proceed to the indicting of a free General Aſſembly; and though you cannot procure the Council to ſign it, yet you are to proceed to the indicting thereof, if you find no other courſe can quiet Buſineſs at this time.

You ſhall labour by all fair means, that the ſitting of the Aſſembly be not before the firſt of November, or longer if you can obtain it. For the Place, We are pleaſed to leave it to your Election: For the manner of Indicting, you muſt be as cautious as you can, and ſtrive to draw it, as near as may be, to the former Aſſemblies in My Father's Time.

You muſt labour that the Biſhops may have Votes in Aſſemblies; which if you cannot obtain, then you are to proteſt in their Favours, in the moſt formal manner you can think of.

As for the Moderator in the Aſſembly, you are to labour that he may be a Biſhop; which though you cannot obtain, yet you muſt give way to their Election.

You are to labour, That the five Articles of Perth be held as indifferent: Strive that the Admiſſions of Miniſters may continue as they are. You may condeſcend that the Oaths of their Admiſſion be no other than is warranted by Act of Parliament.

An. 1638.

[illegible] Council also intended to the Declarati-on, do retract the ſame.

You are, if you find that it may any wiſe conduce to Our Service, to enact and publiſh the Order made at Hally-Rood-Houſe, by Our Council, the fifth of July laſt, for diſcharging the Uſe of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and the Practice of the High-Commiſſion.

You are to proteſt againſt the Aboliſhing of Biſhops, and to give way to as few Reſtrictions of their Power as you can: As for the Biſhops not being capable of Civil Places, you muſt labour what you can to keep them free.

You may give way, that they ſhall be accountable to the General Aſſembly, which you ſhall indict at the riſing of this againſt that time twelve month.

As for the Biſhops Precedence, you are not to admit them of the Aſſembly to meddle therewith, it being no point of Religion, and totally in the Crown.

The Marqueſs moves the King to renew the Confeſſion of Faith.

If the Biſhop of St. Andrews, or any other, be accuſed of any Crime, you are to give way to it, ſo they may have a free Trial, and likewiſe the ſame of whatſoever Perſon or Officer of State.

It is left to your diſcretion what courſe Biſhops ſhall take, that are for the preſent out of the Country.

You are to adviſe the Biſhops to forbear ſitting at the Council, till better and more favourable times for them.

Notwithſtanding all theſe Inſtructions above mentioned, or any other accident that may happen, (ſtill labouring to keep up Our Honour ſo far as poſſibly you can) you are by no means to permit a preſent Rupture to happen, but to yield any thing, though unreaſonable, rather then now to break.

Beſides theſe Inſtructions, his Majeſty ordered the Marqueſs, That the Moderators named by the Biſhops in Preſbyteries, be again reponed and held neceſſary Members of the Aſſembly; that all Miniſters turned out ſince theſe Stirs began, might be again reſtored; and that all Miniſters admitted without the Biſhops, may not exerciſe their Function.

And the King wrote alſo by the Marqueſs to the Council, dated at Oatlands, July 30. taking notice that this Bond being not ſubſcribed by Roial Leave & Authority, as was that in the time of K. James, muſt needs be both null in it ſelf, and prejudicial to the Kirk and State; his Majeſty alſo declaring, That he hath ever bin fully ſatisfied in Judgment and Conſcience, both of the Reformed Religion, and againſt the Roman.

And his Majeſty alſo ſigned a Declaration to the ſame effect and purpoſe; not only to ſatisfy his loving Subjects, but all the Chriſtian World, and therefore ſigned the Confeſſion of Faith, eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament with that Bond.

The King likewiſe ſigned a Declaration of the ſame date, expreſſing the Contents in the ſaid Letter, and that he will ever maintain the True Chriſtian and Reformed Religion eſtabliſhed in the Kingdom of Scotland; and to that end he hath ſigned the Confeſſion of Faith, eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament 1557, with the Bond in defence of it.

July 23. Diſpute at Aberdeen about the Covenant.

But while the Marqueſs was buſy at Court, the Covenanters in Scotland were going on for more Subſcriptions to the Covenant; and becauſe the North were for the moſt part againſt the Covenant, ſome

Noblemen and Miniſters went on the 23d of July (being that day 12-month the Stool was thrown at the Biſhops head) to Aberdeen, hoping to convince the Doctors there of the Lawfulneſs of the Covenant. But the Doctors violently argued againſt the ſame, becauſe it was a Combination without Warrant or Authority. And the Covenanters gave out to the ſaid Doctors at Aberdeen, that the Lord-Commiſſioner was ſatisfied with the Covenant upon the offer of that Explication, (which is formerly mentioned) but at the Commiſſioner's Return he declared the contrary.

The Marqueſs at his Return to Hally-Rood Houſe, on the 10th of Auguſt, found things in a much worſe poſture than he had left them; for at a Convention of Buroughs, a few days before, they had enacted, That none might be Magiſtrates, or bear Office in any Burrough, except he had taken the Covenant. And the Covenanters were reſolved that Biſhops ſhould have no Vote in the Aſſembly, and that Epiſcopacy ſhould be aboliſhed, and the Articles of Perth condemned, and all under pain of Excommunication were to ſign the Covenant.

The Marqueſs at his Return finds things in a bad condition.

The Marqueſs being ſurpriſed with ſo great a change of the ſtate of Affairs, gave Account thereof to the King, and reſolved not to call a General Aſſembly till he firſt went in Perſon to aquaint his Majeſty with the hazard he was like to run.

And gives the King an Account thereof.

On the 13th of Auguſt the Covenanters came to demand his Anſwer to their Petitions. To whom he declared, that the King's Anſwer was ſo full of Grace and Goodneſs, that he will leave nothing undone that can be expected from a juſt Prince to ſave the Nation from Ruin; and that he finds they cannot be well ſetled without a Parliament and Aſſembly; and ſo delivered his Majeſty's Anſwer to them to that purpoſe.

The Marqueſs alſo aſſured them, that immediately upon their Obedience he ſhould indict an Aſſembly and Parliament, as he was inſtructed, Order and Government being firſt eſtabliſhed again in the Country as it was before theſe Combuſtions. But they continued ſtill treating about this till the 20th of Auguſt: Whereupon the Marqueſs craved again the ſpace of Twenty days to go to Court, and bring an Anſwer from his Majeſty. Which he did to gain more time, and to adviſe his Majeſty to break with them, or to give way to the violence of their Zeal; and in that time alſo to attend the diſpatch of Affairs at Court concerning the Kingdom of Scotland. So he took Journy on the 25th of Auguſt towards London.

The Marqueſs deſires twenty days time to go to the King and return.

The Marqueſs before his Journey thought fit to conſult with the Earl of Traquire, Roxborough and Southeſk; what Advice to offer his Majeſty. Who agreed upon Articles to be preſented to his Majeſty, ſome of which were to the effect following.

He conſults with 3 Lords, not Covenanters.

'Since the Cauſe and Occaſion of all the Diſtractions which of late 'have hapned both in Kirk and Polity, ſeems to proceed from the 'conceived Fears of Innovation of Religion and Laws, and that the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and the unbounded Power of Biſhops in the 'High-Commiſſion, (never yet warranted by Law) was that which firſt 'gave ground and occaſion to the Subjects Fears; and ſeeing the ſaid 'Books are offered to be proved to be full of Tenets and Doctrines 'contrary to the Reformed Religion, profeſſed and eſtabliſhed within 'this Kingdom, and the ſame introduced againſt all Form and Cuſtom

Articles of advice offered to his Majeſty, to have the Confeſſion of Faith ſigned by his Father, to be revived.

An. 1638. ‘practiſed in the Church, it were an Act of Juſtice well beſeeming ſo gracious and glorious a King, abſolutely and fully to diſcharge the ſame.

‘And ſeeing likewiſe this High-Commiſſion hath given ſo great Offence to ſo many of your Majeſties good Subjects, and as is conſtantly affirmed, is of ſo vaſt and unlimited a Power, and contrary to expreſs Laws, by which all ſuch Judicatories not eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, are declared to be of no force; it would much conduce to the ſatisfaction of this People, if this Judicatory were diſcharged till the ſame were eſtabliſhed by Law.

‘The Practice of the five Articles of Perth hath been withſtood by the moſt conſiderable part of the Subjects of all qualities both Laity and Clergy, whereby great Diviſions have been in this Church, and are like to have an increaſe, if your Majeſty (in your accuſtomed Goodneſs and Care of this poor Kirk and Kingdom) ſhall not be graciouſly pleaſed to allow that the preſſing of theſe Articles may be forborn until the ſame may be conſidered of in an Aſſembly and Parliament. And although We conceive Epiſcopacy to be a Church-Government moſt agreeable with Monarchy, yet the illimited Power which the Lords of the Clergy of this Kingdom have of late aſſumed to themſelves in admitting and depoſing of Miniſters, and in divers other of their Acts and Proceedings, gives us juſt ground humbly to beg that your Majeſty may be pleaſed to remit to the Conſideration of the Aſſembly this their unwarranted Power.

‘The ſenſe and apprehenſion of theſe foreſaid Evils hath ſtirred up the Subjects without warrant of Authority to join in a Bond and Covenant to withſtand the foreſaid Innovations, and for maintenance of the true Religion, the King's Majeſtie's Perſon, and of one another in the defence thereof.

‘If Your Majeſty might be graciouſly pleaſed in ſupplement hereof, to allow or warrant ſuch a Confeſſion of Faith, with ſuch a Covenant, or Bond joined thereunto, as that ſigned by Your Majeſty's Royal Father, and by his Command by the Council, and moſt part of the Kingdom, We are very confident the ſame would be a ready and forcible mean to quiet the preſent Diſorders, at leaſt to ſatisfy moſt part. And if Your Majeſty ſhall condeſcend to the foreſaid Propoſitions, We are hopeful, if not confident, it ſhall give ſo great content to ſo conſiderable a number of your Majeſty's good Subjects of all qualities, that if any ſhall ſtand out, or withſtand your Majeſty's Royal Pleaſure, after the publication thereof, they may be overtaken by Your Majeſty's Power within this Kingdom, without the Help or Aſſiſtance of any Force elſewhere.

‘And becauſe it is to be hoped that all that hath paſt in this Buſineſs, and all the Courſes that have been taken herein by the Subjects, hath proceeded from the aforeſaid fears of Innovations, and not out of any Diſloyalty or Diſſatisfaction to Soveraignty; and that Your good People may ſtill taſte the fruits of your Grace and Goodneſs, We wiſh Your Majeſty may be graciouſly pleaſed, upon the Word of a King, to pardon what is paſt, &c.

The Marqueſs arrives at Court.

When the Marqueſs arrived at Court, he told his Majeſty, That unleſs he enlarged his Inſtructions, he was to treat no further; and ſince he ſaw the Contempt was like to have bin put on the laſt Inſtructions, ſo as he durſt not make uſe of them, leſt his Majeſty ſhould be expoſed to new Affronts. And told his Majeſty further, That nothing ſeemed ſo likely a courſe for removing of Jealouſies, and ſetling of things, as the Authoriſing the Covenant, that upon King James his command, was drawn up in the Year 1580, containing the renunciation of all the Articles of Popery, which was the ground of the preſent Covenant.

And now the King reſolved to try the utmoſt of yielding, for the recovery of his Subjects in Scotland, therefore again he diſpatched his Commiſſioner from Oatlands, on the 10th of September, with ample Inſtructions, to this effect.

Oatlands, September 9.

New Inſtructions to the Marqueſs, impouring him to revoke the Service-Book, Canons, &c.

CHARLES R.

The Marqueſs gets new Inſtructions.

1. YOu ſhall, in full and ample manner, by Proclamation or otherwiſe as you ſhall ſee cauſe, declare, That We do abſolutely revoke the Service-Book, the Book of Canons, and the High-Commiſſion.

2. You ſhall likewiſe diſcharge the practice of the Five Articles of Perth, notwithſtanding the Act of Parliament, which doth command the ſame: And in the ſaid Proclamation you ſhall promiſe, in Our Name, That if in the firſt Parliament to be held, the three Eſtates ſhall think fit to repeal the ſaid Act, We ſhall then give Our Roial Aſſent to the ſaid Act of Repeal.

3. You ſhall likewiſe declare, That We have enjoined and authorized the Lords of Our Privy-Council, to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, and Bond thereto annexed, which was ſubſcribed by Our dear Father, and enjoined by his Majeſty's Authority in the Year 1580. And likewiſe have enjoined them to take order, that all Our Subjects ſubſcribe the ſame.

4. You ſhall likewiſe declare, That Our meaning and pleaſure is, That none of Our Subjects, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Civil, ſhall be exempted from Cenſures, and Trial of the Parliament, or General Aſſembly, thoſe Courts proceeding againſt them in due form and Order of Law.

5. You ſhall likewiſe declare, That We are graciouſly content, that the Epiſcopal Government already eſtabliſhed, ſhall be limited with ſuch Inſtructions as may ſtand with the Laws of this Church and Kingdom already eſtabliſhed.

6. You ſhall offer a Pardon by Proclamation, and promiſe in it a Ratification of the ſame in Parliament to all Our good Subjects who ſhall reſt ſatisfied with this Our gracious Declaration, and hereafter carry themſelves as becomes peaceable and dutiful Subjects.

7. You ſhall procure an Act of Council, wherein every Counſellor ſhall declare himſelf fully ſatisfied with this Our Declaration, and (if you can) they ſhall moreover ſolemnly Swear and Proteſt to adhere to Us; and with their Lives, Fortunes, and whole Means, aſſiſt Us in the puniſhing and repreſſing all ſuch as ſhall be found to be diſobedient, or perſiſt in turbulent and unpeaceable Courſes; and if any of Our Counſellors ſhall refuſe ſo to do, you ſhall preſently remove him from the place of a Counſellor.

8. You ſhall likewiſe require every Lord of the Seſſion to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith above mentioned, and the Bond thereunto annexed; as likewiſe to make the ſame proteſtation in all things, as in the laſt Inſtruction is required of a Counſellor; and if they ſhall refuſe to do it, you ſhall then certify to Us the Names of ſuch Refuſers.

9. You ſhall likewiſe declare that Our Pleaſure is, That a moſt Solemn Faſt be indicted upon a ſet Day throughout the whole Kingdom, which ſhall precede the General Aſſembly in ſome competent time. The Cauſes ſhall be declared, To beg God's Bleſſing on that Aſſembly; to beg of God a peaceable end to the Diſtractions of this Church and Kingdom; with the averſion of God's heavy Judgment from both. The form of indiction, We deſire to be according to the moſt laudable cuſtom of this Church in moſt extraordinary Caſes.

10. You ſhall labour as much as in you lieth, that both the Electors, and Perſons elected to be Commiſſioners at the General Aſſembly, ſhall be the ſame that were wont to be in My Father's Time, and the ſame Forms to be obſerved, as near as may be; but yet if that cannot be obtained, it ſhall be no let to you from indicting a General Aſſembly, but you ſhall go on it by all ſuch means as you ſhall find moſt advantagious to Me in that Service.

11. The Time and Place of the Aſſembly (Edinburgh only excepted) We leave to your Judgment and Pleaſure.

12. You ſhall likewiſe preſently indict a Parliament; the Time and Place We leave likewiſe to you.

13. Whether you ſhall firſt publiſh Our Gracious Offers, or firſt indict the Aſſembly, We leave it to your own Judgment as you ſhall ſee cauſe.

14. If you ſhall find the moſt conſiderable part of the Council not to acquieſce in this Our Gracious Declaration, and not to promiſe hearty and chearful Aſſiſtance to Us, as is above expreſſed, or not a conſiderable part of other Lords and Gentlemen, in caſe Our Council refuſe, then you ſhall neither indict Parliament nor Aſſembly, nor publiſh any of my Gracious Offers, except only the Aboliſhing of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion, but leave them to themſelves, and to ſuch further order as We ſhall be forced to take with them; only if you foreſee a Breach, you ſhall give timely warning thereof to ſuch as have ſtood well-affected to Our Service, that ſo they may in due time provide for their ſafety, and your Self is to return to Us with expedition.

15. You muſt, by all means poſſible you can think of, infuſe into the Miniſters what a wrong it will be to them, and what an oppreſſion upon the freedom of their Judgment, if there muſt be ſuch a number of Laicks to over-rule them, both in their Elections for the General Aſſembly, and afterwards.

His Majeſty did alſo ſign Inſtructions for the Marqueſs his Behaviour with the Biſhops, to deſire the Biſhop of St. Andrews to leave his Chancellor's place, to accept of the ſum of 2500 l. Sterling, which ſhould be done without injury to himſelf, and more to his advantage.

Likewiſe to intimate to them, That his Majeſty intends to indict a General Aſſembly, and abſolutely to diſcharge the Books of Service, and Canons, and High-Commiſſion; and that the five Articles of Perth be eſteemed as indifferent; and that though his Majeſty will maintain Epiſcopacy, yet will be content that their Power be limited according to the Law.

The Marqueſs in his return met with the Scotiſh Biſhops, and communicated to them the Contents of the King's Commands.

The Marqueſs being thus again diſpatched at Court, took Journey for Scotland, and met the Scotiſh Biſhops in the way, paſſing through York-ſhire, to whom he ſignified his Majeſty's Pleaſure; that the King inclined to indict a General Aſſembly, and abſolutely to diſcharge the Books of Service, and Canons, and the High-Commiſſion; and that the five Articles of Perth be eſteemed as indifferent: and that though the King will maintain Epiſcopacy, yet he will be content that their Power be limited according to the Laws. But the Biſhops were no ways pleaſed with what the Marqueſs had ſaid unto them was the King's Pleaſure, and ſpoke againſt it with great vehemency: But the Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews was the moſt moderate of any of them, and ſeemed to be willing to take 2500 l. Sterling Compoſition to quit his place of Chancellor.

The Biſhops ſorrowful.

On the 17*th* of September the Marqueſs arrived at Hally-Rood-Houſe, where he found Jealouſies begin to ariſe, between ſome of the wiſer Miniſters, and the Lords for the Covenant concerning the Lay-Ruling Elders.

Jealouſies between the Miniſters & Lay-Ruling Elders.

On the 20*th* the Covenanters ſent to the Marqueſs to know when they might wait on him to know his Majeſty's Pleaſure; and he appointed the next day, Septemb. 21. When they came, he told them, That the King had granted them all that they deſired; and more alſo, a Free Aſſembly, and a Parliament, which ſhould be immediately indicted, and opened the Particulars unto them; and they ſeemed reaſonably well ſatisfied therewith, only they preſſed him to deſiſt from renewing the Confeſſion of Faith, for they clearly ſaw that that would diſſatisfy a great many of their Party. But the Marqueſs having made moſt of the Privy-Council ſure before-hand, and that by Oath, reſolved to hear of no delay.

The Covenanters againſt the Confeſſion of Faith.

The next morning the Earl of Rotheſs, and many of the Covenanting Lords, deſired acceſs; and in the Name of the reſt ſaid, They heard the Council were to ſign the Old Confeſſion of Faith, and to publiſh a Declaration there-about, which they deſired might be delayed till Monday next, and they doubted not to be able to give good Reaſons why they ſhould not do it: And being called into the Council, they raiſed a long Debate which laſted about four hours; but in the end no delay of publiſhing the Declaration was granted, and it was carried by Vote in the Council, That the Confeſſion of Faith ſhould be preſently ſigned. Next, that the Proclamation of Grace ſhould be preſently publiſhed, and another Proclamation, that an Aſſembly ſhould preſently meet at Glaſcow the 21 of November, and that a Parliament ſhould meet at Edinburgh the 15*th* of May next.

The Proclamation of the 9th of Sept. was publiſhed, but met with a Proteſtation.

Then the Council paſſed an Act, declaring their full ſatisfaction with his Majeſty's Conceſſions, together with the Letter of Thanks to his Majeſty, expreſſing their full ſatisfaction, with large engagements to adhere conſtantly to his Service; and ſo they aroſe at four of the Clock, having ſat that day from ſeven in the morning. So the Proclamation of the 9th of September following, was immediately ſent to the Croſs at Edinburgh, which met with a Proteſtation; and though the Council ſeemed diſpleaſed at it, yet they could not be perſuaded to paſs a Cenſure upon the Proteſtation as Seditious.

The Copy of a Proclamation made at Edinburgh, Sept. 22.

CHARLES, &c. To Our Lovits, Our Heralds, Meſſengers, Our Sheriffs in that Part conjunctly and ſeverally, ſpecially conſtitute, greeting.

By Proclamation, the King makes void & null all Acts of Council tending to eſtabliſh the Service-Book, Canons, &c.

FOraſmuch as the cauſe and occaſion of all the Diſtractions which have hapned of late, both in Church and Common-Wealth, of this our Antient Kingdom, have proceeded from the conceived Fears of Innovation of Religion and Laws. To free all our Good Subjects from the leaſt ſuſpicion of any intention in Us to innovate any thing, either in Religion or Laws; and to ſatiſfy, not only their Deſires, but even their Doubts, We have diſcharged, and by theſe preſents do diſcharge the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion, and the practice of them, or any of them; and by theſe Preſents annulls and reſcinds all Acts of Council, Proclamations, and other Acts and Deeds whatſoever that have bin made and publiſhed for eſtabliſhing them, or any of them; and declare the ſame to be null, and to have no force or effect in time coming. And being informed, that the urging of the practice of the five Articles of Perth-Aſſembly hath bred great Diſtraction and Diviſion in the Church and State; We have bin graciouſly pleaſed to take the ſame into our conſideration, and for the Quiet and Peace of Church and State, do not only diſpenſe with the practice of the ſaid Articles; but alſo diſcharge, like-as by theſe Preſents We diſcharge all and whatſoever Perſons from urging the practice thereof, upon either Laick or Eccleſiaſtick Perſon whatſoever. And We do hereby free all our Subjects from all Cenſure and Pain, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Secular, for not urging, practiſing, or obeying the ſame, notwithſtanding any thing contained in the Acts of Parliament, or General Aſſembly to the contrary. And becauſe it hath bin (to the diſgrace of Government) diſperſed and ſurmiſed throughout this our Kingdom, that ſome of our Subjects have exerciſed ſuch illimited and unwarranted Power, and have held themſelves exempt from cenſure or puniſhment, to which other Subjects are liable; We do by theſe preſents declare, That if any of our Subjects, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Civil, of whatſoever Quality, Title, or Degree, have, or ſhall at any time preſume to do any ſuch Act, or aſſume to themſelves any ſuch exemption or Power, that they ſhall, like as by theſe Preſents We make and ordain them to be liable to the Trial and Cenſure of Parliament, General Aſſembly, or any other Judicatories competent, according to the nature and quality of the Offence. And for free entry of Miniſters, that no other Oath be adminiſtred unto them, than that which is contained in the Act of Parliament. And to give our Subjects full aſſurance, that We never intend to admit of any Change or Alteration in the True Religion already eſtabliſhed and profeſſed in this our Kingdom. And that all our good People may be fully and clearly ſatisfied of the reality of our Intentions towards the maintenance of the Truth, and integrity of the ſaid Religion; We have thought fit and expedient to enjoin and authorize, like as We by theſe Preſents do require and command all the Lords of our Privy-Council, Senators of our College of Juſtice, and all Judges and Magiſtrates to Burrough and Land, and all other our Subjects whatſoever, to ſubſcribe and renew the Confeſſion of Faith, ſubſcribed at firſt by our dear Father and his Houſhold, in the Year of God 1580, thereafter by perſons of all Ranks, in the Year 1581, by Ordinance of the Lords of Secret Council, and Acts of the General Aſſembly. Subſcribed again by all ſorts of Perſons in the Year 1590, by a New Ordinance of Council, at the deſire of the General Aſſembly, with their General Bond of Maintenance of the True Religion, and the King's Perſon. And for that effect We do require the Lords of the Councell to take ſuch courſe anent the foreſaid Confeſſion and General Band, that it may be ſubſcribed and renewed throughout the whole Realm with all poſſible Diligence. And becauſe We will not leave in our Subjects minds the leaſt ſcruple, or doubt of our Roial Intentions, and Real Reſolutions; We have given Warrant to our Commiſſioner to indict a Free General Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow the 21 of November, in this preſent Year 1638, and thereafter a Parliament to be holden at Edinburgh, the 15th day of May 1639, for ſetling a perfect Peace both in Church and Common-Weal of this Kingdom. And becauſe it is likely that the Diſorders and Diſtractions which have hapned of late, have bin occaſioned through the conceived Fears of Innovations of Religion, and Laws, and not out of any Diſloyalty or Diſaffection to Soveraignty; We are graciouſly pleaſed abſolutely to forget what is paſt, and freely to forgive all By-gons to all ſuch as ſhall acquieſce to this our Gracious Pleaſure, and carry themſelves peaceably, as Loial and Dutiful Subjects; and We ſhall ratify and approve the ſame in our next enſuing Parliament. And that this Aſſembly may have the better ſucceſs, and more happy concluſion, Our Will is, That there be a Solemn Faſt proclaimed and kept by all our Loving Subjects of this Kingdom, fourteen days before the beginning of the ſaid Aſſembly; The cauſes thereof to be, A begging from God a Bleſſing upon that Aſſembly, and a peaceable end to the Diſtractions of this Church and Kingdom, with the averſion of God's heavy Judgment from both. And Our pleaſure is, That this Faſt be kept in the moſt ſolemn manner, as hath bin in this Church at any time heretofore, upon the moſt extraordinary occaſion. Our Will is therefore, and We charge you ſtraitly, and command, That incontinent theſe our Letters ſeen, ye paſs, and make publication hereof by open Proclamation at the Market-Croſſes of the Head-Boroughs of this our Kingdom, wherethrough none pretend ignorance of the ſame.

Given under Our Signet, at Our Court of Oatlands, the 9th day of September, 1638.

At the ſame time when this Declaration was proclaimed, another was alſo proclaimed for indicting an Aſſembly at Glaſgow, Novemb. 21. and another for a Parliament at Edinburgh the 15*th* of May. The Proteſtation in anſwer to this Declaration doth follow; only for the preſent We inſert in this place ſo much of that Proteſtation as relates in anſwer to the Confeſſion of Faith, ordered by the King to be ſubſcribed unto; and afterwards in the Appendix, the reſt of this Proteſtation, being very long, is at large ſet down.

The Proteſtation of the Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burroughs, Miniſters, and Commons, &c. in anſwer to the King's Declaration of the 9th of September.

‘That this Proclamation commandeth all his Majeſty's Subjects, for maintenance of the Religion already eſtabliſhed, to ſubſcribe and renew the Confeſſion of Faith, ſubſcribed before in the Year 1580, and afterwards; and requireth the Lords of the Privy-Council to take ſuch courſe anent the ſame, and general Band of maintenance of the True Religion, and the King's Perſon, that it may be ſubſcribed and renewed throughout the whole Kingdom, with all poſſible diligence, which cannot now be performed by us: For although of late we would have bin glad that our ſelves, and other his Majeſty's Subjects had bin commanded by Authority to ſwear and ſubſcribe the General Confeſſion of Faith againſt Popiſh Errors and Superſtitions, and now would be glad that all others ſhould join with Us in our late Covenant and Confeſſion, deſcending more eſpecially to the Novations and Errors of the Time, and obliging Us to the Defence of Religion, and of the King's Majeſty's Perſon and Authority, and for theſe ends to the mutual defence every one of Us of another; Yet can We not now, after ſo neceſſary and ſo ſolemn a Specification, return to the General, for the Reaſons following.

1. ‘No means have bin left unaſſayed againſt Our late Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant ſo ſolemnly ſworn and ſubſcribed: for firſt, We were preſt with the rendring and reſcinding of our Covenant; next, an alteration in ſome ſubſtantial Point, was urged; thirdly, A Declaration was mentioned, which tended to the enervation thereof; and now We find in the ſame ſtrain, that We are put to a new Trial, and the laſt mean is uſed more ſubtil than the former. That by this new Subſcription to Our late Covenant and Confeſſion, may be quite abſorbed and buried in Oblivion, that where it was intended and ſworn to be an Everlaſting Covenant never to be forgotten, it ſhall be never more remembred, the one ſhall be cried up, and the other drowned in the noiſe thereof. And thus the new Subſcription now urged, (although in a different way) ſhall prove equivalent to the rendring of the Covenant, or what of that kind hath before bin eſſayed; like as

2. ‘If We ſhould now enter upon this new Subſcription, We would ‘think our ſelves guilty of mocking God, and taking his Name in ‘vain; for the Tears that began to be poured forth at the ſolemnizing ‘of the Covenant, are not yet dried up and wiped away; and the joiful noiſe which then began to ſound, hath not yet ceaſed; and there ‘can be no new neceſſity from Us, and upon our part, pretended for a ‘ground of urging this new Subſcription, at firſt intended to be an Abjuration of Popery upon Us, who are known to hate Popery with an ‘unfained hatred, and have all this Year by-gone, given large teſtimony of our Zeal againſt it. As We are not to multiply Miracles ‘on God's part, ſo ought We not to multiply ſolemn Oaths and Covenants upon our part; and thus to play with Oaths, as Children do ‘with their Toies, without neceſſity.

3. ‘Neither would We in giving way to this new Subſcription, ‘think our ſelves free of Perjury; for as We were driven by an undeclineable neceſſity to enter into a mutual Covenant, ſo are We ‘bound, not only by the Law of God and Nature, but by our ſolemn Oath and Subſcription, againſt all diviſive Motions, to promove and obſerve the ſame without Violation; and it is moſt manifeſt, that having already refuſed to render, alter, or deſtroy our Covenant, nothing can be more contrary and adverſe to our pious Intentions, and ſincere Reſolutions, than to conſent to ſuch a Subſcription and Oath, as both in the intention of the Urgers, and in the ‘nature and condition of the Matter urged, is the ready way to extinguiſh, and to drown in oblivion the Band of our Union and Conjunction, that they be no more remembred. In this caſe We ‘are called to lay ſeriouſly to our hearts; firſt, That We have ſworn ‘that We ſhall neither directly nor indirectly ſuffer our ſelves to be ‘divided and withdrawn from this bleſſed and loial Conjunction, ‘which conſiſteth not only in the General Confeſſion, but alſo in our ‘Explanation and Application thereof; but on the contrary, ſhall by ‘all lawful means labour to further and promove the ſame. 2ly, That ‘our Union and Conjunction may be obſerved without violation, ‘(and ſo without mutilation of our Application) we call the living ‘God to Witneſs, as We ſhall anſwer to Chriſt in the great Day, ‘&c.

4. ‘This new Subſcription, inſtead of performing our Vows, ‘would be a real Teſtimony and Confeſſion before the World, that ‘We have bin Tranſgreſſors in making raſh Vows; that We repent ‘our ſelves of former zeal and forwardneſs, againſt the Particulars expreſt firſt in our Supplications, Complaints, and Proteſtations; and ‘next abjured in our Covenant, that We in our judgment prefer ‘the General Confeſſion unto this, which neceſſarily was now made more ‘ſpecial; and that We are now under the fair pretext and honeſt cover of a New Oath, recanting and undoing that, which upon ſo ‘mature deliberation We have bin doing before. This beſides all ‘other Evils, were to make Way, and open a Door, to the re-entry ‘of the Particulars abjured, and to repent our ſelves of our chiefeſt ‘Conſolations, and to lye both againſt God and our own Souls.

5. ‘It hath bin often objected, That our Confeſſion of Faith, and ‘Covenant, was unlawful, becauſe it wanted the Warrants of publick

‘Authority; and it hath bin anſwered by Us, That We were not deſtitute of the Warrant Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, which authorized the former Covenant. And although We could have wiſhed that his Majeſty had added both his Subſcription and Authority unto it, yet the leſs conſtraint from Authority, and the more liberty, the leſs hypocriſy and more ſincerity hath appeared. But by this new Subſcription urged by Authority, We both condemn our former Subſcription as unlawful, becauſe alleged to be done without Authority; and pre-condemn alſo the like laudable courſe in the like neceſſity to be taken by Poſterity.

6. ‘What is the uſe of Merch-ſtones upon Borders of Lands; the like uſe hath Confeſſions of Faith in the Kirk, to diſterminate and divide betwixt Truth and Error, and the renewing and applying of Confeſſions of Faith to the preſent Errors and Corruptions, are not unlike riding of Merches; and therefore to content our ſelves with the general, and to return to it, from the particular Application of the Confeſſion neceſſarily made upon the invaſion or creeping in of Errors within the borders of the Kirk, if it be not a removing of the Merch-ſtone from the own place, it is at leaſt the hiding of the Merch in the Ground that it be not ſeen, which at this time were very unſeaſonable for two Cauſes; one is, becauſe Popery is ſo pregnant and powerful in this Land, as We have learned of late. The other, becauſe the Papiſts, who upon the urging of the Service-Book and Canons, have preſumed of our return to Rome, will upon this our Subſcription return unto their ancient and wonted preſumption, none of us will deny; but the large Confeſſion of Faith regiſtred in the Acts of Parliament, doth by conſequence contain this ſhort Confeſſion and Abjuration: Yet were it not ſufficient againſt Popery to ſubſcribe the one with the other: How then ſhall we think that the more general Confeſſion and Abjuration at this time, when the urging of ſuch Popiſh Books have extorted from Us ſo neceſſary an Application, and doth ſtill call for a Teſtimony, to be compleat enough without it?

7. ‘The Papiſts ſhall hereby be occaſioned to renew their old Objections againſt Us, Annuas & menſtruas fides de Deo decernunt, That our Faith changeth with the Moon, or once in the Year. Other Reformed Kirks might juſtly wonder at our Inconſtancy in changing our Confeſſion without any real neceſſity, and that in one and the ſame Year it cometh forth larger and more particular, then ſhorter and more general: and our Adverſaries will not fail to traduce us, as troublers of the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom without any neceſſary Cauſe.

8. ‘It will likewiſe prove a Confirmation of their Error, who think they may both ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, and receive the Service-Book and Canons; which is not only a direct ſcandalizing of them, but alſo a ready way to put a Weapon in their hands againſt our ſelves, who maintain and profeſs, that theſe and ſuch other Evils are abjured in the Confeſſion of Faith.

9. ‘If We ſhould now ſwear this Confeſſion, We ſhould be obliged by our Oath to maintain Perth-Articles, which are the Innovations already introduced in the Worſhip of God, and to maintain Epiſcopacy, with the Civil Places, and Power of Kirkmen, becauſe We are bound to ſwear this Confeſſion by virtue of, and conform unto the ‘King's Command, ſigned by his Sacred Majeſty, of the date September 9. 1638. (theſe are the very words ſubjoined to the Confeſſion and Band, and prefixed to the Subſcriptions). And it cannot be denied, but any Oath miniſtred unto Us, muſt either be refuſed, or elſe taken, according to the known Mind, profeſſed Intention, and expreſs Command of Authority urging the ſame. And it is moſt manifeſt, that his Majeſty's Mind, Intention, and Commandment, is no other, but that the Confeſſion be ſworn for the maintenance of Religion, as it is already or preſently profeſſed, (theſe two being coincident, altogether one and the ſame, not only in our common form of ſpeaking, but in all his Majeſty's Proclamations) and thus as it includeth, and containeth within the compaſs thereof, the foreſaid Novations and Epiſcopacy, which under that Name were alſo ratified, in the firſt Parliament holden by his Majeſty. And where it may be objected, That the Counſellors have ſubſcribed the Confeſſion of Faith, as it was profeſſed 1580, and will not urge the Subſcription in another ſenſe upon the Subjects. We anſwer, firſt, The Act of Council containing that Declaration, is not as yet publiſhed by Proclamation. Secondly, If it were ſo publiſhed, it behoved of neceſſity, either to be repugnant to his Majeſty's declared Judgment and Command, which is more than to ſwear without Warrant from Authority, (a fault, although unjuſtly often objected unto Us); or elſe We muſt affirm the Religion in the Year 1580, and at this time, to be altogether one and the ſame; and thus muſt acknowledg, that there is no Novation of Religion: which were a formal contradiction to that We have ſworn. Thirdly, By approving the Proclamation anent the Oath to be adminiſtred to Miniſters, according to the Act of Parliament, which is to ſwear ſimple obedience to the Dioceſan Biſhop, and by warning all Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops to be preſent, as having Voice and Place in the Aſſembly, they ſeem to determin, that in their Judgment, The Confeſſion of Faith, as it was profeſſed 1580, doth conſiſt with Epiſcopacy; whereas We by our Oath have referred the trial of this, or any other Queſtion of that kind, to the General Aſſembly and Parliament.

10. ‘This Subſcription and Oath, in the Mind and Intention of Authority, and conſequently in Our ſwearing thereof, may conſiſt with the Corruptions of the Service-Book and Canons, which We have abjured as other heads of Popery. For this preſent Proclamation, and his Majeſty's former Proclamations at Linlithgow, Striveling, Edinburgh; The Lords of the Privy-Council, in their approbation of the ſame, and the Prelates and Doctors who ſtand for the Service-Book and Canons, do all ſpeak plainly, or impart ſo much, That theſe Books are not repugnant to the Confeſſion of Faith, and that the introducing of them is no Novation of Religion or Law; and therefore We muſt either refuſe to ſubſcribe now, or We muſt confeſs contrary to our late Oath, and to a clear Truth, That the Service-Book and Canons are no Innovations in Religion. And though the preſent Books be diſcharged by Proclamation, yet if We ſhall, by any Deed of our own, teſtify, that they may conſiſt with our Confeſſion of Faith, within a very ſhort time, either the ſame Books, or ſome other like unto them, with ſome ſmall change, may be obtruded upon Us, who by our abjuration (if We adhere unto it) have freed both our ſelves, and the Poſterity of all ſuch Corruptions, and have An. 1638. 'laid a fair Foundation for the pure Worſhip of God in a time coming.

11. 'Although there be indeed no ſubſtantial difference between that which We have ſubſcribed, and the Confeſſion ſubſcribed 1580, more than there is between that which is hid, and that which is revealed; a March-ſtone hid in the Ground, and uncovered; betwixt the Hand cloſed and open, betwixt a Sword ſheathed and drawn; or betwixt the large Confeſſion, regiſtrate in the Acts of Parliament, and the ſhort Confeſſion, or (if We may with reverence aſcend yet higher) between the Old Teſtament and the New; yet as to ſheath our Sword when it ſhould be drawn, were imprudence; or at the commandment of Princes, profeſſedly Popiſh in their Dominions, after the Subjects had ſubſcribed both Confeſſions, to ſubſcribe the firſt without the ſecond; or at the Will of a Jewiſh Magiſtrate, openly denying the New Teſtament, to ſubſcribe the Old alone, after that they have ſubſcribed both, were horrible impiety againſt God, and treachery againſt the Truth; Right ſo for Us to ſubſcribe the former apart, as it is now urged and framed, without the Explanation and Application thereof at this time, when Ours is rejected, and the Subſcribers of the former refuſe to ſubſcribe Ours, as containing ſomething ſubſtantially different, and urge the former upon us, as different from Ours, and not expreſſing the ſpecial abjuration of the Evils ſupplicated againſt by Us, were nothing elſe but to deny and part from Our former Subſcription, if not formally, yet interpretatively. Old Eleazer, who would not ſeem to eat forbidden Meat, and the Confeſſors and Martyrs of old, who would not ſeem, by delivering ſome of their Papers, to render the Bible, or to deny the Truth, may teach Us our Duty in this Caſe, although our Lives were in hazard for refuſing this Subſcription. And who knoweth but the Lord may be calling his People now, who have proceeded ſo far in profeſſing his Truth at this time, to ſuch Trials and Confeſſions as his faithful Witneſſes have given of old; that in this Point alſo Our doing may be a Document, both to the ſucceeding Ages, and to other Kirks, to whom for the preſent We are made a Spectacle.

12. 'If any be ſo forgetful of his Oath (which God forbid) as to ſubſcribe this Confeſſion as it is now urged, he doth according to the Proclamation, acquieſce in this Declaration of his Majeſty's Will, and doth accept of ſuch a Pardon as hath need to be ratified in Parliament, and thus doth turn our Glory unto ſhame, by confeſſing our guiltineſs, where God from Heaven hath made Us guiltleſs, and by the fire of his Spirit from Heaven, hath accepted of our Service, and doth depart from the Commandment of God, the practice of the Godly in former Times, and the worthy and laudable example of our Worthy and Religious Progenitors; in obedience whereof, and conform to which, We made profeſſion to ſubſcribe; for there is no particular Act required of Us, to whom the Pardon is preſented in this Proclamation, but this new ſubſcription allanerly.

13. 'The General Band now urged to be ſubſcribed, as it containeth many Clauſes not ſo fitting the preſent time as that wherein it was ſubſcribed, ſo is it deficient in a Point at this time moſt neceſſary, of the reformation of our Lives, that We ſhall, anſwerably to our Profeſſion, be Examples to others, of all Godlineſs, Soberneſs, and Righteouſneſs, and of every Duty We owe to God and Man, without which We cannot now ſubſcribe to this Confeſſion, leſt We looſe the Bands to Wickedneſs, ſeem to repent of our former Reſolutions and Promiſes, and chuſe to have our portion with Hypocrites; profeſſing and ſwearing, That We know God, but in our Works denying him, being abominable, diſobedient, and unto every good Work reprobate.

14. 'Since the Narrative of the General Band is now changed, and ſome Lines, expreſſing at length the Papiſts and their Adherents, to be the Party from whom the danger to Religion, and the King's Majeſty, was threatned, are left out, and no deſignation made of the Party from whom the danger is now threatned, We are made either to think, that our Subſcription at this time is unneceſſary, or to ſuſpect that We who have ſupplicated and entred into Covenant, are underſtood to be the Party; eſpecially ſince the Lords of Council have, in the Act Septemb. 22. ratifying the Proclamation, found themſelves bound to uſe their beſt endeavours, That all his Majeſty's good Subjects may reſt ſatisfied with his Majeſty's Declaration; ſince alſo We have bin (although undeſervedly) challenged of Diſorders, Diſtractions, and Dangers to Religion, and his Majeſty's Authority; and ſince in the foreſaid Act, and in the Miſſive directed to his Majeſty, the Lords of the Council offer their Lives and Fortunes to his Majeſty, in repreſſing all ſuch as ſhall hereafter pleaſe to diſturb the Peace of this Kirk and Kingdom; which being expreſſed in a generality, is by many applyed to Us, and interpreted of our adhering to our Covenant. We ſhould therefore, by our ſubſcription of the Covenant, as it is now conceived, both do directly againſt our own Minds, in condemning our Selves, wherein We are Innocent, and ſhould conſent to our own hurt, to the ſuppreſſing of the Cauſe which We maintain, and to the repreſſing mutually one of us of another, directly contrary to our former ſolemn Oath and Subſcription.

15. 'The ſubſcribing of this Confeſſion by the Lords of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, who by their Place and high Employment, are publick Peacemakers; and by others who have not ſubſcribed the late Confeſſion, will make the Breach wider, and the lamentable Diviſion of this Kirk more deſperate than ever before; ſome having ſworn to labour, by all lawful means, to recover the former Liberty and Purity of Religion; and others maintaining that for Purity which is already eſtabliſhed; ſome believing and profeſſing, that the Evils ſupplicated againſt, are abjured in that Confeſſion of Faith; and others maintaining the Confeſſion of Faith: And theſe Corruptions (although for the preſent diſcharged by Authority) not to be inconſiſtent.

'And beſides this, many Diviſions and Subdiviſions will enſue, to the doleful renting of the Kirk and Kingdom, making way for the Wrath and many Judgments of God often threatned by his faithful Servants, which all the Godly ought to labour by all means to prevent.

'We repreſent alſo to the Honourable Lords of Privy-Council to be conſidered, that the Doctrine, Diſcipline, and Uſe of Sacraments are ſworn, and the contrary abjured, according to the Word of God, and the Meaning of the Kirk of Scotland in the Books of

'Diſcipline,

14 Caroli.

‘Diſcipline, and Acts of Aſſembly; and that in the Oath there is no place left to the generality of any Man's Conception of the true Faith and Religion, nor to any private Interpretation, or mental reſervation.

After this was proclaimed, the Confeſſion of Faith, as it was at firſt commanded by his Majeſty's Royal Father; as alſo the Band annexed, for defence of the Religion now eſtabliſhed, and of the King's Perſon and Authority, with the Subſcriptions of the Commiſſioner and Council to them both, do here follow.

*King's large Declaration, pag. 55.

As to the Confeſſion of Faith of the Kirk of Scotland, now ordered to be taken by his Majeſty, it is the ſame * verbatim with the Confeſſion of Faith mentioned before the Covenant ſubſcribed unto by the Covenanters; ſo the difference only is in the Band annexed to his Majeſty's Confeſſion of Faith ordered to be ſubſcribed unto, and here followeth:

* Memoires Hamilton, pag. 77.

‘WE underſubſcribing, and conſidering the ſtrait Link and Conjunction betwixt the True and Chriſtian Religion preſently *profeſt within this Realm, and our Sovereign Lord's eſtate and ſtanding, having both the ſelf-ſame Friends and common Enemies, and ſubject to the like event of ſtanding and decay; weighing therewithal the imminent Danger threatned to the ſaid Religion, the preſervation whereof being dearer to us than whatſoever we have deareſt to us in this Life. And finding in his Majeſty a moſt Honourable and Chriſtian Reſolution, to maniſeſt Himſelf to the World that Zealous and Religious Prince which he hath hitherto profeſſed; and to imploy the Means and Power which God hath put into his hands, aſwell to the withſtanding of whatſoever Foreign Force ſhall mean within this Land, for alteration of the ſaid Religion, or endangering of the preſent State, as to the repreſſing of the inward Enemies thereto amongſt our ſelves, linked with them in the ſaid Anti-chriſtian League and Confederecy; Have therefore in the preſence of Almighty God, and with his Majeſty's authorizing and allowance, faithfully promiſed, and ſolemnly ſworn, like as hereby we faithfully and ſolemnly ſwear, and promiſe, to take a true effauld, and plain part, with his Majeſty amongſt our ſelves, for diverting of the appearing danger threatned to the ſaid Religion, and his Majeſty's State and Standing, depending thereupon, by whatſoever Forraign or Inteſtine Plots or Preparations. And to that effect, faithfully, and that upon our Truth and Honour, bind and oblige us to others, to convene and aſſemble our ſelves publickly, with our Friends in Arms, or in quiet manner, at ſuch times and places as we ſhall be required by his Ma^{ties} Proclamation, or by Writ, or Meſſage directed to Us from his Majeſty; or any having Power from, and being convened and aſſembled, to join and concur with the whole Forces of our Friends and Followers, againſt whatſoever Foreign or Inteſtine Powers, or Papiſts and their Partakers, ſhall arrive or riſe within this Iſland, or any part thereof, ready to defend or purſue, as We ſhall be authorized or conducted by his Majeſty, or any others having his Power and Commiſſion, to join and hold hand to the execution of whatſoever Mean or Order ſhall be thought meet by his Majeſty and his Council, for ſuppreſſing the Papiſts, promotion of the true Religion, and 'ſetling of his Highneſs Eſtate, and Obedience in all the Countries and 'Corners of this Realm, to expoſe and hazard our Lives, Lands and 'Goods, and whatſoever Means God hath lent Us, in the defence of 'the ſaid True and Chriſtian Religion, and his Majeſty's Perſon and 'Eſtate, againſt whatſoever Jeſuits and Seminary or Maſs-Prieſts, condemned Enemies to God and his Majeſty, to their utter Wreck and 'Extermination, according to the Power granted unto Us by his Majeſty's Proclamation and Acts of Parliament, To try, ſearch, and ſeek 'out all Excommunicates, Practiſers, and other Papiſts whatſoever, 'within our Bounds and Shire where we keep reſidence, and dilate 'them to his Highneſs and his Privy-Council, and conform us to ſuch 'Directions as from time to time We ſhall receive from his Majeſty and 'his Council in their behalfs. And eſpecially ſo many of Us as preſently are, or hereafter ſhall be appointed Commiſſioners in every 'Shire, ſhall follow, purſue, and travel by all means poſſible, to take 'and apprehend all ſuch Papiſts, Apoſtates and Excommunicates, as 'We ſhall receive in Writ from his Majeſty. And We the Remanent 'within that Shire, ſhall concur and aſſiſt with the ſaid Commiſſioners, 'with our whole Friends and Forces to that effect, without reſpect of 'any perſon whatſoever, and generally to aſſiſt in the mean time, and 'defend every one of us another, in all and whatſoever Quarrels, Actions, Debates moved, or to be moved againſt us, or any of us upon 'Action of the preſent Band, or other Cauſes depending thereupon; 'and effauldly join in defence and purſuit againſt whatſoever ſhall offer or intend any injury or revenge againſt them, or any one of them, 'for the premiſſes, making his cauſe and part that is purſued, all our 'parts; notwithſtanding whatſoever privy grudg or diſpleaſure ſtanding betwixt any of us, which ſhall be no impediment or hindrance to 'our ſaid Effauld joyning in the ſaid Common Cauſe; but to lie over, 'and be misknown, till they be orderly removed and taken away by 'the Order under-ſpecified. To the which time, We for the better 'furtherance of the ſaid Cauſe and Service, have aſſured, and by the 'tenor hereof, every one of us taking the burden upon us for our 'ſelves, and all that We may let, aſſure each other to be unhurt, unharmed, or any ways to be invaded by us, or any our foreſaids for old 'Feid or new, otherwiſe than by ordinary courſe of Law and Juſtice: 'Neither ſhall We, nor any of our foreſaids, make any Provocation 'or Tumult, Trouble, or Diſpleaſure to others in any ſort, as We 'ſhall anſwer to God, and upon our Honours and Fidelity to his Majeſty.

'And for our further and more hearty Union in this Service, We are 'content and conſent, That all whatſoever our Feids and Variances 'fallen, or that may fall out, betwixt us, be within fourty days after 'the date hereof amicably referred and ſubmitted to ſeven or five indifferent Friends, choſen by his Majeſty, of our whole number, and 'by their Moderation and Arbitrement compounded and taken away. 'And finally, that We ſhall neither directly nor indirectly ſeparate nor 'withdraw us from the Union and Fellowſhip of the Remanent by 'whatſoever ſuggeſtion or private advice, or by whatſoever incident 'regard or ſtay ſuch reſolution as by common deliberation ſhall be taken in the Premiſſes, as We ſhall anſwer to God upon our Conſciences, and to the World upon our Truth and Honour, under the pain 'to be eſteemed Traitors to God and His Majeſty, and to have loſt all

Honour,

An. 1638.

‘Honour, Credit, and Eſtimation, in time coming. In Witneſs where-‘of, by his Majeſty's ſpecial Command, Allowance, and Protection ‘promiſed to us therein, We have ſubſcribed theſe Preſents with our ‘Hands at   1589.

The King's Commiſſioner, the day after the time prefixed for his return to Scotland, viz. on the 23 day of September, 1638. aſſembled the Council at the Palace at Hally-Rood-Houſe; and firſt delivered there to them this enſuing Letter from his Majeſty, dated Septemb. 9.

The King's Letter to be regiſtred. Septemb. 22.

The which day James Marqueſs Hamilton, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, produced and exhibited before the Lords of the Privy-Council, the two Miſſives under-written, ſigned by the King's Majeſty, and directed to the ſaid Lords; which being read, heard, and conſidered by the ſaid Lords, they have ordained, and ordains the ſame to be inſerted and regiſtred in the Books of Secret Council, therein to remain, in futuram rei memoriam, whereof the Tenour followeth.

Sept. 9. 1638.

Right Truſty, &c. Being certainly informed, that the Diſtractions which have happened of late (both in Church and Common-Wealth) in this our Ancient Kingdom of Scotland, have much troubled the Minds of many of our Good and Loyal Subjects; and that theſe Diſtractions have bin occaſioned upon Jealouſies and Fears of Innovation of Religion and Laws, as tending to the Introduction of Popery; and not without ſome ſuſpicion, as if We our Selves were inclined that way. Upon occaſion whereof, many of our Subjects have of late ſubſcribed a Band or Covenant for preſerving the true Religion and Laws already eſtabliſhed, and for defending the King's Perſon, and each others in defence thereof. But the ſame not being warranted by Roial Authority, as that which was in our dear Father's Time, muſt needs of it ſelf, be ineffectual and much prejudicial to the Ancient Form and Cuſtom of Government kept within that our Kingdom of Scotland: Wherefore We, out of our inborn love to our Native Country, and for obviating theſe conceived Fears, and ſatisfying of you, and all our Loving People, have thought good to ordain the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band thereunto ſubjoined, of the Date at Edinburgh, Jan. 28. 1580. and ſigned by our Roial Father, to be renewed; and to that effect have given order to our Commiſſioner, with advice of our Council, to ſet down and ſettle ſome ſolid courſe, whereby the ſame may be ſubſcribed by our Council, Judges, Magiſtrates of Burroughs, and all our other People of that Kingdom. And for further clearing of our Self, We declare, That as We are, and ever have bin ſatisfied in our Judgment and Conſcience, for the Reformed Religion now eſtabliſhed, and againſt the Roman, So We purpoſe by God's Grace both to live and die in the practice of it, and to preſerve and maintain the ſame in full ſtrength and integrity, according to the Laws of that our Ancient Kingdom. What We have thought further fitting to be done at this time concerning the Particulars contained in our Subjects Petitions, you ſhall receive our full Pleaſure therein from our Commiſſioner; and that this our Declaration, containing our Self, and our pious Intention for ſetling the Reformed Religion within that our Kingdom, may appear to Poſterity, Our pleaſure is, That theſe Preſents be regiſtred in the Books of Council.

Oatlands, Sept. 9. 1638.

After this the Marqueſs, and the Lords of Secret Council, do ſwear and ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, in manner following, dated Sept. 9.

WE James Marqueſs of Hamilton, Earl of Arran and Cambridg, Lord Evon and Evondail, his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner; and Lords of his Majeſty's Privy-Council under-ſubſcribing, by virtue, and conform to a Warrant and Command ſigned by his Sacred Majeſty, of the date of 9 Sept. 1638. and regiſtred in the Books of Council, upon the 22 day of Sept. the ſaid month, ſwear, and with our Hearts, and humble Affections to God, Truth, and to his Sacred Majeſty, ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, of and according to the Date and Tenour above-ſpecified; and alſo renew, ſwear, and ſubſcribe the aforeſaid General Band of the Tenour above-written, for preſervation of True Religion, and maintenance of his Sacred Majeſty's Authority, according to the Tenour thereof, and ſiclike, as ample as the ſame was conceived in favours of his Majeſty's umwhile bleſſed Father of eternal Memory, by the ſaid Band. In Witneſs whereof, We have ſubſcribed theſe Preſents with our Hands, at Hally-Rood-Houſe, Septemb. 22. 1638. Sic ſubſcribitur.

HAMILTON,

Traquair, Roxborough, Marſheal, Marre, Murray, Linlithgow, Perth, Wigton, Kinghorne, Tullibardin, Haddingtoun, Annandail, Lauderdail, Kinnowl, Dumfrees, Southeſk, Belheaven, Angus, Lorn, Elphinſtoun, Napier, Dalyell, Amont, John Hay, Sir Tho. Hope, Sir Will. Elphingſton, Ja. Carmichael, J. Hamilton, Blackhall.

Likewiſe the Marqueſs on the 22 of Septemb. did publiſh his Majeſty's Pleaſure, That a Free and General Aſſembly be indicted, kept, and holden at Glaſgow, the 21 of November next.

FOraſmuch as it hath pleaſed the King's Majeſty, out of his pious and religious Diſpoſition to the True Religion, and out of his Fatherly Care for removing of all Doubts, Fears, and Scruples, which may ariſe in the Minds of his Subjects, for preſervation of the purity thereof; and upon divers great and weighty conſiderations, importing the Glory of God, the Peace of the Kirk and Common-Wealth of this Kingdom, to appoint and give order, That a Free General Aſſembly be indicted, kept, and holden at the City of Glaſgow the 21 of November next. Therefore the Lords of the Privy-Council, Council, ordains Letters to be directed, charging Macers, and Officers of Arms, to paſs and make publication hereof, by open Proclamation at the Market-Croſs of Edinburgh, and the head Burroughs of this Kingdom, and other places needful; and to warn all and ſundry Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Commiſſioners of Kirks, & others having Place and Vote in the Aſſembly, to repair and addreſs to the ſaid City of Glaſgow, the ſaid one and twentieth day of November next to come, and to attend the ſaid Aſſembly during the time thereof, and aye and while the ſame be diſſolved. And to do and perform all which to their Charges in ſuch Caſes appertaineth, as they will anſwer the contrary at their higheſt peril.

Immediately after this, Proclamation was made for the Indiction of a Parliament to meet at Edinburgh the 15th of May.

FOraſmuch as it hath pleaſed the King, out of his pious and religious Diſpoſition to the True Religion, and out of his fatherly Care for removing all Doubts, Scruples, and Fears, which may ariſe in the Minds of his Subjects, for preſervation of the Purity thereof, and upon divers other great and weighty Cauſes, importing the Glory of God, the Peace of the Kirk, and Common-Wealth of this Kingdom, to appoint and give order, That the Soveraign and High Court of Parliament, ſhall be holden at the City of Edinburgh upon the fifteenth day of May next to come, with continuation of days. Therefore the Lords of Secret Council ordain Letters to be directed to Macers and Officers of Arms, charging them to paſs to the Market-Croſs of Edinburgh, and other places needful, and there by open Proclamation to make publication of the holding of the ſaid Parliament; and to warn all and ſundry Noblemen, Prelates, and Commiſſioners for the Barons, and Burroughs, and all others having Voice and Place in the ſaid Parliament, that they and every one of them, in their moſt decent and comely manner, make their Addreſs to the ſaid Parliament, await and attend thereat during the time thereof, and to diſcharge that Duty which is incumbent to them, and each one of them, as they will anſwer on the contrary at their higheſt peril.

And laſt of all was publiſhed and proclaimed, the Act of the Lords of the Council, requiring all the King's Subjects to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band annexed, as followeth.

September 24. 1638.

A Warrant ſigned by the King the 9th of September, ordaining the ſwearing of the Confeſſion.

THe which day a Noble Earl, James Marqueſs of Hamilton, Earl of Arran and Cambridg, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, having produced and exhibited before the Lords of the Secret Council, upon the twenty ſecond day of this inſtant, a Warrant ſigned by his Majeſty, of the date of the ninth of September inſtant; wherein among other of his Majeſty's Gracious and Roial Expreſſions for preſervation of the purity of Religion, and due obedience to his Majeſty's Authority in the maintenance thereof, his Majeſty did Will and Ordain, that the Lords themſelves ſhould ſwear the Confeſſion and General Band mentioned in his Majeſty's ſaid Warrant; and alſo ſhould take ſuch order, as all his Majeſty's Lieges may ſubſcribe the ſame. And the ſaid Lords of the Secret Council acknowledging his Majeſty's pious and gracious Diſpoſition and Affection to the purity of God's Truth, did, upon the two and twentieth of September inſtant, unanimouſly, with all humble, hearty, and ſincere Affection, ſwear and ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, dated the ſecond of March 1580, according as it was then profeſſed within this Kingdom; together with the foreſaid General Band, dated in Anno 1589. And now to that effect, that all his Majeſty's Lieges may give the like Obedience to his Majeſty's ſo pious a deſire; therefore the ſaid Lords have ordained, and ordains, that all his Majeſties Lieges, of whatſoever Eſtate, Degree, or Quality, Eccleſiaſtical or Civil, do ſwear and ſubſcribe the ſaid Confeſſion, dated the ſecond of March, 1580. And that according to the ſaid Date and Tenour thereof, and as it was then profeſt within this Kingdom, together with the ſaid General Band, dated in Anno 1589, as they will anſwer the contrary upon their Obedience; and ordains Officers at Arms to paſs to the Market-Croſs at Edinburgh, to make publication hereof, and at all other Places needful, wherethrough none can pretend ignorance of the ſame.

Sept. 22. 1638.

The Lords of Secret Council having read, and maturely conſidered his Majeſty's Letters, and particular Declaration of his Pleaſure anent the anulling of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion, diſcharging the preſſing of the practice of the five Articles; making all Perſons, Eccleſiaſtick or Civil, of what Title or Degree ſoever, liable to the Trial and Cenſure of Parliament, General Aſſembly, and other Judicatories competent, anent the not adminiſtring to Miniſters at their Entry any other Oath, than that which is contained in the Act of Parliament, anent the ſubſcribing and renewing the Confeſſion of Faith, ſubſcribed by his Majeſty's Father, of bleſſed Memory, and his Houſhold, in Anno 1580, and Band following thereupon, anent the indiction of a General Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow the 21 of November, 1638, and Parliament at Edinburgh the fifteenth day of May 1639, and anent his gracious Goodneſs in forgetting and forgiving all by-gons, and an indiction of a Faſt, for craving God's bleſſing to this Aſſembly; find themſelves ſo fully ſatisfied therewith, and the ſame to be ſatisfactory for removing all the Fears of the Subjects anent Innovation of Religion or Laws, that We hold our ſelves bound in Duty, not only to acquieſce therewith, as the beſt mean to ſecure both Religion and Laws, but alſo to uſe our beſt endeavours, that all his Majeſty's Good Subjects may likewiſe reſt ſatisfied therewith; and that they with Us, and We with them, may teſtify our thankfulneſs for ſo great a Grace and Goodneſs, with all the hearty expreſſions of Dutifulneſs and Loialty. And that our true ſenſe hereof may the more clearly appear to our Sacred Soveraign, We do by theſe humbly and heartily make offer of our Lives and Fortunes in defending and aſſiſting of his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon and Authority, in the maintenance

The Letter of the Secret Council, giving thanks to the King for his diſcharge of the Service-Book, &c.

Moſt Sacred Soveraign,

IF ever Faithful and Loyal Subjects had reaſon to acknowledg Extraordinary Favours ſhown to a Nation, and in a moſt ſubmiſſive and hearty manner, give real demonſtration of the Grace vouchſafed, then do We of your Majeſty's Council of this your ancient Kingdom unanimouſly profeſs, That ſuch Acts of Clemency vouchſafed Us, cannot proceed from any Prince, ſaving him who is the lively Image on Earth of the Great God, Author of all Goodneſs, for return of ſo tranſcendent Grace, fortified with the real Expreſſions of unparallel'd Piety, Roial inclination to Peace and univerſal Love; not only to thoſe of Our number, but likewiſe to all your Majeſty's Loial Subjects, We do all in one Voice, with all reſentment can be imagined, in all humility, render our moſt bounden Thanks, and offer in Teſtimony of our full ſatisfaction and acquieſcence herewith, to ſacrifice our Lives and Fortunes in ſeconding your Sacred Majeſty's Commandments, and repreſſing all ſuch as ſhall hereafter preſs to diſturb the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom. And for ſome ſmall ſignification of our alacrity and diligence in your Sacred Majeſty's Service, We have all, without the leaſt ſhadow of any ſcruple, ſubſcribed the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band, appointed to be received by all your Majeſty's Loial Subjects, ſince the Act paſſed in Council, with our other Proceedings, which We do moſt humbly preſent to your Roial view; and We beſeech your Majeſty to be pleaſed, to be perſuaded of the inviolable devotion of all her Subſcribers, who do all in humility pray for your Majeſty's happy and moſt flouriſhing Raign, by the Perſons ut ſupra.

The Letter of the Provoſt, Bailiffs, and the Council of Glaſgow, giving thanks to his Majeſty for the diſcharge of the Service-Book, &c.

Moſt Honourable, and our very good Lord,

HAving received a Letter directed from your Grace to Us, with this Bearer your Grace's Couſin; and having read the ſame, and heard and weighed his Majeſty's Gracious Proclamation, which was this day proclaimed within this City, to the great joy of all the Hearers, We cannot but praiſe God, who hath endued his Sacred Majeſty, our dread Soveraign, with ſuch Wiſdom, Piety, Clemency, and Fatherly Care of this Church and Kingdom, and pray God for a long and happy Raign to his Sacred Majeſty, and his higheſt Poſterity over Us and ſucceeding Generations, and ſhall ever endeavour to approve our ſelves his Majeſty's moſt

Loial Subjects, and wiſh from our Hearts, all Happineſs to your Grace, and Graces moſt Noble Family, for the well-wiſhing to this City, and eſpecially for the great pains taken by your Grace in ſo weighty Imploiment, hoping and praying to God, that the ſame may obtain the wiſhed for accompliſhment, and ſhall ever remain,

The Letter of the Miniſters to the ſame effect.

Moſt Honourable, and Our very Good Lord,

Septemb. 24.

Having received the Letter directed from your Grace, and having heard and conſidered his Majeſty's moſt Gracious Proclamation, publiſhed this day in this City, with joiful Acclamations univerſally of the Hearers, as We of the Miniſtry and Univerſity of Glaſgow, who were preſent, with great contentment and joy of Heart applauded thereto; and do praiſe God, who hath inſpired our Dread Soveraign with ſuch Wiſdom, Piety, Clemency, and Fatherly Care of this Church and Common-Wealth of this Kingdom, as is abundantly maniſeſted in the ſaid Proclamation; ſo We would gladly teſtify, by what means We can, our thankfulneſs to his Majeſty, our Crown of Rejoicing, and the Breath of our Noſtrils: Not omitting our bounden Duty to your Grace, whom God and his Majeſty hath appointed ſo fit and happy Inſtrument in this great Errand, for your ſingular Prudence, rare Piety and Zeal to God, your Prince, and Country, and incredible pains in this honourable and weighty Imploiment; which We pray God may ſtill proſper in your hands, until it be brought to a full and bleſſed concluſion, being willing for our part, to contribute what lieth in our poor power, by our earneſt Prayers, and beſt Endeavours.

An. 1638.

The Marqueſs promotes the Proclamation and Confeſſion of Faith.

The Marqueſs at this time writ to all the King's Friends throughout Scotland, to ſee his Majeſty's Proclamation publiſhed, and to get in as many Subſcriptions to the Confeſſion of Faith as was poſſible, and to have an eye to the Election of Commiſſioners to the Aſſembly, that they be well conſidered of in order to this Service. The Marqueſs did cheriſh Marqueſs Huntly, and the Doctors of Aberdeen, who were well-affected to his Majeſty; and the ſaid Doctors the only perſons then in Scotland fit to undertake the defence of Epiſcopacy.

The Covenanters ſtil oppoſe the Confeſſion of Faith.

Many did at firſt offer to ſigne the Confeſſion, which the Covenanters perceiving, they endeavoured to perſwade the People that all this was done only to avoid the preſent Storm, which would be no ſooner calm'd, but they might expect worſe uſage then ever, and with this they added a great many Reaſons to perſwade all that it was Perjury for ſuch as had taken the Covenant, to Sign the King's Confeſſion.

The Marqueſs conſults the Nullities of the Aſſembly.

The Marqueſs ſeeing how things were carried about Elections, begun to draw up the Nullities of the Aſſembly, ſending the particulars to the King as he had them, adviſing his Majeſty withal to go on more frankly with his Preparations, ſince he ſaw it impoſſible to prevent a Rupture at Glaſgow.

At this time the King's Declaration for ſubſcribing the Confeſſion of Faith was publiſhed throughout all the Shires in Scotland, in ſome it met with Proteſtations from the Tables.

And upon October 5th the Biſhops and Doctors of Aberdeen ſigned the Confeſſion of Faith with theſe Reſtrictions following.

‘First, We do heartily abhor and condemn all Errors truly Popiſh, or Repugnant to the holy Scripture, and conſequently to the Uniform Doctrine of the Reformed Kirks, and to our National Confeſſion, Regiſtred in Parliament, An. 1567.

‘2. We do no ways hereby abjure or condemn Epiſcopal Government, as it was in the days, and after the days of the Apoſtles in the Chriſtian Kirk for many hundred of years, and is now conform thereto reſtored in the Kirk of Scotland.

‘3. We do not hereby condemn nor abjure the five Articles of Perth, or any thing lawful of that ſort which ſhall be found by the Church conduceable at any time for good Policy and Order, or which is practiſed by any ſound reformed Kirk.

‘4. We ſtill hold to that Clauſe of our great National Confeſſion (Chap. 20. Art 21.) that the General Councils, and conſequently the National Kirk of Scotland, have no Power to make any perpetual Law, which God before hath not made.

‘5. By the adhering to the Diſcipline of the Reformed Kirk of Scotland, we mean not any immutability of that Presbyterial Government which was An. 1581, or of any humane Inſtitution: but we do hereby underſtand that the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction and Diſcipline of the Kirk of Scotland doth not depend on the Pope of Rome, or any other Forraign Power; and hereby we do confeſs our conſtant Obedience to the Kirk of Scotland in all her lawful Conſtitutions.

‘6. We do not preſume by this our Perſonal Oath, either to prejudge the liberty of the Kirk of Scotland, to change and reform this foreſaid ſhort Confeſſion in ſome Ambiguities and obſcure expreſſions thereof, whereupon ſome Men have builded inconvenient Interpretations and Doctrines, or to exime our ſelves from Obedience to the Kirk in that caſe.

'7. By this our perſonal Oath we do not take upon us to lay any further Bond upon our Poſterity, than the Word of God doth, recommending only our Example to them ſo far as they ſhall find it agreeable to God's Word.

'In this ſence as is ſaid, and no otherwiſe do we ſubſcribe the ſaid Confeſſion and the General Bond annexed thereunto at Aberdene, October 5th, 1638.

Signed,

Ad. Aberdonen.

The King againſt proroguing the Aſſembly.

The Marqueſs was preſſed by the Biſhops to prorogue the Aſſembly, with which he acquainted the King, who writ to the Marqueſs,

'That he ſhould receive a particular Anſwer by my Lord of Canterbury of all his Propoſitions touching the Aſſembly. As for the opinions of the Clergy to prorogue this Aſſembly, his Majeſty utterly diſliked them, for that it would more hurt his Reputation by not keeping it, than their mad Acts could prejudice his Service; wherefore he commanded the Marqueſs to hold the Day: But (as the Marqueſs writ) if he can break them by proving Nullities in their Proceedings, nothing better. Laſtly, concerning Aſſeſſors, his Majeſty likes their Names, and (as the Marqueſs writ) he muſt not ſuffer his Majeſty to loſe his Privilege.

The Covenanters move the Marqueſs for a Warrant to cite the Biſhops to appear; but he leaves them to the Law.

In the end of October the Earl of Rothes, with the other Covenanters, petitioned for a Warrant to cite the Biſhops to appear before the Aſſembly. The Marqueſs anſwered, the Law was open for citing all ſuch as were either within or without the Country; but for him to give Warrants for that Procedure, was without Precedent, and ſo could not be granted; for it was enough that he did not protect them againſt Trial. Whereupon the Covenanters addreſſed themſelves to the Preſbytery of Edinburgh, who gave Warrant accordingly for a Summons: but thoſe whoſe Judgments were for Epiſcopacy, ſaid it was a moſt ſcandalous Summons that ever was heard of in a Chriſtian Church, all the Biſhops being cited as guilty of Hereſy, Simony, Perjury, Inceſt, Adultery, Fornication, breach of Sabbath, &c. and they ordered this to be read in the College Church of Edinburgh after Communion, and ordered to be read in all Churches in Scotland, which was accordingly done. They alſo ſent Orders through all Scotland to ſearch into the Biſhops Converſations, that all their Eſcapes and Faults being gathered together, and Witneſſes cited to Glaſgow, they might find pretence of Juſtice againſt the Biſhops.

The Seſſion ſat down at Edinburgh.

Moſt of the Judges ſign the Confeſſion.

Upon the firſt of November, the Seſſion or Term ſat down at Edinburgh; and the Marqueſs having dealt with all the Lords of the Court before-hand, went thither to get them ſign the Confeſſion of Faith, and at length nine of fifteen ſigned it; two were abſent, and four refuſed, but thoſe who ſigned it, durſt hardly walk the Streets.

The Marqueſs having received his Inſtructions as to his deportment at the Aſſembly appointed to meet at Glaſgow; and the King having peruſed the Speech the Marqueſs was then to make, he began his Journey towards Glaſgow on the 16*th* of November, and required the King's Advocate to prepare himſelf there to defend Epiſcopacy to be according to the Laws of Scotland; but his Anſwer was, That it went againſt his Conſcience ſo to do, and that he judged Epiſcopacy both contrary to the Word of God, and to the Laws of this Church and Kingdom; So he prevailed with the Advocate not to go to Glaſgow.

On the 17*th* of November the Marqueſs arrived at Glaſgow in a quiet and peaceable manner, none of the Train carrying with him any prohibited Arms; there met him a Letter from the Biſhops of Roſs and Brechin, informing him that they had given Dr. Hamilton Directions and Deputations to act on their behalf, and that his Name is inſerted in the Procuratory, which is in the cloſe of the Declinator; and deſires the Marqueſs, That the Proteſtation that they have prepared and ſent, may be ſecretly kept, and ſeaſonably preſented, before either the Cauſe, or they that are Biſhops ſuffer wrong. There met him all the Privy-Council, except the Biſhops, according to a Letter which the King had writ to them, to aſſiſt him at the time of his being there, with their beſt Concurrence and Counſel.

We deſire here leave to break off as to Scotiſh Affairs, becauſe the Account which we give of the Proceedings of that Aſſembly, and the ſubſequent Paſſages afterwards, are of ſome length: and therefore to divert the Reader, we will return to Affairs in England; and firſt to mention the Trial of Claxton and Lilburn, which was omitted in our Collections in Auguſt laſt.

Ralph Claxton, Demandant, }
Richard Lilburn, Tenant, } Before Judg Barkley.

Durham ſſ. Auguſt 6.

THE Demandant, the firſt day of the Seſſion or Court of Pleas, the 6*th* of Auguſt, did appear about ten of the Clock in the Forenoon, by Richard Matthew his Attorney, and brought in his Champion George Cheney in Array, who caſt his Gantlet into the Court with five ſmall Pence in it.

The Tenant likewiſe appeared by William Sedgwick his Attorney, and brought in his Champion William Peverell in Array, who caſt his Gantlet into the Court with five ſmall Pence in it.

After ſome examination of the Proceedings in the Cauſe, the Parties and their Champions were adjourned till three of the Clock in the Afternoon of the ſame day.

At that hour the Demandant was called, and appeared by his Attorny with his Champion. So did the Tenant and his Champion.

Then after Diſcourſe had of it by the Judg, and ſome examination of the Champions, the Judg did adjourn them over till eight of the Clock on Tueſday the 7*th* Inſtant. At which time the Parties and their Champions appeared as before, and were adjourned till three of the Clock after Dinner.

At which hour the Parties and their Champions appeared, and were adjourned over till Wedneſday at eight of the Morning.

At which day and hour the Parties and their Champions appeared as before, and put in their Pledges (as at the Court holden the 7th of July) to appear at the next Court of Pleas to be holden the 15*th* of September next.

Memorandum; That the Champions were committed to the cuſtody of two Bailiffs, by direction of the Judg, and continued in their hands until eight of the Clock on Wedneſday the 8th of Auguſt, when they put in their Pledges to appear at the next Court.

The 15*th* of Auguſt 1638, I received this Copy from Mr. John Stephen.

John Morland.

Concerning Claxton and Lilburn their Trial by Battel.

HIS Majeſty this day ſitting in Council, was made acquainted, That there had bin ſeveral days appointed for determining by Battel the Queſtion of Right, which had long depended between Claxton Demandant, and Lilburn Tenant, for certain Lands in the County Palatine of Durham. And that by the late Appointment, the ſame was to be tried by the ſaid Parties Champions the 22 Decemb. next. It was by his Majeſty ordered, That the Judges of that Circuit, upon conference with their Brethren, ſhould be thereby prayed and required to take the ſame Caſe into due and ſerious conſideration; and if they could find any juſt way by Law how the ſaid Combat might be put off, and the Cauſe put into another way of Trial; for his Majeſty, out of his pious care of his Subjects, would have it ſo, rather than to admit of a Battel. But otherwiſe, ſince Lilburn had a Judgment upon a Demurrer again Claxton, and alſo Coſts from the Board for his Vexation, and ſince that Claxton had brought a new Action, upon which Lilburn had waged Battel, his Majeſty would not deny the Trial of Laws, if it could not be legally prevented.

Afterwards both Parties brought their Champions into the Court of Durham, having Sand-bags and Battoons, and ſo tendred themſelves in that fighting poſture: But the Court upon the reading the Record, found an Error in it, committed by a miſtake of the Clerk, (ſome thought wilfully done) whereupon the Court would not let them join Battel at that time.

Thus did the Court ſeveral times order to avoid Battel by deferring the Matter, though Champions on both ſides were ever preſent in Court at all Meetings to join Battel.

This proved an Omen to what the next Year produced, by a greater appearance of a Battel, when the King's Army was at the Camp at Berwick, and the Scots on the other ſide of Tweed, yet both Armies parted alſo without Battel.

This Richard Lilburn Tenant in this Cauſe, was Father to John Lilburn, who was Cenſured in Star-Chamber.

Here followeth the Opinion of the Judges in this Cauſe of Trial by a Battel, upon a Writ of Right.

An. 1638.

Claxton verſus Lilburn.

A Writ of Right in Durham.

Judges Opinions as to the Trial by Battel between Claxton and Lilburn.

‘THe Tenant waged Battel, which was accepted; and at the day to be performed, Berkley Juſtice there, examined the Champions of both Parties, whether they were not hired for Mony? And they confeſſed they were: Which Confeſſion he cauſed to be recorded, and gave further day to be adviſed. And by the King's direction, all the Juſtices were required to deliver their Opinions, whether this was cauſe to de-arraign the Battel by theſe Champions? And by Bramſtone Chief Juſtice, Davenport Chief Baron, Denham, Hutton, Jones, Cook, and other Juſtices, it was ſubſcribed, That this Exception coming after the Battel gaged, and Champions allowed, and Sureties given to perform it, ought not to be received.

Directions to the Lord Lieutenants concerning the Trained Bands.

‘THe uſual Directions of the Board heretofore given, and eſpecially of late Years, concerning the Trained Bands of this Kingdom, have bin ſo full and exact, as might make his Majeſty and the Board confident, both of the ſufficiency of your Arms, and of the skill and readineſs of the Men that are to uſe them. Nevertheleſs, leſt the aforeſaid Directions and Commands ſhould not have bin ſo effectually purſued as was required and expected, his Majeſty in the watchfulneſs of the defence of his Kingdom, and for the ſafety of his People in theſe times of Action, hath ſignified his expreſs Will and Pleaſure to be, That inſtantly, upon receipt hereof, you cauſe an exact View and Muſter to be taken and made of all the Arms and Trained Forces, both Horſe and Foot, within the County of under your Lieutenancy; and to ſee that the ſaid Arms be ſerviceable and compleat; And that by the Muſter-maſters, and other fit and experienced Officers, you cauſe all the Trained Souldiers of the aforeſaid County, to be forthwith trained, and perfectly inſtructed in their Arms, and the like courſe to be continued from time to time; and that the Commanders and Officers apply themſelves alſo to know and perform the Duties of their ſeveral Charges; And that you take eſpecial care that both Commanders, Officers, and Souldiers, be very able and ſufficient Men. That you take order, that all the Trained Bands be ſo in readineſs, as to be fit to repair to their Colours, or place of Randezvous, which ſhall be aſſigned them, upon any occaſion, with their Arms and Proviſions, upon a days warning. And that all the Able Men within that County, beſides thoſe of the Trained Bands, from the Age of ſixteen to threeſcore, be alſo liſted and inrolled, that upon any ſudden Occaſion, ſuch Levies may be made likewiſe of them as ſhall be required; and the Copy of the ſaid Liſt, or Inrolement, to be forthwith returned to the Board. That you deal ſeriouſly and effectually with the better ſort of Men, to provide themſelves with Arms for their particular uſe; to the end, that with the help of thoſe, and ſuch other Arms and Weapons as ſhall be found within the aforeſaid County, as many of the untrained Men as is poſſible, may (as there ſhall be occaſion and direrection from his Majeſty or the Board) be alſo furniſhed and exerciſed, ‘ciſed, and reduced into Bands under Captains and Officers, That your Lordſhip take eſpecial care, that the proportion of Powder, Match and Lead appointed for that County reſpectively, be forthwith provided and put in Magazins, to be in readineſs upon all occaſions of Service. That you cauſe the Beacons to be forthwith made up and repaired with proviſion of Wood, and other Materials requiſit to be in readineſs, to give Fire unto them, and to cauſe them to be diligently watched by diſcreet and ſufficient Men. That you appoint ſome able and meet Perſon to be Provoſt Marſhal within the aforeſaid County, (for the apprehending and puniſhing of ſuch vagrant and idle Perſons, as live not in any lawful Vocation, and in Times of Suſpicion or Trouble may by Tales and falſe Rumours diſtract the Peoples minds; or otherwiſe in fact to commit Inſolencies and Outrages. And to the end that we may be duly and ſpeedily informed of all ſuch things concerning this Service, and which are neceſſary for Us to underſtand for the advancement thereof, and the applying of fit Remedies where any Defects ſhall be found, We do pray and require your Lordſhip to give us an exact Account of the ſtate of the Forces of the aforeſaid County, and of the performance of theſe our Directions with all poſſible diligence and expedition. And ſo we bid, &c.

Poſtſcript.

‘Where your Lordſhip ſhall find it inconvenient, either in reſpect of the unſeaſonableneſs of the weather, or any other conſiderable circumſtance, to draw together from remote places, and to exerciſe the Trained Bands in compleat Bodies, We leave it to your diſcretion, (povided that the work be ſufficiently done) to take view of the Arms upon the place or places, and to exerciſe the Men apart, and in ſmaler Bodies within their ſeveral Diviſions.

Jan. 26. The Kings Letter, certifying his Reſolution of going in perſon into the North with an Army againſt the Scots, directed to moſt of the Nobility.

RIght Truſty and Right Welbeloved Couſin, We greet you well. The late Diſorders in Our Realm of Scotland, began upon pretence of Religion, but now appearing to have been raiſed by Factious ſpirits, and fomented by ſome few ill and traiterouſly affected particular Perſons, whoſe aim hath been by troubling the Peace of that our Kingdom, to work their own private ends, and indeed to ſhake off all Monarchial Government, though We have often aſſured them, that We reſolved to maintain conſtantly the Religion eſtabliſhed by the Laws of that Kingdom, is now growen to that height and dangerous conſequence, that under thoſe ſiniſter pretences, they have ſo far ſeduced many of our People there, as great and conſiderable Forces are raiſed and aſſembled in ſuch ſort, as we have reaſon to take into conſideration the Defence and Safety of this Realm of England; and therefore upon due and mature conſultation with the Lords of our Council, We have reſolved to repair in our Roial Perſon to the Northern parts of this our Realm, there (by the help of Almighty God, and the aſſiſtance of our good Subjects) to make reſiſtance againſt any Invaſion that may happen.

And to the end that this Expedition, may be as effectual as we deſign, to the Glory of God, the Honour and ſafety of Us, and of this our our ſaid Kingdom of England, We have directed that a conſiderable Army both of Horſe and Foot, ſhould be forthwith levied out of all the Shires to attend Us in this Action, wherein we nothing doubt, but the Affection, Fidelity, and Courage of our People ſhall well appear.

In the mean time, we have thought fit, hereby to give you notice of this our Reſolution, and of the ſtate of our Affairs, and withall hereby to require You to attend Our Royal Perſon and Standard at Our City of York, by the firſt day of April next enſuing, in ſuch Equipage, and ſuch Forces of Horſe, as your Birth, Honour, and your Intereſt in the publick Safety do oblige you unto, And as we do and have reaſon to expect from yon. And this our Letter ſhall be as ſufficient and as effectual a Warrant and Diſcharge unto you for the putting of your ſelf, and ſuch as ſhall attend you, into Arms, and Order as aforeſaid, as if you were authoriſed thereunto by our Great Seal of England. And we do require you to certifie Us under your hand within fifteen days next after the receit hereof, what Aſſiſtance we ſhall expect from you herein, and to direct the ſame to one of our Principal Secretaries of State. Mr. Secretary Windebanck.

This day was read at the Board (His Majeſty ſitting in Council) the Draught of the Writ hereafter mentioned, and by His Majeſty's expreſs Command, it was ordered, That Mr. Attorney-General ſhould be hereby required forthwith to ſend Writs accordingly to the Lord William Howard, the Lord Clifford, the Lord Wharton, the Lord Grey of Wark, Sir Richard Lumly Knight, Vicount Waterford in Ireland. Mr. Attorney is to take care not to fail to iſſue out theſe Writs.

By which Writs they were required to repair into thoſe Parts with their Families and Retinues, ſufficiently arm'd, for the ſafety and defence thereof, under the penalty of having their Lands, Goods and Chattels in thoſe Counties ſeiſed into his Majeſty's hands, by the Revenue whereof he will maintain others for the guarding of thoſe Parts in their default. See the Writs at large in the Appendix.

Writs ſent to the Mayors of Hull and Newcaſtle.

In like manner Writs were ſent to the Mayors of the Towns of Hull and Newcaſtle, for the fortifying of thoſe Towns at the charge of the Inhabitants, according to the practice of former times.

Voluntiers permitted to arm themſelvs.

Many old Souldiers which imbraced the War as their Profeſſion, many Voluntiers of the Gentry tendred their Service to the King; which being repreſented to the Privy-Council, It was reſolved that all Subjects who voluntarily deſired to arm themſelves either at home, or from abroad, ſhould for Themſelves and their Aſſociates therein, have all Liberty and Encouragement; as likewiſe for their Aſſembling, Exerciſing, and Diſciplining all Voluntiers that ſhall offer their Service in this kind; and that Licence in this behalf be given them under the hand of the Earl Marſhal of England, which ſhall be to them a ſufficient Warrant.

Rendezvous to be at Selby, April 1.

The Privy-Council ſent forth Orders to the Lords Lieutenants of the Counties, for the levying of Foot-men, to be conducted to the Town of Selby upon Owſe near York, there to be delivered to the Captains and Officers ready to receive them by the firſt of April next, the Counties being to defray the charge of Conduct, which ſhould be repaid out of the King's Exchequer.

——Alſo a certain number out of the Trained-Bands appointed to be ſelected, exerciſed, and kept in readineſs, were called for, whereof two parts were Muskets, and a third Pikes, to be conducted, as before expreſſed, to their place of Rendezvous, where they entred into the King's Pay.

Likewiſe certain Preſt-men ordered to be ſent into Holland, to ſupply the rooms of ſo many old Souldiers to be brought from thence, to be made inferiour Officers.

March 23. Lords Lieutenants, &c. to remain in their Country.

All Lords-Lieutenants and Deputy-Lieutenants were ordered by the Council to remain within the Limits of their Lieutenancies.

The Earl of Bridgwater was commanded to go into his Preſidency in Wales, and to give notice to all Governours of Iſlands and Forts, to repair to their Commands; or, in caſe they were otherwiſe imployed in his Majeſty's Service, to ſend able Deputies. And all Captains and Commanders of Forts and Caſtles were required to reſide in their reſpective Charges.

The Lord Deputy of Ireland his Letter to the King, dated Feb. 10. 1638. concerning Scotiſh Affairs.

The Lord Deputy of Ireland's Letter to the King.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

'HAving of late in a ſhort ſpace written ſundry Letters, I choſe hitherto to forbear anſwering thoſe of the 28th of December, leſt my Liberty might ſeem a violence to the modeſty and Reverence I ought and ſhall ever obſerve, ſo often as I have the Honour to appear before your Majeſty be it in Perſon or Writting.

'But now the Acknowlegements of your Princelely Aſpect toward your abſent Servant break forth from me.

‘First, In a moſt humble ſenſe of your gracious admitting me the Honour to perform unto the Queen a ſmall Service, in the Suit I laſt mentioned, and thereby expreſs my ambition to be commanded ſomething by her Majeſty.

‘And next, the comfort I have to find my ſelf under the protection, and ſhelter of your Majeſties moſt excellent Judgment and Juſtice, all along that ſtorm raiſed in my Country (when I leaſt looked for it) by the Earl of Holland, and others.

‘The Paſſages indeed I have underſtood from Mr. Raylton, for which I moſt humbly thank your Majeſty.

‘It ſeemeth the Earl of Holland now ſaith, That he never refuſed to be examined; excepting only againſt the looſeneſs of the Interrogatories. Sure his Lordſhip hath thought better of it of late; for, either I have bin ſtrangely miſinformed, or at firſt his Lordſhip inſiſted poſitively, That by his Priviledg of a Peer and Counſellor, he ought not to be examined at all, and laboured to procure an Order at the Council-Board it ſelf to ſettle it accordingly.

‘Then your Majeſty conceives, I ſhould have looked ſo into the Interrogatories, as might have rendred them without exception. I have bin heretofore thrice Defendent and twice Plantiff in that Court; and upon my Faith, Sir, never read over any Interrogatory in all my Life, this being the Work of the Sollicitor and Counſel, and not of the Client; and ſo having given Direction, nothing ſhould paſs of that kind, but under the Eye of your Majeſty's Attorney General, and Sollicitor; I held my ſelf by that means ſafer, and in a more perfect way, than any poor advice or ſkill of mine own could have ſet me, albeit I had bin preſent upon the place.

‘As for that which your Majeſty with ſo much tenderneſs above any merit, or conſequences of my poor Services, mentions in the latter part of this gracious Letter concerning Sec. Win. 182. I beſeech your Majeſty believe, that I have ſo intirely aſſigned my Will and Affections to your Pleaſure; am ſo perfectly delighted to follow and ſerve you your own way, how much ſoever my private Opinion might elſe lead me into your Paths; that there is neither Perſon, nor Thing, that I ſhall not readily and chearfully join hands withal, where your Majeſty is pleaſed once to ſignify it is fit for your Service to have it ſo, how much more than with this Lady, againſt whom I proteſt I never had the leaſt Exception for any private intereſt of my own.

‘And here having anſwered the former, I receive your Majeſty's other Letter of the 28*th* of January, this 5*th* of February.

‘By the Bleſſing of Almighty God, theſe five hundred Men, provided in all reſpects as becomes your Service, ſhall be at Carliſle by the firſt of April, according to your Majeſty's appointment, nothing but croſs Winds to hinder; for that favourable, I will have them all on Board, and moving thitherward by the 20*th* of the next month, provided of fifteen days Bread and Beef, for Cheeſe this Place affords none: But ſtill, under favour, me-thinks the Gariſon of Carliſle would not be leſs than 200 Horſe and 1000 Foot, and that of Berwick 400 Horſe and 2000 Foot.

‘I congratulate exceedingly the forwardneſs of your Engliſh Subjects, the readineſs of your Army, and your gracious Purpoſe of going in Perſon to York, as paſſing wiſe and noble, will give infi-

'nite chearfulneſs to your Army, countenance and advantage to all 'your Affairs; yet I truſt there is no thought of your going any 'further. It will be ſufficient the reſt under your Majeſty's Directions 'be managed by ſuch as have that Charge committed to them.

'The Seaſon of this Year is ſo paſt, as nothing can be done in pre'ſent, but againſt the next Winter. If I knew the Proportions, I 'conceive I might, at good Rates, victual Carliſle with Beef, Butter, 'Corn, or Bisket, and Herring, to be delivered at White-haven, and ſo 'carried thirty miles over Land to Carliſle; and after I underſtand 'your Pleaſure, ſhall attend that Service, as all other your Gracious 'Commands, with my uttermoſt care and pains.

'My Lord of Antrim doth not by one word make known his deſire 'to me for Arms, which is adviſedly done; his Lordſhip perceiving 'I am not ignorant of his great want of Mony; his credit to be ſo 'low, as not able to take up, at this very inſtant, in this Town poor 'three hundred pounds, therefore his great Undertakings are more like 'to be believed on abroad, then they would be nearer home. I ſhall 'be able to furniſh him with Arms, when the Supply comes We 'have ſent for into the Low-Countries, if it be your Pleaſure to have 'it ſo: But I crave to know who it is your Majeſty purpoſeth ſhall 'pay for them.

'Yet I might accuſe my ſelf, ſhould I not humbly certify your Ma'jeſty, I am altogether of opinion, his Lordſhip in ſo great a ſtreight 'of his own Fortune, is not a Perſon at all to trouble the Earl of Ar'gile now come back again into Cantire, or in preſent much conſide'rable to your Majeſty's Affairs; and confident I am this will appear 'moſt true, how great ſoever his deſires on that ſide are expreſſed, and 'I may believe them to be to ſerve the Crown.

'The Secrets your Majeſty gives me in charge, ſhall never be diſco'vered to any Creature; yet that I be not thought upon for other 'Mens faults, I ſend incloſed a paſſage that I my ſelf read in a Letter 'writ thence to Captain Biron. The Writer is one Mr. Daniel Neal, 'a very ſlight and buſy Perſon. His principal dependance on the 'Earl of Antrim; and if I be not miſtaken, very converſant at Arun'del-Houſe: Nevertheleſs my hands once freed of this Packet, I ſhall 'ſo colour the Matter, as to take away all thoughts of going to 'Carliſle.

'Mr. Raylton informs me, There are Summons gone out for all the 'Nobility to attend your Majeſty at York, Letters made ready for 'me among the reſt, which your Majeſty was pleaſed to order the 'ſtay of, for which I thus return my moſt humble Thanks.

'Were I not really and importunately fixed by my Emploiment, as 'a decent Complement at leaſt to the Peace and Safety of the Affairs 'on this ſide, I ſhould be moſt mightily out of countenance to be 'found in another place, than at your Majeſty's Feet, to receive and 'execute your Commands, to the utmoſt of my Power and Life.

'Yet, Sir, I am your moſt obliged Creature, why ſhould I be cared 'for, or conſidered, where your greateſt Intereſts are in queſtion? 'Hence it is, that I thought of ſending thither fifty of my Horſe-'Troop, but that they are not to be ſupplied again on this ſide, nor 'durſt I disfurniſh your Service of them here, and to furniſh ſo many 'there, my ſelf abſent, and in ſo ſhort a time, I am out of hope: 'yet have I thought of another Expedient, which perchance may ‘prove as much for your Service, as good in the Example, which I humbly crave may be accepted.

‘Therefore, if it ſhall not pleaſe God to put the Scotiſh Subjects into their right Wits again, that they do not humbly and repentantly conform to your Majeſty's Will: I ſhall give order that for this next Year, there be paid at York to Sir William Udall, your Treaſurer for the Wars, as my Rents come in, one thouſand Pounds at Midſummer, and one thouſand pound at Chriſtmaſs; and if this be not ſufficient, I do moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty command all I have there to the uttermoſt Farthing.

‘Nor, have I on this ſide more Friends than three, that have Lands there; and I am deſired, by the Maſter of the Rolls, and Sir George Radcliff, that 500 l. betwixt them may be accepted upon the ſame terms, and ſome days of paiment: And in like manner a young Captain of your Majeſty's, my Brother, that hath ſome Fortune by his Wife there, 100 l.

‘Our Sons are all Children; but if they were able to bear Arms, we ſhould ſend the young Whelps to be entred in your Majeſty's Militia, Judg it to be their greateſt honour it might be ſo; and for a Concluſion, ſo as it might be better for your Service, hang up the old Dogs.

‘Above all, I beſeech your Majeſty intend your Horſe, and make your ſelf as ſtrong in them as poſſibly can be effected in this ſhort time; For as it will be no great difficulty to your Majeſty to overtop your Rebels, and Maſter them in Horſe; ſo ſhall that Point gained, and fortified alone, ſecure your Kingdom of England from the prejudice it might otherwiſe ſuſtain, if they went forth to ſuch Inſolence, as to make an Offenſive War upon the Crown.

‘My next Work, I fear, will be to trouble your Majeſty with a Letter touching my own Particular. I beſeech you vouchſafe to read it; and after, rather than diſquiet your Majeſty, or your Affairs, burn it, and command Mr. Raylton to go on with the Examination, as it is already directed; only, Sir, there is a Credit, which among Men, I ought ſo far forth to care for, as it may enable me to fulfil your Commands with more Effect and Honour, which I truſt howſoever will plead my excuſe. The Great God of Battels long and long preſerve your Majeſty.

The Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury's Letter to the Clergy, to contribute freely to the War againſt the Scots.

Feb. 11. The A. Biſhop of Canterbury's Letter to the Clergy.

After my hearty Commendations, &c.

I Have received a Warrant from the Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, which requires me to write to all the Biſhops in my Province to call their Clergie together, and put them in mind of the great danger this Kingdom is in, by the traiterous Conſpiracies of ſome ill-affected in Scotland. Theſe Seditious Perſons have begun, and continued hitherto their foul Diſloialty under the pretence of Religion, which by factious Spirits in all times is made the Cloak to cover and hide, (if it might be) their Deſigns. But now it appears clearly to the State, that they daily ſtrengthen themſelves by Arms and Ammunition, and other Preparations for War. And though his Majeſty hath graciouſly condeſcended to more than they could juſtly ask in all things concerning their Religion and their Laws, yet they go on ſtill, and are ſatisfied with nothing but their rebellious Diſobedience, and have no leſs aim than to invade or annoy England. The Letters to the ſeveral Biſhops I have ſent, as I was commanded, and I doubt not but they and the Clergie in general, will give very freely towards this great and neceſſary Defence of the Kingdom. And becauſe this great and common Danger cannot be kept off, but by a common Defence; and for that the Reverend Judges, and others of the Common Law have bountifully expreſſed themſelves already; I am required to write to you alſo, that you calling to you the reſt of the Doctors of the Commons, propoſe to them now while moſt of them are together, this great and weighty Buſineſs belonging as much to their Defence as to other Mens; and let every Man ſet down what he will give to this Service: when this is done, I will acquaint his Majeſty with it, and yours and their forwardneſs herein. And it is expected that you haſten this with all convenient ſpeed. So to God's bleſſed Protection I leave you, and reſt,

POSTSCRIPT.

You muſt ſend to ſuch Chancellors and Officials as are not at the Commons, but at their ſeveral Reſidences; and if you give them a good example here, I doubt not but they will follow it.

You ſhall not need to call to Sir Henry Martin, for his Majeſty will ſend to him himſelf, and looks for a greater Sum than in an ordinary way.

The Scots underſtanding that the Parliament was to meet in England the 13*th* of April, diſperſed among the People of England, eſpecially in London, a Pamphlet containing a Scotiſh Declaration to ſatisfie England of the ſincerity of their Intentions and Actions, which was publiſhed by order of the General Aſſembly of Scotland, Entituled,

An Information to all good Chriſtians within the Kingdom of England, from the Noblemen, Barons, Barrows, Miniſters of the Kingdom of Scotland, for vindicating their Intentions and Actions from the unjuſt Calumnies of their Enemies, as followeth.

Feb. 4. 1638. but 'tis 1639 in Scotland.

'THe work of Reformation now renewed and far advanced in this Kingdom, hath in the whole progreſs met with all the oppoſitions which the ſubtil malice of Rome's Emiſſaries could plot: But God hitherto has diſappointed all their Intentions, and turned Achitophel's Wiſdom into folly. And now when they cannot beat down the Walls of Jeruſalem, they labour to undermine it with Calumnies, according to the damnable Maxim, Calumniare audacter, & ſemper aliquid herebit. And, like Tobias, Sanballat, and ſuch like, will not be wanting to oppoſe mightily the Building of Ezra and Nehemiah, by ſaying to the King, Why is the Rebellious City builded?

'The ſame ſteps are now traced by the Authors of Innovations in this Church, who taking the advantage of their opportunity (which We want, to our great regret) and being greatly aſſiſted and ſtirred up by ſome of their own Coat, who are pernitious and Popiſhly affected, do thereupon preſume to whiſper unto his Sacred Majeſty, and ſpread abroad in their Neighbour Kingdom of England moſt untrue and damnable Aſperſions, (over and above the Particulars laid to our charge in the Proclamation of the 18*th* of December, which are largely anſwered in our proteſtation lately publiſhed) venting with equal impudency and malice, that we do only pretend Religion, but do intend to ſhake off the moſt lawful yoak of Authority, by changing the form of Civil Government; that we intended invade our neighbour Kingdom of England, and enrich our ſelves with the ſpoils thereof; although our Conſciences bear us teſtimony againſt thoſe untruths, and make us think ſo charitably, that no Man underſtanding rightly Religion and Policy, will give belief unto theſe Aſperſions, forged againſt the Body of our Church and Kingdom: yet being certainly informed, that the Authors of our Innovations and the arch-enemies of Reformation, have laboured to poiſon his Majeſties ſacred Ears with thoſe Imputations, and have diſperſed the ſame with open mouth among the Subjects of England. We are forced to vindicate our innocency, and wipe away all impreſſions which thoſe Challenges might make in the behalf of any: Firſt, by our Supplication given in to the Lords of Secret Council 31*ſt* of January, and now by our Anſwer, and publick Declaration unto the World, whereby we take God to witneſs, That Religion is the only Subject, Conſcience the motive, and Reformation the aim of our Deſigns, for attaining whereof, we have never ſtrayed from the humble and loyal way of petitioning his Majeſty for a legal Redreſs. And do yet according to our bounden Duty, beg the conſummation of our happy beginnings by the holding of the Parliament for the Ratification of the Aſſembly indicted by his Royal Majeſty. And as We have often heretofore profeſſed in our Supplications, religiouſly ſworn in our ſolemn Covenant with God Almighty, and publickly declared before God and Men in all our Proteſtations made in the view of Heaven and Earth, That We had never the leaſt intention to caſt off our dutiful Obedience unto his Majeſty's moſt lawful Authority: So We do hereby renounce the

Aug. 6. 1639, the Aſſembly met at Edinburg.

‘ſame, and ſolemnly declare, That our loyal Breaſts have never harboured any thought againſt our gracious Sovereign his Perſon or Government, for whom We daily and earneſtly pray the King of Kings to grant a long and happy Reign over us; and when he ſhall be crowned with Immortality, that there never want one of his Seed rightly to rule us, and to ſit upon his Throne ſo long as the Sun and Moon endureth: For We acknowledge that he is the Lord's Vicegerent ſwaying the Septer of this Land, tranſmitted to him by the ſucceſſion of ſo many Royal Anceſſors, as no other King in the World can parallel the ſame, and no other Nation compare with us in the glory of Antiquity, under that lawful ſubjection to one Line of Native born Princes, which we will never deface by any unnatural and impious cogitations againſt the Lord's Anointed, but heartily wiſh that Shame and Confuſion may be printed upon the face of his Enemies, And that We may be happy in the occaſion to expoſe our Lives and Fortunes to the greateſt hazard, for maintenance of the Perſon and Authority of our dread Sovereign, and increaſe of his Honour. Let Mercy and Truth preſerve the King.

‘As for our Intention towards England, We atteſt the ever-living God, (who is conſcious of our moſt ſecret thoughts) that We never had any ſuch Deſign or motion to offend, or wrong in the ſmalleſt meaſure any other Nation, much leſs our Neighbour Kingdom, living in one Iſle, under one King, with as little controverſy, and with as much affection, as hath been betwixt two Nations once at variance, but now happily reconciled and tied together by the moſt ſtrict Bonds, which We deſire rather to encreaſe than diminiſh by any act of unjuſt Hoſtility. And albeit we are confident that the improbability of this Challenge will ſtop the way of all credit to it, yet to confound theſe Reporters in their malice, we will ſhortly relate our Regrets and Fears, our Deſires and Reſolutions with that freedom and ſincerity, which may evidence our brotherly reſpect to the Subjects of England, and controul the falſe Surmiſes of our intentions againſt them. We regret together with our dear Chriſtian Brethren of our neighbour Nation, that we ſhould have ſo evident and ſenſible experiences of the dangerous Plots ſet on foot, and entertained by the Church-Men of the greateſt power in England, for introducing Innovations in Religion, by corrupting the Doctrine, changing the Diſcipline, daily innovating the External Worſhip of God, Preaching publickly and maintaining points of Arminianſm and heads of Popery, defending and advancing Preachers and Profeſſors of that Judgment, and allowing Books ſtuffed with that Doctrine, Fining and Confining and Baniſhing all ſuch, as in Conſcience of their Duty to God labour to oppoſe the Doctrine, Diſcipline or Worſhip of the Church of Rome, by their incroaching and uſurping upon the King's Prerogative, tyrannizing over the Conſciences, Goods and Eſtates of Perſons of all qualities within that Kingdom: And not being content to keep within their own Precincts, did induce, aſſiſt, and encourage the pretended Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops of this Kingdom, to preſs not only a Conformity of this our Church, with that of England in matter of Ceremony, but alſo with the Church of Rome in the Points moſt ſubſtantially erroneous, as appeareth by the Book of Common-Prayer and Canons, found to be a maſs of Popiſh Superſtition, falſe Doctrine and Tyranny, which was

‘confeſſed to have been firſt plotted, then corrected and interlined in ‘England, and ſent down to their Aſſociats the pretended Archbiſhops
‘and Biſhops of this Kingdom, to be printed, and preſſed upon the whole
‘Church here without order or conſent, as the only Form of Divine
‘Worſhip and Government of the Church, to make us a leading Caſe
‘to England. And by their Letters to Stateſmen, Noblemen and Borows
‘(to further the advancement thereof) perſwaded his Gracious
‘Majeſty to declare theſe Books, which are full of Popiſh Superſtition,
‘to be free of it, and to be fit means of Edifying this Church,
‘and cauſed his Majeſty to prohibit the lawful Meetings and humble
‘Supplications of his Subjects under pain of Treaſon, and to eſteem of ‘his good Subjects as of Traitors and Rebels, for a diſcovering this ‘wicked Plot, and complaining thereof; And for their renewing of ‘their National Covenant with God, and their Allegiance to his Majeſty,
‘did threaten them by publick Proclamation with utter extermination
‘and ruin, and have by their Calumny moved his Majeſty to diſcharge
‘under the pain of Treaſon, the ſitting of our free General Aſſembly, ‘indicted by his Majeſty after ſo many Supplications, and to engage
‘his Royal Word of a Prince, to defend all diſobeyers of the Church,
‘to threaten and prepare for an inward War againſt this his moſt ancient ‘loyal native Kingdom, to diſtruct all our Supplications, Oaths and ‘Declarations ingenuouſly and humbly made, and thereby they have ‘endeavoured, ſo far as in them lies, to alienate his Majeſties heart from ‘his People, and eſtrange their due bound Affections from him if it were ‘poſſible. And in the end for the full accompliſhment of their wickedneſs
‘(as we are informed) have made his Majeſty follow the advice
‘and counſel of profeſſed Papiſts, and to intruſt them with the ‘chiefeſt Offices of the Armies and Arms now preparing, for the threatned
‘Invaſion of this Kingdom: and ſtill intend to raiſe Jealouſies
‘in the Body of the one Kingdom againſt the other, and ſo to commit
‘them together, which we beſeech God to prevent, and hope it
‘ſhall be above their Malice, the Lord opening the eyes of our Soveraign
‘and of our neighbour Nation, to diſcover that Treachery whereby
‘nothing is intended, but to join the two Kingdoms in bloudy War,
‘that ſo Reformed Religion may be extinguiſhed and Popery introduced,
‘which then may be eaſily effected when both ſides are weakned,
‘and ſo may be eaſily ſuppreſſed by the Papiſts, having all Power and ‘Offices in their hands, being already too ſtrong in England, and encouraged
‘with expectation of Foraign help, ready to accept that advantage,
‘ſo much prejudicial to his Majeſties Honour, Power and manifold
‘Declarations for the maintenance of the Reformed Religion, ‘whereof he is the Defender. We have alſo Reaſon to regret, that any ‘within the Kingdom ſhould give more credit to falſe Calumnies, cunningly ‘invented to foment their jealouſies, and make them prepare
‘for invading their Brethren, than to our ſolemn Proteſtations, Supplications, ‘Declarations and Covenant with God himſelf; yet we are fully ‘confident that ſuch are drawn thereunto, partly through the Information
‘of our Adverſaries, and particularly for lack of clear Information ‘concerning our moſt Loyal and Chriſtian Proceedings: and therefore ‘do moſt heartily wiſh, they may with Wiſdom and Charity ſuſpend
‘any further giving credit to things of that kind, till they may ‘have occaſion to receive full Information of the truth. And we regret ‘that any ſhould think the ſtanding of Epiſcopacy in the Church

'of Scotland juſt ground for Invading of, and making War againſt this 'Nation, and conſequently to raiſe up the Old National Bloodſhed 'and Quarrels, which are now happily changed unto a ſweet peaceable conjunction of Hearts and Affections, ſeeing Epiſcopy in this 'Church is contrary to our Ancient Reformation, Confeſſion of Faith, 'and Oath of this Church and Kingdom, whereby that Government 'was abjured, which cannot reaſonably offend any other State or 'Church, who may be ruled by their own Laws and Warrant. But 'as in every Matter which falleth in deliberation to be put in Execution, Juſtice ſhould be the Mover and Efficient, and Profit and 'Honour uſed to be the End: So eſpecially in this weighty Buſineſs 'it ſhould be well pondered, if this Act of Invading us by War, for 'keeping our Oath to God, and obeying the lawful Conſtitutions of 'our Church and Kingdom, be juſt upon the part of the Invader; or 'if the benefit of Reeſtabliſhing the Biſhops upon us, will recompence 'the loſs of ſo much Chriſtian Blood, and the hazards of Diſſention 'and War, whereof the Event dependeth upon the Lord of Hoſts. 'But it is obvious to every Man's Conſideration, That this War is by 'our Adverſaries intended for another end, and hath a more deep 'and dangerous reach, otherwiſe the Prelates (if either good Chriſtians or Patriots) would rather quit their Minion, Ambition, and 'worldly Pomp, than engage two Kingdoms with the hazard of true 'Religion.

'And that none may ſuſpect the ſincerity of our Intentions, the 'lawfulneſs of our Proceedings, or the truth of our Declarations 'or Accuſations againſt the Enemies of our Reformation and Peace, 'We are able, and wiſh to have occaſion to juſtify the ſame before 'the World: For unleſs we ſhould have cloſed our own Light, and 'reſiſted the known Will of God, acknowledged, ſubſcribed, and 'ſworn by his Majeſty's Father (of ever bleſſed Memory) to our 'Predeceſſors, in a ſolemn Covenant with God, and ſo often confirmed and ratified by Acts of this Church and Kingdom ſince the 'Reformation, we could not omit any thing which we have done. 'And albeit we be one Church and Kingdom, as free, ancient, and 'independent as any other in the World, yet for clearing of the 'Mind of our Neighbour Nation from all miſinformation and miſconſtruction of our Intentions and Proceedings, and to verify the lawfulneſs and abſolute neceſſity of our Actions and Acts of the late 'Aſſembly, We do aſſure our ſelves, that if the States of the Parliament of England were Convened, and the whole progreſs of this 'Buſineſs faithfully repreſented unto them, they would without doubt 'be ſo far from cenſuring or condemning what we do, that they 'would be moved to become Petitioners to his Sacred Majeſty on our 'behalf, and approve of the equity and loialty of all our Proceedings in this Cauſe. And therefore in the mean time we intreat, That 'no true Engliſh Heart entertain any Jealouſies of Us, who are confident of the innocency of our Proceedings and Intentions, and free 'hitherto of all Blemiſhes againſt our Soveraign and our Neighbour 'Nation, as we beg the occaſion of manifeſting the ſame to them and 'to all the World, as we have upon the knowledg of theſe miſ-reports 'of us, cleared our ſelves of any ſuch Intention by our great Oaths 'every one to other, at our moſt frequent Meetings.

‘The obtaining of this our ſo peaceable and juſt deſire, ſhall not only be comfortable to us their Chriſtian Brethren, ſerving as a further tie to unite our Affections in time to come, and to ſtir us up to pour out our hearty Prayers to God on their behalf; but without all queſtion, the Righteous Judg of all the World ſhall make you reap the Fruit thereof one day, and who knoweth how ſoon.

‘In the mean time our care ſhall be upon all occaſions, to make it appear clearly to all the World, how far it hath always bin (and by the Grace of God ever ſhall be) from our Intention firſt or laſt, to offer the leaſt Act of Hoſtility to our Neighbour Kingdom, excepting ſo far as we ſhall be neceſſitate in our own Defence. And though (as God forbid) we ſhould be forced thereunto, yet ſhall we remain unwilling to conceive things of that kind to flow from the Body of that Kingdom, with whom we intend no National Quarrel, neither mind to wrangle with them, except in the caſe of Invaſion from them, but rather that this Stir hath bin contrived and ſet forward by ſome ill-affected Perſons to both Kingdoms; with whom only our queſtion is, and to whom alone we may juſtly intend according to their deſert, as Men who are ſet to engage both Kingdoms in ſo bloody a War for their own baſe ends. And although a Party raiſed from among our ſelves, that are fomented and maintained from abroad, whence we find the Sinews of that Body within our ſelves to be derived and maintained which might juſtly ſtir us; yet the vanity and weakneſs of our Inteſtine Adverſaries, even in this caſe of Offence, is ſo far from making us take Fire, without manifeſt Hoſtility offered, or ingaging us in any violent courſe that may interrupt the Brotherly Love and Concord of theſe two Kingdoms, or blemiſh our holy Profeſſion in the leaſt degree, as we are confident no malicious miſreports of our common Adverſaries, will induce our dear Brethren to quarrel with us for ſeeking to enjoy our Religion in purity, and our Laws and Liberties, according to the Fundamental Conſtitutions of our Church and State, when we are ſo well affected to them, as we are truly ſenſible of their grievous Burdens, and intolerable Sufferings from the Tyranny of their Hierarchy, and the fearful Bondage they undergo from the wicked Counſel of that Clergy ſuggeſted from Rome, and producing ſo dangerous Innovations both in Religion and Policy.

‘The ſincere manifeſtation of our real Intentions, We find our ſelves obliged to publiſh, for ſatisfying all good Subjects in our Neighbour Nation, being confident they are alſo deſirous to be confirmed in their good opinion of us, and ſo to be armed againſt all Slanders and Calumnies of thoſe that endeavour the final overthrow, and utter extermination of the Kingdom of Chriſt Jeſus from this whole Iſland, whereof we pray God to avert the Danger, and grant us Peace and Purity, which is the height of our deſire; for procuring whereof we ſhall imploy no other Weapons (except we be enforced) but Faſting and Prayer to God Almighty, and humble Supplications to our Gracious Soveraign.

Star-Chamber

The Biſhop of Lincoln, together with Lambert Osbaldſton Schoolmaſter of the Grammar School at Weſtminſter, was charged by Information in this Court of Star-Chamber, to have plotted together to divulge falſe News and Lies, to breed a diſturbance in the State, and difference between two great Perſons, and Peers of the Realm, viz. the late Lord Treaſurer Weſton, and the preſent Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury. The Charge was grounded upon theſe following Paſſages written by Mr. Osbaldſton to the Biſhop of Lincoln.

My dear Lord,

I Find for certain, which I report ſub ſigillo, that the great Leviathan, and the little Urchin, are a great ſtorm in Chriſtmaſs-weather, and are at a very great diſtance one with another, inſomuch that your Lordſhip hath bin inquired of more than once, if you were come, and when you will? And the great Man was heard to juſtify the words which you were queſtioned for, namely, That you had as good a right to the Deanery of Weſtminſter, as the King to his Crown. And he was heard to ſay, That they were no more than he himſelf would ſay. The jealouſie grows great and ſharp between the Leviathan, and the little medling Hocus-Pocus; and if it increaſe, there is hopes your Lordſhip will injoy the Bleſſing of the King's Grace. Your Lordſhip will hear, that the Lord's Grace of Canterbury is come to lodg in Court, ſo is the Lord Treaſurer; Your Lordſhip, I hope, will pick out my meaning.

Weſtminſter-Colledg, Jan. 9. 1633.

In another Letter.

M*Y dear Lord, I cannot be quiet but I muſt write to your Lordſhip. The Sport is grown Tragical, any thing would be given for a ſound and thorough Charge to puſh at and confound the little* Urchin. The Spaniards and the Hollanders *are both approvedly and firmly joined to effect the ſame, if your Lordſhip lend your Aſſiſtance, which I am bound to implore and require. Let them in the mean time ſcratch one another to the Bones. Weſtminſter-School, *Jan.*30. 1633.

Likewiſe there was produced the Biſhop's Letter of the ſecond of February, to a Friend, to this purpoſe.

M*R.* Osbaldſton reported to me by Letters, That it was deſired that I ſhould contribute my endeavours to be uſeful to the Lord-Treaſurer againſt the little great Man, and aſſured me that they were mortal Enemies. But for my part I refuſe to meddle with any ſuch thing; yet I pray you learn whether it be ſo or no, leſt ſome have gulled Mr. Osbaldſton in his three laſt Letters. If the Lord Treaſurer would be ſerved by me, he muſt

An. 1638. free me from the Bonds of the Star-Chamber, otherwiſe let them fight it out for me.

It was anſwered in the behalf of Mr. Oſbaldſton, That what was done by him, was done in private Letters, ſealed to an honourable Friend. And it was confeſſed to be Error in him to uſe ſuch familiarity in ſome Paſſages therein expreſſed. That he doth deny, That by the Appellations therein mentioned, he did mean the Arch-Biſhop's Grace, or the Lord-Treaſurer. But he meant thereby one Spicer, which took upon him to be a Doctor and was none; that he had divers times uſed, between jeſt and earneſt, to call him little Vrchin, Vermin, little Hocus Pocus in the Velvet Jerkin, and that there were ſome differences between him and the Biſhop of Lincoln; and by Leviathan, he meant, Chief Juſtice Richardſon, who had formerly committed Spicer (in Weſtminſter-Hall); and he confeſſed he did merrily uſe that Name, the Perſon being apt to take a Jeſt in good part.

On the Biſhop of Lincoln's part it was offered, That if any ſuch Letters were ſent by Mr. Oſbaldſton, yet he denied the receit of them; and for the interpretation of thoſe Appellations, he conceived the Writer was the beſt Interpreter; that he had many times heard Mr. Oſbaldſton call Spicer by the Name of Hocus Pocus, and he uſed to call Richardſon by the name of Leviathan, and denieth the publiſhing of any ſuch Letters, or ſo much as the ſpeaking of any ſuch at his Table.

The Attorney General urged, That the Interpretation given by the Defendents would not ſerve their turn. That thoſe Letters of Mr. Oſbaldſton were found in a Box in the Biſhop's Houſe at Bugden; and when the Biſhop heard they were found, he ſaid, Oſbaldſton was undone. That the Biſhop's Secretary Walker, and the Clerk of his Kitchen had heard their Maſter diſcourſe of the ſubject Matter of theſe Letters, and that theſe Names of Appellation were frequent, between the Biſhop and Oſbaldſton, and that by them was meant the Arch-Biſhop and the Treaſurer.

But it was further offered, in the behalf of Mr. Oſbadſton, That the Interpretation made by others, ſhould not be the ruin and deſtruction of the Defendents. That the Biſhop's ſaid Secretary and Clerk of his Kitchen (Witneſſes againſt him) were lately cenſured in this Court for tampering with Witneſſes, and were Perſons expecting the Mercy of the Court; and Witneſſes were heard on the behalf of Oſbaldſton, that he frequently called Dr. Spicer the little Hocus Pocus, and the little Vrchin; and the Reaſon was, becauſe Spicer had made many promiſes to give a Library worth 40 l. to the School at Weſtminſter, but failed in the performance. And it was further proved, that he frequently called the Lord Chief Juſtice Richardſon, Leviathan, who had committed Dr. Spicer in Weſtminſter-Hall.

And in the defence of the Biſhop of Lincoln it was further urged, That his ſaid Secretary, Walter Walker, did frequently receive, and had commiſſion to open his Letters in his abſence; and what Letters he received he could not tell; and if thoſe Letters were found at his Houſe, they were laid up and concealed by his Secretary.

And further the Biſhop petitions the Court, informing them how unable he was to make his defence, being his Majeſty's cloſe Priſoner in the Tower. After which Mr. Attorny General replied.

Sir

14 Caroli.

Sir John Banks his Reply about the Cenſure of my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, and Mr. Osbaldſton, the 14*th of* February, in the Star-Chamber, 1638.

Interlocutory Paſſages.

'MY Lords, The Defendents Counſel in their defence, does except againſt the Charge of the Information, and they laboured much to tie the Matters charged in the Information to the very day of the Month, ſeeking thereby to eſcape the Charge, contrary to their Judgments and the common courſe of Juſtice.

'Alſo they made queſtion where thoſe Letters ſhould be found: but if they will, they may know that they were found at my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln's Houſe at Bugden, as is manifeſt by their own Witneſſes Interrogatories. 1. & 71.

'In the anſwer to which Interrogatories, three Witneſſes do all ſay, That they heard they were found in a Band-Box in my Lord of Lincoln's Wardrobe.

Mr. Recorder.

'My Lords, We have examined four Witneſſes, which do all depoſe, That there were no Letters found in the Band-Box, and that his Lordſhip did never leave any Letters to be kept there.

Mr. Herbert.

'It appears by their own Witneſſes, that there were ſuch Letters found; but this is not to the purpoſe where they were found, but now they are found, the hainouſneſs of them is the point in hand.

Lord Keeper.

'It may be that ſome of the Lords may find ſome things in the Depoſitions that may ſerve one way or other, therefore I think it good they ſhould be read; but for my own part, I am ſatisfied in my judgment.

Mr. Attorney General further proceeded, ſaying;

'My Lords, the Defendents Counſel have made two Defences, one for Mr. Osbaldſton, and the other for the Biſhop of Lincoln.

'The Counſel for Mr. Osbaldſton except againſt the Witneſſes that prove the interpretation of the Letters, and would have Mr. Osbaldſton to expound his own meaning, and if this ſhould be allowed, every Libeller would thereby eſcape the Cenſure of the Court.

'Firſt, They except againſt Cadwallader Powel, becauſe he was before ſentenced in the Star-chamber: But, my Lords, his Cenſure in the Star-chamber was not for any matter of Perjury, or Crime that ſhould take away his Teſtimony; and the ſame thing for which he was Sentenced, was my Lord Biſhop himſelf Sentenced at the very ſame time.

An. 1638.

‘Secondly, The ſecond Exception was, that Mr. Powel and Mr. Walker were made Defendents in this Court to take away their Teſtimony in this Cauſe, and the reaſon why they were not proceeded againſt (ſaid the King's Atturney) was, my Lords, becauſe my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln would not perfect his Examination, by which we ſhould have the better proceeded againſt them, and when my Lord Biſhop hath perfected his Examination, they ſhall be proceeded againſt.

‘Again, They except and ſay, that Walker, being Secretary to my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, he ought not to be Witneſs againſt my Lord of Lincoln.

‘My Lords, when a Secretary is called and examined upon Oath, he ought to diſcover the truth of what he is examined upon, and not to perjure himſelf.

‘Again, they ſay, that there are no expreſs words in the Letters, whereby it doth certainly appear, that theſe words were not mean of my Lords Grace of Canterbury.

‘My Lords, this ſticks at all Cauſes of Juſtice: for if they ſhall be ſuffered to interpret their own words, by this means all Libellers would eſcape puniſhment.

‘The third part of the Defence is this: That Mr. Osbaldſton ſhould call Doctor Spicer, Vermin, Hocus Pocus, Urchin, and the like: therefore ſay they, thoſe terms in theſe Letters are not to be applied to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, but to Dr. Spicer. This is no excluſion, for I ſhall ſhew that thoſe words muſt needs be intended and ſpoken againſt the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, and not of Dr. Spicer.

‘In the Letter of the 9th of Jan. the words cannot be applied to be ſpoken of ſo mean a Man as Dr. Spicer: and ſo likewiſe in the Letter of the 30th of Jan. wherein he deſires, that it ſhould be kept ſecret: and if theſe words had been ſpoken of Dr. Spicer, they needed not be kept ſo ſecret. For Hocus Pocus and Vermin being ſpoken of Dr. Spicer, were publiſhed in Weſtminſter Hall, and other places thereabouts, and therefore needed no ſecreſie.

‘And that by the great Leviathan, it ſhould be underſtood to be meant of the Lord Richardſon, there is no colour for it, my Lords.

‘As for Osbaldiſton, he hath long bin a turbulent Medler, and a falſe Intelligencer of the Affairs of State; I may ſay he is Hocus Pocus, and a Jugler in the Affairs of State; and yet I am ſorry that I ſhall charge him with that which is worſe than the Charge laid againſt him in the Information, for he is guilty of groſs and wilful Perjury, for he hath denied upon Oath that which was plainly proved againſt him.

‘Another Argument is, This Osbaldſton is now run away, which in our ſenſe doth ſhew a guiltineſs of the Offence. 25. H. 5. One being indicted for Felony, if he runs away, he then forfeits his Goods.

‘As for my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, he ſtands upon three things.

‘Firſt, That he received not the Letters.

‘Secondly, That he did not publiſh them.

‘Thirdly, That he did not entertain them.

‘For the firſt, It is proved by Witneſſes, That two dayes after Twelve-tide he gave order that his Letters ſhould be opened that concerned his Law Suits, ſo that thereby he might colour the Matter, that they might not come into his own Hands. Again, he doth not ſay, That he did not receive the Letter of the 9th of January, beſides his own Letter of the ſecond of January, makes mention of three Letters which he received from Mr. Osbaldſton: In one of which he ſhould contribute Mony to the uſe of the Lord Treaſurer for the ruin of the little great Man: So that it is confeſſed by his own Writings that he did receive them. And the Letter of the 30*th* of January was ſent by a ſpecial Meſſenger to Lincoln, therefore its moſt probable that he received it, and your Lordſhips have heard Cadwallader Powel ſay, That my Lord of Lincoln demanding of him, Whether any of Osbaldſton's Letters were found? And he anſwering that they were. Then ſaid the Biſhop, Osbaldſton is undone: So that I conceive your Lordſhips will not think, but that his Lordſhip received the Letters.

'But it is objected, That this is no Offence; For, ſay they, it's no Offence to receive Libellous Letters, and to keep them private. And as for my Lord of Lincoln, he did never publiſh any of them; and there is difference betwixt Osbaldſton's Caſe, and my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln's, for they were only ſent to my Lord of Lincoln, but he did never contrive nor publiſh any of them.

'It is evident that he did publiſh theſe, for they were ſpoken of by Powel and Walker, and the Women did talk of them in the Market.

'But they ſay, That ſome of his Attendants never heard him publiſh any ſuch Speeches at his own Table.

'It is like he did not make it his Table-Talk: But, my Lord, under favour, my Lord of Lincoln hath bin too forward to entertain and publiſh libellous Letters.

'If any receive libellous Letters, the receiving is not a publiſhing of them, as it is in 9 Report. fol. 59.

'In the 5*th Report*, there is defference betwixt Words and Letters, which concern a private Man and a publick Officer.

'If they do concern a private Man, it is no offence in him that conceals them: but if they concern a publick Officer, he that doth conceal them, is guilty, and ſhall be puniſhed for a Libeller.

'And I conceive my Lord of Lincoln to be guilty of Perjury in this Cauſe; and, my Lord, that Perjuries are puniſhable in this Court, (though they are not charged in the Information) doth appear, Hill. 2. Eliz. & Hill. 4. Eliz.

'My Lords, I do wiſh that this Age that is ſo much infected with deviſing and divulging ſcandalous Letters and Words, that ſome exemplary Example might be made, that we might hear no more of ſuch ſcandalons Matters.

'My Lords, before the Conqueſt they had very ſtrict Laws againſt Libellers, (as to have their Tongues ſlit); And in the time of Ed. 1. and Ed. 2. there were ſpecial Commiſſioners appointed to enquire after Libellers, as in the cloſe, Roll. Parliament, and ſo I humbly leave them to your Lordſhips.

The Court proceeding to Sentence, declared in general, 'That they had received ſatisfaction that Mr. Osbaldſton was the Contriver, Writer, and Publiſher of thoſe odious Appellations of thoſe two great Perſons. That his Defence was ridiculous, and that his End was the ruin of the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘ As for the Biſhop of Lincoln, they ſaid, He was a Perſon of Quality, Parts, and Abilities, and one that once ſat as Judg in this Court: That he ſhewed himſelf very indiſcreet in concealing thoſe Letters, and had thereby made himſelf guilty of a high Crime.

But for further ſatisfaction, take theſe Speeches following made in Court at the ſaid Cenſure.

Sir John Finch, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, ſpake firſt, the Lord Cottington being abſent.

My Lords,

‘THere are two Defendents, ſo there are two Charges in the Information againſt them.

‘ Firſt, They are charged with giving Nick-names unto two Honourable Perſons of this Realm.

‘ Secondly, They are charged to Plot, and contrive to work an utter ruin and overthrow to my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury. And in thoſe Charges, I ſhall obſerve ſeveral ſteps and degrees.

‘ Firſt, An Endeavour and Agreement between Oſbaldſton and my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, to reproach and ſcandalize theſe two Noble Perſons.

‘ Secondly, A publiſhing and divulging of the ſame.

‘ In the ſecond Charge I obſerve theſe Steps.

‘ Firſt, A falſe Rumour raiſed by them.

‘ Thirdly, An endeavour to work the ruin of the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, by contributing Charges to effect the ſame.

‘ And how far Oſbaldſton and the Biſhop of Lincoln are guilty, I appeal to your Lordſhips. I ſhall now ſhew the extent of the Information, the Charge being laid to be in or about the 10*th* of February, M. 9 Car. Which Charge doth comprehend all libellous Letters, either before or ſince 9 Car.

‘ But it's true, If in the Letters will not appear that ſenſe which is contained in the Charge, then they ſhall not be within the Charge of the Information, and therefore the Information admits of as much favour to the Defendents as may be: For this Court doth rather deſire to find Men Innocent than Guilty.

‘ I ſhall now come to the Particulars, and ſhall herein obſerve the courſe of the Defendents Counſel, who have diſtinguiſhed my Lord of Lincoln's Caſe from Oſbaldſton's, and ſo ſhall put a difference between them: For though Oſbaldſton be guilty, yet it's poſſible that my Lord of Lincoln may not be guilty.

‘ And as for Oſbaldſton, I hold him as clearly guilty of the Charges in the Information, as any have bin ſentenced in this Court.

‘ For firſt, Oſbaldſton was the Contriver and publiſher of thoſe ſcandalous Letters; and I think there is no doubt at all, but that they were meant of the late Lord Treaſurer, and the now Lord Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘ Secondly, Your Lordſhips may obſerve, what interpretation the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln would make of them: How that my Lord of Lincoln himſelf did conceive that he meant the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘The third is by Witneſſes.

‘Firſt, Walker ſaid, That he ſaw divers Letters wherein Osbaldſton explained his meaning, That he meant my Lord Treaſurer, and my Lord's Grace of Canterbury.

‘Again he ſaith, He ſaw ſome Letters wherein Osbaldſton uſed by-words, which my Lord of Lincoln did not underſtand until Osbaldſton had explained them.

‘Again he ſaith, His Lordſhip did explain many of theſe dark Words that Osbaldſton wrote unto him, ſhewing that he meant my Lord's Grace of Canterbury.

‘Again he ſaith, That Osbaldſton ſpoke baſe words of the Arch-Biſhop.

‘And theſe be his Reaſons why he conceives, that by the Words in the Letters he means the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury; which I conceive be very good and ſufficient Reaſons.

‘The ſecond Witneſs is Cadwallader Powel, who ſaith, He uſed theſe words in a Letter, The little Vermin, the falſe Mediator, the Hocus Pocus. And the Biſhop of Lincoln being in the Tower, demanded of Powel, Whether any of Mr. Osbaldſton's Letters were found? who anſwered, That they were found; Then, ſaid the Biſhop, Osbaldſton is undone.

‘Thus I have thought good to make a difference betwixt my Lord of Lincoln and Mr. Osbaldſton; for it is confeſſed by my Lord of Lincoln, that by one of thoſe is meant my Lord Treaſurer; but that ſhall not convict Mr. Osbaldſton, but it is plain by his own words what he meant. And that by thoſe words ſhould be meant Dr. Spicer, I hold it ſo ridiculous a Defence, that I think he could not have deceived his School-Boys with it.

‘And that by Leviathan ſhould be meant my Lord Richardſon, there is no colour for that; though for Dr. Spicer were confounded, what would the King or State ſuffer by his ruin or confuſion? ſo that certainly it is meant of the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘For Mr. Osbaldſton's going away, it is not judicially known unto me, and therefore leave it to your Lordſhips.

‘And as for the ſecond Charge, That he did Plot and Contrive for the ruin of the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, I hold that he is guilty, and that he did ſtir my Lord of Lincoln to contribute Mony for that purpoſe.

‘For my Lord of Lincoln, I ſhall only ſay this, That the Letter of the 9th of January is ſuch a turbulent and ſcandalous Libel, that a Man of Place and Quality ſhould not give any way thereunto; but that he ſhould receive it, entertain it, and publiſh it, this ſhews that he had long a rancor and hatred towards my Lord Arch-Biſhop.

‘And for the Nick-names, I ſhall find my Lord of Lincoln guilty as far forth as Mr. Osbaldſton, for he did entertain theſe Letters, and did publiſh them, and it was an Agreement and confederacy ſo to do.

‘By way of Defence, my Lord Bp of Lincoln's Counſel did allege;

‘Firſt, That there was an Agreement between Osbaldſton and my Lord of Lincoln. Again, they ſaid, That there was no certain Appellation of my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘Secondly, There was proof that my Lord of Lincoln did not ſpeak any ſuch words at his Table.

‘Thirdly, They endeavoured to prove, That my Lord of Lincoln never wrote any Letters containing any libellous Matter; when-as there was a Letter under his own Hand, which he would not confeſs, although he was brought like a Bear to the Stake, and three times examined about it.

‘Again they ſaid, That he did not receive them, and yet he wrote an anſwer to them.

‘Again, Admit he did receive them, yet he did not publiſh them, but only delivered them to Mr. Walker his Secretary.

‘Mr. Attorney well remembred the Law, That if a libellous Letter concerning a private Perſon, then he may conceal it; but if it concern a publick Officer, then the concealing of it makes him guilty thereof: And that the Letters were publiſhed is moſt certain, for they were openly ſpoken of by Women in the Market.

‘Another thing of Mr. Recorder's was this; That if my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln did underſtand Oſbaldſton's meaning, yet he did not underſtand that he meant my Lord Treaſurer, and my Lord's Grace of Canterbury.

‘Then, I ſay, He hath ſcandalized my Lord Treaſurer, and my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury; for by his own Writing he ſaith, That it was meant of theſe Perſons.

‘The next is, the charge of a Plot laid for the ruin of my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, but I will not condemn my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln for that.

‘The next Defence of Mr. Recorder was from this, That Mr. Oſbaldſton wrote to the Biſhop of Lincoln, ſaying, I hope you will pick out the meaning, &c. ſo that there was no Confederacy and Agreement between them.

‘Firſt, I ſay, He received the Letters, and publiſhed them.

‘Secondly, He was ſo far from nipping theſe Scandals in the Buds, that he enquired further aſter them.

‘Thirdly, That he was ready and willing to contribute Mony towards the ruin of my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘I am ſorry that a Man of his Rank and Condition, ſhould make himſelf Companion with a School-maſter.

‘And as for the Aſperſion which they caſt upon Mr. Walker, to take away his Teſtimony, I ſee no juſt cauſe thereof.

‘For they ſaid, Either his Depoſition is impoſſible and beyond his knowledg, or elſe that his Reaſons that moved him thereunto, are inſufficient. But for my part I know not how a better Reaſon can be given.

‘Another Objection againſt Walker is this, That it was long before theſe Letters were brought forth; and that theſe are not all, but there ſhould be a third Letter.

‘I ſay, It is a wonder that ſo many were brought forth now. But that they had bin loſt, or that my Lord of Lincoln had burnt them: for had I a Friend that I profeſſed ſo much kindneſs to, as he did to Oſbaldſton, I ſhould be very ſorry that he ſhould ſuffer for his Letters.

‘For the Teſtimony of Cadwallader Powel, I hold his Teſtimony as fit to be taken as my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln.

‘And for the Charge of the Defendents Counſel, for the ſubtil proſecution by the Sollicitor Kilvert, I ſhall ſay little, I know him to be of a good Carriage in other Buſineſſes, therefore if any fault be, I ſhall only deſire that it may be amended for the time to come. I ‘hold that theſe Witneſſes ſtand upright; and as for the other Witneſſes, I ſubmit unto your Lordſhips, for in Sentence I muſt conſider the nature of the Cauſe, and the Perſons.

‘I muſt conſider the Perſons offending, and the Perſons againſt whom they have offended.

‘And the ſecond is the Metropolitan of England, who hath ever carried himſelf with great truſt and fidelity towards his Majeſty and the Publick Good.

‘And I verily think, that none can accuſe him of the leaſt corruption. In a Court where moſt Cauſes of the Clergy are tried, I did never receive any private Meſſage from his Lordſhip in the behalf of any Clergy Man, which is a thing to be much obſerved in him.

‘For Mr. Osbaldſton, he hath bin a Parſon, a Prebend, and a Schoolmaſter. My Lords, I will not ſuffer him, he is ſo turbulent a Perſon, and ſcandalous Libeller, to teach and inſtruct others. I would have him therefore deprived of all his Spiritual Dignities and Promotions, that he never have any place in the Church; neither hold I it fit that he ſhould teach Scholars, (ſhould I do him juſtice, I ſhould adjudg him ſome ſevere corporal puniſhment): I would have him deprived in the High-Commiſſion Court, and then to be ſet on the Pillory in this Palace-Yard. And that he may be an Example to his Boys, I would have him alſo to ſtand in the Pillory in the Deans-Yard, and one Ear to be nailed in the Palace, and the other Ear to be nailed in the Deans-Yard.

‘And I do fine my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln five thouſand pounds.

‘And I give to my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, five thouſand pounds apiece for Dammages.

My Lord Chief Juſtice Bramſton's Speech.

My Lords,

‘THere are two Defendents, and they have made two Defences. I find my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln to be guilty, though not ſo full and in ſo high a nature as Mr. Osbaldſton.

‘They are charged to Plot and Confederate together, to ſcandalize two Honourable Perſons, and to raiſe Diſcord in the State, and to ſeek the ruin and overthrow of my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘Osbaldſton wrote a Letter of the 9th of January, and other Letters, which my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln is charged with to receive and publiſh.

‘That Osbaldſton is guilty of every part of the Charge, I ſhall not need to make any queſtion; neither ſhall I much ſtand upon the validity of the Witneſſes, for I ſee nothing but that he is guilty of all the Charge.

‘I will begin with the firſt Letter of the 9th of January, in which he would have two other Perſons meant there, and not my Lord

'Treaſurer; and my Lord's Grace of Canterbury; but the one to be meant my Lord Richardſon, and the other Doctor Spicer.

'Now what compariſon was there between thoſe two Perſons?

'The one was Lord Chief Juſtice, and as for the other, every one knows what he is; ſo that it cannot be meant of theſe two Perſons, for there is no compariſon between them.

'And for theſe words, the little medling Hocus Pocus works his own confuſion, &c. How would this be meant of Dr. Spicer? For how did Dr. Spicer work his own Confuſion? And who would give ſo much to confound Dr. Spicer? He is no ſuch eminent Perſon, that any ſhould give ſo much to confound him. So that this Letter is very clear againſt Osbaldſton.

'And it ſhews a petulent Spirit, and an inveterate hatred and malice, that he did long bear againſt my Lord of Canterbury, without any reaſon or cauſe at all, for he doth not ſhew that he had ever received any wrong or injury from his Grace.

'I come now to the other Letter, wherein Osbaldſton writ to the Biſhop of Lincoln to contribute Charges to my Lord Treaſurer, for the ruin of the little great Man; by which muſt needs be meant the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury: ſo that I ſhall not ſtand longer upon Mr. Osbaldſton; for if there were no Witneſſes againſt him, yet I find Matter enough in his own Letters to prove him guilty of the whole Charge, and therefore I ſentence him with my Lord Finch.

'For my Lord of Lincoln, I cannot ſentence him as a Libeller, for there muſt be either a contriving or a publiſhing to make a Man a Libeller, as Mr. Recorder well obſerved.

'But I find him guilty of this Charge, That he received the libellous Letters; and of this Charge, That he aſſented to contribute Mony for the ruin of my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

'But it is objected, That he concealed the Libel, and therefore he is not guilty.

'The concealing of it doth not clear my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln.

'For (as Mr. Attorny well obſerved) there is a difference between a Letter that concerns a private Perſon, and a public Officer.

'If a libellous Letter concern a private Perſon, he that receives it may conceal it in his Pocket, or burn it; but if it concern a public Perſon, he ought to reveal it to ſome public Officer or Magiſtrate.

'But it is true, if he divulge it to any but to a Magiſtrate, he is a Libeller; and why ſhould my Lord of Lincoln keep theſe Letters by him, but to the end to publiſh them, and to have them at all times in a readineſs to publiſh upon every occaſion?

'For his being degraded, I leave it to thoſe of the Eccleſiaſtical Court, to whom it doth belong.

'And for the other part of his Sentence of the Pillory, I am very ſorry and unwilling to give ſuch a Sentence upon any Man of his Calling and Degree. But when I conſider the Quality of the Perſon, and how much it doth aggravate the Offence, I cannot tell how to ſpare him: for theſe conſiderations that ſhould mitigate, makes the Offence the greater, which makes me join with my Lord Finch in that part alſo.

'For my Lord of Lincoln, I do fine him three thouſand pounds, and Impriſonment.

‘And ſeeing the Offence is againſt ſo Honourable a Perſon as my Lord's Grace of Canterbury, and there is not the leaſt cauſe of any aggrievance or wrong that he hath done to my Lord of Lincoln, therefore in Damage I join with my Lord Finch.

‘Secretary Windebanck, and Secretary Cook, did both join with my Lord Brampſton for the Biſhop of Lincoln, and with my Lord Finch for Mr. Oſbaldſton.

Mr. Comptroller his Speech.

My Lords,

‘For Oſbaldſton, conſidering his place, I cannot but condemn him very much, for by what hath bin alleged, I verily believe that he did mean my Lord Treaſurer, and my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury: And my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, and Mr. Oſbaldſton, are both guilty of Crimes in a high nature; one would have thought that my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, being a Perſon of that Place and Quality, ſhould not have run himſelf into ſuch danger as to have medled with ſuch Matters; for had he not met with good Counſel, I conceive that he had plunged himſelf in as deep as Oſbaldſton in theſe practices.

‘And as for Oſbaldſton's Sentence, I agree with my Lord Finch.

‘As for my Lord of Canterbury his Carriage, it is well known to be upright, and therefore I leave it.

The Lord Newburgh his Speech.

My Lords,

‘For Oſbaldſton, I find him guilty of every part of the Charge; for the other I cannot ſentence ſo deep; for I think my Lord of Lincoln is not guilty of the Plotting and Confederating, for the ſcandalizing of thoſe two honourable Perſons; I leave it to your Lordſhips Judgment, and lay all the Charge upon Oſbaldſton.

The Earl of Dorſet's Speech at the Sentence of Mr. Oſbaldſton.

‘Ariſtotle in his Politicks, admits not in the Government, of any School-maſter to the exerciſe of Civil Duties, School-maſters commonly proving the Apes of Tyranny; and being uſed to imperiouſneſs over Scholars, if you put a Sword of Juſtice into his Hand, you may eaſily gueſs how he will lay about him in the State and City.

‘I know not with what ſpirit of Vanity this School-maſter was poſſeſſed, but we ſee the monſtrous birth of it; if the Pedant had kept within his Rules, he might have bin taught not to have diſturbed Government. Look upon this Pragmatical Perſon, and behold the Fact, and what were the Motives, what the Reaſons to bring himſelf upon the Stage.

An. 1638.

‘His ill thoughts expreſt in Ink as black as his Crime; his Pen was ſteep'd in Vinegar and Gall. What was it that ſtain'd the Biſhop of Lincoln's Ear with the poiſon of ignominious Titles? It was the Pedant. Who was it, that as a Thief that had ſtollen another's good name away, cries, Burn my Letters, on purpoſe to go in darkneſs of the night? It was a Parſon. Who was it that endeavoured to ſtain the purity of my Lord Arch-Biſhop's Honour with foul aſperſions of Titles, little Grace, little Urchin, Vermin, &c? It was Mr. Oſbaldſton.

‘Well, I will ſpeak what I think, I fear none but God and the King, and I ſpeak in truth, I am ſure I ſhall offend neither of them. I have enquired of them who are learned in the Laws, who ſay, That the plaineſt Sence is to be taken. The Divines will tell you, That the eaſy Places ſhall explain the more obſcure. And if any Man would examine thoſe Letters, and with judicious comparing the Title of little Grace with the other, he will be forced to confeſs the ſenſe of the other, or elſe be blind at noon-day.

‘But as Truth may be cleared by ſtrong and ſolid Reaſon, ſo it may be darkned and ſhadowed by the colours of probability of appearances.

‘But, my Lords, I think the School-maſter alleges his Services to the Common-Wealth, and his being ſlighted for it; That he hath bin theſe many Years, and dedicated his Pains and Time for the good of the Flowers of the Kingdom, Generoſa debentur. But I will conſider him as a Man ſubject to his Paſſion, (which to take away, were to take away the Man himſelf): I will allow him his Infirmities, but obſerve a little his Envy, ſee his Merits and Deſerts, which he hath ſo fouly abuſed, with the height of inſolency and bold acceſs, to the very Secrets of Empire and Government, to the diſgrace of thoſe Men of which the Common-Wealth conſiſts. I know not, (my Lords) the Fault of the Man may tranſport my Speech that I abuſe your Patience; but I ſhall give my cenſure of him; I learn'd in the Univerſity, how that a Syllogiſm doth ever follow the worſt part, ſequitur deteriorem ad partem, I am ſure his Letter doth: he might have found a better medium to make up a Syllogiſm of a Libel, for he hath concluded in the worſt Body of all the Figures, viz. in Bocardo: So I muſt concur with my Lord Finch in cenſure.

‘As for my Lord of Lincoln, linked in this Cauſe, I honour the Man for many Cauſes, in many Relations, but for his Secretary Walker, and the Clerk of his Kitchin, and the reſt (where-ever the Letters were found); they have dealt like Acteon's Hound, that turned againſt and devoured his Maſter; the falſe Secretary, the unjuſt Steward, and the unlawful Clerk of the Kitchin, who were fed at my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln's Table in his proſperity, and now in his adverſity they fall upon their Maſter to devour him. I muſt ſay of him, he hath forgotten himſelf, and agree to the Cenſure which the Lord Chief Juſtice Bramſtone hath given againſt him. He did not as Peter did, when he had denied his Maſter, gone out and weep bitterly for his Offence; but he juſtifies himſelf, and therefore he is fallen into the Lime-twigs of his Adverſary.

The Earl of Arundel's Speech.

My Lords,

'FOr Osbaldſton, I find him guilty of every part of the Charge; 'and that he is not ſentenced in a higher nature is, cauſa de bona 'fortuna, for had he bin ſuffered to have perſiſted in his courſe, he 'had ſurely fallen into moſt dangerous Error.

'And therefore I join in Sentence for him with my Lord Finch.

'I am ſorry for my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, he hath ſhewed him'ſelf very indiſcreet, being a Perſon of Place and Quality, he now 'falls low in his Eſtate and Dignity; and theſe things will make his 'Spirit fall lower than his Body; and therefore I agree in all things 'with my Lord Finch.

Marqueſs Hamilton his Speech.

My Lords,

'FOr Osbaldſton, I find him guilty of the whole Charge. For my 'Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, I cannot find him ſo deeply guilty as 'Osbaldſton. But certainly my Lord's Grace of Canterbury hath bin 'exceedingly wronged. Therefore I give Dammages with my Lord 'Finch.

'And for Osbaldſton, I ſentence him with my Lord Finch.

'And as for my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, I join with my Lord 'Brampſton.

The Earl of Mancheſter, Lord Privy-Seal, his Speech.

My Lords,

'FOr Osbaldſton, if you take his Words, his Meaning, and the End, 'they will appear to be very heinous.

'Firſt, His Words, to bring contempt and diſgrace upon my Lord 'Biſhop of Canterbury.

'Secondly, His Meaning is expreſſed in the words themſelves, to be 'againſt two Honourable Perſons.

'Thirdly, And for the End, that was moſt dangerous and perni'tious. It was to overthrow and work the confuſion and ruin of my 'Lord's Grace of Canterbury.

'Setting aſide all the Witneſſes, I will condemn my Lord Biſhop of 'Lincoln out of his own Mouth, for he denies all.

'Firſt, He denies the receiving of the Letter.

'Secondly, The entertaining of them.

'Thirdly, The publiſhing of them.

'Not as Peter did when he had denied his Maſter, to go out and 'weep bitterly for his Offence, but to juſtify himſelf: Yet how can 'my Lord of Lincoln deny the Letter that he wrote with his own 'hand, and yet he will not confeſs it to be his own Letter.

'And after he was Priſoner in the Tower, he called to Mr. Cadwal'lader Powel, and demanded if any of Mr. Osbaldſton's Letters were 'found? Who anſwered, That they were found. Then ſaid the Bi'ſhop, Osbaldſton is undone.

'Secondly, He deſired that they ſhould be kept cloſe and ſecret.

An. 1638.

'Thirdly, Though they were kept cloſe, and only put into the 'Pocket, if they concern a publick Perſon, he is a Libeller.

For Osbaldſton, beſides all the corporal puniſhment, I hold fit that 'he ſhould acknowledg his Offence in writing to my Lord's Grace of 'Canterbury.

'And as for the Biſhop of Lincoln, I hold that he ſhould alſo make 'an acknowledgment in writing to the Arch-Biſhop, for he is a Perſon of great Place and Quality. And my Lord of Lincoln is under 'Canonical Obedience to the Arch-Biſhop by his Oath; and Diſobedience is a breach of his Oath; therefore he ſhould acknowledg 'his Offence under his own hand.

'For my Lord's Grace of Canterbury, he hath ever carried himſelf 'with much gravity in his place, and Piety towards God and the 'King, and the public Good; therefore I leave him in honour as I 'found him, and ſentence the Biſhop of Lincoln with my Lord Bramſtone; and Osbaldſton with my Lord Finch.

'The Earl of Holland joined in ſentence with my Lord Finch for 'Osbaldſton, and with my Lord Bramſtone for the Biſhop of Lincoln.

The Lord Keeper his Speech.

My Lords,

'If I be not miſtaken, it is miſpending of time in opening the 'Cauſe, therefore I ſhall uſe as much brevity as may be.

'And, firſt, I ſhall begin with the firſt Letter, and think it fit that 'this Letter, and all the Copies thereof, ſhould be ſuppreſſed.

'Yet I may make this uſe of it, That Osbaldſton and my Lord Biſhop had a long time continued intercourſe of writing ſcandalous 'Letters, and falſe News.

'Again, I make this uſe of it, That my Lord of Lincoln having 'received ſuch a Letter ſo ſcandalous againſt the King and State, did 'conceal the ſame.

'My Lords, For the Letter of the 9th of January, my Lord Biſhop of 'Lincoln doth deny that he received it; and therefore I think that he 'conceived it to be a ſcandalous Letter, which made him to deny it.

'Again, He kept the Letters by him, that he might have the words 'ready to tell unto every one at his pleaſure.

'And as for the Letter of the 30th of January, he denieth to make 'a perfect anſwer to it.

'It was the ſaying of one that was late Lord Chancellor, That he 'never liked a Cauſe, where there were divers Anſwers in it; neither can 'I like this, when my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln hath bin ſo often examined, and will not make a perfect Anſwer, for he hath thrice bin examined upon this Letter, which is a ſhrewd Argument unto me, 'that he knew well that there was ſcandalous Matter contained in it.

'Next, my Lords, is the publiſhing of theſe libellous Letters, and 'I think it very fit that my Lord of Lincoln ſhould be charged with 'the publiſhing of them. If they were in the Band-Box, then that 'was a publiſhing of them; and he delivered a Letter to his Secretary, which was a publiſhing thereof.

'But it's true, If a Man deliver a Letter to his Secretary, and command that he ſhould keep it ſecret, I conceive that is not a publiſhing 'of it.

‘If there were no other proof but this, I ſhould think my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln and Mr. Osbaldſton to be guilty, not only of contriving, but alſo of publiſhing and divulging ſcandalous Libels againſt the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, and the State.

‘As for Witneſſes, although there is no need, (for it is plain without Witneſſes) yet there be divers Witneſſes that prove it.

‘Now it remains that I ſhould proceed to Cenſure.

‘It concerns the late Lord Treaſurer, one of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, and my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, two Honourable Perſons: And my Lord Arch-Biſhop had not only bin a Friend to the Biſhop of Lincoln, but a faithful Mediator for him to his Majeſty, and was always very faithful in returning his Majeſty's Anſwer unto him; and yet notwithſtanding all this, my Lord of Lincoln hath done many heinous Offences againſt the ſaid Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

‘And for my Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, I agree with my Lord Bramſtone.

The Sentence of the Court was,

‘THat Mr. Osbaldſton ſhould be fined five thouſand pounds to the King, and pay five thouſand pounds Dammages to the Arch-Biſhop; be deprived of all Spiritual Dignities and Promotions; impriſoned during the King's Pleaſure, and make Submiſſion.

‘That the Biſhop of Lincoln be fined in five thouſand pounds to the King, and three thouſand pounds to the Arch-Biſhop; to be impriſoned during the King's Pleaſure, and to make Submiſſion.

‘And Osbaldſton was ſentenced to ſtand in the Pillory in the Deans-Yard, before his own School, and his Ears to be only nailed to the Pillory.

It ſo hapned, though the report was that Osbaldſton was run away, that he was in Court ſtanding in the Croud at the Cenſure; and when he heard the ſaid Cenſure of ſome of the Lords, he gueſſed the Cauſe would go againſt him, and knowing the rule of the Court, That if the Warden ſhould eſpie him in Court, he might command his Tipſtaff to apprehend him; as ſoon as the major part of the Court had paſt Cenſure upon him, although the Lord Keeper had not then given his ſenſe; therefore he got out of Court, went to his Study at the School, burnt ſome Papers, and writ on a Paper, which he left on his Desk, That if the Arch-Biſhop inquire after me, tell him, I am gone beyond Canterbury. Whereupon Meſſengers were ſent to the Port-Towns to apprehend him; but he lay hid in a private Houſe in Drury-Lane, till the Parliament met in November 1640.

Carolus Rex.

Right truſty and well-beloved Couſins and Counſellors, We greet you well.

A Copy of the King's Letter to the Nobility, &c.

The late Diſorders in Our Realm of Scotland, begun upon pretence of Religion, but have bin raiſed by Factious Spirits, and fomented by ſome few ill, treacherous-affected Perſons, whoſe aim hath bin, by troubling the Peace of that Our Kingdom, to work their own particular Ends, and indeed to ſhake off all Monarchical Government; although We often aſſure them, that We reſolve to maintain conſtantly their Religion eſtabliſhed by the Laws of that Kingdom; is now grown to ſo high and dangerous Conſequence, that under their ſiniſter Pretences, they have ſo far ſeduced many of Our People there, that great and conſiderable Forces are raiſed and aſſembled in ſuch ſort, as We have reaſon to take into Our conſideration, the Defence and Safety of this Our Kingdom of England: And therefore upon due and mature conſultation with the Lords of Our Privy-Council, We have reſolved to repair, in Our Roial Perſon, to the Northern Parts of this Our Kingdom, there, by the help of Almighty God, and the aſſiſtance of Our loving Subjects, to make Reſiſtance againſt any Invaſion that may happen. And to the end that this with expedition may be effected as We deſire, to the Glory of God, and the Safety of Us and this our Kingdom of England, We have directed, that a conſiderable Army, both of Horſe and Foot, ſhall forthwith be levied out of all the Shires of this Our Kingdom, to attend Us in this Action; wherein We nothing doubt, but that the Affection, Courage, and Fidelity of Our People will appear. We in the mean time have thought fit to give you notice of this Our Reſolution, and of the State of theſe Affairs: And withal hereby do require you to attend Our Roial Perſon and Standard at Our City of York, the firſt day of April next enſuing, with ſuch Equipage, and ſuch Forces, as your Birth, Honour, and Intereſt in the Commonalty doth oblige you to, &c. And We do, and have reaſon to expect from you a performance hereof; and theſe Our Letters ſhall be as ſufficient and effectual a Warrant and Diſcharge unto you, to put your ſelf, and ſuch as ſhall attend you, into Arms and Order as aforeſaid, as if you were authorized thereunto under Our Great Seal of England. And We do hereby require you to certify under your hands, within fifteen days after the receipt hereof, what Aſſiſtance We ſhall expect from you herein, and to direct the ſame to one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

Given under Our Signet, at Our Palace of Weſtminſter, the 15th day of February, in the 14th Year of Our Reign.

Whilſt the King was gone towards the North, the Clergy went on briskly with their Contribution to the War againſt the Scots, as by a particular Account following will appear.

What was contributed in other Dioceſſes, we want a perfect account thereof; but in all theſe forementioned, every particular Clergy-Man's Contribution is ſpecified by Name; and the Names of thoſe who refuſed, or were unable to contribute, were ſpecially certified, and returned to the Arch-Biſhop.

The Contribution of the Doctors of the Civil Law, at Doctors-Commons, as appears by ſeveral Notes under Sir John Lamb's own Hand, found among his Writings, amount to 671 l. 13 s. 4 d. paid in.

How ready ſuch of the Clergy were, as inclined to contribute to this War, will evidently appear by this Letter of Dr. John Pocklington, (who wrote Sunday no Sabbath) to Sir John Lamb.

SIR,

ON Thurſday and Friday laſt, the Clergie met at Bedford, before Mr. Commiſſary, Mr. Thorne, and my Self. We found them willing to contribute as much as was propounded. The pooreſt that gave any thing at all, gave no leſs than 3 s. 10 d. in the pound, without deducting of Tenths; the moſt gave after 4 s. ſome 5 s. ſome after 6 s. in the pound. Much of the Mony is paid in, and I ſuppoſe it will be all in Mr. Commiſſary's Hands by the 26th of this Month, the day appointed for the paiment. I doubt not but the Clergie of England will teach the Miniſters of Scotland Duty and Obedience; and if their Laity will be taught the like by Ours, his Majeſty I hope will have a Roial and Joiful Progreſs into Scotland; which God grant.

At this Meeting, I underſtand that Dr. Micklethwait is the Man in nomination for Sandy; he is my old Acquaintance, and very good Friend, whom I love with all my heart, for I take him to be a right Man for the Church; and if it might pleaſe God that he might be better accommodated nearer his own Means, I think we ſhould mutually rejoice.

An. 1638. No Parſonage of England could fit me better than Sandy; it is of good value, it would draw me out of that Corner, where my ſtirring for Church-Rights makes me leſs acceptable with ſome great Hands.

As the Clergy of the Church of England did liberally contribute to aſſiſt his Majeſty with a ſupply of Mony againſt the Scots, ſo the Subjects of England, of the Romiſh Religion, were not wanting to follow that Example; nor the Queen in countenancing the ſame, as by the Papers following will appear.

The Queen's Letter for the leavying of Mony againſt the Scots.

Henrietta Maria R.

WE have ſo good a belief in the Loialty and Affection of his Majeſty's Catholick Subjects, as we doubt not but upon this Occaſion, that hath called his Majeſty into the Northern Parts, for the Defence of his Honour and Dominions, they will expreſs themſelves ſo affected, as we have always repreſented them to his Majeſty. So in this common conſent which hath appeared in the Nobility, Judges, Gentry, and others, to forward his Majeſty's Service by their Perſons and States; we have made no difficulty to anſwer for the ſame correſpondency in his Catholick Subjects, as Catholicks: Notwithſtanding they all have already concurred to this his Majeſty's Service, according to the Qualities whereof they are, when others of the ſame Quality were called upon: For we believe that it became us, who have bin ſo often intereſſed in the Solicitation of their Benefits, to ſhew our ſelves now in the perſuaſion of their Gratitudes. Therefore having already, by his Majeſty and by other means, recommended to them this earneſt deſire of Ours, to aſſiſt and ſerve his Majeſty by ſome conſiderable ſum of Mony freely and chearfully preſented: We have thought fit (to the end that this our deſire may be the more publick, and the more authorized) hereby to give you Commiſſion and Direction, to diſtribute Copies under your hand of this Teſtification thereof, unto thoſe that have met in London by our Direction about this Buſineſs, and unto the ſeveral Collectors of every County. And as we preſume the ſum they will raiſe, will not be unworthy our preſenting to the King; ſo ſhall we be very ſenſible of it, as a particular reſpect to our ſelves, and will endeavour, in the moſt efficacious manner as we can, to improve the Merit of it, and to remove any apprehenſion of Prejudice, that any (who ſhall employ themſelves towards the Succeſs of this Buſineſs) may conceive by this, and be aſſured, That we will ſecure them from all ſuch objected Inconveniencies. And we are very confident, that this our firſt Recommendation will be ſo complied withal, as may not only afford us particular ſatisfaction, but alſo facilitation towards their own Advantages.

At this juncture of time, when theſe Contributions were ſet on foot to raiſe Monies to ſupply the King againſt the Scots; there was delivered to the hands of the Author of theſe Collections, by one Mr. Audly, ſince deceaſed, a Copy of a Paper which he ſaid he had from a Romiſh Recuſant, averring it to be ſent from the Pope to his Nuncio in England, which in regard it relates to the Scotiſh Affairs, (though we have no other Voucher for the ſame) yet we thought fit to communicate a Copy thereof to the Reader, which followeth in theſe words.

A Letter from the Pope to his Nuncio in England, at the beginning of the War with Scotland, but badly tranſlated.

YOu are to command the Catholicks of England in general, That they ſuddenly deſiſt from making ſuch offers of Men towards this Northern Expedition as we hear they have done, little to the advantage of their Diſcretion: And likewiſe it is requiſite, conſidering the penalty already impoſed, that they be not too forward with Mony, more than what Law and Duty enjoins them to pay, without any Innovation at all, or view of making themſelves rather weaker Pillars of the Kingdom than they were before.

Inform the Provincials of every Order, that it is expreſly prohibited, no more Aſſemblies (of what nature ſoever) ſhall admit of the Laity to have either Voice or Seſſion in it, being what will be urged for a Precedent, is but only an Uſurpation.

Declare unto the beſt of the Peers and Gentlemen, by word of Mouth or Letter, That they ought not to expreſs any averſeneſs, in caſe the High Court of Parliament be called; nor ſhew any diſcontent at the Acts which do not point-blanck aim at Religion, being in general the moſt Fundamental Law of that Kingdom.

Adviſe the Clergy to deſiſt from that fooliſh, nay rather illiterate and childiſh cuſtom of Diſtinction in the Proteſtant and Puritan Doctrine. And eſpecially this Error is ſo much the greater, when they undertake to prove that Proteſtantiſm is a degree nearer the Catholick Faith than the other; For ſince both of them be without the verge of the Church, it's needleſs Hypocriſy to ſpeak of it, yea, it begets more malice than its worth.

That the Provincials are herein required to give a general warning through all Orders, That no Religious Perſon ought to be ſeduced (by any Noble Men, either Officers of the Crown, or the like, who pretend to be Eciſmatick) into a Premunire. For he that dares not follow the Truth as his Conſcience directs him, is not worthy to be ſought or followed by any of our Faith. But on the other ſide we give the like command, That whoſoever is thought enclining to God in his heart, let no Man be ſo raſh to boaſt and ſpeak it abroad.

All buſy Enquiries are forbidden, but eſpecially into Arcanaes of State.

That none of the Church, whether Lay-Brother or Eccleſiaſtick, contribute ſo largely as they have done to the Society, but diſpoſe their Charity, that every Order may partake alike.

An. 1638.

A Copy of the Letter ſent by thoſe aſſembled in London, where the Pope's Nuncio ſat as Chief, to them of the Romiſh Religion in every Shire.

Concerning the Pope's Nuncio.

THe incloſed Advices and Motives being ſo ample, (as you will perceive by peruſing them) it will not be needful that we enlarge our ſelves upon any Particulars concerning the conduct of the Buſineſs which they direct the way in. This therefore ſerveth only to convey them to you, (as we are entreated by thoſe that have met here, and have undertaken to do it) and deſire you to repair immediately unto thoſe Perſons to whom they be directed, and to deliver the ſame unto them in the Name of all the Noble-Men and Gentry (together with our Selves) aſſembled here at London, by the Queen's Commandment, to ſet forward this Work. And we pray you aſſure them, in the moſt efficacious manner you can, (engaging all our Credits for truſt thereof) That it is the Sence of us all, both Eccleſiaſtical and Lay Perſons, that by the diſcharging of their and our Duties to God and the King; it mainly importeth the good of Catholicks to have their Buſineſs take good ſucceſs. Therefore entreat them to deal actively, and efficaciouſly, and ſpeedily, according to theſe Advices and Motives. We are ſo well perſwaded of their Devotion to put forwards ſo pious a Work, that we doubt not but they will be as well ſatisfied in the needfulneſs of the thing, and be as ready to employ themſelves in it, (receiving the Aſſurance thereof, and Perſuaſions thereunto, only from our hands) as if they came by all the moſt formal ways that can be imagined; which, in a buſineſs of this nature cannot be expected. And although the Advices and Motives be directed only to Lay-Gentlemen; yet we deſire you (and have anſwered for you) that you will employ your ſelves, and all thoſe that depend on you, ſincerely to ſolicit and diſpoſe all their minds that you have relation unto, as powerfully as you can, to contribute chearfully and bountifully upon this Occaſion; which is the firſt that ever we laboured in of this kind, ſo we hope in God it will be the laſt, there being no probability of ſo preſſing and urgent a nececeſſity to occur any more.

Yours, &c.

Sir Kenelme Digby, and Mr. Mountague's Letter, concerning the Contribution againſt the Scots, by the King's Subjects of the Romiſh Religion.

April.

IT is ſufficiently already known to every one, the extraordinary Graces and Protections we owe the Queen's Majeſty, to whoſe favourable Interceſſion we muſt aſcribe the happy Moderation we live under; ſo as we doubt not but an occaſion of the expreſſion of our Gratitudes will joifully be embraced by every Body, which the preſent eſtate of his Majeſty's Affairs doth now offer us. We have already, by our former Letters, endeavoured to prepare you to a chearful Aſſiſtance of his Majeſty, in his declared Journey to the Northern Parts, for the ſecuring of his Kingdom, and ſuch other Purpoſes as his Roial Wiſdom ſhall reſolve of; that ſo you may really demonſtrate your ſelves as good Subjects as God and Nature requires of you. Now her Majeſty hath bin graciouſly pleaſed to recommend unto us the Expreſſions of our Duties and Zeal to his Majeſty's Service, Service, by ſome conſiderable Gift from the Catholicks. And to remove all Scruples, (that even well-affected Perſons may meet with) ſhe undertakes to ſecure us, and all that ſhall employ themſelves in this Buſineſs, from any inconvenience that may be ſuſpected, by their or our forwardneſs and declaration in this kind; it will eaſily appear to every Body how much it imports us, in our ſenſe of his Majeſty's Deſires, to preſs every Body to ſtrain himſelf, even to his beſt Abilities, in this Propoſition, ſince by it we ſhall certainly preſerve her graciouſneſs to us, and give good Characters of our Devotion to the King and State; of whoſe benignity we have all reaſon to give Teſtimonies, and to endeavour to produce Arguments for the proſecution and encreaſe of it.

Now for the beſt expedition of this Buſineſs, (which is the chief Circumſtance that importeth in it) we have thought fit to recommend it to your nominations of ſuch Perſons as ſhall in your Opinions be agreed, for the ableſt and beſt diſpoſed in every ſeveral County, not only to ſollicit, but to collect ſuch voluntary Contributions, as every Bodies Conſcience and Duty ſhall proffer. And we ſhall deſire you to give us an account of what acceptation it receives from Friends, which we cannot but expect very ſucceſsful, and anſwerable to the forwardneſs we meet with here about London; for which we ſhall offer up our Prayer to God.

Wal. Mountague.

Ke. Digby.

We crave leave a little to digreſs in point of Time, and to inſert ſomething pertinent to what is before mentioned to be written by the Queen's Majeſty, to the King's Subjects of the Romiſh Religion, to encourage them to contribute Mony for the Service of the King againſt the Scots; for that when the Parliament met, Novemb. 3. 1640. her Majeſty underſtanding that the Parliament did take it ill for writing in that manner, and for that end mentioned in her Letter, did ſend a Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons by the Comptroler, which he delivered in theſe words.

'That her Majeſty has bin ready to uſe her beſt endeavours for the 'removing of all miſunderſtanding between the King and King'dom.

'That at the requeſt of the Lords, who petitioned the King for a 'Parliament, her Majeſty at that time writ effectually to the King, and 'ſent a Gentleman expreſly to perſwade the King to the holding of a 'Parliament.

'That ſhe hath ſince bin moſt willing to do all good Offices be'tween the King and the People, which is not unknown to divers of 'the Lords, and ſo ſhall ever continue to do, as judging it the only 'way of happineſs to the King, her Self, and Kingdom.

'That all things be juſtly ſetled between the King and his People; 'and all Cauſes of miſunderſtanding taken away and removed.

'That her Majeſty having taken into conſideration, that one being 'ſent to her from the Pope, is diſtaſtful to the Kingdom, ſhe is deſi'rous to give ſatisfaction to the Parliament within convenient time, 'and will remove him out of the Kingdom.

An. 1638.

‘That underſtanding likewiſe, that exception hath bin taken at the great reſort to her Chappel at Denmark-Houſe, ſhe will be careful not to exceed that which is convenient and neceſſary for the exerciſe of her Religion.

‘She further taketh notice, That the Parliament is not ſatisfied with the manner of raiſing Mony for the Aſſiſtance of the King in his Journey to the North, in the Year 1639, at her entreaty from the Catholicks; ſhe ſays, That ſhe was moved thereunto, meerly out of her dear and tender affection to the King, and the Example of other his Majeſty's Subjects, ſhe ſeeing the like forwardneſs in others for the Aſſiſtance of the King.

‘If any thing be illegal, ſhe was ignorant of the Law, and was carried therein only out of a great deſire to be aſſiſting to the King in ſo preſſing an Occaſion; but promiſeth to be more cautious hereafter, and not to do any thing but what may ſtand with the eſtabliſhed Laws of the Kingdom.

‘Her Majeſty being deſirous to employ her own Power to unite the King and People, deſireth the Parliament to look forwards, and paſs by ſuch Miſtakes and Errors of her Servants as they may be guilty of formerly; and this your reſpect ſhe promiſeth, ſhall be repaied with all good Offices ſhe can do to the Houſe, which you will find with real Effects as often as there ſhall be occaſion.

A Letter to the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury his Grace, touching Clergy-men, Defaulters at Muſters in the County of Devon.

WHereas the Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Devon, returned a Certificate to the Earl of Bedford, Lord Lieutenant of that County, and his Lordſhip to the Board, of divers Defaulters in Arms in the ſaid County. And namely among others, Mr. Pyne Clerk of Beerfortis, Mr. Burnal Parſon of Highbickington, *Mr.*Strode Rector of Dittiſham, and the Parſons of Woulſworth, Puddington, Waſhford, Eaſt-Buckland, Bondly, Cleveborough, and Bittadon, for their Spiritual Livings; which ill Example of theirs, may prove very prejudical to his Majeſty's Service. We have therefore thought good hereby, to pray your Grace to ſend to the Lord Biſhop of that Dioceſs concerning the ſame; that his Lordſhip calling the Parties aforeſaid before him, may give effectual directions to them to conform themſelves, and forthwith provide ſuch Arms as by the Biſhop of that Dioceſs have bin, or ſhall be ſet upon them; which if they, or any of them, ſhall refuſe to do, in convenient time, after notice given them, then his Lordſhip is to require them, ſo refuſing, to give their perſonal attendance upon the Board ſome day in Eaſter-Tearm next; And ſo, &c.

WHereas Sir Jacob Aſhley hath advertiſed, that it is requiſite there ſhould be ſent to Hull a proportion of Arms for Curaſſiers, and a good number of Partiſans and Halberts, which together with ſome other Arms, both for Horſe and Foot, he deſires may (as he ſhall ſee cauſe to direct) be by Captain Legg, or ſuch other as ſhall have charge thereof at Hull, ſent thence to York, to be there ſold to ſuch Perſons of that County as ſhall deſire to buy the ſame for their uſe. We have therefore thought good hereby to pray and require your Lordſhips forthwith not only to ſend to Hull 200 Curaſſiers, 100 Partiſans, and 200 Halberts, but alſo to give Order and Warrant to Captain Legg, and ſuch other as have or ſhall have charge of his Majeſty's Arms and Munition which are at Hull, or ſhall be ſent thither, to ſend from time to time to York, or elſewhere thereabouts, ſuch Arms and Munition, either for Horſe or Foot, as Sir Jacob Aſhley ſhall under his Hand direct, and to deliver the ſame into the Hands and Charge of ſuch Perſons as the Vice-Preſident of York ſhall appoint to receive, ſell, and deliver the ſame for the uſe of the Country; for which this ſhall be your Lordſhips Warrant. And ſo praying your Lordſhip to give a ſpeedy Order herein accordingly, we bid, &c.

February 27.

The King's Majeſty cauſed a Proclamation and Declaration to be publiſhed, to inform his Loving Subjects of his Kingdom of England, of the ſeditious Practices of ſome in Scotland, ſeeking to overthrow his Regal Power, under falſe pretence of Religion.

RECiting, That whereas We have endeavoured now, for a long time together, by all calm and fair ways, to appeaſe the Diſorders, and tumultuous Carriages cauſed by ſome evil-affected Perſons in Our Realm of Scotland, but hitherto all in vain; We have now thought it not only fit, but neceſſary in general, to inform all Our loving Subjects in this Our Realm of England, what the Truth is of Our Proceedings, what Our lenity and gentleneſs hath bin towards them, and what froward and perverſe Returns they have made to Us, notwithſtanding all their ſpecious Pretences, the better to inſinuate themſelves and their odious Cauſe, into the minds of Our Loial Subjects here. Theſe Diſorders and Tumults have bin thus raiſed in Scotland, and fomented by factious Spirits, and thoſe traiterouſly affected, began upon pretences of Religion, (the common Cloak for all Diſobedience) but now it clearly appears, the aim of theſe Men is not Religion, as they falſly pretend and publiſh, but it is to ſhake all Monarchical Government, and to vilify Our Regal Power, juſtly deſcended upon Us over them: Nay, their Malice reaches ſo far, both againſt Our Power and Perſon, as that in a moſt cunning and ſubtil way they have endeavoured to poiſon the Hearts of Our good and loial Subjects of this Our Kingdom, and to ſeduce them (were it in their power) to the like Rebellious Courſes with themſelves. Now though we are moſt confident of Our Peoples Affections towards Us (of which they have given Us a clear teſtimony, by their ready and chearful aſſiſtance in this Cauſe) and have not the leaſt thought that thoſe turbulent Spirits ſhall any way prevail with them, yet We cannot but hold it requiſite to give them timely notice of their traiterous Intentions, which very many ways appear unto Us.

As firſt, by the multitude of their printed Pamphlets, or rather indeed infamous Libels, ſtuffed full of Calumnies againſt Our Regal Authority, and Our moſt juſt Proceedings, and ſpreading of them in divers parts of this Our Kingdom.

Secondly, By their ſending of Letters to private Perſons, to incite them againſt Us; and ſending ſome of their fellow-Covenanters to be at private Meetings in London and elſewhere, to pervert Our good People from their Duty; and ſome of theſe Meetings We know, and ſome of thoſe Letters (lewd enough) We have ſeen.

Thirdly, By their publick contemning of all our juſt Commands, and their mutinous proteſting againſt them, a courſe not fit to be endured in any well-ordered Kingdom.

Fourthly, By their rejecting of the Covenant commanded by Our Authority, becauſe it was commanded by Us; whereas no Covenant or Band of that nature, in that Kingdom, hath ever bin, or can be legal legal and warrantable, which hath not bin commanded, or at leaſt aſſented unto by Roial Authority. As for inſtance, That Covenant in Our dear Father's Time was condeſcended unto by him, and ſo the Subject (at the humble Petition of the General Aſſembly it ſelf) permitted by him to ſign it; We ſay it again, That Our Covenant was rejected by them, becauſe commanded by Us; and this is maniſeſt, becauſe for Matters of Religion Ours agreed in all things with their own Covenant. By which Covenant of theirs, they have treacherouſly induced many of Our People to ſwear to a Band againſt us: which Band and Covenant (or rather Conſpiracy) of theirs, could not be with God, being againſt Us the Lord's Anointed over them. But it was, and is, a Band and Covenant pretended to be with God, that they may with the better countenance do the Works of the Devil, ſuch as all Treaſons and Rebellions are.

And laſtly, By their moſt hoſtile Preparations in all kinds, as if We were not their King, but their ſworn Enemy. For what can their Intentions be, being thus prepared, but to invade this Kingdom, ſhould they not find Us ready, both to reſiſt their Force, and to curb their Inſolencies? For many, and ſome of the chiefeſt amongſt them, are Men, not only of unquiet Spirits, but of broken Fortunes, and would be very glad of any occaſion (eſpecially under the colour of Religion) to make them whole upon the Lands and Goods of Our Subjects in England, who We preſume (beſides their Allegiance to Us) will look better to themſelves and their Eſtates, than to ſhare them with ſuch deſperate Hypocrites, who ſeek to be better and cannot well be worſe. We demand again, What Intentions elſe they can have? for We have already often aſſured them by Our publiſhed Proclamations, That We are ſo far from thinking of any Innovation or Alteration of Religion, that We are reſolved to maintain the ſame conſtantly, and as it is eſtabliſhed by Law in that Our Kingdom. Nay, ſo deſirous have We bin to give content unto them, as that We have in a manner condeſcended to all which they petitioned for: Nay, Our Princely Clemency in theſe produced no better effect, than increaſing and daring Inſolencies, to Our diſhonour both at Home and Abroad; Yet We paſſed by all, till they ſtruck at the very Root of Kingly Government, for they have now aſſumed to themſelves Regal Power. For whereas the Print is the Kings in all Kingdoms, theſe ſeditious Men have taken upon them to print what they pleaſe, though We forbid it; and to prohibit what they diſlike, though We command it; and with the greater affront, have forbid and diſmiſt the Printer whom We eſtabliſhed. Beſides, they have taken upon them to convene Our Subjects, raiſe Armies, block up and beſiege Our Caſtles; to lay Impoſitions and Taxes upon Our People, threatning ſuch as continue in Loialty to Us, with Force and Violence. To this We ſhall add, That they have ſlighted the Directions and Power of Our Council-Table in that Kingdom, and have ſet up Tables of their own, at which ſome of their Leaders ſit under the Name of Committees, from the late pretended General Aſſembly, or their Deputies; and thus they meet when and where they pleaſe, Treat and Conclude what they pleaſe, and ſend their Edicts through all parts of the Kingdom without any conſent, nay, without all knowledg of Us, Our Commiſſioner, or Council, and directly contrary to many ſtanding Laws at this day in force in that

Kingdom, and yet pretend Violation of their Laws, as one of the main Cauſes of their brain-ſick Diſtempers.

Here therefore We take God and the World to Witneſs, We hold Our Self forced and conſtrained to Arm, not only to reclaim them, and to ſet Our Kingly Authority right again, in that Our Ancient and Native Kingdom, but alſo for the Safety of this Kingdom, Our Loial Subjects in it, with their Wives, Children, and Goods, as well as Our own, againſt the Rage and Fury of theſe Men and their Covenant. And this We think fit to let you further know, that We hope in Time to make the beſt of them ſee, that We will endure no ſuch Covenant and Band in Our Kingdom to which We ſhall not conſent. So the Queſtion is not now, Whether a Service-Book is to be received or not? nor whether Epiſcopal Government ſhall be continued, or Presbyterial admitted? But whether We are their King or not? For though in ſome of their Libels they give us good words, and ſpeak Us fair for their own ends, eſpecially in the laſt printed at Edinburgh, Februarii quarto 1639; yet ſome of them refuſed both the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy, and publickly maintain, That they are not obliged to take the ſame. Now how can We think theſe Men are Dutiful and Loial in their Hearts, that broach ſuch dangerous Opinions? or religiouſly minded, that teach ſuch rebellious Doctrine, and ſo contrary to all, which Proteſtant Divines teach towards the King and the Civil Magiſtrate? Nay, they have infected divers of their Country-men which are come into other Parts with the ſame Venom; for three Scots-men taken in Wales, are at this day impriſoned, for direct denial of Our Supremacy and their Allegiance, ſaying, They cannot take thoſe Oaths, becauſe they have ſworn to the Covenant. But though we have bin thus mild towards them, and continued ſo long, yet we would not have any of them, or any of Our other Subjects think, that we can or will permit Epiſcopal Government, eſtabliſhed by many Acts of Parliament in that Our Kingdom, to be aboliſhed, ſeeing it is known to the whole Chriſtian World, that the ſame is moſt Chriſtian in it ſelf, and moſt peaceable for the Civil State, and moſt conſonant to Monarchical Government.

And we would have Our Subjects of that Kingdom conſider, what will become of the third Eſtate there in Parliament, if Epiſcopacy ſhould be abrogated?

And further we think fit to declare unto you, and to the Chriſtian World, That by Our intention of introducing the Service-Book into that Kingdom, we had not the leaſt thought of Innovation of Religion in this or that, but meerly to have a conformity with that Worſhip of God, which is obſerved within both Our other Kingdoms, though ill-minded Men have wreſted ſome things in it to a ſiniſter ſence.

We further give you to underſtand, That there is a large Declaration coming forth, containing all the particular Paſſages which have occurred in this Buſineſs, from the very beginning, atteſted with their own foul Acts, to diſanul and ſhame their fair, but falſe words. But becauſe this cannot ſo ſoon be made ready, we hold it moſt expedient to let this ſhort Declaration forerun it, that Our loial Subjects here and elſe-where, may not be infected with their falſe, wicked, ſpecious, but moſt ſeditious Informations: For Example-ſake, in their laſt Pamphlet (beſides divers other falſe, baſe, and fawning Paſſages) there are theſe ſcandalous and moſt notorious Untruths: As firſt, they ſay, That we have committed the Arms we now take, and the Armies we now raiſe, into the hands of profeſſed Papiſts; which is not more diſhonourable to Our ſelf, and the Noble Perſons intruſted by Us, than odiouſly and notoriouſly falſe. Again, they ſay, That ſome of Power in the Hierarchy of England, have bin the Cauſe of Our taking Arms to invade Our Native Kingdom, and of medling with their Religion: whereas it is moſt certain, that no one of them have done any thing therein, but by Our own Princely Direction and Command. And for Arms, it is notoriouſly known to all Our Council then preſent, That their counſels were for Peace, and have bin the Perſwaders (as much as in them lay) of the undeſerved Moderation wherewith we have hitherto proceeded towards ſo great Offenders.

And further they ſay, That they intend no Act of Hoſtility againſt England, unleſs they ſhall be neceſſitated in their own Defence. We would fain know, Defence of what? Is it of Diſobedience? Defence againſt whom? Is it not againſt Us their True and Lawful Soveraign? If they will defend againſt Us, it ought to be by Law, and not by Arms; that Defence we ſhall never deny them, this by Arms we ſhall never permit them. Now Our Laws which they ſeem ſo much to value, are in a manner oppreſt by them, in ſo much that Our Judges are ſo awed, as that they dare hardly proceed according to Law.

With theſe and the like mutinous Libels, we deſire our good Subjects ſhould not be infected, but that all of them might know the preſent neceſſity we have to Arm Our Self, which is for no other End, ſave only for the Safety and Security of this Our Kingdom, the re-eſtabliſhment of our Authorities in that, and the ſuppreſſing of ſuch as have miſled and abuſed Our Subjects there, and would (if not prevented) do the like here, but is no way to inforce any Innovation of Religion eſtabliſhed in that Kingdom, or any ways to infringe the Laws thereof, or any of their Liberties whatſoever, which are according to Law.

Theſe are therefore to Will and Command all Our Loving Subjects of this Our Kingdom, that they receive no more of their ſeditious Pamphlets ſent from Scotland, or any other place concerning thoſe Affairs, which can have no other uſe or influence, than to draw the Hearts of Our Loial People to the like Rebellious Courſes; and that ſuch of Our Subjects here, as have already received any of theſe Rebellious Pamphlets, do preſently deliver them to the next Juſtice of Peace, that he may ſend them to one of Our Secretaries, as both they and the Juſtices of Peace will anſwer it at their utmoſt perils.

And Our further Will and Pleaſure is, That this Our Proclamation and Declaration be read in time of Divine Service in every Church within the Kingdom, that all our People, to the meaneſt, may ſee the notorious Carriages of theſe Men, and likewiſe the Juſtice and Mercy of all Our Proceedings.

Given at Our Court at Whitehall the 27th day of February, in the four and twentieth Year of Our Reign, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland.

At Whitehall, March 1. 1638.

A Letter directed to the Vice-Preſident of York, and Council, concerning Proviſion to be made there.

'AFter, &c. Whereas his Majeſty, by his Letters ſent in February laſt, hath formerly required you to take order, that there be timely care uſed, not only to hinder the exportation of all ſorts of Grain, Butter, Cheeſe, and other Victuals out of that County, but to ſee that there be a good quantity of thoſe Proviſions, as alſo of Hay and Straw for Horſe, provided in ſtore in ſeveral parts of that County for ſupply of his Majeſty's Army, which is intended to lie in the Northern Parts for Defence and Preſervation of the ſame upon all occaſions. And whereas for encouragement of ſuch as ſhould make any Proviſions in that kind, his Majeſty was pleaſed, by his ſaid Letters, to give you Directions to aſſure all Men, that they ſhall be duly paid whatſoever ſhall be received from them.

'Foraſmuch as ſome Perſons ill-affected to his Majeſty's Service and juſt Reſolutions, have endeavoured (as it is informed) to put cauſleſs doubts into the heads of ſome in thoſe parts, whereby to deter them from making any ſuch ſtore of Proviſions as they would otherwiſe have made and reſerved for that purpoſe. We are by his Majeſty's expreſs Command, hereby to require you again publickly to declare and make known, in all fitting Places; and not only in the County of York, but in all other the Northern Counties, to all Perſons that either have in their Hands, or ſhall make any Proviſions of Corn, Meal, Butter, Cheeſe, or other Victuals for Souldiers, or Hey, Oats, Peaſe, Beans, or Straw, for Horſes, that they ſhall be duly paid whatſoever ſhall be received from them, according to the price of the Market. To the end that the Country may take notice, that his Majeſty intends this Army for their Defence and Preſervation, and not for their Prejudice, as ill-affected Perſons endeavour by falſe Tales to inſinuate. Hereof his Majeſty and this Board doth expect to receive an Accompt of your effectual Endeavours before the 18*th* of this preſent March; and ſo we bid you farewel. Dated the third of March.

CHARLES by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. To Our Right Truſty, and Right well-beloved Couſin and Counſellor, Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, and Earl Marſhal of England, and Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, Greeting.

Lord Marſhal's Commiſſion.

KNow ye, that we repoſing ſpecial truſt and confidence in your approved Wiſdom, Fidelity, Valour and great Ability, have aſſigned, made, conſtituted, and ordained you to be the General of Our Army intended forthwith to be raiſed: and over all Our Men, which be, or ſhall be levied in all Our Counties of this Our Realm, or Dominion of Wales; and aſſembled, or to be aſſembled to any Army, or Armies, to reſiſt and withſtand all Invaſions, Tumults, Seditions, Conſpiracies, or Attempts that may happen to be made againſt Our Perſon, or State; and to Rule, Govern, Command, Diſpoſe and Employ the ſame Army, and all Officers ſo emploied, or to be emploied concerning the ſame, with all ſuch farther Forces, of what Nation ſoever, as ſhall be hereafter joined thereunto for their ſupply, for the accompliſhment of ſuch Executions, Defences, Offences, and other Services as are or ſhall be by Us from time to time directed, limited, and appointed, in or by ſuch private Inſtructions as are herewith delivered unto you under Our Signet Manual. And farther, we have given you full Power and Authority, That the ſame Perſons ſo levied or aſſembled, or ſo to be levied or aſſembled by you, or ſent, conducted, or brought, or that otherwiſe ſhall come to you, either by our ſeveral Orders, or by Authority of this our Commiſſion as aforeſaid, to try, array, and put in readineſs; and them, and every of them after their Abilities, Degrees, and Faculties, well and ſufficiently cauſe to be Weaponed, and Armed; and take, or cauſe to be taken, the Muſters of them, or any other our Trained Bands, which within this our Realm of England, and Dominion of Wales, from time to time, in Places moſt meet for that purpoſe, after your good Diſcretion. And alſo the ſame our Subjects ſo Arrayed, Tryed, and Armed, as well Men of Arms, as Horſe-men, Archers, and Foot-men of all kinds and degrees, meet and apt for the Wars, to Govern, Lead, and Conduct, againſt all and ſingular our Enemies attempting any thing againſt Us, Our Crown and Dignity; and Our ſaid Army to divide, diſtribute, and diſpoſe, and the ſame, or any part thereof, to convey by Land, or by Water, as occaſion ſhall require, according to your good diſcretion; and with the ſame Enemies, Rebels, and Traitors, to fight, and them to Invade, Reſiſt, Repreſs, Purſue, and follow into any Our Dominions; and them to ſubdue, and to do, fulfil and execute all, and ſingular other things which ſhall be requiſite for the Leading,

An. 1638.

Government, Order, and Rule of our ſaid Armies and Subjects, and for conſervation of our Perſon and Peace. And farther to do, offer, and execute againſt the ſaid Enemies, Rebels, Traitors, and their Adherents, and other Delinquents and Offenders, as need ſhall require, by your Diſcretion, by the Law Martial, as our General: And of ſuch apprehended and brought into ſubjection, to ſave whom you ſhall think good to be ſaved, and to ſlay, deſtroy, and put to execution of Death, ſuch and ſo many of them as you ſhall think meet by your diſcretion, to be put to death by any manner of means, to the terror of all other Offenders. And We do farther give unto you our General, full Power and Authority, for Us, and in our Name, as occaſion ſhall require, according to your good diſcretion, by publick Proclamation, to make tender of our Royal Grace and Pardon, to all ſuch Traitors, Rebels, and all other Offenders as ſhall ſubmit to Us, and deſign to be relieved by our Mercy. And further, our Will and Pleaſure is, and by theſe Preſents We do give you full Power and Authority, that in caſe any Invaſion of Enemies, Inſurrection, Rebellion, Riots, Routs, or unlawful Aſſemblies, or any like Offences ſhall happen to be moved, That then, as often as you ſhall perceive any ſuch Miſdemeanours to ariſe, You, with all the Power you can make, ſhall with all diligence repair, and ſend convenient Forces to the Places where any ſuch Attempt, Invaſion, unlawful Aſſembly, Inſurrection, or Rebellion ſhall happen to be made; and ſubdue, repreſs, and reform the ſame, as well by Battel, or other kind of Force, as otherwiſe by the Law of the Realm, or the Law Martial, according to your good diſcretion. And for the better execution of this our Commiſſion, We do further give you Power and Authority, from time to time, to command and require of all our Lieutenants ſpecial, and their Deputy Lieutenants of the ſeveral Counties of this our Realm, or Dominion of Wales, to ſend to you ſuch number of Able Men for the Wars, as well Horſe-men as Foot-men of the Trained-Bands, or other, ſufficiently armed and furniſhed, to ſuch Place and Places, and at ſuch Time and Times, as you in your Wiſdom ſhall appoint and require: Which ſaid Forces you are to govern, order, and diſpoſe, as your preſent Occaſions ſhall require, for the advantage of our Service, according to your good diſcretion. And farther, for your better aſſiſtance in this our Service, We do hereby aſſign, make, conſtitute, and ordain, our Right Truſty, and Right Well-beloved Couſin, Robert Earl of Eſſex and Eme, Vicount Hereford and Bourchier, Lord Ferrers of Chartley, Lord Bourchier, to be our Lieutenant General of this our Army; and our right Truſty, and right Well-beloved Couſin and Counſellor, Henry Earl of Holland, Lord Chief Juſtice & Juſtice of Eyre of all our Foreſts, Chaces, Parks, and Warrens on this ſide Trent, firſt Gentleman of our Bed-Chamber, and Knight of the moſt noble Order of the Garter, to be our General of our Troops of Horſe, to ſerve in Our ſaid Army for the Execution of this our Commiſſion, according to ſuch Directions as from time to time you ſhall think fit to give unto them. And farther, We do give you Power and Authority, to appoint within our ſaid Army, a Provoſt-Marſhal, to uſe and exerciſe that Office, in ſuch caſe as you ſhall think fit to uſe the ſaid Law Martial. And We do alſo give you our general full Power and Authority by theſe

Preſents,

Preſence, to hear, Examine, and Determine, as well by your ſelf, as by your ſufficient Deputy, or Deputies, all Criminal Cauſes growing and ariſing within Our ſaid Army, as well concerning the Death of any Perſon, as loſs of Member; and all Cauſes Civil, whatſoever they be, that ſhall happen to chance within this Our ſaid Army. And alſo We give you full Power and Authority to make, Conſtitute, and ordain Ordinances and Proclamations, from time to time, as the Caſe ſhall require, for the good Government, Rule, and Order of Our ſaid Army; and the ſame, and every one of them Cauſes, to be duly proclaimed, performed, and executed; and whomſoever you ſhall find contrarious, diſobedient, or diſorderly in our ſaid Army, to arreſt, apprehend, and impriſon, and them and every of them to chaſtiſe and puniſh: and ſuch as ſhall be impriſoned, you ſhall cauſe them to be proceeded againſt according to the quantity of the Offence, as well by pains of Death, as loſs of Member, or otherwiſe, according to your diſcretion; and to deliver and ſet at liberty any Perſon ſo impriſoned, as by you ſhall be thought convenient. And for encouragement of all and deſerving Perſons, We do give you full Power and Authority in Our abſence, to reward and honour with the Order of Knighthood, and of [illegible] Demerits, ſuch as in your diſcretion ſhall deſerve the ſame in this our preſent Service; and to grant and aſſign them Arms, and Enſigns of Arms as is need, and to the Office of a General appertaineth. And We do farther give Power and Authority to you Our General, for Cauſes eſpecially moving you, by your Letters under your Seal, from time to time, when, and as often as to you ſhall ſeem meet, to grant ſafe Conduct, general and ſpecial, in all places, by Land or by Water, to any Perſons whatſoever; and generally to do and execute all and every thing and things, which to the Office of a General of Our ſaid Army doth belong and appertain; and which for the good and ſafe Government of Our Army, and Subjects, ſhall be thought expedient and neceſſary. And for the better execution of this Our Service, We do further give you Our General, full Power and Authority, as occaſion ſhall require, to Command all Our Forts and Caſtles now fortified, or hereafter to be fortified, in or near the Parts or Places where Our ſaid Army from time to time ſhall be; and to remove, diſplace, and continue the Captains, Lieutenants, and Souldiers and Garriſons there, as cauſe ſhall require; and to furniſh the ſame Caſtles and Forts with other Captains, Lieutenants, and Souldiers, as you ſhall think meet, for the ſafety and good of the Army, and the advantage of this Our Service. And We Will and Command you, Our General, that with all theſe you do execute the Premiſes with effect. Wherefore We Will and Command all and ſingular Lieutenants General, Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Viſcounts, Barons, Baronets, Knights, Eſquires, Gentry, Bailiffs, Conſtables, Captains, petty Captains, Souldiers, and all other Officers, Miniſters, and Loving Subjects, of what State, Degree, or Condition ſoever ye or they ſhall be; That they and every of them, with their Power, and Servants, from time to time, be aſſiſting, aiding and helping, counſelling, helping, and at your Commandment, in the due execution hereof, as they and every of them tender Our Pleaſure, and will anſwer the contrary at their Perils. And farther, Our Pleaſure is, That whatſoever you ſhall do by virtue of this Our Commiſſion and Private Inſtructions, and according to the Tenor and Effect of the ſame, touching the execution of the Premiſes, or any part thereof, you ſhall be diſcharged in that behalf againſt Us, Our Heirs, Succeſſors. Yet nevertheleſs Our Intent and Meaning is, That this Our preſent Commiſſion, or any thing therein contained, ſhall not impeach or infringe the Office of Earl-Marſhal of England, or any Right or Juriſdiction incident or belonging to the ſame. In Witneſs whereof We have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents, and to continue during our Pleaſure.

May it pleaſe your moſt Excellent Majeſty, This containeth your Majeſty's Commiſſion to Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, Earl-Marſhal of England: Whereas your Majeſty doth appoint him him General of your Majeſty's Army; Robert Earl of Eſſex to be your Majeſty's Lieutenant General, and Henry Earl of Holland your Majeſty's General of your Troops of Horſe, to ſerve in the Army with their ſundry Powers and Juriſdictions, the ſaid Lord General of the Army; which have bin ſeen and approved of by your Majeſty;

And is done by Warrant under your Majeſty's Signet Manual.

Jo. Banckes.

Nobility and Gentry to have the preemption of Horſes at Wooborn-Fair.

‘WHereas divers of the Nobility and Gentry of this Kingdom, who are to attend and ſerve his Majeſty in the Expedition now in hand, are by his Majeſty's expreſs Command, to attend with Horſes according to their ſeveral Qualities. And whereas it is informed, that divers Horſe-courſers do uſually either foreſtal the Markets, or ingroſs into their hands the Horſes which come to Fairs and Markets, and thereby inhaunce the prices of Horſes to unreaſonable rates. And whereas Wooborn Fair, which is uſually a great Horſe-Fair, falls out to be ſome ſix days hence. Theſe are therefore to will and require you to have eſpecial care, that no Horſe-Courſer, nor any for them, ſhall be permitted to buy any Horſes within that Fair, or Town, and the Precincts and Liberties thereof, until the laſt day of the ſaid Fair, to the end the Nobility and Gentry having the pre-emption, may by that time have furniſhed themſelves with ſuch number of Horſes for his Majeſty's Service, as they ſhall think fit to buy there. And leſt by any practice or combination of the Horſe-Courſers, or out of any other by-reſpect in the Seller, it ſhould happen that Men refuſed to ſell their Horſes at reaſonable and uſual prices, you are at the beginning of the ſaid Fair, to make known and publiſh, (and accordingly ſee it put in execution) that no Perſon ſhall be permitted to ſell any Horſe, either to a Horſe-Courſer,

‘or any other imploied for them at any lower rate or price than that which he had bin offered by thoſe imploied as aforeſaid for his Majeſty's Service. And theſe are further to ſignify unto you, that the Bearer hereof, John Ward, Gentleman of my Horſe, is by me purpoſely ſent to ſee the due execution of theſe Directions, whom I require you to aſſiſt in the furtherance of this Service, as you will anſwer the contrary at your peril.

Starch-makers Warrant.

‘WHereas Robert Smith, Leonard Stockdale, Hugh Care, and Nathaniel Fox, are lawfully deputed and authorized, by the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Company of Starch-makers, according to the Power and Authority given to the ſaid Corporation by his Majeſty's Letters Patents and Proclamation, to ſearch for (with the aſſiſtance of a Conſtable, and other lawful Officers) in all ſuſpected Places, and to ſeize and carry away all White Starch, and Materials prepared for making of White Starch, as likewiſe all White Starch imported from Foreign Parts, contrary to the ſaid Letters Patents, and his Majeſty's Proclamation. And to break, deface, and deſtroy all Pans, Ciſterns, and other Veſſels imploied or ſet up for the making of White Starch, or Materials belonging to the making of White Starch, contrary to the ſaid Letters Patents, and his Majeſty's Proclamation. Theſe are therefore in his Majeſty's Name, ſtraitly to charge and command you, and every of you, when and as oft as need ſhall require, to help and aſſiſt to the uttermoſt of your Power, the ſaid Robert Smith, Leonard Stockdale, Hugh Care, and Nathaniel Fox, or any of them, in the ſearching for, ſeizing, and carrying away, to his Majeſty's uſe, of all White Starch, and Materials prepared for the making of White Starch. As likewiſe all White Starch imported from Foreign Parts; and in doing and performing every Act and other thing directed by his Majeſty's ſaid Letters Patents and Proclamation. And in like manner to aid and aſſiſt them, or any of them, in the breaking and forcing open the Doors or Houſes (when they cannot otherwiſe enter) where any prohibited White Starch, or Materials prepared for making of White Starch is ſuſpected to be made or kept: And furthermore to apprehend all and every the wilful Offenders againſt his Majeſty's ſaid Letters Patents and Proclamation.

This following Advertiſement was miſlaid, when it ſhould have bin inſerted in its proper Place and Time, nevertheleſs we thought fit to inſert it, becauſe it brings ſome Intelligence in reference to the Scotiſh Affairs.

Letters of Intelligence concerning the Scots.

After Marqueſs Hamilton's arrival in Scotland, in the beginning of June this Year, as the King's High Commiſſioner, to ſettle the diſtracted Affairs of that Kingdom, he found (as is mentioned more fully in the Narrative we have already given of the Commotions in Scotland) great Oppoſition by the Covenanters, and more particularly by their Proteſtation againſt the King's Declaration of June the 28*th*, That his Majeſty will not preſs the practice of the Service-Book, and Canons, &c.

An. 1638.

Cardinal Richleu's Chaplain in Scotland.

At this time the Church of Rome had Agents in Scotland as well as in England, one of them who ſubſcribes a Letter, probably was Cardinal Richleu's Chaplain, by name Chambers, or Chamberlain, who was then preſent in Scotland, blowing the Coles of Fire there kindled; which Letter concerned the Affairs of Scotland, and was to the effect following, dated June 28.

My Reverend Father,

I Have not bin at London five days in all ſince I came from France, elſe I had not failed to ſalute your Reverence, &c. I know not what to ſay of Mortimer the Superior of Scotland, as knowing not whether he hath leave to go or not, nor yet their Procurer who reſides in this Court. Scotland is in a very ill poſture, and in evident danger to ſever it ſelf from this Crown.

And in another Letter of the ſame date, the ſame Party writes this enſuing Letter.

SIR,

* Ship-mony.

BY all theſe Proceedings, the King evidently ſeeth, that they (the Scots) will not ſubmit themſelves to Reaſon, by fairneſs or ſweetneſs, and therefore he hath taken a Reſolution to tame them by Force, and to this purpoſe goeth about to raiſe an Army in Ireland, not daring to truſt himſelf with the Engliſh, *who already are much irritated againſt him, by reaſon of the * Monies which he pretends to raiſe to maintain his Fleet, the which they refuſe down-right to pay. This counſel of raiſing an Army, has bin ſuggeſted unto him by the Biſhop of* Canterbury, and the Preſident of Ireland, which are they alone that govern him, for he hath never yet opened his Mouth, or ſpoken one ſole word of it to his Council of State, but ſeeks very much to keep all cloſe from them. The which highly diſpleaſeth all theſe Lords; and Men hold this Counſel of the Army for Ireland, a moſt pernitious Counſel: But I know not what better he could take, for it is moſt dangerous to raiſe it in England, where all the World is diſcontent; and for to raiſe an Army here, it were to give them the Sword in their hands to defend themſelves; for the part of the Puritans is ſo great, and they have ſuch a correſpondence with the Scots, that they begin already to break the Altars which the Biſhops had erected, and to accuſe the Biſhops of Crimes, and to demand the re-eſtabliſhment of many ſilenced Miniſters, with a thouſand other Inſolencies, &c.

June 28. Your humble and moſt obliged Servant.

At the ſame time there was another Letter of the ſame date writ to one Monſieur Ford, by ſome Prieſt or Romiſh Recuſant, to the effect following: All which ſaid Letters were found amongſt the Papers of one of his Majeſty's Privy-Council.

OUr Scots Buſineſs troubles us ſhrewdly, and grows worſe and worſe; they will have a Parliament, and the King (for the Conſequence of it in this Kingdom) will never permit it, and ſo they have taken a Reſolution to levy an Army in Ireland, ſo to trouble them and ſubdue them; which is held there by wiſe Men to be a very deſperate Counſel. But the King conſults with none but the Arch-Biſhop and the Deputy of Ireland; which diſguſts all, and makes Men ſee more weakneſs in him than was ever imagined: other News we have none. Fitten (the Agent for the Secular Prieſts at Rome*) is here, and was preſented to the King by my Lord* Arundel, to whom he had ſent from Italy many little Toys, but now he knows he is a Prieſt. Pray tell my dear Amiable, I thank him heartily for his Note, and have ſeen his Man Jaques Depuis, who is a good Cutter or Graver in Stone, and continues Catholick, Honeſt, and known to the Capucins.

Yours,

Will. Heill.

Having ended this Year as to Engliſh Affairs, we ſhall return to the Tranſactions of Affairs in Scotland, where we left, and to give an Account of the whole Proceedings of the Aſſembly at Glaſgow; and the firſt that comes in order of Time, is his Majeſty's Letter to the Privy-Council of Scotland, to aſſiſt the Marqueſs at the ſaid Aſſembly at Glaſgow, as followeth.

K. D.

Right Truſty, and Right Well-beloved Couſin and Counſellor; Right Truſty, and Right Well-beloved Couſins and Counſellors, We greet you well.

'AS by Our Letter We find how well you are ſatisfied with Our gracious Pleaſure, expreſſed in Our late Proclamation and Declaration, ſo We do expect the continuance of your Care, by your beſt Endeavours, to bring all Our good People to a true ſenſe of Our Roial Intentions, and real Care of preferring and advancing the Good and Peace of that Church and Kingdom, which hath always bin, and ſtill is one of Our chiefeſt Cares; We give you hearty thanks for your Affection and Pains in this Service, and do approve of your Courſe in ſubſcribing of the Confeſſion & Band, and order taken by you for publiſhing, and requiring the like due and thankful acceptance of Our gracious Pleaſure by all Our good Subjects. And ſeeing the time of the Aſſembly doth now approach, We require you to attend diligently upon Our Commiſſioner, until the time appointed for the down-ſitting of the ſaid Aſſembly, and further, to the final ending thereof, that from time to time you may be aſſiſting to him with your beſt Opinions and Advices, for preparing and digeſting every thing ‘that may conduce to bring this Buſineſs to be treated upon in the Aſſembly, to the wiſhed, peaceable, and happy end: And although We will not doubt but that all Our good Subjects will be careful of every thing that may concern Us, or Our Soveraign Authority; yet becauſe that at ſuch publick and general Meetings, it is not to be expected that all Mens Diſpoſitions will be alike, and of one temper, We require you, that in a more particular manner, according to the Truſt and Confidence We have in your Affections to Our Service, carefully to advert, That if any Propoſition ſhall be made which may ſeem to derogate from Soveraignty, or that true ſtate of Monarchical Government already eſtabliſhed within that Kingdom, or which may impede the peaceable concluſion of this Aſſembly, that as good Subjects, and faithful Counſellors and Servants to Us, you aſſiſt Our Commiſſioner to withſtand the ſame to the uttermoſt of your Power. To whom We will you to give abſolute Truſt in every thing, which he in our Name ſhall deliver or impart to you, or any of you, in publick or in private. And ſo We bid you farewel.

From our Manour of Hampton-Court, the firſt of October, 1638.

The City of Glaſgow being much filled and thronged with all ſorts of People; on the 21 of November 1638, the day deſigned by the King's Proclamation, the General Aſſembly begun, and was opened, and the Proceedings were as followeth.

After Sermon in the Morning, they aſſembled in the Afternoon, and begun with the chuſing of a Moderator. The King's Commiſſioner (who ſat upon a Seat, raiſed in a Place eminent above the reſt, with his Aſſeſſors about him conveniently ſeated below) told them that there was ſomething elſe to be done before the choice of the Moderator, viz. That his Commiſſion was firſt to be read, that it might be known by what Authority he ſat there; which was done accordingly, bearing date at Oatlands the 29*th* of July 1638. The Commiſſion followeth in theſe words.

Then the Aſſembly urged the choice of a Moderator, but the Marqueſs deſired firſt the King's Letter to be read; which was done, and is as followeth.

The King's Letter to the Aſſembly.

Octob. 29.

'Although We be not ignorant, that the beſt of Our Actions
'have bin miſtaken by many of Our Subjects, in that Our An'cient Kingdom, as if We had intended Innovation in Religion and 'Laws; yet conſidering nothing to be more incumbent to the Duty of a Chriſtian King, than the advancement of God's Glory, and the True Religion; forgetting what is paſt, We have ſeriouſly taken into Our Princely Conſideration, ſuch Particulars as may ſettle and eſtabliſh the Truth of Religion in that Our Ancient Kingdom; and alſo to ſatisfy all Our good Subjects of the reality of Our Intentions herein, having indicted a free General Aſſembly to be kept at Glaſgow the 21 of this Inſtant. We have likewiſe appointed Our Commiſſioner to attend the ſame, from whom you are to expect Our Pleaſure in every thing, and to whom We require to give that true and due Reſpect and Obedience, as if We were perſonally preſent Our Self: And in full aſſurance of Our conſent to what he ſhall in Our Name promiſe, We have ſigned theſe, and wills the ſame for a Teſtimony to Poſterity, to be regiſtred in the Books of the Aſſembly.
'of

After this the Marqueſs made a Speech to the Aſſembly.

The Marqueſs his Speech at the firſt ſitting of the Aſſembly.

My Lords, and the reſt of the Reverend Aſſembly,

‘THe making of long Harangues, is not ſuitable either with my Education, or Profeſſion, much leſs with this Time, which now after ſo much talking, ought to be a Time of Action.

‘I pray God that as great (and I hope the worſt) part of Mens Spirits hath bin evaporated into bitter and invective Speeches, ſo the beſt and laſt part of them may be reſerved for Deeds, and theſe anſwerable to the Profeſſions which have bin made on all ſides when this great Aſſembly ſhould come.

‘For the Profeſſions which have bin made by Our Sacred Soveraign, (whom God long preſerve to reign over us) I am come hither, by his Command to make them good to his whole People, whom to his grief he hath found to have bin poiſoned (by whom I know not well, but God forgive them) with miſconceits of his Intentions, concerning the Religion profeſſed in this Church and Kingdom. But to rectify all ſuch Miſconceptions of his Subjects, his Majeſty's deſire is, That before this Aſſembly proceed to any thing elſe, his Subjects may receive ample and clear ſatisfaction in theſe Points, wherein his Majeſty's gracious Intentions have bin miſdoubted, or glanced at, by the malevolent Aſpects of ſuch as are afraid that his Majeſty's good Subjects ſhould ſee his clear Mind through any other Glaſſes or Spectacles, than thoſe they have tempered and fitted for them.

‘Firſt, As if there had bin in his Majeſty, if not ſome Intentions, yet at leaſt ſome Inclination, to give way, if not to Alterations, yet to ſome Innovations in the Religion profeſſed in, and eſtabliſhed by the Laws of this Church and Kingdom.

‘I am confident that no Man can harbour or retain any ſuch thought in his Breaſt any more, when his Majeſty hath commanded that Confeſſion of Faith (which you call the Negative) to be ſubſcribed by all his Subjects whatſoever, and hath bin graciouſly pleaſed to put the execution of this his Royal Command in your own hands.

‘The next falſe, and indeed foul and deviliſh ſurmize, wherewith his good Subjects have bin miſled, is, That nothing promiſed in his Majeſty's laſt moſt gracious Proclamation (though moſt ungraciouſly received) was ever intended to be performed, nay, not the Aſſembly it ſelf; but that only time was to be gained, till his Majeſty by Arms might oppreſs this his own Native Kingdom; than which report Hell it ſelf could not have raiſed a blacker and falſer.

‘For that part which concerneth the Report of the Intention of not holding the Aſſembly, this Day and Place, as was firſt promiſed and proclaimed, (thanks be to God) confuteth that Calumny abundantly; for the other, making good what his Majeſty did promiſe in his laſt gracious Proclamation, his Majeſty hath commanded me thus to expreſs his Heart to all his good Subjects.

‘He hath ſeriouſly conſidered all the Grievances of his Subjects, which have bin preſented to him by all and ſeveral of their Petitions, Remonſtrances, and Supplications exhibited unto himſelf, his Commiſſioner, and Lords of his Secret-Council, and hath graciouſly granted them all; and as he hath already granted as far as could be by Proclamation, ſo he doth now deſire, that his Subjects may be aſſured of them by Acts of this General Aſſembly, and afterwards by Acts of Parliament reſpective.

‘And therefore he not only deſires, but commands that all the Particulars he hath promiſed, be firſt gone in hand with in this Aſſembly, and Enacted, and then afterwards what his Subjects ſhall deſire, being found reaſonable, may be next thought upon, that ſo it may be known to God and the whole World, and particularly to all his good Subjects, how careful his Majeſty is to diſcharge himſelf of all his gracious Promiſes made to them, hoping that when you ſhall ſee how roially, graciouſly, and faithfully his Majeſty hath dealt with you and all his Subjects, you will likewiſe correſpond in loial and dutiful Obedience, in chearful, but calm and peaceable Proceeding, in all other Buſineſs to be treated of in this Aſſembly: And becauſe there ſhall be no Miſtake, I ſhall now repeat the Particulars, that you may ſee they are the ſame which were promiſed by his Majeſty's firſt Proclamation.

As ſoon as the Marqueſs had done ſpeaking, he tendred to the Aſſembly a Paper from his Majeſty containing his Conceſſions; which Paper followeth in theſe words.

The Kings Offers to the Aſſembly.

CHARLES R.

The King's Majeſty being informed, That many of his good Subjects have apprehended, that by the Introduction of the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, the inbringing of Popery and Superſtition hath bin intended, is graciouſly pleaſed to diſcharge the ſaid Books, and to annul all Acts made for eſtabliſhing thereof; and for his good People their further ſatisfaction, is graciouſly pleaſed to declare by me, That no other in that kind ſhall hereafter be introduced, but in a fair and legal way of Aſſembly, allowed by Act of Parliament, and the Laws of this Kingdom.

The King's Majeſty, as he conceived, for the eaſe and benefit of the Subjects, eſtabliſhed the High Commiſſion, that thereby Juſtice might might be adminiſtred, and the Faults and Errors of ſuch Perſons as are made liable thereto, taken order with, and puniſhed with the more convenience, and leſs trouble to the People: But finding his gracious Intentions to be herein miſtaken, hath bin pleaſed, like as he is graciouſly content, that the ſame be diſcharged, with all Acts and Deeds made for the eſtabliſhing thereof, and is pleaſed to declare by me, That that Court or Judicatory, nor no other of that nature, ſhall be brought in hereafter, but in that way allowed by the Laws of this Kingdom.

And the King's Majeſty being informed, That the urging of the five Articles of Perth's Aſſembly hath bred diſtraction in the Church and State, hath bin graciouſly pleaſed to take the ſame into his conſideration, and for the Quiet and Peace of Church and State, doth not only diſpenſe with the practice of the ſaid Articles, but alſo diſcharges, and by theſe hath diſcharged all and whatſoever Perſons from urging the practice thereof, upon either Laick or Eccleſiaſtick Perſon whatſoever: And doth hereby free all his Subjects from all Cenſure and Pain, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Secular, for not urging, practiſing, or obeying them, or any of them, notwithſtanding any thing contained in the Acts of Parliament, or General Aſſembly to the contrary.

And becauſe it is pretended, that Oaths have bin adminiſtred to Miniſters at their entry, contrary and differing from that which is ſet down in the Acts of Parliament, his Majeſty is pleaſed to declare and ordain, That no other Oath ſhall be required of any other Miniſter at his entry, than that which is expreſly ſet down in the Acts of Parliament: And this he is content be conſidered of in the Aſſembly, to be repreſented to the Eſtates of Parliament, and enacted as they ſhall find expedient.

And that it may appear how careful his Majeſty is, that no Corruption or Innovation ſhall creep into this Church, neither any Scandal, Vice, or Fault of any Perſon whatſoever, cenſurable or puniſhable by the Aſſembly, go unpuniſhed, it is his Majeſty's pleaſure; likeas by theſe his Majeſty does aſſure all his good Subjects, that hereafter General Aſſemblies ſhall be kept as oft as the Affairs of this Kirk ſhall require: And to this purpoſe, becauſe it's probable that ſome things neceſſary for the preſent eſtate and good of this Church may be left unperfected at this preſent Aſſembly, We do by theſe indict another Aſſembly to be holden at   And that none of Our Subjects may have cauſe of Grievance againſt the procedure of Prelats, Our pleaſure is, That all and every one of the preſent Biſhops, and their Succeſſors, ſhall be anſwerable, and accordingly from time to time cenſurable, according to their Merits by the Aſſembly; which his Majeſty is likewiſe pleaſed be enacted in this preſent Aſſembly, and thereafter ratified in Parliament.

And to give all his Majeſty's good People good aſſurance that he never intended to admit any alteration or change in the true Religion profeſſed within this Kingdom, and that they may be truly and fully ſatisfied of the reality of his Intentions towards the maintenance of the Truth, and integrity of the ſame, his Majeſty hath bin pleaſed to require and command all his good Subjects, to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, ſubſcribed by his dear Father in Anno 1580; and for that effect hath ordained the Lords of his Privy Council to take ſome ſpeedy courſe, whereby the ſame may be done through the whole Kingdom; which his Majeſty requires likewiſe all thoſe of this preſent Aſſembly to ſign, and all other his Subjects, who have not done it already: And it is his Majeſty's Will, that this be inſerted and regiſtred in the Books of this Aſſembly, as a Teſtimony to Poſterity, not only of the ſincerity of his Intention to the ſaid true Religion, but alſo of his reſolution to maintain and defend the ſame, and his Subjects in the profeſſing thereof.

C. R.

After the Marqueſs had found the temper of the Aſſembly, he ſent up Sir James Hamilton to the King, with a full account of all Matters; containing likewiſe the Characters of all the Counſellors, together with his Advice to his Majeſty how to induce that Country to his Obedience; and to ſend a Fleet of ſome Ships to lie in the Frith to block up their Trade, and then to follow with a Roial Army. He alſo ſhewed the King how the Biſhops had miſcarried, and that their Ambition had bin great, but their Folly greater. Concerning which his Majeſty wrote to the Marqueſs;

That he totally agreed with him in the Characters of Men, as in the way he had ſet down to induce them to Obedience; only the time when to begin to act is conſiderable. To which end his Majeſty fully inſtructed the Bearer with the ſtate of his Preparations, that the Marqueſs may govern himſelf accordingly. Dated at Whitehall, Decemb. 3. 1638.

The Aſſembly proceeded to the choice of a Moderator, which before the Commiſſioner gave way to, he entred a Proteſtation, That their Act ſhould neither prejudice the King's Prerogative and Authority, nor any Law of the King's or Kingdom, nor bar the King from taking legal Exceptions, either againſt the Perſon elected, or irregularity of his Election; ſo they choſe one Mr. Alexander Henderſon, nemine contradicente, except Dr. Hamilton.

Archibald Johnſton choſen Clerk Regiſter.

But at this time they rejected the reading of the Declinator, and went to the election of a new Clerk, whom without one contrary Voice they did chuſe one Mr. Archibald Johnſton, the Clerk Regiſter of their Tables, (who was alſo Clerk of their Tables at Edinburgh) againſt whoſe Election the King's Commiſſioner likewiſe proteſted. At his admiſſion he made a ſhort Speech, declaring his unwillingneſs to accept the Charge, yet would not be wanting to contribute his part toward the defence of the Prerogative of the Son of God.

Debate about Elections to the Aſſembly.

The next day they ſpent in reading the ſeveral Commiſſions of Elections; but the King's Commiſſioner entred another Proteſtation, to take exception againſt their Elections in his own due time, only for the preſent he was contented they ſhould go on, and a conteſtation did follow about the Commiſſion for the Presbytery of Peebles, and another concerning the Election of the Lay-Elders for the Presbytery of Brichen.

The Earl of Montroſe preſented a Commiſſion, in which the Laird of Dunn was choſen Lay-Elder, by the Voice of one Miniſter and a few Lay-Elders.

On the next day of their ſitting, they went on in the reſt of the Controverted Elections, and refuſed to hear the Lord Carnegies Election diſcuſſed.

The King in his Letter to the Aſſembly, had nominated for Aſſeſſors to the King's Commiſſioner, theſe ſix Perſons.

Six Aſſeſſors to the Aſſembly nominated by the King.

The Earl of Traquair, Lord Treaſurer.
The Earl of Roxborough, Lord Privy-Seal.
The Earl of Argile,
The Earl of Lauderdale, } Lords of the Privy-Council.
The Earl of Southesk,
And Charles Stuart, Advocate.

But they abſolutely refuſed to let them have any Voice at all, telling the Commiſſioner, That he might conſult with thoſe Aſſeſſors if he pleaſed, but they were to have no Voice in the Aſſembly. Upon this the Marqueſs took Inſtruments according to the Scotiſh Form, to preſerve the Privilege of his Majeſty.

The Declinator read.

The 27*th* of November, the King's Commiſſioner urged once again that the Biſhops Declinator might be read, which was accordingly done by the Clerk of the Aſſembly; after it was ended, the King's Commiſſioner ſpoke home to them of the neceſſity of the Declinator, and unavoidable ſtrength of the Reaſons contained in the ſame, and in depreſſing their Libel againſt the Biſhops, which he called infamous and ſcurrilous, both in the matter of it, and the manner of promulging of it.

The Moderator laments the hardneſs of the Biſhops hearts.

The Moderator in a ſhort Speech deplored the obſtinacy of the Biſhops Hearts, who in all the Declinator had bewrayed no ſign of remorſe and ſorrow for their wicked Courſes; whereupon one Gibſon, one of the Clerks of the Seſſion, thundred out a verbal Proteſtation, That they would purſue their Libel againſt the Biſhops ſo long as they had Lives and Fortunes.

The King's Commiſſioner proteſted againſt the Proteſtation, and diſcharged the Biſhops Proctor from giving appearance for the Biſhops before the Aſſembly; and the Commiſſioner perceiving that they intended to keep up their Tables, although the Aſſembly ſhould be continued, and all Elections ſaid to be diſorderly, were approved of, and no Nullities admitted; and the King's Commiſſioner well weighing his Inſtructions, reſolved the next day to diſſolve the Aſſembly.

According to which Reſolution, on the 28*th* in the Morning, he called a Council in the Chapter-Houſe, and told them, He was neceſſitated to Diſſolve the Aſſembly, and gave his Reaſon for doing it, uſing much induſtry to gain them to concur with him in it. The Earl of Argile asked, If he was to deſire the Councils Approbation of what he intended, or not? The Marqueſs anſwered, His Inſtructions from his Majeſty were clear and poſitive for what he was to do, and therefore it was not in his Power to let any Debate be, whether he ſhould do it or not; only he deſired their Concurrence and Advice as to the manner of doing it.

Two hours were ſpent in Diſcourſe, but clear Advices were not given from any of them; from thence the Marqueſs went to the Church where the Aſſembly ſat, and after he ſat long a Witneſs to ſome Debates were among them, it was offered to be put to Vote, whether the Aſſembly was a Free Aſſembly, notwithſtanding the Biſhops Declinator, or not? Upon which the Marqueſs knowing well how the Vote would run, roſe up and ſaid;

'I Find this day great contraries of humours in my ſelf; firſt, cauſe 'of Joy, next cauſe of Sorrow; cauſe of Joy, in making good what 'hath bin promiſed by his Majeſty; cauſe of Sorrow, in that I can'not make further known his Majeſty's pious Intentions.

'You have called for a Free General Aſſembly; his Majeſty hath 'granted you one moſt free on his part, and in his Intentions; but as 'you have handled and marred the Matter, let God and the World 'judg whether the leaſt ſhadow or foot-ſtep of freedom can be diſ'cerned in this Aſſemby by any Man who hath not given a Bill of 'Divorce both to his Underſtanding and Conſcience; with what 'wreſting and wringing your laſt Proteſtation charges his Majeſty's 'laſt gracious Proclamation in the point of Prelimitations, is both 'known and miſliked by many, even of your own pretended Cove'nant; but whether your courſes, eſpecially in the Elections of the 'Members of the Aſſembly, be not only Prelimitations of it, but 'ſtrong Bars againſt the freedom of it, nay utterly deſtructive both of 'the Name and Nature of a Free Aſſembly, and unavoidably indu'cing upon it many and main Nullities, will be made manifeſt to the 'whole World.

'But his Majeſty's ſincere Intentions, being to perform in a lawful 'Aſſembly all he hath promiſed in his gracious Proclamation; if you 'find out a way how theſe things may paſs and be performed even in 'this Aſſembly, ſuch as it is, and yet his Majeſty not made to ap'prove any way the Illegalities and Nullities of it, for ſatiſfying all his 'Majeſty's good Subjects of the reality of his Meaning, I am by his 'Majeſty's ſpecial Command ready to do it, and content to adviſe with 'you how it may be done.

And after this he cauſed to be read his Majeſty's Conceſſions, as they had bin before proclaimed, upon which he took Inſtruments, that by producing and ſigning of them, firſt his Majeſty's Intentions were made known, next that in the producing and delivering of them, the lawfulneſs of the Aſſembly was not acknowledged; after that he went on and diſcourſed againſt the Conſtitution of the Aſſembly in the following words.

'But now I am ſorry I can go on with you no more, for the ſad 'part is yet behind, about Ruling Elders; for neither Ruling Elders, nor 'any Miniſter choſen Commiſſioner by Ruling Elders, can have Voice 'there, becauſe no ſuch Election is warranted, either by the Laws of 'this Church or Kingdom, or by the practice or cuſtom of either: 'for even that little which appeareth to make for thoſe Elders in the 'Book of Diſcipline, hath at this time bin broken by you, there ‘being more Lay-Elders giving Votes at every one of thoſe Elections, than there were Miniſters, contrary to the Book of Diſcipline; as in Lanerick but eight Miniſters, and eighteen or nineteen Lay-Elders; and ſo in divers other Preſbyteries: and in every Preſbytery, when the Miniſters upon the Liſt were removed, the remaining Elders exceeded far the remaining Miniſters. But ſay there were Law for thoſe Lay-Elders, the interruption of the execution of that Law, for above forty Years, makes ſo ſtrong a Preſcription againſt it, that without a new reviving of that Law by ſome new Order from the General Aſſembly, it ought not again be put in practice; for if his Majeſty ſhould put in practice, and take the Penalties of any diſuſed Laws, without new Intimations of them from Authority, it would be thought by your ſelves very hard dealing.

‘To ſay nothing of that Office of Lay-Elders, it being unknown to the Scripture or Church of Chriſt for above 1500 Years, let the World judg whether theſe Lay-Men be fit to give Votes in inflicting the Cenſures of the Church, eſpecially that great and higheſt Cenſure of Excommunication, none having Power to caſt off the Church by that Cenſure, but thoſe who have Power to admit into the Church by Baptiſm: And whether all the Lay-Elders here preſent at this Aſſembly be fit to judg of the high and deep Myſteries of Predeſtination, of the Univerſality of Redemtion, of the Sufficiency of Grace given, or not given to all Men; of the Reſiſtability of Grace; of total and final Perſeverance, or Apoſtacy of the Saints; of the Antilapſarian or Poſtlapſarian Opinion; of Election and Reprobation; all which they mean to ventilate, if they do determine againſt the Arminian, as they give out they will.

‘How can theſe Men now Elected be thought fit to be Ruling-Elders, who were never Elders before, all or moſt part of them being choſen ſince the Indiction of the Aſſembly, ſome of them but the very day before the Election of their Commiſſioners, which demonſtrates plainly that they were choſen only to ſerve their Aſſociates turn at this Aſſembly.

‘Since the inſtitution of your Lay-Elders, by your own Principles, is to watch over the Manners of the People in the Pariſh in which they live; How can any Man be choſen a Ruling-Elder from a Preſbytery, who is not an Inhabitant within any Pariſh of that Preſbytery, as hath bin done in divers Elections, againſt all Law, Senſe, or Reaſon?

‘By what Law or Practice was it ever heard, that young Noblemen, or Gentlemen, or others, ſhould be choſen Rulers of the Church, being yet Minors, and in all conſtruction of Law thought unfit to manage their own private Eſtates; unleſs you will grant that Men of meaner Abilities may be thought fit to rule the Church, which is the Houſe of God, than are fit to rule their own private Houſes, Families, and Fortunes.

'By what Law can any Ruling Elder be ſent to a Preſbytery to give Vote in any thing, eſpecially in chuſing Commiſſioners for the General Aſſembly, who is not choſen for that purpoſe by the Seſſion of that Pariſh in which he is a Ruling Elder? And who gave power to the Miniſter of every Pariſh, to bring with him to the Preſbytery for that purpoſe any Ruling Elder of his Pariſh whom he pleaſed?

'But it is well known, that divers Elders gave Votes in theſe Preſbyteries to the Election of ſome Commiſſioners here, who were not choſen by the Seſſions of their ſeveral Pariſhes to give Votes in thoſe Preſbyteries; and therefore ſuch Commiſſioners as were choſen by ſuch Lay-Elders, can have no Vote here.

'By what Law or Practice have the ſeveral Pariſhes or Preſbyteries choſen Aſſeſſors to their Ruling-Elders, without whoſe conſent ſome of the Commiſſioners here preſent are ſworn not to vote to any thing?

'This introducing of Ruling-Elders, is a burden ſo grievous to the Brethren of the Miniſtry, that many of the Preſbyteries have proteſted againſt it for the time to come, ſome for the preſent; as ſhall appear by divers Proteſtations and Supplications ready to be here exhibited.

'For the Miniſters choſen Commiſſioners hither, beſides that the fitteſt are paſſed by, and ſome choſen who were never Commiſſioners of any Aſſembly before, that ſo they might not ſtand for their own Liberty, in an Aſſembly of the nature whereof they are utterly ignorant, choice hath alſo bin made of ſome who are under the cenſure of the Church, of ſome who are deprived by the Church, of ſome who have bin baniſhed and put out of the Univerſity of Glaſgow, for teaching the Scholars that Monarchies were unlawful; ſome baniſhed out of this Kingdom for their Seditious Sermons and Behaviour; and ſome for the like Offences baniſhed out of another of his Majeſty's Kingdoms, Ireland; ſome lying under the fearful Sentence of Excommunication; ſome having no Ordination or Impoſition of hands; ſome admitted to the Miniſtry, contrary to the ſtanding Laws of this Church and Kingdom, all of them choſen by Lay-Elders: What a ſcandal were it to the Reformed Churches, to allow this to be a lawful Aſſembly conſiſting of ſuch Members, and ſo unlawfully choſen?

'Of this Aſſembly divers who are choſen are at the Horn, and ſo by the Laws of this Kingdom are uncapable of ſitting as Judges in any Judicatory.

'Three Oaths are to be adminiſtred to every Member of this Aſſembly; the Oath for the Confeſſion of Faith, lately renewed by his Majeſty's Commandment; the Oaths of Allegiance, and Supremacy; and whoſoever ſhall refuſe any of theſe, cannot be a Judg in any Judicatory of this Kingdom, and therefore reſolve preſently whether you will take them or not.

'You have cited the Reverend Prelates of this Land to appear before you by a way unheard of, not only in this Kingdom, but in the whole Chriſtian World, their Citations being read in the Pulpits, which is not uſual in this Church; nay, and many of them were read in the Pulpits after they had bin delivered into the Biſhops own hands. How can his Majeſty deny unto them, being his Subjects, the benefit of his Laws, in declining all thoſe to be their

'Judges,

An. 1638.

‘Judges, who by their Covenant do hold the principal thing in Queſtion, to wit, Epiſcopacy, to be abjur'd, as many of you do? Or any of you to be their Judges, who do adhere to your laſt Proteſtation, wherein you declare, that it is an Office not known to this Kingdom, although at this preſent it ſtand eſtabliſhed both by Acts of Parliament, and Acts of General Aſſemblies? Whoever heard of ſuch Judges as have ſworn themſelves Parties? And if it ſhall be objected, That the Orthodox Biſhops in the firſt four, and other General Councils, could not be denied to be competent Judges of the Hereticks, though before-hand they had declared their Judgments againſt their Hereſies: It is eaſily anſwered, That in Matters of Hereſie no Man muſt be patient, ſince in Fundamental Points of Faith a Man cannot be indifferent without the hazard of his Salvation, and therefore muſt declare himſelf to be on Chriſt's ſide, or elſe he is againſt him; but in Matters of Church-Government and Policy, which by the Judgment of this Church, in the 21 Article of our Confeſſion, is alterable at the Will of the Church; It is not neceſſary for any Man who means to be a Judg, to declare himſelf, eſpecially againſt that Government which ſtands eſtabliſhed by Law at the time of his Declaration, being not only neceſſary, but likewiſe unlawful for him at that time ſo to do: Now this Declaration, all you who adhere to the laſt Proteſtation, have made even ſince you moved to be the Biſhops Judges. Beſides, even thoſe Orthodox Fathers never did declare themſelves againſt the Hereticks, their Perſons or Callings, by Oaths and Proteſtations, as you have done; for that had bin a prejudging in them; and this prejudging in you, makes you now to be incompetent Judges.

‘Upon the whole Matter then there are but two things left for me to ſay; Firſt, You your ſelves have ſo proceeded in the Buſineſs of this Aſſembly, that it is impoſſible the Fruits ſo much wiſhed and prayed for, can be obtained in it; becauſe ſtanding as it does, it will make this Church ridiculous to all the Adverſaries of our Religion, it will grieve and wound all our Neighbour Reformed Churches who hear of it; it will make his Majeſty's Juſtice to be traduced throughout the whole Chriſtian World, if he ſhould ſuffer his Subjects in that which concerns their Callings, their Reputations, and their Fortunes, to be judged by their ſworn Enemies; if therefore you will diſſolve your ſelves, and amend all theſe Errors in a new Election, I will with all convenient ſpeed addreſs my ſelf to his Majeſty, and uſe the utmoſt of my interceſſion with his Sacred Majeſty for the indiction of a new Aſſembly; before the meeting whereof, all theſe things now challenged, may be amended. If you ſhall refuſe this Offer, his Majeſty will then declare to the whole World, that you are diſturbers of the Peace of this Church and State, both by introducing the Lay-Elders againſt the Laws and Practices of this Church and Kingdom, and by going about to aboliſh Epiſcopal Government, which at preſent ſtands eſtabliſhed by both the ſaid Laws. Two points (I dare ſay) and you muſt ſwear it, if your Conſciences be appealed to, (as was well obſerved by that Reverend Gentleman we heard preach the laſt Sunday) which theſe you drew into your Covenant were never made acquainted with at their entring into it, much leſs could they ſuſpect, that theſe two ſhould be made the iſſue of this Buſineſs, and the two ſtumbling-Blocks to make

‘As for your pretence of your unlimited freedom, you indeed refuſed ſo much as to hear from his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, of any ‘Precedent Treaty, for the preparing and right-ordering of things before the Aſſembly; alleaging that it could not be a Free Aſſembly, ‘where there was any prelimitation, either of the Chuſers, or of thoſe ‘to be choſen, or of any things to be treated of in the Aſſembly, but ‘that all things muſt be diſcuſſed upon the place, elſe the Aſſembly ‘could not be free: but whether you your ſelves have not violated ‘that which you call Freedom, let any Man judg; for beſides theſe ‘Inſtructions, which it may be are not come to our knowledg, we ‘have ſeen, and offer now to produce, four ſeveral Papers of Inſtructions ſent from them, (whom you call the Tables) containing all of ‘them Prelimitations, and ſuch as are not only repugnant to that ‘which you call the Freedom, but to that which is indeed the Freedom of an Aſſembly. Two of theſe Papers were ſuch as you were ‘contented ſhould be communicated to all your Aſſociates; to wit, ‘that larger Paper ſent abroad to all Presbyteries, immediately after his ‘Majeſty's indiction of the Aſſembly; and that leſſer Paper for your ‘meeting firſt at Edinburgh, then at Glaſgow, ſome days before the Aſſembly; which Paper gave order for the chuſing of Aſſeſſors, and ‘divers other Particulars: But your other two Papers of Secret Inſtructions were directed, one of them only to one Miniſter of every ‘Presbytery, to be communicated by him as he ſhould ſee cauſe, but ‘to be quite concealed from the reſt of the Miniſters; the other Paper was directed only to one Lay-Elder of every Presbytery, to be ‘communicated by him as he ſhould ſee cauſe, to be quite concealed ‘from all others: In both which Papers are contained ſuch Directions, which being followed as they were, have quite baniſhed all ‘Freedom from this Aſſembly; as ſhall appear by reading the Papers ‘themſelves.

Theſe he cauſed to be read, but they were diſowned by the Members of the Aſſembly; and they ſaid, They might have bin the private Opinions of ſome, but did infer no prelimitation on the Aſſembly. To which the Marqueſs anſwered, That all the Elections being ordered according to theſe, was a clear proof they were ſent by an Authority which all feared to diſobey. And after that he told, that for many months the Orders of the Tables had bin obeyed by all, but he would now make a Trial what Obedience they would give to the King's Command; and proteſted, That one of the chief Reaſons that moved him to diſſolve this Aſſembly, was, to deliver the Miniſters from the Tyranny of Lay-Elders, who (if not ſuppreſſed) would (as they were now deſigning the ruin of Epiſcopal Power) prove not only Ruling, but Over-ruling Elders; ſo in his Majeſty's Name he diſſolved the Aſſembly, and diſcharged their further Proceedings under pain of Treaſon.

Mr. Henderſon, and the Earl of Rothes anſwered him, That they were ſorry he left them, but their Conſciences bore them witneſs, they had hitherto done nothing amiſs, and therefore would not deſert the Work of God; proteſting much of their Duty and Obedience to the King in its due Line and Subordination.

An. 1638. The Marqueſs preſently went out and called a new Council, to whom he imparted his Mind: But from the Council the Earl of Argile withdrew, and fully cleared all jealouſies about him; for he told the Marqueſs in plain language, He would take the Covenant, and own the Aſſembly: but moſt of the Council ſeemed ſatisfied with the Marqueſs his Carriage in the Aſſembly; yet the Marqueſs durſt not offer to them the Proclamation for diſſolving the Aſſembly to be ſigned in Council for fear of refuſal, not having tried them all in it before-hand; but the next morning he got them to ſign it, and then he ſent it to the Market-Croſs at Glaſgow to be proclaimed, where it met with a Proteſtation; both which do follow.

CHARLES by the Grace of God, King of Scotland, England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith. To all Our Lovits, Heraulds, Purſevants, Our Sheriffs in that part conjunctly and ſeverally ſpecially conſtitute, Greeting.

Foraſmickle as out of the Roial and Fatherly Care which We have had of the Good and Peace of this Our Ancient and Native Kingdom; having taken into Our ſerious Conſideration all ſuch things as might have given contentment to Our Good and Loial Subjects: And to this end had diſcharged, by our Proclamation, the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion; freed and liberate all Men from the practiſing of the Five Articles, made all our Subjects, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, liable to the Cenſure of Parliament, General Aſſembly, or any other Judicatory competent, according to the nature and quality of the Offence: And for the free entry of Miniſters, that no other Oath be adminiſtred unto them, than that which is contained in the Act of Parliament, had declared all by-gone Diſorders abſolutely forgotten and forgiven: And for the more full and clear extirpating all ground and occaſion of fears of Innovation of Religion, We had commanded the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band for maintenance thereof, and of Authority in defence of the ſame, ſubſcribed by our dear Father and his Houſehold, in Anno 1580, to be renewed and ſubſcribed again by our Subjects here: like-as for ſetling of a perfect Peace in the Church and Common-Wealth of this Kingdom, We cauſed indict a free General Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow the 21 of this Inſtant, and thereafter a Parliament in May, 1639. By which clement dealing, We looked aſſuredly to have reduced our Subjects to their former quiet Behaviour, and dutiful Carriage, whereto they are bound by the Word of God, and Laws, both National and Municipal, to Us their Native and Soveraign Prince. And albeit the wiſhed Effects did not follow, but on the contrary, by Our ſo gracious procedure they were rather emboldened, not only to continue in their ſtubborn and unlawful ways, but alſo daily add to their former procedures, acts of Neglect and contempt of Authority, as evidently appeared by open oppoſition of Our juſt and religious Pleaſure and Command, expreſt in our laſt Proclamation anent the diſcharge of the Service-Book, Book of Canons, High-Commiſſion, &c. proteſting againſt the ſame, and ſtriving by many indirect means to withdraw the Hearts of our good People, not only from a hearty acknowledgment of Our gracious dealing with them, but alſo from the due Obedience to thoſe Our juſt and religious Commands, notwithſtanding We had bin formerly ſo oft petitioned by themſelves for the ſame, by their daily and hourly guarding and watching about our Caſtle of Edinburgh, ſuffering nothing to be imported therein but at their diſcretion; and openly ſtopping and impeding any importation of Ammunition, or other neceſſaries whatſoever, to any other of our Houſes within that Kingdom: denying to Us their Soveraign Lord that liberty and freedom which the meaneſt of them aſſume to themſelves, (an Act without preſident or example in the Chriſtian World) by making of Convocations and Council-Tables of Nobility, Gentry, Burrows, and Miniſters, within the City of Edinburgh; where, not regarding the Laws of the Kingdom, they, without Warrant of Authority, Convene, Aſſemble, and treat upon Matters, as well Eccleſiaſtical as Civil; ſend their Injunctions and Directions throughout the Country to their Subordinate Tables, and other under-Miniſters appointed by them for that effect. And under colour and pretext of Religion, exerciſing an unwarranted and unbounden Liberty, require Obedience to their illegal and unlawful Procedures and Directions, to the great and ſeen prejudice of Authority, and lawful Monarchical Government. And notwithſtanding it was evidently manifeſt, by the illegal and unformal Courſe taken in the Election of their Commiſſioners for the Aſſembly, whereof ſome are under the cenſure of this Church, ſome under the cenſure of the Church of Ireland, and ſome long ſince baniſhed for open and avowed teaching againſt Monarchy; others of them ſuſpended, and ſome admitted to the Miniſtry, contrary to the Form preſcribed by the Laws of this Kingdom; others of them a long time ſince denounced Rebels, and put to the Horne, who by all Law, and unviolable cuſtom and practice of this Kingdom, are, and ever have bin incapable, either to purſue, or defend, before any Judicatory, far leſs to be Judges themſelves; ſome of them confined, and all of them by Oath and Subſcription bound to the overthrow of Epiſcopacy: And by this and other under-hand working, and private informations and perſwaſions, have given juſt ground of ſuſpicion of their partiality herein, and to made themſelves unfit Judges of what concerneth Epiſcopacy. And alſo it was ſufficiently cleared by the peremptory and illegal Procedures of the Presbyteries, who at their own hand, without order of Law, and without due form of proceſs, thruſt out the Moderators lawfully eſtabliſhed, and placed others, whom they found moſt inclinable to their turbulent Humours; aſſociate to themſelves for the chuſing the ſaid Commiſſioners for the Aſſembly, a Laick Elder out of each Paroch; who being in moſt places equal, if not more in number than the Miniſtry, made choice both of the Miniſters who ſhould be Commiſſioners from the Presbyteries, as alſo of a Ruling-Elder; being directed more therein by the Warrants from the foreſaid pretended Tables, than by their own Judgments; as appears by the ſeveral private Inſtructions ſent from them, far contrary to the Laws of the Country, and lowable cuſtom of the Church: by which doings it is too manifeſt, that no calm nor peaceable procedure or courſe could have bin expected from this

An. 1638. Aſſembly, for ſetling the preſent Diſorders and Diſtractions: Yet We were pleaſed herein in ſome ſort to blindfold our own Judgment, and over-look the ſaid Diſorders, and patiently to attend the meeting of the ſaid Aſſembly; ſtill hoping that when they were met together, by our Commiſſioner his preſence, and aſſiſtance of ſuch other well-diſpoſed Subjects who were to be there, and by their own ſeeing the real performance of all that was promiſed by our laſt Proclamation, they ſhould have bin induced to return to their due Obedience of Subjects. But perceiving that their ſeditious Diſpoſition ſtill increaſes, by their repairing to the ſaid Aſſembly with great Bands and Troops of Men, all boddin in fear of War, with Guns and Piſtols, contrary to the Laws of this Kingdom, cuſtom obſerved in all Aſſemblies, and in high contempt of our laſt Proclamation at Edinburgh the 16th of this Inſtant. As alſo by their peremptory refuſing of our Aſſeſſors authorized by Us, (although fewer in number than our deareſt Father was in uſe to have at divers Aſſemblies) the power of Voting in this Aſſembly, as formerly they have done in other Aſſemblies; and by their partial, unjuſt, and unchriſtian refuſing, and not ſuffering to be read the Reaſons and Arguments given in by the Biſhops, and their Adherents, to our Commiſſioner, why the Aſſembly ought not to proceed to the election of a Moderator with them, neither yet to the admitting of any of the ſaid Commiſſioners from Presbyteries, before they were heard to object againſt the ſame, though earneſtly required by our Commiſſioner in our Name. And notwithſtanding that our Commiſſioner under his hand, by Warrant from Us, gave in a ſufficient Declaration of all that was contained in our late Proclamation and Declaration, the ſame bearing likewiſe our Pleaſure of the Regiſtration of the ſame in the Books of the Aſſembly, for the full aſſurance of the True Religion to all our good Subjects: And yet not reſting ſatisfied therewith, leſt the continuance of their meeting together might produce other the like dangerous Acts, derogatory to Roial Authority, We have thought good, for preventing thereof, and for the whole Cauſes and Reaſons above-mentioned, and divers others importing the True Monarchical Government of this Eſtate, to diſſolve and break up the ſaid Aſſembly. And therrfore,

Our Will is, That We do diſcharge and inhibit all and whatſoever pretended Commiſſioners, and other Members of the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, of all further meeting and convening, treating and concluding any thing belonging to the ſaid Aſſembly, under the pain of Treaſon; declaring all and whatſoever that they ſhall happen to do in any pretended Meeting thereafter, to be null, of no ſtrength, force nor effect, with all that may follow thereupon: prohibiting and diſcharging all our Lieges to give Obedience thereto, and declaring them, and every one of them, free and exempt from the ſame, and of all hazard that may enſue for not obeying thereof. And for the effect, We command and charge all the foreſaid pretended Commiſſioners, and other Members of the ſaid Aſſembly, to depart forth of this City of Glaſgow within the ſpace of 24 hours after the publication hereof, and to repair home to their own Houſes; or that they go about their own private Affairs in a quiet manner. With ſpecial proviſion always, That the foreſaid Declaration, given in under our Commiſſioner's hand, with all therein contained, ſhall notwithſtanding

ing hereof ſtand full, firm, and ſure to all our good Subjects in all time coming, for the full aſſurance to them of the True Religion. And our Will is, and We command and charge, That incontinent theſe our Letters ſeen, ye paſs, and make publication hereof by open Proclamation, at the Market-Croſs of Glaſgow, and other places needful, where through none pretend ignorance of the ſame.

The Proteſtation of the General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland, &c. made in the High Kirk, and at the Market-Croſs of Glaſgow, Nov. 29. 1638.

‘WE Commiſſioners from Preſbyteries, Burghs, and Univerſities, now convened in a full and free Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland, indicted by his Majeſty, and gathered together in the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the only Head and Monarch of his own Church; And we Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Miniſters, Burgeſſes, and Commons, Subſcribers of the Confeſſion of Faith, make it known, That where we his Majeſty's Loial Subjects, of all Degrees, conſidering and taking to heart the many and great Innovations and Corruptions, lately by the Prelates and their Adherents, intruded into the Doctrine, Worſhip, and Diſcipline of this Church, which had bin before in great purity, to our unſpeakable comfort, eſtabliſhed amongſt us, were moved to preſent many earneſt Deſires, and humble Supplications to his Sacred Majeſty for granting a free General Aſſembly, as the only legal and ready mean to try theſe Innovations, to purge out the Corruptions, and ſettle the Order of the Church for the Good of Religion, the Honour of the King, and the Comfort and Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom. It pleaſed his Gracious Majeſty, out of his Roial Bounty, to direct unto this Kingdom, the Noble and Potent Lord, James, Marqueſs of Hamilton, with Commiſſion to hear and redreſs the juſt Grievances of the good Subjects; who by many Petitions, and frequent Conferences, beiug fully informed of the abſolute neceſſity of a free General Aſſembly, as the only Judicatory which had Power to remedy thoſe Evils, was pleaſed to undergo the pains of a Voyage to England, for preſenting the pitiful condition of our Church to his Sacred Majeſty.

‘And the ſaid Commiſſioner his Grace, returned again in Auguſt laſt, with Power to Indict an Aſſembly, but with the condition of ſuch Prelimitations, as did both deſtroy, and could no ways cure the preſent Diſeaſes of this Church; which was made ſo clearly ap‘parent to his Grace, that for ſatisfying the reaſonable Deſire of the Subjects, groaning under the wearineſs and prejudices of long-ſome Attendance; He was again pleaſed to undertake another Journey to his Majeſty, and promiſed to endeavour to obtain a free General Aſſembly, without any Prelimitation, either of the Conſtitution and Members, or Matters to be treated, or Manner and Order of Proceeding; ſo that if any Queſtion ſhould ariſe concerning theſe Particulars, the ſame ſhould be cognoſed, judged, and determined by the Aſſembly as the only Judg competent. And accordingly by Warrant from our Sacred Soveraign, returned to this Kingdom, and in September laſt, cauſed indict a free General Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow, the 21 of November inſtant, to the unſpeakable Joy of all good Subjects, and Chriſtian Hearts, who thereby did expect the perfect ſatisfaction of their long Expectations, and the final Remedy of their preſſing Grievances. But theſe Hopes were ſoon blaſted: for albeit the Aſſembly did meet and begin at the appointed day, and hath hitherto continued, ſtill aſſiſted with his Grace's Perſonal preſence; yet his Grace hath never allowed any Freedom to the Aſſembly, competent to it, to the Word of God, Acts and Practice of this Church, and his Majeſty's Indiction; but hath laboured to reſtrain the ſame, by proteſting againſt all the Acts made therein, and againſt the Conſtitution thereof by ſuch Members, as by all Law, Reaſon, and Cuſtom of this Church, were ever admitted in our Free Aſſemblies, and by denying his approbation to the things proponed and concluded, though moſt clear, cuſtomable, and uncontroverted.

‘And now ſince his Grace, after the preſenting and reading of his own Commiſſion, from our Sacred Soveraign, and after his ſeeing all our Commiſſions from Preſbyteries, and Burrows, produduced and examined, and the Aſſembly conſtitute of all the Members by unanimous conſent, doth now, to our greater Grief, without any juſt cauſe or occaſion offered by us, unexpectedly diſcharges us from any further meeting or proceeding in this Aſſembly, under the pain of Treaſon; and after ſeven days ſitting, declare all Acts made, or hereafter to be made in this Aſſembly, to be of no force nor ſtrength; and that for ſuch Cauſes as are either expreſſed in his Majeſty's former Proclamations, (and ſo are anſwered in our former Proteſtations) or ſet down in the Declinator and Proteſtation preſented in the Name of the Prelates, (which are fully cleared in our Anſwer made thereto) or elſe were long ſince propounded by the Commiſſioner his Grace in his eleven Articles or Demands ſent unto us, before the indiction of the Aſſembly (and ſo were ſatisfied by our Anſwers, which his Grace acknowledged, by promiſing, after the recept thereof, to procure a free General Aſſembly, and with power to determine upon all Queſtions anent the Members, Manner, and Matter thereof); all which, for avoiding tediousneſs, we here repeat, or otherwiſe the ſaid Cauſes alleged by the Commiſſioner, were proponded by his Grace in the Aſſembly: ſuch as, firſt, That the Aſſembly refuſed to read the Declinator, and Proteſtation exhibited by the Prelates; which nevertheleſs was publickly read and conſidered by the Aſſembly, immediately after the Election of a Moderator, and conſtitution of the Members; before the which there was no Aſſembly eſtabliſhed, to whom the ſame could have bin read.

14 Caroli.

Next, That Ruling-Elders were permitted to have Voices in the Election of Commiſſioners from Preſbyteries, which was known to his Grace before the indiction and meeting of the Aſſembly, and is ſo agreeable to the Acts and Practice of this Church, inviolably obſerved before the late times of Corruption, that not one of the Aſſembly doubted thereof; to whom by the indiction and promiſe of a free Aſſembly, the determination of that Queſtion, anent the Members conſtituent property belonged.

‘And laſtly, That the Voices of the ſix Aſſeſſors who did ſit with his Grace, were not asked and numbred, which we could not perceive to be any juſt cauſe of Offence, ſince after 39 National Aſſemblies of this Reformed Church, where neither the King's Majeſty, nor any in his Name was preſent, at the humble and earneſt deſire of the Aſſembly, his Majeſty graciouſly vouchſafed his preſence, either in his own Roial Perſon, or by a Commiſſioner, not for voting or multiplying of Voices, but as Princes and Emperors of old, in a princely manner, to countenance that Meeting, and to preſide in it for external Order; and if we had bin honoured with his Majeſty's Perſonal Preſence, his Majeſty (according to the practice of King James of Bleſſed Memory) would have only given his own Judgment in voting of Matters, and would not have called others who had not bin cloathed with Commiſſion from the Church, to carry things by plurality of Voices.

‘Therefore in conſcience of our Duty to God and his Truth, the King and his Honour, the Church and her Liberties, this Kingdom and her Peace, this Aſſembly and her Freedom, to our Selves and our Safety, to our Poſterity, Perſons, and Eſtates, we profeſs, with ſorrowful and heavy, but Loial Hearts, That we cannot diſſolve this Aſſembly for the Reaſons following.

1. ‘For the Reaſons already printed anent the neceſſity of convening a General Aſſembly, which are now more ſtrong in this caſe, ſeeing the Aſſembly was already indicted by his Majeſty's Authority, did convene, and is fully conſtitute in all the Members thereof, according to the Word of God, and Diſcipline of this Church, in the preſence and audience of his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, who hath really acknowledged the ſame, by aſſiſting therein ſeven days; and exhibition of his Majeſty's Roial Declaration to be Regiſtrate in the Books of this Aſſembly, which accordingly is done.

2. ‘For Reaſons contained in the former Proſtetations, made in the Name of the Noblemen, Barons, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and Commons, whereunto we do now judicially adhere, as alſo unto the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant, ſubſcribed and ſworn by the Body of this Kingdom.

3. ‘Becauſe, as we are obliged by the Application and Explication ſubjoined, neceſſarily to the Confeſſion of Faith ſubſcribed by us; So the King's Majeſty, and his Commiſſioner and Privy-Council, have urged many of this Kingdom to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith made in Anno 1580, and 1590, and ſo to return to the Doctrine and Diſcipline of this Church as it was then profeſſed: But it is clear by the Doctrine and Diſcipline of this Church, contained in the Book of Policy then regiſtrate in the Books of Aſſembly, and ſubſcribed by the Preſbyteries of this Church, That it was moſt unlawful in it ſelf, and prejudicial to theſe Priviledges which Chriſt in his Word

An. 1638.

'hath left to his Church, to diſſolve or break up the Aſſembly of this Church, or to ſtop and ſtay their Proceedings, in conſtitution of Acts for the welfare of the Church, or execution of Diſcipline againſt Offenders; and ſo to make it appear, that Religion and Church-Government ſhould depend abſolutely upon the Pleaſure of the Prince.

4. 'Becauſe there is no ground of pretence, either by Act of Aſſembly or Parliament, or any preceding practice, whereby the King's Majeſty may lawfully diſſolve the General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland, far leſs his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, who by his Commiſſion hath Power to indict and keep, ſecundum legem & praxim; but upon the contrary, his Majeſty's Prerogative Roial, is declared by Act of Parliament to be no ways prejudicial to the Privileges and Liberties which God hath granted to the Spiritual Office-bearers, and Meetings of this his Church; which are moſt frequently ratified in Parliament, and eſpecially in the laſt Parliament holden by his Majeſty himſelf: Which Privileges and Liberties of the Church, his Majeſty will never diminiſh or infringe, being bound to maintain the ſame in integrity, by ſolemn Oath given at his Roial Coronation in this Kingdom.

5. 'The Aſſemblies of this Church have ſtill injoied this freedom of uninterrupted ſitting, without or notwithſtanning any contramand, as is evident by all the Records thereof; and in ſpecial, by the General Aſſembly holden in Anno 1582; which being charged by Letters of Horning, by the King's Majeſty, his Commiſſioner and Council, to ſtay their Proceſs againſt Mr. Robert Montgomery, pretended Biſhop of Glaſgow, or otherwiſe to diſſolve and riſe; did, notwithſtanding, ſhew their Liberty and Freedom, by continuing and ſitting ſtill, and without any ſtay, going on in the Proceſs againſt the ſaid Mr. Robert to the final end thereof: And thereafter, by Letter to his Majeſty, did ſhew clearly how far his Majeſty had bin uninformed, and upon miſinformation, prejudged the Prerogative of Jeſus Chriſt, and the Liberties of the Church; and did Enact and Ordain, That none ſhould procure any ſuch Warrant or Charge, upon the pain of Excommunication.

6. 'Becauſe now to diſſolve, after ſo many Supplications and Complaints, after ſo many reiterated Promiſes, after our long attendance and expectation, after ſo many References of Proceſſes from Presbyteries, after the publick indiction of the Aſſembly, and the ſolemn Faſt appointed for the ſame, after frequent convention, formal conſtitution of the Aſſembly in all the Members thereof, and ſeven days ſitting, were by this Act to offend God, contemn the Subjects Petitions, deceive many of their conceived hopes of redreſs of the Calamities of the Church and Kingdom, multiply the Combuſtions of this Church, and make every Man deſpair hereafter ever to ſee Religion eſtabliſhed, Innovations removed, the Subjects Complaint reſpected, or the Offenders puniſhed with conſent of Authority; and ſo by caſting the Church looſe and deſolate, would abandon both to ruin.

7. 'It is moſt neceſſary to continue this Aſſembly for preventing the Prejudices that may enſue upon the pretence of the two Covenants, whereas indeed there is but one; that firſt ſubſcribed in 1580, and 1590, being a National Covenant and Oath to God, which is lately renewed by Us with that neceſſary Explanation, which the Corruptions introduced ſince that time, contrary to the ſame, inforced. Which is alſo acknowledged by the Acts of Council in September laſt, declaring the ſame to be ſubſcribed, as it was meaned the time of the firſt ſubſcription: And therefore for removing that ſhame, and all Prejudices that may follow upon the ſhow of two different Covenants and Confeſſions of Faith in one Nation, the Aſſembly cannot diſſolve, before it try, find, and determine, that both theſe Covenants are but one and the ſelf-ſame Covenant. The latter renewed by us, agreeing to the true genuine ſenſe and meaning of the firſt, as it was ſubſcribed in Anno 1580.

'For theſe, and many other Reaſons, we the Members of this Aſſembly, in our own Name, and in the Name of the Kirk of Scotland, whom we repreſent, and we Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Miniſters, Burgeſſes, and Commons, before mentioned, do ſolemnly declare, in the preſence of the Everliving God, and before all Men; and proteſt,

1. 'That our Thoughts are not guilty of any thing which is not incumbent to us, as good Chriſtians towards God, and Loial Subjects towards our Sacred Soveraign.

2. 'That all the Proteſtations, general and particular, proponed or to be proponed by the Commiſſioner his Grace, or the Prelates and their Adherents, may be preſently diſcuſſed before this General Aſſembly, being the higheſt Eccleſiaſtical Judicatory of this Kingdom; and that his Grace depart not till the ſame be done.

3. 'That the Lord Commiſſioner depart not till this Aſſembly do fully ſettle the ſolid Peace of this Church, cognoſcing and examining the Corruptions introduced upon the Doctrine and Diſcipline thereof: And for attaining hereof, and removing all juſt Exceptions which may be taken at our Proceedings, we atteſt God, the Searcher of all Hearts, that our Intentions and whole Proceedings in this preſent Aſſembly, have bin, are, and ſhall be, according to the Word of God, the Laws and Conſtitutions of this Church, the Confeſſion of Faith, our National Oath, and that meaſure of Light which God the Father of Light ſhall grant Us, and that in the ſincerity of our Hearts, without any preoccupation or paſſion.

4. 'That if the Commiſſioner his Grace depart, and leave this Church and Kingdom in this preſent diſorder, and diſcharge this Aſſembly, That it is both lawful and neceſſary for us to ſit ſtill and continue in keeping this preſent Aſſembly indicted by his Majeſty, till we have tried, judged, cenſured, all the by-gone Evils, and the Introductors, and provide a ſolid courſe for continuing God's Truth in this Land with Purity and Liberty, according to his Word, our Oath, and Confeſſion of Faith, and the lawful Conſtitutions of this Church; and that with the Grace of God, we and every one of us adhering thereunto, ſhall ſit ſtill and continue in this Aſſembly, till after the final ſetling and concluſion of all Matters, it be diſſolved by common conſent of all the Members thereof.

5. 'That this Aſſembly is and ſhould be eſteemed and obeyed as a moſt lawful, full and free General Aſſembly of this Kingdom; and that all Acts, Sentences, Conſtitutions, Cenſures, and Proceedings of this Aſſembly, are, and ſhould be reputed, obeyed, and obſerved by all the Subjects of this Kingdom, and Members of this Church, as the Actions, Sentences, Conſtitutions, Cenſures, and Proceedings of a full and free General Aſſemblie of this Church of Scotland, and to have all ready execution under the Eccleſiaſtical Pains contained, or to be contained therein, and conform thereto in all Points.

6. ‘That whatſoever Inconveniences fall out, by impeding, moleſting, or ſtaying the free Meeting, Sitting, Reaſoning, or Concluding of this preſent Aſſembly, in Matters belonging to their Judicatory, by the Word of God, Laws and Practice of this Church, and the Confeſſion of Faith; or in the obſerving and obeying the Acts, Ordinances, and Concluſions thereof, or Execution to follow thereupon, that the ſame be not imputed unto us, or any of us, who moſt ardently deſire the concurrence of his Majeſty's Commiſſioner to this lawful Aſſembly: But upon the contrary, That the Prelates and their Adherents, who have proteſted and declined this preſent Aſſembly, in Conſcience of their own guiltineſs, not daring to abide any legal Trial; and by their miſinformation have moved the Commiſſioner his Grace to depart and diſcharge this Aſſembly; be eſteemed, reputed, and holden the Diſturbers of this Peace, and Overthrowers of the Liberties of the Church, and guilty of all the Evils which ſhall follow hereupon, and condignly cenſured according to the greatneſs of their Fault, and Acts of the Church and Realm. And to this end we again and again do by theſe Preſents cite and ſummon them, and every one of them, to compere before this preſent General Aſſembly to anſwer to the Premiſes, and to give in their Reaſons, Defences, and Anſwers againſt the Complaints given in, or to be given in againſt them, and to hear Probation led, and Sentence pronounced againſt them, and conform to our former Citations, and according to Juſtice, with certification as Effeirs; like as by theſe Preſents we ſummon and cite all thoſe of his Majeſty's Council, or any other who have procured, conſented, ſubſcribed, or ratified this preſent Proclamation to be reſponſable to his Majeſty, and three Eſtates of Parliament, for their counſel given in this Matter, ſo highly importing his Majeſty, and the whole Realm, conform to the 12 Act King James, 4 Parliam. 2. and proteſt for remedy of Law againſt them, and every one of them.

7. ‘And laſtly, We proteſt that as we adhere to the former Proteſtations, all and every one of them, made in the Name of the Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Miniſters, Burgeſſes, and Commons; ſo ſeeing we are ſurprized by the Commiſſioner his Grace's ſudden departure, far contrary to his Majeſty's Indiction, and our Expectation, we may extend this our Proteſtation, and add more reaſons thereunto in greater length and number, whereby we may fully clear, before God and Man, the equity of our Intentions, and lawfulneſs of our Proceedings: And upon the whole Premiſes, the aforeſaid Perſons, for themſelves, and in name aforeſaid, asked Inſtruments.

‘This was done in the High Church of Glaſgow, in publick Audience of the Aſſembly, begun in preſence of the Commiſſioner his Grace, who removed and refuſed to hear the ſame to the end; the 28th day of November, and upon the Market-Croſs of Glaſgow the 29th day of the ſaid month, the Year of God 1638 reſpective.

After the Marqueſs had diſſolved the Aſſembly, the Council reſolved to write to his Majeſty a Letter of Thanks for thoſe gracious Proffers which he by his Commiſſioner had made at the Aſſembly, which they did as followeth, dated the 29*th* of November.

Moſt Sacred Soveraign,

I*N Obedience to your Majeſty's Roial Commands, we have attended your Majeſty's Commiſſioner here at* Glaſgow, ſince the 17th of this Inſtant, and according to our bound Duty in ſo exigent Occaſion, have not bin wanting, with our humble and beſt Advices; and although we do admit the particular Relation of what paſt to his Graces ſelf as beſt known to him, yet we cannot for Truths-ſake be ſo ſilent, as not to acknowledg to your Majeſty, that never Servant did with more Induſtry, Care, Judgment, and Patience, go about the diſcharge of ſo great a Truſt: And albeit the ſucceſs hath not anſwered his deſires, neither yet his extraordinary pains, and (as we may confidently affirm) moſt dextrous and adviſed Courſes taken to compaſs the juſt Command of ſo gracious a King; yet his deſerving herein Merits to be remembred to Poſterity. And ſince your Majeſty hath bin pleaſed to renew to us your former Act of Grace, expreſſed in your Proclamation and Declaration anent the maintenance of the True Religion, and we in the defence and profeſſion thereof; We do all in humility and hearty acknowledgment of ſo great Goodneſs, return to your Majeſty the offer of our Lives and Fortunes in defence of your Sacred Perſon, and maintenance of your Roial Authority: And ſhall in all our Actions approve our ſelves your Majeſty's moſt loial Subjects and humble Servants.

From Glaſgow, Novemb. 29. 1638.

Suddenly after which the Marqueſs received this enſuing Letter from the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, dated at Lambeth, December the third, 1638.

My very good Lord,

I Received your Lordſhip's Letters of November 27. they came ſafe to me on December 2, after eight at Night. I was glad to ſee them ſhort; but their ſhortneſs is abundantly ſupplied by the length of two Letters, one for the Lord Roſs, and the other from the Dean. They have between them made their Word good to your Lordſhip, for they have ſent me all the Paſſages, from the beginning of the Aſſembly, to the time of the date of their Letters: And this I will be bold to ſay, Never were there more groſs Abſurdities, nor half ſo many in ſo ſhort a time, committed in

An. 1638. any publick Meeting; and for a National Aſſembly, never did the Church of Chriſt ſee the like.

Beſides, his Majeſty's Service in General, that Church is much beholden to you, and ſo are the Biſhops in their Perſons and Callings; and heartily ſorry I am, that the People are ſo beyond your expreſſion furious, that you think it fit to ſend the two Biſhops from Glaſgow to Hamilton; and much more, that you ſhould doubt your own ſafety. My Lord, God bleſs your Grace with Life and Health to ſee this Buſineſs at a good end; for certainly, as I ſee the face of things now, there will very much depend upon it, and more than I think fit to expreſs in Letters; nay, perhaps, more than I can well expreſs if I would.

I am as ſorry as your Grace can be, that the King's Preparations can make no more haſt; I hope you think (for truth it is) I have called upon his Majeſty, and, by his command, upon ſome others, to haſten all that may be, and more than this I cannot do; but I am glad to read in your Letters, that you have written at length to his Majeſty, that you may receive from himſelf a punctual Anſwer to all neceſſary Particulars; and I preſently going to him to write largely to you, that you may not be in the dark for any thing.

But, my Lord, to meet with it again in your Letters, that you cannot tell whether this may be your laſt Letter, and that therefore you have diſcloſed the very thoughts of your heart, doth mightily trouble me. But I truſt in God he will preſerve you, and by your great Patience, Wiſdom, and Induſtry, ſet his Majeſty's Affairs (to your great honour) in a right poſture once again; which if I might live to ſee, I would be glad to ſing my Nnnc dimittis.

I pray (my Lord) accept my thanks for the poor Clergie there, and particularly for the Biſhop of Roſs, who proteſts himſelf moſt infinitely obliged to you.

I heartily pray your Lordſhip to thank both the Biſhop of Roſs and the Dean for their kind Letters, and the full account they have given me; but there is no particular that requires an auſwer in either of them, ſaving that I find in the Dean's Letter, that Mr. Alex. Henderſon, who went all this while for a quiet and well-ſpirited Man, hath ſhewed himſelf a moſt violent and paſſionate Man, and a Moderator without Moderation. Truly (my Lord) never did I ſee any Man of that humour yet, but he was deep dyed in ſome Violence or other; and it would have bin a wonder to me if Henderſon had held free. Good, my Lord, ſince you are good in the Active part, in the commixture of Wiſdom and Patience, hold it out till the People may ſee the violence and injuſtice of them that would be their Leaders, and ſuffer not a Rupture till there be no Remedy. God bleſs you in all your ways, which is the daily Prayer of and humble Servant,

W. CANT.

He alſo received another Letter from the Arch-Biſhop, dated the 7th of December, to the effect following.

My very good Lord,

THis day I have received your other Letter, with three Papers, viz. That which ſhews you have keeped within your Inſtructions, the Copy of the Proclamation which diſſolves the Aſſembly, and a Copy of the Councils Letter to the King; both which his Majeſty takes to be very good Service done for him, and commands me to give your Grace thanks in his Name, which I am very glad to do, and I do it heartily.

I have done, and do daily call upon his Majeſty for his Preparations; he proteſts he makes all the haſt he can, and I believe him; but the jealouſies of giving the Covenanters umbrage too ſoon, have made Preparations here ſo late.

The Aſſembly continue ſitting at Glaſgow.

After the King's Commiſſioner's departure from Glaſgow, they ſtill continued the Aſſembly, notwithſtanding the King's Diſſolution of it by Proclamation under pain of Treaſon; and then immediately the Earl of Argile began to declare himſelf openly the Head of it, and adjoined himſelf preſently to them, and ſat continually with them in the Aſſembly, although he were no Member of it, but ſat only as their chief Director and Countenancer.

In a ſhort ſpace of time they declared ſix General Aſſemblies to be null and void; they condemned all the Arminian Tenents, without defining what thoſe Tenents were: They deprived the Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews, the Biſhop of Galloway and Brechin; They declared Epiſcopal Government to be inconſiſtent with the Law and Church of the Kingdom of Scotland, and ſo aboliſhed it for ever, though it did then, and ſtill ſtands (as the King ſaith in his Declaration) confirmed by many Acts both of Parliaments and Aſſemblies.

Sentence pronounced againſt divers Biſhops.

‘THe General Aſſembly having heard the Libels and Complaints given in againſt the foreſaid pretended Biſhops, to the Presbytery of Edinburgh, and ſundry Presbyteries within their Dioceſs, and by the ſaid Presbyteries referred to this Aſſembly to be tried; The ſaid pretended Biſhops being lawfully cited, oftentimes called, and not compearing, proceeded to the cognition of the Complaints and Libels againſt them; and finding them guilty of the breach of the Cautions agreed upon in the Aſſembly at Montroſe, Anno 1600, for reſtricting of the Miniſter-Voter in Parliament, from incroaching upon the Liberties and Juriſdictions of this Kirk, which was ſet down with certification of Depoſition, Infamy, and Excommunication; and eſpecially for receiving Conſecration to the Office of Epiſcopacy, condemned by the Confeſſion of Faith, and Acts of this Kirk, as having no Warrant nor Fundament in the Word of God; but by virtue of this uſurped Power, and Power of the High-Commiſſion, preſſing the Kirk with Novations in the Worſhip of God; and for their refuſal to underly the trial of the reigning ſlander of ſundry other groſs Tranſgreſſions and Offences laid to their Charge:

'Therefore the Aſſembly moved with Zeal to the Glory of God, and 'purging of this Kirk, ordains the ſaid pretended Biſhops to be depoſed, and by theſe Preſents doth depoſe them, not only of the Office of Commiſſionary to Vote in Parliament, Council, or Convention in Name of the Kirk, but alſo of all Functions, whether of 'Pretended, Epiſcopal, or Miniſterial Calling; and likewiſe in caſe 'they acknowledg not this Aſſembly, reverence not the Conſtitution 'thereof, and obey not the Sentence, and make not their Repentance 'conform to the Order preſcribed by this Aſſembly, ordains them to 'be Excommunicated, and declared to be of theſe whom Chriſt commandeth to be holden by all and every one of the Faithful, as Ethnicks and Publicans, and the Sentence of Excommunication to be 'pronounced upon their refuſal, in the Kirks appointed by any of 'theſe who are particularly named to have the charge of trying their 'Repentance or Impenitency; and that the execution of this Sentence 'be intimate in all the Kirks within this Realm, by the Paſtors of 'every particular Congregation, as they will be anſwerable to their 'Preſbyteries or Synods, or the next General Aſſembly, in caſe of 'negligence of the Preſbyteries and Synods.'

The Declinator and Proteſtation of the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops of the Church of Scotland, and other their Adherents, within that Kingdom, againſt the pretended General Aſſembly holden at Glaſgow, Novemb. 21. 1638.

The Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops Proteſtation.

'WE Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, and other under-ſubſcribers for our 'ſelves, and in the name and behalf of the Church of Scotland. Whereas it hath pleaſed the King's Majeſty to indict a General 'Aſſembly of the Church to be kept at Glaſgow the 21*th* of November 1638, for ſetling and compoſing the Diſtractions of the ſame; 'firſt, do acknowledg and profeſs, That a General Aſſembly, lawfully 'called, and orderly convened, is a moſt neceſſary and effectual mean 'for removing theſe Evils, wherewith the ſaid Church is infeſted, and for 'ſetling that Order which becometh the Houſe of God, and that we 'wiſh nothing more than a meeting of a peaceable and orderly Aſſembly to that effect. Secondly, We acknowledg and profeſs, as becometh good Chriſtians and faithful Subjects, that his Majeſty hath 'Authority, by his Prerogative Roial, to call Aſſemblies, as is acknowledged by the Aſſembly at Glaſgow 1610, and Parliament 1612; 'and that it is not lawful to convene without his Majeſty's conſent 'and approbation, except we will put our ſelves in danger to be called in queſtion for Sedition.

'Yet nevertheleſs, In ſundry reſpects we cannot but eſteem this 'Meeting at Glaſgow moſt unlawful and diſorderly, and their Proceedings void aud null in Law, for theſe Cauſes and Reaſons following.

'Firſt, Before his Majeſty's Roial Warrant to my Lord Commiſſioner's Grace, to induct a lawful free General Aſſembly, the uſurped 'Authority of the Tables (as they call it) by their Miſſives and Inſtructions, did give order and direction for all Preſbyteries to elect 'and chuſe their Commiſſioners for the Aſſembly, and for ſeeking

'God's Bleſſing to it, to keep a ſolemn Faſt, Sept. 16. whereas his Majeſty's Warrant for indicting that Aſſembly was not publiſhed till the 22 of that Month; ſo that they preventing, and not proceeding by Warrant of Royal Authority, the pretended Commiſſioners being choſen before the Preſbyteries were authorized to make Election, cannot be reputed Members of a Lawful Aſſembly, muſt not only be indicted by lawful Authority, (as we acknowledg this to be) but alſo conſtituted of ſuch Members as are requiſite to make up ſuch a Body; for if according to the Indiction, none at all do Convene, or where the Clergy is called, there meet none but Laicks, or more Laicks than of the Clergy, with equal Power to judg and determine; or of ſuch of the Laicks and Clergy as are not lawfully Authorized, or are not capable of that Emploiment by their Places; or ſuch as are legally diſabled to ſit and decide in an Aſſembly of the Church, a Meeting conſiſting of ſuch Members, cannot be thought a Free and Lawful Aſſembly by that Act of Parliament, Ja.6. Par.3. cap. 46. 1572. Every Miniſter who ſhall pretend to be a Miniſter of God's Word and Sacraments, is bound to give his aſſent and ſubſcription to the Articles of Religion, contained in the Acts of our Soveraign Lord's Parliament, and in the preſence of the Arch-Biſhop, Superintendent or Commiſſioner of the Province, give his Oath for acknowledging and recognoſcing of our Soveraign Lord and his Authority, and bring a Teſtimonial in Writing thereupon; and openly upon ſome Sunday, in time of Sermon, or publick Prayers, in the Kirk where he ought to attend, read both the Teſtimonial and Confeſſion, and of new make the ſaid Oath, within a month after his Admiſſion; under the pain, That every one that ſhall not do as is above appointed, ſhall, ipſo facto, be deprived, and all his Eccleſiaſtical Promotions and Livings be then vacant, as if he were then naturally dead: And that all inferior Perſons, under Prelats, be called before the Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Superintendents, and Commiſſioners of the Dioceſs or Province within which they dwell, as the Act bears.

2. 'All of the Clergy convened to this Aſſembly, pretend themſelves to be Miniſters of God's Word and Sacraments; and having Benefices, or other Eccleſiaſtical Livings, yet nevertheleſs moſt of them have never in the preſence of the Arch-Biſhop, Biſhop, Superintendent, or Commiſſioner of the Dioceſs or Province, ſubſcribed the Articles of Religion contained in the Acts of Parliament, and given their Oath for acknowledging and recognoſcing our Soveraign Lord and his Authority, and brought a Teſtimonial thereof; and therefore they are, ipſo facto, deprived, and their Places void, as if they were naturally dead; and conſequently having no Place in the Church, nor Function in the Church, cannot be Commiſſioners to this Aſſembly: Hoc maxime attento, that the ſaid Perſons not only have never given their Oath for acknowledging his Majeſty's Authority, nor can ſhew any Teſtimonial thereupon, as they are bound by the ſaid Act; but alſo as Subjects having bin comprehended in the Repreſentative Body of this Kingdom, promiſed to acknowledg, obey, maintain, defend, and advance the Life, Honour, Safety, Dignity, Soveraign Authority, and Prerogative Roial of his Soveraign Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, and priviledges of his Highneſs's Crown, with their Lives, Lands, and Goods, to the uttermoſt of

An. 1638. ‘their Power, conſtantly and faithfully to withſtand all and whatſoever Perſons, Powers, and Eſtates, who ſhall preſume, preaſe, or intend any-wiſe to impugn, prejudg, hurt, or impair the ſame, and never to come in the contrary thereof, directly or indirectly for the time coming, as the Acts of Parliament, Jac. 6. Parl. 18. *Cap.*1. Car. Parl. cap. 1. do report.

‘And moreover, being obliged at their admiſſion, to give their Oath for performance of this Duty of their Allegiance, and to teſtify and declare on their Conſcience, That the King is the lawful Supream Governour, as well in Matters Eccleſiaſtical and Spiritual, as Temporal, and to aſſiſt all Juriſdiction, and defend Authority belonging to his Majeſty, by Act of Parliament 1612. Yet notwithſtanding of the ſaid Bands, Acts, and Promiſes, whereby the ſaid Perſons are ſo ſtrictly bound to the performance of the Promiſes, his Majeſty having ordained by Act of Council, at Hally-Rood-Houſe, Septemb. 24. 1638. and Proclamation following thereupon, That all his Majeſty's Lieges, of whatſoever Eſtate, Degree, or Quality, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Temporal, ſhould ſwear and ſubſcribe the ſaid Confeſſion, together with the General Band, for defending his Majeſty's Perſon and Authority, againſt all Enemies within this Realm and without, have not only refuſed to ſubſcribe the ſame Band and Confeſſion, but have in their Sermons, and other Speeches, diſſwaded, deterred, impeded, and hindred others of Lieges to ſubſcribe the ſame, publickly proteſted againſt the ſubſcription thereof; and thereupon cannot concur or convene lawfully to the making up of the Body of the Aſſembly of the Kirk, as being deprived and denuded of all Place and Function in the ſame.

3. ‘A General Aſſembly was condeſcended unto, out of his Majeſty's gracious Clemency, and pious Diſpoſition, as a Roial Favour to thoſe that ſhould ſo acknowledg the ſame, and acquieſce in his gracious Pleaſure, and carry themſelves peaceably, as Loial and Dutiful Subjects, which the Commiſſioners directed to this Aſſembly, ſuppoſed to be of the Number that did adhere to the laſt Proteſtation made at Edinburgh, Sept. 1638. do not ſo account of and accept, as appears by the ſaid Proteſtation; whereby they proteſt that it ſhall be lawful for them, as at other times, ſo at this, to aſſemble themſelves, notwithſtanding any Impediment or Prorogation to the contrary; as alſo by continuing their Tables and Meetings, diſcharged by Authority, refuſing to ſubſcribe the Band, according to his Majeſty's and Council's Command, for maintaining his Majeſty's Roial Perſon and Authority, proteſting againſt the ſame, ſtill inſiſting with the Lieges to ſubſcribe the Band of Mutual Defence againſt all Perſons whatſoever, and remitting nothing of their former Proceedings, whereby his Majeſty's Wrath was provoked thereby; they are become in the ſame ſtate and condition wherein they were before his Majeſty's Proclamation and Pardon, and ſo forfeit the favour of this Aſſembly, and liberty to be Members thereof; and others of his Majeſty's Subjects may juſtly fear to meet with them in this Convention; for that by Act of Parliament, James 6. Parl. 15. cap. 31. Prelacies being declared to be one of the three Eſtates of the Kingdom; and by the Act of Parliament, Jac. 6. Parl. 8. cap. 130. all Perſons are diſcharged to impugn the Dignity and Authority of the three Eſtates, or any of them in time coming, under pain of 'Treaſon. And whereas the King by his Proclamation, declares Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops to have Voices in the General Aſſembly, and calls them to the ſame for that effect, as conſtantly they have bin in uſe in all Aſſemblies where they were preſent, as appears by many Acts of the General Aſſembly, ordaining them to keep and aſſiſt at the ſame; as in the Aſſembly at Edinburgh, Decemb. 15. 1566. at Edinburgh, March 6. 1572. at Edinburgh, May 10. 1586. and by a Letter written by the Aſſembly, March 6. 1573, to the Regent, earneſtly deſiring his own, or his Commiſſioners preſence, and the Lords of the Council, and the Biſhops at the Aſſembly. They notwithſtanding, by the ſaid* Proteſtation, dated Septemb. 22. declared the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops to have no Warrant for their Office in this Kirk, to be authorized with no lawful Commiſſion, and to have no Place nor Voice in this Aſſembly: and withal do arrogate to their Meetings a Soveraign Authority, to determine of all Queſtions and Doubts that may ariſe, contrary to the freedom of the Aſſembly, whether in Conſtitution and Members, or in the Matters to be treated, or in Manner and Order of proceeding; which how it doth ſtand with his Majeſty's Supremacy in all Caſes, over all Perſons, and in all Cauſes, we leave it to that Judgment whereunto it doth belong, and do call God and Man to Witneſs, if theſe be fit Members of an Aſſembly, intended for the Order and Peace of the Church.

4. 'Giving, and not granting, That the Perſons aforeſaid directed Commiſſioners, in the Name of the Clergy, to this Meeting, were capable of that Authority, and that the ſaid Preſbyters had the Authority to direct Commiſſioners to the General Aſſembly; yet have they now loſt and fallen from all ſuch Right, if any they had, in ſo far as they have depoſed the Moderators, who were lawfully appointed to govern them, by the Biſhops in their Synods, and elected others in their place, contrary to the Act of the Aſſembly at Glaſgow, 1610, an Act of Parliament 1612, ordaining Biſhops to be Moderators at theſe Meetings; and in their abſence, the Miniſter whom the Biſhop ſhould appoint at the Synod. So theſe Meetings having diſclaimed the Authority of Biſhops, depoſed their lawful Moderatours, and chuſing others without Authority, cannot be eſteemed Lawful Convocations, that can have lawful Power of ſending out Commiſſioners with Authority to judge of the Affairs of this Church.

'And yet doth the nullity of the Commiſſions, flowing from ſuch Meetings, further appear in this, that they have aſſociate to themſelves a Laick Ruling-Elder (as they call him) out of every Seſſion and Pariſh; who being ordinarily the Laird of the Pariſh, or a Man of the greateſt Authority in the Bounds, doth over-rule in the Election of the ſaid Commiſſioners, both by his Authority and their Number, being more than the Miniſters; whereof ſome being ordinarily abſent, and five, or ſix, or ſo many of them put in Liſt, and removed, there remain but a few Miniſters to Voice to the Election; and in effect the Commiſſioners for the Clergy are choſen by Lay-Men, contrary to all Order, Decency, and Cuſtom obſerved in the Chriſtian World, in no wiſe according to this cuſtom of this Church which they pretend to follow, the Preſbyteries formerly never aſſociating to themſelves Lay-Elders in the Election of the Commiſſioners to the General Aſſemblies, but only for their aſſiſtance in Diſcipline, ‘and correction of Manners, calling for them at ſuch times and occaſions as they ſtood in need of their godly concurrence, declaring otherwiſe their Meeting not neceſſary; and providing expreſly that they ſhould not be equal, but fewer in number than the Paſtors, as by Act of Aſſembly at St. Andrews, April 24. 1582. (where Mr. Andrew Melvill was Moderator) doth appear; like-as theſe forty years by-gone and upwards, long before the re-eſtabliſhment of Biſhops, theſe Lay-Elders have not bin called at all to Preſbyteries. And by the Act of Dundee, 1597, (whereby it is pretended that Preſbyteries have Authority to ſend theſe Lay Commiſſioners) it doth no way appear that thoſe Lay-Elders had any hand in chuſing of the Miniſters; and this is the only Act of Aſſembly authoriſing Preſbyteries to chuſe Commiſſioners to the General Aſſembly: Nor have Lay-Elders ſat ordinarily in Preſbyteries, upon any occaſion, this forty Years and upwards, nor ever had any Place or Voice in the Election of Miniſters for the General Aſſembly; and conſequently thoſe choſen by them to this Aſſembly, have no lawful Power nor Authority: Beſides the Perſons Eccleſiaſtical, pretended to be authoriſed Commiſſioners to this Aſſembly, have ſo behaved themſelves, that juſtly they may be thought unworthy and uncapable of Commiſſion to a free and lawful Aſſembly.

‘First, That by their railing and ſeditious Sermons and Pamphlets, they have wounded the King's Honour and Soveraign Authority, and animated his Lieges to Rebellion, averring that all Authority Soveraign, is originally in the collective Body derived from thence to the Prince; and that not only in caſe of negligence it is ſuppletive in the collective Body, as being communicate from the Commonalty to the King, cumulative nor privative, but in caſe of Male adminiſtration, to return to the collective Body; ſo that Rex excidit Jure ſuo, and that they may refuſe Obedience.

‘Next, They are known to be ſuch as have either bin ſchiſmatically refractory, oppoſite to good order ſetled in the Church and State, or ſuch as having promiſed, ſubſcribed, and ſworn Obedience to their Ordinary, have never made Conſcience of their Oath; or ſuch as have ſworn, and accordingly practiſed, yet contrary to their Promiſe and Practice, have reſiſted, to the contempt of Authority, and diſturbance of the Church; or ſuch as are under the Cenſures of this Church, or convened, or at leaſt deſerving to be convened, before the Ordinaries, or a lawful General Aſſembly, for divers tranſgreſſions deſerving deprivation.

‘Next for reproving his Majeſty's Laws, Statutes, and Ordinances, contrary to the Act of the Aſſembly at Perth, May 1. 1596.

‘Thirdly, For expreſſing Mens Names in Pulpits, or deſcribing them lively to their reproach, where there was no notorious fault, againſt another Act of the ſame Aſſembly.

‘Seventhly, For intruding themſelves into other Mens Pulpits, without Calling and Authority.

‘Eighthly, For uſurping the Authority to convent their Brethren, and proceed againſt them to the Cenſures of Suſpenſion and Deprivation.

‘Ninthly, For preſſing the People to ſubſcribe a Covenant, not allowed by Authority; and oppoſing and withſtanding the ſubſcribing of a Covenant offered by his Majeſty, and allowed by the Council; beſides many perſonal Faults and Enormities, whereof many of them are guilty, which in charity we forbear to expreſs; but hereby it doth appear, how unfit theſe Perſons are to be Members of a free and lawful Aſſembly.

7. ‘Nor doth it ſtand with Reaſon, Scripture, or Practice of the Chriſtian Church, that Lay-Men ſhould be authoriſed to have deciſive Voice in a General Aſſembly, in that Act of Dundee, 1597, whereby theſe Elders pretend to have this place; there is no Warrant expreſſed for them to deliberate and determine: Their preſence and aſſiſtance we approve, being allowed and authoriſed by the Prince, the King's Majeſty preſent in Perſon, or by his Delegates; we hold moſt neceſſary to ſee all things orderly and peaceably done, and that he have the chief hand in all Determinations and Deliberations. Nor do we refuſe that any moderate or intelligent Man may make remonſtrance of his Opinion, with the Reaſons of it, in that way that becometh him in a National Aſſembly, due reverence being kept, and confuſion avoided; but that any Lay-Men, except Delegates by Soveraign Authority, ſhall preſume to have a definitive and deciſive Voice, we eſteem it to be intruſion upon the Paſtoral Charge, and without Warrant; may we not therefore entreat my Lord Commiſſioner his Grace, in the words of the Fathers of the fourth General Council at Chalcedon, Mitte foras ſuperfluos? Nor will a pious Prince be offended with it, but with Theodoſius the Younger will ſay, Illegitimum eſt eum qui non ſit, in ordine Sanctiſſimorum Epiſcoporum Eccleſiaſticis immiſceri tractatibus.——And Pulcheria the Empreſs commanded Strategus, Ut Clerici, Monachi & Laici vi repellerentur, exceptis paucis illis quos Epiſcopi ſecum duxerunt. Upon this reſpect was Martinus in that Council of Chalcedon moved to ſay, Non eſſe ſuum, ſed Epiſcoporum tantum ſub ſcribere.

8. ‘If theſe pretended Commiſſioners, both Lay and Eccleſiaſtical, were lawfully authoriſed, (at it is evident they are not) and for none other Cauſe declinable, yet the Law doth admit, that a Judg may juſtly be declined who is probably ſuſpected; and of all Probabilities this is the moſt pregnant, when the Judg, before he come to Judgment, doth give Sentence of theſe things he hath to Judg. This made our Reformers Proteſtation againſt the Council of Trent valid, and their not compearing juſtifiable; becauſe Pope Leo the 10th had pre-condemned Luther, as appeared by his Bull dated Junii 8. 1520. renewed by Paul the third, dated in Auguſt 1535. This was the cauſe why Athanaſius would not give his appearance at ſome Councils, nor Hoſius of Corduba, nor Maximus Patriarch of Conſtantinople; But ſo it is, the moſt part, if not all of the ſaid Commiſſioners directed to this Meeting, have pre-condemned Epiſcopal

'Government, and condemned, at leaſt ſuſpended, obedience to the 'Acts of the General Aſſembly and Parliament, concerning the five Articles of Perth, have approved their Covenant as moſt neceſſary to 'be embraced of all in this Kingdom; and have not only given Judgment of theſe things before-hand, but by moſt ſolemn Oaths have 'bound themſelves to defend, and ſtand to the ſame, as doth appear 'by their Covenant, Petitions, Proteſtations, Pamphlets, Libels, 'and Sermons,and therefore by no Law nor Equity can theſe pretended 'Commiſſioners be admitted to determin in this Meeting concerning 'theſe Perſons and Points, which before-hand they have ſo unjuſtly 'condemned.

'Furthermore, with no Law nor Reaſon can it ſubſiſt, that the 'ſame Perſons ſhall be both Judges and Parties. And we appeal to the 'Conſciences of all honeſt Men, if all, at leaſt the greateſt part of the 'pretended Commiſſioners, have not declared themſelves Party to 'the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops of this Church; for in that they have 'declined the Biſhops to be their Judges, as being their Party, (as 'their Declinators, Petitions, Declarations, and Proteſtations do 'bear) have they not, ſimul & ſemel, & ipſo facto, declared themſelves to be Party againſt the Biſhops; whom they have not only declined, but perſecuted by their Calumnies and Reproaches, vented 'by Word and Wit, in publick and in private, by invading their 'Perſons, oppoſing and oppreſſing them by ſtrength of an unlawful 'Combination; for the ſubſcribing and ſwearing whereof, they have 'by their own Authority, indicted and kept Faſts, not only in their 'own Churches, but where worthy Men refuſed to be acceſſary to 'theſe diſorderly and impious Courſes: They have (by aid of the 'unruly Multitude) entred their Churches, uſurped upon their Charges, reading, and cauſing to be read that unlawful Covenant, by 'threatning,and menacing,compelling ſome (otherwiſe unwilling) out 'of juſt fear, to ſet their hands to it, by proceſſing, ſuſpending, and 'removing obedient and worthy Miniſters from their Places, by the 'uſurped Authority of their Table and Preſbyteries.

CHARLES by the Grace of God, King of Scotland, England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith. To all Our Lovits, Heraulds, Purſevants, Our Sheriffs in that part conjunctly and ſeverally ſpecially conſtitute, Greeting.

Whereas for the removing of the Diſorders which had happened of late within this our Kingdom, and for ſetling of a perfect Peace in the Church and Common-Wealth thereof; We were pleaſed to cauſe indict a General Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow, the one and twentieth of November laſt: And for our Subjects their better content and aſſurance that they ſhould be freed of all ſuch things, as by their Petitions and Supplications given in to the Lords of our Privy-Council, they ſeemed to be grieved at, We in ſome ſort prevened the Aſſembly, by diſcharging, by our Proclamation, the Service-Book, Book of Canons, and High-Commiſſion; freed and liberate our Subjects from the practiſing of the Five Articles; eximed all Miniſters at their entry, from giving any other Oath than that which is contained in the Act of Parliament, made all

An. 1638. all Perſons, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, liable to the Cenſure of Parliament, General Aſſembly, or any other Judicatory competent, according to the nature of their Offence, had declared all by-gone Diſorders abſolutely forgotten and forgiven at laſt, for ſecuring to all Poſterity the Truth and Liberty of Religion, did command the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band for maintenance thereof, and of Authority in defence of the ſame, ſubſcribed by our dear Father and his Houſhold, in Anno 1580, to be renewed and ſubſcribed again by our Subjects here. And albeit that this our gracious and pious Command, inſtead of Obedience and Submiſſion, rancountred open and publick Oppoſition and Proteſtation againſt the ſame: And that they continued their daily and hourly guarding and watching our Caſtle at Edinburgh, ſuffering nothing to be imported therein but at their diſcretion, ſtopping and impeding any importation of Ammunition, or other Neceſſaries whatſoever to any of our Houſes within this Kingdom; denying to Us, their Soveraign Lord, that Liberty and Freedom which the meaneſt of them aſſume to themſelves (an Act without Preſident or Example in the Chriſtian World) like as they ſpared not boldly and openly to continue their Conventions and Council-Tables, of Nobility, Gentry, Miniſters and Burgeſſes within the City of Edinburgh; where not regarding the Laws of the Kingdom, without Warrant of Authority, they convened, aſſembled, and treated upon Matters, as well Eccleſiaſtical as Civil; ſent their Injunctions and Directions throughout the Country to their Subordinate Tables, and other Under-Miniſters appointed by them for that effect. And under colour and pretext of Religion, exerciſing an unwarranted Liberty, required Obedience to their unlawful and illegal Directions, to the ſeen prejudice of Authority, and lawful Monarchial Government. And notwithſtanding it was evidently manifeſt, by the illegal and unformal courſe taken in the Election of the Commiſſioners for the Aſſembly, whereof ſome of them were under the Cenſure of this Church, ſome under the Cenſure of the Church of Ireland; ſome long ſince baniſhed for open and avowed teaching againſt Monarchy, others of them ſuſpended; and ſome admitted to the Miniſtry contrary to the form preſcribed by the Laws of this Kingdom, others of them Rebels, and at the Horn; ſome of them confined, and all of them by Oath and Subſcription bound to the overthrow of Epiſcopal Government. And by this and other their under-hand working, and private Informations and Perſwaſions, have given juſt ground of ſuſpition of their partiality, and ſo made themſelves unfit Judges of what concerneth Epiſcopacy. And alſo albeit it was ſufficiently cleared by the peremptory and illegal procedures of the Preſbyteries, who at their own hand, by order of Law, and without due form of Proceſs, thruſt out Moderators lawfully eſtabliſhed, and placed others, whom they found moſt inclinable to their turbulent Humours, aſſociate to themſelves, for chuſing of the Commiſſioners to the Aſſembly, a Laick-Elder out of each Pariſh; who being in moſt places equal, if not more in number than the Miniſtry, made choice both of the Miniſters, who ſhould be Commiſſioners from the Preſbyteries, as alſo of a Laick-Elder, (which in time will prove to be of a dangerous conſequence, and import a heavy burden to the Liberty of the Church and Church-men) being more therein directed by the Warrants of the foreſaid pretended Tables, than by their own Judgments; as appeared by the ſeveral Inſtructions ſent from them, (far contrary to the Laws of this Country, and lowable cuſtom of this Church) ſome whereof were produced and exhibited by our Commiſſioner, and publickly read: one whereof, direct to the Noblemen and Barons of each Presbytery, doth, among many other odd Paſſages, require diligence, leſt (ſay they) by our own ſillineſs and treachery, we loſe ſo fair an occaſion of our Liberty, both Chriſtian and Civil; a ſtrange phraſe to proceed from dutiful or loial-hearted Subjects. The other to the Moderator of the ſeveral Presbyteries, under the Title of Private Inſtructions, Auguſt 27.

Firſt containeth, That theſe private Inſtructions ſhall be diſcovered to none, but to Brethren well-affected to the Cauſe.

Secondly, Order muſt be taken, That none be choſen Ruling-Elders but Covenanters, and thoſe well-affected to the Buſineſs.

Thirdly, That where the Miniſter is not well-affected, the Ruling-Elder be choſen by the Commiſſioners of the Shire, and ſpoken to particularly for that effect.

Fourthly, That they be careful that no Chappel-men, Chapter-men, or Miniſter Juſtice of Peace, be choſen, although Covenanters, except they have publickly renounced or declared the unlawfulneſs of their places.

Fifthly, That the Ruling-Elders come from every Church in equal number with the Miniſters; and if the Miniſter oppoſe, to put themſelves in poſſeſſion, notwithſtanding of any oppoſition.

Sixthly, That the Commiſſioner of the Shire cauſe convene before him the Ruling-Elders of every Kirk choſen before the day of the Election, and enjoin them upon their Oath, That they give vote to none but to thoſe who are named already at the Meeting at Edinburgh.

Seventhly, That where there is a Nobleman in the bounds of the Presbytery, he be choſen; and where there is none, there be choſen a Baron, or one of the beſt Quality, and he only a Covenanter.

Eighthly, That the ableſt Man in every Presbytery be provided to diſpute de poteſtate ſupremi Magiſtratus in Eccleſiaſticis, præſertim in convocandis Conciliis, &c.

Whereby it is moſt evident what Prelimitations, indirect and partial Courſes, and dangerous Propoſitions have bin uſed in the Preparations and Elections to this pretended Aſſembly. By which unlawful doings, although We had ſufficient Reaſon to have diſcharged the meeting of the ſaid Aſſembly, yet We were pleaſed patiently to attend the ſame, ſtill hoping, that when they were met together, by the preſence of our Commiſſioner, and aſſiſtance of ſome well-affected Subjects who were to be there, and by their own ſeeing the real performance of what was promiſed by our Proclamation, they ſhould have bin induced to return to the due Obedience of Subjects: But when We perceived that their turbulent Diſpoſitions did increaſe, as was manifeſt by their repairing to the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, with great Troops and Bands of Men, all boddin in fear of War, with Guns and Piſtolets, contrary to the Laws of this Kingdom, and in high contempt of our Proclamation at Edinburgh the 16th day of November laſt. And alſo by the peremptory refuſing to the Aſſeſſors authorized by Us (although fewer in number than Our deareſt Father was in uſe to have) the power of voting in this Aſſembly, as formerly they had done in all others; openly averring, That We, nor Our Commiſſioner, had no further Power there than the meaneſt Commiſſioner of their number. And by their partial and unjuſt refuſing, and not ſuffering to be read the Reaſons and Arguments given in by the Biſhops, and their adherents to our Commiſſioner, why they ought not to proceed to the Election of a Moderator, neither yet to the trying and admitting of the Commiſſioners before they were heard, though in our Name they were earneſtly required thereto by our Commiſſioner: And notwithſtanding that our Commiſſioner, by Warrant from Us, gave in under his hand a ſufficient Declaration of all that was contained in our late Proclamation, bearing likewiſe Our pleaſure of the Regiſtration of the ſame in the Books of Aſſembly, for all aſſurance of the Truth and Purity of Religion to all Our good Subjects, as doth clearly appear by the Declaration it ſelf, whereof the tenour follows.

The King's Majeſty being informed, That many of his good Subjects have apprehended, that by the introducing of the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, the inbringing of Superſtition hath bin intended, hath bin graciouſly pleaſed to diſcharge, like-as by theſe he doth diſcharge the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, and the practice of them, and either of them; and annuls and reſcinds all Acts of Council, Proclamations, and other Acts and Deeds whatſoever, that have bin made or publiſhed for eſtabliſhing them, or either of them; and declares the ſame to be null, and to have no force nor effect in time coming. The King's Majeſty, as he conceived, for the eaſe and benefit of the Subject, eſtabliſhed the High Commiſſion, and thereby Juſtice might be adminiſtred, and the Faults and Errors of ſuch Perſons as are made liable thereto, taken order with, and puniſhed with the more conveniency, and leſs trouble to the People. But finding his gracious Intention therein to be miſtaken, hath bin pleaſed to diſcharge, like-as by theſe he doth diſcharge the ſame, and all Acts and Deeds whatſoever made for eſtabliſhing thereof. And the King's Majeſty being informed, that the urging of the five Articles of Perth-Aſſembly hath bred diſtraction in the Church and State, hath bin graciouſly pleaſed to take the ſame into his Roial Conſideration, and for the Quiet and Peace of this Country, hath not only diſpenſed with the practice of the ſaid Articles, but alſo diſcharged all and whatſoever Perſons from urging the practice thereof, upon either Laick or Eccleſiaſtical Perſon whatſoever; and hath freed all his Subjects from Cenſure and Pains, whether Eccleſiaſtical or Secular, for not urging, practiſing, or obeying them, or any of them, notwithſtanding of any thing contained in the Acts of Parliament, or General Aſſembly to the contrary. And his Majeſty is further contented, that the Aſſembly take the ſame ſo far to their conſideration, as to repreſent it to the next Parliament, there to be ratified as the Eſtates ſhall find fitting. And becauſe it hath bin pretended, that Oaths have bin adminiſtred different from that which is ſet down in the Acts of Parliament, his Majeſty is pleaſed to declare by me, That no other Oath ſhall be required of any Miniſter at his entry, but that which is ſet down in the Act of Parliament. And that it may appear how careful his Majeſty is, that no Corruption nor Innovation ſhall creep into this Church, neither yet any Scandal, Vice, or Fault of any Perſon whatſoever, cenſurable or puniſhable by the Aſſembly, go along unpuniſhed, his Majeſty is content to declare by me, and aſſure all his good People, That General Aſſemblies ſhall be kept ſo oft, and as oft as the Affairs of this Church ſhall require. And that none of his good Subjects may have cauſe of Grievances againſt the proceedings of the Prelates, his Majeſty is content that all and every one of the preſent Biſhops, and their Succeſſors, ſhall be anſwerable, and accordingly from time to time cenſurable, according to their merits by the General Aſſembly. And to give all his Majeſty's good People full aſſurance that he never intended to admit any alteration or change in the true Religion profeſſed within this Kingdom; and that they may be truly and fully ſatisfied of the reality of his Intentions and integrity of the ſame, his Majeſty hath bin pleaſed to require and command all his good Subjects, to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith, and Band for maintenance thereof, and of his Majeſty's Perſon and Authority, formerly ſigned by his dear Father in Anno 1580; And now alſo requireth all theſe of the preſent Aſſembly to ſubſcribe the ſame. And it is his Majeſty's Will, That this be inſert and regiſtrate in the Books of Aſſembly, as a Teſtimony to Poſterity, not only of the ſincerity of his Intentions to the ſaid true Religion, but alſo of his Reſolutions to maintain and defend the ſame, and his Subjects in the profeſſion thereof.

Which Declaration was by our ſpecial command and direction given in, and ſubſcribed by our Commiſſioner, upon proteſtation made by him, that his aſſenting to the regiſtration hereof, ſhould be no approbation of the lawfulneſs of this Aſſembly, nor of any of the Acts or Deeds done, or to be done therein. And finding them in like ſort no ways to be ſatisfied therewith, and that nothing elſe was able to give them contentment, except at their own pleaſure they were permitted to overthrow all Epiſcopal Government in the Church, and thereby to abrogate our publick Laws, ſtanding in vigour by the ſpace of many Years by-gone, and to alter the Fundamental Government of this Kingdom, in taking away one of the three Eſtates, contrary to expreſs Acts of Parliament. And leſt the continuance of their Meetings might have produced other the like dangerous Acts ſo derogatory to Roial Authority, We were forced, for preventing thereof, and for the Reaſons and Cauſes above-mentioned, and divers others importing true Monarchial Government, to diſſolve and break up the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, and to diſcharge them of all farther meeting, treating, and concluding any thing therein. And yet in that calm and peaceable way, as our Commiſſioner before his removing deſired their pretended Moderator for that time to have ſaid Prayer, and ſo concluded that days Seſſion, that ſo they might have had time to think upon the juſt Reaſons of his refuſing to aſſiſt, or be any longer preſent at the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, and of the Cauſes moving Us to the diſſolving thereof: And notwithſtanding his earneſt urging the ſame, and being willing to return the next morning to hear their Anſwer; in place of all other ſatisfaction to his ſo reaſonable and moderate deſires, it was refuſed, and met with a Proteſtation of an high and extraordinary ſtrain, thereby preſuming to cite and call our Council in queſtion, for their dutiful aſſiſtance and obedience to Us and Our Commiſſioner. And finding their Diſobedience thus to increaſe, We were conſtrained to diſcharge them of new again the next day thereafter, by publick Proclamation, under the pain of Treaſon. And albeit that their contumacy is ſuch as hath not bin heard of in former Times, yet they ſhall never move Us to alter the leaſt Point or Article of that We have already declared by Proclamation or Declaration under our Commiſſioner's hand. All which was publickly read, and by our Commiſſioner required to be inſert and regiſtrate in the Books of Aſſembly, therein to remain as a Teſtimony to Poſterity, not only of the ſincerity of our Intentions to the True Religion, but alſo of our Reſolution to maintain and defend the ſame, and our Subjects in the profeſſion thereof: And perceiving likewiſe that in contempt of our Proclamation at Glaſgow, the 29th of November, they go ſtill on to convene, meet, and to make illegal and unwarrantable Acts, We have conceived it fitting to forewarn all our good Subjects of the Danger that they may incur by being enſnared by theſe their unlawful Procedures. And to this purpoſe do not only liberate and free them from all Obedience to any of the pretended Acts, made, or to be made at the ſaid pretended Aſſembly or Committees direct therefrom, but do alſo free them from all pain and cenſure which the ſaid pretended Aſſembly ſhall inflict upon them, or any of them. And therefore do diſcharge and prohibit all our Subjects, That they, nor none of them, acknowledg nor give Obedience to any pretended Acts nor Conſtitutions, made, or to be made at the ſaid pretended Meetings, under all higheſt pains. And We command, charge, and inhibit all Presbyteries, Seſſions of Kirks, Miniſters within this Realm, that none of them preſume, nor take upon hand privately nor publickly in their Seſſions and Meetings, nor in their Conferences, Sermons, nor no other manner of way, to authorize, approve, juſtify, or allow the ſaid unlawful Meeting, or Aſſembly at Glaſgow, neither yet to make any Act thereupon, nor to do any other thing private or publick, which may ſeem to countenance the ſaid unlawful Aſſembly, under the pain to be repute, holden, and eſteemed, and purſued as guilty of their unlawful Meeting, and to be puniſhed therefore with all rigour. And ſicklike We command all and ſundry Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Magiſtrates, and all other our Lieges who ſhall happen to be preſent and hear any Miniſters, either in publick or private Conferences or Speeches, or in their Sermons, to approve and allow the ſaid unlawful Aſſembly, caſt and utter any Speeches againſt Our Roial Commandments, or Proceedings of Us, or Our Council, for puniſhing or ſuppreſſing ſuch Enormities, that they make Relation and Report thereof to Our Council, and furniſh Probation, to the effect the ſame may be accordingly puniſhed, as they will anſwer to Us thereupon; certifying them who ſhall hear and conceal the ſaid Speeches, that they ſhall be eſteemed as allowers of the ſame, and ſhall accordingly be taken order with, and puniſhed therefore without favour. And to this effect We likewiſe ſtraightly Charge and Command all Judges whatſoever within this Realm, Clerks and Writers, not to grant or paſs any Bill, Summons, or Letters, or any other Execution whatſoever, upon any Act or Deed proceeding from the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, and all keepers of the Signet from ſigneting thereof, and that under all higheſt pains. And becauſe We gave Order and Warrant to Our Commiſſioner to make open Declaration, not only of our Senſe, but even of the true meaning of the Confeſſion of Faith, in Anno 1580; by which it may clearly appear, that as we never intended thereby to exclude Epiſcopacy, ſo by no right conſtruction can it be otherwiſe interpreted, as is more than evident by the Reaſons contained in the ſaid Declaration, and many more, which for brevity (the thing in it ſelf being ſo clear) are omitted; wherefore We do not only prohibit and diſcharge all our Subjects from ſubſcribing any Band, or giving any Writ, Subſcription, or Oath to, or upon any Act or Deed that proceeds from the foreſaid pretended Aſſembly, but alſo to require them not to ſubſcribe nor ſwear the ſaid Confeſſion, in no other ſenſe than that which is contained in the ſaid Declaration, and manifeſtly emitted by our Commiſſioner, under all higheſt pains. And that none of our good Subjects, who in their Duty and bound Obedience to Us, ſhall refuſe to acknowledg the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, or any of the pretended Acts, Conſtitutions, Warrants, or Directions proceeding therefrom, may have juſt ground of fear of danger or harm by doing thereof, We do by theſe promiſe, and upon the Word of a King oblige our Selves, by all the Roial Authority and Power wherewith God hath endowed Us, to protect and defend them, and every one of them in their Perſons, Fortunes, and Goods, againſt all and whatſoever Perſon, or Perſons, who ſhall dare or preſume to call in queſtion, trouble, or any ways moleſt them, or any of them therefore. And our Will is, and We charge you ſtraitly and command, That incontinent theſe our Letters ſeen, ye paſs, and make publication hereof by open Proclamation, at the Market-Croſs of Edinburgh, and other places needful, where-through none pretend ignorance of the ſame.

Given from Our Court at Whitehall, the 8*th* day of December, and of Our Raign the 14*th* Year, 1638.

Per Regem.

After the publiſhing of this Proclamation, the Aſſembly at Glaſgow made a Proteſtation at the Marker-Croſs at Edinburgh, the 18*th* of December 1638. which by reaſon of the very great length of it, and the many repetitions of former Paſſages, we forbear to trouble the Body of the Story or the Appendix therewith, referring the Reader rather, for his further ſatiſfaction, to the King's Large Declaration, page 375, unto page 401.

King's Declaration, f. 401, 403, &c.

Not long after this Proclamation and Proteſtation, the King's Commiſſioner (ſeeing all things tending to a preſent Rupture) began his Journey, according to the leave granted him by his Majeſty for his Return. After which time, and ever ſince, the Scots have throughout the whole Kingdom, by threats, made the Acts of their unlawful Aſſembly to be received, in many Places have perſwaded the reception of them by Force and Arms, have levied Souldiers, and impoſed Taxes upon the King's Subjects for paiment of them; have required of the Judges, or Lords of the Seſſion, to approve their Acts, though none of them conſented thereunto, have threatned and menaced them for refuſing of it; have raiſed divers Fortifications in our Kingdom; have blocked up our Caſtles and Forts; and now at laſt forcibly taken our Caſtle at Edinburgh: Have at home got their Preachers moſt ſeditiouſly and rebelliouſly to teach the People, That there is a neceſſity of their carrying Arms againſt his Majeſty, under pain of Perjury and Damnation; have ſcattered abroad, eſpecially here in England, divers infamous Libels juſtifying their own wicked and rebellious Courſes, inciting the People of England to attempt the like Rebellion, and to deface our Eccleſiaſtical Government.

One of them, upon the Commiſſioner's coming home, Prayed God to deliver them from all crafty Compoſitions. Another refuſed to pray in the Church for Sir William Nesbett late Provoſt of Edinburgh, when he was lying upon his Death-Bed, only becauſe he had not ſubſcribed the Covenant. Another prayed God to ſcatter them all in Iſrael, and to divide them in Jacob, who had counſelled us to require the Confeſſion of Faith to be ſubſcribed by the King's Authority. Many Miniſters would not admit to the Communion thoſe who had not ſubſcribed their Covenant, but in their Exhortation before it, barred them in expreſs tearms with Adulterers, Slanderers, and Blaſphemers, &c. Others would not ſuffer Children to be Baptized in the Churches of thoſe Miniſters who were not of the Covenant, though they were their own Pariſh Churches, but carried them ſometimes many miles to be baptized by Covenanting Miniſters. One preached, That all the non-ſubſcribers of the Covenant were Atheiſts; and ſo concluded, That all the Lords of the Council, and all the Lords of the Seſſion were ſuch, for none of them had ſubſcribed it. Another preached, That as the Wrath of God never was diverted from his People, until the ſeven Sons of Saul was hanged up before the Lord in Gibeon; ſo the Wrath of God would never depart from that Kingdom, till the twice ſeven Prelats (which makes up the number of the Biſhops in that Kingdom) were hang'd up before the Lord there; which is extream foul and barbarous. Another preached, That though there were never ſo many Acts of Parliament againſt the Covenant, yet it ought to be maintained againſt them all. Another delivered theſe words in his Sermon, Let us never give over till we have the King in our Power, and then he ſhall ſee how good Subjects we are. Another in his Sermon delivered this, That the bloodieſt and ſharpeſt War was rather to be endured, than the leaſt Error in Doctrine and Diſcipline. Another in his Sermon wiſhed, That he and all the Biſhops in that Kingdom were in a bottomleſs Boat at Sea together; for he could be well content to loſe his Life, ſo they might loſe theirs, &c.

Auguſt 3. Saturday, Many Varieties ſince the Aſſembly held and ended in Scotland; The Biſhops thruſt out, the Parliament there ſitting.

October 11 and 12. Friday and Saturday, The Spaniſh Navy was ſet upon by the Hollanders in the Downs; the Fight began to be hot when they were paſt Dover; they were in all near ſixty Sail. The Spaniards ſuffered much in that Fight, not without our diſhonour, that they ſhould begin the Fight there; but this is one of the Effects of the Scotiſh Darings.

An. 1639.

December 2. Monday, A. Sh. my Chirurgeon in truſt, gave me great and unexpected eaſe in my great Infirmity; but after the Weakneſs continued.

December 5. Thurſday, The King declared his Reſolution for a Parliament, in caſe of the Scotiſh Rebellion. The firſt Movers to it were my Lord Deputy of Ireland, my Lord Marqueſs Hamilton, and my Self. And a Reſolution voted at the Board, to aſſiſt the King in extraordinary ways, if the Parliament ſhould prove peeviſh, and refuſe, &c.

January 24. Friday at night, I dreamed that my Father (who died 46 years ſince) came to me, and to my thinking he was as well and as chearful as ever I ſaw him. He asked me what I did there? And after ſome Speech, I asked him how long he would ſtay with me? He anſwered, He would ſtay till he had me along with him. I am not moved with Dreams, yet I thought fit to remember this.

January 26. Sunday, I received the Queens gracious aſſurance of her Favour, in the Buſineſs which his Majeſty had committed to me with others.

At Whitehall, March 26. 1639.

His Majeſty's Inſtructions to his Privy-Council, before he went from London to York.

The Lords to attend the Queen's Majeſty on Sundays, in his Majeſty's abſence.

'THis day his Majeſty did recommend unto their Lordſhips, the care of the Queen's Majeſty, and the Prince, and his other Children in his abſence, with direction to attend her every Sunday whiles ſhe ſhall remain hereabouts; and if ſhe ſhall go further off, to Oatlands, or ſuch, or a greater diſtance for any long time, then likewiſe to attend her, as conveniently their Lordſhips may, though not ſo frequently; and that nothing that ſhall be fit for her be wanting or neglected.

King's Inſtructions to the Privy-Council in his abſence.

'Next, His Majeſty did recommend to their Lordſhips, to give notice to all Lord Lieutenants, and Deputy Lieutenants, to reſort to, and remove within the Limits of their Lieutenancies, except ſuch of his Privy-Council as are appointed to ſtay here; and the Earl of Bridgwater is to go, as ſoon as conveniently he can, into his Preſidency, to give notice likewiſe to all Governors of Iſlands and Forts, to repair to their Commands; or in caſe they are otherwiſe emploied, in his Majeſty's Service, to ſend able Deputies upon the Places, and ſuch for whom they will be anſwerable.

March the 27*th*, Coronation day, his Majeſty took his Journey Northwards againſt the Scots; there went with him in his Coach the Duke of Lenox, and Earl of Holland, and arrived at York the 30*th* of March. To whom Sir Thomas Widdrington, Recorder of York and Berwick, made this following Speech.

March 30.

'BE graciouſly pleas'd to pardon this ſtay, that we, the leaſt and meaneſt Motes in the Firmament of your Majeſty's Government, ſhould thus dare to cauſe you (our Bright and Glorious Sun) to ſtand: Give us leave, who are the Members of this Ancient and decay'd City, to make known unto your Majeſty (even our Sun it ſelf) where the Sun now ſtands,

{ In the City of York }

'which (like an ill-drawn Picture) needs a Name: A Place ſo unlike it Self, that we may boldly ſay, Niobe was never ſo unlike Niobe; never Old Man ſo unlike himſelf, himſelf being young, as is the City of York unlike the City of York; heretofore an Imperial City, the Place of the Life and Death of the Emperor Conſtantius Chlorus, in whoſe Grave a Burning Lamp was found many Centuries of Years after. The Place honoured with the Birth of Conſtantine the Great; and with the moſt noble Library of Egbert.

'I might go farther, but this were only to ſhew, or rather ſpeak of Ancient Tombs.

'This City was afterwards twice burn'd, ſo that the very Aſhes of theſe Antiquities are not now to be found: And if later Scars had not defaced our former Glory; what was it truly in reſpect of what we now enjoy?

'The Births, Lives, and Deaths of Emperors, are not ſo much for the Honour of York, as that King Charles was once Duke of York. Your very Roial Aſpect ſurmounts our former Glory, and ſcatters our later Clouds.

'It's more honour for us, that King Charles hath given us a new Life, Nativity and Being, by a moſt benign and liberal Charter, then that Conſtantine the Great had his firſt Being here. And for the Lamp found in the Grave of Chlorus, your Majeſty maintains a Lamp of Juſtice in this City, which burns more clearly than that of Chlorus, and ſhines into five ſeveral Counties, at which each Subject may light a Torch, by the lightneſs whereof he may ſee his own Right, and find, and taſte part of that ſweet and wholſom Manna here at his own Door, which drops from the influence of your Majeſty's moſt juſt and gracious Government.

'So that if the Library of Egbert were now extant among us, that very Idea of Eloquence, which the moſt skilful Orator could extract out of it, would not be able to expreſs what we owe to your Majeſty, there being not any acknowledgment anſwerable to our Obligations: For beſides all this,

'The Beams and Lightnings of thoſe Eminent Vertues, Sublime Gifts and Illuminations wherewith you are endowed, do caſt ſo forcible Reflections upon the Eyes of all Men, that you fill, not only this City, this Kingdom, but the whole Univerſe with ſplendor.

'You have eſtabliſhed your Throne upon two Columns of Diamond, Piety and Juſtice; the one gives you to God, the other gives Men to you, and all your Subjects are moſt happy in both.

An. 1639.

‘For our Selves, moſt gracious King, your Majeſty’s humbleſt and ‘meaneſt Subjects, Obedience, the beſt of Sacrifices, is the only Sa‘crifice which we have to offer to your moſt Sacred Majeſty. Yet ‘vouchſafe to believe (moſt mighty King) that even our Works, ſuch ‘as they are, ſhall not reſemble thoſe Sacrifices whereout the Heart is ‘taken, and whereof all the Head, nothing is left ſaving only the ‘Tongue; our Sacrifice is that of our Hearts, not of our Tongues.——

The King’s Attorney General, by Relation of the Lord Wentworth, Lord Deputy of Ireland, againſt the Lord Mountnorris, Sir Pierce Crosby and others.

‘THe Defendants are charged for raiſing and divulging Scandals of ‘the Lord Deputy of Ireland, giving out as if he was guilty of ‘the death of one Eſmond, proceeding from Sir Pierce Crosby’s malice, ‘who drew unto his Confederacy the other Defendents; who all re‘pining at the Lord Deputy, reſolved generally to make uſe of the ‘Death of one Eſmond a ſick and infirm Man, who died in the 10*th* ‘Year of the ſaid King; and in the 11*th* Year they tell his Wife, That ‘the Lord Deputy gave him divers ſtroaks; and they got her into ‘their Confederacy, and tell her, The Complaints will be well recei‘ved in England, offering her 1000 l. to come over.

‘To this Sir Pierce Crosby pleaded not guilty.

‘The Lord Mountnorris in his Anſwer ſaid, He was ſenſible of the ‘Charge, that he ſhould be a Perſon ill-affected to his Majeſty’s Ser‘vice, and pleaded not guilty to all the Offences.

‘The Wife ſaid, ſhe heard a report, That her Huſband received ‘ſeveral blows from the Lord Deputy, and that he died a few days ‘after, that ſhe made her moan to the Lord Eſmond.

‘Marcus Cheevers ſaith, That Sir Pierce Crosby asked him what he ‘heard of the Blows given by the Lord Deputy to Robert Eſmond? ‘and ſaid, There was a report of it at the Lord Eſmond’s Houſe; and ‘Sir Pierce Crosby in a Letter writes, That the Lord Eſmond did firſt ‘raiſe the Report, and firſt encouraged Margery to complain.

‘Walter Fitz-Harris anſwered, That he delivered the Meſſage from ‘Sir Pierce Crosby to Margery Eſmond, to ſuch Effects in the Informa‘tion, and to all Offences pleaded not guilty.

‘Lawrence Archer’s Anſwer was read, but pleaded not guilty.

‘William Halloway his Anſwer read, who was preſent when the Lord ‘Deputy committed Eſmond, and ſaid, He believes he did Eſmond no ‘wrong; and to all Offences pleaded not guilty.

‘The King’s Attorny General deſcended to Proof, and declared, ‘That Sir Pierce Crosby was the Forger of the Accuſation, and that it ‘will be proved Eſmond died of other Wounds, that no Blow was ‘given by the Lord Deputy.

‘Then the Depoſition of Margery Turner was read, who ſaith, That ‘Robert Eſmond her late Huſband, long before his Death, was woun‘ded in his Back with a ſmall Knife by one Egerton; and that the ſaid ‘Eſmond, after the Wound, ſpitted Blood for about a Year before he ‘died; and that he had alſo a Cough of the Lungs about ſeven Years, and ‘died of a Conſumption.

‘Lawrence Lord Eſmond being examined, ſaith, That Robert Eſmond, ſix or ſeven Years before his Death, received a Wound in his Back with a Knife by one Egerton; and that he was not of a weak or ſick Conſtitution before his Death; and that he and other his Friends conceived the ſaid Wound to be the cauſe of his Death.

‘Walter Fitz-Harris depoſed, That he told the Defendent Margery to go into England, to take part againſt the Lord Deputy; and that he promiſed her that Sir Pierce Crosby ſhould give her 1000 l. to go and make complaint of the Death of her Huſband; and told her, That he was ſent for that purpoſe into Ireland by Sir Pierce Crosby, and ſhe ſeemed willing to come into England.

‘Richard repair'd to Robert in his Sickneſs,and aſked him, Whether he had any ſtroak from the Lord Deputy? and ſaid, He had received no ſtroak from the Lord Deputy upon his Salvation;He alſo ſaid, That Margery Turner came to his Lodging, and complained of the loſs of her Huſband, and ſaid; She had bin ſent for by a Meſſenger, which ſaid, He came from my Lord Mountnorris, Sir Pierce Crosby, and Marcus Cheevers to come and ſpeak with them; and the Examinant conceived they ſent for her, to perſwade her to go into England to complain.

‘Sir Philip Manwairing ſaith, He was preſent when Eſmond was brought to the Lord Deputy, Eſmond was charged with Contempt, in refuſing to take a-board the King's Timber, and taking in other Timber; the Lord Deputy ſhook his Cane at Eſmond, and ſaid, He would teach him better Manners; but whether he touched him or not he cannot Depoſe.

‘Sir Philip Manwering further ſaid, That the Lord Eſmond, Lord Mountnorris, and Sir Pierce Crosby were of the Privy-Council in Ireland, and Sir Pierce Crosby renewed about the end of the laſt Parliament the Oath of a Privy-Counſellor.

‘Joſhua Carpenter ſaid, That about November 1634, that Eſmond was preſſed to carry Timber, and refuſed it, ſaying, He had undertaken to carry Timber for the Uſe of the Lord Chief-Juſtice, that the Lord Deputy ſhook his Cane, but whether touched him with it or not, he knows not; but the Lord Deputy committed Eſmond for neglect of the King's Service.

‘Jeremy Woodworth ſaith, That Eſmond was troubled with a violent Cough, but went quickly over; and when he viſited him in Priſon, he heard him not complain of any Blow, though he aſked him if the Lord Deputy did ſtrike him? but Eſmond anſwered, He did not, but only ſhaked a Cane over his Shoulders, but he felt no harm, that he would not have hidden it if he had beaten him. That Cheevers ſaid, that day that Eſmond died, Did not I tell you he would die of the ſtroaks the Lord Deputy gave him?

‘Sir Francis Wortly ſaith, That Sir Pierce Crosby ſaith, That the Lord Deputy had a hard heart in Ireland, he ſtruck Eſmond, and committed him to Priſon, and two or three days after he died, and on his Death-bed ſaid, he died of the Blows given by the Lord Deputy.

Sir Pierce Crosby Defendent.

'William Atkins Interrog. firſt; About November or December 1634, Robert Eſmond was brought before the Lord Deputy, who committed him to Dublin Caſtle; Atkins was preſent when Eſmond was convented, the Lord Deputy was angry with him, and ſaid, Sirrah, Sirrah, and ſtruck Eſmond on the Head and Shouldiers, three or four ſtroaks with a Cane, and then committed him.

'Immediately after Robert Eſmond's Death, he heard Richard Roach, and divers others report, That the ſaid ſtroak occaſioned it; that he did daily viſit Robert Eſmond, and he ſtill complained of the blows; and that this Deponent's Wife anointed his Shoulders; He often wept and grieved, and he would often ſay, His Heart was broken.

'Richard Roach ſaith, That Eſmond was in Priſon about ſix days and a half; daily complained and refuſed ordinary Food.

'William Holloway ſaw the Lord Deputy ſtrike three or four ſtroaks over the Pate with a Cane, agreeing with Eſmond's Relation.

'That in November or December 1634, he being a Priſoner in Dublin-Caſtle; Robert Eſmond told him, That he had bin convented before the Lord Deputy, and committed, by reaſon that after his Bark was laded for the Lord Chief Juſtice, he refuſed to take in the Lord Deputy's Timber, which he could not have taken, in reſpect of the length.

'Eſmond further ſaid to this Deponent, That the Lord Deputy had made him Knight of the Cane; and complained of the ſtroaks the Lord Deputy had given him, and wiſhed them to feel what ſwellings he had in the hinder part of his Head, and this Deponent felt ſeveral knots and ſwellings by his Ears: He lay in Priſon about ſix days and a half, and daily complained, and refuſed ordinary Food; and from his commitment to his death, he did more and more languiſh; and at his going out of the Caſtle, he ſhook his Head towards it, and ſaid, He might thank the Lord Deputy for that.

'William Holloway agrees with the ſame Depoſition.

'William Eſmond ſaith, That in July 11. Car. 1. Sir Pierce Crosby and Lord Mountnorris were at Wexford, and then and there Sir Pierce did ſpeak of ſuch Reports as is before depoſed, that it was no Crime; and they did inquire of Eſmond's Wife, but no Proof that ever they ſpoke with her till the Information was exhibited.

After the reading of a few more Depoſitions, and Mr. Attorney General's Reply in this Cauſe, and magnifying the Worth and Merit of the Lord Deputy, and ſhewing the improbability of any Truth in the Defendents Witneſſes, the Court proceeded to Cenſure.

May 22. 15. Car. Regis, 1639.

Some Paſſages of the Lord Cottington's Sentence, at the hearing of the Cauſe between the King's Attorney General Plantiff, Sir Pierce Crosby and others Defendents.

'THat there lay a neceſſity upon the Lord Deputy to bring this Cauſe to a Hearing, elſe he had not done Right to his own Honour, and the King's Service, nor to his Poſterity, and he had great reaſon to expect Satisfaction from the Court. That he blames not all the Council at the Bar, who pleaded for the Defendents, but blames him that made Defence, in way of Juſtification of the Scandal, after not guilty pleaded; and leaves it to the Court, whether it be not fit to repair the Lord Deputy for ſuch a Defence, conſidering the Deputy's great Merit to the King, State, and their Lordſhips; being one who hath done ſo good, ſo juſt, and ſo honourable Services, not to be parallel'd by any that went before him in that Place.

'His equal diſtribution of Juſtice, advancing his Majeſty's Revenue, &c. ſo that Ireland was never in that ſtate as now it is: And that this Noble Lord ſhould have theſe Reflections caſt upon him by Sir Pierce Crosby, is an ill Reward.

'I am well ſatisfied Sir Pierce Crosby endeavoured to draw this ſcandalous Accuſation upon this Lord, and hath bin a publiſher of it, particularly to Sir Francis Wortly: And how ridiculous a thing it was (the Proofs conſidered) to ſay that Eſmond died of the Blows the Lord Deputy gave him, when only he ſhaked his Cane over his Head.

'I hold my Lord Eſmond alſo guilty of ſpreading this Report. Fitz-Harris tells how he was hired to go into Ireland, on Sir Pierce Crosby's account; It is ſaid he is a Man Indicted of Felony, Why did Sir Pierce Crosby make uſe of ſuch a Fellow?

'I fine Sir Piece Crosby 4000 l. to the King, and to give ſuch Satiſfaction to the Lord Deputy as this Court ſhall direct. I am ſorry for Sir Pierce Crosby, for time was when he did good Service at the Iſle of Ree for his King and Country.

'As for the Lord Eſmond, I hold him clearly guilty of ſpreading this Scandal, to the diſhonour of my Lord Deputy. My Lord Mountnorris ſaid, He had it from the Lord Eſmond. Now for Men of Honour to report a thing falſe for a Truth, is a very great Crime, I fine my Lord Eſmond 3000 l. and I do declare him to be unworthy to ſerve under the General (my Lord Deputy) and to make Satiſfaction in ſome publick Way, and in ſuch Words as this Court ſhall direct.

'As for Marcus Chevers, the beginner of this Report, I Sentence him, for publiſhing of it, a 1000 l. and to acknowledg his Offence.

'And all the Defendents in 5000 l. Dammages to the Lord Deputy.

Lord

An. 1639.

‘MY Lords, The Charge in this Information is double; It is a Conſpiracy to raiſe a Scandal, to bring my Lord Deputy in Queſtion, both in his Honour, Life, and Fortune. And it is for the publiſhing and divulging of this, to the diſhonour of my Lord Deputy, and to ſtir up ill Conſequences likewiſe to his great damage.

1. ‘That there was a Scandal raiſed, I am fully ſatisfied; but who are the firſt raiſers of this Scandal, that in judgment doth not appear before your Lordſhips. But my Lord Deputy hath very good reaſon to charge this as a Conſpiracy and Practice in the Defendents, and I think your Lordſhips have great reaſon to ſuſpect it ſtrongly; and in my own private Conſcience I do believe it. But I dare not, upon the proof in Court, go ſo far as to Sentence any of the Defendents, not Sir Pierce Crosby, whom I hold to be the chiefeſt Delinquent in the Cauſe. I dare not, I ſay, upon the proof in Court, condemn any of them of a Conſpiracy, or of a practiſe with others, to raiſe this Scandal ab origine, to bring my Lord Deputy in danger of his Life.

‘For the publiſhing of the Scandal, I am ſatisfied that it was a falſe Report, and that it is a Crime that ought ſeverely to be ſentenced in this Court.

‘There are Preſidents of it in my Lord Arch-Biſhop of York's Caſe that now is, and the Biſhop of Lincoln and Osbaldſton's Caſe. And your Lordſhips know as well the Statute of R. 2. & Weſtm. 1. doth as well puniſh thoſe that are the Tellers and Speakers of falſe Lies and Tales, as the Inventers.

‘In the Caſe of a Common Perſon there may be ſufficient reaſon to juſtify the Words, but in the Caſe of a Publick Magiſtrate, and ſo great a Perſon, as the Viceroy, in a manner, of the Kingdom of Ireland; I ſay, Though there were probable and juſt grounds, it was not fit for them to ſcatter and divulge things in an irregular way, but it is puniſhable; I did learn it in King James his time, in the Caſe of Henry Earl of Northampton, Lord Privy-Seal, that was here ſentenced.

‘I am clearly ſatisfied, that this is ſo far from being true, or from a probability of Truth, or from being a non liquet, that there is no colour for it; and to ſatisfy my own Conſcience, I ſhall be bold to reckon to your Lordſhips the Grounds upon which I go.

‘I do fix it upon the Teſtimony of the Parties preſent, and of the Witneſſes preſent, I do find there were fifteen preſent. For Sir Philip Manwairing, your Lordſhips know his Quality and Reputation in the Kingdom, and I know he beareth it as worthily in your Lordſhips Judgment; He expreſly ſweareth his Lordſhip did but ſhake the Cane, and that he believeth in his Conſcience, (for ſo he ſaid here in Court) he did not ſo much as touch him: And I would not have any to go away unſatisfied of any thing againſt my Lord Deputy. There are many Preſidents and Rules, that this Court hath liberty in their Judgments, to call for Witneſſes at Hearing to ſatisfy their Conſciences. My Lords, Beſides, Sir Philip Manwairing's Depoſition, that which he did here affirm, That he was ‘near to my Lord all the while, and that he did diligently obſerve all that paſſed.

‘Another Witneſs was Iſaac Carpenter; he doth agree with Sir Philip, he ſaith, my Lord did but ſhake the Cane, and he doth not know whether he touched him, and he was the Man that brought the Fellow thither.

‘The third Witneſs was Holloway; It is true, ſome ſpeak out of his Mouth, he ſpeaketh exactly in his Anſwer, He knoweth of no hurt or wrong was done by my Lord Deputy, neither doth he believe it.

‘Atkinſon the Goaler, he was the only ſingle Man of thoſe that were preſent, that ſaith, my Lord Deputy did ſtrike Robert Eſmond with a Cane.

‘Take the Quality of their Perſons, take their Number, four to five, I wonder whether any Man can think there was a ſtroak.

‘The ſecond part of the Proof, is from the Relation of Robert Eſmond himſelf, wherein you ſhall ſee a great deal of maliee in the Defendents.

‘Yet he ſweareth upon his Salvation, he took no hurt by any ſtroak from my Lord Deputy; he did declare it was an old hurt with a Knife that did wound him; he did there proteſt he never ſtruck him, only ſhaked his Cane: And when his Uncle ſaid unto him, Tell the Truth; indeed Uncle, ſaid he, if it were otherwiſe I would tell you; I pray God I never enter into Heaven if ever he ſtruck me or hurt me: So here is as ſtrong a Relation as can be, and agreeth in the Point with the ſhaking of the Cane.

‘I ſhall not forget to reckon up to your Lordſhips, what on the Defendents part hath bin alleged. It was a grave and honourable Admonition which was given by my Lord Cottington to the Counſel at Bar,and I wiſh they would never give occaſion to be reprehended, but to take admonition by this; time hath bin, when Practiſers of Law knew their Duty, which if they obſerved, they ſhould never do more than their Cauſe would bear, and yet do their Duty to their Clients with modeſty to the Court, and reſpect to Perſons of great Eminence. In this they have gone further than the courſe of the Court, wherein I do commend Mr. Attorny that did ſo reſpect the Innocency of my Lord Deputy that he would not cut them off. It hath not bin uſual with the Practice of this Court, to ſuffer him that pleads not guilty, to make a Juſtification for the Plantiffs to prove him guilty; and it ſhall ever be my practice in ſuch Caſes, when they do fail of a Proof of not guilty, that they ſhall pay ſound Dammages.

‘For my Lord's Merit I ſhall ſay nothing, I am prevented by my Lord Cottington. If ever any deſerved reparation in this Court, my Lord Deputy doth, who hath bin ſo excellent a Miniſter for the King.

‘For Sir Pierce Crosby, I ſhall obſerve to your Lordſhips, he was a diſcontented Man, removed from the Council Table by my Lord Deputy and the Conncil, and by direction from the King. He ſaid, My Lord Deputy bore a hard hand in Ireland, and wiſhed my Lord Deputy was diſplaced, and my Lord Fawkland in it again. I have known Sir Pierce long, and ſorry I am to meet him here.

An. 1639.

‘told him, My Lord Deputy ſtruck him, and that he died of the blows, and did name ſome Perſons in Ireland that would proſecute againſt my Lord Deputy.

‘The ſecond Witneſs was Edwards; Sir Pierce Crosby asked him, If he had not a Kinſman that died of a Blow given him by the Lord Deputy of Ireland? It did not concern Sir Pierce Crosby at all to inquire.

‘Your Lordſhips remember what William Eſmond ſaid, then what Sir Thomas Eſmond ſaid, the Lord Deputy ſtruck him: And Marcus Cheevers asked if he had heard of any ſuch thing? I tell your Lordſhips why I reckon up theſe Defendents, becauſe of the Knowledg I have of Sir Pierce Crosby; and I am ſorry that he ſhould upon his Oath deny that ever he ſpoke any ſuch word, when ſo many do witneſs againſt him for it; therefore Sir Pierce Crosby's Oath muſt not move me in Judgment, for no hold is to be taken of it. And let Men take heed how they take a liberty to deny upon their Oath; For your Lordſhips know how many Preſidents have bin in this Court, for ſentencing Men for Perjury in their own Cauſe.

‘For Fitz-Harris, he is a Witneſs that doth accuſe himſelf, as for the Indictment againſt him, he ſtood upright when he was examined; and in theſe things wherein he concurs with others, he is without exception; and being a ſingle Teſtimony in the main Point for the Conſpiracy, is the Reaſon why I cannot Sentence Sir Pierce Crosby for a Conſpiracy: And I am not on the other ſide ſo ſatisfied, but that in my own private Conſcience I do think there was a Conſpiracy. Why ſhould Fitz-Harris alſo go about this? and why ſhould Archer make this Relation? and why this Conference with Robert Eſmond's Wife, and her Counſel, (though I will not ſay but one Defendent may confer with another); I do utterly diſlike the manner of it, and ſo I ſhall leave Sir Pierce Crosby.

‘The next is my Lord Eſmond, a Perſon unknown to me, yet I am ſorry to find him here; but I muſt agree with my Lord that went before me, and to Sentence him for the Reaſons already opened. My Lord Deputy ſhould know it was an Eſmond he had kill'd, tho he was the Man that brought my Lord Deputy word that Robert Eſmond ſaid, upon his Salvation, He took no hurt by any ſtroak from my Lord Deputy. This Lord being a Counſellor of State, to go and do otherwiſe, doth aggravate his Offence. Nothing is more for my Lord Deputy's Honour, than this very Particular; with what clearneſs and candor my Lord Deputy did proceed in putting ſo much truſt in my Lord Eſmond, in a thing that ſtandeth ſo deeply in his Honour and Fortune, and might be a Cloud that might hang over him all the days of his Life.

‘Here my Lord Finch ſpoke of a Report which he had ſeen 4 Car. where my Lord Say brought an Action of the Caſe upon the Statute of Scandalum Magnatum, for ſaying, Thou art a Traitor to the King; and upon a Not guilty pleaded, it was found for the King. But the Inference he drew from this, the Author could not perfectly take.

‘I ſhall deſcend to my Sentence, and will not diſſent in any thing from my Lord Cattington, only have Archer's and Fitz-Harris's Ears nailed to the Pillory, and fined 1000 l. a-piece.

A few Notes of ſome other of the Lords Sentences.

Secretary Windebanck.

'I Am ſatisfied of the clearneſs of my Lord Deputy. To have ſo worthy a Miniſter of the King's thus traduced, eſpecially in this time of Troubles in Scotland, it much concerns him. I had rather have found Sir Pierce Crosby in ſome Regiment attending the King in Scotland. Yet I muſt Sentence him as a Man guilty of the divulging of the Report, and that with a great deal of Malice; I concur with my Lord Cottington.

Sir Thomas Jermain.

'SInce it is ſo, that with theſe Lords that have gone before me, I cannot concur; I ſhall uſe the liberty of my Place, and the ſtrength of my Conſcience, and ſpeak what I think; and think I muſt; and I think it my part to render a Reaſon and Account of my Thoughts. You have in Judgment before you thirteen Defendents, ſome Noblemen, ſome Gentlemen, and others.

'Here is a great and heavy Charge upon Sir Pierce Crosby, it ſtandeth upon three heads.

1. 'That he is a Perſon ill-affected to the Government and State.
2. 'That he ſhould be the firſt publiſher of this Scandal.
3. 'That he ſtirred up the Wiſe of Robert Eſmond to proſecute my Lord Deputy.

'If I find my Lord Deputy's Honour invaded by Sir Pierce Crosby, or any Man elſe, he being a Perſon of great Place and Truſt in another Kingdom, where a great part of his Majeſty's Government is committed to his care, it behoves my ſelf, and all your Lorſhips here preſent, to vindicate his Honour. And I am verily perſwaded, that neither my ſelf, nor any here preſent, can think my Lord Deputy could procure the death of this Man by his Cane, there his Honour is not in danger.

'For Sir Pierce Crosby, he was a principal means for the preſervation of our Mens lives that eſcaped at the Iſle of Ree. Sir Pierce Crosby was not the firſt Mover, for Mr. Raileton in his Depoſition ſaith, (before ever Sir Pierce was thought to have ſpoken of this Matter) that he heard at Court by Mr. Leveſton, and divers others, of Robert Eſmond's Death. It ſeems ſtrange to me, that theſe Publiſhers were not made Parties to the Suit; and if it may ſtand with the courſe of the Court, before I proceed any further, I would know whether this be an Offence, To ſpeak that for which he can produce ſeveral Perſons that ſpoke it before him?

'Lord Chief Juſtice Finch ſaith, Though a Man ſpeak that which a hundred ſpeak before, it is a ſcandal in him.

'Then I ſhall deſcend to my Sentence.

'Next Witneſs againſt Sir Pierce, was Sir Fr. Wortley, but he remembreth not the time. And againſt Sir Pierce here is only Fitz-Harris, and twenty more that ſpoke out of his Mouth, and all but as one

An. 1639.

‘Witneſs; and he is ſuch a Witneſs, as for my part I ſhall not believe.

‘I Sentence none but only Fitz-Harris and Archer.

Barret Lord Newburgh.

‘I Conceive the Offence ſo foul, as that it deſerveth a very ſevere Sentence, were it fully proved againſt all the Defendents. I am fully ſatisfied of my Lord Deputy's great care in his Majeſty's Service in that Kingdom, and that nothing hath bin ſaid of him in this Court but what is his due. I can Sentence none of the Defendents but Fitz-Harris and Archer.

‘Earl of Exeter concurred with my Lord Newburgh.

‘My Lord of Suffolk agreed with my Lord Cottington, and added this, To have Fitz-Harris to loſe one Ear in England, another in Ireland, and if he have a third Ear, to loſe it in Scotland.

Earl of Mancheſter Lord Privy-Seal.

‘MY Lord Deputy's Life, Name, and Fortune, lieth at the Stake; and a ſtupid Man he had bin not to have ſtirr'd, he had wrong'd his Honour, Perſon, Eſtate, and Government it Self, not to have ſtirred.

‘I will ſpeak my own Judgment freely, without checks to my Conſcience.

‘For the Plot, to ſpeak truly, I ſee none. To publiſh this Scandal was a fault, and the greater, becauſe it was againſt a great Man.

‘Sir Pierce hath carried himſelf very cloſely, he was never ſeen but at Eaſter when he ſent for Margery.

‘In Sentence I concur with my Lord Cottington.

Dr. Juxon Biſhop of London, Lord Treaſurer.

‘FOr Scandals raiſed upon Superiors, they are the Diſeaſes of the Time. Not to ſpend time to ſpeak of my Lord Deputy's worth, This injury to him juſtly requires a heavy Sentence. Sir Pierce Crosby I conceive is a great Delinquent, if not a Plotter; yet a ſubtil, induſtrious and diligent Labourer in the Proſecution. If it took no effect, it was no fault of his. Fitz-Harris was alſo an Offender, your Lordſhips may do well to make him an Example. For my Sentence, I agree with my Lord Cottington.

Some

Some Paſſages in my Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury's Sentence, in my Lord Deputy's Cauſe, againſt Sir Pierce Croſby and others.

'I Conceive there was a marvellous great neceſſity to bring this Cauſe to Judgment, for the Report was ſpread ſo far and ſo high, that if it had bin ſuffered to have lain a-ſleep, it might have endangered my Lord Deputy, and his Poſterity after him; and therefore it did concern him, by all the means in the World he could, to bring this Cauſe into this Court.

'My Lords, for the Counſel at Bar I was extreamly troubled to ſee them, after a Not guilty pleaded, to juſtify the Act; and yet I cannot but commend Mr. Attorney to give way unto it, that the Innocency of my Lord Deputy might the more clearly appear.

'My Lords, For the Cauſe it ſelf, I am not only of Opinion that it is a great Offence, but that it is an Offence which hath a dangerous Conſequence following it, if you look by whom, and againſt whom it was committed.

'My Lord Chief Juſtice hath ſo divided this Cauſe in the Particulars, that I ſhall be very brief.

'I conceive the Defendents are guilty of a grievous, malitious, and dangerous Scandal; and whether true or falſe it is no matter, for it ſtands againſt the Foundation of all Law, that if the thing were true, yet they are ſcandalous Reports. Certainly, my Lords, for the Conſequence that is upon this, I hold it to be very dangerous. And if ſuch a thing ſhall go unpuniſhed, or with a light puniſhment, no Man in his Place can live in ſafety of his Life, Honour, and Fortune.

'My Lords, This is not only a dangerous Cauſe, but dangerous in the way of Proſecution, that there ſhould be ſuch cunning in the carriage of this Buſineſs, that they would take away with one blow his Honour and Service in Ireland, and cut him off from his Defence and Protection in England. It is very bad it ſhould be againſt a Peer of the Realm, but this againſt my Lord Deputy, that doth repreſent the King's Perſon in that Kingdom; for the whole Truſt and Government of that Kingdom doth reſt in him, under God and the King. And it argueth, to my underſtanding, that ſuch Spirits as theſe, that ſtrike at the Authority of him that beareth the Power under his Majeſty in Ireland; they that ſhall begin thus with Tongue and Pen to ſcandalize any in Authority, I ſhall think the ſame Man will be very bold to ſcandalize the King too. Gregory Nazianzen, where he ſpeaketh of Kings, he ſaith, They are lively Pictures of the Almighty God, drawn ſhort, but not at length, for no reſemblance of God Almighty can be drawn out at length. As Kings are Repreſentations of God drawn out ſhortly, ſo Deputies and Lieutenants are Repreſentations of ſuch as are their King, but drawn out ſomewhat ſhorter than the reſemblance of their King.

'For my part, I have ever bin of Opinion, that the great Miniſters of the State, which ſhall not be very ſenſible of the Authority impoſed on them, and of Injuries offered unto them, cannot perform, nor be ſo careful in their Places as they ought.

‘It is very high time to look about, for great liberty is taken in this Age, and the Tongues and Pens of Men, againſt Men of Place and Authority, are too frequent, that ſin is grown very common, almoſt Epidemical, and ready to prophane all Authority; and the next to that is the confuſion of all Mens Fortunes.

‘Theſe Times, in the greateſt Empires that ever were in the World for Riches, one of the greateſt, the Roman Empire, do manifeſt, That thoſe Men on whom the Emperor at thoſe Times did ſet any great Office upon, or did any other ways favour, certainly they had the greater eſteem among the People, and good reaſon for it; but now it is grown quite contrary. The Scripture ſaith, Thus ſhall it be done to the Man whom the King honoureth. Now it is changed and quite otherwiſe, with all manner of reproach, and caſting of ſcandal upon him whom the King honoureth. This in general.

‘Now for my Lord's Perſon in particular, and for his dexterity in the Government of that Kingdom; in particular, for that he hath ſhowed himſelf a great favourer of the Church: But becauſe I am a Church-man my ſelf, I ſhall ſpeak little of him in that, but leave him and his great care in that Service without any Elogium, ſince it ſpeaks loud enough all Chriſtendom over.

‘This I will ſay, without diſparagement of thoſe great Peſons that have gone before him, and I hope to the encouragement of thoſe that may ſucceed, That for the Government of the State in general, and for the ſtate of the Church, for the ſetling of Religion, for the vindicating of Juſtice according to their Laws; for improving their Trade, and ſetling a Military Defence in that Kingdom, no Story nor Memory of Man can ſay, that ever Ireland was in that caſe ſince Ireland did belong to the Crown of England.

‘My Lords, I ſhall add one thing more in reſpect of theſe boiſterous Times we are fallen into. The State doth not owe a little to my Lord Deputy, that the Kingdom of Ireland is kept in that great Peace and Security; for at this day (God be thanked) that Kingdom is at Peace, notwithſtanding the multitude of Scots in that Kingdom, and thoſe Rebels that are within an hour and a halfs paſſage of Ireland. No part of England is in more ſecurity than they are at this time; and under God and the King, I can attribute it to nothing but the Wiſdom, Courage, and Care of my Lord Deputy; and therefore God forbid Offenders againſt his Reputation ſhould go away without exemplary puniſhment.

‘The greateſt Empire that ever was in the World was the Roman Empire; give me leave to repreſent unto your Lordſhips what the Law was then, and it cometh home to many particular things that are in this Caſe before your Lordſhips.

Here the Arch-Biſhop mentioned ſome Roman Authors, but ſpoke ſo faſt, as at that Time the Pen could not hold pace with him.

1. ‘There was a neceſſity, but in thoſe times (ſaid his Author) then to complain, to deter People from caſting Scandals on Perſons in high Authority; therefore there is now a neceſſity for my Lord Deputy to complain, or elſe no puniſhment to the Offender.

2. ‘Whom

2. ‘Whom doth the State vindicate, a Senator? From what? From ſome notorious Brand as this is. God forbid but that the State ſhould do it, for the State cannot be ſafe unleſs it doth defend every one of us ab omni injuria. Certainly, ſay what you will, it is impoſſible for the Government of the State to go on, if theſe Scandals muſt be ſuffered.

‘I ſhall further obſerve, This is no matter of Favour you do my Lord Deputy, nor was it in the Empire at that time, for the Senators did require it by Law, defendere jus Senatoris; and not only defendere jus, but Authoritatem juris. And then, my Lords, after there cometh in the laſt, and that is remarkable, that the great Empire, famous over all the World, and ſo continueth, yet that great Emperor did reckon himſelf as one of the Senators; not but that he was greater, but the Jus & Authoritatem of them, he did aſſume unto himſelf.

‘I hold this libelling of the Tongue and Pen to be a ſin of a very crying nature, and will get up by the leaſt Twig that may be; and the nature of the Thing is ſuch, that if it can but once come and ride ſafely upon the Shoulders of a Nobleman, it will mount and come to the King himſelf, and the greateſt Emperor that is; which God forbid that it ſhould be ſo. This I thought good to ſpeak upon the Conſequence of theſe Things, becauſe the Venom of this Crime is in the Conſequence, more than in the Formality of the Crime.

‘My Lords, I did beg leave to ſpeak this for the ſatisfaction of my own Conſcience; and to expreſs how ſenſible I am of this, I ſhall now come to the Particulars of this Cauſe in Judgment before me, in which I did promiſe brevity; and my Lord Finch hath ſo fully handled this Matter, that he hath ſpared me a great deal of pains.

‘I begin with Sir Pierce Crosby, and I think all your Lordſhips agree with me, for the generality of the Scandal, that it is notoriouſly falſe, without probability of Truth. I have heard heretofore well of Sir Pierce Crosby, but I muſt obſerve a good Rule given in the Common-Wealth, That if a Man have deſerved Well, and now deſerves Ill; his well-doing formerly ſhall not excuſe him for his ill-deeds now; therefore I ſhall paſs by the goodly Report I have heard of him. In my Notes, I find him guilty of the ſpreading of this falſe and malitious Report, and is a fomenter thereof; though I cannot make him the firſt Author of the Report, yet after once he came in, he was a malitious Proſecutor. Sir Francis Wortley's Teſtimony convinces him, beſides it is corroborated with Fitz-Harris's Teſtimony.

‘For my Lord Eſmond, I hold him almoſt as great an Offender as Sir Pierce; his Ingratitude is far beyond Sir Pierce's. The apprehenſion which the World had of him, the Honour and Countenance my Lord Deputy had given him; the Truſt my Lord put in him, to take the examination of this Buſineſs; and after all this, for him to turn tail againſt my Lord Deputy, muſt needs be a foul fault, and argue a canker'd heart.

‘For my Lord Mountnorris, I cannot Sentence him, becauſe the proof againſt him is not clear; but let him make a happy uſe of coming ſo near the Fire, and yet eſcape.

‘For Marcus Chevers, I conceive him to be one of the firſt Raiſers of this Report, he ſaith he heard it from my Lord Mountnorris; ſo between them two, and my Lord Eſmond, and Sir P. Crosby, was

‘this

An. 1639.

'this Scandal broached. I think theſe four Men ſtood upon ſome Iriſh Bog, and a foul Miſt did there ariſe; and there ſtood about this ſame Bog theſe four Defendents, and they have fomented the Filth they received by it.

'For Fitz-Harris and Archer, I think he could get no Men of worth to undertake ſuch a Buſineſs, therefore ſuch Men were moſt fit to be imploied. I conceive there was a deep Conſpiracy with theſe two Men about this Buſineſs.

'For Holloway, I muſt ſentence him in 200 l. fine.

'For Robert Eſmond's Wife, I am loath to condemn her, a Wife that had loſt her Husband, and ſwears ſhe conceived he died of his old Diſeaſes.

'For Fitz-Harris and Archer, I agree to the loſing of their Ears; and for the Sentence of the other three Defendents, I agree with my Lord Cottington, In Fine, Acknowledgment, and Dammages.

'And I add further, That my Vote is, My Lord Eſmond ſhall be removed from being any longer a Privy-Counſellor, it being not fit that ſuch a canker'd Heart, and ulcerated Man, ſhould ſit at the Council-Table there.

Lord Keeper's Speech.

'MR. Attorney hath proceeded with a great deal of Judgment; He did a very good Act for my Lord Deputy, to bring this Cauſe to Sentence. And for the way of Defence, I am clearly ſatisfied it is againſt the Rules of the Court; yet had they bin interrupted in the way of their Defence, it would have reflected both upon my Lord Deputy and the Court: Therefore as I do comdemn this way of Defence to the Court, (and by the way do adviſe them to take care and heed how they do practiſe it in other Cauſes) yet I do commend it as neceſſary in this Caſe, for Mr. Attorney to give way unto their Method of Pleading.

'My Lords, In the next place I muſt needs ſay, upon the whole courſe of this Cauſe, I am of the ſame Opinion with my Lord Cottington; that howſoever perchance this or that Man might think my Lord Deputy ſhould have done well to have forborn this Cauſe, yet certainly it was a great neceſſity for my Lord Deputy to bring it on. It was neceſſary for him in the point of his Honour, for I am very confident, that had he not taken that way, this Rumour and Calumny had ſpread ſo far, that of neceſſity it would have required him at laſt for his ſafety to do this; becauſe for Atkins and Roche, I am ſatisfied in my Conſcience, by the Proof of the other ſide, that that they are falſe Witneſſes, and therefore it might have concerned my Lord Deputy, as in his Honour, ſo in his Life and Eſtate.

'It was a point of Moderation, that he did not put in my Lord Eſmond firſt. I once had a good Opinion of him; but when my Lord Eſmond (whom my Lord Deputy entruſted to examine this Buſineſs) did diſcover himſelf, he had great reaſon to bring him on the Stage.

'My Lords, there was one thing out of the Proofs concerning Marcus Cheevers to be of Counſel with Sir Pierce Croſby in a Croſs Bill, to let your Lordſhips know ſomething of what I know; It is 'true, Sir Pierce came unto me, and deſired me to write a Letter to 'my Lord Deputy, to come and appear to his Suit in the Star-Chamber here; but the truth was, I did deny it, becauſe I thought it 'could not ſtand with my Duty to ſend to my Lord Deputy a Letter 'to appear here, before I told the King of it. So there was ſome intention of a Croſs Bill, but I never acquainted the King with it, nor 'heard more from Sir Pierce of it.

'My Lords, In the next place I ſhall declare my Opinion, as moſt 'of your Lordſhips have done.

1. 'I am ſatisfied in my Conſcience, my Lord Deputy did not 'ſtrike him, only it was a ſhaking of the Cane; that maketh the very 'ground-work to be falſe. It was objected, if it did but haſten his 'Death an hour, it was the occaſion of his Death. I do not conceive 'it did either haſten it, or occaſion it, and believe nothing that Atkins ſaith.

'Next place for the Statute in this Point; here is the ſpreading of 'a ſcandalous Rumour, to the prejudice of a Nobleman, this is a very 'great and grievous Crime. Then, my Lords, in this Caſe I look upon the Perſon of my Lord Deputy, as he is a Privy-Counſellor to 'the King, as well in this Kingdom as in Ireland. He is a Peer of 'this Kingdom, yea, a great Officer both in England and Ireland; 'Lord Preſident of the North in England, and Lord Deputy of Ireland in Ireland: He is truſted by the King immediately under himſelf; though it be granted unto him by the Name of Lord Deputy, 'yet he hath both the Honour and Power of a Viceroy.

'Now, my Lords, I do obſerve in the Evidence of this Cauſe, 'that all the reſt of the Privy-Counſellors have a ſpecial Article in 'their Oaths,not to diſcover any thing that may reflect upon the Lord 'Deputy.

'Next thing, If a rumor of a Report be divulged, and a Man doth 'hear this commonly ſpoken, and he reports it, Whether this ſhall be 'a Crime in this Man? And I make no doubt of this but it is, for it 'is full within the Matter of the Act. If this ſhall be an excuſe to 'ſay, I ſpoke no more than what I heard, and heard it from this or 'that Man, the Conſequence would be, that none poſſibly would be 'ſafe. Plainly, The Law of the Kingdom meaneth it to the meaneſt 'Subjects in it, as to ſay to the pooreſt Man that he meeteth in the 'ſtreets, that it is reported he hath committed Murder, &c. What 'ſhall he ſay? I did ſay no more than what was told me. This is no 'Defence for the meaneſt Subject the King hath, much leſs in this 'Caſe of ſo great a Miniſter of State. If one call another Thief, or 'Murderer, and he bring an Action, and if it be true he be guilty of 'the Fact, no Action will lie. But in Caſes of Scandalum Magnatum 'it is otherwiſe. I find a Reſolution in this Point in this Court, by 'the two Lord Chief Chief Juſtices, Arundel's Caſe; That a Man 'hearing a Scandal of a Nobleman, and ſhall report this to another, 'although he do expreſs his Author, yet he ſhall be puniſhable. If a 'Man of Quality ſhall ſay of one, That he is a Traitor, Felon, &c. 'or any ſcandalous Speeches, and ſay that he hath heard it of ſuch a 'Man, this is no juſtification; for when it cometh out of a more diſcreet Man's Mouth, the Scandal increaſeth; for any Man to ſay he 'heard it, and name the Man of whom he heard it, he ſhall never juſtify it in an Action of the Caſe.

26 Junii, 15 Carol. Regis, 1639.

‘Lawrence Lord Eſmond, and Sir Pierce Crosby Knight and Baronet, this day appeared at the Bar, in obedience to the Sentence of the Court, and made their ſeveral Acknowledgments, according as the Court had directed, being penned by the Judges. The like acknowledgment did Marcus Cheevers make at the Bar.

The Earl of Strafford's Letter to the King, concerning his ſhipping of 500 Iriſh to be put into Carliſle.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

MY laſt humbly preſented your Majeſty an account of putting five hundred Men aboard the day appointed, and by this time I truſt they have attained their Port.

This Letter is occaſioned by another received from Mr. Secretary Windebank, and bears date the 23d of March. In this I find much for me to do, and ſomething wherein to conſult your Majeſty's clearer direction, leſt I tread awry, or at leaſt beſide your Roial Intentions. Thoſe fully underſtood in theſe, as in all other, I ſhall execute to my uttermoſt beſt.

Here incloſed is the Duplicate of my Letter to my Lord of Antrim; wherein I have to my Judgment complied with that, which in relation to his Lordſhip was appointed for me; to which only I have bin bold to add unexpectance of my going down into that Province, howbeit not intending it, unleſs otherwiſe commanded, or upon ſome more preſſing occaſion than God be praiſed yet appears.

The reaſon why I went ſo far, in regard I did believe the rumour of my coming ſo near him, would not amuſe the Earl of Argile the leſs, or invite him ſooner out of his own Country. Your Majeſty's Pinnace, the Confidence, is gone with the Regiment to St. Bees, to ſee your Men ſafely landed, together with another ſmaller Pinnace of Sir George Radcliffs and mine; they have both order to return hither with all diligence, only your Majeſty's Pinnace is to attend at Beaumorris the tranſportation of Mr. Serjeant Whitfield, and Mr. Fotherby, as was appointed for her; by direction ſent me hither by Mr. Secretary.

Againſt their return, Victuals ſhall be prepared for them, and putting forty Men upon our Pinnace, which carries five Saker, I will forthwith diſpatch them for the North-Eaſt of Ireland, to beat it to and fro about the Head of Cantire and Dunbarton-Frith.

Theſe two will, I am confident, be Maſters of all the Scotiſh Bottoms trading upon Air, Erwin, and Dunbarton; yet to leave all out of queſtion, I ſhall in all diligence call Capt. Owen up hither with the Whelp, and direct him after them.

Mr. Secretary Windebank ſignifies your Majeſty's allowance, that if occaſion offer, they may land and take what they can get from any Towns upon that Coaſt. I humbly deſire, whether you will admit us to take as many many of their Barks at Sea as we can meet with; which doubtleſs will be much more eaſily, and ſafely done, eſpecially to deſtroy the Earl of Argile's Long-Boats, prepar'd as well to annoy us by ſome ſudden Incurſion, as to ſecure himſelf; I confeſs, where the greater is granted, it may reaſonably be thought the leſs is implied.

But in a Buſineſs of ſuch weight, I love not to take my Leſſon without Book, and therefore moſt humbly crave your Majeſty's Directions, expreſs under your own hands, in caſe it may ſeem ſo good unto your Majeſty: Let me but clearly know what I am to do, and if I neglect my Duty in the Execution, let not only the Shame, but the Puniſhment light deſervedly upon me.

I have already ſent out my Directions to all the Troops and Companies garriſoned in Ulſter, requiring them to be ready to march out at five days, to ſuch Rendezvous as ſhall be appointed for them; and I will preſently ſend unto the Foot their proportion of Muſquets, in regard their Old are not ſo good as they ſhould be, ſo as there will be 300 Men ready for the Relief of Dunbarton-Caſtle, or any other Service your Majeſty may think fit to command them.

It doth not appear to me how your Majeſty's Pleaſure is thoſe Men ſhould be Paid, and Victualled; but if your Majeſty have not otherwiſe thought of it, upon your Majeſty's Warrant, I will forth of this Revenue take order for both, without further trouble to your Majeſty's Coffers, or Miniſters on that ſide.

The fitteſt Perſon here to command them, as I think, will be Sir Robert Steward. I take his Affections to be good, and that he hath a better Stake here among us, than he is like to get in Scotland: Howbeit it befits me to conſult your Majeſty's Wiſdom herein, and do as that ſhall ordain for me. Beſides, his knowledg of the Country ſhould, me-thinks, fit him better for the Service.

Laſtly; It was writ me from good hands out of England, That it was thought there your Majeſty intends to go to Edinburgh, and to be preſent at their Parliament in Perſon. Sir, the reading of it went as cold to my Heart as Lead; and the Conſequences of ſuch an Aſſurance, fright me to think of them.

But, I truſt, God is not ſo angry with Us, as to ſuffer your Majeſty to be led into ſuch apparent Danger, or by any perſwaſion, to conſent the truſting of ſo precious a Jewel in the cuſtody of ſuch, as (to my underſtanding) are ſo great ſtrangers to Honour, or Morality.

Beſides, if there were any ſuch purpoſe, the publiſhing your Majeſty's late Roial and Righteous Proclamation, manifeſting your juſt Cenſure of thoſe Diſorders, and thoſe late Directions to provoke them, and exaſperating the Humour, by falling thus upon them with your Shipping on the North-Weſt of Scotland, were, to my apprehenſion, to fight againſt your Self. Therefore, I beſeech you, admit me, howbeit the meaneſt, yet as faithful a Servant as any, to deprecate this Evil by all means.

For, as to my poor Judgment, your Majeſty hath no more to do this Summer, but to ſecure Berwick and Carliſle by ſtrong Gariſons; to exerciſe your Army in the knowledg of their Arms; prevent their Incurſion into your Kingdom of England, and by all means to avoid Fighting this Year.

An. 1639.

Thus much effected, will prove an excellent Work, as well in Judgment as in Conſequence; and by the Bleſſing of Almighty God, infallibly bend thoſe Rebels to your Princely Will within a Year or two at moſt. God long preſerve Your Majeſty.

Your Majeſty's
moſt faithful, moſt humble
Subject and Servant,

WENTWORTH.

When the King went towards York, he left Marqueſs Hamilton at Whitehall, to take care about the ſhipping of 5000 Men, and to haſten Northwards with the ſame as faſt as he could.

They were to be commanded by three experienced Commanders, viz. Byron, Morton, and Harecourt.

And on the ſecond of April, his Majeſty writ this enſuing Letter to the Marqueſs.

HAMILTON,

I Received yours but this Morning, to which before I anſwer, I muſt tell you News. Firſt, That Sir Jacob Aſhley has poſſeſſed Berwick with a thouſand Foot and ſixty Horſe, and Carliſle is likewiſe poſſeſſed by my Lord Clifford with three hundred Men. Secondly, I have commanded Traquaire to keep his Chamber, until he give me an account how he left Dalkeith without ſtriking one ſtroak, and before any Cannon was brought before it, having left the Ammunition (not deſtroyed) to their Reverence, and likewiſe the Regalia: Of this more by the next.

Now for Anſwer, I have given the Proclamation to be written by the Clerk Regiſter, with the General Oath, both which you ſhall have with all ſpeed. For your Military Oath, I like it extream well, as likewiſe your Opinion for detaining the Patents of Honour until the Country be ſetled.

York, April 2. 1639.

The ſame day the Earl of Strafford, Lord Deputy of Ireland, writ to his Majeſty a Letter concerning the employing the Ships in Ireland to the North-Weſt of Scotland, as followeth.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

MY thoughts of this laſt Night, and this Mornings peruſal of what I wrote Yeſterday, moved me humbly to crave leave to expreſs my ſelf ſomething more fully concerning that which I have in charge.

Mr. Secretary Windebanck ſignifies your Pleaſure, to have the Ships of the North-Weſt of Scotland by the ſixteenth or twentieth of this month.

This circumſtance of time we ſhall, I truſt, be able to comply with, or very near it, God ſending us the Winds favourable.

Next he writes, theſe upon the place, if they commit any ſpoil, or any other Act of Hoſtility, your Majeſty will not diſlike it.

Now before I come to the Time of the Execution, I beſeech your Majeſty take into conſideration what the Advantage or Diſadvantage may be to your other Affairs, to begin with them ſo early on this ſide.

The Advantages to my ſeeming are very ſmall; the taking perchance of ſome inconſiderable Prey, ſome diſquiet to the Covenanters, indeed ſo ſmall, as ſhall rather ſerve to awaken them at Home, than divert them from aſſiſting others of that Covenant elſewhere.

And as for the conſiderable Service it ſelf to be done on that Coaſt, to wit, the taking and deſtroying of their Shipping; that is to be done as well, if not better, towards Auguſt than now.

On the other ſide, the Diſadvantages are, to my apprehenſion, great and many.

If the War were with a Foreign Enemy, I ſhould like well to have the firſt Blow; but being with your Majeſty's own natural (howbeit rebellious) Subjects, it ſeems to me a tender point to draw Blood firſt; for till it come to that, all hope is not loſt of Reconciliation; and I would not have them, with the leaſt colour, impute it to your Majeſty to have put all to extremity, till their own more than words enforce you to it.

It might provoke them to aſſault ſome part of England, at leaſt to hinder the putting in of Men and Ammunition into Barwick and Carliſle, which as yet they have no colour for, but falls flat upon them as an open and inexcuſable Rebellion, which ſhall to the World juſtify your Majeſty as compelled, not only to take, but to uſe and turn your juſt Arms againſt them.

It will haſten upon Marqueſs Huntley, and the reſt of your Majeſty's Party there, and open a general Force, before they be ſo well ſet, I truſt, both to defend themſelves, and offend others, as hereafter they may be.

It ſhall precipitate the War ſooner upon England, than in preſent were to be wiſhed; and rendring the Covenanters deſpairing of your Majeſty's Grace, thruſt them conſequently upon deſperate Counſels, wherein they are the more to be apprrehended, by how much leſs they have to loſe.

Conſidering therefore, that the ſecuring of Berwick and Carliſle, are the Pledges, under God's Goodneſs, of your Majeſty's proſperous Succeſs: Methinks nothing ſhould be done to provoke them till that were done: That it would be expected and tried for this Summer, whether their Fury might ſpend away upon it ſelf, before your Majeſty were compellable to diſtemper the Trade of your three Kingdoms, by falling thus upon their Shipping and Coaſt.

My moſt humble Opinion is, That the preſent emploiment for theſe Ships, ſhould be only to move up and down on the North-Weſt of Scotland, rather for ſecuring, and encouraging the good Subjects on this ſide, than to attempt any thing of force againſt them, when our Gains to be expected by the contrary way are ſo ſmall, but the Prejudices that may thereby fall upon your Majeſty's Affairs ſo important and many: At leaſt not to begin any Act of Hoſtility till Auguſt, for by that time the Seaſon of the Year will ſecure both Kingdoms from an Invaſion till the next Spring, by which time, I truſt, we ſhall on all hands be readier to receive them than now I fear we are.

But

An. 1639.

But now, Sir, I have done, and command what you pleaſe, in full aſſurance, to be as perfectly and chearfully obeyed by me, as by any Soul living. God long preſerve your Majeſty.

Dublin, April 2.

Your Majeſty's

moſt faithful, moſt humble

Subject, and Servant,

WENTWORTH.

I moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty's Direction, what we ſhould do with the Mariners, or others of better Quality, we may chance to take Priſoners, in caſe your Majeſty will have us to uſe preſent Force againſt their Perſons and Goods.

His Majeſty writ another Letter to the Marqueſs, That he hath not yet ſeen Traquaire his Defence; and that if he had not taken notice of his baſe Actions, he is ſure it would have diſheartned a number of honeſter Men than ever he was, or ever will be.

April 3.

About two days after the Earl of Traquaire preſented a Paper in writing to his Majeſty, then at York, concerning the Buſineſs at Dalkeith, the Contents whereof was as followeth.

The Earl of Traquair's Relation of the Surrender of Dalkeith to the Covenanters, delivered to Majeſty at York, in April 1639.

‘AT my laſt being at Court, amongſt other Directions, your Majeſty was pleaſed to give me order for drawing of Proclamations to be ſent from this State, and for drawing of Commiſſions of Lieutenancy; concerning which, and ſome other Particulars then ſpoken of with the Marqueſs of Hamilton, your Majeſty did require Sir Lewes Steward to repair to York. Your Majeſty's Will likewiſe was, That ſome preſent Courſe ſhould be thought upon for liſting of ſome Souldiers in Scotland, both of Foot and Horſe; and to that effect did reſolve, That all the Noblemen who were then at Court, ſhould preſently repair to Scotland, and that there might be ſome ready way for entertainment of thoſe Souldiers your Majeſty allowed me. Beſides the ſupply of Mony which was to come from England, to coin all the Plate that was in the Abby, and withal to provide in ſtore in Dalkeith all the Victual I could, which place I was hopeful might be ſenſible againſt ſuddain Invaſion, where there were no Cannon.

‘With theſe and other Directions I went Home, and I believe your Majeſty's Self, nor yet thoſe Noblemen who were privy to my Inſtructions, did apprehend any thing of that which I found at my return.

‘After I came to Dalkeith, the next Morning I went towards Edinburgh, where by the way, I was advertiſed by a Friend, That as I loved my own Self, I would not go to Edinburgh, for the Covenanting Rabble had reſolved, upon my firſt appearance there, to make me faſt: This coming from a ſure hand, made me ſo far change my Reſolution, as inſtead of going directly to Edinburgh, I went to Hally-Rood-Houſe, and about twelve of the Clock, advertiſed ſuch of the Council as were in Town, to meet at the ordinary place of Meeting in the Tolboth of Edinburgh: But Sir John Hamilton, and ſome others of the Council, being acquainted with my return, came to me, and diſſwaded me altogether from thinking to enter Edinburgh, becauſe the People (ſaid they) are mightily incenſed againſt me, and are all in Arms, and this day are to beſiege the Caſtle.

‘And that ſame day advertiſement came to me to retire; and the next was the ſound of the Petard, which was ſoon after ſeconded by the noiſe of the Peoples Acclamations, upon the intaking of the Caſtle of Edinburgh.

‘Hereupon I returned back and came to Dalkeith about eight of the Clock at Night, and with me Colonel Macheſon, and took his Opinion concerning the Fortifying of Dalkeith; who ſaid, it might in a ſhort time be made ſenſible againſt a ſudden Aſſault, but not againſt Canon; and conſidering that they were all Covenanters round about, it was not Tenable.

‘I was preſently advertiſed of the Reſolution taken at their Table, both for apprehending of my Perſon, and taking in Dalkeith the next day; my care was to have ſtollen away, and ſo have ſaved the Powder and Muſquets that were in the Houſe; which I endeavoured, and moſt of it was removed to ſeveral Places, as I could think moſt fitting. And before twelve a Clock at Night had gotten the moſt part of all put away; about which time, according to their former Reſolution, there came towards Dalkeith betwixt three and fourſcore Horſemen: And as I was returning from helping away ſome of the Powder, I had fallen into their hands, if through the darkneſs of the Night I had not eſchewed amongſt the Houſes of the Town.

‘The next morning as I came back to the Houſe, the Covenanters ſent two of their number to me, deſiring that ſome of the Lords might ſpeak with me; and being thus ſurprized, beyond expectation, I being no Souldier, nor expert in Military Capitulations, and being in this, as in every thing elſe, ſince the Marqueſs went from Scotland, left alone, without the help either of Countenance or Advice of any; few or none daring ſo much as appear to give Advice in any thing might ſeem againſt theſe Covenanters, nor none ſo buſy both publickly and privately to countenance them, and all their Actions, and flatter them by their Diſcourſes, as thoſe who are moſt buſy at this time to inform againſt me.

‘At our firſt Meeting, the Earl of Rothes, in the Name of the reſt, began to repreſent to me the Reaſons of their Procedures; where preſently I interrupted him, and deſired him to ſpare his pains, for I intended not to hear or hearken to any ſuch purpoſe. His next was, Whether I would not willingly deliver up the Houſe of Dalkeith to them. I told him, If it were a Houſe fencible againſt Power or Force, they durſt not offer to take it from me. They had now ſurprized me, and their own folly would in the end ſurpriſe them, but I ‘would keep the Gates faſt, and if they durſt preſume to make them open in any violent way, I hoped er'e long they ſhould be made anſwer for this, and more. But withal I told them, That the Crown and the Scepter lay there, wherewith if they ſhould preſume to meddle in any place where it was, it was more than ever Subject did, or could be anſwerable for. It was ſcornfully anſwered, That Dalkeith was not a Place good enough for ſuch Things, and therefore they would carry them to the Caſtle of Edinburgh, where they ſhould be more carefully kept than they could be there. Hereupon I charged them, under all higheſt pains of Treaſon, not to dare to meddle with the Crown, Scepter, or Sword.

‘As I was offering to retire, Rothes again urged one word more, which was, to require me, as he ſaid he had done all the reſt of the Subjects whom they could meet with, to declare my ſelf, Whether I would come againſt my Religion and Native Country. My Anſwer was, I intend to make no anſwer to ſuch Propoſitions; but as I hoped never to be required to come againſt either, ſo I was moſt confident that when-ever my Maſter ſhould ſhew himſelf, I and with me, many honeſt Scots Hearts would ſhew themſelves to vindicate his Sufferings, and curb their Inſolencies. To this Rothes and Balmerino, as I remember, both replied at one time, That if I did declare my ſelf in that manner, they would diſcharge with me, and thereafter I was to look to my ſelf.

‘Whereupon they, with four Companies of Muſquetiers, (to one whereof Sir John Hay's Siſters Son, as I am informed, was Captain) conducted by Colonel Munro, and 500 Horſemen, (amongſt which was Colonel Hamilton) went to the Houſe, and finding the Gates ſhut, required my under-Keeper to make open Gates; which he, according to the direction given him refuſing, charging them of new, under all pains of Treaſon, to retire from the Gates, and not offer any violence to his Majeſty's Houſe: All this was done to make their Fault and Inſolency appear the greater. Whereupon they ſcornfully anſwered, That the fear of all ſuch Charges were long ago paſt, and with that put the Ladders to the Walls where the Stables are; and having climed over the ſame, came to the Inner Gate of the Houſe, which they forced likewiſe, and ſo entred, and in great Joy and Triumph ſeized the Regalia, Crown, Scepter, and Sword, and carried them away with all the reverence they could ſhow, and placed them in Edinburgh-Caſtle.

Some few days after Traquaire had given this Narrative to the King at York, his Majeſty thought fit to ſet him at liberty from his Confinement: And ſhortly after his Majeſty ſet at liberty from the like Confinement, the Earl of Roxborough, whoſe Son the Lord Carr (or Kirr) turned to Monroe, and took part with the Covenanters againſt his Father's Will.

After the King had bin a few days at York, there was great reſort to Court of the Nobility and Gentry of the Northern Parts; and ſuch as were Colonels of the Trained-Bands, expreſſed much forwardneſs to ſerve his Majeſty in that Expedition, in defence of the Nation, if the Scots ſhould Invade.

The Commanders of the Yorkſhire Foot and Horſe.

The Regiments of Foot were commanded by	The Horſe of the County of York, appointed to march, were commanded by
Ferdinando Lord Fairfax.	Thomas Lord Vicount Wentworth.
Sir William Savil.	Thomas Lord Clifford.
Sir John Hotham.	Sir Thomas Fairfax.
Sir William Penniman.	Captain Butler.
Sir Thomas Metham.

Whilſt his Majeſty remained at York, the Earls of Newcaſtle and Darby came thither with two gallant Troops, and marched toward Barwick; which being at that time newly poſſeſſed by the Earl of Eſſex and Sir Jacob Aſhley with Forces, prevented Monroe, who was marching with Scots Forces to ſurprize that Place.

Thoſe Engliſh who returned from Barwick to the King then at York, alſo brought the news, how the Nobility, Gentry, and Citizens of Edinburgh, brought away the Crown, Sword, and Scepter, from Dalkeith in ſtate to Edinburgh, to be there ſafely kept, publickly making a Proteſtation of their Loialty to their Prince, and expreſſing their Wiſhes, That it might be a perpetual Crown to the King and his Roial Iſſue.

Dunbarton-Caſtle taken.

Soon after came the advertiſement to the Court at York, that his Majeſty's Caſtle at Dunbarton was alſo ſeized by the Covenanters, being a place of great Strength, and great Advantage, in reference to the ſecure landing of the Iriſh Forces, deſigned for thoſe Parts by the Lord Deputy of Ireland.

Theſe Places of ſtrength being thus poſſeſſed, divers of the Nobility, Gentry, Biſhops, and Clergy, oppoſers of the Covenant, were conſtrained to fly their Country, and to repair to Newcaſtle for ſhelter.

Aberdeen taken,

And like Job's Meſſengers, news was alſo brought, That the King's Forces, near Aberdeen, were beaten and diſperſed by Monroe, and Aberdeen taken, with great ſtore of Arms, Ammunition, and ſome Treaſure which was ſent thither to advance the Service of the King in thoſe Parts.

It was obſerved at York, that not any two of the Scotiſh Nation did agree in their Information concerning the Condition of the Scotiſh Army, and the Number of their Forces; ſome making them to be 30000, ſome 40000 at leaſt; others ſaid they were a moſt contemptible Army, not 10000, and not half of thoſe well Armed.

Upon the 5*th* of April the King writes to the Marqueſs, That he will ſend him a Proclamation againſt the Rebels; yet thinks he ſhall alter that Clauſe in it, not to ſet Prices upon the declared Rebels Heads, until they have ſtood out ſome little time, which time is to be expreſſed in the ſame Proclamation; and deſires to know of the Marqueſs when

An. 1639. when to ſend Devick unto him, and whether the King ſhall ſee him before he puts to Sea.

On the 7*th* of April, the King alſo wrote this ſhort Letter to the Marqueſs, Viz.

HAMILTON,

I Send you herewith my Pleaſure in a Proclamation to my Subjects of Scotland; and by this command you to uſe all ſort of Hoſtility, againſt all thoſe who ſhall not ſubmit themſelves according to the Tenour of the ſame; for which this ſhall be your Warrant.

York, April 7. 1639. CHARLES R.

Whilſt the King was at York, the Privy-Council ſitting at London, were not wanting to promote the King's Service what they might in the Southern Parts; and to that purpoſe writ a Letter to ſuch of the King's Subjects whom they conceived fit, for their Abilities, to lend the King Mony; which Letter ſo written, was to this effect following.

After our hearty Commendations, &c.

April 9. THe King is gone in Perſon with an Army to reſiſt the dangerous Rebellion in Scotland, that threatens the Peace and Safety of this Kingdom. All the Nobility, and many other Perſons of Quality, do readily and dutifully aſſiſt him, ſome in their Perſons, and others with conſiderable Sums of Money; whereof we hereby give you notice, that you may alſo lay hold on this occaſion, to expreſs your Fidelity and good Affection; and you ſhall do very well forthwith to ſignifie your Reſolution to this Board, from whence his Majeſty ſhall underſtand the ſame. And ſo we bid you heartily farewel.

A Proclamation, declaring his Majeſty's Gracious Pleaſure, touching ſundry Grants, Licences, and Commiſſions, obtained upon untrue Surmiſes.

Wheres divers Grants, Licences, Priviledges, and Commiſſions, have been procured from his Majeſty, ſome under his Great Seal of England, and ſome others under his Privy-Seal, Signet, or Signe Manual, upon pretences that the ſame would tend to the common Good and Profit of his Subjects: which ſince upon experience have bin found prejudicial, and inconvenient to his People, contrary to his Majeſty's Gracious Intention in granting the ſame. And whereas alſo upon like ſuggeſtions, there hath been obtained from his Majeſty, and the Lords, and others of his Privy Council, divers Warrants, and Letters of Aſſiſtance for the execution of thoſe Grants, Licences, Priviledges, and Commiſſions, according to his Majeſty's good intention and meaning therein. Forasmuch as his moſt Excellent Majeſty (whoſe Roial Care and Providence is ever intentive on the publick Good of his People) doth now diſcern that the particular Grants, Licences, and Commiſſions hereafter expreſſed, have been found in conſequence far from theſe Grounds and Reaſons whereupon they were founded, and in their execution have been notoriouſly abuſed, He is now pleaſed of his meer Grace and Favour to all his Loving Subjects (with the Advice of his Privy-Council) by his Regal Power to publiſh and declare the ſeveral Commiſſions and Licences hereafter following, whether the ſame have paſſed his Great Seal, Privy-Seal, Signet, and Sign Manual, or any of them, to be from hence utterly void, revoked, and hereby determined, that is to ſay,

A Commiſsion touching Cottages and Inmates.

A Commiſsion touching Scriveners and Brokers.

A Commiſsion for compounding with Offenders touching Tobacco.

A Commiſsion for compounding with Offenders for tranſporting of Butter.

A Commiſsion for compounding with Offenders in the importing or uſing of Logwood.

A Commiſsion to compound with Sheriffs, and ſuch as have been Sheriffs, for ſelling their Under-Sheriffs places.

A Commiſsion for compounding for deſtruction of Woods in Iron-Works.

A Commiſsion for Concealments and Incroachments within twenty Miles of London.

A Licence to tranſport Sheep-Skins and Lamb-Skins.

An. 1639.

A Commiſsion to take Men bound to dreſs no Veniſon, Pheaſants, or Partridges in Inns, Ale-houſes, Ordinaries, and Taverns.

A Commiſsion touchiug the licenſing of the uſe of Wine-Caſk.

A Comiſsion for licenſing of Brewers.

A Licence for the ſole tranſporting of Lamperns.

And that all Proclamations, Warrants, or Letters of Aſsiſtance for putting in execution any of the ſaid Commiſsions or Licences, be from henceforth declared to be void, determined, and hereby revoked to all Intents and Purpoſes.

And his Majeſty in like favour and eaſe of his Subjects, is further pleaſed to declare his Royal Will and Pleaſure to be, that the particular Grants hereafter mentioned (upon feigned ſuggeſtions obtained from him to publick damages) whether the ſame have paſſed his Majeſty's Great Seal, Privy-Seal, Signet, or Sign-Manual, or any of them, ſhall not hereafter be put in Execution, viz.

A Grant for weighing Hay and Straw in London and Weſtminſter, and three Miles compaſs.

An Office of Regiſter to the Commiſsion for Bankrupts in divers Counties of the Realm.

An Office or Grant for gauging of Red-Herrings.

An Office or Grant for the marking of Iron made within the Realm.

An Office or Grant for ſealing of Bone-Lace.

A Grant for marking and gauging of Butter Caſks.

A Grant of Priviledg touching Kelp and Sea-Weed.

A Grant for Sealing of Linnen-Cloth.

A Grant for the gathering of Rags.

An Office or Grant of Factory for Scotiſh Merchants.

An Office or Grant for Searching and Sealing of Forraign Hops.

An Office and Grant for the Sealing of Buttons.

All Grants of Fines, Penalties, and Forfeitures before Judgment, granted, or mentioned to be granted, by Letters Patents, Privy-Seals, Signet, Sign Manual, or otherwiſe.

All Patents for new Inventions, not put in practiſe within three Years next after the date of the ſaid Grants.

And the ſeveral Grants of Incorporation made unto Hatband-makers, Gutſtring-makers, Spectacle-makers, Comb-makers, Tobacco-Pipe-makers, Butchers, and Horners.

And his Majeſty doth further Require and Command, that there ſhall be a proceeding againſt the ſaid Patentees by quo Warranto, or Scire facias, to recall the ſaid Grants and Patents, unleſs they will voluntarily ſurrender and yeild up the ſame.

And alſo all Proclamations, Warrants, or Letters of Aſsiſtance obtained from his Majeſty, or the Lords and others of his Privy-Council for execution thereof, from henceforth utterly to ceaſe and be determined, and are hereby abſolutely revoked and recalled.

And his Majeſty doth further expreſly Charge and Command all and ſingular the Patentees, Grantees, or others any ways intereſſed, or claiming under the aforenamed Grants, Licences, or Commiſsions, or any of them, and their Deputies, that they or any of them do not at any time hereafter preſume to put in uſe or execution any of the the ſaid Grants, Commiſſions, or Licences, or any thing therein contained, or any Proclamations, Warrants, or Letters of Aſſiſtance obtained in that behalf, upon pain of his Majeſties Indignation, and to be proceeded againſt as contemners of his Majeſty's Royal Commands, whereof he will require a ſtrict account.

Given at our Manour at York, the 9th day of April, in the 15th Year of our Raign, 1639.

This Proclamation gave great Satisfaction to the King's Subjects in the North, and much more in the South, for theſe Projects and Monopolies had been grievous to the People, who caſt out Words of an Indiſpoſition to march in the Army whilſt theſe Burthens were upon the People.

The People were much ſatisfied with the Proclamation.

And now having this occaſion to make mention of thoſe Monopolies and Projects, ſo particularly enumerated in this Proclamation, we deſire to look a few days beyond the time limitted to this ſecond part, and to let the Reader underſtand what an ill ſavour ſuch Patents and Monopolies granted by the King, had amongſt the People of better Rank, and which will beſt appear by a Speech made by Sir John Culpeper, of the County of Kent Knight, immediately after the beginning of the Parliament, which met the third of November, and in regard it proceeded from him being a Perſon of very great repute in his Country, and alſo who afterwards, during the late Wars, was with the King in Perſon at Oxford, We think fit to communicate a Branch of his Speech, in reference to Monopolies, which the Author took with his Pen at large, as he ſpoke the ſame.

Sir John Culpeper his Speech in Parliament.

Mr. SPEAKER,

‘I Have but one Grievance more to offer unto you, but this one comprizeth many: It is a Neſt of Waſps, or Swarm of Vermine, which have over-crept the Land, I mean the Monopolies and Polers of the People; theſe, like the Frogs of Egypt, have gotten Poſſeſſion of our Dwellings, and we have ſcarce a Room free from them. They ſup in our Cup (a). They Dip in our Diſh (b). They ſit by our Fire (c). We find them in the Dye-Fat, Waſh-Bowl (d), and Powdring-Tub (e). They ſhare with the Butler in his Box (f). Concerning a Proclamation againſt the Scots.

HAMILTON,

According to my promiſe on Thurſday laſt, I ſend here-with the Proclamation altered, as I then wrote; and that you may not think that theſe Alterations are grounded upon new Councils, I ſhall deſire you to obſerve, that I do not ſo much as ſeem to add the leaſt thing to my former Promiſes. It is true that I neither mention the late pretended General Aſſembly at Glaſgow, nor the Covenant at this time: my Reaſon is, that if for the preſent I could get Civil Obedience, and my Forts reſtored, I might then talk of the other things upon better terms. As for excepting ſome out of the General Pardon, almoſt every one now thinks that it would be a means to unite them the faſter together; whereas there is no fear, but that thoſe who are fit to be excepted, will do it themſelves, by not accepting of Pardon, of which Number I pray God there be not too many. So that now you are to go on according to your former Directions, only Proclaim this inſtead of my former Signed Proclamation, and ſo to proceed with Fire and Sword, againſt all thoſe that ſhall diſobey the ſame. So Praying to God to proſper you in all things. I Reſt,

York, April 10. 1639.
4. Afternoon.

Your aſſured conſtant Friend,

CHARLES R.

The ſame day the King writ again to the Marqueſs this following Letter.

I Have ſpoken with Henry Vane at full of all thoſe things, and agree in all but one, which is that he thinks your going into the Frith, will make the Rebels enter into England the ſooner; whereas on the contrary, I think that my Poſſeſſing of Carliſle and Berwick, hath made them ſo Mad, they will enter in as ſoon as they can perſwade an Army together, except they be hindred by ſome awful Diverſion; wherefore I could wiſh that you were even now in the Frith, though the Borders might be quiet till my Army be brought together; which they ſay will hardly be yet theſe ten days: Yet I am not out of hope to be at Newcaſtle within theſe fourteen days, and ſo to Berwick, as ſoon as I may with either Honour or Safety; wherefore my Concluſion is, Go on a God's Name in your former Intentions, except

I ſend you otherwiſe Word, or your ſelf find ſome inevitable Neceſsity.

POSTSCRIPT. I have ſent you ten Blanks, whereof four be Signaturewiſe.

When the Lord Deputy underſtood that the Scots had taken Dunbarton-Caſtle, he wrote this enſuing Letter of Advice to the King, dated April 15. 1639.

Lord Deputy Wentworth's Letter to the King concern- Dunbarton Caſtle.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

SIR George Radcliff being to repair thither for a few Weeks, to ſettle the Payment for the Regiment ſent hence to Carliſle, and ſome other private Matters concerning our ſelves, will attend your Majeſty at York, and diſpatch hither ſuch Commands as you ſhall vouchſafe to honour me with, therefore I crave Directions in ſome Particulars, leſt when they happen, your Service may ſuffer for want of clear, and good Inſtructions aforehand.

In caſe any Scotiſh refuſe to take the Oath of Abjuration: What is your Pleaſure we ſhould do with them? ſhall we Lege Taliones here, as there, Impriſon the Parties Delinquent? ſeize their Lands and Holdings to your Majeſty for the uſe of the Publick?

Whether a Proclamation might not be had, to Command Home to their Dwellings, the Scotiſh that have Poſſeſſions in this Kingdom? and if they refuſe, in like manner to ſeize their Eſtates; as it ſeems thoſe Lordly Covenanters ſerve your true Subjects there: ſuch of that Nation, I mean, as are now reſiding, and of the rebellious Covenant.

Whether it be your Pleaſure, that your Ships at Sea take as many Scotiſh Veſſels as they meet with? and how your Majeſty appoints us to diſpoſe of thoſe Ships, their Men and Ladings?

Whether it were not good to keep as many of their Maſters of Ships, as we ſhall take, the more to diſable them at Sea, and we to have uſe of them as Pilots, in caſe there be occaſion of Service on their Coaſt?

The Earl of Argile hath in Cantire twenty Boats for Tranſportation of Men: Whether your Majeſties Ships ſhall endeavour to take, or burn them?

Whether it be your Pleaſure to cut off in preſent all Commerce betwixt the two Kingdoms, the Degrees and Cautions your Majeſty ſhall ordain for us to obſerve therein?

Your Majeſty's Caſtle of Dunbarton, was extreamly ill loſt, in my opinion of greater Conſequence by far (all duly conſidered) than the Caſtle of Edinburgh; therefore much more happy, had it been better ſecur'd, which by your Shipping might hence have been eaſily effected, had your Majeſties deſire thereof been early underſtood by us on this ſide: for by this means, in in caſe Leſley prevail againſt M. Huntley, and the Town of Aberdeen, as the Report goes he hath, there is nothing left behind to ſtay them from breaking down into England this Summer, which is the only Danger I apprehend in the Buſineſs.

Hence it is that I could wiſh no Hoſtile Act had bin done upon them this Summer, whereby to provoke, or give pretence to ſuch an Invaſive Inſolence; and that the ſtop of their Shipping had been reſpited till toward the beginning of September at leaſt, and then, by the concurrence of your Miniſters on both ſides, executed on one day through both Kingdoms.

But now looking upon things as they are, I do moſt humbly, and earneſtly beſeech your Majeſty to Command, that Barwick and Carliſle be fortified in all Diligence, very powerful Garriſons put into them, as well Horſe as Foot, fill'd with all manner of Ammunition, and Stores; Perſons of Experience and Induſtry deputed to the Government of them; by all means poſſible to advance the Number of your Majeſty's Horſe, which alone, with theſe two Towns at the Back of the Rebels, will ſecure us from an Invaſion this Year, and to ſet a reſolution to ſpend the Summer in Diſciplining your Men, accuſtoming both Officer and Souldier to underſtand, and do their ſeveral Duties, and not in anywiſe to hazard a Battel for the preſent; which by God's Bleſſing may infallibly be avoided, by ſtrongly and commodiouſly intrenching your Army in ſome place of Advantage, ſo as it may ſecure Newcaſtle, and have both the Town and Sea to friend for all uſes. And this I mention the rather, in regard Sir Francis Willougby writes me Word, he finds in the place, where he is, much unreadineſs in all things belonging to a War.

In this noble and ſafe Poſture your Majeſty may look upon their Madneſs, without oppoſing, till the ſtrength of that Torrent be paſt: that gone, perchance God may yet give them the Grace to ſee their Sin, Repent, and make Satisfaction, which of all other were moſt to be deſired: but if otherwiſe their Hearts be diſpoſed to miſchief themſelves (I truſt) only, not the reſt of your Innocent and Loial Subjects. The Winter comes on, gives time for new Counſels, which if it come to that extremity muſt be thorowly and narrowly intended, indeed on all Hands; Monies, and all other means, both of Defence and Offence, prepared with the firſt beginning of the Spring.

Your Majeſty, I truſt, will graciouſly interpret this Liberty of mine, thus to ſtray forth of my own Employment (which God knows, is more than ſufficient to keep me in work) as proceeding meerly from my Zeal to your Perſon, and having no other Aſpect than to your Service. God long preſerve Your Majeſty.

York, April the 18*th*, at ten of the Clock at Night his Majeſty writ this enſuing Letter to the Marqueſs.

Hamilton,

It is true that I was content to hear your Advice concerning your going into the Frith, it being chiefly to ſhew Henry Vane, that your Judgment went along as well as your Obedience: though I had a care ever to take off from you the envy of ſeeking of this particular Employment, taking it, as it is juſt, upon my own abſolute Command; yet I will not ſay, but that you might have cauſe to wonder, becauſe neither of us expreſſed our ſelves ſo clearly as we might. But my chief Errand to you at this time is, that upon ſerious Debate upon your long Letter to Henry Vane, only with him and Arundel, (for I dare truſt no other) We found no reaſon to alter my former Commands, but were more confirmed in the fitneſs of them: Only We have thought requiſite to alter ſome things in the Proclamation, which you ſhall receive by the next Diſpatch, at fartheſt within a day or two of this; So that you are not to (indeed I think you cannot) publiſh any until the new one come to you, (for I believe it will be at the Holy-Iſland before you); The Alterations of which you will only find to be, That I do not ſay all I think, but in no ways ſlack my Reſolution, much leſs ſeem to yield to any thing. So referring you to Henry Vane for the relating of your Proceedings here, I reſt,

Your aſſured conſtant Friend,

And the King in another Letter to the Marqueſs, dated April 23, writes to him, Not to think of the North, till his Majeſty hath done ſome good in the South; to which end he will haſten to Barwick.

The King leaves York.

On the 29*th* of April, the King took his Journey from York; but before his departure, he expreſſed himſelf how much Affection he had found from that County, and City, ſaying, That he had never found the like true love from the City of London, to which place he had given ſo many Marks of his Favour.

Coms to Raby from York.

His Majeſty came the firſt Night to Raby-Caſtle in the Biſhoprick of Durham, a Caſtle belonging to Sir Henry Vane, Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Houſhold, where he was nobly entertained.

Durham.

From thence he went to Durham, where the Biſhop, with great expreſſions of Joy and Welcome, feaſted his Majeſty for ſome time. His Majeſty ſtaied in that County, while the Horſe and Foot intended to be levied there, were raiſed, and upon their March.

From thence he came to Newcaſtle, where by the Mayor and Magiſtrates of that Town; he was moſt magnificently entertained, all the Town ſeemed but as one Man againſt the Scots in caſe of an Invaſion. Mr. Alexander Daviſon then Mayor, and Thomas Riddell Eſq; Town-Clerk, were then Knighted by the King. The Recorder at that time was a Knight, being Sir Thomas Riddell the Elder, and then living, which diſpoſed the King to honour his Son with Knighthood.

The Lord Deputy having given an Oath to the Scots in Ireland, whereby to teſtify their Allegiance to the King, thought fit to acquaint his Majeſty therewith, by his Letter dated May 13.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

BY our joint Diſpatch to Mr. Treaſurer Vane, as by the particular Letter of my Lord of Antrim to your Majeſty, will appear what hath bin done in purſuance of the late Directions concerning the fitting of his Lordſhip for his Deſign againſt the Earl of Argile, and the Terms wherein it reſts, until there may be an Ability to ſet it on foot with more probability, indeed poſſibility, than could be this Summer, which was ſo far ſpent, and his Lordſhip ſo far behind in his Preparations, as not to be recovered, or right-ſtated, before next Spring; no, albeit his Lordſhip had, or could be provided of the Mony he deſires.

By my Letter to Mr. Secretary Cook, your Majeſty will alſo find in what good Expreſſions thoſe of the Scotiſh Nation have delivered themſelves toward your Service, and their own Allegiance; and in troth Sir, their manner was very chearful and hearty; and theſe being the Principal who have taken the Oath, it may be with confidence believed, all the reſt of meaner condition will follow their good Example.

Commiſſions are now iſſuing to take the Oath of all the reſt; they ſhall be all under the Seal by the laſt of this Month; upon which day I have given order to half of the Horſe-Troops and Foot-Companies to be at Knockfergus, their Rendezvouſe, intruſted the Maſter of the Ordnance with the commandment of them. They are already on their March, and I my ſelf am ready upon five days warning to follow them with the reſt of the Army if there be occaſion.

Thoſe Forces I haſten the more, as thoſe that will become the Buſineſs looking on, whilſt that caution of the loyalty of the Scots to the Crown is to be taken, and at hand to correct any Miſaccident that might fall forth in the accompliſhment of that Service.

Beſides, they being ſo near, and your Majeſty's Ships on that Coaſt, will certainly give the Earl of Argile more to think of, and conſider himſelf nearer home, than the raiſing of a Company of naked and unexperienced Iriſh-men by my Lord of Antrim: And to give it the bolder countenance, it is generaly believed on this ſide, that I my ſelf will follow them with the reſt of thoſe Forces.

To the beſt of my diſcerning, all is ſet on this ſide in right Affections to your Roial Perſon and Affairs, and toward Obedience and Peace, which makes me judge, That if your Majeſty had been faithfully and attentively ſerved by your Miniſters in Scotland, it had bin impoſſible there could have bin ſo general and deſperate a Defection as now ſhews forth it ſelf, even to the wonder and ſcandal of every honeſt Heart. God long preſerve your Majeſty.

The

The Oath which the Lord Deputy gave to the Scots in Ireland was as followeth.

Scots Oath in Ireland to abjure the Covenant.

I. N. do faithfully ſwear, profeſs, and promiſe, That I will honour and obey my Soveraign Lord King Charles, and will bear Faith and true Allegiance unto him, and defend and maintain his Roial Power and Authority; and that I will not bear Arms, or do any rebellious or hoſtile Act againſt any of his Roial Commands, but ſubmit my ſelf in all due obedience thereunto; And that I will not enter into any Covenant or Band of mutual Defence or Aſſiſtance againſt any Perſon whatſoever by Forces, without his Majeſty's Soveraign and Regal Authority. And I do renounce and abjure all Oaths, Covenants, and Bands whatſoever, contrary to what I have herein ſworn, profeſſed, and promiſed. So help me God in Jeſus Chriſt.

Commiſſions to miniſter the Oath of Abjuration.

Order of the Deputy and Council of Ireland, to impoſe an Oath on the Scots in Ireland.

Hereupon the Deputy and Council made an Act, To command all Perſons of the Scotiſh Nation, of the Age of ſixteen years and upwards, who inhabit, or have any Eſtate whatſoever, in Lands or Houſes, within that Kingdom, upon pain of his Majeſty's high Diſpleaſure, and the ſevereſt Puniſhments that may be inflicted, according to the Laws of the Realm, upon the Contemners of Soveraign Authority, to take the Oath.

His Majeſty ſignified his Pleaſure to the Board, That the ſame Oath ordained by the Act of Council in Ireland, to be taken in that Kingdom by all the Perſons of the Scotiſh Nation, ſhall in like manner be adminiſtred to, and taken by all and every Perſon and Perſons of that Nation; as well thoſe that have the honour to be Servants to the King and Queen's Majeſty, and to the Princes Highneſs, and Duke of York, and all others whatſoever of the Age of ſixteen years and upwards, upon pain of his Majeſty's high Diſpleaſure.

HAMILTON,

I Have kept this honeſt Bearer the longer, that I may with the more aſſurance give you my Directions what to do; conſiſting of two Points, Fighting and Treating. For the firſt, We are ſtill of the ſame Opinion, That it is not fit that you ſhould go on until I be in the Borders, which will be (by the Grace of God) by this day eight days; except you find that before that time, they march down to meet me with a great Strength; in that caſe you are to fall on them immediately, and in my Opinion, as far up in the Frith as you think probably may do good, thereby to make a Diverſion. In the mean time I like well, That you go on upon the ground of Treaty you ſent a Note of to Maſter Treaſurer, (which you will find I have under-written) no Body elſe being acquainted with it. Thus having given you my Directions, both concerning Fighting and Treating, I leave the reſt to the faithful Relation of the honeſt Bearer; and Reſt,

May 22. The King wrote to the Marqueſs from Newcaſtle, That Rumors came ſo thick of the great Forces that the Rebels mean very ſhortly to bring upon his Majeſty, and that he thought fit to advertiſe him therewith, that he might be ready, upon the firſt notice, to land at the Holy-Iſland.

Shortly after two Regiments commanded by Morton and Harecourt were diſpatched away, and landed at Berwick on the 29*th* of May.

The King drawing near with his Army towards Berwick, the Lord General cauſed the Army to be drawn up in Batalia, and then the King took a view of that gallant Army, as by the following Liſt it doth appear to be, and marched on the head of them towards the River Tweed, which parteth England and Scotland; and near to that River, two miles Weſt from Berwick, at a place called the Birks, the King pitched his Tent within a large Pavilion, and encamped there. The Nobility, and the King's Houſhould-Servants, Bed-Chamber-Men, Privy-Chamber-Men, &c. pitched their Tents near to the King.

Marqueſs Hamilton's Letter to the King, May 29.

Moſt Sacred Majeſty,

Every day may produce new Counſels, and if I alter in them, impute it not to fickleneſs, but to the reality of my Intentions to your Majeſty's Service, that writes what I think.

Hearing for certain that the Covenanters have given Obedience to your Majeſty's laſt Proclamation, and will not come within ten miles of the Borders, there is now no more doubt to be made, but that you will be ſo faſt in your Leaguer, that it will not be in their Power to do the leaſt affront to your Army. So as my farther Treaty in theſe Parts where I am is to no end, ſince that is effected which was only laboured for, your Majeſty being in ſecurity. So I conceive it will now be time to ſpeak other Language than hitherto hath bin done, and they to be enjoined a total Obedience to your juſt Commands. This will be beſt put in execution by your own immediate Directions, you being now ſo near the Rebels; for if your Pleaſure ſhould be ſent to me, the Winds being uncertain, and I more uncertain how to put the ſame in execution, (I mean, if they be Commands of Treaty) your Service might receive prejudice by delays; and to deal really with your Majeſty (which I humbly deſire your Majeſty to pardon me for expreſſing) I have no deſire at all to be imploied in Treaty with this People, for many Reaſons: Amongſt which this is not one of the leaſt, That as I hear the Earl of Traquaire and Southesk are deſirous to have leave to come to me, which (whatſoever courſe your Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to take) I beſeech you not to grant; for the effects of their coming to me, will produce no great good to your Service, and prove infinitely prejudicial to me; for ſo unhappy am I ſtill, that if by the Faults of others your Service miſcarrieth, the Fault is ſtill laid on me, by thoſe whom I have not deſerved it from.

Notwithſtanding my averſeneſs of farther Treaty, I have not refuſed as yet to admit any that ſhall be ſent with their Petitions; but this I only do till the return of Sir James, by whom I expect the ſignification of your Majeſty's Pleaſure: in the interim, if any deſires of theirs be ſent me, my Anſwers ſhall be ſuch as your Majeſty ſhall be no ways ingaged by them.

I have writ of ſome other Particulars to Mr. Treaſurer, ſo your Majeſty ſhall be no more for the preſent troubled by at 7 morning, 1639.

Your Majeſty's
Moſt Loyal Subject, and Humble Servant,
HAMILTON.

The Lord Deputy underſtanding his Majeſty was on his March, in order to encamp himſelf and Army, offers his Advice in that Particular, by a Letter dated May 30.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

Lord Deputy's Letter of Advice to the King to encamp his Army

Having given ſo particular an Anſwer to what Mr. Treaſurer Vane wrote unto me from your Majeſty, this may well be of leſs pain in the reading, craving leave to refer my ſelf thereunto.

The Commiſſions for taking the Oath of Abjuration from all of the Scotiſh Nation on this ſide, are already under Seal, and ſhall be ſped with all poſſible care and diligence, not doubting but they will produce the Effect deſired and expected.

Sir Henry Bruce came hither this week, and hath already his diſpatch toward my Lord of Antrim. In truth he ſeems to be a very fair conditioned Gentleman, and knowing in his Profeſſion; and there is need he be ſo, for he will not find among all that Earl employs, one other that doth therein underſtand any thing at all.

We hear now and then, that they intend to Beat, to Bang, to Conquer; but the way how, the means wherewith they ſhould make themſelves as good as their word, as yet appears not to the Miniſters of this State; nor can I find, by the Diſcourſe I have had with him, that Sir Henry Bruce hath hitherto any great opinion or belief in the Deſign of the Earl, or his Party.

Theſe Lines will have the honour to be delivered to your Majeſty in the Camp Royal; God Almighty fight for you, and with your Batalions; and admit the liberty humbly to beſeech your Majeſty,

To intrench your Army with all poſſible ſtrength and diligence, that ſo you may not be conſtrained to any thing above your liking by the Enemy; and that the place be ſo choſen, wherein you may both have the Sea to Friend, and a ſafe and free Paſſage betwixt your Majeſty's Camp and Barwick, for by this means you ſhall not only ſecure your Perſon, but the Kingdom of England from any ſudden and deſperate fury of the Rebels, being that which they only can endanger either the one or the other by.

Next; Not to provoke them by any Offenſive Act to break in upon their Neighbours this Summer, till it be the end of Auguſt, keeping all quiet as poſſibly may be till then.

Indeed, I conceive ſtrengthning your Horſe all that poſſibly you may the whilſt, by the beginning of September, if no other ſenſe of their own Tranſgreſſions, and your Majeſty's Clemency, ſhall be able to perſwade them into their Duty, you may with great ſucceſs ſuddenly march up all your Horſe as far as Edinburgh, and ſpoiling and burning all the Corn of their Champian Country, and taking from them all their Shipping, Fiſhing and Commerce, leave them to fight it out for the reſt of the Winter among themſelves with cleanneſs of Teeth, when a ſtrong Garriſon at Berwick, and the very inſtant ſeaſon of the Year ſhall move them, whether they will or no, to keep near their own Fires ſide.

And Laſtly, Your Majeſty to give order to ſecure Carliſle, by putting 1500 Men more into the Town; 500 Men being too ſmall a number, to make it good againſt an Enemy; however, not to divide thoſe 500 at leaſt, as lately they were, one hundred of them being taken forth of the Town to defend Bencaſtle, and another hundred to the guarding of another Caſtle, being places of no ſtrength, or conſequence, and which an Enemy would ſcarcely ever think upon, unleſs incited thereunto out of a hope to have Execution of thoſe two Companies, ſo ſeparated from the reſt of the Regiment. God long preſerve your Majeſty.

Thurſday, the King goes to Berwick, to ſee in what poſture that Garriſon was, and what Proviſions was laid in there for the ſame, and the ſame day the Earl of Newcaſtle marched with his Troop, carrying the Princes Colours, into Barwick, and ſent out Parties to ſcout upon the Scots Borders; his Troop conſiſted all of Gentlemen, moſt of them of very good Eſtates, and Fortunes, ſome of 2000 l. 1500. l. 1000. l. and 500. l. per Annum, and the reſt of good Annual Revenue; all gallantly mounted and armed, and well attended, with their own Servants well mounted: for the maintaining of which Troop the King was put to no Charge at all.

The ſame Day the King had Intelligence, that General Leſly with about 6000 of the Scotiſh Army were quartered at Dunce, a Town about ſeven Miles diſtant from the Engliſh Camp, and the Day following, May 31. commanded the Earl of Holland, General of the Horſe, to march with 2000 Horſe into Scotland, and take his Advantage upon the Enemy. Accordingly the Earl marched, but the Enemy (having better Intelligence of our Motions and Intentions, than we had of their Quarters) was not to be found; upon the coming of our Forces into the Town, the People cryed, God bleſs the King, and that they were all his Majeſty's obedient Subjects, and readily brought forth their Scots Ale, and what they had, to bid the Engliſh Welcome, and ſo the Earl having read the King's Proclamation, returned back to the Camp. This Paſſage was obſervable in that March, that the Earl of Holland put the Princes Colours, commanded by the Earl of Newcaſtle, in the Rear,

An. 1639.

The Earl of Newcaſtle takes off his Colours from his Staff.

Rear, which ſo offended the Earl of Newcaſtle, and that Troop, as his Lordſhip commanded Cornet Edward Gray (Brother to the Lord Gray of Wark) to take the Colours from off the Staff, yet marched in order without Colours, which afterwards produced a Challenge, of which more in another place.

Bartue Lord Willoughby, Earl of Lindſey, was that day made Governor of Barwick, Sir Michael Earnley an experienced Commander, had the Command of that Garriſon till the King came that day in Perſon to Barwick.

Now having ſetled the King and his Land Forces in the Camp, give the Author leave a little to revert in point of time, to give a brief account of the Forces ſent by Sea under Marqueſs Hamilton, againſt the Scots from the time the Marqueſs entred the Frith with his Fleet.

May 1. Marqueſs Hamilton entred the Frith, an Arm of the Sea, and caſt Anchor in Leith-Road: but as ſoon as he came thither, Beacons were ſet on Fire upon all the Hills, to alarm the Country to riſe and get together for the defence of the Frith on both ſides, and to prevent the Landing of Forces, but the Marqueſs's Orders, were in the firſt place to get the Proclamation publiſhed, to which purpoſe he ſent a Letter to the Clerk of the Council, then at Endinburgh, to come to him: but the Clerk returned anſwer, That he was kept by force from coming to wait upon him.

May 2. The Marqueſs landed his Forces on Inchkeith and Inchkome, two little Iſlands in the Frith, and the Wells being out of order, he cauſed them to be cleanſed for the relief of his Souldiers, and exerciſed thoſe raw Men that were ſent unto him, but the Small-Pox fell among them and many died.

May 5. Three days after his former Meſſage to the Magiſtrates of Edinburgh, he ſent one aſhore, with his Majeſties Proclamation incloſed in a Letter to them, commanding them to publiſh it the next day in due form, under all pains; and ſent another Proclamation to the Clerk of the Council, commanding him to ſee it publiſhed, or if that were not done, to affix it at the Croſs. But the Magiſtrates deſired a delay of three days, to which he yeilded, becauſe he would have the eight days fully paſt which were prefixed for People to come in upon the Proclamation, which was to expire on the 9th of May.

About which time his Majeſty writ this Letter to the Marqueſs.

May 8. His Majeſty writ this Letter from Newcaſtle to the Marqueſs.

HAMILTON,

I Give you my opinion, that if you find it not fit to land all your 5000 Men upon Lothian-ſide, then it may be counſellable to ſend moſt of your Land-Men to the North, to ſtrengthen my Party there. As for your landing in the South, I ſhall only name Tentallon and Sterlin,(if that be not too far off to be relieved): as for Tentallon I ſhall command the Marqueſs of Dowglaſs to ſend one to agree that Buſineſs with you. So longing to hear from you, and wiſhing you good Luck, I Reſt, Newcaſtle, May 8. 1639.

Your aſſured Conſtant Friend,

CHARLES R.

On the 9th of May, the Marqueſs received this following Letter, ſignified by about forty of the chief Lords and Gentlemen Covenanters, ſhewing how this Proclamation was againſt Law.

Pleaſe your Grace,

'As we were here met to attend the Parliament, indicted by his 'Majeſty, there was ſhewed to us by the Provoſt of Edinburgh, a 'Letter from your Grace to himſelf, and the Bayliffs, and Council of 'this City, with the Copy of theirs returned to your Grace, deferring 'the more full Anſwer till our meeting. And withal there was pre'ſented from your Geace his Majeſties Proclamation, which having 'peruſed, we find it doth contain divers points not only contrary to 'our National Oath to God, but alſo to the Laws and Liberties of the 'Kingdom, for it carries a denunciation of the High Crime of Treaſon, 'againſt all ſuch as do not accept the offer therein contained; albeit it 'be only a Writing put in Print without the Kingdom, and not warranted 'by Act and Authority of the Council, lawfully convened within this 'Kingdom. And your Grace in your Wiſdom may conſider, whether 'it can ſtand with the Laws, Liberties, and Cuſtoms of this Kingdom, 'that a Proclamation of ſo great and dangerous conſequence, wanting 'the neceſſary Solemnities, ſhould be publiſhed at the Market-Croſs of 'this City. Whereas your Grace knows well, that by the Laws of 'this Kingdom, Treaſon and Forfeiture of the Lands, Life and Eſtate 'of the meaneſt Subject within the ſame, cannot be declared but ei'ther in Parliament, or in a ſupream Juſtice Court, after Citation and 'lawful Probation; how much leſs of the whole Peers and Body of the 'Kingdom, without either Court-proof or Trial. And albeit we do 'heartily and humbly acknowledg and profeſs all dutiful and civil 'Obedience to his Majeſty, as our Dread and Gracious Soveraign; 'yet ſince this Proclamation does import in effect the renouncing of 'our Covenant made with God, and of the neceſſary means of our 'lawful Defence, We cannot give Obedience thereto, without bring'ing a Curſe upon this Kirk and Kingdom, and Ruin upon our Selves 'and our Poſterity; whereby we are perſwaded, that it did never pro'ceed from his Majeſty, but that it is a deep Plot contrived by the 'Policy of the deviliſh Malice of the known and curſed Enemies of 'this Church and State, by which they have intended ſo to diſ-join 'us from his Majeſty, and among our Selves, as the Rupture, Rent, and 'Confuſion of both might be irreparable; wherein we hope the 'Lord (in whom we truſt) ſhall diſappoint them. And ſeeing we 'have left no means poſſible uneſſayed ſince his Majeſty's coming to 'York (as before) whereby his Majeſty's Ear might be made patent 'to our juſt Informations, but have uſed the help (to our laſt Re'monſtrance) of the Lord Gray, the Juſtice Clerk, the Treaſurer, and 'the Lord Daliel, as the Bearer can inform your Grace, and yet have 'never had the happineſs to attain any hopes of our End, but have 'altogether bin fruſtrate and diſappointed; and now underſtanding, 'by the ſight of your Grace's Letter, That your Grace, as his Maje'ſty's High-Commiſſioner, is returned with full Power and Authority 'to accommodate Affairs in a peaceable way, we will not ceaſe to 'have recourſe to your Grace, as one who hath chief Intereſt in this

Kirk and Kingdom; deſiring your Grace to conſider, (as in our judgment we are perſwaded) That there is no way ſo ready and aſſured to ſettle and compoſe all Affairs, as by holding of the Parliament according to his Majeſty's Indiction, either by his Sacred Maſty in Perſon, (which is our chiefeſt deſire) or by your Grace, as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, at the time appointed; wherein your Grace ſhall find our Carriage moſt humble, loyal, and dutiful to our Soveraign, or to your Grace, as repreſenting his Majeſty's Perſon; and in the mean time, That your Grace would open a ſafe way, whereby our Supplications and Informations may have acceſs to his Majeſty's Ears: And we are fully perſwaded, that we ſhall be able to clear the lawfulneſs and integrity of our Intentions and Proceedings to his Majeſty, and make it evident to his Majeſty and to the World, that our Enemies are Traitors to the King, to the Church and State; and that we are, and ever have bin, his Majeſty's Loial and Obedient Subjects. So we Reſt,

To this Letter, the Marqueſs wrote the following Anſwer next day, directing it to the Earl of Rothes.

My Lord,

I Received a Letter yeſterday morning, ſigned by your Lordſhip, and divers Noblemen and others, wherein you allege you are come to attend the Parliament; but conſidering your Preparation and Equipage, it appears rather to fight a Battel, than to hold a civil Convocation for the good of the Church and Common-Wealth. You may perceive by his Majeſty's Gracious Proclamation, That he intended, in his own Sacred Perſon, to be preſent at the Parliament, ſo ſoon as with Honour and Safety he might do it, and for that end expreſt therein what was fit to be done. But theſe courſes which you take, and your diſobedience to his juſt Commands, daily more and more ſhewed, will neceſſitate him to have them put in execution another way. It is true, That his Majeſty ſent me hither to accommodate theſe Affairs in a peaceable manner, if it were poſſible, which I have laboured to do, and accordingly my deportment hath bin, which hath bin met with that Retribution, as if I had met with the greateſt Enemy; but your refuſing to publiſh his Majeſty's Grace to his People, ſignified in his Proclamation, hath taken away that Power which otherwiſe I had, that being being a Liberty taken to your ſelves, which never any Loial Subjects aſſumed in any Monarchy. You allege many Reaſons for your ſelves of the Illegality of that Proclamation: But you cannot be ignorant that your Carriage hath forced many of theſe Principal Counſellors, for ſafeguard of their Lives, to forſake the Kingdom, out of which they remain; yet for the ſame cauſe you have ſuppreſſed the printing of all Writings, but what is warranted by Mr. Alexander Henderſon, and one Mr. Archibald Johnſton. Neither was the Clerk of the Council, whom I ſent for twice to give him Directions in this Buſineſs, permitted to come aboard to me; upon conference with whom (for any thing you know) I might have reſolved to come aſhore and convened a Council for the publication thereof in the ordinary way. But your extraordinary proceedings in all things, muſt needs force from his Majeſty ſome things which perhaps you may think not ordinary. Whereas you deſire me to be a means that your Supplications may have free acceſs to his Majeſty's Ears: it is a Work of no difficulty, for his Majeſty hath never ſtopt his Ears to the Supplications of any of his Subjects, when they have bin preſented to him in that humble and fitting way which became dutiful Subjects: Nor did I ever refuſe any, all the time I was among you, or conceal any part of them from his Majeſty; ſo that your Allegation of not being heard, is grounded upon the ſame falſe Foundations that your other Actions are, and ſerves only for a means to delude the ſimple People, that by making them believe what you have a mind to poſſeſs them with, they may become backers of your unwarranted Actions; which as it is generally lamented by all his Majeſty's good Subjects, ſo it is more particularly by me, who have had the honour to be imploied in this Buſineſs with ſo bad ſucceſs.

May 10. My Lord,

Your humble Servant,

HAMILTON.

On the 13*th* of May the Marqueſs received the following Letter, ſigned, but not written by the Earl of Rothes.

Pleaſe your Grace,

'I Should have bin far better contented to have ſeen you here at the 'Parliament with his Majeſty, or holding that indicted as his Ma-
'jeſty's Commiſſioner, than with Navy and Army to conſtrain
'us beyond theſe juſt Limits of Religion, and lawful Obedience which
'we were always willing to perform. It was far by my Expectation, and 'your Grace's Oath & Promiſe, that you ſhould never come in any chief 'Command againſt your Native Country. Whereas your Grace doth
'challenge our coming in ſuch Numbers to attend this Parliament, I 'hope you conceive that this Navy, and Army upon the Borders, and
'the Invaſion threatned in the Weſt, do ſufficiently warrant our Pre'parations to defend theſe Places, and divert ſuch Dangers. That 'Proclamation that is ſaid to carry ſo much Grace and Goodneſs, is as 'deſtitute of that, as your Invaſion is of a good Warrant; which per-
'ſwades me, That neither of the two proceeds from his Majeſty's own

‘Gracious Diſpoſition. I cannot ſtand here to anſwer all theſe miſconceived Particulars contained in your Grace's Letter; but if I had the honour to ſee your Grace, before any more miſchief be done, I dare engage my Honour, and my Life, to clear all theſe Imputations laid on our Proceedings; and I can demonſtrate how hardly we have bin uſed, without any juſt Reaſon. I dare not be anſwerable to God Almighty, and to that Duty I owe my Prince and Country, if I do not ſhew your Grace, that your going a little further in this violent and unjuſt way, will put all from the hopes of Recovery; from which both a great deal of Blame from Men, and Judgment from Above ſhall attend you as the ſpecial Inſtrument, which I wiſh you labour to evite. If our Deſtruction be intended, we are confident in that Majeſty who owns this Cauſe, and is able to defend it; and if only Terrors to fright, and prepare us to accept of any Conditions will be offered; that Intention is already as far diſappointed, as any of theſe many former: but as we are ready to defend, ſo ever to inſiſt in ſupplicating, in uſing all humble and lawful means as becomes us.

‘Mr. Borthwick will deliver to your Grace our Supplication to his Majeſty, and both his and my Mind, till I ſhall have the occaſion to diſburthen my ſelf, ſurcharged with grief at your Proceedings, being moſt deſirous (as I have bin formerly) to have all theſe Occaſions removed, that may divert me from being ſtill,

Your Grace's humble Servant,

ROTHES.

On the 17*th* of May, the Marqueſs returned the following Anſwer to the former Letter from the Lord Rothes.

My Lord,

The Marqueſs his Anſwer, May 17.

I Have received your Lordſhip's Letter, ſigned by you, but I cannot conceive it of your Lordſhip's indicting; for I believe you would not have ſent ſuch an one to me, if you had not had ſome Malignant Spirits buſied in the framing of it: for you cannot but remember, that my words were never other, than that I would die at my Maſter's Feet; and that I would prove an Enemy, to the uttermoſt of my power, to this Kingdom, if my Country-men continue in their Obſtinacy: And here I ſet it under my hand, That I will (by God's Grace) make it good. It is true, knowing my own inability, I neither deſired, nor indeed willingly did accept the Conduct of an Army againſt this Nation; but my backwardneſs proceeded not out of a deſire not to be imploied againſt ſuch in this Country as were diſobedient, but that his Majeſty might have found many more able to have ſerved him; but ſince he hath bin pleaſed to truſt me, I will not deceive him.

You paſs by many Particulars in your Anſwer to my Letter untouched, ſaying, You cannot ſtand here to anſwer them. It is moſt true, they are not to be anſwered, and ſo I take it.

As for your own Juſtification, it is the ſame which you have ever uſed, and ſo continue; but the beſt is, none that were ever truly informed formed of your Proceedings, doth or can give any approbation of them.

You ſay, If I go any further in a violent Courſe, it will be paſt all hope of Remedy. If I do, none can blame my Maſter: for that can never be called Violence, which is only to ſuppreſs Rebellion: and if I proceed to execute his Commands therein, you are the Cauſers of it. As Mr. Borthwick told me, I expected to have heard further from you before now; but nothing coming, I would forbear no longer to give you this Anſwer under my hand, that both you and all the World may take notice what my Inclinations are: Which notwithſtanding I do infinitely deſire they may be ſtopt, by your ſpeedy and real ſubmiſſion to his Majeſty's juſt Commands. And this is the Prayer of him, that wiſheth it may be ſtill lawful for him to call himſelf

From on board the Your Lordſhip's humble Servant,
Rainbow, May 17.
1639. HAMILTON,

The Lord Lindſey comes on board to the Marqueſs.

A little after the Lord Lindſey, Brother-in-Law to the Marqueſs, came a-board the Marqueſs, who told him, They would ſooner lay down their Lives, than depart from what they had done; and that their Army conſiſted of 25000 Men. After ſome Diſcourſe, Devic and ſeveral Perſons of Quality being preſent all the while, the Marqueſs diſmiſſed him.

And hereupon the Marqueſs informed the King, That beſide 25000 Men which were marching upon the Borders, there were 20000 Men on both ſides of the Frith to give ſtop to his landing; and withal adviſed the King, That the three Regiments which he had, conſiſting of 5000 Men, were not ſufficient to ſecure his landing, and to march into the Country; and ſo prayed to have ſome Regiments ſent him from the Army.

Having given a brief account of the Forces at Sea, we return again to the Army at Land, and the Proceedings at the Camp.

On Sunday, June 2. there was great reſort to Court at the King's Pavilian in the Camp, of the Nobility, Gentry, and Commanders of the Army; a Council of War was then called, to whom information was given, That the Scots were in their Quarters at Kelſey, being about 1500 Men, and about ſix miles diſtance.

The Earl of Holland with 2000 Horſe again enters Scotland.

The Debate produced a Reſolution of Action; and the next day, being Monday, June 3. the Earl of Holland, with 2000 Horſe and 2000 Foot, marched again into Scotland over the River Tweed near Twiſle, (a Town belonging to Sir William Selby) to fall upon the Scots who were at Kelſey. That day proved ſultrey hot, the like not known in the memory of Man, the Foot (though ſomewhat refreſhed by wading through the River Tweed) were not able to reach the Horſe, already advanced within ſight of the Enemy, being in the Rear two or three miles. The Scots ſent a Trumpeter to know who they were that came in that War-like poſture into their Nation; and a Body of Horſe came forward at a diſtance after the Trumpeter; their Foot alſo, who had bin covered by Hedges, and ſome little Hills, appeared unexpectedly on both ſides of the Engliſh Horſe, being about 4000, who came the night before into Kelſey. Whereupon the General of the Horſe conſulting with Sir Jacob Aſhley, Lord Goring, &c. and divers other of his Officers, adviſed him to Retreat, holding it not wiſdom to engage with Horſe alone, againſt Horſe and Foot, in a place of ſo much diſadvantage to the Engliſh Horſe; and ſo the General of the Horſe returned to the Camp. But theſe unſucceſsful Attempts at Dunce and Kelſey, gave great diſcouragement to the King's Army; and the voice of the private Souldiers was, Now let us all march and be in Action, rather than to lie in the Fields, want Proviſions, and contract Diſeaſes.

Now for a more particular Account of this Buſineſs at Kelſey, caſt your Eye on this following Letter, written at that time by Sir Henry Vane to Marqueſs Hamilton, dated the 4*th* of June.

Sir Hen. Vanes Letter to Marqueſs Hamilton concerning the march to Kelſey.

My Lord,

BY the Diſpatch Sir James Hamilton brought your Lordſhip from his Majeſty's Sacred Pen, you were left at your liberty to commit any Act of Hoſtility upon the Rebels, when your Lordſhip ſhould find it moſt opportune. Since which my Lord Holland with 1000 Horſe and 3000 Foot marched towards Kelſey, himſelf advanced towards them with the Horſe (leaving the Foot three miles behind) to a place called Maxwell-heugh, a height above Kelſey; which when the Rebels diſcovered, they inſtantly marched out with 150 Horſe, and (as my Lord Holland ſays) eight or ten thouſand Foot; five or ſix thouſand there might have bin. He thereupon ſent a Trumpet, commanding them to Retreat, according to what they had promiſed by the Proclamation. They asked whoſe Trumpet he was? He ſaid, My Lord Holland*'s. Their Anſwer was, He were beſt to be gone. And ſo my Lord* Holland made his Retreat, and waited on his Majeſty this night to give him this Account.

This morning Advertiſement is brought his Majeſty, That Leſley with 12000 Men is at Corkburn-ſpath, that 5000 Men will be this night or to morrow at Dunce, 6000 at Kelſey; *ſo his Majeſty's Opinion is, with many of his Council, to keep himſelf upon a Defenſive, and make himſelf here as faſt as he can; for his Majeſty doth now clearly ſee, and is fully ſatisfied in his own Judgment, that what paſſed in the  Gallery, betwixt his Majeſty, your Lordſhip, and my Self, hath bin but too much verified on this occaſion. And therefore his Majeſty would not have you to begin with them, but to ſettle things with you in a ſafe and good poſture, and your ſelf to come hither in Perſon, to conſult what Counſels are fit to be taken, as the Affairs now hold. And ſo wiſhing your Lordſhip a ſpeedy Paſſage, I Reſt,

* That the Nobility & Gentry of England would never incline to invade Scotland, and thereby begin an Offenſive War.

From the Camp at Huntley-field, this
4*th* of Jun. 1639.

Your Lordſhip's
moſt humble Servant,
and faithful Friend,

H. VANE.

To which his Majeſty added this following Poſtſcript with his own Hand.

Having no time to write my Self ſo much, I was forced to uſe his Pen; therefore I ſhall only ſay, That which is here written, I have directed, ſeen, and approved.

C. R.

It is to be obſerved, That before the Lord General of the Horſe marched to Dunce in Scotland, the Scots had engaged themſelves unto the King, that they would not march with their Army within ten miles of the Borders of England, they ſuppoſing that his Majeſty did not intend to enter into Scotland with his Army; but upon the ſaid march of the Earl of Holland to Dunce, General Leſley thought himſelf obliged to march nearer the Borders of England, and thereupon advanced with five or ſix thouſand Men to Kelſey, which the General of the Horſe found there, when he entred the ſecond time into Scotland.

Wedneſday, June 4. The King commanded all the Nobles, Gentry, and Retinue of his own Perſon, to appear in Arms, who were countenanced with his Majeſty's Preſence; this was a gallant ſhow. They were no ſooner diſmounted, and had ſent their Horſes to their ſeveral Quarters, but the Camp received an Allarm, that the Enemy was upon them; which Allarm cauſed a confuſed riding and hurrying up and down the Camp, and ſeemed to ſtrike an Amazement into thoſe Spirits, otherwiſe undaunted at other times, it coming ſo ſudden and unexpected. The Party that brought the Alarm was Sir John Biron, who went immediately into the Pavilion, ſhewed his Majeſty the Enemy marching, and the Colours flying as he apprehended; but the King came out of his Pavilion, and took his Proſpective Glaſs, and went near the River ſide, and diſcerned the whole Body of the Scots Army on this ſide Dunce-hill; many of the Nobility and Gentry being about the King, ſaid, They could diſcern the Colours to advance; to which the King replied, (with a Court Oath) They were miſtaken, for they had already pitched their Tents, and their Colours were all fixed upon the Ground, and that the Army ſeemed to be encamped. Have not I (ſaid the King) good Intelligence, that the Rebels can march with their Army, and encamp within ſight of mine, and I not have a word of it till the Body of their Army give the Alarm? Preſently hereupon the Lord General the Earl of Arundel, was ſent for to the King; The Scout-Maſter was much exclaimed againſt, and he complained as much of the Souldiers who were ſent out as Scouts, and gave him no timely intelligence. But in the Opinion of the Court and Commanders, the Scout-Maſter General bore the blame; and his Crime was aggravated, becauſe he was a Papiſt.

The Scotiſh Army in ſight of the King before he had notice.

The Scout-maſter queſtioned.

The Lord General made this Reply to thoſe Nobles that accuſed the Scout-Maſter, That he made choice of him, (by Name Roger Widdrington Eſq;) as the fitteſt Man in England for the Office of Scout-Maſter, being born in that County of Northumberland, and one beſt acquainted with all the Highland-men upon the Borders of Scotland, and

An. 1639. and who was beſt able, of any Man he knew in England, to gain Intelligence from thence; and that it was notoriouſly known, he was a Gentleman that ever bore a perfect hatred to the Scots, and was a ſtout active Man upon Border-Service in the time of Queen Elizabeth; that he was a Perſon of Quality, and he doubted not of his Integrity, and that he would juſtify himſelf.

In concluſion, this Buſineſs was huſht up, but great was the murmuring of the Private Souldiers in the Camp; and now the Army that was ſo forward to engage before, ſeemed more indifferent, complaining of ill-Proviſions, that the Bisket was mouldy, that they could get no drink to the Camp; only Sir William Savil had carefully provided for his Regiment more than the whole Camp beſides; no ſupply was there to be got out of Scotland, but a few Lambs were brought and ſold in the Army, and Northumberland was not able to victual the tenth part of the Army; and the Gariſon of Barwick was ſo numerous, that they could not Bake and Brew to ſupply themſelves alone.

While the Army was in this Conſternation of Mind, on Thurſday, June the 6th, there was again great reſort to the Court at the King's Pavillion, to underſtand what the Council of War, then met, would reſolve upon; and while they were in debate what Reſolutions to take, in came a Trumpeter with the Earl of Dunfermling, who brought a Petition to the King's Majeſty in theſe words;

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty,

The humble Petition of his Majeſty's Subjects of Scotland.

Humbly ſheweth,

'That whereas the former means uſed by us have not yet bin effectual for receiving your Majeſty's Favour, and the Peace of 'this your Native Kingdom, We fall down again at your Majeſty's 'Feet, moſt humbly ſupplicating, That your Majeſty would be graciouſly pleaſed to appoint ſome few of the many worthy Men of 'your Majeſty's Kingdom of England, who are well-affected to the 'True Religion, and our Common Peace, to hear, by ſome of us, 'of the ſame Affection, our humble Deſires, and to make known unto us your Majeſty's gracious Pleaſure; That as by the Providence 'of God we are here joined in one Iſland, under one King; ſo by 'your Majeſty's great Wiſdom and tender Care, all Miſtakings may be 'ſpeedily removed, and the two Kingdoms may be kept in Peace and 'happineſs under your Majeſty's long and proſperous Reign. For the 'which we ſhall never ceaſe to pray, as becometh your Majeſty's moſt 'Faithful Subjects.

Unto which Petition, his Majeſty commanded Mr. Secretary Cook to ſubſcribe the Anſwer following.

The King's Majeſty having read and conſidered the humble Supplication preſented unto him by the Earl of Dunfermling, commanded Sir Edmond Verney, Knight-Marſhal, to return with the Meſſenger this Anſwer.

That whereas his Majeſty hath publiſhed a Gracious Proclamation to all his Subjects of Scotland, whereby he hath given them full aſſurance of the free enjoying both of the Religion and Laws of that Kingdom; as likewiſe a free Pardon, upon their humble and dutiful Obedience. Which Proclamation hath bin hitherto hindred to be publiſhed to moſt of his Majeſty's Subjects; therefore his Majeſty requireth, for the full information and ſatisfaction of them, that the ſaid Proclamation be publickly read. That being done, his Majeſty will be graciouſly pleaſed to hear any humble Supplication of his Subjects.

Signed, John Cooke.

According to which Anſwer, Sir Edmond Verney, Knight-Marſhal, was ſent with the foreſaid Earl to the Scotiſh Camp, there to ſee his Majeſty's ſaid Proclamation proclaimed.

June the 7th, being Friday, the Earl of Dunfermling, with the Knight-Marſhal, returned to his Majeſty, being then in his Camp at the Birks, with notice, That the foreſaid Proclamation had bin proclaimed in the Scotiſh Army; and brought with him a Petition of the ſame Tenour with the former, humbly beſeeching his Majeſty to vouchſafe them a Gracious Anſwer.

June the 8th, being Saturday, his Majeſty cauſed Mr. Secretary Cooke to anſwer the Petition in manner following, viz.

His Majeſty having underſtood of the Obedience of the Petitioners in reading his Proclamation, as was commanded them, is graciouſly pleaſed ſo far to condeſcend unto their Petition, as to admit ſome of them to repair to his Majeſty's Camp upon Monday next, at eight of the Clock in the Morning, at the Lord-General's Tent; where they ſhall find ſix Perſons of Honour and Truſt appointed by his Majeſty to hear their humble Deſires.

The ſix perſons deſigned to meet with the ſaid Scotiſh Deputies, were, The Lord General, the Earl of Eſſex Lieutenant-General, the Earl of Holland General of the Horſe, the Earls of Salisbury and Berkſhire, and Mr. Secretary Cooke.

June the 9th, being Sunday, the foreſaid Earl of Dunfermling returned to his Majeſty from the Lords Covenanters, humbly intreating, in their Names, That his Majeſty would be pleaſed to ſign the Anſwer to their Petition with his own Hand; for that although themſelves did not miſtruſt his Majeſty's Word ſignified by the Secretary, yet the People and Army would not ſuffer their Deputies to come without his Majeſty's own Hand and Warrant: whereupon his Majeſty ſigned the like Anſwer himſelf, adding a ſeventh Perſon to the ſix formerly named, which was Sir Henry Vane, Treaſurer of the Houſhold. With which Anſwer the ſaid Earl of Dunfermling returned to the Scotiſh Camp.

June the 10*th*, being Monday, the Scotiſh Deputies ſent unto his Majeſty, humbly praying that their Attendance might be reſpited until the next day.

June 11. Tueſday, About ten of the Clock the Earl of Rothes, the Earl of Dunfermling, the Lord Lowdon, and Sir William Douglaſs Sheriff of Tividale, Deputies for the Scotiſh Covenanters, came from their Camp near Dunce, to the Lord General's Tent; where the ſaid Lord General, the Earls of Eſſex, Salisbury, Holland, and Berkſhire, Mr. Treaſurer Vane, and Mr. Secretary Cooke, received them. And being ready to begin their Conference, his Majeſty came unexpectedly in among them; and having taken his Seat, told the Scotiſh Deputies, That he was informed that they complained they could not be heard; and therefore he was now come himſelf to hear what they would ſay. Whereunto the Earl of Rothes made anſwer, The tenour whereof was, A profeſſion of all Loyalty to his Majeſty, and an humble deſire that they might be ſecured in their Religion and Liberties. And after him the Lord Lowdon began to make an Apology in excuſe of their former Actions, and manner of Proceedings. But his Majeſty took him ſhort, and told them, That he would not admit of any their Excuſes for what was paſt; but if they came to ſue for Grace, they ſhould ſet down their Deſires particularly in writing, and in writing they ſhould receive his Anſwer. Whereupon (after ſome Conference among themſelves) they copied out of a Paper which they had brought with them, their Deſires, which they exhibited to his Majeſty in hæc verba.

The humble Deſires of his Majeſty's Subjects of Scotland.

‘First, It is our humble deſire, That his Majeſty would be pleaſed to aſſure us, that the Acts of the late Aſſembly holden at Glaſgow by his Majeſty's Indiction, ſhall be ratified in the enſuing Parliament to be holden at Edinburgh, July 23. ſince the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom cannot endure further Prorogation.

‘Secondly, That his Majeſty, out of his tender Care of the preſervation of our Religion and Laws, will be graciouſly pleaſed to declare, and aſſure, That it is his Royal Will, that all Matters Eccleſiaſtical be determined by the Aſſemblies of the Kirk, and Matters Civil by Parliament. Which for his Majeſty's Honour, and keeping Peace and Order amongſt his Subjects, in the time of his Majeſty's perſonal Abſence, would be holden at ſet times, once in two or three years.

‘Thirdly, That a bleſſed Pacification may be ſpeedily brought about, and his Majeſty's Subjects may be ſecured; Our humble Deſire is, That his Majeſty's Ships and Forces by Land be recalled; That all Perſons, Ships, and Goods Arreſted, be reſtored, and we made ſafe from Invaſion. And that all Excommunicate Perſons, Incendiaries, and Informers againſt the Kingdom, who have out of malice cauſed theſe Commotions for their own private Ends, may be 'returned to ſuffer their deſerved Cenſure and Puniſhment, and ſome 'other Points, as may beſt conduce to this happy Pacification.

'As theſe are our humble Deſires, ſo it is our Grief that his Majeſty 'ſhould have bin provoked to Wrath againſt us his moſt humble and 'loving Subjects. And it ſhall be our delight, upon his Majeſty's 'gracious aſſurance of the Preſervation of our Religion and Laws, to 'give example to others of all Civil and Temporal Obedience which 'can be required or expected of Loyal Subjects.

After the reading whereof, his Majeſty told them, That for the better clearing of Particulars, he expected from them the Grounds and Reaſons of their Deſires.

They replyed, They could not ſuddenly ſet them down, nor without the Advice of the reſt of their Fellows.

Whereunto his Majeſty made Anſwer, That he would not ſurpriſe them, and therefore gave them time until Thurſday next to come prepared with their Grounds in writing.

The Lord Lowdon ſaid, Their Deſires were only to enjoy their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of the Kingdom; and in clearing Particulars, they would not inſiſt upon any that were not ſuch.

This his Majeſty wiſhed him to ſet down under his Hand in writing, which he did as followeth.

Memorandum, That our Deſires are only the enjoying of our Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of his Majeſty's Kingdom.

To clear by ſufficient Grounds that the Particulars are ſuch, we ſhall not inſiſt to crave any Point which is not ſo warranted. And we humbly offer all Civil and Temporal Obedience to your Majeſty, which can be required or expected of Loyal Subjects.

Signed, LOWDON.

After the reading of which Paper, his Majeſty roſe up and departed.

The Scotiſh Deputies, together with the Engliſh Lords, were invited by the Lord General to Dinner in his Tent; and about two of the Clock thoſe of Scotland departed towards their Camp.

June 13. Thurſday, The aforeſaid Scotiſh Deputies, bringing with them Mr. Alexander Henderſon Miniſter of Edinburgh, and Mr. Archibald Johnſton Regiſter of the late Aſſembly at Glaſgow, came to the Lord General's Tent about ten of the Clock; where they met with the aforeſaid Engliſh Commiſſioners, and preſently after his Majeſty arrived; Marqueſs Hamilton was likewiſe preſent, being lately come by Sea to Berwick, from the King's Fleet in the Frith.

In the firſt place his Majeſty cauſed an Anſwer to be read to the Paper which the Lord Lowdon had ſigned at the laſt Meeting, and to be delivered to the Scotiſh Deputies, being as followeth.

An. 1639.

That whereas his Majeſty, the 11th of June, received a ſhort Paper of the General Grounds and Limits of their humble Deſires; his Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to make this Anſwer.

That if their deſires be only the enjoying of their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of his Majeſty's Kingdom of Scotland, his Majeſty doth not only agree to the ſame, but ſhall always protect them to the uttermoſt of his Power: And if they ſhall not inſiſt upon any thing but that is ſo warranted, his Majeſty will moſt willingly and readily condeſcend thereunto; ſo that in the mean time they pay unto him that Civil and Temporal Obedience which can be juſtly required and expected of Loial Subjects.

At his Majeſty's Camp, the 13th of June, 1639.

After the receipt whereof, the ſaid Scotiſh Deputies exhibited to his Majeſty a Paper, containing the Reaſons and Grounds of their Deſires, in hæc verba.

Reaſons and Grounds of our humble Deſires, delivered the 13*th of* June.

‘We did firſt humbly deſire a Ratification of the Acts of the late Aſſembly in the enſuing Parliament.

‘First, Becauſe the Civil Power is Keeper of both Tables; and where the Kirk and Kingdom are one Body, conſiſting of the ſame Members, there can be no firm Peace, nor ſtability of Order, except the Miniſters of the Kirk in their Conſultations may preſs the Obedience of the Civil Laws and Magiſtrate, and the Civil Power add their Sanction and Authority to the Conſtitutions of the Kirk.

‘Secondly, Becauſe the late General Aſſembly Indicted by his Majeſty, was lawfully conſtituted in all the Members, according to the Inſtitution and Order preſcribed by Acts of former Aſſemblies.

‘Thirdly, Becauſe no Particular is enacted in the late Aſſembly, which is not grounded upon the Acts of preceding Aſſemblies; and is either expreſly contained in them, or by neceſſary Conſequence may be deducted from them.

‘That the Parliament be kept without Prorogation, his Majeſty knows how neceſſary it is, ſince the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom calls for it without further delay.

‘We did ſecondly deſire, That his Majeſty would be pleaſed to declare and aſſure, That it is his Royal Will that all Matters Eccleſiaſtical be determined by the Aſſemblies of the Kirk, and Matters Civil by the Parliament, and other Inferior Judicatories eſtabliſhed by Law; becauſe we know no other way of the preſervation of our Religion and Laws.

‘And becauſe Matters ſo different in their Nature, ought to be treated reſpectively in their own proper Judicatories, it was alſo deſired, That Parliaments might be holden at ſet Times, as once in two or three Years, by reaſon of his Majeſty's perſonal Abſence, 'which hindereth his Subjects in their Complaints and Grievances, to have immediate acceſs unto his Majeſty's Preſence.

'And whereas his Majeſty requires us to limit our Deſires, to the enjoying of our Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws reſpective, We are heartily content to have the occaſion to declare, That We never intended it farther than the enjoying of our Religion and Liberties.

'And that all this time paſt, it was far from our Thoughts to deſire to diminiſh the Royal Authority of our Native King, and Dread Soveraign, or to make an Invaſion upon the Kingdom of England, which are the Calumnies forged and ſpread againſt us by the Malice of our Adverſaries; and for which we humbly deſire, That in his Majeſty's Juſtice they may have their own Cenſure and Puniſhment.

'Thirdly, We deſire a bleſſed Pacification, and did expreſs the moſt ready and powerful Means which we could conceive for bringing the ſame ſpeedily to paſs, leaving other Means ſerving for that End, to his Majeſty's Royal Conſideration, and great Wiſdom.

Unto which Paper, after it had bin read, his Majeſty told them, They ſhould receive an Anſwer on Saturday next; and afterward departed to his Pavillion. The ſaid Scotiſh Deputies dined with the Lord General and Engliſh Lords, and about two of the Clock returned to their Camp.

June 15. Saturday, The foreſaid Scotiſh Deputies came to the Lord General's Tent, about ten of the Clock, where they found the Engliſh Lords before-mentioned, the Lord Chamberlain being likewiſe preſent, who before was abſent by reaſon of ſickneſs. After a while his Majeſty arrived, and commanded a Declaration to be read, which he had cauſed to be framed, in anſwer to the Covenanters Deſires: Which was delivered to their Deputies, and by them conſidered of in a Room a-part among themſelves. Who after ſome time returned, and making Exceptions to certain Clauſes therein contained, the ſaid Declaration was at laſt, with ſome Alterations, agreed upon, and accepted by the ſame Deputies; only they beſought his Majeſty that they might ſhew the ſame to their Fellows, and on Monday next they would return with their Anſwer; unto which his Majeſty aſſented, and departed. The Deputies as before, dined with the Lord General, and after Dinner went back to their Camp.

June 17. Monday, The ſaid Deputies returned, and in the Name of all thoſe of the Covenanters, gave his Majeſty moſt humble thanks for the Gracious Anſwer he had vouchſafed them to their Petition in the ſaid Declaration: Which after ſome few words altered, was fully agreed upon by all Parties, together with certain Articles. The tenor of both which Declaration and Articles hereafter follow.

His Majeſty's Declaration.

WE having conſidered the Papers, and humble Petitions preſented unto Us by thoſe of Our Subjects of Scotland, who were admitted to attend our Pleaſure in the Camp; And after a full hearing by our Self of all that they could ſay or alleage thereupon, having communicated the ſame to our Council of both Kingdoms, upon mature deliberation, with their unanimous Advice, We have thought fit to give this juſt and gracious Anſwer.

That though We cannot condeſcend to ratify and approve the Acts of the pretended General Aſſembly at Glaſgow, for many grave and weighty Conſiderations which have happened before and ſince, much importing the Honour and Security of that true Monarchical Government lineally deſcended upon Us from ſo many of our Anceſtors: Yet ſuch is Our gracious Pleaſure, That notwithſtanding the many Diſorders committed of late, We are pleaſed not only to confirm and make good whatſoever our Commiſſioner hath granted and promiſed in our Name, but alſo We are further graciouſly pleaſed to declare and aſſure, that according to the Petitioners humble Deſires, all Matters Eccleſiaſtical ſhall be determined by the Aſſembly of the Kirk, and Matters Civil by the Parliament, and other inferior Judicatories eſtabliſhed by Law. Which Aſſemblies accordingly ſhall be kept once a Year, or as ſhall be agreed upon at the General Aſſembly.

And for ſetling the general Diſtractions of that our Ancient Kingdom, our Will and Pleaſure is, That a Free General Aſſembly be kept at Edinburgh, the ſixth day of Auguſt next enſuing, where We intend (God willing) to be perſonally preſent. And for the legal Indiction whereof, We have given Order and Command to our Council; and thereafter a Parliament to be held at Edinburgh the twentieth day of Auguſt next enſuing, for ratifying of what ſhall be concluded in the ſaid Aſſembly, and ſetling ſuch other things as may conduce to the Peace and Good of our Native Kingdom; and therein an Act of Oblivion to be paſſed.

And whereas We are further deſired, that our Ships and Forces by Land be recalled, and all Perſons, Goods, and Ships reſtored, and they made ſafe from Invaſion, We are graciouſly pleaſed to declare, That upon their diſarming and diſbanding of their Forces, diſſolving and diſcharging all their pretended Tables and Conventicles, and reſtoring unto Us all our Caſtles, Forts, and Ammunition of all ſorts; as likewiſe our Royal Honours, and to every one of Our good Subjects, their Liberties, Lands, Houſes, Goods, and Means whatſoever, taken and detained from them ſince the late pretended General Aſſembly, We will preſently thereafter recall our Fleet, and retire our Land-Forces, and cauſe reſtitution to be made to all Perſons of their Ships and Goods, detained and arreſted ſince the aforeſaid time. Whereby it may appear, that our intention of taking up of Arms, was no ways for invading of our Native Kingdom, or to innovate the Religion and Laws, but meerly for the maintaining and vindicating of our Royal Authority. And ſince that hereby it doth clearly appear, that We neither have nor do intend any alteration of Religion or Laws,but that both ſhall be maintained by Us in their full Integrity, We expect the performance of that humble and dutiful Obedience which becometh Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, as in their ſeveral Petitions they have often profeſſed. And as We have juſt reaſon to believe, that to Our peaceable and well-affected Subjects this will be ſatisfactory, ſo We take God and the World to Witneſs, That whatſoever Calamities ſhall enſue by our neceſſitated ſuppreſſing of the Inſolencies of ſuch as ſhall continue in their diſobedient Courſes, is not occaſioned by Us, but by their own procurement.

Articles agreed upon.

I.

The Forces of Scotland to be Disbanded and Diſſolved within eight and forty hours after the publication of his Majeſty's Declaration, being agreed upon.

II.

His Majeſty's Caſtles, Forts, Ammunitions of all ſorts, and Royal Honours to to be delivered after the ſaid publication, ſo ſoon as his Majeſty can ſend to receive them.

III.

His Majeſty's Ships to depart preſently after the delivery of the Caſtles, with the firſt fair Wind, and in the mean time no interruption of Trade or Fiſhing.

IV.

His Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to cauſe to be reſtored, all Perſons, Goods, and Ships, detained and arreſted ſince the firſt day of November laſt paſt.

V.

There ſhall be no Meetings, Treatings, Conſultations, or Convocations of his Majeſty's Lieges, but ſuch as are warranted by Act of Parliament.

VI.

All Fortifications to deſiſt, and no further working therein, and they to be remitted to his Majeſty's Pleaſure.

VII.

To reſtore to every one of his Majeſty's good Subjects their Liberties, Lands, Houſes, Goods, and Means whatſoever, taken or detained from them by whatſoever means ſince the aforeſaid time.

June 18. Tueſday, The ſaid Scotiſh Deputies in the morning came to his Majeſty's Pavilion, and there his Majeſty ſigned the foreſaid Declaration; and two ſeveral Copies were made of the above-mentioned Articles, whereof one Copy was ſigned by Mr. Secretary Cook, the Earl of Sterling Secretary of Scotland, the Earl of Rothes, the Earl of Dunfermling, the Lord Lowdon, Sir William Douglaſs, Alexander Henderſon, with Archibald Johnſton, which Mr. Secretary Cook retained. The other ſigned by Mr. Secretary Cook, and the Earl of Sterling, was delivered to the Scotiſh Deputies.

And

An. 1639.

And further the ſaid Deputies ſigned another Paper of Submiſſion to his Majeſty, being as followeth.

In the Camp, the 18*th of* June, 1639.

'IN Obedience to his Majeſty's Royal Commands, We ſhall, upon 'Thurſday next the 20*th* of this June, diſmiſs our Forces, and im'mediately thereafter deliver his Majeſty's Caſtles, &c. And ſhall 'ever in all things carry our ſelves like Humble, Loyal, and Obe'dient Subjects.

Subſcribed,

Dunfermling.	Douglas.
Alex. Henderſon.	A. Johnſton.

The ſaid Deputies did further promiſe and undertake, That his Majeſty's foreſaid Declaration ſhould be read and publiſhed in their Army; which was accordingly done by Lyon King of Arms of Scotland, on Thurſday the 20*th*, in the preſence of the Earl of Morton, Sir Edmond Verney, Sir John Burroughs, (his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, ſent thither to ſee the ſame performed) and that day the Scotiſh Army diſbanded.

June 22. Saturday, His Majeſty came from his Camp at the Birks to Berwick.

June 24. Monday, His Majeſty's Army was diſmiſſed and diſſolved.

The Earl of Holland, General of the Horſe, after he returned from his firſt Expedition into Scotland, complained to his Majeſty of the Earl of Newcaſtle's taking off his Colours from his Staff in that March; the King being alſo by another Noble Perſon made acquainted with the reaſon of his ſo doing, becauſe the Prince his Colours were put in the Rear: The King commended the Earl of Newcaſtle's prudence in ſo doing, and did not attribute it to any unwillingneſs or neglect in that Earl of his Majeſty's Service upon that Occaſion: And his Majeſty commanded, That for time to come, that Troop of the Earl of Newcaſtle's ſhould be commanded by none but himſelf whilſt they remained upon Duty.

Afterwards, when a Peace was concluded, and the Army diſbanded, the Earl of Newcaſtle thought fit to require an Account of the Earl of Holland for the ſaid Affront which he had put upon him; and ſent a Challenge to him, and Time and Place where to meet was appointed: The Earl of Newcaſtle made choice of Francis Palmes for his Second, a Man of known Courage and Mettle. The Earl of Newcaſtle appeared at the Time and Place, with his Second; but the General of the Horſe his Second came all alone: by which the Earl of Newcaſtle preſently concluded, that the Deſign had bin diſcovered to the King; who commanded them both to be confined, and afterwards made a Peace between them.

The Lord Deputy hearing a Peace was concluded at the Camp at Berwick, propoſed ſeveral Things to his Majeſty's Conſideration in this following Letter.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

July 3. The Lord Deputy writes to the King at the Camp at Berwick.

Upon the return of Sir Henry Bruce from the Earl of Antrim, we found the Judgment he gave of that Action, no way differing, indeed totally confirming our Opinion therein; yet we held it fit to ſtay him here, expecting the return of my Servant, and what your Majeſty might be pleaſed thereby to direct in that Particular: But ſo long had croſs Winds detained that Meſſenger at White-haven, as with him alſo came a later Diſpatch, wherein were the News of the Accommodation with thoſe of the Covenant; which at preſent ſets a Period both to the Deſigns of that Lord, and all others of that kind.

And conſidering Sir Henry will be pleaſed to deliver this Letter, my Diſcourſe needs to be the leſs, being a Gentleman able to repreſent unto your Majeſty the outward ſtate of theſe Affairs, which, God be praiſed, move ſtill upon the Grounds of Quietneſs towards the Publick, of perfect Obedience toward your Majeſty, and certainly ſo would have continued, amidſt thoſe late threatned Troubles and Diſtractions of your other two Kingdoms.

If your Majeſty vouchſafe to ſpeak with Sir Henry Bruce, you may be fully ſatisfied in all Particulars, and in my poor Belief, it may be of uſe to your Service to hear him, being of right good Affection to your Perſon, and one whoſe Truth and Underſtanding in his own Profeſſion, are of much clearneſs and conſideration.

This Teſtimony I muſt alſo give, as well of Captain Read as of himſelf, That I found them exceeding forward to ſerve the Crown; and, in truth, I deem both of them Gentlemen worthy your Majeſty's gracious Eſteem, Imploiment, and Truſt.

Notwithſtanding this ſuddain turn, we reſolve to uſe all diligence in taking the Oath of the Scots, in ſuch ſort as was formerly preſcribed, as holding it ſtill to be of very great uſe and advantage, a little to allay, and render leſs poſitive thoſe Demands your Majeſty perchance may meet with in the next Aſſembly of the Covenanters, when they find that all are not minded as themſelves, nor dancing after their Pipe.

Likewiſe we ſhall, if not otherwiſe directed, go on to provide (againſt all Events) your Magazines here, of ten thouſand Foot, and one thouſand Horſe Arms, with all other Ammunitions proportionable thereunto.

All your gracious Directions, tending to an univerſal and laſting Peace, ſhall be on this ſide punctually purſued and fulfilled; may all Affections be rightly ſet and inclined for the accompliſhment of ſo bleſſed a Work.

Yet admit my attention to your Sacred Perſon, and proſperity of your Affairs, moſt humbly to beſeech your Majeſty, not only to keep your Garriſons of Berwick and Carliſle ſtrong, and well provided of all kind of Stores, but to perfect the Fortifications at Leith; and if poſſible, to put in a good Power there alſo, of Men approved for their Faith and Zeal to the Service of your Crown; for ſo total a defection as hath appeared in that People, is not to be truſted with your Sacred Perſon? over-early, if at all; and this the rather, for that I conceive your Deſigns, and Royal

An. 1639. Purpoſes thus ſuſtained, will have alſo an excellent furtherance and operation amongſt the Subjects in England.

I ſhould not write thus much, but that I full well know the Goodneſs, Wiſdom, and Secreſy of my Maſter, having otherways ſufficiently contracted already the ill-will of many of the Scotiſh Nation : Howbeit for which Tranſgreſſions, in good Faith I know not, the beſt is I apprehend not much, being already ſeated ſo low, as I have not far to fall. God long preſerve your Majeſty.

Your Majeſty's

moſt faithful, and moſt humble

Subject and Servant,

WENTWORTH.

His Majeſty whilſt he reſided at Berwick, took into his ſerious conſideration, the ſending of a High Commiſſioner into Scotland, both to the Aſſembly and Parliament, which were to meet, according to the Articles of Pacification, in Auguſt next. His Majeſty did much preſs Marqueſs Hamilton to go upon that Emploiment; but he did earneſtly excuſe himſelf, and begged of his Majeſty not to think further of it. Which Excuſe prevailed with the King, and thereupon his Majeſty ſent into Scotland for Traquair to come to the Court at Berwick; and about the middle of July he came accordingly; and between his Majeſty and him there were many Conſultations about his Inſtructions.

Now whilſt the King remained at Berwick, he ſent for fourteen of the principal Covenanters to come to the Court and wait upon him: And whilſt the King expected their coming, he gave Inſtructions to Marqueſs Hamilton to try what he could do to gain upon thoſe Lords when they came to the Court, and to diſcover from them the bottom of their Intentions, when the Aſſembly and Parliament did meet, eſpecially as to Biſhops, &c.

The Scots begun to be jealous that theſe fourteen Lords thus ſent for to wait upon the King (being the Principal Men of that Kingdom, engaged in Zeal for the Covenant) and of great Intereſt in their Army; that if by the Scots Enemies at Court the King ſhould be prevailed with to ſend them Priſoners to London, it might diſcompoſe all their Affairs both in the Army and Kingdom, not knowing what Incendiaries about the Court might further prevail againſt thoſe Lords; ſo the Scots only ſent three of the number whom his Majeſty deſired, viz. Montroſe, Lowdon, and Lowthian, which the King took in great indignation; that when he had declared himſelf in his Treaty at the Camp to adventure his Perſon with them at the Aſſembly appointed to meet at Edinburgh in Auguſt following; and that they the Scots ſhould not adventure thoſe Lords to come to him whom he had ſent for, put the King upon a Reſolution not to go to their Aſſembly.

The three Lords before-mentioned, after they came to Court, and after Diſcourſe with them by Marqueſs Hamilton, were much moliſied, but Montroſe was only perfectly gained to the King.

The Draught of Traquair's Inſtructions were finiſhed on the 27th of July at Berwick, and ſigned by the King, in order to paſs the great Seal; but he did not receive the ſame under Seal till afterwards. For on the 28*th* of July the King took Poſt at Berwick, and having (rid 260 miles in four days) arrived at Theobalds and London on the firſt of Auguſt.

Traquair's Inſtructions paſſed the Seal on the 6th of Auguſt, and he was immediately diſpatched Poſt into Scotland, to be at the Meeting of the Aſſembly at Edinburgh. The Inſtructions were to the effect following.

Inſtructions for the Earl of Traquair, Lord High-Commiſſioner for Scotland.

C. R.

AT the firſt meeting of the Aſſembly, before it be brought in diſpute who ſhall preſide, you ſhall appoint him who was Moderator in the laſt Aſſembly, to preſide in this till a new Moderator be choſen.

We allow that Lay-Elders ſhall be admitted Members of this Aſſembly; but in caſe of the Election of Commiſſioners for Presbyteries, the Lay-Elders have had Voice, you ſhall declare againſt the informality thereof; as alſo againſt Lay-Elders having Voice in Fundamental Points of Religion.

At the firſt opening of the Aſſembly, you ſhall ſtrive to make the Aſſembly ſenſible of our Goodneſs, that notwithſtanding all that is paſt, whereby We might have bin juſtly moved not to hearken to their Petitions, yet We have bin graciouſly pleaſed to grant a free General Aſſembly; and for great and weighty Conſiderations, have commanded the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops not to appear at this Aſſembly.

You ſhall not make uſe of the Aſſeſſors in publick, except you find you ſhall be able to carry their having Vote in the Aſſembly.

You ſhall labour to your utmoſt, that there be no Queſtion made about the laſt Aſſembly; and in caſe it come to the worſt, whatever ſhall be done in Ratification, or with relation to the former Aſſembly, Our Will is that you declare the ſame to be done as an Act of this Aſſembly, and that you conſent thereto only upon theſe terms, and no ways as having any relation to the former Aſſembly.

You ſhall by all means ſhun the Diſpute about Our Power in Aſſemblies; and if it ſhall be urged, or offered to be diſputed, whether We have the Negative Voice, or the ſole Power of Indicting, and conſequently of Diſſolving, except you ſee clearly that you can carry the ſame in Our Favour, ſtop the Diſpute; and rather than it be decided againſt Us, ſtop the courſe of the Aſſembly until We be advertiſed.

For the better facilitating of Our other Services, and the more peaceable and plauſible Progreſs in all Buſineſſes recommended to you, We allow you at any time you ſhall find moſt convenient, after the opening of the Aſſembly, to declare, That notwithſtanding Our own Inclination, or any other Conſiderations, We are contented, for Our Peoples full ſatisfaction, to remit Epiſcopacy, and the Eſtate of Biſhops to the freedom of the Aſſembly; but ſo, as no reſpect be had to the determination of the Point in the laſt Aſſembly.

But in giving way to the aboliſhing of Epiſcopacy, be careful that it be done without the appearing of any Warrant from the Biſhops; and if any offer to appear for them, you are to enquire for their Warrant, and carry the Diſpute ſo, as the concluſion ſeem not to be made in prejudice of Epiſcopacy as unlawful, but only in ſatisfaction to the People for ſetling the preſent Diſorders, and ſuch other Reaſons of State: But herein you muſt be careful that Our Intentions appear not to any.

You ſhall labour, that Miniſters depoſed by the laſt Aſſembly, or Commiſſions flowing from them, for no other cauſe but the ſubſcribing the Petition or Declinator againſt the laſt Aſſembly, be upon their ſubmiſſion to the determination of this Aſſembly, reponed in their own Places; and ſuch other Miniſters as are depoſed for no other Faults, that they be tried of new; and if that cannot be, ſtrive that Commiſſions may be directed from this Aſſembly for trying and cenſuring them, according to the nature of their Proceſs.

That immediately upon the concluſion of this Aſſembly, you Indict another at ſome convenient time, as near the expiring of the Year as you can; and if you find that Aberdeen be not a Place agreeable, let Glaſgow be the Place; and if that cannot give content, let it be elſewhere.

The General Aſſembly is not to meddle with any thing that is Civil, or which formerly hath been eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, but upon his Majeſty's ſpecial Command or Warrant.

We will not allow of any Commiſſioner from the Aſſembly, nor no ſuch Act as may give ground for the continuing of the Tables, or Conventicles.

In caſe Epiſcopacy be aboliſhed at this Aſſembly, you are to labour that We may have the Power of chuſing of ſo many Miniſters as may repreſent the fourteen Biſhops in Parliament; or if that cannot be, that fourteen others whom We ſhall preſent be agreed to, with a power to chuſe the Lords of the Articles for the Nobility for this time, until the Buſineſs be further conſidered upon.

We allow that Epiſcopacy be aboliſhed, for the Reaſons contained in the Articles, and the Covenant 1580, for ſatisfaction of our People be ſubſcribed, provided it be ſo conceived, that thereby Our Subjects be not forced to abjure Epiſcopacy as a Point of Popery, or contrary to God's Law, or the Proteſtant Religion; but if they require it to be abjured, as contrary to the Conſtitution of the Church of Scotland, you are to give way to it rather than to make a breach.

After all Aſſembly-Buſineſs is ended, and immediately before Prayers, you ſhall, in the faireſt way that you can, proteſt, That in reſpect of his Majeſty's Reſolution of not coming in Perſon, and that his Inſtructions to you were upon ſhort advertiſement, whereupon many things may have occurred, wherein you have not had his Majeſty's Pleaſure; and for ſuch other Reaſons as occaſion may furniſh, you are to proteſt, That in caſe any thing hath eſcaped you, or hath bin condeſcended upon in this preſent Aſſembly prejudicial to his Majeſty's Service, that his Majeſty may be heard for redreſs thereof in his own Time and Place.

At Berwick the 27th of July, 1639.

At this time the King writ this following Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews.

Right truſty and well-beloved Counſellor, and Reverend Father in God, We greet you well.

The King writes to the Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews.

Your Letter, and the reſt of the Biſhops (ſent by the Elect of Cathneſs) to my Lord of Canterbury, hath bin by him communicated to Us: And after ſerious conſideration of the Contents thereof, We have thought fit our Self to return this Anſwer to you for Direction, according to Our Promiſe, which you are to communicate to the reſt of your Brethren.

We do in part approve of what you have adviſed, concerning the prorogating of the Aſſembly and Parliament, and muſt acknowledg it to be grounded upon Reaſon enough, were Reaſon only to be thought on in this Buſineſs: but conſidering the preſent ſtate of Our Affairs, and what We have promiſed in the Articles of Pacification, We may not (as We conceive) whithout great prejudice to Our Self and Service condeſcend thereunto; wherefore We are reſolved (rather neceſsitated) to hold the Aſſembly and Parliament at the Time and Place appointed; and for that end We have nominated the Earl of Traquair Our Commiſſioner: to whom we have given Inſtructions, not only how to carry himſelf at the ſame, but a Charge alſo to have a ſpecial care of your Lordſhips, and thoſe of the Inferior Clergy, who have ſuffered for their Duty to God, and Obedience to Our Commands. And We do hereby aſſure you, That it ſhall be ſtill one of Our chiefeſt Studies, how to Rectify and Eſtabliſh the Government of that Church aright, and to repair your Loſſes, which We deſire you to be moſt confident of.

As for your Meeting to treat of the Affairs of the Church, We do not ſee at this Time how that can be done; for within Our Kingdom of Scotland, We cannot promiſe you any place of Safety; and in any other of Our Dominions We cannot hold it convenient, all things conſidered; wherefore We conceive that the beſt way would be for your Lordſhips to give in, by way of Proteſtation or Remonſtrance, your Exceptions againſt this Aſſembly and Parliament to Our Commiſſioner, which may be ſent by any mean Man, ſo he be truſty, and deliver it at his entring into the Church; but We would not have it to be either Read or Argued in this Meeting, where nothing but partiality is to be expected, but to be repreſented to Us by him; which We promiſe to take ſo into Conſideration, as becometh a Prince ſenſible of his own Intereſt and Honour, joined with the Equity of your Deſires; and you may reſt ſecure, that though perhaps

We may give way for the preſent to that which will be prejudicial both to the Church and Our own Government, yet We ſhall not leave thinking in time how to remedy both.

We muſt likewiſe intimate unto you, That We are ſo far from conceiving it expedient for you, or any of my Lords of the Clergy to be preſent at this Meeting, as We do abſolutely diſcharge your going thither; and for your abſence, this ſhall be to you, and every of you, a ſufficient Warrant: In the interim, your beſt courſe will be to remain in Our Kingdom of England, till ſuch time as you receive Our further Order, where We ſhall provide for your Subſiſtance; though not in that meaſure as We could wiſh, yet in ſuch a way as you ſhall not be in want.

Thus you have Our Pleaſure briefly ſignified unto you, which We doubt not but you will take in good part: You cannot but know, that what We do in this, We are neceſſitated to; ſo We bid you farewell.

Afterwards the Biſhop of St. Andrews, and other Biſhops, on the 11*th* of Auguſt, finiſhed a Declinator, and ſigned the ſame with their own hands, and ſent it to the Earl of Traquair.

The Biſhops Declinator, Auguſt 10, 11.

‘WHereas his Majeſty, out of his ſurpaſſing Goodneſs, was pleaſed to Indict another National Aſſembly for rectifying the preſent Diſorders in the Church, and repealing the Acts concluded in the late pretended Aſſembly at Glaſgow againſt all Right and Reaſon, charging and commanding Us the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops of the Church of Scotland, and others that have Place therein, to meet at Edinburgh the 12*th* of Auguſt Inſtant, in hopes that by a peaceable Treaty and Conference, Matters ſhould have bin brought to a wiſhed Peace and Unity: and that now we perceive all theſe Hopes diſappointed, the Authors of the preſent Schiſm and Diviſion proceeding in their wonted Courſes of Wrong and Violence, as hath appeared in their preſumptuous Proteſtation againſt the ſaid Indiction; and in the buſineſs they have made throughout the Country, for electing Miniſters and Laicks of their Faction to make up the ſaid Aſſembly; whereby it is evident that the ſame or worſe Effects muſt needs enſue upon the preſent Meeting, than were ſeen to follow the former. We therefore the Underſcribers, for diſcharge of our Duties to God, and to the Church committed to our Government under our Soveraign Lord the King's Majeſty, Proteſt, as in our former Declinator, as well for our Selves, as in Name of the Church of Scotland, and ſo many as ſhall adhere to this our Proteſtation, That the preſent pretended Aſſembly be holden and reputed null in Law, as conſiſting and made up partly of Laical Perſons that have no Office in the Church of God, partly of Refractory, Schiſmatical, and Perjured Miniſters, that contrary to their Oaths and Subſcriptions, from which no humane Power could abſolve them, have filthily reſiled, and ſo 'made themſelves to the preſent and future Ages moſt infamous, and 'that no Church-man be bound to appear before them, nor any Citation, Admonition, Certification, or Act whatſoever proceeding 'from the ſaid pretended Meeting, be prejudical to the Juriſdiction, 'Liberties, Privileges, Rents, Poſſeſſions, and Benefices belonging 'to the Church, nor to any Acts of former General Aſſemblies, Acts 'of Council or Parliament made in favour thereof; but to the contrary, that all ſuch Acts and Deeds, and every one of them, are and 'ſhall be reputed Unjuſt, Partial, and Illegal, with all that may follow thereupon.

'And this our Proteſtation we humbly deſire may be preſented to 'his Majeſty, whom we do humbly ſupplicate, according to the Practice of Chriſtian Emperors in Ancient Time, to Convene the Clergy 'of his whole Dominions, for remedying of the preſent Schiſm and 'Diviſion, unto whoſe Judgment and Determination we promiſe to 'ſubmit our Selves and all our Proceedings.

Given under our Hands, at Morpeth, Berwick, and Holy-Iſland, the 10th and 11th of Auguſt 1639.

About the middle of Auguſt the Aſſembly meeting at Edinburgh, the Earl of Traquair came thither as Lord High-Commiſſioner, and found the Pulſe of the Aſſembly to beat againſt the Service-Book and Book of Canons, taxing them with Popery, and the High-Commiſſion with Tyranny, and that Epiſcopacy muſt be aboliſhed; of all which the Earl of Traquair gave the King an Account. Whereupon his Majeſty writ unto him to the effect following.

CHARLES R.

Right Truſty,

The King writes to Traquair, & gives him poſitive Inſtructions how further to proceed.

We have hitherto commanded Hamilton to anſwer ſeveral of your Letters, but that of the 16th of Auguſt being of more weight than any of your former, We have thought fit to anſwer it Our Self.

And whereas you ſay, That nothing will ſatiſfy them, except in terminis, the laſt Aſſembly be Named and Ratified, or that way be given to the diſcharging of Epiſcopacy as abjured in that Church, as contrary to the Confeſſion of Faith 1580, and the Conſtitutions of the ſame, you being yet in ſome hope that the word Abjured may be got changed; and that in drawing up the words of the Act, it be only condemned as contrary to the Conſtitution of the Curch: We in this point leave you to your Inſtructions, they being full, if you conſider what We have ſaid concerning Epiſcopacy, and ſubſcribing the Confeſſion of Faith 1580, We thinking it fit to declare hereupon unto you, That let their madneſs be what it will, further than We have

An. 1639. have declared in Our Inſtructions, in theſe Points We will not go.

For the Service-Book, and Book of Canons, though We have bin and are content they be diſcharged, yet We will never give Our Voice nor aſſent that they be condemned, as containing divers Heads of Popery and Superſtition: in like manner, though We have bin, and are content that the High-Commiſſion be diſcharged, yet We will never acknowledg that it is without Law, or deſtructive to the Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Judicatories of that Our Kingdom: Nor that the Five Articles of Perth, though diſcharged with Our Approbation, be condemned, as contrary to the foreſaid Confeſſion. As concerning the late Aſſemblies, We cannot give Our Conſent to have them declared Null, ſince they were ſo notoriouſly Our Father (of happy Memory) his Acts; it ſeeming ſtrange, that We having condeſcended to the taking away of theſe things that they complained of, which were done in thoſe Aſſemblies, they will not be content therewith, without laying an Aſperſion on Our Father's Actions. Wherefore if the Aſſembly will, in diſpite of your endeavour, conclude contrary to this, you are to proteſt againſt their Proceedings in theſe Points, and be ſure not to ratify them in Parliament.

Concerning the yearly Indiction of General Aſſemblies, and the Confeſſion of Faith, We commanded Hamilton, in his of the 16th, to Anſwer that Point to this effect, That We think it infinitely to our prejudice that We ſhould conſent to tie Our Self for the keeping yearly of their Aſſemblies, not needing to repeat the Reaſons, they being well enough known to you; ſeeing at Berwick it was conceived upon debate of that Point, That your having Power to Indict a new one within the Year, would ſave that Diſpute, which you are by all means to eſchew. But if this will not give ſatisfaction, you are by no means to give your Aſſent to any ſuch Act, nor to ratify the ſame in Parliament.

The Article in your Inſtructions, which is only that the Covenant 1580 ſhall be ſubſcribed, you muſt have an eſpecial care of, and how you proceed therein; That the Bond be the ſame which was in Our Father's Time, mutatis mutandis; and that you give your aſſent no other ways to the interpretations thereof, than may ſtand with Our future Intentions well known to you; nor is the ſame otherwiſe to be Ratified in Parliament.

Thus you have Our Pleaſure fully ſignified in every particular of your Letter; which you will find no ways contrary to Our Reſolution taken at Berwick, and Our Inſtructions given to you there. But if the madneſs of Our Subjects be ſuch, that they will not reſt ſatisfied with what We have given you Power and Authority to condeſcend to, which notwithſtanding all their Inſolencies We ſhall allow you to make good to them, We take God to Witneſs, That what miſery ſoever ſhall fall to the Country hereafter, it is no Fault of Ours, but their own procurement. And hereupon We do Command you, That if you cannot compoſe this Buſineſs according to Our Inſtructions, and what We have now written, that you Prorogue the Parliament till the next Spring; and that you think upon ſome courſe how you may make publickly known to all Our Subjects, what We had given you Power to condeſcend to. And becauſe it is not improbable that this way may produce a preſent

Rupture, you are to warn and aſſiſt Ruthwen for the Defence of the Caſtle of Edinburgh; and to take in general the like care of all Our Houſes and Forts in that Kingdom; and likewiſe to advertiſe all ſuch who are affected to Our Service, that timouſly they may ſecure themſelves; and ſo We bid you heartily farewel.

The greateſt Point gained in the Aſſembly, was an Explication of a Bond of Defence, which was conceived in theſe words.

The Explication of the Bond of Defence.

WE do Swear, not only our mutual Concurrence and Aſſiſtance for the Cauſe of Religion; and to the utmoſt of our Power, with our Means and Lives, to ſtand to the Defence of our Dread Soveraign and his Authority, in the Preſervation and Defence of the ſaid True Religion, Liberties, and Laws of this Kirk and Kingdom; but alſo in every Cauſe which may concern his Majeſty's Honour, We ſhall (according to the Laws of this Kingdom, and Duty of good Subjects) concur with our Friends and Followers in quiet Manner, or in Arms, as we ſhall be required of his Majeſty's Council, or any having his Authority.

And as to Epiſcopacy, it was worded, it was unlawful in the Church of Scotland: whereupon the Covenanters preſented to the Commiſſioner and Council their Covenant, with a deſire that it might be ſigned. And it was accordingly done, but his Majeſty was no ways ſatisfied with this, as hereafter appears.

The ſaid Parliament at Edinburgh, the day appointed for their Meeting, conſented for that time that Traquair as Commiſſioner, ſhould name thoſe Lords of the Articles that were for the Nobility, who ſhould have bin named by the Biſhops, but proteſted it ſhould be no Preſident for the future; and they went on roundly to take away the Lords of the Articles totally.

October 30. The Parliament Prorogued to Novemb. 14.

But Traquair finding he could not keep cloſe to his Inſtructions, to the Letter of which he reſolved to adhere, did Prorogue the Parliament to the 14*th* of November.

The Covenanters proteſt againſt the legality of any Prorogation without conſent of Parliament. Which Proteſtation followeth in theſe words.

The Scots Proteſtation againſt the Prorogation of the Parliament, Auguſt 1639.

‘WHereas John Earl of Traquair, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, having cloſed the Aſſembly, and ſitting in Parliament with them, did now take upon him, without their Conſent, or Offence given, to Prorogate the Parliament upon a private Warrant; this being a new and unuſual way, without Preſident in this Kingdom heretofore, once being convened, have continuation by the expreſs conſent of the Eſtates. We therefore declare, That any Prorogation made by the Commiſſioner's Grace, without conſent of Parliament, ſhall be of no Force, and the Actors to be cenſured in 'Parliament. And knowing that Declarations have bin publiſhed againſt Us, and our Proceedings made odious to ſuch as do not conſider that we are not Private Subjects, but a Sitting Parliament: We therefore declare, That whatſoever we might do lawfully in ſitting ſtill, yet we have reſolved for the preſent to make Remonſtrance to his Majeſty, and ſome of each Eſtate to remain ſtill at Edinburgh to attend his Gracious Anſwer. And if it ſhall happen that our malicious Enemies do notwithſtanding prevail againſt us, We profeſs our ſelves free of the Outrages and Inſolencies that may be committed; in the mean time we do our beſt to prevent Confuſion and Miſery.

'And the Committee appointed to expect the King's Anſwer, were, the Earls of Lothian and Dalhouſe; the Lords, Teſter, Balmerino, Cranſton, and Napier; for the Barons, the Commiſſioners of the Lothians, Fiſe, and Twedale; the Burroughs named the Commiſſioners of Edinburgh, Lithgow, Sterling, Haddington, and Dunbar, to attend at Edinburgh the return of his Majeſty's Anſwer.

The Scots Deputies come to the King at Whitehall.

Their Deputies came to the King at Whitehall, the Earl of Dunfermling, and the Lord Loudon; but coming without Warrant from the King's Commiſſioner Traquair, they were in diſdain commanded home again without Audience.

The King commands Traquair to Prorogue the Parliament to the ſecond of June 1640; and commands him to come up to give to the Council an account of the moſt conſiderable Matters propoſed in that Parliament. The end of whoſe Deſign was (as the Covenanters gave out) to foment a War, and to engage the King in Perſon. But he had a cold reception, the King being highly diſpleaſed with his Subſcription of the Covenant. But he complained he could have no Aſſiſtance from them if he had not done it; and that it was impoſſible to prevail with thoſe People, except by Force, or a total Complyance.

And he to recover himſelf, was the more earneſt to preſs the King to a New Invaſion.

Traquair helps the King to the Letter directed to the French King.

He alſo furniſhed the King with a great many Grounds for juſtifying his Proceedings againſt the Covenanters; a chief one being a Letter he had got which the Covenanters had written to the French King, deſiring his Protection and Aſſiſtance; which was High Treaſon by the Law of Scotland, as being a Treaty with a Foreign Prince, without the King's Permiſſion. And upon theſe Grounds it was that the Earl of Traquair was afterwards purſued as the Grand Incendiary.

Afterwards the Covenanters ſent up their Petition to his Majeſty by one Cunningham, deſiring a permiſſion to ſend ſome of their Number for their own vindication. Which his Majeſty granting, the Earl of Loudon and Dunſermling were again ſent up.

Seſſ. 8. Aug. 17. 1639.

Mr. George Grahame his Renouncing and Abjuring of Epiſcopacy.

The which day there was given in to the Aſſembly, direct from Mr. George Graham, ſometimes pretended Biſhop of Orkney, an Abjuration of Epiſcopacy, ſubſcribed with his Hand; which was publickly read, and entred in the Aſſembly-Books, ad perpetuam rei memoriam, whereof the Tenour follows.

‘TO all and ſundry whom it effeirs, to whoſe knowledg theſe Preſents ſhall come, eſpecially to the Reverend and Honourable Members of the future Aſſembly, to be holden at Edinburgh the 12th day of *Aug.*1639. Me Mr. George Graham, ſome time pretended Biſhop of Orkney, being ſorry and grieved at my Heart, that I ſhould ever, for any worldly reſpect, have embraced the Order of Epiſcopacy, the ſame having no Warrant from the Word of God, and being ſuch an Order, as hath had ſenſibly many fearful and evil Conſequences in many parts of Chriſtendom, and particularly within the Kirk of Scotland, as by doleful and deplorable Experience this day is manifeſt, to have diſclaimed, like as I by the Tenour hereof do altogether diſclaim and abjure all Epiſcopal Power and Juriſdiction, with the whole Corruptions thereof, condemned by lawful Aſſemblies in the ſaid Kirk of Scotland; in regard the ſame is ſuch an Order as is alſo abjured within the ſaid Kirk, by virtue of that National Oath which was made in the Years 1580, and 1581, promiſing and ſwearing, by the great Name of the Lord our God, That I ſhall never whilſt I live, directly or indirectly, exerciſe any ſuch Power within the Kirk; neither yet ſhall I ever approve or allow the ſame, not ſo much as in my private or publick Diſcourſes; but on the contrary, ſhall ſtand and adhere to all the Acts and Conſtitutions of the late Aſſembly holden at Glaſgow, *Novemb.*21. 1638, and ſhall concur to the uttermoſt of my power, ſincerely and faithfully, as occaſion ſhall offer, in executing the ſaid Acts, and in advancing the Work of Reformation within this Land, to the Glory of God, the Peace of the Country, and the Comfort and Contentment of all good Chriſtians, as God ſhall be my help. In teſtimony of the which Premiſes, I have ſubſcribed theſe Preſents with my Hand at Breekneſs in Stronnes, the 11th day of February, in the Year of God 1639, before theſe Witneſſes, Mr. Walter Stuart Miniſter at Southronnaldſay, Mr. James Heynd Miniſter at Kirkwall, Mr. Robert Pierſon Miniſter at Frith, and Mr. Patrick Graham Miniſter at Holm, my Son.

Act containing the Cauſes and Remedy of the by-gone Evils of this Kirk.

'THe King's Majeſty having graciouſly declared, That it is his Royal Will and Pleaſure, that all Queſtions about Religion, and Matters Eccleſiaſtical, be determined by Aſſemblies of the Kirk; having alſo by publick Proclamation indicted this Free National Aſſembly, for ſetling the Diſtraction of this Kirk, and for eſtabliſhing a perfect Peace, againſt ſuch Diviſions and Diſorders as have bin ſore diſpleaſing to his Majeſty, and grievous to all his good Subjects.

'And now his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, John Earl of Traquair, intruſted and authorized with a full Commiſſion, being preſent, and ſitting in this Aſſembly, now fully Convened, and orderly Conſtitute in all the Members thereof, according to the Order of this Kirk, having at large declared his Majeſty's Zeal to the Reformed Religion, and his Royal Care and Tender Affection to this Kirk, where his Majeſty had both his Birth and Baptiſm, his great diſpleaſure at the manifold Diſtractions and Diviſions of this Kirk and Kingdom, and his deſires to have all our Wounds perfectly cured, with a fair and fatherly Hand. And although in the way approved by this Kirk, trial hath bin taken in former Aſſembles before, from the Kirk-Regiſters, to our full ſatisfaction; Yet the Commiſſioner's Grace making particular enquiry from the Members of the Aſſembly, now ſolemnly convened, concerning the real and true Cauſes of ſo many and great Evils as this time paſt had ſo ſore troubled the Peace of this Kirk and Kingdom, it was repreſented to his Majeſty's Commiſſioner by this Aſſembly, that beſides many other, the main and moſt material Cauſes were;

'Firſt, The preſſing of this Kirk by the Prelates with a Service-Book, or Book of Common-Prayer, without Warrant or Direction from the Kirk; and containing, beſides the Popiſh Frame thereof, divers Popiſh Errors and Ceremonies, and the Seeds of manifold groſs Superſtitions and Idolatry, with a Book of Canons, without Warrant or Direction from the General Aſſembly, eſtabliſhing a tyrannical Power over the Kirk in the Perſons of Biſhops, and overthrowing the whole Diſcipline and Government of the Kirk by Aſſemblies; with a Book of Conſecration and Ordination, without Warrant or Authority Civil or Eccleſiaſtical, appointing Offices in the Houſe of God, which are not warranted by the Word of God, and repugnant to the Diſcipline and Acts of the Kirk; and with the High-Commiſſion, erected without conſent of the Kirk, and ſubverting the Juriſdiction and ordinary Judicatories of this Kirk; and giving to Perſons meerly Eccleſiaſtical, the power of both Swords; and to Perſons meerly Civil, the power of the Keys and Kirk Cenſures.

'A ſecond Cauſe was the Articles of Perth, viz. The Obſervation of Feſtival Days, Kneeling at the Communion, Confirmation, Adminiſtration of the Sacraments in private Places, which are brought in by a null Aſſembly, and are contrary to the Confeſſions of Faith, as it ‘was meant and ſubſcribed Anno 1580, and divers times ſince, and to the Order and Conſtitutions of this Kirk.

‘Thirdly, The changing of the Government of the Kirk from the Aſſemblies of the Kirk, to the Perſons of ſome Kirk-men, uſurping Priority and Power over their Brethren, by the way and under the name of Epiſcopal Government, againſt the Confeſſion of Faith in 1580, againſt the Order ſet down in the Book of Policy, and againſt the Intention and Conſtitution of this Kirk from the beginning.

‘Fifthly, The keeping and authorizing corrupt Aſſemblies at Linlithgow 1606, and 1608; at Glaſgow, 1610; at Aberdeen, 1616; at St. Andrews, 1617; at Perth, 1618. Which are all null and unlawful, as being called and conſtitute quite contrary to the Order and Conſtitutions of this Kirk, received and practiſed ever ſince the Reformation of Religion; and withal labouring to introduce Novations into this Kirk, againſt the Order and Religion eſtabliſhed.

‘A ſixth Cauſe is the want of lawful and free General Aſſemblies, rightly conſtitute of Paſtors, Doctors, and Elders, yearly or oftner, pro re nata, according to the Liberty of this Kirk, expreſſed in the Book of Policy, and acknowledged in the Act of Parliament, 1592. After which the whole Aſſembly in one heart and voice did declare, that theſe and ſuch other, proceeding from the neglect and breach of the National Covenant of this Kirk and Kingdom made in 1580, have been indeed the true and main Cauſes of all our Evils and Diſtractions: And therefore ordain, according to the Conſtitutions of the General Aſſemblies of this Kirk, and upon the grounds reſpective above ſpecified, That the aforeſaid Service-Book, Books of Canons, and Ordination, and the High Commiſſion, be ſtill rejected: that the Articles of Perth be no more practiſed; that Epiſcopal Government, and the Civil Places and Power of Kirk-men, be holden ſtill as unlawful in this Kirk: That the above-named pretended Aſſemblies, at Linlithgow 1606 and 1608; at Glaſgow 1610; at Aberdeen 1616; at St. Andrews 1617; at Perth 1618; be hereafter accounted as null, and of none effect. And that for preſervation of Religion, and preventing all ſuch Evils in time coming, General Aſſemblies rightly conſtitute, as the proper and competent Judge of all Matters Eccleſiaſtical, hereafter be kept yearly, and oftner, pro re nata, as occaſion and neceſſity ſhall require; the neceſſity of theſe occaſional Aſſemblies being firſt remonſtrate to his Majeſty by humble Supplication: As alſo, that Kirk-Seſſions, Presbyteries, and Synodal Aſſemblies, be conſtitute and obſerved according to the Order of this Kirk.

After the voicing of the Act (anent the Cauſes of our by-gone Evils, his Majeſties Commiſſioner conſented verbally to the ſaid Act, and promiſed to give in to the Clerk in Writ, the Declaration of his Conſent, and that he ſhould ratifie this Act in the enſuing Parliament.

Act Seſſ. 21. Aug. 29. 1639.

An Act anent the keeping of the Lord's Day.

‘THE General Aſſembly recommendeth to the ſeveral Preſbyteries, the execution of the old Acts of Aſſembly againſt the breach of the Sabbath-day, by going of Milns, Salt-Panns, Salmond-fiſhing, or any ſuch like labour: And to this end revives and renews the Act of the Aſſembly holden at Halyrood-Houſe, 1602. Seſſ. 5. whereof the tenor follows.

‘The Aſſembly conſidering that the Conventions of the People, eſpecially on the Sabbath-day, are very rare in many places, by diſtraction of Labour, not only in Harveſt and Seed-time, but alſo every Sabbath, by fiſhing both of white Fiſh, and Salmon-fiſhing, and in going of Milns: Therefore the Aſſembly diſchargeth and inhibiteth all ſuch labour of Fiſhing, as well white Fiſh as Salmon-fiſh, and going of Milns of all ſorts upon the Sabbath, under the pain of incurring the Cenſures of the Kirk: And ordains the Commiſſioners of this Aſſembly to meen the ſame to his Majeſty, and to deſire that a pecunial Pain might be enjoined upon the Contraveners of this preſent Act.

‘VVE the Members of this preſent Aſſembly, for our ſelves, and in the name of the ſeveral Preſbyteries, Burghs, and Univerſities, for which we are Commiſſioners, reſenting the great diſhonour done to God, our King, this Kirk, and the whole Kingdom, by the Book called, A large Declaration, have here repreſented the ſame to your Grace, and have collected ſome amongſt many of falſe, groſs, and abſurd Paſſages, that from the conſideration thereof your Grace perceiving the intolerable Evils foreſaid contained therein, may be pleaſed to repreſent the ſame to our gracious Sovereign, and in our behalfs humbly to beſeech his Majeſty, ſo much wronged by the many foul and falſe relations ſuggeſted and perſwaded to him as Truths, and by ſtealing the protection of his Royal Name and Authority to the patrociny of ſuch a Book, to be pleaſed firſt to call in the ſaid Book, and thereby to ſhew his diſlike thereof; next to give Commiſſion and Warrant to cite all ſuch Parties, as are either known or ſuſpect to have hand in it; and to appoint ſuch as his Majeſty knows to be either Authors, Informers, or any ways acceſſary, being Natives of this Kingdom, to be ſent hither, to abide their Trial and Cenſure before the Judg Ordinary; and in ſpecial, Maſter Walter Balcanquel, now Dean of Durham, who is known, and hath profeſſed to be the Author, at leaſt a Vower and Maintainer of a great part thereof; that by their exemplar puniſhment, others may be deterred from ſuch dangerous Courſes, as in ſuch a way to raiſe Sedition betwixt the King and his Subjects, God's Honour may be ‘vindicate from ſo high Contempt; his Majeſty's Juſtice may appear, not only in cutting away ſuch Malefactors, but in diſcouraging all ſuch Underminers of his Throne; his loyal and loving Subjects ſhall be infinitely contented to be cleared before the World of ſo falſe and unjuſt Imputations, and will live hereafter in greater ſecurity, when ſo dangerous a Courſe of Sedition is prevented, and ſo will have the greater and greater cauſe to pray for his Majeſty's long and proſperous Reign.

His Majeſty's Commiſſioner in Council having received the ſaid Supplication, promiſed to impart the ſame to his Majeſty, and to report his diligence therein.

The Supplication of the Aſſembly to his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, and the Lords of ſecret Council.

‘WE the General Aſſembly, conſidering with all humble and thankful acknowledgment, the many reſent Favours beſtowed upon us by his Majeſty; and that there reſteth nothing for crowning his Majeſty's incomparable Goodneſs towards us, but that all the Members of this Kirk and Kingdom be joined in one and the ſame Confeſſion and Covenant with God, with the King's Majeſty, and amongſt our ſelves. And conceiving the main Let and Impediment to this ſo good a Work, and ſo much wiſhed by all, to have bin the Informations made to his Majeſty, of our Intentions to ſhake off civil and dutiful Obedience due to Soveraignty, and to diminiſh the King's Greatneſs and Authority: And being moſt willing and deſirous to remove this, and all ſuch Impediments which may hinder and impede ſo full and perfect an Union, and for the clearing of our Loyalty, We in our own Names, and in the Names of all the reſt of the Subjects and Congregations whom we repreſent, do now in all humility repreſent to your Grace, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and the Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, and declares before God and the World, that We never had nor have any thought of withdrawing our Selves from that humble and dutiful Obedience to his Majeſty, and to his Government; which by the deſcent, and under the Reign of 107 Kings, is moſt chearfully acknowledged by Us and our Predeceſſors; and that we never had, nor have any intention or deſire to attempt any thing that may tend to the diſhonour of God, or the diminution of the King's Greatneſs and Authority: But on the contrary, acknowledging our quietneſs, Stability, and Happineſs, to depend upon the ſafety of the King's Majeſty's Perſon, and maintenance of his Greatneſs and Royal Authority, who is God's Vicegerent ſet over us, for the maintenance of Religion, and miniſtration of Juſtice, we have ſolemnly ſworn, and do ſwear, not only our mutual Concurrence and Aſſiſtance for the Cauſe of Religion, and to the uttermoſt of our power, with our Means and Lives, to ſtand to the defence of our Dread Soveraign, his Perſon and Authority, in preſervation and defence of the true Religion, Liberties, and Laws of this Kirk and Kingdom; but alſo in every Cauſe which may concern his Majeſty's Honour, ſhall accordingly to the Laws of this Kingdom, and the Duties of ‘good Subjects, concur with our Friends and Followers, in quiet manner, or in Arms, as we ſhall be required of His Majeſty, his Council, or any having his Authority. And therefore being moſt deſirous to clear our ſelves of all Imputation of this kind, and following the laudable Example of our Predeceſſors, 1589, do moſt humbly ſupplicate your Grace, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and the Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, to enjoin by Act of Council, that the Confeſſion and Covenant, which, as a Teſtimony of our Fidelity to God, and Loyalty to our King, we have ſubſcribed, be ſubſcribed by all his Majeſty's Subjects, of what rank and quality ſoever.

The King's Majeſty's Commiſſioner's Declarations.

‘THe which day his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and Lords of Council, after the receiving of the Supplication of the General Aſſembly, anent the ſubſcribing of the Covenant, having returned to the Aſſembly, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, in Name of the Council, declared, That he had received the Supplication of the Aſſembly, deſiring that the Covenant might receive the force of an Act of Council, to be ſubſcribed by all his Majeſty's Subjects, that they had found the Deſire ſo fair and reaſonable, that they conceived themſelves bound in duty to grant the ſame, and thereupon have made an Act of Council to that effect; and that there reſted now the Act of Aſſembly. And that he himſelf was ſo fully ſatisfied, that he came now as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, to conſent fully unto it; and that he was moſt willing that it ſhould be enacted here in this Aſſembly, to oblige all his Majeſty's Subjects to ſubſcribe the ſaid Covenant, with the Aſſemblies Explanation. And becauſe there was a third Thing deſired, his Subſcription as the King's Commiſſioner, unto the Covenant, which he behoved to do, with a Declaration in writ; and he declared as a Subject, he ſhould ſubſcribe the Covenant as ſtrictly as any, with the Aſſemblies Declaration: But as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, in his Name behoved to prefix to his Subſcription, the Declaration following, which no Scots Subjects ſhould ſubſcribe, or have the benefit of, no not himſelf as Earl of Traquair; the Tenour whereof follows.

‘SEeing this Aſſembly, according to the laudable Form and Cuſtom heretofore kept in the like Caſes, have in an humble and dutiful way, ſupplicate to us his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and the Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, That the Covenant, with the Explanation of this Aſſembly, might be ſubſcribed. And to that effect, that all the Subjects of this Kingdom, by Act of Council, be required to do the ſame; and that therein, for vindicating themſelves from all ſuſpitions of Diſloyalty, or derogating from the Greatneſs and Authority of our Dread Soveraign, have therewith added a Clauſe, whereby this Covenant is declared one in ſubſtance with that which was ſubſcribed by his Majeſty's Father (of bleſſed Memory) 1580, 1581, 1590, and often ſince renewed. Therefore as his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, for the full ſatiſfaction of the Subjects, and for ſetling a perfect Peace in Church and Kingdom, do, according to my foreſaid Declaration and Subſcription,

'tion, ſubjoined to the Act of this Aſſembly, of the date the 17*th* of 'this Inſtant, allow and conſent that the Covenant be ſubſcribed 'throughout all this Kingdom. In Witneſs whereof I have ſubſcribed 'the Premiſes.

Like as his Majeſty's Commiſsioner read and gave in the Declation following, of his conſent to the Act of the Aſſembly, Auguſt 17, anent the Cauſes of our By-gone Evils.

'I John Earl of Traquair, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner in this pre-'ſent Aſſembly, do in his Majeſty's Name declare, That not-'withſtanding of his Majeſty's own Inclination, and many other 'grave and weighty Conſiderations, yet ſuch is his Majeſty's incompa-'rable Goodneſs, that for ſetling the preſent Diſtractions, and giving 'full ſatisfaction to the Subject, He doth allow, like as I his Majeſty's 'Commiſſioner do conſent to the foreſaid Act, and have ſubſcribed 'the Premiſes.

Like as his Majeſty's Commiſsioner read and gave in the Declaration following.

'IT is always hereby declared, by me his Majeſty's Commiſ-'ſioner, That the Practice of the Premiſes, prohibited within 'this Kirk and Kingdom of Scotland, ſhall never bind nor 'infer Cenſure againſt the Practices outwith the Kingdom. Which 'when the Commiſſioner deſired to be Inſert in the Regiſter 'of the Kirk, and the Moderator, in the Name of the Aſſembly, re-'fuſed to give Warrant for ſuch practice, as not agreeable with a good 'Conſcience. His Grace urged, that it ſhould be recorded at leaſt 'that he made ſuch a Declaration, whatſoever was the Aſſemblies 'Judgment in the contrary; and ſo it is to be underſtood to be inſert 'here only reſcitative.

Act ordaining the Subſcription of the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant, with the Aſſemblies Declaration.

'THe General Aſſembly conſidering the great Happineſs which may 'flow from a full and perfect Union of this Kirk and Kingdom, 'by joyning of all in one and the ſame Covenant with God, with the 'King's Majeſty, and amongſt our Selves, having by our great Oath 'declared the Uprightneſs and Loyalty of our Intentions in all our 'Proceedings; and having withal ſupplicated his Majeſty's High 'Commiſſioner, and the Lords of his Majeſty's Honourable Privy-'Council, to enjoin by Act of Council, all the Lieges in time com-'ing to ſubſcribe the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant, which is a Te-'ſtimony of our Fidelity to God, and our Loyalty to our King, We 'have ſubſcribed. And ſeeing his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, and 'the Lords of his Majeſty's Honourable Privy-Council, have granted 'the deſire of our Supplication, ordaining by Civil Authority, all his 'Majeſty's Leiges in time coming, to ſubſcribe the aforeſaid Covenant, 'that

An. 1639.

'that our Union may be the more full and perfect, We by our Act 'and Conſtitution Eccleſiaſtical, do approve the foreſaid Covenant, in 'all the Heads and Clauſes thereof, and Ordains of new under all 'Eccleſiaſtical Cenſure, That all the Maſters of Univerſities, Colleges, 'and Schools; all Scholars at the paſſing of their Degrees; all Per'ſons ſuſpect of Papiſtry, or any other Error; and finally, all the 'Members of this Kirk and Kingdom ſubſcribe the ſame, with theſe 'words prefixed to their Subſcription. The Article of this Covenant, 'which was at the firſt Subſcription referred, the Determination of 'the General Aſſembly being determined, and that thereby the Five 'Articles of Perth; the Government of the Kirk by Biſhops; the 'Civil Places and Power of the Kirk upon the Reaſons and Grounds 'contained in the Act of the General Aſſembly, declared to be un'lawful within this Kirk, We ſubſcribe, according to the Determina'tion aforeſaid; and ordains the Covenant, with the Declaration, to 'be inſert in the Regiſters of the Aſſembly of this Kirk, General, 'Provincial, and Preſbyterial, ad perpetuam rei memoriam; and in all 'humility humbly ſupplicates his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, and 'the Honourable Eſtates of Parliament, by their Authority to ratify 'and enjoin the ſame under all Civil Pains, which will tend to the 'Glory of God, Preſervation of Religion, the King's Majeſty's Ho'nour, and perfect Peace of this Kirk and Kingdom.

Seſſ. 24. 30 Aug. a meridie.

The Aſſemblies Supplication of the King's Majeſty.

Moſt Gracious Soveraign,

'We your Majeſty's moſt Humble and Loyal Subjects, the Com'miſſioners from all the parts of this your Majeſty's Ancient 'and Native Kingdom, and Members of the National Aſſembly, con'vened at Edinburgh by your Majeſty's ſpecial Indiction, and honoured 'with the preſence of your Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, have bin 'waiting for a day of Rejoycing, and of ſolemn Thankſgiving to be 'rendred to God by this whole Kirk and Kingdom, for giving us a 'King ſo Juſt and Religious, that it is not only lawful for us to be 'Chriſtians under your Majeſty's Government, which ſomtime hath 'bin the greateſt praiſe of great Princes, but alſo that it hath pleaſed 'your Gracious Majeſty to make known, That it is your Royal Will 'and Pleaſure, that all Matters Eccleſiaſtical be determined in free Na'tional Aſſemblies, and Matters Civil in Parliament; which is a moſt 'noble and ample expreſſion of your Majeſty's Juſtice; and we truſt 'ſhall be a powerful means of our common Happineſs under your 'Majeſty's moſt bleſſed Reign. In the mean while We do moſt hum'bly from our Hearts, bleſs your Majeſty for that Happineſs already 'begun in the late Aſſembly at Edinburgh; in the Proceedings where'of, next under God, We have laboured to approve our ſelves unto 'your Majeſty's Vicegerent, as if your Majeſty's Eyes had bin upon 'us; which was the deſire of our Souls, and would have bin the 'Matter of our full rejoicing; and do ſtill continue your Majeſty's 'moſt humble Suppliants for your Majeſty's Civil Sanction and ‘ Ratification of the Conſtitutions of the Aſſembly in Parliament;

‘ that your Majeſty's Princely Power, and the Eccleſiaſtical Authority
‘ joining in one, the mutual Imbracements of Religion and Juſtice,
‘ of Truth and Peace, may be ſeen in this Land, which ſhall be to us
‘ as a Reſurrection from the Dead; and ſhall make us, being not on‘ ly ſo far recovered, but alſo revived, to fill Heaven and Earth with ‘ our Praiſes, and to pray that King Charles may be more and more ‘ bleſſed, and his Throne eſtabliſhed before the Lord for ever.

The Aſſembly appoints the next General Aſſembly to ſit at Aberdeen the laſt Tueſday of July next, 1640; and warneth all Preſbyteries, Univerſities and Burroughs, to ſend their Commiſſioners for keeping of the ſame. And thereafter the Aſſembly was concluded, by giving of Thanks by the Moderator, and ſinging of a Pſalm, according to the Cuſtom.

Having given this brief Account of the Scotiſh Affairs, in reference to the Aſſembly at Edinburgh, let us return to the Tranſactions of Affairs in England, where we broke off, and there we find a Proclamation publiſhed by the King, declaring an Act of State, and the King's Command concerning a ſcandalous Paper lately diſperſed by the Scots among many of his Subjects, to the effect following.

Auguſt 11.
An Act of State againſt the Scots concerning a ſcandalous Paper lately diſperſed by them.

Whereas a Paper containing many Falſhoods, and tending much to the Diſhonour of his Majeſty's late Proceedings in the Pacification given to his Subjects of Scotland, hath been diſperſed in divers Parts of this Kingdom; whereupon an Act of Council hath bin made in theſe words enſuing:

On Sunday the fourth of Auguſt, 1639. His Majeſty being in Council, was pleaſed to acquaint the Lords with a Paper he had ſeen at Berwick, entitled, Some Conditions of his Majeſty's Treaty with his Subjects of Scotland are ſet down here for remembrance. Which Paper being in moſt parts full of Falſhood, Diſhonour and Scandal to his Majeſty's Proceedings in the late Pacification, given of his Princely Grace and Goodneſs to his Subjects of Scotland, hath bin very frequently ſpread here in England, and avowed by ſome in Scotland to have bin approved and allowed as Truth by ſome of thoſe Lords of England, who attended his Majeſty, and were preſent at the Pacification in the Camp. Whereupon the Paper having bin read, and his Majeſty commanding thoſe Engliſh Lords to declare their knowledg therein. The Earl Marſhal firſt begun to put his Majeſty in remembrance, that ſome few days after the Pacification was concluded, ſome of the Scotiſh Lords coming to the Lord Chamberlain's Tent, ſent to ſpeak with him, and the Earl of Holland, and offered them a certain Paper, which they pretended to have bin collected for the help of their Memories, and not otherwiſe, nor to be publiſhed: But the ſaid Engliſh Lords very dutifully and diſcreetly refuſed to accept that or any ſuch Paper, but referred themſelves totally to the Pacification in Writing. And the ſaid Earl

Marſhal further declared, That now upon the reading, he for his part held the ſaid Paper for the moſt part falſe and ſcandalous, and no way agreable to what his Majeſty expreſſed at the Pacification.

Next the Lord Chamberlain declared, That he being ready to take Horſe, and a number of his Friends about him taking their leave, the Lord Loudon preſſed him with much importunity to receive a Paper, which he took, not knowing what it contained; but at night when he came to his Lodging, doubting it might be ſome ſuch Paper as had been formerly offered, and was refuſed, took it, without reading it, and ſealed it up, and ſo kept it till he preſented it to his Majeſty at Whitehall, profeſſing that till that time he had never read any one word of it, nor ſeen any other Copy thereof. Which Paper being that which had been divulged, was the ſame which his Majeſty had commanded to be read at the Board.

The Earl of Salisbury likewiſe deſired to juſtify himſelf of a particular Scandal laid upon him, that he had received and brought Copies of this Paper from the North; which he declared could not be, becauſe he was come away from the Camp before that Paper had bin offered, and that he had never ſeen that, nor any Copy thereof, before his Majeſty's return to Theobalds.

After this the Lord Chamberlain, the Earls of Salisbury, Holland, and Barkſhire, concurred with the Earl Marſhal, That the Contents of that Paper were for the moſt part notoriouſly ſcandalons and falſe, and contrary to what his Majeſty clearly expreſſed at the Pacification.

His Majeſty likewiſe declared, that before his coming from Berwick he ſhewed a Copy of this ſcandalous Paper to the Earl of Lindſey, the Earl of Holland, Maſter Treaſurer, and Maſter Secretary Cook, who fully concurred in the aforeſaid Opinion with the other Lords. All which Lords, and particularly the Earl of Holland, avowed the falſneſs thereof to the faces of thoſe Scotiſh Lords who were believed to be the Divulgers of it, (the Lords of the Council of Scotland being there likewiſe preſent).

All which conſidered, the whole Board unanimouſly became humble Petitioners to his Majeſty, That this falſe and ſcandalous Paper might be publickly burnt by the Hang-man.

His Majeſty declares his Pleaſure to continue his Commiſſion and Letters-Patents for Licenſing Retailers of Tobacco, notwithſtanding his Proclamation.

Concerning Retailers of Tobacco.

WHereas by his Majeſties Proclamation, dated at York the 9th of April laſt, it was declared, that among ſundry other Commiſſions granted upon untrue Surmiſes, a Commiſſion for compounding with Offenders touching Tobacco was thereby revoked and determined. Under colour whereof ſundry Perſons have pretended that his Majeſties Commiſſion to the Lord Goring and others, for licenſing Retailers of Tobacco, was thereby called in; and thereupon the like Commiſſioners have bin interrupted in their Proceedings in their Service, and Tobacco in divers parts of the Kingdom hath bin retailed without his Majeſty's Licenſe, and many who have Licenſes have forborn to make payment of their Rent.

His Majeſty therefore, to remove all Doubts, hath thought fit, with the Advice of his Privy-Council, publickly to declare his Royal Intention, that his Majeſty's Letters-Patents and Commiſſion to the Lord Goring, concerning the Licenſers of Retailers of Tobacco, was not meant to be impeached by the ſaid Proclamation of the 9th of April laſt; but that the ſaid Letters-Patents and Commiſſions are ſtill in force, and no way infringed.

At the Court at Whitehall, Aug. 25. 1639.

Preſent,

The King's moſt Excellent Majeſty,

Lord Archbiſhop of Cant.
Lord Keeper,
Lord Duke of Lenox,
Lord Marqueſs Hamilton,
Earl Marſhal,
Lord High Admiral,
Earl of Dorſet,
Earl of Saliſbury,
Earl of Holland,
Lord Goring,
Lord Cottington,
Lord Newburgh,
Mr. Comptroller,
Mr. Secretary Windebank.

According to his Majeſty's Pleaſure ſignified by Mr. Secretary Windebank, George Lord Goring was this day ſworn of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, ſate at the Board, and ſigned Letters.

Auguſt 25. the Lord Goring made one of the Privy-Council.

The Oath which he took was as followeth:

The Oath of a Privy-Counſellor.

YOu ſhall ſwear to be a true and faithful Servant unto the King's Majeſty, as one of his Privy-Council: You ſhall not know or underſtand of any manner of thing to be attempted, done, or ſpoken againſt his Majeſty's Perſon, Honour, Crown, or Dignity Royal, but you ſhall let and withſtand the ſame to the uttermoſt of your Power; and either cauſe it to be revealed unto his Majeſty himſelf, or to ſuch of his Privy-Council as ſhall advertiſe his Highneſs of the ſame. You ſhall in all things to be moved, treated, and debated in Council, faithfully and truly declare your Mind and Opinion, according to your Heart and Conſcience; and ſhall keep ſecret all Matters committed and revealed unto you, or ſhall be treated of ſecretly in Council. Or if any of the ſaid Treaties and Counſels ſhall touch any of the Counſellors, you ſhall not reveal it unto him, but ſhall keep the ſame, until ſuch time as by the conſent of his Majeſty, or of the Council, publication ſhall be made thereof. You ſhall to your uttermoſt bear Faith and Allegiance unto the King's Majeſty, his Heirs, and Lawful Succeſſors, and ſhall aſſiſt and defend all Juriſdictions, Preheminencies, and Authorities, granted to his Majeſty, and annexed to his Crown, againſt all Foreign Princes, Perſons, Prelates, or Potentates, by Act of Parliament, or otherwiſe.

And generally in all things you ſhall do, as a faithful and true Servant and Subject ought to do to his Majeſty. So help you God, and the holy Contents of this Book.

The Spaniſh Armado appears on the Engliſh Coaſt.

The King had not bin returned from Berwick much above a month, when there appeared upon the Engliſh Coaſt a great Spaniſh Armado, diſcovered firſt beyond the Lands-End by a Fleet of Hollanders about the 17*th* of September. The Fleet was commanded by Don Antonio D'oquendo, conſiſting of about ſeventy Sail of Ships; at the firſt ſight they appeared like the Invincible Navy in 88. The Vice-Admiral of Holland, with ſeventeen good Ships ingaged them, yet in a retreating poſture, being much too weak for ſo great a Navy: And when he came into the Narrow Seas, ſtill kept firing of his Ordnance upon the Enemy, having got the Wind of them, with intent not only to annoy them, but to give warning to the Holland Admiral Van Trump, then lying before Dunkirk with part of the Holland Feet; who upon the noiſe of the Cannon weighed Anchor, and within few hours, bringing with him eight tall Ships, joined with the ſeventeen Sail. And being now 25 in number, they reſolutely ſet upon the Spaniſh Fleet, held out a fierce Engagement with them moſt part of that day; took three Galleons, ſunck one, and ſhattered the reſt; inſomuch that the Spaniard, for his better ſecurity, betook himſelf to the Downs near Dover, aſſuring himſelf of protection while he lay in the King of England's Chamber.

That Night, by the help of an Engliſh Pilot, the Spaniard ſent away ſixteen Ships with 4000 Land-men, who in the dark eſcaped the Dutch, and got ſafe to Dunkirk.

The King ſent the Earl of Arundel to the Commander of the Spaniſh Fleet, for a ſight of his Commiſſion, and to know the occaſion of his coming upon the Coaſt with ſo great a Navy and Army, having abord in number about 20000 Land-men (as the King was informed) beſides Seamen.

The Spaniſh Don returned this Anſwer, That the King of England might be well aſſured, that there was no evil intention towards him, nor had they any Deſign upon any part of his Dominions, for they were only ſent with Recruits to Dunkirk and Flanders, with mony to pay the Souldiers there.

That Anſwer was all the Commiſſion the Spaniard ſhewed.

The King afterward deſired him to retreat with the firſt fair Wind, for that he was in Amity with both States, and would not willingly have them engage within his Dominion of the Seas. Captain Pennington in the mean time received Orders from his Majeſty to ride with the Royal Navy in the Downs, and there to wait the iſſue of this Buſineſs.

Great were the hopes of the Spaniard to have procured from the King of Great Britain, (which was not a little laboured for by the Lord Cottington) that Captain Pennington ſhould be Umpire between both Parties, and not ſuffer any further Engagement, but fall upon that Party that ſhould, without his leave, give the firſt onſet.

But thoſe endeavours proved ineffectual, for the Spaniard having ſtaied almoſt a month for a Wind to carry him out, the Hollander had in the mean time increaſed his Fleet to almoſt an hundred Sail, and incompaſſed the Spaniard, without receiving any oppoſition from Capt. Pennington.

The Spaniard in the interim being ſupplied from London with Powder and other Ammunition, in ſuch Proportion and Quantity as he deſired.

The Hollander impatient of lying ſtill, and being grown ſo ſtrong, that he ſeemed, as if he cared neither for the Engliſh nor Spaniſh Fleet, divided his Fleet into Squadrons in order to a Fight; which the Spaniard diſcovering, put himſelf into the beſt poſture he could to receive him. The Encounter was very hot and furious for the time, till the Hollander faſtned ſome Fire-Ships upon the Spaniard, and ſo overpowred him with Cannon, that at laſt the Spaniard was forced to ſhift for himſelf: About twenty Spaniſh Ships,under the Command of the Vice-Admiral, ran upon the Shore and were ſtranded, but moſt of the Men got on ſhore. About five of the Spaniſh Ships were ſunk and burnt, whereof one a great Galleon, which was the Vice-Admiral, and carried fifty Pieces of Braſs Ordnance; the reſt of the Ships, being about thirty in number, put to Sea under the Command of Don Antonio. The Hollanders made ſail after them, firing upon their Rear, till a great Fog ſomewhat abated the heat of the purſuit, yet the Hollander kept ſo cloſe, as that he continued firing now and then upon the Rear of the Enemy, till the Fog cleared up; and then the Fight began afreſh, and the Admiral of Portugal being fired, and divers of the Spaniards taken, Don Antonio, with about ten Ships of the Fleet, hired an Engliſh Pilot, ſteered a Courſe for Dunkirk, and gained a ſafe Harbour, the reſt were taken and ſunk.

The Spaniards that came to Land near Dover, told the Country People, That they were brought out of the Kingdom of Spain againſt their Wills, and by a Device, viz. That the Beacons being fired, as if an Enemy had landed, all the Country runnig down with Arms and Clubs toward the Sea-Coaſt, to prevent further Danger, were, as ſoon as they came there, clapt aboard the Ships, and brought away.

It occaſioned no ſmall diverſity of Opinion, that ſo great an Armado ſhould come upon the Engliſh Coaſt at ſuch a conjuncture of Time.

And it was obſerved, that the Governor of Dunkirk did abſolutely refuſe, till afterwards he had particular Orders from the chief Governor of Flanders, to give the aforeſaid 4000 Souldiers entrance into Dunkirk, not knowing what the Deſign might be.

Some diſcourſed that the aim was upon the Iſle of Wight, ſeveral of the Trained Bands of that County being that Summer commanded into the North, and the Governor, or his Deputy, having about that time of the Spaniard's coming upon our Coaſt, in a Frolick, (at drinking of Healths) well nigh ſhot away all the Powder, ſo that the Inhabitants had not enough wherewith to reſiſt an Enemy if they had landed.

Nor had Kent Arms to defend their Coaſts; for the Trained-Bands were ordered to furniſh the Souldiers that went by Sea to Scotland with Arms.

Others conjectured, that they were intended for Ireland, where there was an Army raiſing of 8000 Men, about 7000 whereof were

Papiſts,

An. 1639. Papiſts, who might better ſecure their Landing in that Kingdom, and where there was no want of Men of the ſame Religion to join with them, and Men of Experience to Command them; for there were not in the Fleet Commanders in any meaſure proportionable to the number of Men aboard the Ships.

But it was wondred at by all, that the King of Spain ſhould be at ſo great a Charge to convey his Mony into Flanders, when the Engliſh Ships had from Year to Year performed the ſame Service for the expence of Coinage in the Tower.

Jealouſy did ariſe amongſt others, becauſe at that time all the Gunpowder was placed in one hand, and the Tower of London in the Command of one not acceptable to the Nation at that time.

Another ſort concluded they were bound for Scotland, in hope that both theſe Nations would ſhortly be involved in a War.

This enſuing Propoſition made to the King of Spain, was diſcovered about that time the ſaid Armado came on the Engliſh Coaſt; upon the out-ſide of the Paper was ſubſcribed Bro—entituled, The means to eſtabliſh the Catholick Religion in Scotland.

But the Author leaves the Reader free to his own Judgment, what Application can be made, that the Paper had that Deſign, in reference to the preſent Diſturbances in Scotland. The Propoſition was in theſe words.

'FOr the Enterprize, there ſhall be need of no more than 3000 Men of Aid, which ſhall land in the Iſlands of Orkney; which being of themſelves ſtrong, may be made in a little time impregnable; beſides they are fertile, and abundance of all things neceſſary for the ſuſtaining of the aforeſaid number, and very near the Strengths of the moſt principal and powerful Catholicks of Scotland; amongſt which is the Earl of Caithneſs, who is Lord of all thoſe parts of Caithneſs, which are neareſt the Iſlands of Orkney, and may aid us with 4000 Men to join with the others; which after having fortified, and made ſure the Iſlands, ſhall paſs on to Dondee, and St. Johnſtons, Places very eaſy to fortify and to keep, being divided from the firm Land by the great River of Frith, which is ſo deep, that the Enemy cannot paſs it with their Horſe, neither can the Foot endanger us, becauſe they muſt of neceſſity enter by the Mountains of Atholl; the which with a Fort made with 300 Men, ſhall be inacceſſable: And although we ſhould give them free paſſage, they could not prejudice us, as well for that Multitude on our part, and the ſtrength of the Country, as alſo for the Intelligence we ſhall have amongſt them: And if they would ſet upon us by Sea, they can ſet out no Fleet ſo ſtrong as ours ſhall be, except all the Kingdom contribute to it. The which cannot be done except all the States do join; of which we of the Confederacy ſhall be the greater part; and ſo the Enemy ſhall forthwith be forced, either to give Liberty of Conſcience to the Catholicks, or put themſelves in evident danger of loſing all.

The Commodities which ſhall reſult from this Enterprize.

The King of Spain.

'Your Majeſty ſhall get great Honour and Reputation by doing 'ſo remarkable Services to God and his Church; and ſhall put 'your Enemies to ſuch a ſtreight, and ſuch extraordinary Expences, 'that they ſhall now ſpend more in one Year, than they have done in 'many; becauſe the Hollanders ſhall either be forced to maintain an 'Army, (not to Rob, as they have done in the Indies, but for their 'own Defence) or to let their Fleet be taken, which goes every 'Year to fiſh in our Sea; by which means they would want Proviſion, Ships, and Mariners, and other incredible Damages would 'follow; and howſoever it ſhould be, we may take from them, or at 'leaſt interrupt their Trade of Denmark, Hamburgh, and Lubeck, 'Breme and Embden, without which they cannot live.

'Laſt of all, Thoſe of Dunkirk and Newport, which have no other 'Ports to retire themſelves to, ſhall not want them in Orkney, with a 'proſperous Wind, to their great Commodity, and annoying their 'Enemy.

'As for the King of Great Britain, if he will not give Liberty of 'Conſcience, he ſhall be reduced to it with no leſs Dammage; and if 'he would hinder our Enterprize, he muſt maintain three Armies, 'two by Sea, one on the Weſt ſide, the other on the Eaſt, and the 'third by Land; which ſhall do us no great hurt, by reaſon the Scots 'will never conſent that the Engliſh ſhall enter into Scotland, except 'it be with ſo ſmall a Troop, as ſhall be of no effect, and ſhall be always ſubject to be expoſed to all Danger, and to be caſt out from 'thence at our pleaſure, and this for the great Enmity and Diſtruſt 'which is and always hath bin between both Nations. Beſides, the 'Engliſh Catholicks which are now Baniſhed, or ſhall be hereafter, 'may retire themſelves thither, and hold correſpondency with much 'facility in England, and ſhall handle and negotiate for the Service of 'God, and your Majeſty, and much prejudice the King: And they 'ſhall be ſuccoured and helpt of the Iriſhmen with all things neceſſary, 'and upon all occaſion that ſhall be offered.

'For this purpoſe there ought to be a Conſideration of the great 'miſchief that may light upon God's Church, and this Monarchy; 'if the King of England, being confederate with all the Hereticks 'and Enemies of God and Spain, ſhould have opportunity during 'his Life, to carry forward and facilitate his Pretence and Title which 'he hath to the Crown of France, the Buſineſs will be ended before 'we can from hence hinder him, and he will be the moſt powerful 'Enemy to God's Church, and prejudicial to this Monarchy, that ever 'hath bin, conſidering the great Power he ſhall have both by Sea and 'Land, with the Aid of Denmark his Brother-in-Law, Holland, and 'other Hereticks his Confederates.

'Other things there be of more Importance, which are not fit to be 'written, which I reſerve to tell your Majeſty by word of mouth, 'or to whomſoever of your Council your Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to appoint; to whom I will alſo give a more particular Account and Satisfaction of what I have here propoſed.

Now

An. 1639.

Now in regard this Paper doth mention the Ferries in Scotland, and the advantage of ſtrength which that part of the North of Scotland hath thereby, the Reader for his diverſion may caſt his eye on this Deſcription following, which was made for his Majeſty's ſervice againſt the Covenanters.

A Paper of the Ferries in Scotland.

‘THe River of Neſs is large and deep, falleth out of a Lake named Neſs, twenty four Miles long, and five or ſix in breadth, into a great Bay of the Sea. On this River ſtandeth the Town of Innerneſs, which hath a ſtrong Caſtle, in the keeping of the Marqueſs of Huntly, as yet not taken. If in this Town and Caſtle were put a competent Garriſon, with a Ship and Pinnace in the Bay, you might break the Ferry-Boats, and ſtop all Paſſages from Northward of that River.

‘The River of Tay falleth out of a Lake ten Miles long, and one and a half broad, from whence the River hath the Name, which is the main and only Paſſage between the North and South Parts of the Kingdom. This River falleth into the Eaſt Sea below Dundee, the biggeſt Town almoſt in Scotland. At the entry to the Sea it is two Miles broad, and continueth the ſame breadth upward till within three or four Miles of St. Johnſtown, between which Town and Dundee there are ſixteen Miles and above, at no part whereof there is any paſſage but by Ferry-boats. If a few Ships would ride at the Mouth of this River below Dundee, and ſend up ſome ſmall Pinnaces, they might break all the Ferry-boats, and ſtop all the Paſſages that could be made over at any part between the North of the River and the ſaid Town of St. Johnſtown, above which to the ſaid Lake the River is not ridable but at ſome few Fords, the Paſſages whereof might be kept by the Noblemen, who ſtand well affected to his Majeſty's Service, and whoſe Eſtates do lie there about Strathern; ſuch as the Earls of Airly, Perth, Tullibarden, and Kinnoul: who if they were ſent home with a competent Number of Souldiers to attend them, all thoſe of their Name, their Friends and Tenants gathered unto them, might ſtop all Land-paſſages whatſoever from North to South.

‘And in caſe the People of Fife, who dare not now croſs Forth-River, in regard of your Majeſty's Ships, ſhould march with ſupply by Sterling-Bridge to Lothian, theſe Noblemen with their Forces might be in ſome narrow Paſſage in their way; and if they could not force them to retire, yet they might fall upon their Country in their abſence, ſo that they could not both be able to defend their Sea-Coaſts, and ſecure them from Danger on their Backs; neither durſt they all turn back on Strathern, for fear that thoſe of the Fleet ſhould land on their Shores in their abſence.

‘The Shire of Perth would be a Rendezvouz and ſafe Retreat to all thoſe of Fife, Angus, Strathern, and the Highlands, who upon this Proclamation ſhall abandon the Covenanters Party, and ſtand for his Majeſty's Service.

‘If the Town of Sterling were ſeized, theſe River-Paſſages made ‘ſure, and the Town of Aberdeen ſecured, in regard of your Majeſty's ‘Forces in the North, no harm could be expected from the ‘North.

The Cauſe between the Lord Deputy of Ireland, and Lord Loftus, appointed to be heard.

Nov. 12. 'THis day his Majeſty and the Board entered into the hearing of 'the Cauſes between the Lord Deputy and Council of Ireland, 'and the Lord Chancellor of that Kingdom. And his Majeſty's Attorney General having opened the General Charges againſt the ſaid 'Lord Chancellor; his Majeſty, with the Advice of the Board, proceeded to the hearing of the Charge, expreſſed in the Order of the 'third of November laſt, concerning the Lord Chancellor's delivering 'of the Negative Voice of the Nobility, to the Contribution for the 'Army; which being done, and the Lord Chancellor's Counſel ſtill 'inſiſting, that the Cauſe of the Lord Chancellor's Appeal might be 'heard before the other Charges. The Lord Deputy, in the Name 'of himſelf, and of the Council of Ireland, humbly beſought his 'Majeſty, That the Lord Chancellor of Ireland's Counſel might have 'their Deſires. Whereupon the ſaid Cauſe was entred into, by reading 'of the Decree of the Lord Deputy & Council of Ireland; and Order 'was given that the ſaid Cauſe ſhould be proceeded in upon the 'grounds of Appeal, delivered by the Lord Chancellor. And Tueſday, at two after Dinner, the 19*th* of this Month, was appointed 'for the further hearing of the ſaid Cauſes, whereof all the Parties 'concerned therein are to take notice, and to prepare themſelves, with 'their Counſel, and to attend accordingly.

Letters of the Tenour following, were directed to the preſent Sheriffs of the ſeveral Counties under-named; and to the Sheriffs reſpectively, who had the charge to execute his Majeſty's Writs in the ſaid ſeveral Counties, for the Ship-Money in the Years hereafter written.

A Letter from the Lords of the Council to the reſpective Sheriffs, to pay in the Arrears of Ship-Mony for ſeveral years paſt.

WHereas upon examination of the Accounts of the Shipmony taken by us, in the preſence of his Majeſty, to be levied upon the Writs iſſued in the Years 1636, 1637, 1638; notwithſtanding the continual calling upon you the Sheriffs of the former Years by this Board, by his Majeſty's ſpecial Command, it appeareth there is yet an Arrear upon you the Sheriff of that County, upon the Writ iſſued in the Year 1636, the Sum of and upon the Writ iſſued 1636, the Sum of and upon the Writ iſſued 1638, the Sum of We have therefore thought fit hereby, according to his Majeſty's ſpeciall Command, to require you the Sheriffs for the former Years, with all poſſible ſpeed, upon pain of his Majeſty's Diſpleaſure, and a ſevere Proceeding to be had againſt you, to pay in reſpectively to the Treaſurers of the Navy, ſo much of the ſaid Arrears as you have already Collected and not paid in. And to Aſſeſs, Levy, and Collect, by Diſtreſs or otherwiſe, according to the Tenour of the ſaid Writs iſſued in the ſaid former Years, the reſidue of the ſaid Arrears remaining unaſſeſſed, unlevied, or uncollected, and to pay in the ſame with all poſſible ſpeed reſpectively as aforeſaid. For which purpoſe we do Require and Authorize you, the preſent Sheriff, to give Warrant and Authority to you the Sheriffs of the former Years reſpectively, for the Aſſeſſing, Levying, and Collecting, as aforeſaid, of the ſaid Arrears. As alſo to give like Warrants and Authority to ſuch other meet Perſons, as you the Sheriffs for the former Years ſhall preſent reſpectively, and nominate unto you the preſent High Sheriff, either jointly or ſeverally, to be imploied in this Service, by you the Sheriffs of the former Years, (from whom only his Majeſty doth expect an Account thereof for your own time reſpectively). Of performance of all which, you, or either of you, may not fail, as you tender the good Opinion of his Majeſty and the Board, at your Perils. And you the Sheriffs for the former Years, are to collect and pay in, all the ſaid Arrears reſpectively, to the Treaſurer of the Navy, by the end of Candle-maſs-Term. Or elſe you (or as many of you as fail herein) are to attend his Majeſty and the Board, on the next Sunday after the Term, to give an account why the ſame is not levied and paid in. And ſo, &c.

Sir Thomas Roe his Advice from beyond Seas to the King, to intercept Leſley and Ammunition, &c. coming to Scotland.

Nov. 22.

‘THe Scots-men that arrive in theſe Parts, ſpeak deſperately and traiterouſly, as if there were very ill Reſolutions fomented in that Kingdom. Leſley hath written to a Merchant in Bremen, his principal Correſpondent in theſe parts, that he will come thither in March or April for ſome Buſineſs, and return with ſpeed. Bremen is the only reſort now of the Scots, and the only Port from whence they can ſecurely extract all kind of Arms and Munition. If his Majeſty could ſurpriſe him, I am perſwaded it would be a ſmart blow to behead a Faction, upon whom the Mutineers do ſo much rely. To this end, If a ſmall Ship were ſent betimes to ride in the River of Weſer at Geſſendorp, or Hanibrake, two or three months, it would not be Charges loſt, and would terrify that Town. The Ship may be ſent out ſecretly, and the Captains Commiſſion, whither he ſhall go, be opened when he is at Sea; with Directions only to watch Ships bound from or to Scotland, and thus he may perhaps catch the Prey deſired. For there can be no advice of his being there in Scotland in a month at leaſt, and in the mean time he may hinder all Proviſions to be tranſported thither. But if that way ſhall be thought too open, his Majeſty may write an effectual Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of Bremen, to Arreſt his Perſon in that Town, or within his Territory: And another to the King of Denmark, and Magiſtrates of this Town. Leſley being his Majeſty's Subject, I am perſwaded it cannot be denied, for I have ſeen the Example freſh in the Palatinate, at the Inſtance of the Duke of Holſtein. Theſe Letters may lie dormant in mine or Mr. Averies hands, to be uſed, if there be occaſion; if there be none, they may be returned without noiſe, ſo the Buſineſs be kept ſecret, which otherwiſe will but irritate, and do more harm than ſervice.

Afterwards General Leſley's Siſter, and about fifteen Scotiſh Commanders, were taken at Sea, and brought Priſoners to Berwick; but a ſhort time after releaſed, and permitted to go into Scotland.

At Whitehall, Novemb. 26. 1639.

Preſent the King's Majeſty.

Concerning the Lord Vicount Wentworth, Lord Deputy of Ireland; and the Ld Chancellor of Ireland.

‘HIs Majeſty having this day heard at the Board a long Debate, by Counſel on both ſides, concerning two other of the Charges ſent by the Lord Vicount Wentworth, Lord Deputy General of Ireland; and by the Privy-Council of that Kingdom, of ſundry Miſdemeanours and Irregularities committed by the Lord Vicount Loftus of Ely, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, in his Place, viz. in the Cauſe concerning Edward Jacob, and in the Cauſe between Dr. Medcalf Plantiff, and George Harpoole and other Defendents, in the Chancery of Ireland: Wherein his Majeſty and the Board remain unſatisfied of the Clearneſs and Integrity of the ſaid Lord Chancellor's Proceedings.

‘And however the ſaid Lord Chancellor did allege, That he had not the Means to make Proofs on his ſide in the ſaid Cauſes; yet it did appear that the default thereof reſted wholly in himſelf. And his Majeſty and the Board being ſatisfied upon the ſeveral Hearings, that the ſaid Lord Chancellor is guilty of the delivery of the Negative Voice of the Lords Refuſers to contribute for the maintenance of his Majeſty's Army in the time of the Lord Vicount Falkland, late Lord Deputy of Ireland, and finding it ſufficiently proved, That he did come out of Ireland before a legal Licence obtained, and contrary to that which he pretended himſelf to the ſaid Lord Deputy and Council, and was directed by his Majeſty, and did otherwiſe inſolently behave himſelf to the ſaid Lord Deputy and Council. His Majeſty did this day, upon all the aforeſaid Conſiderations, declare, with the unanimous advice of the whole Board, The ſaid Lord Vicount Loftus of Ely, to be unfit any longer to hold the place of Lord Chancellor of Ireland, being of ſo great Truſt and Importance for his Majeſty's Service, and the Quiet and Preſervation of his Subjects in that Kingdom. However his Majeſty did not think fit to proceed to any other Cenſure at this time againſt the ſaid Lord Vicount Loftus of Ely, in regard he did allege he had made no Proofs on his part, though the Default were in himſelf; but doth leave the ſaid Charges, and ſuch other Charges as ſhall be thought fit to be proſecuted againſt him legally in the Star-Chamber, by his Majeſty's Attorney General.

The Branch of a Letter from the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, to Dr. Hall Biſhop of Exeter, dated at Lambeth the 11th of November, 1639, in Anſwer to the Biſhop of Exeter's Letter concerning Epiſcopacy.

‘THe reſt of your Lordſhip's Letter is fitter to be anſwered by my own Hand, and ſo you have it. And ſince you are pleaſed ſo worthily and Brother-like to acquaint me with the whole Plot of your intended Work, and to yield it up to my Cenſure and better Advice, (ſo you are pleaſed to write) I do not only thank you heartily for it, but ſhall in the ſame Brotherly way, and with equal freedom put ſome few Animadverſions, ſuch as occur on the ſuddain, to your further Conſideration, aiming at nothing but what you do, the Perfection of the Work in which ſo much is concerned.

‘And firſt for Mr. George Graham, I leave you free to work upon this Buſineſs and his Ignorance as you pleaſe, aſſuring my ſelf that you will not depart from the Gravity of your ſelf, or the Cauſe therein. Next, you ſay, in the firſt head, That Epiſcopacy is an Ancient, Holy, and Divine Inſtitution. It muſt needs be Ancient and Holy, if Divine: Would it not be more full, went it thus, So ancient as that it is of Divine Inſtitution? There you define Epiſcopacy by being joined with Imparity, and Superiority of Juriſdiction. This ſeems ſhort: for every Arch-Preſbyter's or Arch-Deacon's Place is ſo; yea, and ſo was Mr. Henderſon in his Chair at Glaſgow: unleſs you will define it by a diſtinction of Order. I draw the Superiority not from that Juriſdiction which is attributed to Biſhops, Jure poſitivo, in their Audience of Eccleſiaſtical Matters, but from that which is Intrinſical and Original in the Power of Excommunication. Again, you ſay, in that firſt Point, That where Epiſcopacy hath obtained, it cannot be abdicated without violation of God's Ordinance. This Propoſition I conceive, eſt inter munis habentes; for never was there any Church yet, where it hath not obtained the Chriſtian Faith; which was never yet planted any-where, but the very firſt Feature of the Body of a Church, was by, or with Epiſcopacy: and whereſoever Epiſcopacy is not ſuffered to be, it is by ſuch an abdication; for certainly there it was à Principio. In your ſecond Head, you grant that the Preſbyterian Government may be of uſe, where Epiſcopacy may not be had. Firſt, I pray you, conſider, whether this Conceſſion be not needleſs here, and in it ſelf of a dangerous Conſequence. Next, I conceive there is no place where Epiſcopacy may not be had, if there be a Church more than in title only. Thirdly, Since they challenge their Preſbyterian Fiction to be Chriſt's Kingdom and Ordinance, (as your ſelf expreſſeth it) and caſt but Epiſcopacy as oppoſite to it; we muſt not uſe any mincing terms, but unmask them plainly; nor ſhall I ever give way to hamper our ſelves for fear of ſpeaking plain Truth, though it be againſt Amſterdam or Geneva, and thus muſt be ſadly thought on. Concerning your Poſtulata, I ſhall pray you to allow me the like freedom, among which the two firſt are true, but (as expreſt) too reſtrictive. For Epiſcopacy is not ſo to be aſſerted to Apoſtolical Inſtitution, as to bar it from looking higher, and from ſetching it materially and originally in the Ground and Intention of it, from Chriſt himſelf, though the Apoſtles formalized it. And here give me leave a little to enlarge; The Adverſaries of Epiſcopacy are not only the furious and Aërian Heriticks, (out of which are now raiſed Pryn, Baſtwick, and our Scotiſh Maſters) but ſome alſo of a milder and ſubtiler alloy, both in the Geneva and the Roman Faction. And it will become the Church of England ſo to vindicate it, againſt the furious Puritans, as that we lay it not open to be wounded by either of the other two more cunning and more learned Adverſaries: Not to the Roman Faction, for that will be content it ſhall be Juris Divini mediati, by, from, for, and under the Pope, that ſo the Government of the Church may be Monarchial in him; but not immediati, which makes the Church Ariſtocratical in the Biſhops. This is the Italian Rock, not the Genevean, for that will not deny Epiſcopacy to be Juris Divini, ſo will take it, ut ſuadentis vel approbantis, but not imperantis; for then they may take leave as they will, which

An. 1639. ‘ is that they would be at. Nay (if I much forget it not) Beza
‘ himſelf is ſaid to have acknowledged Epiſcopacy to be Juris Divini
‘ imperantis, ſo you will not take it as univerſaliter imperantis, for then ‘ Geneva might eſcape, & citra conſiderationem durationis, for then ‘ though they had it before, yet now, upon wiſer thoughts, they ‘ may be without it; which Scotland, ſays now, and who will may ‘ ſay it after, if this be good Divinity; and then all in that time ſhall
‘ be Democratical. I am bold to add this, becauſe I find in your ſe-
‘ cond Poſtulatum, that Epiſcopacy is directly commanded, but you go
‘ not ſo far as to meet with the ſubtilty of Beza, which is the great Rock
‘ in the Lake of Geneva. In your 9th Poſtulatum, That the Acceſſion
‘ of Honourable Titles or Privileges makes no difference in the ſub-
‘ ſtance of the Calling. If you mean the Titles of Arch-Biſhops, Pri‘ mates, Metropolitans, Patriarks, &c. ’tis well; and I preſume you
‘ do ſo: But then in any caſe take heed you aſſert it ſo, as that the ‘ Faction lay not hold of it, as if the Biſhops were but the Title of ‘ Honour, and the ſame calling with a Prieſt, for that they all aim
‘ at, &c. The 11th Poſtulatum is large, and I ſhall repeat it, becauſe
‘ I am ſure you retain a Copy of what you write to me, being the ‘ Ribs of your Work; nor ſhall I ſay more to it, than that it muſt be ‘ warily handled, for fear of a ſaucy Anſwer, which is more ready a ‘ great deal with them than a learned one. I preſume I am pardoned
‘ already for this freedom, by your ſubmiſſion of all to me; and now
‘ I heartily pray you be pleaſed to ſend me up (keeping a Copy to ‘ your ſelf againſt the Accidents of Carriage) not the whole Work ‘ together, but each particular Head, or Poſtulatum, as you finiſh it;
‘ that ſo we here may be the better able to conſider of it, and the ‘ Work come on the faſter. So to God’s bleſſed protection.

My Anſwer (of November 11. 1639.) to the Heads of the Biſhop of Exon’s Books intended for Epiſcopacy.

A Letter directed to our very good Lord the Earl of Northumberland, Lord High Admiral of England.

Lord Admiral to ſet forth 20 Ships.

WHereas it is his Majeſty's Pleaſure, That Twenty Ships and Pinnaces of his own, ſhall be this Year ſet forth for Guard of the Seas, and Defence of the Realm, over and above the Ships that are required to be ſet forth by the City of London. We have thought good hereby, in his Majeſty's Name, to pray and require your Lordſhip forthwith to take effectual Order for the preſent preparing, ſetting forth, and furniſhiug, in compleat and war-like manner, Twenty ſuch Ships and Pinnaces of his Majeſty's, as your Lordſhip ſhall think ſitteſt, for eight Months Service at Sea; to be all ready to be put to Sea by the Tenth of April next, for the Service aforeſaid. And for your Lordſhips ſo doing, this ſhall be your VVarrant. And ſo we bid your Lordſhip, &c.

From the Court at VVhitehall, the 17*th* of December 1639.

Lord Keeper.	Earl of Salisbury.
Lord Treaſurer.	Lord Vicount VVentworth.

My good Lord,

The Earl of Rothes his Letter to the Earl of Pembroke, and his Anſwer to the ſame.

I Have large encouragement to uſe freedom, both from your own favours to me, and my affection to your Lordſhip, and ſo may expoſtulate with you, for withdrawing your wonted (and even lately expreſſed) reſpects at the Camp to this Nation. You found we had reaſon for our lawful Defence, and that we had loyal Hearts to our Prince, and Juſtice in our Deſires; which moved you to plead for us, and ſo engaged the Affection of many to you. But ſithence, when my Lord Traquair made his Relation, that moved hard Concluſions againſt us, not requiring ſo much as that it ſhould not obtain Truth to the prejudice of a Noble Nation, till we were heard; and agreeing that an Army ſhould be levied, and lending Monies, hath much grieved us, to be diſappointed of one we ſo much truſted. I have therefore been bold to entreat that we may keep better Correſpondency, or elſe by miſtake we may be brought again to begin a Miſchief that will not end in our days. As we have formerly declined it, ſo ſhall it not be our fault. And it lies in your Lordſhip, and in other great Perſons, to prevent theſe Evils. You have lived in all great Eaſe, Peace, and Plenty for many years, as any Nation in the World; and if you can like to interrupt your own Happineſs for the pleaſure of ſome Prelates, who will ſhare little with the Hardſhips and Dangers that will be indured, you are not well adviſed. The Earl of Dumfermling, and Lord Loudon, are ſent with a full in- formation of our Buſineſs. They will wait upon your Lordſhip, and expect your wonted Aſſiſtance. They all (as much as may be) decline War, except you will now needs have it. We hope your Lordſhip and others will make uſe of theſe Reaſons for the right end, which will fix a great deal of Obligation from both Nations on you, and ſhall infinitely increaſe my reſpects, deſiring to continue,

Your Lordſhip's
moſt humble Servant,
ROTHES.

Edenburg, Jan. 29. 1639.

For the Right Honourable, the Earl of Rothes, theſe.

My good Lord,

THe Civilities and good Reſpects which I placed upon you, at the time of my being in the Camp, you ſtile Encouragements, and inſinuate them as Reaſons why you may expoſtulate with me. Your Premiſes I allow you, but your Inference I return you again, as fuller of Sophiſtry and mean Deſigns, than of Truth or Reaſon.

Firſt, I never allowed your Defence lawfully undertaken, by other Arms than by Petitions and Prayers unto your Maſter. I never found Loyalty in your Covenant, nor Duty in your taking up Arms. I never affirmed the Juſtice of your Cauſe; neither did I conſider ſo much the Merit thereof, as your unwarrantable and tumultuous diſobedience therein unto the King, with the Vexation and Diſturbance it brought upon the Nobility of this Kingdom. Neither was I in all this Commotion your Advocate for other reaſons, than ſuffering my ſelf to become a Mediator to his Majeſty for your Peace and Forgiveneſs, moved thereunto by your frequent Proteſtations of paying all Duty and Loyalty to your Maſter's Commands.

If from hence you haply gained from me an eaſier Credulity, than your maſk'd Deſigns deſerved at my hands, I know not why you ſhould obtrude on me an Alteration of my Opinion, or a withdrawing of my (but conditional) Reſpects from you. Thus far an Anſwer to what concerns me.

And now, as a Counſellor of England, let me be bold to expoſtulate with you upon that which follows in your Letters.

How cometh it to paſs that you ſhould upbraid us, or expect from us, that we ſhould not give credit to my Lord Traquair's Relation; that we did not mediate with the King, to change his Reſolution of ſending forth an Army; and that we did not deny the King Loans of Money for his Service?

My Lord, Theſe Enforcements perhaps as little become you, as it is certainly unlawful and undutiful in the Subjects of England to diſpute it with their King. You may pretend Religion to be the ſole Cauſe of your Grievance; but we believe it a woful Religion here, that hath thus deveſted it ſelf of all Moral Duty and Civility. Nay, you go further, you threaten and fear us with a Miſchief that will not end in our days; and boldly make it your own Act, to have declined it hitherto, without Obligation to the King's Mercy at all. You tell us of Plenty, and Eaſe, and Happineſs for many years enjoyed, and wonder we ſhould expoſe all thoſe to hazard for the pleaſure of ſome few Prelates.

My Lord, Theſe are Arguments for common People, and Men of broken Fancies to feed upon; but ſuch Suggeſtions will not find nor make a a Party here. Perhaps it may blow them into a Flame, whoſe Zeal already hath burnt up their Duty and conſcionable Allegiance unto their Maſter.

To be ſhort, as I never had a Correſpondency of Buſineſs with your Lordſhip, ſo your Letters have aſſured me it is dangerous to begin it. Yet for the Peace of both the Churches and Kingdoms, I will adventure to give you this Intelligence, That we have not (in our Council here) proceeded againſt you without deliberation, a good Conſcience, and a juſt ſence of Honour. Neither ſhall I, or any of us, be entreated or feared by you, or any of you, for contributing our Aſſents or Fortunes thereunto, but as our Maſter ſhall command us.

Laſtly, Know you, my Lord of Rothes, that the return of my old Friendſhip to you is to be expected, when I ſhall hear of your Renovation. Be ſimple my Lord Rothes, and not a Covenanter, and I ſhall be the ſame.

This day Alderman Garroway, Lord-Mayor of London, together with both the Sheriffs and Recorder, attended at the Council-Board, his Majeſty being preſent in Council. It was demanded of them, whether the City deſired to proceed, and furniſh out a Ship of their own, for his Majeſty's Service, in defence of the Realm, in ſuch manner and equippage, as by his Majeſty's Writ directed to them in that behalf as was required? Or whether they rather deſired to levy, and pay unto the Treaſurer of the Navy, the Sum required by the Inſtructions ſent them with the ſaid Writ? But the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs humbly prayed, that his Majeſty would be pleaſed to cauſe a Ship of his own to be provided and imployed for the ſaid Service. Which favour deſired, his Majeſty was pleaſed to grant; and they undertook, that with all ſpeed they would levy and pay in the Money to the Treaſurer of the Navy, required by the ſaid Writ.

Lord Keeper Finch his Speech to the Judges, to promote Ship-mony in their Circuits.

My Lords the Judges,

‘THe Term is now done, the Houſe of Juſtice is broken up, yet Juſtice goes not from us; for ſuch is the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of his Majeſty, that all his Subjects may have Juſtice adminiſtred unto them in certainty, and with eaſe and equality. In Term-time they know where to find Juſtice; in the Circuits Juſtice findeth out them.

‘Your Lordſhips may know the great Truſt, Power, and Authority, that is committed unto you; how the ancient and excellent Inſtitution of Juſtice in Eyre is tranſmigrated into you; and it is a thing will well become your Lordſhips, to uphold the Dignity of your Places, and to preſerve that due reſpect and reverence that is owing unto you by virtue of your Places. It is Stoutneſs and Courage, and Magnanimity, that becomes a Magiſtrate, nay, ſhould I ſay Severity, I ſhould agree with the ſaying of the Orator.

‘There are ſome that affect Popularity, diving into the Peoples Hearts with kiſſes, offerings, and fawnings. This becomes no ſubordinate Magiſtrate. It is your part, my Lords, to break the Inſolencies of ſuch —— before it approach too near the Royal Throne. And you cannot too much uphold that Reverence and Reſpect that is owing to your Places upon the Bench; when you ſhall give an account of ſuch as theſe that miſbehave themſelves, you, my Lords the Judges, ſhall quickly ſee the Commiſſion ſhall not be troubled with them. The Officers, and all other Miniſters of Juſtice, are to attend you to this like purpoſe, to receive Information from you. You ſhall do well to look to them, that they do not oppreſs the People by unjuſt exaction and extortion; let them be careful to look to the execution of Juſtice, for Execution is the Life of the Law; for whoſoever by wilfulneſs or negligence ſuffereth not the Law to be put in execution, doth as much as in him lieth wound the Law in the Life thereof. Sometimes Sheriffs and Under-Sheriffs can hardly be got to execute any Proceſs at all, or Extents, or Cap. Utlagatum. They will look through their Fingers, and ſee when and whom they pleaſe, ſometime for reward, partiality, and affection, or fear of offending Great Ones, or offending a Multitude. For this they have no Plea; for in Law I am ſure it was never known, that it was admitted in Court of Juſtice for a good Return, that a Sheriff could not execute a Writ, he having Poſſe Comitatus at his Command to aſſiſt him, to the end that the Law may not be fruitleſs, and like a dead Letter, but that vigor may be given unto it.

‘While I am ſpeaking of this, I cannot forget to put you in mind of one Particular at leaſt, if I may call it a Particular that doth concern the general Safety and Preſervation of the whole Kingdom. His Majeſty ever ſince his happy acceſs to this Crown, hath had a vigilant eye of our Neighbour's Eſtates, and taken into his Princely Conſideration, out of the affection and love to his People, and tender care of their Preſervation, and the Safety of this Kingdom, how active the times are; what preparation is made round about us; what endeavours there are to encreaſe their Naval Powers in other Nations. It is known well, that the right of the Dominion of the Narrow-Seas belong unto the King, and it hath been his Majeſty's gracious Wiſdom, and Providence, and Care over us, that theſe Storms have been prevented, that perhaps had fallen upon us before we could have diſcerned them. The King hath many eyes, many ears, and many hands; and it is impoſſible for every Man to attain to that knowledg of Foreign States that He hath. And I will be bold to ſay, it is a baſe and unworthy part to ſuffer it to enter into the heart of any Man, that we the Subjects of England, that have ſo juſt, gracious, and pious a King, to imagin, that unleſs urgent Neceſſity did require, that his Majeſty would charge himſelf and his Subjects without cauſe. All the World knoweth he reapeth no benefit by it, and certainly it is a malignant humor to think the contrary. The Regality of it hath been already determined, upon as great, a ſolid and

15 Caroli.

'weighty Debate, as ever was in any Cauſe in Weſtminſter-Hall: It 'was his Majeſty's goodneſs to have it ſo. And yet I know not how 'it comes about, I hope it is out of miſapprehenſion, or falſe intimation put into the hearts of his People, that there is not alacrity and 'cheerfulneſs given to the obedience of his Majeſty's Writs for Ship-money, that his affection and care of his People doth require. God 'forbid we ſhould ſtay for proviſion of Naval Power, till our Enemies be floating upon us. Let them look to their Duties, I doubt 'not your Lordſhips will look to ſee that there be obedience given, 'and that thoſe Officers that do neglect their Duties, may be brought to 'account, that they may know what the diſpleaſure is to diſobey his 'Majeſty's Commands.

'I ſhall not trouble your Lordſhips with many particulars, your 'Lordſhips better know them than I can tell you: yet ſomething I have 'in command from his Majeſty.

'His Majeſty (as all that know him) is the great example of Piety, and of one that daily frequents the Houſe of God, as any Prince 'in the World; he doth inſtruct his own People his own way, and 'commands your care to put that Law in execution, that muſt bring 'Men to God's Houſe; and when they are there, they ſhall learn to 'obey the Law for Conſcience-ſake, and not for by-reſpects. You 'know well that we have two kinds of Oppoſers of Religion, as it 'ſtandeth, and againſt them it is fit you bend your Forces, and your 'Authority. And certainly, when we do conſider that for theſe eighty years and upwards, we have enjoyed ſuch Plenty and Peace, as 'no Nation hath had the like; what can we better attribute it unto, 'than the flouriſhing of the Goſpel among us? And if we ſhall neglect that great Bleſſing, all other Bleſſings will quickly turn into 'Curſes.

'The Popiſh Recuſants begin to increaſe, his Majeſty taketh notice 'of it, he doubteth that there hath not that particular care been taken, in looking to them in all places of the Kingdom, as is fit; your 'Lordſhips attend Civil Cauſes more than that; he commends it to 'your care, that if it be ſo now, it be ſo no more. The Book of 'Common-Prayer ſetteth forth the Rights and Ceremonies, eſtabliſhing 'the Doctrine of the Church of England, to which no juſt exception 'can be taken; for God loveth not to have his Houſe empty or waſte. 'Some, out of what humor I know not, will ſcarce admit of any 'Church at all. I wonder under what ſhow of Religion they can 'ſhew themſelves, when this Book was penned by thoſe that ſhed 'their Blood, and ſealed it with their Lives.

'My Lords, in the next place his Majeſty hath commanded me to 'put you in mind of the great abuſe that is in this Kingdom, by the 'ſwarming of Rogues, that hath been ſo often commended unto you, 'Your Lordſhips ſhall do well to take courſe for the ſuppreſſing and 'preventing thereof; and that Men of body and mind may be choſen 'Conſtables to execute their places. One great cauſe of their increaſe 'is, that the Houſes of Correction, which is the place of their Retreat, 'are no better looked unto. Your Lordſhips ſhall do a great ſervice 'to the Common-wealth, to take care that there be ſtricter Courſe 'taken of the Houſes of Correction, that they may be placed near 'unto the Goal.

An. 1639.

'Another thing is, The exceſs of Ale-houſes, the Nurſery of 'Rogues; in that your Lordſhips ſhall do well to take a ſtrict account 'of them in all Places, for the very Number is a Crime.

'In the third place, The increaſe of Rogues is, by reaſon of their 'not putting out of Apprentices, the Seed-Plot of Rogues groweth 'from thence; your Lordſhips care in this alſo will be very neceſſary.

'My Lords, I have nothing more to ſay, your Lordſhips are ſo 'well verſed in every thing fit to be given in Charge, that I might 'be ſilent.

'I ſhall only conclude with one thing, which is a thing that hath 'bin by the Lords of this Court commended to your care, upon a 'Cauſe that hath bin here heard; The Court for Sheriffs of Counties, it is not at their Will and Pleaſure, or for their own Vanity 'and Oſtentation that they are to conduct you, but it is out of their 'Duty; and when the Diſcretion, and generous Diſpoſition of any, 'ſhall not teach them how to do it, it is fit for you to call them to 'account.

'Juſtices of the Peace, you ſhall have of them that will the firſt 'day attend you for an hour or two, perhaps to ſave a Fine, perhaps to 'ſhew their Country they are in Commiſſion of the Peace: Emptineſs 'becomes not the Seat of Juſtice, therefore hold them to their Duty 'to attend you all the time of the Aſſizes, and not to depart without 'your Licence.

'The King our Maſter doth as well know Men as any Prince in the 'World, but it is impoſſible for him to know all; you are the great 'Surveyors of the Kingdom, for this purpoſe it is that all Officers 'and Miniſters of Juſtice are commanded to attend you, to inform 'you of ſuch as you ſhould have knowledg of, that you may inform 'his Majeſty of them. I have obſerved (while I had the Honour to 'be Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas) that few gave their Attendance; what humour they are of that think themſelves too good to 'ſerve the King I know not, but let them know that it is in no Man's 'choice whether he will ſerve the King in the Miniſtry of Juſtice or no. 'Thoſe that are backward, or have not taken it, give up the Names of 'them, that they may ſee what puniſhment they ſhall undergo.

'There are ſome other Juſtices of Peace that are put in Commiſſion, to injure their Neighbours, and to domineer over them, and 'to carry things with a Faction. But upon your intimation of ſuch 'Perſons, the Commiſſion ſhall be eaſed of them alſo.

Warrant for a Commiſſion for the Earl of Northumberland to be Lord Admiral, and Captain of the King's Army.

Feb. 14.

The King's Majeſty repoſing ſpecial Truſt and Confidence in the approved Wiſdom, Fidelity, Valour, and great Abilities of Algernon Earl of Northumberland, did by his Letters Patents grant a Commiſsion to the ſaid Algernon Earl of Northumberland, Lord High Admiral of England, to be Captain General of his Army, intended to be forthwith raiſed, and of all other Forces that ſhould be raiſed in England and Wales, joined, or to be joined with them, to reſiſt and withſtand all Invaſions, Tumults, Seditions, Conſpiracies, or Attempts that may happen within England or Wales, to be made againſt the King's Perſon, Crown and Dignity. And alſo to lead the ſaid Army into the Kingdom of Scotland, there to Invade, Aſſault, Repel, Reſiſt, Fight with, Subdue, Slay, or Kill, all, every, or any Enemies or Rebels againſt the King, of what Nation ſoever, that in Scotland, or any part thereof, ſhall make any Inſurrection, Sedition, Tumult, or Conſpiracy whatſoever, againſt the King, his Crown and Dignity. And the ſaid Army to Govern and Conduct, againſt all and ſingular Enemies, Rebels, Traytors, and all other attempting any thing againſt the King, within either of the ſaid Kingdoms; and with the ſaid Enemies, Rebels, Traytors, &c. to Fight, and them to Invade, Reſiſt, Repreſs, Purſue, and Follow, and to Subdue, Slay, and Kill, and to do all other acts and things which ſhall be in his diſcretion requiſite, for government of the ſaid Army, and for the ſuppreſsing and ſubduing of the ſaid Rebels and Traitors, &c. and to exerciſe upon them Martial Law, according to his diſcretion, as Captain General; and to put execution of Death, or otherwiſe to puniſh ſuch, or ſo many of them, as he ſhall think meet by his diſcretion; and to tender Mercy and Pardon to all ſuch Enemies, &c. in either of the ſaid Kingdoms, as ſhall ſubmit and deſire to be received to Mercy. And the King, by the ſaid Commiſſion, doth promiſe that ſuch Perſons ſhall accordingly enjoy his Grace, Mercy, and Pardon: And in caſe of Invaſion of Enemies, Inſurrections, &c. in any of the ſaid Kingdoms, that the ſaid Captain General do reſiſt and repreſs the ſame by Battel, or other kind of Force; giving him Power to grant Warrants and Commiſsions to Lieutenants, and Deputy-Lieutenants, to raiſe ſuch Horſe and Foot to join with the Army, as he in his diſcretion ſhall think fit. And for the encouragement of fit and deſerving Perſons, the King, by the ſaid Letters Patents, did give full Power and Authority to make Knights, and reward with the Honour of Knighthood, ſuch as in his diſcretion ſhall deſerve the ſame in the ſaid Service, and to aſſign them Arms, and Enſigns of Arms, as he ſhall think meet, and as to the Eſtate of Captain General appertaineth; giving him Power to Command all Gariſons, Forts, and Caſtles in England and Scotland, and to place or diſplace any Captain or other Officer, as he ſhall ſee cauſe. And laſtly, The King by the ſaid Letters Patents, doth command all Lieutenants of Counties, Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Vicounts, Barons, Baronets, Sheriffs, and all other Officers and Subjects of what degree ſoever, that they, with their Power and Servants, from time to time, as they ſhall be commanded manded by the Captain General of the Army, to be Attendant, Aiding and Aſsiſting in the due execution thereof, as they ſhall anſwer it at their Peril; and the ſaid Army to be governed according to the ſaid Commiſsion, or by ſuch Inſtructions as the King hath delivered under his Sign Manual, or ſhall be hereafter directed under the ſaid Sign Manual, Signet, Privy-Seal, or Great Seal.

Afterwards a Commiſſion was granted to Thomas Lord Vicount Wentworth, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, to be Lieutenant General to the Earl of Northumberland; who by reaſon of the Earl of Northumberland's ſickneſs at that time, had the ſole Conduct of the Army till the Fight at Newbourn; and whilſt the great Council of Peers continued at York, and till Novemb. 11. when he came to London, and was ſuddenly impeached of High-Treaſon.

‘IN the Month of February, in the time of Lent, Mr. Bagſhaw, Reader of the Middle-Temple, made choice of the Statute of 25 Ed. 3. Cap. 7. upon which he did read; and divided his Matter into ſeveral Parts, allotting a Caſe for every day on which he was to Read. Among which Caſes ſo divided, being ſeven in all, one Queſtion was, Whether or no it be a good Act of Parliament, without Aſſent of the Lord's Spiritual? Which he held in the Affirmative, and proved, That ſome Parliaments were held without any Biſhops at all; and that divers Acts have bin made when they were preſent, and would not conſent. And laſtly, That the Biſhops cannot ſit in in Caſe of Blood in Judicature; but they may ſit to aſſiſt to Enact Laws, but not to give Aſſent for Execution of them in Caſe of any Blood.

‘Out of his ſecond Caſe this Queſtion did ariſe, Whether any Beneficed Clerk were capable of Temporal Juriſdiction at the time of making that Law? Which he held in the Negative; for the firſt that ever were made Juſtices of Peace, or had Power in Temporal Juriſdictions, were the Biſhops of Durham and York, nine Years after the ſaid Act.

‘But the Reader had no ſooner made known upon what Statute he would read, in his ſaid previous Diſcourſe which he made unto the Bench, the firſt day when he began to read thereupon; but it was preſently carried to Lambeth-Houſe, and the Biſhop of Canterbury made acquainted upon what Points the Reader would inſiſt. The King thereupon ſent a Command unto him to forbear his Reading at that time. And the Reader was privately told, unleſs he did repair to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury and give him ſatisfaction, he was not like to proceed. The Reader accordingly repaired to Lambeth-Houſe, and at the third time he had admittance. The Arch-Biſhop told him, That he had fallen upon an unfit Subject, and in an unſeaſonable Time, and that it would ſtick cloſer to him than he was aware of.

‘To which the Reader replied, He had made choice of that Statute ſome years ſince, to prepare himſelf againſt the time of his Reading, 'and that at that time there was no oppoſiton in this Kingdom againſt 'the Prelacy; and what was done in another Kingdom as to Biſhops, 'concerned not this Kingdom; and further ſaid, That what he had 'delivered was good Law, and he was able to maintain it, and would 'ſtand by it; and he had much wronged the Houſe of the Middle-Temple, if he had not, according to his Turn and Cuſtom, began his 'Reading, which was very chargeable to the Reader. But he could 'obtain no leave to proceed further in the Argument of his Caſes of 'Law.

'Nevertheleſs the Gentlemen of the Inns of Court of the Middle-Temple, ſhewed their reſpect unto him for his willingneſs to read Law 'unto them, having alſo Read well in the Kitchin, feaſting the Houſe 'during the time he ſtaid (though a ſilenced Reader) and rid on 'Horſe-back with him, and attended him gracefully out of Town.

Lord William Hamilton made Secretary of State for Scotland.

In this month of February the Earl of Sterling, Secretary of State, died; in whoſe place the King made choice of Marqueſs Hamilton's Brother, Lord William, whom he created Earl of Lanerick, who was then but 24 Years of Age, yet well qualified, and of good Parts.

Ship-Money preſented by the Grand Jury as a Grievance.

'THis day a Letter from Sir Chriſtopher Yelverton, High-Sheriff of the 'County of Northampton, with a Paper encloſed, being a Copy under 'the Hand of the Clerk of the Peace, of a Preſentment made by the 'Grand Jury at a Quarter-Seſſions concerning the Ship-Mony, were 'read at the Board, and then delivered to Mr. Attorney-General; and 'it was ordered, that he and Mr. Solicitor ſhould call before them the 'Clerk of the Peace, and the Fore-man of the ſaid Grand-Jury, and 'ſhould examine all ſuch Particulars concerning the Carriage of this 'Buſineſs, as they ſhould think fit, and thereupon report the ſame, to'gether with their Opinions, to the Board.

A Letter directed to the Lord Lieutenants of Surrey.

Concerning the Mutineers in the King's Bench.

AFter, &c. to your Lorſhips. Whereas we are informed by Sir John Lenthal Knight, Marſhal of the King's Bench, That the Priſoners under his charge, within that Priſon, are now, and have bin all laſt night, in an Uproar and Mutiny, and have gotten to themſelves divers Staves and Cudgels, and have broken up the Pavements of the Priſon, and have furniſhed and armed themſelves with Stones and Brick-bats, and do threaten to force and break open the Priſon. Theſe are therefore to pray and require your Lordſhips, the Lords Lieutenants of the County of Surrey, or one of you, to give preſent Order and Command to the Captains of the Trained Bands, within the Burrough of Southwark, to repair with their Officers and Souldiers preſently to the ſaid Priſon, and to ſuppreſs the ſaid Mutineers, and to keep them in quiet from time to time, until the Judg of the King's Bench *ſhall return to take Order about their pretended Grievances. A Letter to Sir Chriſtopher Yelverton, concerning Ship-Money, from the Privy-Council.

WE have had the patience to read your tedious Letter of the 18th of February, wherein with much affectation you repreſent the Difficulties which you find in the execution of the King's Writ for the Shipping-Buſineſs; and yet there is none of the Difficulties for which you have not already received direction how to proceed by your Inſtructions. We have conſidered of the Petition of the Grand Jury, very officiouſly by you ſent up, atteſted under the Hand of the Clerk of the Peace. And upon the whole we make this Judgment, That inſtead of doing your duty in executing of the Writ, you endeavour to prepare a way for an excuſe for doing nothing. Otherwiſe why ſhould you make a Doubt by a Parentheſis, (if Ship-money be excepted againſt): for we muſt let you know, We expect that you ſhould perform the Service according to the Writ, and the Inſtructions ſent therewith; and in caſe you neglect it, and ſo be the cauſe (for ſo much as concerns that County) that the King ſhall ſuffer in point of State and Honour, *and of the ſafety of his People, that there will be a quick and exemplary reparation required of you, in proportion to the dangerous Conſequence of your neglect. And as we now give you this Admonition, ſo if you do not make uſe thereof by redeeming your former Default, not by Diſcourſes, but by Effects, this will likewiſe be added to your account. The Proceedings of the Scots Commiſſioners, ſent from the Parliament of Scotland, with the King's Majeſty at Whitehall.

'SO ſoon as our Commiſſioners got preſence, and had the honour 'to kiſs his Majeſty's Hand, they did in all humility repreſent to 'his Majeſty how grievous it was to his Subjects of that of his Ancient and Native Kingdom that their Loyalty ſhould be call'd in 'Queſtion, or that their Proceedings ſhould be traduced as trenching 'upon his Majeſty's Authority, or as contrary to the Laws; and craved a publick hearing before his Majeſty's Council of both Kingdoms, for clearing the lawfulneſs of their Proceedings, and vindicating them from the unjuſt Aſperſions laid upon them by ſiniſter information, and that relation publickly made by the Earl of Traquair, 'before the whole Council of England, to their prejudice; and did 'likewiſe deliver to his Majeſty a Thankſgiving from the General Aſſembly, containing in it a Supplication for Ratifying the Concluſions thereof. This Speech was delivered upon the 20*th* of February, (Engliſh-ſtyle) 1639.

‘The King hereupon commanded, That whatſoever they had to Remonſtrate or Petition to him, they ſhould preſent the ſame to him in Writing, and that he would ſignify his Pleaſure to them by the Earl of Traquair; whereupon they gave a Remonſtrance or Supplication following.

‘Upon the 26*th* of February, the Earl of Traquair did ſhew our Commiſſioners, That it was his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould ſubſcribe the two former Petitions, given in the 20*th* day by them to his Majeſty, and that they ſhould keep the ſame way thereafter in all Petitions that ſhould be preſented by them to his Majeſty; which accordingly they did. And they required the Earl of Traquair to write and ſubſcribe any Direction or Commandment he brought from the King to them; which he did.

‘Upon the ſecond of March, the Earl of Traquair did ſignify to them, under his Hand, That it was his Majeſty's Pleaſure that they ſhould attend at the Council-Chamber the next day, at two of the Clock in the Afternoon, ſuch Lords of the Council as his Majeſty had appointed for that effect. And our Commiſſioners underſtanding that the King was going to Hampton-Court, and that the Hearing he had appointed for them, was only before ſome of his Council, ſpecially ſelected and appointed as a Committee for that purpoſe; but being enjoined by their Inſtructions, not to anſwer or acknowledg any Committee, nor other Judicatory; they deſired the Marqueſs of Hamilton to ſhew his Majeſty, that they would decline to propone their Deſires and Reaſons of their Demands, or make anſwer to the Committee, or any other whatſoever, except the King their Maſter, to whom they were ſent. Which being made known to his Majeſty, he was graciouſly pleaſed to delay his going to Hampton-Court till the Afternoon, and did hear our Commiſſioners himſelf: In whoſe Royal Preſence and Audience (his Majeſty having his Committee with him) our Commiſſioners did clear us and our Proceedings from thoſe unjuſt Aſperſions laid upon us, and did ſhew what high eſtimation we had of Soveraignty, and our conſtant Reſolution to ſtand to the Defence of our Religion. And that our Deſires, both in Matter and Manner, are no other but what we did crave in our former Petitions, and are neceſſary for eſtabliſhing of Religion, and the good Peace of the Kingdom, and are agreeable to the Fundamental Laws, and Laudable Practices thereof, and to the Articles of Pacification, without wronging the Kirk or State, or any ways trenching upon his Majeſty's Princely Power and Royal Authority: And did therefore crave, that He would be graciouſly pleaſed to command the Parliament to proceed and determine for Ratifying of the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, and Enact ſuch other Statutes as are neceſſary for eſtabliſhing Religion, and ſetling the Peace of the Kingdom, as their Speech then ſpoken (and afterwards given in Writing,) doth import, as followeth.

An. 1639.

The Speech made to the King by the Lord Loudon.

SIR,

‘As we did ſhow in that humble Remonſtrance which we gave to your Majeſty in Writ, That no earthly Thing could be more grievous to your Majeſty's Subjects, convened by your Royal Authority in the Parliament of Scotland, than that their Loyalty ſhould be call'd in queſtion, or any ſuch hard Impreſſions ſhould be given againſt their Proceedings, as might derogate from that high eſtimation which they have of Soveraignty, and the tender reſpect they carry to your Majeſty's inviolable Authority: So do we acknowledg your Majeſty's Goodneſs and Juſtice, in keeping one Ear for us againſt all Suggeſtions and Obloquies, till the Reaſons of our Proceedings and Demands were made known from our ſelves; And that your Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to grant us this favour, of a full and publick Hearing. But becauſe the Parliament of that your Majeſty's Ancient and Native Kingdom, is Independent, and not accountable to any other Judicature, we hope your Majeſty will pardon, and allow us to decline to ſpeak, or anſwer before any of your Majeſty's Council, or other Judicatures whatſoever, as thoſe who have not any Power to judg of the Laws, Actions, or Proceedings of the Parliament of that Kingdom. And as we acknowledg your Majeſty's favour in allowing us to tender the Liberties and Freedom of your Majeſty's Ancient and Native Kingdom; ſo are we glad before all the World, to clear the loyalty and lawfulneſs of their Proceedings, and do congratulate that your Majeſty hath Indicted a Parliament here, which we hope will advert to the good of Religion, your Majeſty's Honour, and Peace of your Dominions: Albeit they be not Judges to determine of our Actions, (which are ſuch, as when they ſhall be known to your Majeſty, not upon Report, but upon true Trial, we are moſt confident will merit approbation at the Throne of your Majeſty's Juſtice): But becauſe we hear that your Majeſty's good Subjects are traduced, as having intention to diminiſh your Majeſty's Authority, and ſhake off that civil and dutiful Obedience due to Soveraignty: Therefore before we deſcend to the particular Actions and Articles of the Parliament, for vindicating us from ſo grievous and foul an Imputation, we do in our Name, and in the Name of the Parliament that ſent us, declare before God and the World, That we never had nor have any ſuch thought of withdrawing our ſelves from that humble and dutiful Subjection and Obedience to your Majeſty and your Government, which by the Deſcent and Raign of ſo many Kings is due to your Majeſty; and never had nor have any intent or deſire to attempt any thing that may tend to the diminiſhing of your Majeſty's Princely Power; but on the contrary, we acknowledg our Quietneſs, Stability, and Happineſs, to depend upon the ſafety of your Majeſty's Perſon, and maintenance of your Greatneſs and Royal Authority, as God's Vicegerent ſet over us for maintenance of Religion, and Adminiſtration of Juſtice; and have ſolemnly ſworn, not only to ſtand to the Defence of your Majeſty's Perſon and Authority in the preſervation and 'defence of Religion, Liberties, and Laws of the Kirk and Kingdom; 'but alſo in every Cauſe which may concern your Majeſty's Honour, 'ſhall according to the Laws of the Kingdom, and duty of good Subjects, concur with our Friends, in quiet manner, or in Arms, as we 'ſhall be required. But if any be ſo wicked, as to ſeek occaſion to 'divide betwixt your Majeſty and your Kingdom, and for their own 'ends go about to proſtitute the purity of Religion, and the Liberties 'and Laws of that your Majeſty's Ancient and Native Kingdom; we 'can give them no other character, but that which your Majeſty's 'Father of bleſſed memory gave them, terming ſuch Men, Vipers and 'Peſts againſt the King and his Kingdom. And if it pleaſe God for 'our Sins, to make our condition ſo deplorable, as they may get the 'ſhadow of your Majeſty's Authority, (as we hope in God they 'will not) to palliate their ends, then as thoſe, who are ſworn to defend 'our Religion, our recourſe muſt be only to the God of Jacob for our 'refuge, who is Lord of Lords, and King of Kings, and by whom 'Kings do reign, and Princes decree Juſtice. And if in ſpeaking thus 'out of zeal to Religion, and the Duty we owe to our Country, and 'that Charge which is laid upon us, any thing hath eſcaped us, ſince 'it is ſpoken from the ſincerity of our Hearts, we fall down at your 'Majeſty's feet, humbly craving pardon for our freedom.

'Having thus, with your Majeſty's permiſſion, cleared the Loyalty 'of your Subjects, that we may next ſhew the reaſon of their Demands, 'and equity of their Proceeding in Parliament, we do firſt crave, 'That if our Anſwers cannot give plenary ſatisfaction to the Objections and Exceptions that ſhall be made againſt their Proceedings, that 'our not knowing of thoſe Objections (albeit we did often require 'your Majeſty's Commiſſioner to ſhew the ſame, that we might be the 'more able to give your Majeſty content; yet being ſtill concealed 'from us, and the Records and Regiſters of Parliament alſo ſtill kept 'from us,) may ſerve much for our excuſe. And if any the Propoſitions and Articles ſought and craved in Parliament, ſhall ſeem harſh 'at the firſt view to ſuch as know not our Laws, that we do expect 'from them the Judgment of Charity, who ought (rather than to 'paſs a raſh Cenſure upon us) to profeſs Ignorantiam juris & facti 'alieni; and that they would diſtinguiſh betwixt the Deſires and Actions of a Parliament, who (being convened by Royal Authority, 'and honoured with your Majeſty's or your Commiſſioner's preſence,) 'are makers of Laws, againſt whom there is no Law; and the Actions of private Perſons, againſt whom Laws are made.

'And as the Deſires of the Subjects are no other in the matter, but 'what they did humbly crave in their former Petitions, and are neceſſary for eſtabliſhing of Religion, and the Good and Peace of the 'Kingdom, which can never oppugn the King's Honour, and are 'agreeable to the Articles of Pacification; ſo in like manner they are 'agreeable to the Laws and Practices of that Kingdom.

'And to deſcend more ſpecially; All the Articles given in are either 'ſuch as concern private Subjects, ſuch as are for Manufactures, Merchants Trading, and others of that kind; which do not ſo much 'concern your Majeſty, or the Publick, as the Intereſt of private 'Men, which are but minima, & de minimis non curat Lex: Or they 'are Publick Acts, which do concern the Religion and Liberties of 'the Kirk and Kingdom; as the ratifying of the Concluſions of the

April 1639.

‘Aſſembly, the Act of Conſtitution of Parliaments, the Act of Reciſion, the Act againſt Popery, and others of that kind. Wherein, becauſe the eyes of the World were upon them, and that hard Conſtructions have been made of their Proceedings, and that Malice is prompted for her Obloquies, and waiteth on with open mouth to ſnatch at the ſmalleſt ſhadow of diſ-reſpect to your Majeſty, that our Proceedings may be made odious to ſuch as know them not, we have endeavoured to walk with that tenderneſs which becometh dutiful Subjects, who are deſirous to limit themſelves according to Reaſon, and the rule of Law.

‘For the better underſtanding whereof, we muſt diſtinguiſh betwixt Regnum conſtituendum, and Regnum conſtitutum, a Kingdom before it be ſetled, and a Kingdom which is eſtabliſhed by Laws. Wherein (as good Subjects eſteeem it their greateſt glory) to maintain the Honour and lawful Authority of their King; ſo good Kings, (as your Majeſty's Father of ever bleſſed memory affirms, holding that Maxim, that Salus Populi eſt ſuprema Lex,) will be content to govern their Subjects according to the Law of God, and fundamental Laws of their Kingdom.

‘Next we muſt diſtinguiſh betwixt the Kirk and State, betwixt the Eccleſiaſtick and Civil Power, both which are materially one, yet formally they are contra-diſtinct in Power, Juriſdiction, Laws, Bodies, Ends, Offices, and in Officers. And albeit the Kirk and Eccleſiaſtick Aſſemblies thereof, be formally different and contra-diſtinct from the Parliament, and Civil Judicatories; yet there is ſo ſtrict and neceſſary conjunction betwixt the Eccleſiaſtick and Civil Juriſdiction, betwixt Religion and Juſtice, as the one cannot firmly ſubſiſt and be preſerv'd without the other; and therefore like Hippocrates's Twins, they muſt ſtand and fall, live and die together. Which made us all in our Petitions to your Majeſty, who is Cuſtos utriuſque Tabulæ, to crave, that as Matters Eccleſiaſtical be determined by the General and other Aſſemblies of the Kirk, and Matters Civil by Parliament; ſo ſpecially to crave, that the Sanction of the Civil Law ſhould be added to the Eccleſiaſtical Concluſions and Conſtitutions of the Kirk and her Aſſemblies, leſt there ſhould be any repugnancy betwixt the Eccleſiaſtick and Civil Laws, which your Majeſty did graciouſly condeſcend unto. And your Majeſty's Commiſſioner repreſenting your Majeſty's Royal Power and Perſon, in the General Aſſembly, wherein the whole Congregations and Pariſhes in Scotland are repreſented, upon diligent enquiry, finding that all thoſe Evils which troubled the Kirk and Kingdom, proceeded from the Prelates, conſented that Epiſcopacy be removed out of the Kirk of Scotland, and declared, that all Civil Places of Kirk-men to be unlawful in that Kingdom; and having ratified the Covenant, ordaining all the Subjects to ſubſcribe the ſame, with the General Aſſembly's Explanation in that ſence. And being alſo obliged to ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly in Parliament, it doth neceſſarily follow, that Biſhops who uſurped to be the Kirk, and in the name of the Kirk, did repreſent the third Eſtate; and that all Abbats, Priors, and others, who either did or do claim to repreſent the Kirk, be taken away. Which alſo by neceſſary conſequence doth infer, that there muſt be an Act of Conſtitution of the Parliament without them, and an Act for repealing the former Laws, whereby the Kirk being declared the third Eſtate, and 'Biſhops to repreſent the Kirk; both which the Kirk hath now renounced and condemned. So that unleſs the Act of Conſtitution of 'the Parliament, and Act of Reciſſory paſs, it is impoſſible either to 'have a valid Parliament, or to ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, 'which your Majeſty hath graciouſly promiſed to perform, and which 'your Subjects are obliged to maintain.

'And ſeeing your Majeſty's Subjects have no other ends, but ſuch 'as may ſerve for eſtabliſhing of Religion, and Peace of the Kingdom, 'and are agreeable to the fundamental Laws thereof, and to the Articles of Pacification; and that the Parliament is the only lawful 'means to remedy our Evils, remove our Diſtractions, and ſettle a 'ſolid and perfect Peace: The ſum of your Subjects deſire is, That 'your Majeſty may be graciouſly pleaſed to command the Parliament 'to proceed freely in thoſe Articles given in to them, and to determine them. And whatſoever Objections or Informations are made 'againſt any of the particular Overtures, Artieles, or Proceedings 'of the Parliament, we are moſt willing and deſirous, according to 'your Majeſty's Commandment, for avoiding conteſtation about words, 'to receive the ſame in writ; and are content in the ſame way to return our Anſwers, and humble Deſires.

'When we came again before the King, his Majeſty ſaid, we knew 'where we left the laſt day, concerning our Inſtructions.

'It was anſwered, That according to his Majeſty's Command we 'had brought our Inſtructions with us; but firſt we deſired two 'things of his Majeſty.

'The firſt was, That albeit his Majeſty might have any with him to 'hear us, and to ask their advice; yet his Majeſty would pardon us in 'declining to anſwer before any, as Judges of our Proceedings in Parliament; and that we would anſwer none of their Queſtions. This 'his Majeſty was pleaſed to admit, but ſaid, He would crave their 'Opinions.

'The ſecond requeſt was, That becauſe the laſt day ſome did write 'as we ſpake, and for that the writing of a word only of a Sentence, 'or a ſentence only of a ſpeech, might admit of a wrong conſtruction, 'and wreſt the meaning of the Speaker; therefore that nothing ſpoken by us, and put in writ by any there preſent, ſhould be of any 'faith or credit againſt us, unleſs it be firſt read unto us, and we allow 'of it. Otherwiſe we would diſclaim it, and would rather give all 'that we ſhould ſpeak in writing, upon condition that if his Majeſty 'ſhould take exceptions at any thing therein contained, we might have 'liberty to interpret our own meaning, becauſe unuſquiſque eſt optimus 'Interpres ſui; and thereupon we delivered his Majeſty a Copy of 'what was ſpoken the day before.

'Whereupon it was anſwered, That it was an ordinary cuſtom in 'Star-chamber, and other Judicatures, that where the King was ſitting, ſeveral Men did write, eſpecially the King's Secretaries.

'To this we replied, That we were not now before any Judicatory, 'and we would adhere to no Man's writ but our own, or that we 'did approve of. His Majeſty then ſaid, that nothing which was 'written ſhould be uſed to tie us, except it were firſt read unto us, 'and we approved of it.

An. 1639.

'When we had ſhewed his Majeſty our Inſtructions, he gave them 'us again to read. Which being read, notice was taken who had 'ſubſcribed them, and of their Names written; and it was objected, 'that there were only ſome few Noblemens hands at them, and ſome 'few Gentlemen and Burgeſſes; and that the Noblemen of prime 'places and antiquity had not ſubſcribed, as Argile, Rothes, Montroſs, 'Marſhal, &c. and that thoſe who had ſubſcribed them were all but 'Noblemen of the King's own creation, ſave Balmerino, who held his 'Life and Head of the King.

'It was anſwered, That thoſe Inſtructions were warranted by 'the Parliament, and were relative to former Inſtructions given 'to the Earl of Dumfermling, and Lord London, which were ſubſcribed by a great many Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Burgeſſes, 'who were preſent at that time when the Parliament was ſitting; 'and their laſt Inſtructions were ſubſcribed by thoſe Noblemen 'and others, who were Commiſſioners appointed by the Parliament, to make Remonſtrances to his Majeſty, and receive their 'Anſwers. Which was done with conſent of the whole Parliament, 'and had a more formal Power than if they had been ſubſcribed by 'the other Noblemen, then not ſitting in Parliament. His Majeſty 'hereupon deſired to ſee the former Inſtructions, ſubſcribed by the 'other Noblemen; which we did then ſhew him. And after he had 'ſeen the ſame, he urged us to ſhew the Warrant given by the Parliament to thoſe who ſubſcribed our laſt Inſtructions; which we told 'him was not about us: the King required to ſee it at the firſt opportunity, which we did accordingly.

'The King then asked us, as he did the former day, What power 'we had to give him ſatisfaction? for our Inſtructions were only for 'juſtifying and not ſatisfying; and that he dealt with us on very unequal terms, having power to ſatisfy us. And albeit he could make 'it appear, that ſome of our deſires and proceedings in Parliament 'were not agreeable to Law, yet we had not power in any wiſe to 'yeeld in any point to give him any ſatisfaction.

'Whereunto it was anſwered, That as the Parliament had no other 'deſires, but what is contained in our Petitions, nor no other ends, 'but ſuch as might ſerve for eſtabliſhing of Religion, and the Good 'and Peace of the Kingdom; ſo had they given us full power to clear, 'that their Deſires and Proceedings were agreeable to the Fundamental Laws and Practices of the Kingdom, and to the Articles of 'Pacification. And that accordingly we were ready to clear their 'Proceedings were agreeable to Law and Reaſon. And that there 'was no neceſſity of a further power from the Parliament, until we 'knew what exceptions and objections would be made againſt it. Neither was it likely that the Parliament would divolve their full deciſive Power (which was proper to themſelves) to any other, by 'way of reference, and deprive themſelves of their Parliamentary 'Privileges and Right. Neither was there any but neceſſary Acts, 'and ſuch as conduced to the Peace of the Kirk and Kingdom, and 'were agreeable to the Fundamental Laws thereof, and ſuch as 'the King was obliged to ratify by the Articles of Pacification.

'Hereupon the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury (admitting what was 'granted by the King, and acknowledged by them, viz. That the 'King was not in Judicature, nor they to ſpeak in any ſort as Judges, but only as thoſe whom his Majeſty had required to hear and give their Opinion) deſired his Majeſty to enquire of us, that ſeeing we did aver, That all our Deſires and Proceedings were agreeable to the Laws and Cuſtoms of that Kingdom, (which could be no other than the preſent Statutes of that Kingdom), how could the ſame conſiſt with the other part of our Deſires, whereby we craved preſent ſtanding Laws to be Repealed? And where we ſaid his Majeſty was obliged to Ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, was only but a Parentheſis, and ſaid, It was more than he believed, that his Majeſty was bound to Ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly. And then he ſaid to the King, Sir, I think your Majeſty hath not obliged your ſelf to take away the preſent ſtanding Laws.

‘To this we anſwered, That there was no repugnancy betwixt theſe two Aſſertions, viz. That our Deſires were agreeable to the Fundamental Laws, and yet that we craved, That the Acts which were repugnant to the Concluſions of the Aſſembly ſhould be Repealed; for both could very well conſiſt: becauſe, as it was competent to the Parliament to make Laws and Statutes for the good of the Church and State; ſo it was proper for them to Repeal all Laws contrary thereunto. And for that which you call the Parentheſis, of the King's being obliged to ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly; We do not ſpeak it by way of Suppoſition, but do poſitively affirm, That his Majeſty is obliged to Ratify the Conſtitutions of the Aſſembly.

‘The Arch-Biſhop replied, That he hoped that we thought him not ſo groſs nor ignorant, but he knew that the Parliament had Power as well to repeal Laws, as to make Statutes, pro ratione & diſtinctione temporum; but his Objection was, How it was poſſible? how our Deſires were agreeable to the Laws? and yet craved ſtanding Laws to be repealed, by Reaſon of the Acts and Concluſions of the Aſſembly, ex conſequenti. For if the Clergy of England being now call'd to their Convocation-Houſe at the time of this Parliament, ſhould take upon them to Anul and Repeal Acts of Parliament, his Majeſty might eaſily conſider what great Confuſion and Danger would follow.

‘To which was anſwered, That by reaſoning his Objection, he gave no further ſtrength to his Argument than it had before, and which was ſufficiently anſwered; but only now he added, That Acts of Parliament could not fall becauſe of the Acts of the Aſſembly, ex conſequenti, which he would prove by an Inſtance of Compariſon, between the Convocation-Houſe & the Parliament of England. For anſwer whereof it was replied, That it did neceſſarily follow, that Acts of Parliament, which depend upon Acts and Concluſions of the Aſſembly, muſt fall and be repealed when the Aſſembly had reduced, repealed, and anulled the Acts of the Aſſembly, whereof thoſe Acts of Parliament were but Ratificatory, and depended upon the Acts of the Aſſembly; becauſe ſublata cauſa tollitur effectus, & acceſſarium ſequitur ſuum principale. And as for the Inſtance concerning the Convocation-Houſe, which did only conſiſt of Prelats, and ſome of the Clergy, it was of a far different nature from our General Aſſembly, where his Majeſty or his Commiſſioner ſit, and where the whole Congregations and Paroaches of the Kingdom were repreſented by their Commiſſioners from Preſbyteries; ſo that what was done by

‘them, was done by the whole Church and Kingdom, and ſo ought to be allowed in Parliament: Therefore there could be no ſuch Inference thereof made of any ſuch dangerous Conſequence, as if the Convocation-Houſe (which conſiſted only of Prelats, and ſome of the Clergy) ſhould change Religion, or take away Acts of Parliament made by the whole Eſtates of the Kingdom.

‘The Arch-Biſhop replyed, That their Convocation-Houſe was as eminent a Judicature as ours, and ought not to be ſo ſlighted: That the Clergy and himſelf had bin a long time Members of the Parliament; and that neither the Engliſh, nor no Reformed Church, had Laick Elders as we had in our Aſſemblies, and proteſted he ſhould loſe his life before they ſhould have them.

‘It was anſwered, That we were not medling, nor would have ſpoken of their Convocation-Houſe, unleſs he had mentioned it himſelf; and that it was a groſs miſtake of any that conceived Laicks were Members of the Aſſembly; but that the Office of Elders was Eccleſiaſtick, and as Orthodox and agreeable to Scripture, as any Order they had in the Convocation-Houſe: But we were only clearing the Power of our own General Aſſembly, and of the Equity and Deſires of the Parliament: And that as the Acts of the Aſſembly had repealed and taken away the former Acts of Aſſemblies, which did take away the Acts of Parliament, ratifying thoſe Acts ex conſequenti; ſo we craved, That the Acts of Parliament it ſelf might Repeal the Acts of Parliament which now had no force, and ſo ought to be repealed.

‘The Earl of Traquair ſaid, That all the Acts given into the Articles, were not conſented unto by the whole Eſtates and Subjects, but that in ſome of them they were of a different Judgment among themſelves, and that he hoped we would not ſtick in ſome things to yield to the King for his Majeſty's Satisfaction; but if we ſtood to juſtify all, the King had the more reaſon to crave from whom they had Warrant ſo to do.

‘To which it was anſwered, That he knew very well that all was not ſtood upon, for there were divers things paſt in Articles, ſome of them to be conſulted with the King; and what was ſtuck upon, was upon good Reaſon: Beſides, every thing done in Articles were not enacted Statutes, but only Propoſitions prepared for the Parliament; and it was ſufficient, if there were ſo much Law and Reaſon for thoſe Propoſitions, as merited the conſideration of the Parliament: but we told them, That we deſired rather to anſwer ſuch Objections in Writ, than Verbally.

‘The King having thus long debated and objected againſt the Sufficiency of our Power, made us remove to the next Room; and after adviſement taken, we were call'd in again, and told, That albeit his Majeſty in his own Judgment, as in the unanimous Judgment of thoſe that were with him, conceived we had no Power to give him Satisfaction, yet he was pleaſed to hear the particular Reaſons of our Demands. We replyed, That our Demands were only, that the Parliament might proceed and ratify the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, and to determine all the Articles given in unto them, as being agreeable to the Laws of the Land, and Articles of Pacification. And if any Objections were made, they would anſwer them in Writing. The King ſaid, It behoved his Commiſſioner to give the ‘Objections. We anſwered, That we knew his Lordſhip might give ‘them preſently, and we would anſwer them again the next day; but ‘they refuſed to give them till the morning. This we told them was ‘a protracting of time, and would force us to crave a time to return ‘our Anſwers.

Here followeth the Objections and Anſwers.

Queſtion.

‘WHether are you Warranted or Inſtructed from Parliament to ‘ſatisfy his Majeſty, anent the Power of Prorogation of Par‘liaments of himſelf, and of his own Prerogative ſimply? And whe‘ther a Parliament thus Prorogued ſimply by his own ſole Royal ‘Power, can or may ſit before the time to which his Majeſty hath ‘Prorogued the ſame? And if you have no Warrant nor Inſtruction ‘herein from the Parliament, What are your own private Judgments ‘herein?

Anſwer.

1. ‘As our Power and Inſtructions from the Parliament do war‘rant us to ſhew, That their Proceedings and Deſires are agreeable to ‘the Laws and Practice of the Kingdom, and to the Articles of Pa‘cification: So are we particularly injoined to anſwer all Objections ‘which either may be propounded, or which they conceived could ‘be propounded, againſt the Acts and Proceedings of the Parliament. ‘And as concerning any other Queſtion, which was not moved in ‘Parliament, nor is againſt the Articles and Propoſitions given in to ‘them; as the ſame did not fall within the Conſideration of the Par‘liament, ſo neither can it come within the compaſs of our Inſtructi‘ons, as that whereunto we have Warrant to anſwer. It is alſo to be ‘underſtood, that the Propoſitions and Acts given in to the Lords of ‘the Articles, are not Statutes, but are only propounded and given ‘in to them to be prepared for the Parliament, that the Parliament ‘may enact or refuſe the ſame as they ſhall find them expedient or in‘expedient, for the good of the Church and State.

‘And as concerning the Query anent the Prorogation of the Par‘liament, We are warranted by our Inſtructions and Informations to ‘ſhew, That the Prorogation of the Parliaments of that Kingdom, ‘being once Convened in plain Parliament, and having choſen the ‘Lords of Articles, or entred on Actions, hath ever bin done with ‘the conſent of the three Eſtates; as may be ſeen in the Raigns ‘of King James 6. Queen Mary, King James 5. King James 4. King ‘James 3. King James 2. King James 1. and ſo forth, in all the ‘Printed and Writen Records of Parliament; and they are confi‘dent that your Majeſty will be graciouſly pleaſed to keep that ſame ‘Form and Order of Prorogation of Parliaments, which all your moſt ‘Worthy and Royal Anceſtors did: Neither did the Parliament ex‘pect that your Majeſty (who did graciouſly grant this Parliament ‘for eſtabliſhing of Religion, Ratifying the Concluſions of the Aſ‘ſembly, and ſetling the Peace, and hath accordingly given an ample ‘Power, under your Majeſty's Broad Seal, pro retentione & obſerva‘tione Parliamenti, without any Power, or Clauſe of Prorogation or ‘delay) would require this Parliament to be Prorogued without

'conſent of the Eſtates of Parliament, until thoſe things were performed, which your Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to condeſcend unto.

Object. 'And where it may be objected, That a Parliament was Prorogued de Mandato Regis.

Anſw. 'It is anſwered, That only proves the Denomination of the Act to be taken from the King, but doth no ways prove, that the Act was made without conſent of the Eſtates, no more than that Act of Parliament holden at Edinburgh, Junii 28. 1450. An. 3. Ja. 2. fo. 33. expreſſing, That the three Eſtates did continue the Parliament without naming the King, will infer, That the Eſtates wanted the King's Conſent; for it is uſual that the Denomination of Parliaments be taken ſometimes from the King only, ſometimes from the three Eſtates, and ſometimes from both; and in that the Prorogation was done by Act of Parliament, it is enough it be done with conſent of the three Eſtates. Alſo the Letter written by King James the 6th to the Lord Balmerino, his Majeſty's Secretary in the Parliament, May 1604. expreſſing, That ſeeing the Parliament of England was continued, therefore the States ſhould continue the Parliament of Scotland, which they did. And this doth evince, that the Parliaments were ſtill continued with the conſent of the three Eſtates.

'And having thus (according to our Inſtructions given us) ſhewn the Judgment of the Parliament (whoſe Language and Mind we ought now to ſpeak, and not our own private Opinions) concerning the Form and Order of Prorogation, which hath bin conſtantly obſerved in all preceding Parliaments; We do ſo much tender your Majeſty's Royal Power and Lawful Authority, (which we have ſworn never to diminiſh) as we neither do nor will preſume to exceed our Inſtructions to define what your Majeſty may do in the height of your Power: for to diſpute à poſſe ad eſſe, is both againſt Law and Divinity; and whatſoever your Majeſty may do in the height of your Power, We hope that your Majeſty will ever be graciouſly pleaſed to Rule your Subjects according to Law; the continual practice whereof we have ſhewn in this Point, neither know We any former Law or Practice to the contrary; and if any Man hath informed your Majeſty, or affirmed that it is otherways, affirmanti incumbit probatio.

2. 'As concerning that Act, whereby it is craved, That the Power of the Lords of the Articles may be defined, We have Direction and Information from the Parliament, to ſhew the Equity, Lawfulneſs, and Expediency of that Act, which may be eaſily perceived from the Reaſons contained in the Narration of the Act it ſelf, which brevitatis cauſa is referred thereto: as alſo from the written Records and printed Acts of Parliament, from the Nature of all Committees, and from the preſent Eſtate and Condition of the Parliament of that Kingdom: For as it is clear by the Hiſtory of that Kingdom, and Records of Parliament, that there was never ſuch a thing heard of as Lords of Articles, until the time of King David Bruce, ſo it is manifeſt in all the printed and written Records of Parliament ſince that time, That many Parliaments had no Lords delegate for Articles at all; and when there were any choſen, the Nomination and Election of them was ever with the common conſent and advice

‘of the whole Parliament, until the Parliament 1617, that the Biſhops took upon them to remove out of plain Parliament to the Inner-Houſe, and there choſe ſome of the Noblemen, and thoſe Noblemen choſe them, and they two choſe the Commiſſioners of Shiers and Burroughs to be of the Articles: Which as it is againſt the firſt Inſtitution and Form of Election of all precedent Articles introduced by the Prelats, ſo doth it fall, and ought to be removed with them ut Effectus removeatur cum ſua Cauſa: For they being removed, cannot chuſe the Noblemen to be on Articles, and the Noblemen cannot chuſe them, nor can they both together chuſe the Barons and Burroughs: So that it doth of neceſſity follow, that either there be no Lords of Articles, but that all be done in face of plain Parliament, as it was of old; or elſe if Articles be, that the Order of Election be from the whole Parliament; or that every State of Parliament make choice of their own Number which are to be on the Articles: for according to the common received Maxim, Quod omnes tangit, ab omnibus approbari debet; who are choſen to repreſent the whole Kingdom, and are appointed to convene in their Name, for eſtabliſhing ſuch Laws as are neceſſary for the good of the Common-Wealth, ought to diſcharge the truſt themſelves, and not to intruſt poteſtatem Univerſis Commiſſion. to ſome Elected Perſons, except only in Caſes of Neceſſity and Utility, which ever may be done or omitted according to conveniency and occaſion of Affairs. For as this freedom of chuſing, or not chuſing of Articles in practice and de facto, was arbitrary and changeable pro occaſione & diſtinctione temporum; So there is never any Statutory Law enjoining the neceſſity of Articles, determining the Power and Manner of their Proceedings, & in actibus liberis of the Law, non currit preſcriptio. And it is very agreeable to Reaſon, that the power of Articles, which is but a Committee delegate from the Parliament, to prepare Matters for their Conſideration, have not a boundleſs and unlimited Power, but be countable to them; and the Power of Articles is only preparative and not determinative, and is but curatio, by virtue of a Delegation; which ends at the redemand of the Granter, and ought no ways to be privative of the Parliamentary Power, but only Communicative, and ought before cloſing or riding of the Parliament, to render an account to them of all that hath bin propounded or paſt in Articles, that the whole Parliament may have a competent time for Conſideration, Agitation, mutual Communication, Diſcuſſion, and Deliberation of the Reaſons and Concluſions of thoſe Articles, which are to be voiced, and not to vote blindly and without foreknowledg, to agree or diſagree to ſuch things as by their Suffrages are enacted to be Laws, which requires not only Voicing, but alſo Hearing, free Reaſoning, and ripe Advice, as is clear by the Commiſſions granted to the Shires and Towns to their Commiſſioners, and from the Acts of Parliament of the firſt Parliament, 7 Act 101, and Acts of Parliament 1584, and 1587, An. Jac. 6.

3. ‘As for anſwer to the new Augmentation of Cuſtoms and Book of Rates, it is humbly acknowledged, That the Cuſtoms belonging to your Majeſty, as a part of the Patrimony due to your Crown, as appears by divers Acts of Parliament, eſpecially by the 179 Act, An. 13. Jac. 6. and 206 Act, An. 14. Jac. 6. and 251, and 254, Acts An. 15. Jac. 6. It is evident that the Cuſtoms of Native and Foreign

‘Foreign Commodities hath bin impoſed by the Exchequer, and condeſcended unto by ſome of the Barons, upon promiſe made unto them by the Earl of Traquair (as they affirm) that the Book of Rates without alteration ſhould be ratified in the next Parliament, (the performance whereof was only craved by the Article given in) and that no new Augmentation ſhould be impoſed upon Cuſtom, but that which is agreeable to Juſtice and the Laws of the Kingdom, which the Burroughs conceived they might lawfully repreſent to your Majeſty and the Parliament's Conſideration.

4. ‘The Reaſon and Occaſion of that Article given into the Parliament, anent the value of Money, and concerning Copper Money, doth flow from the ſenſible Loſs and great Prejudice which your Majeſty's Subjects of that Kingdom do ſuſtain, by the huge quantity of Copper Mony which hath bin coined here, and allowed with Advice of your Majeſty's Council, to paſs here at a rate ſo far above the intriſick value thereof; As alſo, (beſides what is coined in the Kingdom) there are likewiſe a great deal coined abroad in other Countries and brought into Scotland, and great quantities of falſe ones forged by Tinkers; and through occaſion thereof all other Money is exported and taken away, and no other Money almoſt left; and the proclaiming of them up and down in ſo ſhort a ſpace of late, hath brought the eſteem and value of them to ſuch an uncertainty and confuſion, as no Man knows at what rate they ſhould paſs at, or whether they ſhould paſs or no; which to your Majeſty's Subjects is a very great prejudice, eſpecially to Tradeſmen and poor People, in whoſe hands moſt part of thoſe baſe Monies are, whoſe diſtreſſed Condition cries to your Majeſty for Remedy: Like as the importing of Dollars from Foreign Kingdoms, and tolerating them to paſs for a long time at a higher Rate and Price, then is anſwerable to the true value, gave occaſion to export and take away your Majeſty's own Coin, and the crying down of the Dollars thereafter by your Majeſty Council, at ſuch a time when there was little or no other Money in Scotland, occaſioned great ſcarcity of Money in this Kingdom. From the by-paſt experience of which loſs, and for Remedy thereof, that Article craving, That Money ſhould not be altered without Advice of the Eſtates of Parliament, was given in without thought or intention to intrench in any ſort upon your Majeſty's Royal Authority: But that your Majeſty, for the good of your Subjects, may be graciouſly pleaſed, That the Standard-Money (conſiſting in Fineneſs, Weight, and price of Money) which from time to time hath bin ruled and ſet down in Parliament, may be ſeen by that Act of Parliament, An. 1366. in David the Second's time, in theſe words, Statutum quod fabricetur moneta de materia jam allata in Regnum, & quod in pondere & metallo equipolent monetæ currenti in Anglia, & fiat in ipſa ſignum notabile, per quod poſſit ab omni alia prius fabricata evidenter cognoſce, quouſque in proximo Parliamento ſuper hoc maturius aviſari poſſit. The ſame is alſo manifeſt from a great many other Acts in the Raigns of Ja. 1. Ja. 2. Ja. 3. Ja. 4. Ja. 5. Ja. 6. eſpecially Parl. 1 An. Ja. 1. cap. 33. An. 1424. Item, Ja. 2. Parl. 6. cap. 29. & Parl. 8. cap. 33. Parl. 15. cap. 59. Parl. 14. cap. 72. Item, Ja. 3. Parl. 1. cap. 9. Parl. 3. cap. 18. Parl. 4. cap. 21. Parl. 6. cap. 46. Parl. 7. cap. 50. Parl. 8. cap. 64. Parl. 13. cap. 93. Item, Ja. 4. Parl. 1. cap. 2. Parl. 2. cap. 17. In the unprinted Acts, An.

‘Jac. 6. Parl. 5. 1578. Parl. 7. Cap. 106. Parl. 8. 1584. Parl. 13. an. 1593. And in the printed Acts, Parl. 15. Cap. 249. Parl. 16. Cap. 9. And alſo in the Parliament 1633, holden by your Royal Majeſty, there is Commiſſion given in Parliament to the Privy-Council, and other Commiſſioners, anent the frequent courſe of Dollars, and baſe Copper-Mony. By reading of which Acts it is manifeſt, that the fineneſs, weight, and price of Money, hath bin ruled and determined by your Majeſty's Predeceſſors, and your Self, with the advice of Parliament. Neither is it meant or intended, that your Majeſty's Royal Privileges (which have bin and are due to your Majeſty, and Royal Anceſtors) ſhall thereby in any ſort be trenched upon, or impaired.

‘The reaſon of that Article, whereby it is humbly craved, that the Caſtles of Edinburgh, Dumbarton, and Striveling, may be entruſted only to Natives, and thoſe to be choſen by advice of Parliament, of ſuch faithful and honeſt Men as do tender your Majeſty's Honour, and Safety of the Kingdom; may be ſeen not only from the nature and importance of the Charge, but likewiſe from the former practice of your Majeſty's Royal Predeceſſors, who did diſpoſe of thoſe Caſtles with ſpecial advice of Parliaments; as is recorded in the old Regiſters of Parliament, 1368; like as fol. 83. an.—Jac. 4. It is conconcluded by the advice of the three Eſtates, that Patrick Lord Hayes be Keeper of the Caſtle of Edinburgh, and Artillery of the ſame. Item fol. 21. cap. 35. Jac. 6. the three Eſtates ordain the Caſtle of Dunbar, and Fort of Inchkeeth, be demoliſhed and deſtroyed, that no foundation remain thereof. Like as by divers unprinted Acts, as in Anno 1578, 1585, and 1606, Your Majeſty's Houſes have bin diſpoſed of by advice of Parliament. And not only National Statutes, but the Law of Nature and Nations, do forbid the receiving of Strangers to be Keepers of the Strength of a free Kingdom. And anno 1604, when the Parliament of Scotland gave Commiſſion anent the Union with England, with exception and reſervation of free Monarchy, and the Fundamental Laws, Liberties, and Privileges of that Kingdom. And your Majeſty's Father in his printed Speech to the Parliament of England, 1607, when he interprets the Clauſe of Fundamental Laws, declares, That he could not make Scotland a naked Province without Liberty, and to ſet Gariſons over Scotland, as the Spaniards do over Sicily and Naples, or govern them by Commiſſioners. So that his Majeſty in his own interpretation doth acknowledg, that the putting in of Gariſons, eſpecially of ſtrangers, as of Engliſh-Men, in the Forts and Caſtles of Scotland, is a breaking of the Fundamental Laws and Liberties of Scotland, and uſing it like a naked and conquered Province, like as Sicily, Naples, or Ireland is. And as your Majeſty's Subjects gave an undoubted proof how tender their Minds are in point of Obedience to your Majeſty's Commands, not only in delivering the Caſtles to be diſpoſed of at your Majeſty's pleaſure, without any aſſurance, other than their confidence in your Majeſty's Goodneſs and Juſtice; ſo have they of late given a very ſubmiſſive and rare Teſtimony of their Obedience, in the humble reception of thoſe Strangers and Ammunition, which your Majeſty was pleaſed to ſend to the Caſtle of Edinburgh, where the Honours of your Crown and Kingdom, and Regiſters are kept; preferring their Obedience to your Majeſty's Commands to their own Safety, even at this time when their ears are filled with hoſtile Preparations ‘against them. All which makes them, and us in their Names, humbly to ſupplicate and expect, that your Majeſty will be graciouſly pleaſed, by recalling that Gariſon, to free your loyal Subjects of thoſe Fears and Dangers, who will ever be ready to hazard both their Lives and Fortunes to do your Majeſty ſervice. Neither do they in that Act given in to the Articles, arrogate or aſſume it to themſelves to appoint Keepers for your Majeſty's Caſtles, but do humbly crave, That your Majeſty will be pleaſed to declare (for further ſatisfaction of your Subjects) that the Commanders of your Caſtles may be choſen by the advice of the Eſtates of the Parliament; and that ſuch as ſhall happen to be placed betwixt Parliaments, may be tried, and found by your Majeſty's Council to be Men of ſuch quality as are fit and able to undergo that Charge. Which in the Judgment of the Parliament, derogates nothing from your Majeſties Royal Authority.

6. ‘As for the Reaſons of the Act anent the Judicature of the Exchequer, we have ſet down ſome few of the many Reaſons, which do ſufficiently prove the Equity and Juſtice thereof.

1. ‘The Seſſion and Exchequer are two diſtinct Judicatures, and not ſubordinate one to another, and cannot be contruerent in the ſame Object. And therefore ſeeing the Queſtion of Right and Nullity of Right is competent to be decided by the Lords of Seſſions, by way of Action or Exception, it is altogether incompetent to be diſcuſſed by the Lords of the Exchequer.

2. ‘The Lords of the Exchequer are incompetent Judges in a Declarator of Nullity by way of Action, and conſequently cannot annul any Right by way of Exception, which is a more ſummary way. And it were abſurd in Law, (ſeeing the Subject and Queſtion is one, whether proponed by way of Action or Exception,) that incompetent Judges of the Action ſhould have a more abſolute and ſummary Juriſdiction by way of Exception.

3. ‘It appeareth by an Act of Parliament not printed, 1593, entitled, A Commiſſion to the Exchequer anent deciding Suſpenſions in the King's Cauſe, that before the ſaid Act the Exchequer had not power to decide in Suſpenſions, until it was given them by the ſaid Act; far leſs can it be thought, that they ever had or can have power to decide in the point of heritable Right: neither doth the late Act 1633, authorize to decide therein expreſly. And if it be truly conſidered, ſome general words contained therein, intermixed with the particular Caſes therein expreſſed, ſhould not, nor cannot be extended to ſo high a point, as the diſputing and deciding of the Subjects heritable Rights. Like as at the making of the ſaid late Act, the Lords of the Seſſion having heard ſome ſurmiſe that the King's Advocate was giving in ſuch an Act, ſeven or eight of them convened together, and ſent for the Advocate, who aſſured them that there was not nor ſhould not be any ſuch thing, but that the Act ſhould be conceived in ſo clear terms, that it ſhould not be poſſible to draw in under any part thereof a power to the Lords of the Exchequer to diſpute, far leſs to decide in heritable Rights. And as the Subjects heritable Rights and Infeoffments are by this Act ſaved from being decided and annulled by incompetent Judges; ſo your Majeſty is no ways prejudiced thereby, ſeeing the Lords of Seſſion (who by the Laws of that Kingdom are proper and competent Judges of all heritable Rights and Infeoffments,) may and will decide any Queſtions which may concern your Majeſty, in nature, tenor, and validity of any heritable Right.

An Anſwer to Twenty five ſeveral Propoſitions more, given to the Commiſſioners on Friday at Night, the 20th of March, 1639; and by them anſwered on Monday, March 23.

Firſt,

The Proteſtation made by ſome of the Noblemen, (that their giving way to the preſent Treaſurer and Privy-Seal, ſhould not prejudice them of their Right) carrieth the ſame reaſon of the Proteſtation in it ſelf; becauſe in Law and Practice it is uſual to any, who conceives himſelf prejudged, even in thoſe things where Acts of Parliament paſs againſt them, to proteſt multo manis. In ſuch a caſe as this it is lawful for him to proteſt, that you giving way to that, which they conceive hath no Law for it, ſhould not prejudge their Right, which is only craved prout de jure.

Secondly, That the Act againſt the Conſtitution of the Parliament, remitted to the Articles to be conſidered by your Majeſty till next Parliament, was queſtioned and urged, that the ſame might be brought in open Parliament without any ſuch reference, for divers reaſons: Firſt, becauſe in that Act there was a Clauſe, craving it might be enacted, that there ſhould be Stataria Parliamentaria once in two or three years at leaſt; which Clauſe of the Act, ſo ſoon as it was underſtood by the Propounders and In-givers thereof, that your Majeſty might conceive the ſame to derogate from the freedom of your Royal Power of indicting Parliaments when your Majeſty pleaſed, they did paſs from that part or clauſe of the Act. And albeit it may be eaſily demonſtrated from the Prejudice which your Majeſty's Ancient and Native Kingdom ſuſtains, through want of your Royal and perſonal Preſence, and living at ſo far a diſtance from the place of your Majeſty's reſidence, how requiſite it is that there be frequent Parliaments holden in that Kingdom; yet leſt the deſire of your Majeſty's Subjects might ſeem in any ways to trench upon your Authority, they did paſs from that part of their deſire, and did only inſiſt that there might be a right Conſtitution of the Parliament, and that an Act might be paſt for reſcinding and repealing of ſuch former Acts which repugn the Acts and Concluſions of the Aſſembly, which is conceived to be ſo abſolute neceſſary, as there can never be a valid Parliament without the ſame, nor can the Acts and Concluſions of the General Aſſembly be ratified; which to refuſe, were both contrary to the primate end for which the Parliament was indicted, and againſt your Majeſty's Royal and Gracious Declarations. And that it is impoſſible without paſſing the Reſciſſory Act, and Act of Conſtitution, to have a valid Parliament to ratify the Concluſions of the

Aſſembly, is manifeſt; ſeeing by former Conſtitutions of the Parliament, no Act of Parliament can paſs without the conſent of the three Eſtates, of which the Kirk was the third, (as is to be ſeen by the Act of Parliament 1609,) and any Act of ratifying the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, or for any other cauſe whatſoever, which can be put in this Parliament, till the Parliament be lawfully conſtitute without Prelates, or any other repreſenting the Kirk, cannot be valid, but may be quarrelled and annulled upon that formal and fundamental ground of the former Conſtitution of Parliaments, which ſtands eſtabliſhed by Acts of Parliament anno 1584, 1587, 1597, and 1606. By all which it is clear that the Parliament was conſtitute of the three Eſtates; and that the Prelates voting in Parliament, and repreſenting the third Eſtate, was a Privilege granted to the Kirk, and that they (as her Office-bearers) had only Vote in the name of the Kirk, may be clearly ſeen by the 231 Act Parl. 15. Jac. 6. Anno 1597. where the King's Majeſty and his Eſtates reſtores Miniſters provided to places, to have vote in Parliament, and that upon this reaſon, as having ſpecial care of the greateſt Privileges and Immunities granted by his Predeceſſors to the holy Kirk within this Realm, and to the ſpecial Perſons exerciſing the Office, Dignity, and Title of Prelats within the ſame, which is reputed one of the Eſtates, and that the ſaid Prelats have bin from time to time conſerved in the ſame integrity wherein they were at any time before. So that his Majeſty, out of his ſingular affection to the advancement of Religion, declares this Kirk to be a true and holy Kirk, and that the Miniſters and Paſtors within the ſaid Kirk, provided to the Office, Place, Title and Dignity of a Biſhop or Prelat, ſhall at all times hereafter vote in Parliament, ſuch-like and as freely as any other Eccleſiaſtick Prelat had at any time by-gone; and that all Biſhopricks ſhall be diſponed to actual Preachers. Which proves that in time of Popery, and ever until that time 1597, this privilege of Voting in Parliament was granted to the Kirk, and only to the ſpecial Perſons, who by virtue of their Office did repreſent the Kirk; which is alſo clear from the Act of Annexation, anno 1587, whereby all the Temporalties of Benefices were annexed to the Crown. Notwithſtanding whereof they did ſtill vote in Parliament, in name of the Kirk, having no Temporalities at all, till the Parliament, Anno 1606. Wherein it is clear in the Act of the Reſtitution of the Eſtate of Biſhops, and alſo in the 6th Act of Parliament, Anno 1609, that Vote in Parliament is given to the Prelats, as one of the Liberties and Privileges granted to the Kirk, whom they did repreſent, and did ever ſit pro Clero on his Majeſty's right hand, and voted in the name of the Kirk. But ſeeing in the late General Aſſembly holden at Edinburgh, after particular enquiry anent the true and real Cauſe of the Evils which did ſo much trouble the Peace of that Kirk and Kingdom, it is found, that the Government of the Kirk by Biſhops, and Civil Power and Places of Kirk-men, eſpecially their voting in Parliament, amongſt other Novations brought into that Kirk, were two main Cauſes of thoſe Evils. And that the Spiritual Aſſembly, by conſent of your Majeſty's Commiſſioner, repreſenting your Royal Power and Perſon, hath removed Epiſcopacy out of the Kirk of Scotland, and declared all Civil Places and Power of Kirk-men to be unlawful in that Kingdom, as contrary to the Confeſſion of Faith, and Con-ſtitutions of the Kirk, and hath ratified the Covenant, ordaining all

‘the Subjects to ſubſcribe the ſame, with the General Aſſembly's Ex‘planation in that ſence. And your Majeſty being obliged to ratify
‘the Concluſions of the Aſſembly in Parliament; it doth neceſſarily ‘follow, That Biſhops (who uſurped to be the Kirk, and did in the ‘Name of the Kirk repreſent the third Eſtate) be taken away: which ‘alſo by neceſſary conſequence doth infer, that there be an Act of ‘Conſtitution of the Parliament without them; and an Act of Re‘pealing the former Laws, whereby the Kirk was declared the Third ‘Eſtate, and that the Biſhops did repreſent the Kirk; both which the ‘Kirk hath now renounced and condemned as a Detriment and Pre‘judice incompatible with her Spiritual Nature. Neither doth the ‘paſſing thoſe Acts wrong the Kirk nor State, nor diminiſh your Ma-
‘jeſty's Princely Power, as was demonſtrated by that which was ſpo-
‘ken to your Majeſty the third of March, and which we did yeſter-
‘day preſent to your Majeſty in writing, which for brevity we for‘bear to repeat. And if your Majeſty's Commiſſioner deny that he ‘did aſſent to the Act of the Aſſembly the 17*th* of Auguſt laſt, where-
‘by Epiſcopacy and the Civil Places and Power of Kirkmen, and ‘ſpecially their voting in Parliament, was declared to be unlawful, as ‘being contrary to the Confeſſion of Faith, and Conſtitutions of the ‘Kirk; and that he did approve that all the Subjects ſhould ſubſcribe
‘the Confeſſion of Faith, with the Aſſemblies Explanation thereof, we ‘offer to prove the ſame by the very Acts of the Aſſembly, and Re‘cords thereof, bearing his aſſent, firſt verbally, and afterwards given ‘in by writing.

Thirdly, ‘The Reaſon of that Article which craveth, That every ‘Commiſſioner of a Shire ſhould have a ſeveral Vote, appears in the ‘very Propoſition it ſelf: for that any who by the Laws of the King‘dom, and by their Commiſſions, comes authoriſed as Commiſſio-‘ners to Hear, Treat, and Determine in Parliament, and yet not to ‘have a Deciſive Voice, ſeems to be repugnantia in adjecto; and that ‘by the ancient practice the whole Burroughs and Freeholders in that ‘Kingdom had Vote in Parliament, may be ſeen in ancient Records
‘of Parliament; as in the Raign of King James the Second, in the ‘old Acts of his Parliament, fol. 20, 33, and 36. In the Raign of ‘King James the Third, the 14 Parl. and 112 Act. Alſo in the Raign
‘of King James the Sixth, the Parliament begun the 15*th* of Octo- ‘ber 1587; which Parliament being convened and continued, all ‘Free-holders are thereby enjoined to come to the Parliament to ‘treat and conclude upon things needful: Notwithſtanding whereof
‘no ſuch Privilege was claimed, but only craved the Declaration and ‘Determination of the Parliament, whether each Commiſſioner of the ‘two ſent from a Shire, have right in Law of a ſeveral Deciſive Voice;
‘which if at any time it had bin marked otherwiſe, they alleaged
‘the ſame proceeded from the Ignorance, Error, or Corruption of the ‘Clerk: And as the Burroughs and Free-holders are the far greateſt
‘part of the Body of the Kingdom, and that all of them of old had ‘Voice in Parliament, till their abſence by ſome late Acts, ſpecially
‘the 10*th* Act. *Parl.*7. Jac. 1. and Parl. An. 1587. Jac. 6. is diſpens'd
‘with, and they exempted from neceſſity of coming, and Unlaws,
‘(id eſt, Forfeitures) which they were liable to pay for non-appear‘ance, providing they ſend Commiſſioners in their Names to Vote in ‘Parliament;

An. 1639. ‘Parliament; and therefore they think it agreeable both with Law and Reaſon, That every one of theſe few Commiſſioners, who do repreſent ſo many, ſhould have a ſeveral Deciſive Voice. And the Act of Parliament made by King James 6, An. 1587. bears, That the Commiſſioners of Shiers ſhall be equal upon Articles with Burroughs, and ſhall have Voices in Parliament. The meaning whereof doth import, That every one of the ſaid Commiſſioners ſhall have a Deciſive Voice, becauſe quod de omnibus dicitur de ſingulis dicitur. And if both the Commiſſioners of one Shire ſhould have but one Deciſive Voice, then it would follow that every one of them hath but half a Voice; and conſequently when one is abſent, the other being preſent ſhould have no Voice; and one could not be choſen upon the Articles without the other: both which are contrary to Reaſon and Cuſtom; and it is undeniably true, and conſtant by continual Cuſtom, that when there is only one of the Commiſſioners of a Shire choſen upon the Articles, that one by himſelf, without concourſe of his Colleague, hath a pleanary Voice in Articles. Therefore it follows neceſſarily, that as every one of the two Commiſſioners have a full Voice in Articles, ſo every one of the two ſhould have a full Voice per ſe, and ſeverally in Parliament, otherwiſe every one of them could have but half a Voice in Parliament, and a full Voice in Articles.

Fourthly, ‘And the Act given in anent the Burroughs Voices, is not to demand or crave any new thing or Innovation, or new Privilege to be granted them, but only craves the Declaration and Determination of Parliament, which in juſtice may be craved by any who deſires their right to be cleared.

Fifthly, ‘Neither is there any ſuch thing moved in Parliament, as the chuſing of any other Clerk, but it was humbly craved that ſome ſhould be allowed from the Parliament to ſit by the Clerk, to mark that the Voices were rightly enumerated.

Sixthly, As for that Article whereby it is craved, That every Eſtate may chuſe their own Lords of Articles, or elſe that they may be choſen by the whole Parliament, is agreeable to the Liberty of all free Judicatories, who have power to chuſe their own preparative Committees; who except they be choſen by the Judicature it ſelf, or by thoſe whom they do repreſent, cannot be poſſibly reputed to have any Power from them; and they can only Propound and Voice in Parliament in Name of thoſe who did chuſe them, and gave them power; and what they do in Name of thoſe who did not delegate them, is à non habente poteſtatem. But becauſe the Reaſon of this Article is more fully cleared in one of our former Anſwers, anent the power of Articles, (which is incident to this) we remit it to our former Anſwers.

Seventhly, ‘The Reaſons of that Act, deſiring that Proxies may be diſcharged, and that no Patent of Nobility be granted to any ſuch as have not 10000 Marks of yearly Rent in Scotland, as is contained in the Act it ſelf. And it ſeems not to be agreeable to Reaſon and Equity, that the Honour and Power of Voting in Parliament, which is conferred on Noblemen and their Succeſſors perſonally, and whereby they have power to Reaſon, and Voice, and Judg, according to Law and Conſcience, can be entruſted to another with an implicit Faith, to determine and give the Judgment of 'the Granter of the Proxie in Matters of higheſt moment concerning 'Religion, your Majeſty's Service, and the Good of the Country, 'before the Granter thereof knew ſo much as was to be propounded. 'And as concerning the ſecond part of the Act, craving, That no Patent of Nobility may be granted to any other who are not Natives, 'but ſuch as have 10000 Marks of Land Rent in that Kingdom, the 'ſame was remitted, and recommended to the Commiſſioner to be re'preſented and remonſtrated (with the Reaſons thereof) to your 'Majeſty, whoſe Gracious Anſwer therein they now expect.

Eighthly, 'As concerning the Book intituled, A Large Declaration; 'The General Aſſembly taking notice thereof, and conceiving that 'thereby both your Majeſty, the Kirk, and Common-Wealth were 'wronged, therefore they gave a Supplication to the Commiſſioner, 'and Lords of your Majeſty's Privy-Council, humbly craving to re'preſent the ſame to your Majeſty's Conſideration: Like as in the 'Articles of Parliament, the States did humbly recommend the Aſ'ſemblies Supplication to the Commiſſioner for obtaining the deſire 'of the ſaid Supplication: Neither did they know a more humble 'and reſpective way for redreſs and removing of the Imputations 'which lies upon them by occaſion of that Book; concerning which, 'amongſt the other Particulars recommended to the Commiſſioner 'to be repreſented to your Majeſty, they do confidently expect the 'return of your Gracious Pleaſure.

Ninthly, 'As concerning that Propoſition, whereby it is deſired, 'That the Commiſſioners for Shires may be allowed to give in a Roll 'of Free-holders, out of which the Juſtices of Peace are to be cho'ſen: The Reaſon of that Deſire is, Becauſe the Commiſſioners of 'each ſeveral Shires know beſt who are ableſt and fitteſt Men within 'their own Shires for your Majeſty's Service, and good of the Coun'try, which is no ways craved to derogate from your Majeſty's Power 'of chuſing, but only as expedient to be paſt or refuſed, as your Ma'jeſty and the Parliament ſhall think fit.

Tenthly, 'As for that Act concerning the Diſorders in the North; 'The Reaſon why the ſame was craved, did reſult from the Com'plaints and Grievances againſt the Thefts, Oppreſſions, Slaughters, 'and great Inſolencies committed there divers Years by-gone, and of 'late in thoſe parts; the Redreſs and Remedy whereof, and for keep'ing Peace in that part of the Country, deſires your Majeſty's Conſi'deration and Juſtice; and all that we remember was required of the 'Parliament, was only, That the former Acts of Parliament made for 'puniſhment of thoſe Rapines and Oppreſſions, might be revived with 'further Additions, as your Majeſty and the Parliament ſhould find 'expedient and conduceable for the Peace of the Country, which 'we hope your Majeſty will ever tender.

Eleventhly, 'The Reaſon of that Act craving the Council to be 'Subalterne and Cenſurable by the Parliament, is from Warrant of 'former Laws cited in the Act it ſelf, wherein there is no more craved, 'but that the former Acts of Parliament againſt Liars, and makers of 'Diviſion betwixt the King and his Subjects, may be revived; and 'that the Seſſion and Council may be countable to your Majeſty and 'Parliament for any Injuſtice that ſhall happen to be committed by 'them.

Twelfthly, ‘Where it is alleaged there was an Article, That no Taxation ſhould be granted but in plain Parliament; we remember of no ſuch Article, nor ſuch Motion propounded.

13. ‘As concerning the Act of Pacification, the Warrant and Ground thereof flows from the humble Petitions and Remonſtrances of your Majeſty's Subjects, when they did clear their Loyalty, and made offer of their civil and dutiful Obedience to your Majeſty; which by their humble Supplication to your Majeſty's Commiſſioner, to the Lords of the Council, and to the States of Parliament, inſerted and regiſtred in the Records thereof, they have again ſolemnly renewed, and from your Majeſty's Favour in condeſcending to the Articles of Pacification, wherein your Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed that an Act of Pacification or Oblivion ſhould be paſt; And in the Narrative of the Act it ſelf, there is an humble and thankful acknowledgment of your Majeſty's Juſtice and Goodneſs, and is drawn up in ſuch Terms as was conceived might beſt expreſs your Majeſty's Fatherly Care and Goodneſs towards your Ancient and Native Kingdom, without wronging the true loyal Meaning and Intention of your Majeſty's Subjects. And as for the Body and legal Part of the Act, the ſame was after much debating framed, with advice of Lawyers, and conſented unto by the Parties chiefly intereſſed.

14. ‘As to that Article anent particular Commiſſions of Juſticiary and Leiſtenantry, all that was intended or deſired thereby was, That the Abuſes of thoſe Commiſſions might be in all humility repreſented to your Majeſty by your Commiſſioner; and that your Majeſty might be graciouſly pleaſed to grant the like Commiſſions only upon weighty and neceſſary Cauſes, and to endure only during this time of neceſſity; and the In-givers of that Article were content to have it reformed that way.

15. ‘As concerning that Article given for Sheriffs and Stewards, craving, That they may only be obliged to produce Horning for the Taxations; it is not a new Deſire, but that which hath bin craved by them in divers former Parliaments; and they think that production of Horning againſt the Perſons liable in paiment ſhould be an exoneration to them, becauſe they alleage they want many of the Caſualties, Benefits, and Powers which Sheriffs had of old by virtue of their Offices.

16. ‘As concerning the Propoſition made anent the Patent for Gunpowder; all that we remember was craved by the Ingivers of that Article was, That in reſpect the Earl of Linlithgow's Patent was void by a Clauſe irritant in his Patent, whereby he was obliged to keep the Work going, was now decayed, and ſo the Country fruſtrate of the Benefit and Profit which might have accrued to them by that Commodity: It was therefore thought fit to be allowed to any who were moſt fit and able to undergo the work of making of Powder.

17. As for the Act given in for diſcharge of Remiſſions for Murder, Slaughter, Theft, but upon ſatisfaction to the Party; all which was intended thereby, was only, That the heavy Prejudices redounding to the Country by Remiſſions purchaſed upon miſinformations, might be by Supplication preſented to your Majeſty's Conſiderations, that by your Majeſty's Juſtice and Goodneſs, the like Inconveniencies may in time coming be prevented.

18. 'As for the Act craving the diſcharge for Protections; it was nothing but the reviving of two former Acts of Parliament, viz. the 47 Act Parl. 11. and 15 Act Parl. 23. of King Ja. 6. without any other derogation to your Majeſty's Power or Authority, which was done with the Commiſſioner's conſent.

19. 'As for the Act concerning Common Relief. The Reaſon is, Becauſe as the Bleſſings of Religion and Peace, which from your Majeſty's happy Government, and fatherly Affection to your Majeſty's Ancient and Native Kingdom, (eſpecially at this troubleſome Time) are common Benefits, whereof every good Subject ought to be ſenſible, ſo it is agreeable with Reaſon and Juſtice, that according to their Intereſt, every one may contribute a proportionable part of the Charges which hath bin ſpent for ſo good ends; and the ordinary Cauſe for which Taxations are granted, are ad relevationem Imperii ob conſervationem Libertatis, ac Dignitatis, ac Religionis, vel utilitatem communem ſubditorum: Wherefore albeit ſome be adverſe, yet the Conſent and Voices of the moſt part ſhould oblige for theſe ends; whereunto your Majeſty's Conſent & Royal Authority is humbly craved to be added, that the ſame may flow from your Majeſty's Juſtice and Goodneſs, and have execution to inferior parts thereof, ſince the whole Commiſſioners of Shires and Burroughs, and the whole Nobility (very few excepted) are content freely and willingly to make offer of their proportional part thereof.

20. 'As for that Article craving the Act 1633, ordaining that Conformations and Infeoffments of Ward-lands ſhall not prejudg the King's Ward to be repealed; there was no Diſpute nor Concluſion made there anent in Articles, neither (as we remember) was it craved by that Article, that the Act 1633 be repealed ſimply, but that the meaning of that Act may be explained and interpreted.

21. 'As for the Article or Act anent the Duty paid to the Conſervator upon Coal; The ſame was craved to be diſcharged by the Coal-Maſters, becauſe it was an unlawful Exaction, which he had no Warrant to exact by his Gift, which was inſtructed in Articles by production of his Gift, whereupon the Act was paſt in Articles.

22. 'The Article craving Ammunition and Arms brought in, to be Cuſtom-free, is warranted in Law in ſo far as the Commodities exported or imported for the particular uſe of Noblemen, Barons, and Free-holders, which are for the King's uſe, and not to be ſold again, are by Act of Parliament declared to be Cuſtom-free.

23. 'As concerning the Articles anent the Election of the Preſident of the Seſſion, and Admiſſion of the Judges preſented by his Majeſty: There was no new thing craved thereby, but the Ratifying and approving the 39 Act Parl. 6. King Ja. 6. 1579. and that allanarly, ſo far as concerns the freedom of Election to be made by the Senators of the College of Juſtice of the Preſident thereof, without any other Clauſe of the ſaid Acts; neither doth the Act given in bear any thing concerning the admiſſion of any other Judges preſented by your Majeſty.

24. 'As for the Article anent Stateſmen being Noblemen to have but one Voice; We remember nothing of any ſuch Queſtion.

25. 'As to the laſt Propoſition concerning the Oppoſition made by the reſt of the Clerks againſt Mr. William Hay's deputation in his

An. 1639.

‘Father's Place, the Commiſſioner to whom they did produce their Reaſons in Writ can beſt give account thereof. And albeit we have in Obedience to your Majeſty's Commandment (according to our bounden Duty) ſhewn the Reaſons why theſe Propoſitions (whereof your Majeſty hath taken notice as prejudicial to your Authority) were demanded; yet many of theſe Propoſitions are of ſo ſmall moment (being only and meerly about the intereſt of private Perſons) as they are of no publick Concernment, & de minimis non curat Lex; nor doth the Parliament ſtick upon theſe, or any other Articles of that kind, any further than they have Warrant of Law, and your Majeſty and Eſtates ſhall find them convenient for the good of your Subjects.

The Concluſion.

‘By all which it is moſt evident and perſpicuous to any who ſhall without prejudicate Opinion, read and conſider the former Proceedings, that we have no new Deſires, but thoſe only which are contained in our former Petitions and Remonſtrances made to his Majeſty, which are agreeable to the Fundamental Laws and Laudable Practices of that Kingdom, and to the Articles of Pacification; and that our chief and main Deſires are, for Ratifying the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, for removing of Epiſcopacy, and the Civil Places and Power of Kirkmen, which is condemned in the General Aſſembly, with conſent of his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, as contrary to the Confeſſion of Faith, and Conſtitutions of that Kirk, and which his Majeſty is obliged to ratify in Parliament. And that Religion is the only Subject, Conſcience the Motive, and the enjoying of our Religion the only aim and height of our Deſires; and whatſoever is craved in Civil Buſineſs, is mainly for the eſtabliſhing and preſervation of Religion; for obtaining which, we have never ſtrayed from the humble and loyal way of a legal Redreſs, and are but ſeeking the performance and conſummation of what his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to condeſcend unto, and promiſe in his Declaration of Pacification. And as concerning any other demand about Civil Matters required or propounded in Articles, albeit it be moſt ſure from bygone Experience, that the Corruption and Thraldom of the Parliament hath bin the occaſion of the Corruption and Thraldom of our Kirk; and that it is moſt evident, by all the Regiſters and Records of our Laws, That the cognition and deciſſion of thoſe Articles doth properly belong to the Parliament; and that we have proceeded upon no other Grounds, than the Laws and Ancient Practices of that Kingdom, (never before queſtioned, but inviolably obſerved as the only Rule of our Government); yet it hath bin offered that we would not adhere, nor ſtick upon any of thoſe Articles for Civil Buſineſſes, but only upon ſuch as were abſolutely neceſſary for eſtabliſhing of Religion, and the Peace of the Kingdom, without the leaſt trenching upon his Majeſty's Authority: Like as the Articles themſelves are no Concluſions, but only Motions and Deſires propounded to the Lords of Articles to be prepared for the Parliament: That after his Majeſty and Eſtates have adviſed and pondered upon the Reaſons and Equity of thoſe Demands, they may either enact or refuſe the ſame, as in their Judgments they ſhall ‘think moſt expedient; and ſo the proponing of thoſe Demands upon reaſonable and legal Terms, and which are ſo juſtifiable both in Law and Practice, can never give juſt occaſion of his Majeſty's Indignation and Diſpleaſure, far leſs can the ſame be any Ground or Cauſe to incenſe his Majeſty to uſe that Power which God hath put in his Hands for Maintenance of Religion, and Adminiſtration of Juſtice, to the overthrow and deſtruction of his Subjects, who are ready to give ample and real Teſtimony before God and the World of their loyal and dutiful Obedience to his Majeſty; wherefore the Occaſion and Cauſe of Wars may be ſought elſewhere without the bounds of the Aſſembly and Parliament, which are the ſupream and lawful Judicatories of that Kingdom, by which, next under God, the Purity of Religion hath bin conſerved, his Majeſty's Authority, and the Liberties of the Kingdom have ever bin upholden. But it is as clear as the Meridian Light, that all our Troubles and Commotions do proceed from thoſe Churchmen juſtly ejected from this Church, who being hopeleſs to regain their former condition, (if all things take a legal, fair, and orderly Concluſion in Scotland) do ſpightfully labour to bring Church and State (from whence they came) to confuſion, and to re-enter by force of the Engliſh, with aſſiſtance of ſuch as are popiſhly affected, and of ſome diſnatur'd Countrymen, who for their own ends thinking to reap Fruit from the ruin of others, and delight to fiſh in troubled Waters, for bettering of their own Condition, (otherwiſe deſperate) or for preventing the Chalenges and Puniſhments they have juſtly deſerved, and that their Faults may be drown'd, and themſelves eſcape in the midſt of ſo great a confuſion. And becauſe the Prelats and ſuch as are popiſhly affected, can hardly by themſelves alone afford ſo much Mony as to entertain a conſtant War, they have aſſented to a Parliament, wherein they expect upon ſome fair promiſes of removal of ſuch things as are grievous unto you for the preſent, to allow you to open your Purſes wide, and to contribute largely with your Means and Aſſiſtance againſt us, that when they have by force ſubdued us, they may the more eaſily eſtabliſh their Tyrannical Hierarchy over you; but we hope that the God of all Truth and Wiſdom, who hath wrought all our Works for us, and doth offer you this fair opportunity, will give you Courage and Wiſdom, that you ſuffer not your ſelves to be deluded; but that as thoſe whom God hath joined with us in one Iſland, and under one King, and are as feeling Members of that Myſtical Body, whereof Chriſt is the Head, you will have a ſympathy with us of thoſe great preſſing Evils which do ſo much trouble the Peace of both our Kirks and States, and will by the Effects and Streams, be led to the Cauſe and Fountain of the Diſeaſe, that the ſame may be perfectly cured; which can come to paſs no other ways, than by taking away the Wicked from before the King, that his Throne may be eſtabliſhed in Righteouſneſs; and we ſhall henceforth, from the influence of his Government, reap the ſweet Fruit of Truth and Peace; and (God getting what is God's) we ſhall live together like Brethren in a bleſſed harmony, and pay to our Cæſar the Tribute of chearful Obedience, which becometh Good and Faithful Subjects.

An. 1639.

His Majeſty's Declaration in Council concerning the Scots Commiſſioners ſent up unto his Majeſty from the Parliament in Scotland.

At Whitehall the 11th of March, 1639.

'This day his Majeſty being preſent in Council, was pleaſed himſelf to make known to the Lords, what had paſſed at the Committee appointed by his Majeſty, to hear thoſe Lords and Gentlemen that came lately from Scotland, pretending to be ſent from the Parliament there.

'In the firſt place his Majeſty acquainted the Lords, That after thoſe Scotiſh Lords and Gentlemen had ſubſcribed the Petitions which they had formerly preſented to his Majeſty, and had bin read at the Board, order was given to the Earl of Traquair, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, to aſſign them a time to be heard of the Committees; which falling out to be at the time of his Majeſty's being at Hampton-Court, they refuſed to come to the Committee, alleaging, That they had Order and Inſtruction to Treat with none but his Majeſty himſelf: Whereupon his Majeſty appointed them to attend him at the Committee on the day of his remove to Hampton-Court, which was the third of March; at which time they did attend his Majeſty accordingly.

'The Earl of Dunfermling ſpake firſt, but very ſhort, and ſo low that few of the Committee underſtood him.

'Then the Lord Loudon made a long Speech, the effect whereof was, A Proteſtation of the Independency of the Parliament of Scotland, and that it was ſubject to no other Judicatory; and a profeſſion of their Affection and Loyalty to his Majeſty, with a Juſtification of their Proceedings in the Aſſembly and Parliament, as agreeable to the Articles of Pacification, and to the Laws and Practices of that Kingdom; and thereupon deſired, That his Majeſty would ratify and confirm thoſe their Proceedings. And for that purpoſe they petitioned his Majeſty to command that the Parliament might proceed freely, for the determining of all the Articles delivered unto them, for the eſtabliſhing of Religion and Peace in the Kingdom; undertaking that whatſoever Objections or Informations ſhould be made againſt their Proceedings in Parliament, (provided they received them in writing) they would give a ſatisfactory anſwer to them.

'This Diſcourſe ended, his Majeſty demanded what Power and Commiſſion they had to give him ſatisfaction, and to oblige thoſe from whom they came? for if they had none, He muſt hear them upon great diſadvantage, they expecting Satiſfaction from him who had certainly Power to give it, but they had no Commiſſion to render the like to him.

'They anſwered, That which they ſhould propoſe (it being agreeable to Law) they were confident ſhould give his Majeſty Satiſfaction.

'His Majeſty asked who ſhould be Judg of that? They anſwered, The Law would appear ſo clear that there would be no need of a 'Judg. And though his Majeſty inſiſted much hereupon, they would 'give him no other Satiſfaction. But they perſiſting to aſſert they had 'Power and Commiſſion, and would bring them to his Majeſty; 'they were ordered to do ſo at the next Meeting, and ſo for that time 'they were diſmiſſed.

'Upon the 9th of March, after his Majeſty's return from Hampton-Court, they attended his Majeſty at the Committee again. There 'they produced Inſtructions ſigned by ſome Scotiſh Lords, and ſome 'other Perſons of no great eminency; which Inſtructions having bin 'read, were judged by his Majeſty, (all the Lords of the Committee 'concurring in the ſame Opinion) to be no Commiſſion, and that 'they had no Power or Authority by them to give his Majeſty Satiſfaction, or to oblige thoſe from whom they ſaid they came, to any 'thing that his Majeſty ſhould yield to or deſire. Wherefore his Majeſty demanding whether they had any other Power? they ſaid, They 'had a Paper formerly ſubſcribed by ſome of the Lords in Parliament, by which the Earl of Dunfermling and Lord Lowdon were only authorized to come, and preſent their Juſtification to his Majeſty, 'and ſaid, they could for the preſent have no other, the Parliament 'then not ſitting. Whereupon they were required to withdraw, and 'his Majeſty adviſing ſeriouſly with the Committee what was beſt to 'be done in this weighty Buſineſs; and alſo conſidering, That if 'they ſhould be diſmiſſed without further hearing, they would take 'occaſion to clamour, His Majeſty reſolved (that although he found 'himſelf bound neither in Honour nor Juſtice to hear them any further, (they having offered no Foundation for an Accommodation, 'nor having Power to do it) yet to the end that no colour of ſiniſter Conſtruction might be left, and that his Majeſty might juſtify 'himſelf to God and the World, that he had omitted nothing on his 'part that might tend to Peace, and to the ſetling of a better Intelligence between his Majeſty and them) that he would continue to 'hear them, and would make his Objections to ſuch Particulars as 'had bin propoſed in Parliament, and againſt which he had juſt 'grounds of Exception, that ſo it might appear whether they could 'give him that ſatisfaction which they had promiſed and preſumed they 'could do, or not.

'Upon this they were called in again, and his Majeſty making this 'known unto them, not one of them made ſhew of the leaſt ſenſe of 'this his Majeſty's Grace and Goodneſs ſo expreſſed to them; which 'the Lord Marqueſs Hamilton obſerving, took occaſion of himſelf to 'ſay, That though he was not of their Company, yet being a Scots 'Man, he held himſelf obliged to acknowledg with all humility this 'his Majeſty's ſingular and princely Favour to his Country, and beſought him to accept his moſt humble thanks for it. This drew 'them on to do the like, and ſo they preſented their humble Thanks 'to his Majeſty on their knees.

'His Majeſty having thus acquainted the Lords with this Buſineſs, 'commanded the Inſtructions to be read at the Board; which being 'done, the whole Board unanimouſly concurred in Opinion, that the 'Petitioners had not Power nor Commiſſion to give his Majeſty Satisfaction, but only to endeavour to juſtify and maintain their former Proceedings. Whereupon his Majeſty commanded this Judgment 'of the Board, together with the former Proceedings upon the whole 'Matter, to be paſſed into an Act of State, and to be regiſtred and 'remain upon Record in the Council-Book.

'Upon Wedneſday the 18*th* of March, his Majeſty being in Council 'again, was pleaſed to acquaint the Board with what had paſſed at 'the Committee ſince the former Meetings, and that the Petitioners 'had produced the Paper above-mentioned, ſubſcribed by ſome of 'the Lords of Scotland in Parliament, by which the Earl of Dunfermling and the Lord Lowdon, only were heretofore authorized to come 'and preſent their Juſtification to his Majeſty; which Paper his Majeſty having commanded to be read to the Board, the Lords unanimouſly then alſo agreed that the Petitioners had no more power by 'this Paper.

By the KING.

'WE did make account that the Pacification which We 'were pleaſed to condeſcend unto the laſt Year in the 'Camp near Berwick, and to grant to our Subjects of 'Scotland, even then when they were in the height 'of their Rebellion, and in the Field in Arms againſt Us, had given 'ſuch demonſtration to the World of Our inclination to Peace, and 'deſire to ſpare the Blood of our People, and to win them to the 'Obedience which they owe unto Us, as that all miſunderſtandings 'had bin utterly taken away, (as they were on Our part) and that 'ſuch Conditions as were then agreed upon, ſhould have bin really 'performed by them, according to thoſe Bonds of Allegiance, Duty, 'and Promiſe in which they ſtand obliged to Us. But We have ſince 'found, to Our unexpreſſible Grief, that our Princely Goodneſs and 'Mildneſs in paſſing by that Offence, hath produced nothing but extream Ingratitude, and inſufferable Inſolencies againſt our Government. And farther, by ſundry libellous Pamphlets, and moſt falſe 'and ſeditious Diſcourſes ſent from Scotland, and diſperſed purpoſely 'in this our Kingdom of England, eſpecially in our City of London; 'that the Cauſe of theſe Diſorders is ſought to be ſhifted off from the 'Rebels in Scotland, and moſt unjuſtly caſt upon Us. Wherefore We 'hold our Self bound, in that Duty which we owe to God, and love 'to Truth, not to ſuffer our Honour to be thus betrayed and vilified 'by Faction and Rebellion, but to vindicate it from all Calumny and 'Glamour, by giving hereby a clear and juſt account to all the World 'of our Proceeding with our Subjects of that our Kingdom, and of 'the moſt material and remarkable Occurrents ſince that Pacification, 'that ſo all thoſe that are not partial, or will not wilfully ſhut their 'Eyes againſt the Truth, may judg who they are that have bin the 'Diſturbers and Infractors of the Peace, and that under the Mask and 'Viſor of Religion, ſeek to undermine and ſubvert all Monarchical 'and Civil Government. Which account follows thus.

'After We had bin ſome time in the Camp near Berwick, and that 'Our Subjects of Scotland had encamped with their Army in view of 'Ours; upon an Overture from them, We were contented to condeſcend to the receiving of a Petition, in which it is expreſſed, That 'they, falling down at our Feet, did moſt humbly ſupplicate Us to appoint 'ſome of this our Kingdom of England to hear, by ſome of them, their 'humble Deſires. Which We having granted, and ſeveral Meetings 'by thoſe of both Kingdoms having bin held; at all which our Self, '(to ſhew Our hearty and earneſt Deſire to meet our Subjects in a 'peaceable way) were contented to be preſent (much beyond their 'own expectation, as they have ſince acknowledged, and We are 'ſure, exceedingly beyond their Merit); at the laſt thoſe of Scotland 'were commanded to make their Demands in Writing, in which after 'they had preſented their Deſires, (of which one was, That the Acts 'of the late Aſſembly at Glaſgow holden by our Indiction, might be 'ratified in the enſuing Parliament) they profeſs, It is their grief that 'We ſhould have bin provoked to Wrath againſt them Our moſt humble and 'loving Subjects, and that it ſhall be their delight, upon Our gracious aſſurance of the Preſervation of their Religion and Laws, to give example to 'others of all Civil and Temporal Obedience which can be required or expected of Loyal Subjects.

'Whereupon We letting them know, that for the better clearing of 'Particulars, We expected from them the Grounds and Reaſons of 'their Deſires, but that We would not ſurpriſe them, and therefore 'gave them time to come prepared with their Grounds in Writing.

'The Lord Lowdon ſaid, Their Deſires were only to enjoy their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of the 'Kingdom; and in clearing Particulars, they would not inſiſt upon any 'that were not ſuch.

'This We willed him to ſet down in writing under his Hand, which 'he did in theſe words.

'Memorandum, That our deſires are only the enjoying of our Religion 'and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of his Majeſty's Kingdom; to clear by ſufficient Grounds, that the Particulars 'which we humbly crave, are ſuch, and ſhall not inſiſt to crave any Point 'which is not ſo warranted: And that we offer all Civil and Temporal 'Obedience to your Majeſty, which can be required or expected of Loyal 'Subjects.

Signed, Lowdon.

'To which We anſwered, That if their Deſires were only the enjoying of their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of our Kingdom of Scotland, We do not only 'agree to the ſame, but ſhall always protect them to the uttermoſt of 'our

'our Power. And if they ſhall not inſiſt upon any thing but that which is ſo warranted, We will moſt willingly and readily condeſcend unto it, ſo that in the mean time they pay unto Us that Civil and Temporal Obedience which can be juſtly required and expected of Loyal Subjects.

'This being the Ground of the Agreement on both ſides, We were pleaſed to proceed to a final Determination of this Buſineſs, which was brought to a Concluſion upon the 17*th* of June, 1639. And our Declaration of that Date conformable to theſe Grounds was thereupon made, which was not only accepted by thoſe that came in the Name of all thoſe of the Covenant, but moſt humble thanks were given to Us by them for Our gracious Anſwer vouchſafed to their Petition in the ſaid Declaration; which was fully agreed upon, together with ſundry Articles by all Parties.

'The Pacification thus concluded, the Articles on both ſides were to be performed accordingly. Thoſe on Our part were in the Declaration following.

WE having conſidered the Papers, and Humble Petitions preſented unto Us by thoſe of Our Subjects of Scotland, who were admitted to attend our Pleaſure in the Camp; And after a full hearing by our Self of all that they could ſay or alleage thereupon, having communicated the ſame to our Council of both Kingdoms there preſent, upon mature deliberation, with their unanimous Advice, We have thought fit to give this juſt and gracious Anſwer.

That though We cannot condeſcend to ratifie and approve the Acts of the pretended General Aſſembly at Glaſgow, for many grave and weighty Conſiderations which have happened both before & ſince, much importing the Honour and Security of that true Monarchical Government lineally deſcended upon Us from ſo many of our Anceſtors: Yet ſuch is Our gracious Pleaſure, That notwithſtanding the many Diſorders committed of late, We are pleaſed not only to confirm and make good whatſoever our Commiſſioner hath granted and promiſed in our Name, but alſo We are further graciouſly pleaſed to declare and aſſure, that according to the Petitioners humble Deſires, all Matters Eccleſiaſtical ſhall be determined by the Aſſemblies of the Kirk, and Matters Civil by the Parliament, and other inferior Judicatories eſtabliſhed by Law. Which Aſſembly accordingly ſhall be kept once a Year, or as ſhall be agreed upon at the General Aſſembly.

And for ſetling the general Diſtractions of that our Ancient Kingdom, our Will and Pleaſure is, That a Free General Aſſembly be kept at Edinburgh, the ſixth day of Auguſt next enſuing, where We intend (God willing) to be perſonally preſent. And for the legal Indiction whereof, We have given Order and Command to our Council; and thereafter a Parliament to be holden at Edinburgh the twentieth day of Auguſt next enſuing, for ratifying of what ſhall be concluded in the ſaid Aſſembly, and ſetling ſuch other things as may conduce to the Peace and Good of our Native Kingdom; and therein an Act of Oblivion to be paſſed.

And whereas We are further deſired, that our Ships and Forces by Land be recalled, and all Perſons, Goods, and Ships reſtored, and they made ſafe from Invaſion, We are graciouſly pleaſed to declare, That upon their diſarming and disbanding of their Forces, diſſolving and diſcharging all their pretended Tables and Conventicles, and reſtoring unto Us all our Caſtles, Forts, and Ammunition of all ſorts; as likewiſe our Royal Honours, and to every one of Our good Subjects, their Liberties, Lands, Houſes, Goods, and Means whatſoever, taken and detained from them ſince the late pretended General Aſſembly, We will preſently thereafter recall our Fleet, and retire our Land-Forces, and cauſe reſtitution to be made to all Perſons of their Ships and Goods, detained and arreſted ſince the aforeſaid time. Whereby it may appear, that our intention of taking up of Arms, was no ways for invading of our Native Kingdom, or to innovate the Religion and Laws, but meerly for the maintaining and vindicating of our Royal Authority. And ſince that hereby it doth clearly appear, that We neither have nor do intend any alteration in Religion or Laws, but that both ſhall be maintained by Us in their full Integrity, We expect the performance of that humble and dutiful Obedience which becometh Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, as in their ſeveral Petitions they have often profeſſed. And as We have juſt reaſon to believe, that to Our peaceable and well-affected Subjects this will be ſatisfactory; ſo We take God and the World to Witneſs, That whatſoever Calamities ſhall enſue by our neceſſitated ſuppreſſing of the Inſolencies of ſuch as ſhall continue in their diſobedient Courſes, is not occaſioned by Us, but by their own procurement.

'Theſe Conditions in this Declaration that refer to the Time 'paſt, have bin the moſt part of them already punctually complied 'with by Us, that Clauſe excepted in which We expreſs, We in'tended to have bin at the General Aſſembly at Edinburgh; which 'yet being but an Intention, We had aſſuredly performed, but that 'We were diverted by the Diſorders committed by Our Tumultuary 'Subjects in Edinburgh, upon the Perſons of Our High Treaſurer the 'Earl of Kinnoul, Our Juſtice General Sir James Hamilton, Counſel'lors of that our Kingdom, and divers others Our good Subjects there; 'which gave us juſt cauſe to ſuſpect, that there could be no ſafety for 'our Perſon, among People inraged ſo immediately after our Cle'mency ſhewed to them in the Pacification.

'But one of the greateſt Diſcouragements We had from going thi'ther, was, The refuſing of ſuch Lords and others of that Nation 'whom We ſent for to come to Us to Berwick; by which Diſobedi'ence they manifeſtly diſcovered their diſtruſt of Us: And it cannot 'be thought reaſonable, that We ſhould truſt our Perſon with thoſe 'that diſtruſted Us, after ſo many Arguments and Aſſurances of our 'Goodneſs towards them.

I.

The Forces of Scotland to be Diſbanded and Diſſolved within eight and forty hours after the publication of our Declaration, being agreed upon.

II.

Our Caſtles, Forts, Ammunitions of all ſorts, and Royal Honours to be delivered after the ſaid publication, ſo ſoon as We ſhould ſend to receive them.

III.

Our Ships to depart preſently after the delivery of the Caſtles, with the firſt fair Wind, and in the mean time no interruption of Trade or Fiſhing.

IV.

We were graciouſly pleaſed to cauſe to be reſtored, all Perſons, Goods, and Ships, detained and arreſted ſince the firſt day of November laſt paſt.

V.

No Meetings, Treatings, Conſultations, or Convocations of any Our Lieges, but ſuch as are warranted by Act of Parliament.

VI.

All Fortifications to deſiſt, and no further working therein, and they to be remitted to Our Pleaſure.

VII.

To reſtore to every one of Our good Subjects their Liberties, Lands, Houſes, Goods, and Means whatſoever, taken or detained from them by whatſoever means ſince the aforeſaid time.

‘ On Tueſday the 18*th* of June, thoſe of Scotland came to our Pa‘ vilion, and there We ſigned the aforeſaid Declaration, and the Ar‘ ticles were ſigned by them; who alſo ſigned another Paper of Sub-
‘ miſſion to Us, as followeth.

In the Camp, June 18. 1639.

‘ In obedience to his Majeſty's Royal Commands, we ſhall, upon Thurſ-
‘ day next, the 20*th of this* June, diſmiſs our Forces, and immediately
‘ thereafter deliver his Majeſty's Caſtles, &c. and ſhall ever in all things ‘ carry our ſelves like Humble, Loyal, and Obedient Subjects.

Signed,

Rothes. | Douglas.
Lowdon. | A. Johnſtoun.

‘ Thoſe of Scotland did likewiſe further promiſe and undertake,
‘ that Our foreſaid Declaration ſhould be read and publiſhed in their ‘ Army; which was accordingly done by Lyon King of Arms of Scot- ‘ land, on Thurſday the 20*th*, in the preſence of the Earl of Morton,
‘ Sir Edmond Verney, and Sir John Borough, Our Commiſſioners ſent
‘ thither to ſee the ſame performed.

15 Caroli.

‘How theſe Articles have bin performed on their part, comes ‘now to be conſidered, and will appear by that which follows.

Firſt, ‘Whereas We, by the publication of the Articles of Pacifi‘cation, expected that due reſpect and acknowledgment of our Au‘thority, which might have witneſſed their Loyalty, and ſenſe of ‘their Thankfulneſs for ſo great and royal Favour; We found on the ‘contrary, that at the very publiſhing of it in their Camp, the ſame ‘was met with a Proteſtation, ſo ſcandalous and diſhonourable to our ‘Government, as our Subjects were thereby rather encouraged in ‘their former mutinous Ways, than reduced to that Obedience which ‘they promiſed.

Secondly, ‘They delivered into the hands of ſome of our Engliſh ‘Nobility, and ſpread among others, a ſcandalous Paper, Intituled, ‘Some Conditions of his Majeſty's Treaty with his Subjects of Scotland ‘before the Engliſh Nobility, are ſet down here for remembrance. Where‘in are contained ſuch Untruths, and ſeditious Poſitions, and ſo con‘trary to that which was concluded in the Articles of Pacification, as ‘thereby it did plainly appear, that however they pretended a deſire ‘of Peace, yet they intended nothing leſs. This falſe and ſeditious ‘Paper coming to Our knowledg, was after, by the Advice, and ‘upon the humble Petition of our Privy Council here in England, and ‘particularly by ſuch Noblemen as were pretended by them to be ‘Witneſſes to the ſame, ordered to be damn'd by Proclamation, and ‘publickly burnt by the Hand of the Hangman; which was done ac‘cordingly.

Thirdly, ‘Whereas it was promiſed, That the Forces of that our ‘Kingdom of Scotland, raiſed without our Warrant, and againſt our ‘Self, ſhould be diſbanded and diſſolved within forty eight hours af‘ter publication of Our ſaid Declaration in their Camp; they did ‘neverthelеſs for ſome time keep in Body divers Forces, and have ‘ever ſince held in Pay almoſt all their Officers, in manifeſt breach of ‘thoſe Articles, contempt of our Royal Authority, contrary to the ‘Laws of that our Kingdom, and to the great danger of all our Sub‘jects, who did give Obedience to our Commandments there, which ‘clearly ſhewed their Intention of putting themſelves again in Arms ‘againſt Us.

Fourthly, ‘Whereas it was promiſed, That our Forts, Caſtles, and ‘Ammunitions ſhould be reſtored ſo ſoon as We ſhould ſend to receive ‘them; yet full Reſtitution was not made accordingly. And for the ‘Fortification at Leith, which was with the reſt remitted to our Plea‘ſure, it ſtands entirely as it did, though We often commanded the ‘demoliſhing thereof.

Fifthly, ‘It was promiſed there ſhould be no Meetings, Treatings, ‘Tables, Conſultations, Convocations, or Conventicles, but ſuch as ‘are warranted by Act of Parliament, (and yet We were pleaſed to ‘give them Warrant to meet for the ſpace of one Month, to Conſult, ‘Adviſe, and Reſolve upon ſuch Affairs and Buſineſſes as concerned ‘the Relief of their mutual Burthens only): Nevertheleſs after that ‘Time expired, which was on the 20th day of July 1639, they did, ‘and do ſtill continue their unlawful Meetings and Conſultations upon ‘Matters of State, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, contrary to the Laws ‘and Acts of Parliament of that our Kingdom, and Our expreſs War‘rant; In which Conventicles they daily vex and trouble ſuch of our ‘ jects as do not adhere to their Rebellious Covenant, and pretended Aſſembly at Glaſgow, and the Acts of the ſame.

Sixthly, ‘ Whereas all Fortifications were to be remitted to our Pleaſure to be demoliſhed or continued, and We having given Commandment for the demoliſhing of them all, raiſed and built without our Warrant; no Obedience is given to the ſame, but they are ſtill continued, to the foſtering of Sedition among our Subjects, and the diſturbance of the Peace of that our Kingdom.

Seventhly, ‘ Whereas all our good Subjects ſhould have their Liberties and Goods reſtored to them; yet ſuch is the violence and fury of the People, animated thereunto by the ſaid Proteſtation, ſcandalous Papers ſpread, and ſeditious Sermons preached, as many of our ſaid Subjects are deterred from going to their own Dwelling and places of aboad, and threatned with the loſs of their Lives, in caſe they ſhall repair to their own Houſes.

Eighthly, ‘ Whereas in our Declaration before mentioned, We did make known that We could not approve the late pretended General Aſſembly at Glaſgow, for the Reaſons contained in Our former Proclamations; yet contrary to that our Pleaſure, they daily preſs our Subjects to ſubſcribe the approbation of the ſaid pretended Aſſembly, and Acts thereof, and to ſwear the ſame; ſo that whereas We did expect to have found our Subjects ſetled in Peace and Quietneſs againſt Our repair to Edinburgh, We heard of nothing but new Diſorders, Meetings and Moleſtations of our Subjects, well affected to our Service; which as it doth evidently appear, by the inſupportable Inſolencies committed as aforeſaid, upon the Perſons of our High Treaſurer the Earl of Kinnoul our Juſtice General, Sir James Hamilton, and others our Counſellors and good Subjects; ſo doth it clearly evince, that nothing was leſs intended than Obedience to our Authority, or performance of what was promiſed, or is due to Us in right of our Crown, and by the Laws of that our Kingdom.

Ninthly, ‘ Whereas We were pleaſed to grant a free General Aſſembly, for ſetling and compoſing the Diviſions cunningly raiſed and fomented in the Church of that our Kingdom, expecting a fair choice of the Commiſſioners, and ſuch as might ſtand with the reſpect due to our Authority, they did labour to pervert our Subjects by anticipating their Voices, in making them ſwear to, and ſubſcribe the Acts of the pretended Aſſembly at Glaſgow, and making choice of ſuch Commiſſioners (and no others) as adhered thereunto, and by Oath were bound to maintain the ſame, and further, deterred others, whom We by our Warrant did lawfully call to the next Aſſembly, from repairing thereunto, threatning them with the loſs of their lives, and what worſe may be committed againſt their Perſons, in manifeſt contempt of our Authority, and derogation from the freedom of the ſaid Aſſembly.

Tenthly, ‘ To divert all Our good Subjects from their due Obedience to Us, and to debauch them to their factious Mutinies and Diſorders; they brand all ſuch as adhere to Us, and have attended our Perſon, with the vile aſperſion of Traitors to God and their Country, threatning to proceed againſt them with Cenſures accordingly; as though the due reſpect given by them to Us, and their adhering to Us, and their aſſiſting Us in their Perſons, were Treaſon: Whereas by right of that our Crown, and the Acts of ‘Parliament of that our Kingdom, all our Subjects are to riſe with Us, and to aſſiſt Us with their Bodies and Goods; and whoſoever refuſes, or riſes in Arms or Rebellion againſt Us, or commits any Act of Hoſtility againſt our Sacred Perſon, are declared Traitors, and are to incur the pain of High Treaſon.

Laſtly, ‘Their Diſobedience appears in that unparallell'd contempt of our Royal Authority, and ſhaking off all reſpect due to Sacred Majeſty, by their proteſting that all Members of the College of Juſtice, and all our Lieges were not to attend the Seſſion, and that all Acts, Decrees, and Sentences therein paſt againſt any of them, ſhall be null, void, and ineffectual, contrary to our expreſs Warrant for the down-ſitting thereof, and to the heavy dammage of Our good Subjects, who were thereby fruſtrated of Juſtice, taking by this means our Royal Power out of our Hand, which alone belongeth to Us; none but our Self being to command our Subjects to attend the Seſſion, or to diſcharge their attendance, as We in our Princely Wiſdom and Juſtice ſhall think fit.

‘Having laid theſe inſolent and ſeditious Foundations for a Parliament, it could not in reaſon be expected but a Structure to be raiſed thereupon muſt be full of Diſorder and Confuſion; and indeed it proved all of a piece: for in all the Progreſs of the Parliament, their Actions and Demands were full of Undutifulneſs and Diſloyalty, denying to Us the moſt eſſential and inherent Prerogatives of our Crown, and ſtriving by all means to change and alter the Conſtitutions of the Parliament, and frame of Government; as appears by their firſt Act, at and after the chuſing of the Lords of the Articles; where, in a moſt inſolent and peremptory way they proteſted, That nothing done, or to be done in Parliament, ſhould be valid, except the form of electing Articles heretofore obſerved were altered, every Eſtate allowed to chuſe their own Articles, contrary to the form kept in former Parliaments for many Years, as will clearly be evinced by the Records, and will be made appear by Perſons of all Qualities yet living, who aſſiſted at the Parliaments, and were Members of the ſame, in the Years 1612, and 1609, and contrary to the Proviſions and Conditions mentioned in the Act, 1587.

‘By their Act likewiſe concerning the defining of the Power of the ſaid Articles, they preſs totally to ſubvert the Frame and Power thereof. The Articles have bin, as is acknowledged by themſelves, ever ſince King David Bruce his Time, which is above three hundred Years; and by the Lords of the Articles all Buſineſſes are prepared, and from them brought to the Parliament, as appears by divers Acts of Parliament, and particularly by the fourth Parliament of King James the 6th, cap. 218; in which for eſchewing of Confuſion and impertinent Motions, all Propoſitions to be made in Parliament are to be delivered to the Clerk Regiſter, and by him preſented to the Lords of the Articles, that all frivolous and improper Motions may be rejected; which Ancient Conſtitution they would ſubvert by the aforeſaid Act.

‘So by the Act concerning the Conſtitution of the Parliament in time to come, they urge, and thereby ſtrive totally to alter the Frame of the Parliament, and to confound and take away the third Eſtate; wherein the Civil Power of Kings is ſo much concerned, as Our

'Father, and all his Predeceſſors in former Parliaments, both in time of Popery, and ſince the Reformation of Religion, have bin moſt careful to preſerve and maintain the Dignity, Honour, and Privileges of the third Eſtate; as appears in Anno 1560, when all Church-Juriſdiction in the Perſons of Biſhops is alleaged to be aboliſhed; and in Anno 1587, when all the Temporalties of Benefices were annexed to the Crown, the Clergy retained ſtill their Vote in Parliament, and repreſented the third Eſtate, and the Civil Power and Privileges of the Church were ſtill preſerved, and again ratified, as appears by the firſt Parliament of King James 6. Cap. 24. and by divers Acts of Parliament, Anno 1587, 1597, and 1609. By all Which, and divers other Acts of Parliament, it does clearly appear how much the Kings, our Predeceſſors, have conceived their Civil Power, and the Honour of their Crown to be concerned in the maintaining and upholding of the Honour, Dignity, and Privileges of the three Eſtates. Nay, by a ſpecial Act made in the time of King James 6. Parl. 8. cap. 130. it is declared Treaſon to impugn the Authority of the Parliament, and three Eſtates, or to procure the Innovation of the Power and Authority of the ſame three Eſtates, or any of them: And We would willingly know how they, or any of them, can deny, but that they have ſought the breach of this Act, and ſo are guilty of Treaſon, and liable to the puniſhment thereof.

'Concerning the Act which they call Reſciſſory, they do not only thereby ſeek to take away the Third Eſtate (which is Treaſon, as aforeſaid) but to annul many other Acts formerly made in favour of the Crown: and farther, to bar Us, in a manner totally, from Aſſembly, or Aſſembly-Buſineſs, and cut Us off from all thoſe Powers in Civil Affairs, which in the Court of that Kingdom are in conſequence hereupon; by which it is evident how far they would trench upon Regal Power, and how different it is from their Promiſe, which was, to deſire nothing that is not warranted by Law.

'For the Act of Oblivion, in the Narrative and whole ſtrain of it, as it is formed, and deſired by them to be paſt in Parliament, they ſeek to juſtify themſelves in all their Proceedings, and inſtead of an Act of Oblivion, for which they petitioned Us at the Camp, they urge an Act which amounts to a Juſtification to be recorded in the Books of Parliament, altogether contrary to the nature of an Act of Oblivion, and to that which ever heretofore hath bin deſired in like caſe, as appears by the Act of Oblivion in Anno 1563.

'And whereas by the Act of Pacification, Reſtitution is ordained to be made to every one of Our Good Subjects of their Liberties, Lands, Goods, and Means whatſoever, taken and detained from them by any means ſince the aforeſaid time; this is not only not yet performed, but as appears by the binding part of this Act, it is never intended.

'And as by the aboveſaid Act of Oblivion, ſo by their Act of Relief, they depart from that which was condeſcended to at the Camp: for whereas upon their humble deſire We were graciouſly pleaſed, by a Commiſſion dated at Berwick, July 2. 1639, to allow them the liberty of Convening and Meeting, until a certain day, for diſtributing of their pretended Charges amongſt ſuch as ſhould willingly condeſcend thereunto; they have not only without our Warrant kept their Conventicles, and Tables, ſince the expiring of the fore-

‘ſaid Commiſſion, contrary to the poſitive Laws of the Kingdom, and Act of Pacification, and their own acknowledgment in petitioning for the aforeſaid Commiſſion, but by their ſaid Act of Relief they do moſt impudently urge upon Us, that by an Act of our Royal Power, all Our good Subjects, who in the late Troubles and Commotions did adhere to Us, and ſhew themſelves ready to defend our Royal Authority, ſhould be made equally, if not more liable to the defraying of their pretended Charges. So by the Act it ſelf, We are preſſed to juſtify and authorize all their Rebellions and Treaſons, and to conſtrain the Innocent, and thoſe that have ſuffered moſt for being faithful and loyal to Us, to contribnte to thoſe Rebellions and Treaſons; than which there can be nothing more Tyrannical, nor contrary to Juſtice and our Honour.

‘Concerning their Demands, although in all their Petitions, Declarations, and Remonſtrances, they profeſs, That they will never incroach upon Soveraignty, nor diminiſh our Royal Authority; yet notwithſtanding by their Demands made in Parliament, and the Reaſons of them given to our Self, they ſtrike at the very Root of our Regal Power. For they deſire,

First, ‘That the Coin be not medled with but by advice of Parliament.

Secondly, ‘That no Stranger be entruſted with keeping of our Caſtles, nor other Perſon put in them, but by advice of the Eſtates.

Thirdly, That no Patent of Honour be granted to any Stranger, but ſuch as have a competency of Land-Rent in Scotland.

Fourthly, ‘That no Commiſſion of Juſticiary or Lieutenancy may be granted but for a limited time.

Fifthly, ‘They proteſt likewiſe againſt the Precedency of our Lord Treaſurer, and Lord Privy-Seal, becauſe as they alleage the ſame is not warranted by a poſitive Law.

‘All which, though they are ſo eſſentially belonging to Us as their King, that for the moſt part they anſwer themſelves; yet We have thought it not unfit to give the World this ſatiſfaction concerning them.

‘And firſt for the Coin; It is a Prerogative moſt peculiar to the Crown, and none can meddle with it but by our Conſent, without incurring the puniſhment of High-Treaſon, as it is in all Kingdoms.

‘In the ſecond and third, There lurketh a great deal of Malignity and Poiſon, and they are intended meerly againſt the Engliſh, whom they would account Strangers; as appears by the Exception lately taken by thoſe of Edinburgh to thoſe Engliſh ſent by Us to the Caſtles of Edinburgh and Donbarton. This is a moſt dangerous and ſeditious Practice, to raiſe again the Partition-Wall between the two Nations, and to divide them, thereby to awaken thoſe ancient National Animoſities, which have bin moſt happily laid aſleep by the bleſſed Union of the two Crowns: And beſides, the great diſhonour to the Engliſh, that they ſhould not be held worthy to enjoy any Dignities or Priviledges in Scotland, as well as the Scots do in England: It is an injury to themſelves, For it is moſt juſt, that by the

An. 1639. ‘ſame Rule the Poſt-nati of Scotland (who are now admitted here to all Dignities, Privileges, and Offices, and do enjoy them as freely as any Engliſh whatſoever) ſhould be likewiſe excluded from them, for which moſt of their Country-man here would give them little thanks. But what Religion there can be in ſhewing themſelves ſuch Incendiaries, We leave it to the World to judg.

‘To the fourth; Some of themſelves have obtained from Us the heritable Rights of Juſticiary, over a conſiderable part of that our Kingdom; and why our Power ſhould be more limited to others than to them, We underſtand not.

‘To the fifth; No Man that is not a Traytor, can deny that the Source and Fountain of all Honour is in Us, and that is a prime Branch of our Crown to diſtribute Honours, Dignities, and Precedencies to whom We pleaſe; and beſides, the Chancellor of that our Kingdom, holds his Place and Precedency without any Warrant or poſitive Law, but meerly from Our immediate and Inherent Power; and therefore why not our Treaſurer and Privy-Seal as well as he?

‘They further boldly demand the reſcinding the Acts of Parliament concerning the Civil Government; namely, the Act concerning the Judicatory of the Exchequer, the Act concerning Proxies, the Act concerning Confirmation of Ward-Lands; by which they would overthrow both our Government and Revenue.

‘When We found them thus pertinaciouſly reſolved to perſiſt in theſe their inſolent and unſufferable Demands, contrary to all Religion and Laws, though they ſo much pretend them both, we ſignified our Pleaſure to our Commiſſioner the Earl of Traquair, to this purpoſe;

That whereas it did evidently appear unto Us, that the aim of divers of our Subjects was not now for Religion, as they have always pretended, (for it was manifeſt by the proceeding of Our ſaid Commiſſioner, how willing We had bin to give ſatiſfaction both in Aſſembly and Parliament, touching all ſuch things as were promiſed by Us, or ſued for by them under that Name of Religion); And that We did perceive, by many new ſtrange Propoſitions, that nothing would give them content but the alteration of the whole Frame of the Government of that Kingdom, and withal, the total overthrow of Royal Authority, We held it muſt now be Our care and endeavour to prevent that which did ſo nearly concern Us in Safety and Honour; and if thereupon We ſhould immediately command the diſſolving of the Parliament, it were no more than juſtly might be expected from Us. Nevertheleſs, ſuch was ſtill Our tenderneſs of their preſervation, and of the eſtabliſhment of a perfect Peace in that our Native Kingdom, as We were pleaſed rather to prorogate the ſame, and to hear ſuch Reaſons as they could give for their demands: Wherefore We commanded Our ſaid Commiſſioner to prorogate the Parliament until the ſecond of June next enſuing, and that (ſince they had diſputed it) by our Authority only; We holding it no way fitting, that any aſſent of theirs but Obedience ſhould be had to that Act, which doth ſo properly belong to Us as their King; and if they ſhould preſume to Proteſt, ſit ſtill, and diſobey this our Royal Command, Our further Will and Pleaſure was, That Our ſaid Commiſsioner ſhould diſcharge their ſo doing under pain of Treaſon. But in caſe of their Obedience, and diſſolving according to our Command, then We did require Our ſaid Commiſsioner to declare unto them, That We would not only admit to Our preſence ſuch as they ſhould ſend unto Us to repreſent their Deſires, and the Reaſons of them, but would likewiſe, as We were ready allways to do, punctually perform whatſoever We did promiſe. In the interim, We commanded Himſelf with all convenient ſpeed to repair hither, and to bring with him all that had paſſed, or had bin demanded, both in Aſſembly and Parliament, that ſo We might not only be more perfectly inform'd of all Proceedings, but likewiſe conſult with him and thoſe of our Council, what courſe would be beſt for the preſervation of our Honour, and the happy accommodation of this Buſineſs.

'This Our Command being ſignified to the Parliament by our Com-'miſſioner, was not aſſented unto without a Proteſtation, which they 'call a Declaration of the Parliament, to this purpoſe.

T*Hat whereas* John Earl of Traquair, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, honoured with a moſt ample Commiſſion, according to his Majeſty's Royal Word, having cloſed the Aſſembly, and ſitting in Parliament with them a very long time, for debating and preparing ſuch Articles as were to be repreſented in face of Parliament, did now take upon him, and that without the conſent of the Eſtates, and without any Offence on their part, who have endeavoured in all their Proceedings to witneſs their Loyalty to the King, and Duty to his Grace, as repreſenting his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon, to prorogate the Parliament upon a private Warrant, procured by ſiniſter information, againſt his Majeſty's publick Patent under the Great Seal, &c. whereby he heavily offends all his Majeſty's good Subjects, and endangers the Peace of the whole Kingdom, for which he muſt be liable to his Majeſty's Animadverſion, and to the cenſure of the Parliament, this being a new and unuſual way, without preſident in this Kingdom, contrary to his Majeſty's Honour ſo far engaged for preſent ratifying the Acts of the Kirk, contrary to the Laws, Liberties, and perpetual practice of the Kingdom; by which all continuation of Parliament once called, convened, and begun to ſit, have ever bin made with expreſs conſent of the Eſtates, as may be ſeen in the Raigns of ſundry Princes, &c. Therefore we the Eſtates of Parliament, &c. are conſtrained in this Extremity to manifeſt and declare, &c. That as we have not given the leaſt cauſe, or ſmalleſt occaſion of this unexpected or unexemplified Prorogation, ſo we judg and know the ſame to be contrary to the Conſtitution and Practices of all preceding Parliaments; contrary to the Liberties of this free and ancient Kingdom, and very repugnant to his Majeſty's Royal Intentions, Promiſe, and gracious Expreſſion in the Articles of the late Pacification, &c. And we do further declare, That any Prorogation made by the Commiſſioner's Grace alone, without conſent of the Parliament, by himſelf, or any Commiſſioner in his Name, under the Quarter Seal, or by the Lords of the Council, who have no power at all in Matters of the Parliament, during the ſitting thereof, ſhall be ineffectual and of no force at all to hinder the lawful Proceedings of the Subjects, and the doers thereof to be cenſurable in Parliament. And further we declare, That the Commiſſioner his nomination of the Articles by himſelf, his calling together thoſe Articles, and commanding them to ſit continually and proceed, notwithſtanding their daily Proteſtations to the contrary; his keeping frequent Seſſions of Council, and determining Cauſes in Council, during the time of Seſſion in Parliament; His calling down and calling up of Mony during the Seſſion of Parliament, without conſent of the Eſtates of Parliament; notwithſtanding the Parliament had taken the Mony into their conſideration, and had purpoſed to have given their advice for a determination thereanent; His frequent prorogating of the riding of the Parliament, without conſent of the Eſtates, or mentioning in the Acts of Prorogation, the conſent of the Articles, although it were done by their advice, are contrary to the Liberties of the Kingdom, Freedom and Cuſtom of Parliament; and that they be no Preparatives, Practicks, nor Prejudices in time coming againſt us, or our Succeſſors. But becauſe we know that the Eyes of the World are upon us, that Declarations have bin made and publiſhed againſt us, &c. that our Proceedings may be made odious to ſuch as know not the way how theſe Commandments are procured from his Majeſty, nor how they are made known nor intimate to us, and do as little conſider that we are not private Subjects, but a ſitting Parliament; or what National Prejudices we have ſuſtained in time paſt by miſ-information, and what is the preſent caſe of the Kingdom; We therefore declare, that whatſoever by the example of our Predeceſſors in like caſes of neceſſity, by his Majeſty's Indiction, and by the Articles of Pacification, we might do lawfully in ſitting ſtill; and which in this extream neceſſity were juſtifiable, not only before ſo juſt a King, but to the Faces of our Adverſaries; Yet out of our moſt reverend regard, and humble deſire, to render not only all real demonſtrations of Civil Obedience, but to put far from us all ſhew or appearance of what may give his Majeſty the leaſt diſcontent, we have reſolved for the preſent only to make remonſtrance to his Majeſty of the reaſon of our Propoſitions and Proceeding in this Parliament, &c. And in expectation of his Majeſty's gracious Anſwer to theſe our humble Remonſtrances, ſome of each Eſtate having power from the whole Body of the Parliament, remain ſtill here at Edinburgh, to attend the return of his Majeſty's gracious Anſwer to our humble and juſt Demands: And further, to remonſtrate our humble Deſires to his Majeſty upon all Occaſions, that hereby it may be made moſt manifeſt againſt all contradiction, that it was never our intentions to deny his Majeſty any part of that Civil and Temporal Obedience which is due to all Kings from their Subjects, and from us to our dread Soveraign after a more eſpecial manner, but meerly to preſerve our Religion and Liberties of the Kingdom, without which Religion cannot continue long in ſafety: And if it ſhall happen (which God forbid) that after we had made our Remonſtrances, and to the uttermoſt of our power and duty uſed all means for his Majeſty's Information, that our malicious Enemies, who are not conſiderable, ſhall by their Suggeſtions and Lies prevail againſt the Informations, and general Declaration of a whole Kingdom, we take God and Men to witneſs, That we are free of the Outrages and Inſolencies that may be committed in the mean time, and that it ſhall be to us no imputation, that we are conſtrained to take ſuch courſe as may beſt ſecure the Kirk and Kingdom from the extremity of Confuſion and Miſery.

Which Declaration above-written, we the Eſtates of Parliament, required the Clerk to inſert in the Records thereof, and grant Extracts thereof under his Hand and Subſcription.

This Declaration was produced and read in the outer Houſe of Parliament, upon Decemb. 18. 1639. according whereunto the Nobility nominated and appointed the Earls of Lothian and Dalhouſe; the Lords, Yeſter, Balmerino, Cranſton, and Napier: The Barons nominated the Commiſſioners of the three Lothians, Fiſe and Twedail: The Burroughs nominated the Commiſſioners of Edinburgh, Linlithgow, Sterling, Haddington, Dunbar, to attend at Edinburgh the return of his Majeſty's gracious Anſwer to their humble Remonſtance.

'In this Proteſtation or Declaration, though there be a ſpecious ſhew, 'and ſundry profeſſions of Obedience to Us, yet it is evident they 'have wounded our Authority in the Perſon of the Earl of Traquair 'our Commiſſioner, who did nothing in that Prorogation but by Our 'ſpecial Commandment; and therefore for that they cannot cenſure him 'without reflection upon Us: And beſides, it is poſitively affirmed, 'That any Prorogation made by the Commiſſioner alone, without conſent of 'the Parliament, ſhall be ineffectual, and of no force; which neceſſarily 'implies, That We have no power to Prorogue, whereas the contra'ry is moſt manifeſt Truth. And though upon our Command there 'was a ſhew of Prorogation, yet they continued part of their Body 'at Edinburgh, upon pretence of receiving our Anſwer to their Re'monſtrance; which, if it ſhall not be to their liking, they conclude 'with a menacing Proteſtation, That it ſhall be no imputation to them, 'if they be conſtrained to take ſuch courſe as may beſt ſecure the Kirk and 'Kingdom from the extremity of Confuſion and Miſery; having firſt 'taken God and Man to Witneſs, That they will be free of all Outrages 'and Inſolencies that may be committed in the mean time; than which 'nothing can be more boldly and inſolently ſpoken.

'After this, theſe divided Members of that diſtracted Parliamentary 'Body remaining thus at Edinburgh, did ſend the Earl of Dunfermling 'and the Lord Lowdon as their Deputies, to make their Remonſtrance 'to Us. But becauſe We underſtood that they came without Warrant 'or Licence from our Commiſſioner, and had not acquainted him 'with what they were to propound unto Us, We held this like the 'reſt, a great and inſufferable Diſobedience, and would not admit 'them to our Preſence coming in this manner; and ſo commanded 'them to return without hearing them.

'Then our Commiſſioner came hither, and made a Report to Us of 'the ſtate of our Affairs there; with which We thought fit to ac'quaint the Lords of our Council of England, as alſo with this Car'riage of the Parliament in Scotland, and to adviſe with them what 'was to be done for redreſs of theſe Diſorders. Whereupon We com'manded Our ſaid Commiſſioner, the Earl of Traquair, to make rela'tion to the Board of all their exorbitant Demands, of which ſome 'account hath bin formerly given them by the Lord Marqueſs Hamil'ton. Upon this our Command, the Earl of Traquair made a large 'and exact repreſentation to the Board of the moſt conſiderable Mat'ters propoſed and agitated in Parliament, and of the inſolency of 'their Demands; and the Petitioners themſelves ſent from Scotland, 'have ſince their coming to Us inſiſted upon all and every Particular 'of Our ſaid Commiſſioner's Relation, and in a moſt bold way of'fered to juſtiſy them all; by which they have more than juſtified

‘Whereupon We were further pleaſed to acquaint the Lords, that they had lately ſent Us a Petition, which carried ſome ſhew of ſubmiſſion and humility, but was indeed nothing leſs, wherein they deſired, that ſome might be allowed to come from them to Us, to repreſent their Affairs; which to make our Subjects of Scotland the more inexcuſable, We told the Lords We had granted, though We had little cauſe to hope for any good from thoſe that had ſo much forgotten their Duty and Allegiance to Us.

‘When the Lords had heard the Relation of our Commiſſioner, We thought fit upon the whole Matter to put this Queſtion to them, Whether conſidering the inſolency and height of theſe Demands, even concerning Civil Obedience, it were not fit to reduce them to their Duty by force, rather than to give way to theſe Demands, ſo prejudicial to Us in Honour and Safety? To this We commanded every one of our Council to give his Anſwer, and to declare his Opinion by Vote; which was accordingly done, and they unanimouſly voted in the Affirmative: Whereupon ſoon after We reſolved to call a Parliament.

‘After this, our Subjects in Scotland, according to the Anſwer We gave them upon their Petition, having ſent up hither four Deputies, viz. the Earl of Dunfermling, the Lord Lowdon, Sir William Douglas, and Mr. Berkeley; We were pleaſed to admit them to Our Preſence, and to receive Petitions from them, which were after by our Direction ſubſcribed by them; in one of which they, in the Name of the Aſſembly convened at Edinburgh, gave Us thanks for that We had made known to them, that all Matters Eccleſiaſtical ſhould be determined in free National Aſſemblies, and Matters Civil in Parliaments, and deſired our Ratification of the Conſtitutions of the Aſſembly in Parliament: And in the other they deſired to be heard before Us, and ſome of our Council of both Kingdoms; and that the Report made by the Earl of Traquair to our Council here in England, might be delivered them in writing under his hand, which was a moſt inſolent demand.

‘Immediately after this, We thought fit to appoint a ſpecial Committee of ſome of our Council to hear them, and accordingly gave order to the Earl of Traquair to aſſign them a day to come to that Committee. They refuſed to come, alleaging that they had Order and Inſtructions to treat with none but our Self: Whereupon We appointed them to attend Us at the Committee, though it were the day of Our appointed remove to Hampton-Court; at which time they did attend Us accordingly.

‘There the Lord Loudon made a long Speech, the effect whereof was, A Proteſtation of the Independency of the Parliament of Scotland, and that it is ſubject to no other Judicatory; a profeſſion of their Loyalty and Affection to Us, and a Juſtification of their Proceedings in the Aſſembly and Parliament, as agreeable to the Articles of Pacification, and to the Laws and Practices of that Kingdom; and thereupon a deſire, That We would ratify and confirm thoſe their Proceedings; and to that purpoſe command that the Parliament might proceed freely, for the determining of all the Articles delivered into them, and the eſtabliſhing of Religion and Peace in the Kingdom; undertaking that whatſoever Objections or Informations ſhould be made againſt their Proceedings in Parliament, (if they might receive them in writing) they would make anſwer to them.

'This Diſcourſe ended, We demanded what Power and Commiſſion they had to give Us ſatisfaction, and to oblige thoſe from whom they came? ſeeing if they had none, We ſhould hear them upon great diſadvantage, they expecting Satisfaction from Us who have Power to give it, but they none to render the like to Us.

'They anſwered, That which they ſhould propoſe (it being agreeable to Law) they were confident would give Us Satisfaction.

'We asked who ſhould be Judg of that? They anſwered, The Laws would be ſo clear that there ſhould be no need of a Judg. And though We inſiſted much hereupon, they would give Us no other Satisfaction; they avowing they had Powers, and would bring them to Us; they were ordered to do ſo at the next Meeting, and ſo for that time were diſmiſſed.

'After Our return from Hampton-Court, they attended Us at the Committee again; Where they produced Inſtructions ſigned by ſome Scotiſh Lords, and others Perſons of no great eminency; which Inſtructions having bin read, were judged by Us, (all the Committee concurring in the ſame Opinion) to be no Commiſſion, nor that they had any Power or Authority by them to give Us Satisfaction, or to oblige thoſe from whom they ſaid they came, to any thing that We ſhould yield to; or deſire. Wherefore We demanding whether they had any other Power? they ſaid, They had a Paper formerly ſubſcribed by ſome of the Lords in Parliament, by which the Earl of Dunfermling and Lord Lowdon were only authorized to come, and preſent their Juſtification to Us, and they could for the preſent have no other, the Parliament now not ſitting. Whereupon We adviſing ſeriouſly with the Committee what was beſt to be done in this weighty Buſineſs; and conſidering, That if they ſhould be diſmiſſed without further hearing, they would take occaſion to clamour, although We held our Self bound neither in Honour nor Juſtice to hear them any further, (they having offered no Foundation for an Accommodation, nor having Power to do it) yet to the end that no colour of ſiniſter Conſtruction might be left, and that We might juſtify our Self to God and the World, that We have omitted nothing on Our part that might tend to Peace, and to the ſetling of a better Intelligence between Us and them, We did reſolve that We would continue to hear them, and make Our Objections to ſuch Particulars as had bin propoſed in Parliament, and againſt which We had juſt grounds of Exception, that ſo it might appear whether they could give Us that ſatisfaction which they had promiſed and preſumed.

'This We having declared to them, not one of them made ſhew of the leaſt ſenſe of this Our Grace and Goodneſs ſo expreſſed to them; which the Lord Marqueſs Hamilton obſerving, took occaſion of himſelf to ſay, That though he was not of their Company, yet being a Scots Man, he held himſelf obliged to acknowledg with all humility this Our ſingular and princely Favour to his Country, and beſought Us to accept his moſt humble thanks for it. This drew ‘them on to do the like, and ſo they preſented their humble Thanks to Us on their knees.

‘At the next meeting of the Committee, the ſaid Petitioners produced the Paper above-mentioned, ſubſcribed by ſome of the Lords remaining at Edinburgh, as aforeſaid, by which the Earl of Dunfermling and Lord Lowdon only were heretofore authorized to come and preſent their Juſtification to Us: which Paper being read, the whole Committee agreed that the Petitioners had no Power by this Paper, no more than by the former, to give Us any Satisfaction, or to oblige thoſe from whom they came, but only to endeavour to juſtify themſelves, and the former Proceedings of the Parliament. Of all this We were pleaſed to give account to Our whole Council of England, who unanimouſly concurred in Opinion with the Committee, That the above-mentioned Papers gave them no Power at all. Nevertheleſs We were contented, according to Our promiſe, to hear them; and We did make Objections to the moſt exorbitant of their Demands: But their Anſwers were very impertinent, and rather Juſtifications of them, than any way Satisfactory: Which could not be otherwiſe, ſeeing thoſe Demands were for the moſt part ſo contrary to Law and Monarchical Government, that they did anſwer themſelves; as by our Anſwer to them formerly ſet down more particularly may appear.

‘Concerning our Promiſe of a Free Parliament, no Man of ordinary ſenſe can imagine We ever intended it ſhould be ſo free, as not to be limited with their own Conditions, ſubſcribed by the Lord Lowdon, which were to enjoy their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of that our Kingdom; and if they paſs theſe Bounds, as it is evident they have done, We remain diſobliged, unleſs they will have Us only obliged, and themſelves left at liberty to fly at our Monarchical Government, without controul, to wreſt the Scepter out of our Hand, to rob our Crown of the faireſt Flowers belonging to it, and to deſtroy our Regal Power and Authority, as manifeſtly they have endeavoured to do by their inſufferable intended Acts and Demands, contrary to all Law and Reaſon.

‘If it be further Objected, That they aſſume this liberty by our allowing of the Covenant, and commanding Our former High Commiſſioner the Lord Marqueſs of Hamilton, and other our Subjects, to ſubſcribe it; the Anſwer is very ready, That there is a great difference between the Covenant and Band ſubſcribed by our Commandment, and their Band; for that Covenant and Band was made by Our late Father King James of bleſſed Memory, Anno 1580, and obligeth thoſe that ſwear to It, that they ſhould mutually aſſiſt one another, as they ſhould be commanded by the King, or any authorized by him. But this new Band was made without Our conſent, and by it they ſwear mutually to aſſiſt one another, not excepting the King, which is indeed a meer cunning Combination againſt the King. Beſides, when any have bin required to ſubſcribe the Covenant, as the Lord Marqueſs Hamilton was, and did, and in that ſenſe which he declared in print, the principal Heads of them did not only refuſe it themſelves, but diſſuaded (as much as in them lay) all Our good Subjects from ſubſcribing it, though the Covenant were all one with theirs, and ſo acknowledged by themſelves: Whereby ‘it doth evidently appear, that it was not Religion they aimed to ſe‘cure, (as they pretended) for then they would have acquieſced ‘with theſe our Commands, but meerly by adhering to their own ‘Band, to keep our Subjects in that condition, as they might be al‘ways tied, and conceive themſelves obliged by Oath to take up Arms ‘againſt Us whenſoever the time ſhould be fit for a total Rebellion; ‘which they have never left endeavouring till they have brought it to ‘paſs: So that by Our approbation of the old Covenant and Band, or ‘by the Subſcription of our Commiſſioner, they can have no ſolid ‘Foundation to juſtify their now Proceedings; and it will hardly ap‘pear that ever any Covenant was made in the Chriſtian World (ex‘cept in Caſes of Rebellion and Treaſon, as this is) where the Head ‘was left out, or had not a Negative Voice.

‘Neither can the Earl of Traquair, our High Commiſſioner his ‘Subſcription, or allowance of the ſubſcription of the Covenant, be ‘any Warrant for their rebellious Courſes; ſeeing, as appears by their ‘own Petitions to him, they declare, that, Now following the laudable ‘Example of their Predeceſſors, they do humbly ſupplicate for the ſame, ‘and that they may be allowed and warranted to ſubſcribe it: Which clear‘ly evinces, that what they did before, and of themſelves, without ‘warrant of Authority, was neither laudable nor warrantable: As ‘alſo before the allowing thereof by the ſaid Earl of Traquair, it is ‘acknowledged (as appears by that which is prefixt to his Subſcrip‘tion) that it is one and the ſame Covenant with that of 1580; which, ‘as appears by the Reaſons heretofore deduced, will no way infer any ‘ground, or the leaſt ſhadow of Reaſon for their treaſonable Combi‘nations, or taking up of Arms againſt Us, or our Authority, or any ‘denial of our Negative Voice.

‘Now upon debate of this Point at the Council Board, the Lords ‘were of Opinion, that until the Petitioners ſent from the Covenan‘ters would acknowledg that the Supream Magiſtrate muſt have Au‘thority to call Aſſemblies, and to diſſolve them, and to have a Ne‘gative Voice in them, as is accuſtomed in all Supream Powers of ‘Chriſtendom, they ought not to be heard.

‘If they ſhall alleage (as they did when they came to the Commit‘tee) that their Demands aforeſaid were but Matters in fieri, and not ‘abſolutely reſolved nor concluded: it is to be anſwered, That the Im‘pediment was not on their part that they were not concluded. Nay, ‘the Lord Lowdon in his firſt Speech to Us at the Committee, did not ‘only juſtify their Proceedings in the Aſſembly and Parliament, as ‘agreeable to the Articles of Pacification, and to the Laws and Pra‘ctice of that Kingdom, but did deſire that We would ratify and ‘confirm thoſe their Proceedings, and to that purpoſe command that ‘the Parliament might proceed freely, and determine anent all thoſe ‘Articles delivered in to them. Howſoever, good Subjects ought to ‘be wary how they come near the ſuſpition of Rebellion or Treaſon, ‘much more how they make Demands that carry with them more ‘than a ſuſpicion of rebellious and treaſonable Intentions, as theſe ‘above-mentioned moſt manifeſtly do.

‘Now beſides the Inſolencies and Acts of Rebellion and Treaſon ‘above-mentioned, committed before, and in the Aſſembly and Par‘liament, We cannot but obſerve and publiſh to the World, that ‘their Carriage hath bin no leſs exorbitant ſince the Parliament, and

'ſince the coming of their Petitioners hither than before: for without 'any Authority or Commiſſion from Us, they have taken upon them 'to leavy and raiſe Forces in ſeveral parts of that our Kingdom, in 'great numbers, which they have continually exerciſed and trained, 'and have aſſigned them a Rendezvouz, and a day to be in a readineſs to march.

'They have made Proviſions of great quantities of Artillery, Munition, and Arms, from Foreign Parts, which they have ready in 'Magazine to make uſe of againſt Us their Soveraign.

'They have of themſelves laid Taxes and Impoſitions of ten Marks 'in every hundred, upon all and every our Subjects, according to their 'ſeveral Revenues, to be levied upon their Eſtates, for the maintenance of this Rebellion; and this they have exacted with the greateſt 'rigour and tyranny that can be imagined, howſoever they pretend 'the Contribution to be voluntary.

'They have cauſed to be framed and publiſhed, as well in Manuſcript as in Print, ſundry falſe, ſeditious, and ſcandalous Papers and 'Pamphlets, concerning our Proceedings with them; and amongſt 'others, one intituled, An Information from the Eſtates of the Kingdom of Scotland, to the Kingdom of England, &c. which having come 'to Our knowledg, We cauſed it to be read publickly at our Council 'Table; and the Lords in deteſtation thereof became humble Suitors 'to Us, that it might be ſuppreſt by Proclamation, and burnt by 'the Hand of the Hangman, which hath bin done accordingly.

'They have refuſed the Lord Eſtrick, Governour of our Caſtle at 'Edinburgh, Timber, and other Materials neceſſary for reparation of 'the Works lately fallen down there, notwithſtanding Our expreſs 'Commandment by our Letters to them upon their Allegiance to furniſh them.

'They have committed ſundry Outrages and Violences upon the 'Perſons of ſome of the Gariſon at Edinburgh, that came out of the 'Caſtle to buy Victuals.

'They have begun to raiſe Works and Fortifications againſt the ſaid 'Caſtle, thereby to block up that our Royal Fort, and to render it 'unuſeful. And they have fortified ſundry other Places in that Our 'Kingdom, and particularly Inſgarvy, where they have mounted divers pieces of Ordnance.

'They have lately impriſoned the Lord of Southesk, and ſundry 'others of Quality, for not adhering to them, and for their fidelity 'to Us.

'And whereas We have upon ſundry occaſions ſignified Our Pleaſure to the Magiſtrates of Edinburgh for the performance of ſuch 'things as have concerned our Service: inſtead of yeelding Obedience, they have made anſwer, That they have delivered up the power of governing the Town, into the hands of the Committee of the pretended Tables, by which they have not only voluntarily diſabled themſelves 'to ſerve Us, but have incurred the guilt of High Treaſon, by conferring upon any that power of Government which they derive and 'hold from Us alone, and cannot be reſigned to any other without 'our ſpecial Warrant and Command.

'But to fill up the meaſure of their Treaſons, they have endeavoured to ſettle Intelligences in parts beyond the Seas, and practiſed to 'let in Foreign Power into that our Kingdom, as We are able to 'make

‘make appear under the hands of ſome of the chiefeſt of them; as if the Fire, which by their own Rebellions they have already kindled within the Bowels of that State, were not ſufficient to conſume it, unleſs they added fuel to it from abroad. And herein appears firſt their malignity to Us their natural Soveraign, in that they had rather proſtitute themſelves to a Foreign Government, and ſuch as is different in Religion, than yield conformity to Ours. And then ſecondly, We cannot but take notice that the Intereſts and Safety of our Self, and this our Kingdom of England, are highly concerned herein: For if a Stranger once take footing in thoſe Northern parts, it is not hard to judg how eaſily he may be invited by ſuch Guides as they, and ſuch an entrance as they will readily give him, to draw nearer to this warmer Climate of the South; and then how much the Engliſh Nation are likely to be beholden to their Scotiſh Neighbours for ſuch Inmates, is left to every true Engliſh heart ſadly to conſider, and in time to endeavour to prevent, leſt he be overtaken unawares by the miſchief which threatens every one in particular, and the whole Nation in general; and yet all this with them is Religion and Laws.

‘But becauſe the World ſhall ſee that We charge them not but upon very good and ſure Grounds, We have thought fit to ſet down here their own Letter: Of which We have given Our good Brother, the French King, an account, being confident he will not aſſiſt any Rebels againſt Us. The Letter follows, with this Endorſement, Au Roy, which in France is always underſtood from thoſe Subjects only to their Natural Prince.

Engliſhed thus;

SIR,

YOur Majeſty being the Refuge and Sanctuary of afflicted Princes and States, we have found it neceſſary to ſend this Gentleman Mr. Colvil, to repreſent unto your Majeſty the candour and ingenuity, as well of our Actions and Proceedings, as of our Intentions, which we deſire to be engraved and written to the whole World with a Beam of the Sun, as well as to your Majeſty. We therefore moſt humbly beſeech you (Sir) to give faith and credit to him, and to all that he ſhall ſay on our part, touching us and our Affairs; being moſt aſſured (Sir) of an Aſſiſtance equal to your wonted Clemency heretofore, and ſo often ſhewed to this Nation, which will not yield the Glory to any other whatſoever to be eternally,

Sir,

Your Majeſty's moſt humble, moſt obedient,
and moſt affectionate Servants,

Rothes. Montroſe Leſly. Marre.
Montgomery.
Loudoun. Forreſter.

'Now theſe Affronts to our Government, and dangers to our State, 'which have no Relation at all to Religion and Law, but in the violation of them both, have neceſſitated Us to put the Forces of this 'our Realm in order, and our Self into a condition to be able (by 'God's help) to vindicate our Safety and Honour againſt all thoſe 'that under pretence of Religion and Law, have already riſen, or 'ſhall riſe up againſt Us, and to preſerve and keep in ſafety Our good 'and loyal Subjects, and to take care that the Gangrene be cut off 'before it ſpread too far, to the endangering of this our Kingdom of 'England. Nevertheleſs We profeſs before God and all the World, 'that We never did, nor ever will hinder them from the enjoying of 'their Religion and Liberties, according to the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of that our Kingdom, and according to our Promiſe and 'their Deſires, ſubſcribed by themſelves at the Pacification; but that 'We will govern them as a Juſt and Religious Prince: In aſſurance 'whereof, if they will yet acknowledg their former Crimes and Exorbitancies, and in an humble and ſubmiſſive manner, like penitent 'Delinquents, crave pardon for what is paſt, and yield Obedience for 'the time to come, they ſhall ſtill find that We will be more ſenſible 'of their Converſion, than We have bin of their Rebellions; and 'that We rather deſire their Reformation, than their Deſtruction. 'But if they perſiſt in their Rebellious Courſes, and by that which 'they call the enjoying of their Religion and Liberties, according to 'the Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Laws of that Kingdom, will underſtand 'nothing but the trampling of our Crown and Royal Authority under their Feet, and the endeavouring to ſubvert all Laws and Religion, as they have done hitherto by their Proceedings in the Aſſem-

'bly and Parliament, then We hold our Self obliged, in diſcharge of 'that Duty which We owe to God and the Government which he 'hath entruſted to Us, to have recourſe to Our coercive Power, to 'prevent ſo many imminent Dangers as threaten the Publick. This 'We take God to Witneſs We are neceſſitated to, and ſhall not undertake without extream ſorrow and reluctation. Nevertheleſs We 'truſt that God, whoſe Vicegerent we are, and by whom alone Kings 'Reign, being likewiſe a God of Truth, and a ſevere puniſher of all 'Falſhood and Impoſture, will no longer ſuffer his Glory to be deſpiſed and prophaned in our Perſon, by groſs Hypocriſy, under the 'counterfeit habit of Religion, but will ariſe and ſcatter His and Our 'Enemies.

'And for this Noble Engliſh Nation, whoſe Glory it hath bin to 'have bin governed many hundreds of Years under a Monarchy, We 'doubt not but they will, as it becomes loyal and faithful Subjects, 'continue their Affection to Us and Monarchical Government, and 'not ſuffer themſelves to be debauched and betrayed into an Anarchy, 'by ſuch as envy the happineſs they have ſo long enjoied, and the many glorious Victories which they have atchieved, under Kingly 'Government, but following the example of the Lords of our Council, and of our Servants, will chearfully aſſiſt Us in this Our juſt 'Cauſe, wherein our Honour and Safety, together with theirs, are ſo 'highly concerned.

'Our Subjects in Ireland, by their late Declaration in Parliament, 'have not only given Us a conſiderable Supply toward Our preſent 'Preparations, to reduce Our diſaffected Subjects in Scotland to their 'due Obedience, but have humbly offered Us their Perſons and 'Eſtates, even to the uttermoſt of their Abilities for Our future Supply, in a Parliamentary way, as Our great Occaſions (ſhould that 'Diſtemper continue) ſhall require. And this they deſire may be 'recorded as an Ordinance of Parliament, and that it may be publiſhed in Print for a Teſtimony to all the World, and to ſucceeding 'Ages, of their Loyalty and Affection to Us, as it well deſerves. 'This is a ſingular comfort to Us in the midſt of theſe Diſtractions; 'and We have no cauſe to doubt but our Subjects of England, who 'are nearer to the Danger, will ſhew the like tenderneſs of Our and 'their own Honour and Safety, which will be no leſs contentment to 'Us, and make Us, as a Father of Our People, take the ſame care of 'their Preſervation and Proſperity, that We ſhall of Our own. And 'this We aſſure them, in the Word of a Prince, We ſhall ever do.

The juſt double of the particular Demands of the Subjects of Scotland, preſented to his Majeſty's Commiſsioners in Articles or otherwiſe, which by his Majeſty's Commaand, for ſatisfaction of the Council of England, were hiſtorically related before them by the ſaid Commiſsioner, to his Majeſty at Whitehall.

In all which Relation he laid open, not only the Demands controverted, or what had bin debated and not concluded, but alſo ſuch as had bin proponed, and by Perſuaſion or Argument relinquiſhed, and not inſiſted upon. In all which likewiſe he left to themſelves, and thoſe whom by his Majeſty's allowance they were to ſend, to give his Majeſty a timely information of their ſaid Demands.

Which being at two ſeveral times, and in two ſeveral Papers given both to the Earl of Dunfermling and Lord Lowdon, was by them acknowledged to have bin demanded, like as they have under their hands given in in writing their Reaſons for every one of them.

The Articles given in the firſt day.

1. A Proteſtation given in at the firſt Prorogation of the Parliament, at leaſt given to the Commiſſioner to be repreſented to his Majeſty.

2. Act defining the Power of the Articles.

3. New Augmentations to the Cuſtoms to be diſcharged, and no Cuſtom nor Impoſition to be impoſed hereafter, but by advice of the Eſtates.

4. No change of value of Mony or Coinage thereof, but by advice of Parliament.

5. The Book of Rates to be reviſed by Parliament.

6. The Caſtles of Edinburgh, Donbarton, and Striveling, to be entruſted only to Natives, and thoſe to be choſen from time to time of honeſt Men, and by advice of the Eſtates.

7. Act anent the Judicatory of the Exchequer.

The Articles given in the ſecond day.

1. A Proteſtation againſt the Treaſurer and Privy-Seal their precedency, That their giving way to the Treaſurer and Privy-Seal ſhould not prejudg them of their Right.

2. The Act anent the Conſtitution of the Parliament in time coming, being by the Articles remitted to his Majeſty to be conſidered of until the next Parliament, was thereafter queſtioned by ſome of the Nobility and Barons, who in their own Name, and Name of the reſt, urged the ſame to be brought in in plain Parliament without any ſuch reference.

3. An Article craving every Commiſſioner of the Shires to have a ſeveral Voice.

4. An Article craving the Parliament to chuſe their own Clerk, or to have two of every Eſtate joined with the Regiſter; and that all Acts voiced in Parliament ſhould be immediately ſubſcribed by two of every Eſtate.

5. Act for every Eſtates chuſing of their own Lords of Articles.

6. Act diſcharging Proxies.

7. Act againſt the Book entituled, A Large Declaration.

8. Commiſſioners of Shires to give a Roll of the Free-holders, out of which the Juſtices of Peace are to be choſen.

9. Act anent the Diſorders in the North.

10. Act craving the Council to be ſubalterne and cenſurable by the Parliament.

11. No Patent of Nobility to be granted to any but ſuch as have ten thouſand Marks of yearly Land-rent.

12. No Taxation to be granted but in plain Parliament.

13. Act of Pacification.

14. Act craving particular Commiſſioners of Juſticiary and Lieutenancy to be diſcharged.

15. Act in favour of Sheriffs and Stewards, only to be obliged to produce Hornage for the Taxations.

16. Patent of making Powder to be diſcharged.

17. Act diſcharging Remiſſions for Slaugher, or Theſt, but upon ſatisfaction to the Party.

18. Act diſcharging Protections.

19. Act of Common Relief.

20. An Article craving the Act 1633 bearing, that Confirmations and Infeoffements of Ward-Lands, ſhall not prejudg the King's Ward to be repealed.

21. Act diſcharging the duty paid to the Conſervator upon the Coals.

22. Act craving Ammunition and Arms brought in ſince the beginning of theſe Troubles, to be free of Cuſtom.

23. Act anent the Election of Preſident of the Seſſion, and admiſſion of the Judges preſented by his Majeſty.

24. Act craving Stateſmen being Noblemen, to have but one Voice.

25. His Majeſty's Warrant for Mr. William Hay his Deputation in his Father's Place, oppoſed by the reſt of the Clerks.

Whereas the Author, whilſt the Records of Scotland were remaining in the Tower of London, had obtained a brief Collection of the ſeveral Heads of the Acts and Ordinances of the Scotiſh Nation; and of the large Treaty, and other Treaties and Tranſactions between the two Nations of England and Scotland: As likewiſe the ſeveral Acts, Supplications, and Deſires of the General Aſſemblies of Scotland, concerning Religion, King, and Kingdoms, Church-Government, their Faith and Covenant, their Proceedings therein, and Ratifications thereof, by their Parliaments, with divers Declarations, Remonſtrances, and Reſolutions thereupon: With their ſeveral Levies and Preparations for War, and Commiſſions and Inſtructions to their Commanders in chief: As alſo their Proclaiming Charles the Second; Their Tranſactions with him in Holland, and their admiſſion of him to his Roial Power upon Tearms of the Covenant.

Apud Edinburgum, Nov. 19. 1640.

Quindecima dies Parliamenti.

Act anent the continuation of the Parliament to the 14*th* day of January 1641.

'These are the Articles of this Parliament, called at firſt, and convened the ſecond time by your Majeſty's Authority, not in common way of calling a Parliament, but by your ſpecial and ſolemn Promiſe in your Majeſty's Royal Declaration, at the time of Pacification grounded thereupon, which we now with all humility preſent unto your Majeſty's View and Princely Conſideration, as containing no new thing different from our firſt and continued humble Deſires, and ſerving for the preſervation of our Religion and Laws, and for ſetling the Peace of this Kirk and Kingdom under your Majeſty's Government: And it was never our mind to deny unto your Majeſty, our native King and dread Sovereign, that of Civil and Temporal Obedience; ſo do we now all of us, with one heart and voice, teſtify to your Majeſty before the World, againſt the open Railings and ſecret Suggeſtions of our Enemies, that we accompt no earthly thing ſo deſiderable, as to have the happineſs of enjoying this Peace under the long and proſperous Reign of your Majeſty, and your Royal Succeſſors, in whom we have ſo great and kindly Intereſt. And therefore, as it hath been our care and diligence to keep our ſelves within the Bounds of Moderation, as your Majeſty's Throne ſtanding before our Eyes had bin filled, and we honoured with your Majeſty's Perſon and Preſence, in acting nothing but the Ratification of the Conſtitutions of the late Aſſembly, approved by your Majeſty's Commiſſioner, and ſuch other things as do conduce for your Majeſty's Honour, and the Good and Peace of this Kingdom; and making no kind of alteration, but ſuch as is either by unavoidable Neceſſity, and by ſtrength of the Matter it ſelf was origined and driven from the Acts of the Aſſembly, and without which they could not be ratified, according to your Majeſty's Declaration, or according to the Laws, were moſt neceſſary for the preſervation of our Religion ‘and Liberties in time coming: So it is now our humble Petition, and confident expectation, that your Majeſty will judg equally of the Proceedings of your loyal and well-meaning Subjects, and will account of theſe Acts as of your Majeſty's own Laws, ſince they have bin preſented with their Parliamentary Reaſons to your Majeſty's examination by our Commiſſioners, and nothing remonſtrate to us againſt the equity and neceſſity of them; and thus they are concluded in this Parliament (after once prorogation) convened by your Majeſty for this effect: We had bin inexcuſable, and could not have anſwered to God Almighty, nor to your Majeſty his Vicegerent for our Good, if we had not in the extream Exigency of this Kirk and Kingdom, made uſe of the Liberty, whereby his Divine Providence and your Majeſty's Authority and Permiſſion was put into our hands.

‘When your Majeſty ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to command that theſe Acts be publiſhed in your own Name, as our Soveraign Lord, with the Eſtates of Parliament convened by your Majeſty's Authority; when the Lord Lowdon, one of our Commiſſioners ſent from the Parliament upon your Majeſty's Warrant, ſhall be returned in ſafety, the Caſtles of Edinburgh, and other Strengths of the Kingdom, ſhall, with the advice of the Eſtates, according to the firſt firſt Foundation, be furniſhed and uſed for our Defence and Security, ſome of our Countrymen in your Majeſty's other Dominions, ſhall be free from Cenſures for ſubſcribing the Covenant, and be no more preſſed with Oaths and Subſcriptions, unwarranted by our Laws, and contrary to their natural Oaths and Covenant, approved by your Majeſty; others of them who have bin wicked Inſtruments, to work us all our woe, and to divide betwixt your Majeſty and the Kingdom, ſhall be ſent hither, and put to a Trial according to the Laws; Our Ships, and Goods, Souldiers, and others impriſoned, reſtored; and all other our loſſes and wrongs that all this time we have ſuſtained, repaired; your Declaration againſt Us, as Traitors, recalled; and when your Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to condeſcend to one ſtable and well-grounded Peace, of our enjoying of our Religion and Liberties, againſt all fears and moleſtation, and undoing us from Year to Year, whereby our Adverſaries may take advantage; then will the real Teſtimonies and Royal Proofs of your Majeſty's Juſtice and Goodneſs, be ſo ſtrong Bands of Love, and invincible Chains to tie our Hearts, that never was there a People more obſequious to a King, nor a King more contented and happy in a People: And why ſhall we not think that your Majeſty will regard the ſound Judgment and unfeigned Affection of a whole Kingdom, above the Opinion and ſelf-love of a few Male-contents, who are at diſcord with the Times, and account your Majeſty's danger and diſhonour, and our common Calamities to be a continuance of their juſtly deſerved Miſeries? And why ſhall we not hope that your Majeſty's Wiſdom will judg it more convenient to beſtow your Royal Favours upon a whole Kingdom, wherein every Man of us may have our own benefit, than upon ſome few Perſons, who by their averſion make an Eclipſe of your Majeſty's Countenance and Goodneſs at ſo great a diſtance? And why ſhall not an Obedient People, that curſeth all Rebellion and Treaſon to Hell, where it is hatched, look for better days when the Storm is blown over, wherein God may have his own

‘ Glory; your Majeſty alſo as much Honour as a good King can require,
‘ and we your Majeſty's Subjects that Peace and Happineſs which may ‘ make us heartily pray for the long and proſperous Raign of our Na‘ tive King and Monarch?

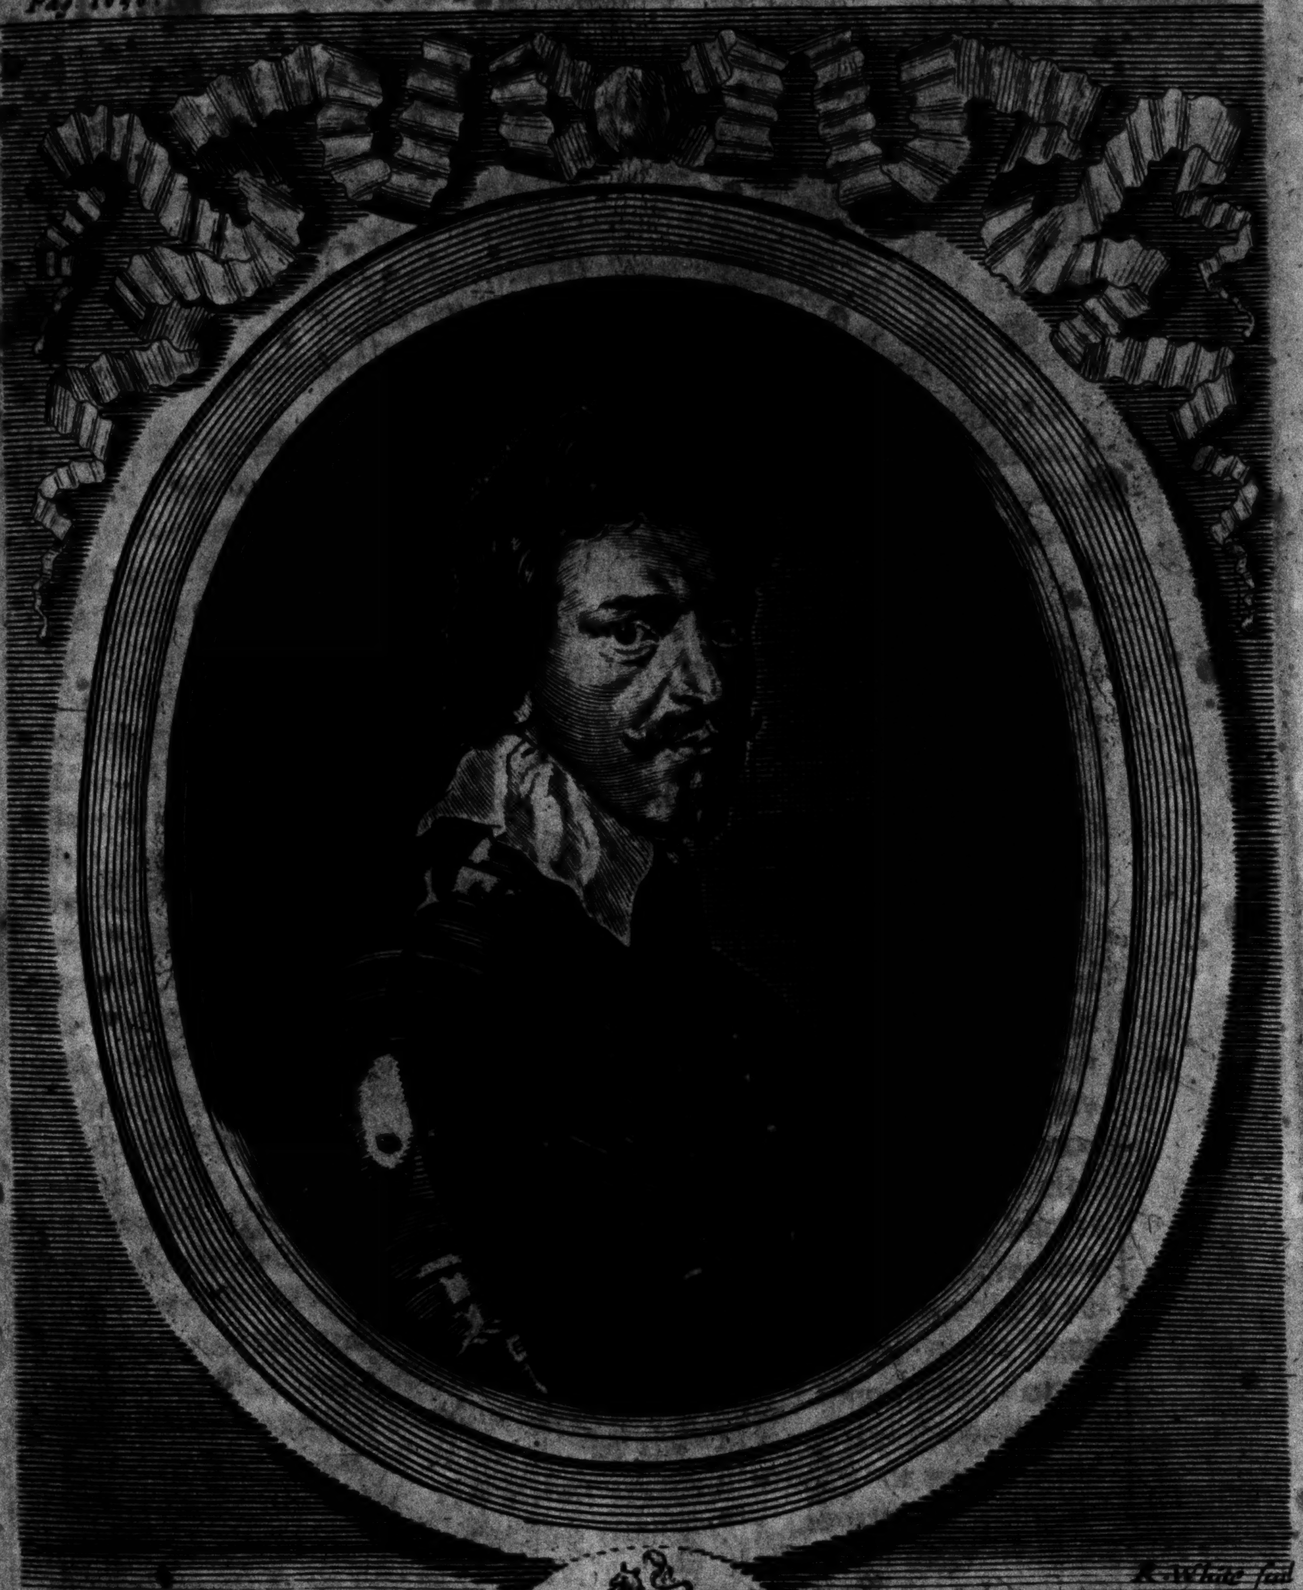
In the month of November this Year, the Lord Wentworth Deputy of Ireland, arrived at the Court of England, where he appeared in much favour with the King, and in high Reputation for his Ability in Matters of State; and the King took him into his Cloſeſt Councils, for the better forming and finiſhing thoſe Deſigns which were then begun; and his Majeſty gave him an Increaſe of Honour, creating him Earl of Strafford, Lord Lieutenant of the Kingdom of Ireland, and Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. He was conſtituted Lord Lientenant, for that (as his Patent runs)

Obſequium ſuum & induſtrium Nobis agregie probaverit, dum officium deputatus Noſtri in Regno Noſtro Hiberniæ, & Præfecturam Generalem exercitus noſtri ibidem conſcripti fide ſumma Adminiſtravit, reſque noſtras illius Regni ea prudentia ordinaverit ut Noſter Honori Saluti, Eccleſiæ populoque Univerſo optime conſulerit.



S^{r} THOMAS WENTWORTH K^{t} EARLE of STRAFFORDE, Viſcount Wentworth, Baron Wentworth of Wentworth Wood:
howſe, Newmarch, Overſley & Raby; L^{d} Lievtenant Generall, and Generall Governor of the Kingdome of Ireland; and L^{d}
Preſident of y^{e} Councill eſtabliſhed in y^{e} North parts of England,
L^{d} Lievtenant of y^{e} County & City of York, & one of his Ma^{ty} moſt hon^{ble}.
Privy Councill, and Knight of y^{e} moſt Noble order of the Garter.

After ſome weeks conſultation with his Majeſty about the Scots, and other publick Affairs, he returned to Ireland to meet that Parliament which before was ſummoned, and to levy Men to encreaſe his Army for the neceſſary Defence of the King and his Kingdom.

Before he took leave of the King, there was a Subſcription of a Loan at the Council-Board to ſupply his Majeſty with Mony; the Earl began firſt, and (for example) ſubſcribed 20000 l. and afterwards arrived at Dublin, March the 18*th* the ſame Year 1639.

Upon the meeting of the Parliament, he ſo well improved his Intereſt and Power, as that he gained from them four entire Subſidies. And in the Preamble of the ſaid Act for Subſidies, ſundry great Cauſes of Joy and Comfort are expreſſed by the Miniſtration of the Lord Lieutenant: Particularly,

> ‘In that his Majeſty hath provided and placed over us ſo Juſt, Wiſe, Vigilant, and Profitable a Governour, as the Right Honourable Thomas Earl of Strafford, Lord Lieutenant of this your ſaid Kingdom of Ireland, who by his great care and travel of Body and Mind, ſincere and upright Adminiſtration of Juſtice without partiality, encreaſe of your Majeſty's Revenues, without the leaſt hurt or grievance to any of your well-diſpoſed and loving Subjects, and our great Comfort and Security, by the large and ample Benefits which we have received, and hope to receive by your Majeſty's Commiſſion of Grace for Remedy of Defective Titles, procured hither by his Lordſhip from your Sacred Majeſty; His Lordſhips great care and pains in Reſtoration of the Church; the reinforcing of your Army within this Kingdom, and ordering the ſame with ſingular good Diſcipline; His ſupport of your Majeſty's wholſome Laws here eſtabliſhed; his encouragement to your Judges, and other good Officers, Miniſters, and Diſpenſers of your Laws in the due and ſincere Adminiſtration of Juſtice; his neceſſary and juſt ſtrictneſs for the Execution thereof, his due puniſhment of the Contemners of the ſame, and his care to relieve and redreſs the Poor and Oppreſſed. For this your tender care over us ſhewed by the Deputy, and ſupporting ſo good Governors, &c. We in free recognition of your great Goodneſs towards Us, do, for the abreviation of ſome part of your Majeſty's ineſtimable Charges, moſt humbly and freely offer to your Majeſty four entire Subſidies, &c.

And after the Lord Lieutenant's return again into England in the beginning of the Year 1640, his Majeſty honoured him with a Commiſſion to be Lieutenant General of his Majeſty's Army to march againſt the Scots, the Earl of Northumberland being made General, but the burden of the Conduct lay upon the Lieutenant General, by Reaſon of the Earl of Northumberland's indiſpoſition as to his health.

A Complaint by Dr. Belcanqual Dean of Durham, againſt his Tenants.

On the 11*th* of March 1639, Walter Belcanqual, Dean of Durham, complained of George Grey and Anthony Smith, two of the Tenants of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, for Miſdemeanours committed by them, in getting divers of the Tenants of the ſaid Dean and Chapter, to ſet their Hands and Seals to divers Papers and Petitions of Complaint againſt the ſaid Dean and Chapter their Landlord, and to contribute Mony for Proſecution of their Complaints; and as the ſaid Dean did alleage, They did not make known to the Dean and Chapter their Grievances before they came up to complain.

The ſaid Grey and Smith appearing before the Lords of the Council, did acknowledg, that what was alleaged againſt them was true as to the ſubſcribing Petitions; but declared they had cauſe to complain againſt the Dean and Chapter, for that contrary to a Decree entred in the Court of York and elſewhere in the time of Queen Elizabeth, which did aſcertain their Right in the renewing their Leaſes, with favour to them in reſpect of their Tenant-Right; and that a ſmall Fine (in compariſon of what the Dean and Chapter now required of them) had wont to be paid; of which, they ſaid, they often complained as a Grievance, but never obtained hopes of Relief from them.

The Council-Board after hearing the Buſineſs, declared themſelves diſſatisfied with the Tenants Proceedings; and the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury moved, That the Dean and Chapter might do well to proceed againſt them in the Star-Chamber, and never to renew their Leaſes to the Tenants, or the Children of them who did complain; and that it were fit they ſhould be committed to Priſon till they did produce the Schedule of Grievances ſubſcribed by the Tenants to diſcover their Names; and that they ſhould pay ſo much Mony as they received from thoſe Tenants (who impowred them to proſecute this their Complaint) to one of the Clerks of the Council, and that nothing ſhould be deducted out of the ſame, to allow the ſaid Grey and Smith any thing towards the defraying of their Charges or Monies laid out about the proſecution of this Buſineſs: for, ſaid the Arch-Biſhop, he was confident it was a practice againſt the Church, and did believe there was ſome further deſign in the Buſineſs.

Hereupon the Council-Board ordered that Grey and Smith be committed to the Gatehouſe, and there to lie in Priſon until they produce a Schedule of the Names of the Subſcribers, and that they did pay the Mony they had confeſſed to have received (which was about the ſum of 80 l.) unto the hands of Sir William Beecher one of the Clerks of the Council; which they paid accordingly, but continued in Priſon many weeks, becauſe they would not deliver up the Liſt of the Tenants Names that ſubſcribed the Petition: But a Parliament meeting April 13 next following, they were ſet at liberty by the Council-Board, without delivering up the Liſt of the Tenants Names, and the Paper of Subſcription containing their Grievances.

The Author of theſe Collections having caſually miſlaid the Decree at large which the High Court of Star-Chamber paſſed againſt the Mayor and Commonalty of the City of London, and againſt the Society of the Governor and Aſſiſtants of London of the New Plantation of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland, is not able to give a full and clear account thereof, being a Caſe of great weight, and which held ſeventeen days hearing, the Court ſitting de die in diem, in a long Vacation, the Author being then in the North; the Reader therefore is deſired to inform himſelf as to that great Caſe, of ſome Proceedings in the beginning of that Parliament, which met the third of November 1640, whilſt the King remained with his Parliament, tho at that very time he was gone to Edinburgh in Scotland, to confirm the Peace betwixt the two Nations of England and Scotland; and upon his return was magnificently entertained by the City of London, as will be at another time fully declared.

The Reſolves of the Commons Houſe of Parliament, as to this Caſe of London-Derry, were as followeth.

'Upon Mr. Whiſtler's Report of the Caſe of London-Derry, Reſolved upon the Queſtion, That the Opinion of this Houſe is, That the Citizens of London were ſolicited and preſſed to the undertaking of the Plantation of London-Derry.

'Reſolved upon the Queſtion, That the Copy atteſted with Mr. Goad's hand, is a true Copy of the Sentence given in the Star-Chamber againſt the Maſter and Commonalty of the City of London, and the Society of the Governor and Aſſiſtants of London, of the New Plantation of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland.

'Reſolved, &c. That the Order made in the Court of Star-Chamber, dated the 8 Martii, 8 Car. is unlawful, both for the Matter, Perſons, and Time therein prefixed.

'Reſolved, that this Houſe is of Opinion, That the King was not deceived in the Grant which he made unto the Society of Governors and Aſſiſtants of London of the New Plantation of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland, in particular, not in creating a New Corporation called, The Society of the Governors and Aſſiſtants of London of the New Plantation of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland.

'Reſolved, that this Houſe is of Opinion, That the King did not by that Patent grant more Land than was by him intended to be granted, nor was therein deceived.

'That it doth not appear by ſufficient proof, That the Citizens of London were tied to perform the printed Articles, and conſequently not bound to Plant with Engliſh and Scots, nor reſtrained from planting with Natives.

'By the 27 Articles, the City was to build two hundred Houſes in Derry, and an hundred at Colrain, by the firſt day of November 1611; admitting that the Houſes were not built, nor the Caſtle of Culmore repaired by the time prefixed, yet this is no Crime nor Cauſe for giving Dammages, in regard the City had not their Patent until the 29th of March 1613.

'That there is no proof that the Governor, &c. of the New Plantation, or any of their Companies, did make any Leaſe unto any Popiſh Recuſant, nor of any decay of Religion there by default of the Planters.

'There is no proof of any default in the Planters, for not making a ſufficient number of Freeholders, nor any Articles that do tie them thereunto.

'That there is no proof, that the City of London, or the Governor of the New Plantations, have felled any Trees in the Woods called Glancankin and Kellytrough, contrary to their Covenant.

'That the not conveying of the Glebe Lands to the ſeveral Incumbents of the ſeveral Pariſh-Churches, in regard they did enjoy the Lands, is no Crime puniſhable, no cauſe of ſeizure of their Lands.

‘That the Breach of Covenant (if any ſuch were) is no ſufficient Cauſe to forfeit the Lands.

‘That the breach of Covenant is no Crime, but triable in ordinary Courts of Juſtice.

‘That the Court of Star-Chamber, while it ſtood as a Court, had no Power to examine Freehold nor Inheritance, nor had any Power to examine or determine breach of Covenant or Truſts.

‘That the Sentence upon theſe two Corporations aggregate no particular Perſon being guilty, it is againſt Law.

‘That in all the Proofs of this Cauſe, there doth not appear Matter ſufficient to convince the City of London of any Crime.

‘That upon the whole Matter, the Sentence in the Star-Chamber was unlawful and unjuſt.

‘That this Compoſition and Agreement made with the City upon theſe tearms in the time of Extremity, ought not to bind the City.

‘That the Opinion of the Houſe is, That they think fit, that both the Citizens of London, and thoſe of the New Plantation, and all under-Tenants, and all thoſe put out of Poſſeſſion, by the Sequeſtration or King's Commiſſioners, ſhall be reſtored to the ſame ſtate they were in before the Sentence in the Star-Chamber.

‘That the Citizens of London, and all they againſt whom the Judgment is given in the Scire Facias, ſhall be diſcharged of that Judgment.

The Author had a full purpoſe to have given the Reader a Report of many Caſes in the Court of Honour, or Lord Marſhal's Court, (which uſed to ſit in the Painted Chamber) which Caſes he took with his own Pen, but poſtponed the tranſcribing thereof, hoping to have finiſhed the ſame in time, but is now prevented in doing thereof by his conſtant attendance upon ſeveral Printing-Preſſes to haſten out this Second Part of Collections before January 26. 1679. yet ſomething the Author by his Memory doth call to mind of Proceedings in that Court.

The principal Caſe there heard, as to Deſcent and Coat of Arms, was in the Caſe of [Weſt] Lord De la Ware, the Proceedings wherein did carry good Reputation of Juſtice with it, in giving relief to that Noble Family; the Caſe was thus,

There was a Perſon took upon him the Name of Weſt, himſelf being of a far different Name by Birth; and aſſumed not only the Name, but the Coat of Arms of the Family of [Weſt] Lord De la Ware: Whereas the ſaid pretended Weſt had got the Name of [Weſt] by his great skill in Wreſtling in Lincolns-Inn Fields, who went by the Name of Jack of the Weſt, but was indeed an Hoſtler: Afterwards he came to be an Inkeeper, and got a good Eſtate, and maintained his Son at the Inns of Court; but the Son was impatient till he did let the World ſee that he was a Perſon honourably Deſcended, and thereupon did, by virtue of his Patent, take place of ſome of the Gentry his Neighbours in Hampſhire; which did ſo diſoblige them, (they knowing his Original) as they acquainted ſome of the Family of the Lord De la Ware therewith; who being then an Infant, yet did by his Guardian bring this Caſe to a hearing in the Court of Honour;

Honour; where this pretended Weſt produced his Patent granted by the Herauld, that he was thus deſcended, as if it were (but the Author remembers not the names certainly) from John Weſt, the Son of Robert Weſt, the Son of Roger Weſt, the Fourth Son of the Lord De la Ware.

On the other part it was made out, on the behalf of the Lord De la Ware, that there were ſuch Perſons as were named in the Patent, and that one of them went beyond Seas, who was conceived to be dead, but was now come over, and then preſent in Court; and there it was made out that this Weſt the Hoſtler aſſumed his Deſcent to be from the Gentleman, that ſo appeared in Court: So upon the whole hearing of the Buſineſs, the Court was fully ſatisfied of the Abuſe by the ſaid Weſt the Hoſtler done to the Family of Weſt Lord De la Ware. Whereupon he was ordered to be Degraded, and never to write himſelf Gentleman any more, and to pay 500 l. Fine. Some other Circumſtances did attend his Degradation, which cannot now be called to mind.

The next Caſe of note to this which the Author then obſerved, was between Pierpoint and Coply about Matter of Honour, and Precedency in Antiquity of Families; when the Cauſe came to hearing, both Families proved their Pedigree from the Conqueſt; but foraſmuch as there were ſcandalous words proved to be ſpoken by the ſaid Coply, to the defamation of the Family of Pierpoint, the Sentence paſſed againſt Coply, and 300 l. Fine ſet.

Except theſe two Caſes, the Author (who frequently attended there for three or four Years to take Reports) cannot call to mind any other Caſe remarkable; but many were the Complaints by way of Libel (that Court proceeding according to the Civil Law) againſt others, for giving a Gentleman words tending to the defamation of a Family well deſcended:

As for inſtance, One Brown ſet forth in Libel his Deſcent; that another Perſon, in way of defamation, ſaid, he was no Gentleman, but deſcended from Brown the great Pudding-eater in Kent; but it appearing he was not ſo deſcended, but from an Ancient Family, he that ſpoke the words underwent the Sentence of the Court, and decreed to give Satisfaction to the Party complaining.

In another Caſe, a Citizen of London was complained of, who going to a Gentleman, well deſcended, for ſome Mony that was due unto him; the Gentleman not only refuſed to pay him the Mony, but gave him hard words; then ſaid the Citizen, Surely you are no Gentleman that would not pay your Debts, with ſome other reflecting Language; and the Citizen underwent the Cenſure of the Court.

The Author can give no further account at preſent of the Proceedings in that and other Caſes; but if he be permitted to proceed, he will ſupply this defect in his next Remains.

An. 1639.

Yet the Reader is deſired to excuſe a little Digreſſion out of Time, to give ſome ſmall account of this Court of Honour, and what paſſed concerning the ſame in the beginning of the Parliament, which met the third of November 1640, when ſeveral Petitions, by way of Complaint, came to the Parliament againſt the Proceedings of this Court; which being read, were referred to a Committee, viz. To

Mr. Selden.	Mr. Palmer.
Mr. Hollis.	Sir John Culpeper.
Mr. Hide.	Mr. Mainard.
Lord Faulkland.	Dr. Parry.
Dr. Eden.	And others.

To whom this Power was given to receive all Petitions that ſhall be brought unto them, concerning the High-Conſtable and Earl-Marſhal's Court; and to enquire after the Fees of the High-Conſtable and Earl-Marſhal's Court, and the Herald's Fees; and to conſider of the Proceedings and Power of the High-Conſtable and Earl-Marſhal's Court, and to report the ſtate of the whole Matter to the Houſe.

Mr. Edward Hide being called to the Chair by this Committee, made a Report from them to the Houſe.

1. That the Conſtable and Earl-Marſhal's Court have no Juriſdiction to hold Plea of Words.
2. That the Earl-Marſhal can make no Court without the Conſtable.
3. That the Earl-Marſhal's Court is a Grievance.

All which Opinions of the Committee, the Houſe confirmed by ſeveral Votes agreeing with them therein.

And further Power at this time was given to the Committee, whereof Mr. Hide was in the Chair;

1. That they do conſider who they are that are guilty of this Grievance by the Earl-Marſhal's Court.
2. To conſider of the Nature of the Crime which they are guilty of.
3. That they prepare and draw up a Charge to be tranſmitted to the Lords, againſt thoſe who have thus, to the Grievance of the Subject, uſurped this Juriſdiction.

Concerning the Foreſt in Eſſex, &c.

We did forget to mention, in order of Time, ſome Proceedings concerning the Foreſts in England, eſpecially in the County of Eſſex, before the Juſtice in Ayre, and thoſe joined in Commiſſion with him; againſt whoſe Proceedings the Country made grievous Complaints, that the Meets, Meers, Limits and Bounds of Foreſts were adjudged by them to extend further than they were taken to be in the 20*th* Year of King James, and contrary to thoſe Bounds by which the Country had enjoied them near the ſpace of 300 Years; and alſo complained that the ſaid Court, to effect their Deſign, did unlawfully procure procure undue Returns to be made by Jurors, in joining with them other Perſons who were not ſworn; the Court alſo uſing threatning Speeches to make them give a Verdict for the King.

And when the Country, who found themſelves hardly dealt withal, did deſire to traverſe the Proceedings againſt them, having juſt cauſe to except againſt the Evidence; yet the Court denied the ſame, except what they ſhould verbally ſpeak; Whereupon the Council for the Country told the Juſtice-Seat, That their Proceedings were contrary to Law, and to the Charter of the Liberties of the Foreſts, and other Charters, and divers Acts of Parliament. Nevertheleſs the Court obtained a Verdict for the King; at which time the Juſtice-Seat was called by Adjournment to ſit, and continued ſitting, to maintain and confirm the Verdict given againſt the Country.

It ſo happened, that when the Court was to declare their final Decree and Sentence againſt the People inhabiting in the Foreſts in Eſſex, ſitting then at Stafford-Langton near Bow, about three miles diſtant from London, that there came a drove of Calves paſſing through the Town towards London, and when they were at the open place in that Town over againſt the Juſtice-Seat, they ſullenly made a ſtand and a great bleating, with ſuch an united and unmeaſurable noiſe, as the Court could not hear themſelves to declare what was intended in giving Judgment; ſo that after they had forbore ſpeaking till the noiſe was over, and the Calves with much difficulty removed towards London, then the Court proceeded to give their final Sentence, as to the Foreſts in Eſſex, againſt the Country, by which many Inhabitants were fined great Sums of Mony, or forthwith depart from their Houſes and Eſtates, and retire out of the Foreſts, for that they were found, by Verdict given againſt them, to have encroached upon the Foreſts.

There is one Circumſtance, which to divert the Reader, is mentioned, That a Knight of the County of Suffolk having Lands within the Foreſt (upon this occaſion) told a Knight of the County of Eſſex, That the Eſſex-Calves did make that bleating, as if the dumb Creatures did underſtand that Sentence was to be pronounced againſt the Inhabitants in the Foreſt in whoſe Grounds they fed. But the Eſſex Knight took exception to the words [Eſſex-Calves] and told the other Knight, They were Suffolk Calves driven through Eſſex, therefore ſaid the Eſſex Knight, Let not Calves hereafter be caſt upon Eſſex alone, but let Suffolk bear a ſhare.

Here followeth a further account of what was Regiſtred by Sir Alex. Gibſon, in the Year 1641, his Majeſty being then preſent at the Parliament at Edinburgh, who was pleaſed to give his conſent in that Parliament to the confirmation of the Treaty between both Kingdoms, which corroborates all the Proceedings that were at the Treaty at Rippon, and afterwards at the Treaty at London, which account will not be unacceptable for the Reader to be informed of for his better underſtanding the future Hiſtory, tho now a little out of time.

The Arch-Biſhop of Canterburies Diary.

The Arch-biſhop of Canterburies Diary.

Monday, April 13. the Parliament ſate down, called about the Rebellion of Scotland.

April 14. Tueſday, the Convocation began at St. Pauls.

April 28. Tueſday, the hot conteſtation in the Lords Houſe, which ſhould have precedence, the Kings Supply, or the Subjects Grievances? Voted in the Upper Houſe for the King.

May 9. Saturday, a Paper paſted upon the Old Exchange, animating Apprentices to ſack my houſe, upon the Monday following early.

May 11. Monday night at Midnight my houſe at Lambeth was beſet with five hundred perſons of the Raſcal Routous multitude; I had notice, and ſtrengthned the houſe as well as I could, and God be bleſſed I had no harm: ſince I have got Cannons, and fortified my houſe as well as I can, and hope all may be ſafe: But yet Libels are continually ſet up in all places of note in the City.

May 21. Thurſday, one of the chief being taken, was condemned at Southwark, and hanged and quartered on Saturday morning following May 23. ſome of theſe mutinous people came in the day time, and brake the White Lyon Priſon, and let looſe their fellows, both out of that Priſon and the Kings Bench, and the other Priſoners out of the White Lyon.

May 29. Friday, the Convocation ſat after the ending of the Parliament till May 29. and then ended, having made in that time ſeventeen Canons, which I hope will be uſeful to the Church.

Ibid. The Biſhop of Glouceſter, Godfrey Goodman, ſuſpended for Notorious Scandal to the Church, in refuſing firſt to ſubſcribe to the Canons, and after to profeſs a reſervation. He had long before been ſuſpected as inclining to Popery.

The Canons were all voted Nemine diſſentiente, ſave this Biſhop, who had in general conſented before.

July 8. Wedneſday, being the day of the Solemn Faſt, about ſix of the Clock in the Evening, the Queen was happily delivered of a Son, Chriſtened Henry.

July 10. Friday, I took my Oath to the new Canons at the Council Table, and ſo did my Lord Biſhop of London, and after him the Biſhop of Glouceſter ſubmitted himſelf, and took the Oath, and was releaſed out of Priſon by the Kings command.

An. 1640.

July 22. I Chriſtned the Kings young Son Henry at Oatlands; the Queen was there happily delivered of him.

Auguſt 20. Thurſday, His Majeſty took his Journey towards the North in haſte, upon information that the Scots were entred the Monday before into England, and meant to be at Newcaſtle by Saturday.

Auguſt 22. Saturday, a Libel was brought me, found in Covent-Garden, animating the Apprentices and Soldiers to fall upon me, in the Kings abſence.

September 21. I received a Letter from one John Rocket, a name and perſon unknown to me, he was among the Scots as he paſſed through the Biſhoprick of Durham; he heard them inveigh and rail at me exceedingly; and they hoped ſhortly to ſee me, as the Duke was, ſlain by one leaſt ſuſpected. His Letter and Advice to me, to look to my ſelf.

September 24. A Great Council of the Lords was called by the King to York, to conſider what way was beſt to be taken to get out the Scots, and this day the meeting began at York, and continued till October 28.

October 22. Thurſday, the High Commiſſion ſitting at St. Pauls, becauſe of the troubles of the times, very near two thouſand Browniſts made a tumult at the end of the Court, tore down all the Benches in the Conſiſtory, and cryed out, they would have no Biſhop, nor no High Commiſſion.

October 27. Tueſday Simon and Jude's Eve, I went into my upper Study, to ſee ſome Manuſcripts, which I was ſending to Oxford: In that Study hung my picture, taken by the life, and coming in I found it fallen down upon the face, and lying on the floor, the ſtring being broken by which it hanged againſt the wall. I am almoſt every day threatned with my ruine in Parliament, God grant this be no omen.

Tueſday the Parliament began; the King did not ride, but went by Water to Kings Stairs, and through Weſtminſter-Hall to the Church, and ſo to the Houſe.

Wedneſday, the Convocation began at St. Pauls, the ſame day Thomas Viſcount Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, accuſed to the Lords, by the Houſe of Commons, for High Treaſon, and reſtrain'd to the Uſher of the Houſe.

November 22. Wedneſday, he was ſent to the Tower.

December 2. Wedneſday, a great debate in the Houſe, that no Biſhop ſhould be ſo much as of the Committee for preparatory examinations in this cauſe, as accounted cauſa ſanguinis, put off till the next day.

December 3. Thurſday, the debate declined.

December 4. The King gave way, that his Council ſhould be examined upon Oath, in the Earl of Straffords caſe. I was examined this day.

December 16. Wedneſday, the Canons condemned in the Houſe of Commons, as being againſt the Kings Prerogative, the Fundamental Laws of the Realm, the liberty and property of the Subject, and containing divers other things tending to Sedition, and of dangerous conſequence. Upon this, I was made the Author of them, and a Committee put upon me, to enquire into all my actions, to prepare a Charge. The ſame morning in the Upper Houſe I was named an Incendiary by the Scotiſh Commiſſioners, and a complaint promiſed to be drawn up by to morrow.

December 18. Friday, I was accuſed by the Houſe of Commons, for High Treaſon, without any particular charge laid againſt me; which they ſaid ſhould be prepared in convenient time. Mr. Hollys was the man that brought up the meſſage to the Lords; ſoon after the Charge was brought into the Upper Houſe by the Scots Commiſſioners, tending to prove me an Incendiary: upon which I was preſently committed to the Gentleman Uſher; I was permitted to go in his company to Lambeth, for a Book or two to read in, and ſuch Papers as pertained to my defence againſt the Scots: I ſtaid at Lambeth till the evening, to avoid the gazing of the people. I went to Evening Prayer in my Chappel; the Pſalms of the day 93 and 94. and Chap. 50. of Eſay gave me great comfort; God make me worthy of it, and fit to receive it.

December 21. I was fined 500 l. in the Parliament Houſe, and Sr. John Lambe and Sr. Henry Martin 250 l. a piece, for keeping Sr. Robert Howard cloſe Priſoner, in the caſe of the eſcape of the Lady Vicounteſs Purbeck out of the Gate-houſe, which Lady he kept lewdly, and had children by her: in ſuch a caſe, ſay the impriſonment were more than the Law allowed, what may be done for honour and religion ſake? Wedneſday, the Lords ordered me to pay the money preſently, which was done: I was forced to ſell plate to pay where I borrowed it. Thurſday, a Parliament man of good note, intereſſed in divers Lords, ſent me word, that by reaſon of my patient and moderate carriage ſince my commitment, four Earls of great power in the Upper Houſe told him, that the Lords were not now ſo ſharp againſt me as they were at firſt; and that now they were reſolved only to ſequeſter me from the Kings Council, and to put me from my Arch-biſhoprick: ſo I ſee what Juſtice I may expect, ſince here is a reſolution taken, not only before my anſwer, but before my charge was brought up againſt me.

February 14. Sunday, A. R. And this if I live and continue Archbiſhop of Canterbury till after Michaelmas day come twelvemonth Anno 1642. God bleſs me in this.

February 26. Friday, This day I had been full ten Weeks in reſtraint at Mr. Maxwells houſe, and this day, being St. Auguſtines day, my charge was brought up from the Houſe of Commons to the Lords, by Sr. Henry Vane the younger; it conſiſted of fourteen Articles: Theſe general, they craved time to prove in particular. The Copy of this general charge is among my papers; I ſpake ſomething to it, and the Copy of that alſo is among my papers. I had favour of the Lords not to go to the Tower till the Monday following.

March 1. I went in Mr. Maxwells Coach to the Tower: no noiſe till I came to the end of Cheapſide; but from thence to the Tower I was followed, and railed at by the people and rabble in multitudes to the very Tower gates; where I left them, and I thank God he made me patient.

March 9. Shrove-Tueſday, &c. was with me in the Tower, and gave great engagements of his faith to me.

March 13. Saturday, the Lord Brooks dined with the Lords, at the new houſe built by the King at Lambeth: three of the Lords in Boat together, one of them ſaying, he was ſorry for my commitment, becauſe the building of St. Pauls went ſlow on the while; the Lord Brooks replyed,

An. 1640.

replyed, I hope one of us ſhall live to ſee no one ſtone left upon another, of that building.

March 21. Monday, a Committee for Religion ſetled in the Upper Houſe of Parliament, ten Earls, ten Biſhops, ten Barons; ſo the Lay Votes will be double to the Clergy. This Committee will meddle with Doctrine as well as Ceremonies, and will call ſome Divines to them, to conſider of the buſineſs; as appears by a Letter hereto annexed, ſent by the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln to ſome Divines, to attend this ſervice: upon the whole matter, I believe this Committee will prove the National Synod of England, to the great diſhonour of the Church: And what elſe may follow upon it, God knows.

March ibid. Monday, the Earl of Strafford's Tryal began in Weſtminſter-Hall, and it continued till the end of April, taking in the variation of the Houſe of Commons, who after a long hearing, drew a Bill of Attainder againſt him.

We begin this Year with Warlike Preparations for a ſecond Expedition againſt the Scots; and being unwilling to give a ſhort Abſtract of thoſe Preparations, we ſet down at large the very Orders made upon that occaſion by the Lords of the Council, and others in Power and Authority.

Copies of Letters directed to the ſeveral Counties hereafter following, for the Levying of Soldiers which are to March by Land to Newcaſtle upon Tine.

A Liſt of Soldiers to be Levied for the ſecond Expedition againſt the Scots, to march by Land.

AFter, &c. to your good Lordſhip: By His Majeſties Letters ſent herewith, your Lordſhip will underſtand His pleaſure and intention for the levying of Foot within that County of your Lieutenancy, for the neceſſary defence of the Realm. By which Letter your Lordſhip is referred to us for ſuch Inſtructions and Directions as ſhall be requiſite for that ſervice. We have therefore thought good to pray and require your Lordſhip, to give preſent and effectual Order to your Deputy Lieutenants, forthwith to meet, and in the firſt place to diſtribute the Number of men to be raiſed in the ſeveral Hundreds of that County, and to take eſpecial care, that there be a very good Choice made of the men out of the Trained Bands there, that they be of able Bodies and Years meet for this Imployment. Where any Free-holder hath uſed to have his Arms born by another man, that other man is to be preſſed to ſerve, if he be of able body: and where a Free-holder hath ſerved with his own Arms, and is not fit or willing to ſerve himſelf, he is to find another able man to ſerve in his place; and if he cannot procure another, then your Lordſhip or your Deputy Lieutenants are to cauſe another able man to be preſſed to ſerve. And where any man hath uſed to bear the Common Arms of the Pariſh, if he be fit and able of body, he is to be taken; but if he be unfit, a ſufficient man is to be preſſed in his ſtead. Your Lordſhip is eſpecially to take care, that in this Liberty given to change men to ſerve in the place of the trained Souldiers, there be not any rewards or money taken, which was an abuſe too much practiſed the laſt year, and now in examination, to receive Condign puniſhment. As for the choice of the men, our very good Lord the Earl of Northumberland, Lord General of His Majeſties Army, will forthwith ſend into that County Commanders to aſſiſt your Lordſhip and your Deputy Lieutenants in the Choice and Liſting of them. And when they ſhall be in ſuch manner liſted, your Lordſhip is to take effectual order, that there be no alteration of any of them, without a particular Warrant under the hand of your Lordſhip, or two of your Deputy Lieutenants. The men to be raiſed, are to be appointed to meet in Companies of one hundred a piece at particular Rendezvouz in that County moſt convenient for each hundred men, till the tenth of May next, to be Weekly exerciſed with falſe Fires or no Fire, by ſuch inferiour Officers, as the Lord General ſhall ſend down to inſtruct them in their poſtures, and the uſe of their Arms: to which purpoſe, your Lordſhip is to cauſe the Arms of the Trained Bands to be lent unto them, which ſhall be re-delivered back, when they ſhall march out of that County. Your Lordſhip is likewiſe to take order, that there be preſt, and ſent with the ſaid Soldiers one Drum and Drummer to every hundred men, who ſhall enter into His Majeſties pay, as ſoon as the ſaid Soldiers ſhall march out of that County. Beſides the ſaid particular Rendezvouz, where the ſeveral Companies are to meet in that County, your Lordſhip is to cauſe one General Rendezvouz to be appointed on the Confines of that Shire, moſt convenient for the ſaid Soldiers march towards Newcaſtle upon Tine; to which General Rendezvouz in that County, the ſaid Soldiers are to be brought the tenth of May, and to remain there till the twentieth of the ſame Month, to be there exerciſed and put in order for their March towards Newcaſtle, by ſuch Commanders and Officers as ſhall be ſent thither by the Lord General, to whom your Lordſhip is to ſend preſent advertiſement, what place you appoint for the ſaid General Rendezvouz of that County. The Soldiers are to be allowed at the charge of that County 8 d. a piece per diem for every day they ſhall be exerciſed, at the particular Rendezvouz in that County. And from the tenth of May till the twentieth. The charge alſo of conducting the ſaid men to the General Rendezvouz of the County, is to be born by that County. Your Lordſhip (or at leaſt) two of your Deputy Lieutenants are to be at the General Rendezvouz of the County by the tenth of May, as well to aſſiſt in keeping of the men in order, as to take care for the receiving back from them the Arms of the County, and to deliver the ſaid men over by Indenture, to ſuch Commanders and Officers, as ſhall be appointed to receive and take charge of them: of which Indentures, one part is to be ſigned by your Lordſhip, or two of your Deputy Lieutenants, and the other by the ſaid Commanders or Officers that ſhall receive the men; and Duplicats of the ſaid Indentures are to be ſent by your Lordſhip, one to this Board, and another to the Lord General. As His Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed for the eaſe of that County, that all the Soldiers ſhall enter into His Majeſties pay as ſoon as they ſhall march out of the Confines of that Shire towards Newcaſtle; ſo he expects, that the more readineſs and care be uſed in the raiſing and keeping them together while they ſhall be there; and that they be ſent away well Cloathed and Coated at the charge of that County; all which charges and allowances, as well for the Coating as for the entertainment of the ſaid men in their exerciſing, and Conducting to their General Rendezvouz of that County; His Majeſties Pleaſure and Command is, that your Lordſhip do cauſe the ſame to be Levied in that County as hath been uſed heretofore in caſes of leſs Importance. And the Counties are to be repaid the ſame upon Accompt thereof made out of his Majeſties Exchequer, in ſuch manner as in former times, upon the like occaſion. And laſtly we do expect and require the Juſtices of peace, and other Officers in their ſeveral Diviſions to be aiding and aſſiſting to your Lordſhip and your Deputy Lieutenants in this Service, &c.

Letters directed to the ſeveral Counties hereafter following, for the Levying of Souldiers which are to be ſent by Sea.

Soldiers to be Levied and to march to Sea-port Towns.

AFter &c. to your good Lordſhip. By his Majeſties Letters ſent herewith your Lordſhip will underſtand his pleaſure and intention for the Levying of three hundred Foot in the County of Cambridge; Six hundred in the County of Suffolk; Six hundred in the County of Dorſet, and Three hundred in the Cinque-Ports, for the neceſſary Defence of the Realm. By which Letter your Lordſhip is referred to us for ſuch Inſtructions and Directions as ſhall be requiſite for that Service. We have therefore thought good hereby to pray and require your Lorſhip to give preſent and effectual order to your Deputy Lieutenants in each County reſpectively, forthwith to meet, and in the firſt place to diſtribute the Numbers of men to be raiſed in the ſeveral Hundreds of every particular County, and to take ſpecial Care, that there be a very good choice made of the men, out of the Trained Bands there, that they be of able Bodies and years meet for this imployment. And where any man uſed to bear the common Arms of the Pariſh, if he be fit and able of Body, he is to be taken; but if he be unfit, a ſufficient man is to be Preſt in his ſtead. Your Lordſhip is eſpecially to take care, that in the Liberty given to change to ſerve in the place of Trained Soldiers, there be not any rewards or money taken, which was an abuſe too much practiſed in the laſt year in ſome Counties, and now in Examination to receive condign puniſhment. As for the choiſe of the men, our very good Lord the Earl of Northumberland, Lord General of his Majeſties Army, will forthwith ſend into thoſe Counties Commanders to aſſiſt your Lordſhip and your Deputy Lieutenants in the Choice and Liſting of them: And when they ſhall be in ſuch manner Liſted, your Lordſhip is to take effectual order that there ſhall be no alteration of any of them without a particular Warrant under the hand of your Lordſhip, or two of your Deputy Lieutenants. The men to be Raiſed in each County, are to be appointed to meet in Companies of one hundred a piece, at their particular Rendezvouz in each County reſpectively; moſt convenient for each hundred men, untill they ſhall be brought to the General Rendezvouz, in the ſeveral Counties, to be weekly exerciſed with ſalſe fire, or no fire, by ſuch inferiour Officers as the Lord General ſhall ſend down to inſtruct them in their Poſtures and uſe of their Arms. To which purpoſe, your Lordſhip is to cauſe the Armes of the Trained Bands to be lent unto them, which ſhall be delivered back when they ſhall march out of the Counties. Your Lordſhip is likewiſe to take Order that there be Preſt and ſent with the ſaid Soldiers one Drum and Drummer to every hundred men, who ſhall enter into His Majeſties pay as ſoon as the ſaid Souldiers ſhall march out of the Counties. Beſides each particular Rendezvouz, where the ſeveral Companies of one hundred apiece are to meet in thoſe Counties; your Lordſhip is to cauſe one general Rendezvouz to be appointed on the Confines of each Shire moſt convenient for the ſaid Soldiers march towards the ſeveral Ports or places following (viz.) the Six hundred men from the County of Dorſet to New-Caſtle upon Tine. The three hundred from the County of Cambridge, and the ſix hundred men from the County of Suffolk to Yarmouth; and the three hundred men from the Cinque-Ports to Graveſend. To which General Rendezvouz in each County reſpectively; thoſe from the County of Dorſet are to come the tenth of May, to remain there till the twentieth; then to march towards Newcaſtle. Thoſe from the County of Cambridge are to come to the General Rendezvouz of that County on the twenty fifth of May, to remain there till the fifth of June, then to march to Yarmouth, that they may be there ready to be Shipped on the tenth of June. Thoſe from the County of Suffolk are to come to the General Rendezvouz of that County on the twenty ſeventh of May, to remain there till the ſixth of June, then to march to Yarmouth, that they may be there ready to be Shipt on the eighth of June. Thoſe from the Cinque-ports are to come to their General Rendezvouz the twenty firſt of May, to remain there till the firſt of June, then to march to Graveſend, that they may be there ready to be Shipped the fourth of June. And they are all to be at the ſaid General Rendezvouz of the ſeveral Counties exerciſed and put in order for their march towards the ſaid Ports and places by ſuch Commanders and Officers as ſhall be ſent thither by the Lord General, to whom your Lordſhip is to ſend preſent advertiſement what places you appoint for each General Rendezvouz of every County. The Soldiers are to be allowed at the charge of every County reſpectively, eight pence a piece per diem, for every day they ſhall be exerciſed at each particular Rendezvouz in Companies as aforeſaid of one hundred a piece, in every of the ſaid Counties, as alſo for the time they ſhall remain at the General Rendezvouz in their ſeveral Counties, until they march out of the County. When they are to enter into his Majeſties pay, your Lordſhip or at leaſt two of your Deputy Lieutenants for every County are to be at each General Rendezvouz of the ſaid Counties, by the times afore ſet down for the ſame, as well to aſſiſt for the keeping of the men in order, as to take care for the receiving back of the ſaid Arms from them, and to deliver the ſaid men over by Indenture to ſuch Commanders and Officers as ſhall be appointed to receive and take the charge of them, of which Indenture one

one part is to be ſigned by your Lordſhip or two of your Deputy Lieutenants, and the other by the ſaid Commanders or Officers that ſhall receive the men. And Duplicates of the ſaid Indentures are to be ſent one to this Board, and another to the Lord General. As his Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed for the eaſe of the Counties that all the Souldiers ſhall enter into pay, as ſoon as they ſhall march out of the Confines of each Shire towards the Ports and places aforeſaid of Newcaſtle, Yarmouth, and Graveſend: ſo he expects that the more care and readineſs be uſed, in the raiſing and keeping of them together while they ſhall be there, and that they be ſent away well Cloathed and Coated at the charge of the Counties; all which charges and allowances as well for the Coating as the entertainment of the ſaid men, in their exerciſing and conducting to their General Rendezvouz of each County, His Majeſties Pleaſure and Command is, that your Lordſhip do cauſe the ſame to be Levied in each of thoſe Counties reſpectively, as hath been uſed heretofore in caſes of leſs importance; and the Counties are to be repaid the ſame upon accompt thereof made, out of his Majeſties Exchequer, in ſuch manner as in former times upon the like occaſion. And laſtly we do expect and require the Juſtices of Peace, and other Officers in their ſeveral Diviſions to be aiding and aſſiſting to your Lordſhip and your Deputy Lieutenants, in the performance of all this Service, as they are directed by his Majeſties Letters of Lieutenancy to you under the Great Seal, and as the practice hath been in former times. Whereof the ſaid Juſtices of Peace, and other Officers are to take notice upon your imparting theſe Letters unto them. And ſo we bid, &c. From White-Hall the twenty ſixth of March 1640. Signed

Letters directed to the ſeveral Counties hereafter following, for the providing of Horſes and Carts for Carriage of the Train of Artillery.

Horſes and Carters for the Train of Artillery.

AFter &c. to your good Lordſhip, Whereas the neceſſity of the Defence of the Realm, at this time doth continually require from Us a care by all fit means to provide for the ſtrength and advancement of His Majeſties ſervice and Army, now in raiſing for the Northern parts, and all things incident thereunto; for which purpoſe, there is nothing more neceſſary, than a fit proviſion to be made of Horſe for the Train of Artillery, and for the carriage of Ammunition and all other requiſite proviſions: We have therefore thought fit, to pray and require your Lordſhip to take order, An. 1640. that there may be provided strong and able horſes, and able Carters to take care of them within the Limits of your Lieutenancy, in ſuch places where they may be moſt conveniently had, to be ready at Newcaſtle upon Tine, by the fifteenth of June next. And for the charge of ſending the horſes and Carters to the Rendezvouz at Newcaſtle, the ſame is to be born by that County, but when they ſhall arrive there, they ſhall enter into His Majeſties pay of 12 d. per diem for every horſe, and 8 d. per diem for every Carter, and ſhall be continued therein, ſo long as they ſhall remain in his Majeſties ſervice: and when they ſhall be diſcharged, an eſpecial care ſhall be had, and a convenient allowance for their return home again. And laſtly, we do expect and require the Juſtices of Peace and other Officers in their ſeveral Diviſions, to be aiding and aſſiſting to your Lordſhip and your Deputy Lieutenants in the performance of all this ſervice as they are directed by his Majeſties Letters of Lieutenancy to you under the Great Seal, and as the practice hath been in former times. Whereof the ſaid Juſtices of Peace and other Officers are to take notice upon your imparting theſe Letters unto them. And ſo, &c. Dated the twenty ſixth of March 1640.

A Proclamation againſt Libellous and Seditious Pamphlets and Diſcourſes from Scotland.

March 30. 1640. ‘WHereas of late ſundry late ſeditious and libellous Pamphlets and Diſcourſes, as well Manuſcripts as in Print, have been ſent from Scotland and other parts of his Majeſties Dominions, and ſpread and publiſhed in divers places of this Kingdom of England, eſpecially in the City of London, which have been framed and contrived by factious ſpirits, and ſuch as endeavour to caſt moſt unjuſt and falſe aſperſions and ſcandals upon his Majeſty and his Government, and upon his proceedings with his ſubjects in Scotland, and to diſtemperate and alienate from his Majeſty the hearts of his well affected ſubjects, and ſuch as otherwiſe are no way inclined to ſuch ſeditious and diſloyal courſes: His Majeſty having taken theſe diſorders into ſerious conſideration, and finding them of dangerous conſequence to his Government, if ſometimely remedy be not applyed; hath with the advice of his Privy Council, thought fit to publiſh and declare, and by theſe preſents doth publiſh and declare, that all and every perſon and perſons, of what degree or quality ſo ever, now have, or hereafter ſhall have any ſuch libellous and ſeditious Diſcourſe or Pamphlet, either in Manuſcript or Print, concerning his Majeſties proceedings with his ſubjects in Scotland, (other than ſuch Relations and Diſcourſes concerning the ſame, as have been publiſhed and printed by his ſpecial Licence and Authority) and ſhall not within ten dayes after the date of theſe preſents, bring and deliver the ſame to one of his principal Secretaries of State, all and every ſuch perſon and perſons ſhall incurr the uttermoſt of ſuch puniſhments and penalties, as by the Laws of this Realm are to be inflicted upon thoſe that keep ſuch ſcandalous and ſeditious Pamphlets and Papers.

‘And whereas there hath been of late a Pamphlet publiſhed in print, intituled, An Information from the States of the Kingdom of Scotland to the Kingdom of England, containing many notorious falſhoods and ſcandals, to the diſhonour of his Majeſties proceedings with his ſubjects in Scotland, ſundry Copies of which printed Diſcourſe have been ſent from Scotland to divers of his Majeſties ſubjects in England, eſpecially in the City of London:

‘And whereas there have been very lately ſundry copies of that falſe and ſeditious Pamphlet re-printed and publiſhed in another Edition, and diſperſed in the ſaid City of London, and in ſundry other parts of this Kingdom: His Majeſty having acquainted the Lords of his Council therewith, and cauſed the ſame to be read at the Board, and the ſaid Lords in deteſtation of ſo ſcandalous, ſeditious and falſe a diſcourſe, having made humble ſuit to his Majeſty with one conſent, that the ſame might be publickly burnt by the Hangman; His Majeſty therefore holding it moſt neceſſary, that ſome ſuch publick demonſtration ſhould be made of ſo great and enormous an inſolency, tending to raiſe Mutiny and Sedition in the Kingdom, is pleaſed to Declare by theſe preſents, That no perſon or perſons hereafter, of what degree or condition ſoever, preſume to keep any Copy of any of the Editions of the ſaid Pamphlet, but that within ten dayes after this Proclamation publiſhed, every ſuch perſon or perſons dwelling in the Countrey remote from London, ſhall deliver to the next Juſtice of the Peace adjoyning to his or their dwelling, all and every Copy and Copies thereof, of what Edition ſoever, the ſame to be by the ſaid Juſtices of Peace immediately ſent or brought to one of his Majeſties principal Secretaries, upon peril of incurring the uttermoſt of ſuch puniſhments and penalties as by the Laws of this Realm are to be inflicted upon thoſe that keep ſuch ſcandalous and ſeditious Pamphlets and Papers, his Majeſty hereby pardoning and remitting unto ſuch perſons as have formerly had any Copy of the ſaid Diſcourſe in their cuſtody, and ſhall deliver the ſame according to this Proclamation, all their offences in their former detaining thereof.

‘And if hereafter any ſeditious and ſcandalous Pamphlets of like nature, either Manuſcripts or printed, concerning his Majeſties proceedings in Scotland, or any other Relations or Diſcourſes concerning the ſame, ſhall be publiſhed or divulged, other than ſuch Relations or Diſcourſes as ſhall be printed or publiſhed by his Majeſties ſpecial Licence or Authority, and that they ſhall come into the hands of any of his Majeſties ſubjects, who ſhall not within ten dayes after bring the ſame unto one of his Majeſties principal Secretaries of State, if they into whoſe hands they ſhall come be or remain in London, or within twenty miles diſtance of the ſame, or if they ſhall remain or be in parts more remote, ſhall not bring the ſaid ſeditious Pamphlets or Diſcourſes to one of his Majeſties Juſtices of the Peace, to be by him ſent to one of his principal Secretaries of State as aforeſaid, his Majeſty by the advice of his Council doth declare, that then every perſon ſo offending, ſhall incurr his Majeſties high diſpleaſure, and the uttermoſt of ſuch penalties and puniſhments, as by the Laws of this Realm are to be inflicted upon thoſe that keep ſuch ſcandalous and ſeditious Papers and Pamphlets without pardon or remiſſion.

A Copy of Letters directed to the Lord Lieutenants and Deputy Lieutenants of the ſeveral Counties, to be aſſiſting to the Lord Conway, for the raiſing and levying of men.

Lord Conway to be aſſiſted in levying of men.

AFter &c. to your good Lordſhip, Whereas a Commiſſion hath been given by our very good Lord, the Earl of Northumberland, Lord General of his Majeſties Army and Forces ſent into the Northern parts, by which his Lordſhip by vertue of his Majeſties Commiſſion under the Great Seal to him directed, hath conſtituted and appointed our very good Lord the Lord Conway, his Deputy for the Government of the ſaid Army in his Abſence, and of the Horſe Troops already levied, and hath given to him ſundry powers, directions and authorities, as by the ſaid Letters under the ſaid Lord Generals hand and ſeal more at length appeareth, We have thought fit hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip, and your Deputy Lieutenants, according to his Majeſties ſpecial Command, to be aiding and aſſiſting unto the ſaid Lord Conway in the Government of the ſaid Army, and Troops of Horſe, and for the raiſing and levying of the Trained Bands of Horſe and Foot of your County, to make reſiſtance to any Enemies, or to aſſail them according to the tenor of his ſaid Commiſſion, and to be aiding unto him both by your Council, and all other fit wayes and means as he ſhall deſire, and as the occaſions ſhall require. THis day his Majeſty ſitting in Council, was pleaſed to communicate to the Lords the contentment he had received, as concerning the proceedings of his ſubjects of the Kingdom of Ireland there aſſembled in Parliament, and for their Lordſhips information therein, did require Mr. Secretary Windebanke to read the Letters by him newly received from his Majeſties Council there, together with the Declaration of the Houſe of Commons made upon the twenty third of March laſt paſt, touching the grant of four Subſidies, and the unanimous expreſſion of their Loyal affection to his Majeſties ſervice and Perſon, and their humble acknowledgement of the great favours and benefits which they enjoyed through his Majeſties gracious and happy Government, which Letters and Declaration having accordingly been read, his Majeſty further acquainted the Board, that by other Letters he was advertiſed, that the Upper Houſe of Parliament there, had likewiſe expreſſed the ſame affection, and conſented in all that had been agreed or declared by the Houſe of Commons, they alſo deſiring, that as much might likewiſe be ſignified to his Majeſty on their parts, and be made publick alſo to all the World. Their Lordſhips were thereupon filled with Joy, which they as fully expreſſed to his Majeſty; and after deliberation thereof had, it was by his Majeſty with advice of the Board ordered, that the ſaid Letter from his Majeſties Council in Ireland, and Declaration of the Houſe of Commons, ſhould be entred in the Regiſter of the Council Cauſes, to remain there as a Record unto poſterity, and that Copies of the Declaration ſhould not be refuſed to any that deſired the ſame. The Tenour of which Declaration and Letter was as followeth.

A Letter from the Council in Ireland, with the free Declaration of the Houſe of Commons, whereby they give to the King four Subſidies.

SIR,

THE reſolution taken this day in the Commons Houſe of Parliament; and the obſervable circumſtances which occurred therein, in our view who have the honour to ſerve his Majeſty, as of his Privy Council here; and who as members of the houſe of Commons, were preſent and Co-operating in that Reſolution, have rendred to us ſuch inward joy and contentment, in the apprehenſion of the intire affections and great Loyalty of this people, abundantly teſtified thereby, as we eſteem it our duties to haſten the glad advertiſement thereof to his Sacred Majeſty.

After the propoſal of ſuch Acts of Grace and advantage to the ſubject, as we conceived moſt fit to lead in order to the propounding of the Subſidies; ſix Subſidies were demanded for his Majeſty. Whereupon divers members of the Houſe ſpake thereunto; ſome of the Natives declaring, That as ſix were granted the laſt Parliament, towards enabling the King to pay the debts contracted for the occaſions of this Crown, and for the better ſettlement of the revenues, ſo at this time ſix or more are fit to be given, it being apparent that the peace and ſafety of the Kingdom are become ſo nearly concerned. Some alſo of the Natives ſhewing divers preſidents in ancient Times, and among thoſe, ſome, whereby the King by a Mandate from himſelf alone without a Parliament, cauſed moneys and goods to be taken in Ireland from Merchants and others, towards defraying the Charges of his Expeditions againſt the Scots, for defence of his Kingdom: And thoſe having enlarged themſelves in that point, mentioned the abundant Clemency and Piety of his Majeſty, in being ſo indulgent to his Subjects, as to decline that example of his Progenitors, and require Aid of his Subjects in a Parliamentary way. Some of them ſaid that his Majeſty ſhould have a fee ſimple of Subſidies in their Eſtates upon like occaſions, others of them with great cheerfulneſs declared that to anſwer his Majeſties occaſions for the Honour of his perſon, and ſafety of his Kingdoms, it was fit to be done though it were with leaving themſelves nothing beſides Hoſe, and Doublet; ſome of them with much earneſtneſs after forward expreſſions of readineſs towards advancing the buſineſs, concluded that as his Majeſty is the beſt of Kings, ſo his people ſhould ſtrive to be ranked amongſt the beſt of Subjects. Thus every of them in a manner, ſeeming to contend with one another, who ſhould ſhew moſt affection and forwardneſs to comply with his Majeſties Occaſions; and all of them expreſſing even with paſſion how much they abhor and deteſt the Scotiſh Covenanters, and how readily every mans hand ought to be laid on his Sword, to aſſiſt the King in the reducing of them, by force to the Obedience and Loyalty of Subjects, they deſired that themſelves and others of this Nation might have the honour to be imployed in this Expedition, and declared with very great Demonſtration of cheerful affections, That their hearts contained Mines of Subſidies, for his Majeſty, That Twenty Subſidies, if their abilities were equal with their deſires, were too little to be given to ſo ſacred a Majeſty, from whoſe Princely Clemency, by the miniſtration of the Lord Lieutenant, ſo many and ſo gracious favours are continually derived unto them, That the promiſes made unto them by his Lordſhip the laſt Parliament on his Majeſties behalf, have been fully and effectually performed in all things to their Comfort and Contentment; That the Subjects of this Kingdom are infinitely bound to his Majeſty for his gracious favour in giving them the firſt opportunity, thus early before others of his Subjects, to manifeſt their faith and Loyalty to him; and in the end conſidering ſidering the preſent Condition of the Kingdom, and how Unable they are without too much preſſure to advance more at this time, They humbly beſought that by the Lord Lieutenants interpoſition to his Majeſty, four Subſidies might be accepted from them at this time; yet with this Declaration made by them, with as much Demonſtration of Loyalty as ever Nation or people expreſſed towards a King, That if more than theſe four ſhall be requiſite and the occaſions of the War continue, They will be ready to grant more; and to lay down their Perſons, Lives and Eſtates at his Majeſties Feet, to furniſh his Royal Deſigns for Correction of the diſordered factions in Scotland, and reducing them to a right underſtanding of themſelves, and for the defence and ſafety of his Majeſties Kingdoms and people. And they earneſtly deſired us of the Council then preſent, that immediately after the riſing of the houſe, we would repreſent this from the houſe to the Lord Lieutenant, which they did with General Acclamations and ſigns of Joy and Contentment; even to the throwing up of their hats, and lifting up of their hands.

The queſtion being put for the granting of four Subſidies, with ſuch a Declaration to be made, beſide the Act of Subſidie, It was unanimouſly aſſented unto by the whole Houſe, there being found therein not one Negative Voice; which we mention for the glory of his Majeſty that hath ſo good and Loyal Subjects, and for the Honour of this Government and Nation; And at the requeſt of the Houſe, ſelect Committees were appointed to draw up the Declaration, which will be printed with the Act of Subſidy.

And we intreat you as ſpeedily as you may to make known to his Majeſty theſe paſſages, which are, (as we humbly conceive) of mighty importance to the Honour of his Majeſty and ſafety of his Dominions.

And becauſe no words are able fully to ſet forth the cheerfulneſs wherewith this people did in this particular manifeſt their ſenſe of his Majeſties Occaſions, by their deſires to further his Royal Intentions, and their entire affections to preſerve the honour of his Perſon, and all with moſt lively expreſſions of their Duty and Loyalty towards him; We of his Council could have wiſhed if it had been poſſible that his Majeſty had been in his own Perſon an eye-witneſs of this dayes carriage, which we humbly conceive would have been of much more value in his Royal Eſtimation than Twenty Subſidies. And ſo Sir we remain, from his Majeſties Caſtle of Dublin the twenty third of March 1639.

A Declaration of the Commons Houſe of Parliament.

A Declaration of the Iriſh Parliament.

‘WHereas they have with one conſent cheerfully given to his Majeſty four entire Subſidies, towards his preſent preparation to reduce his diſaffected Subjects the Covenanters in Scotland to their due Obedience, They ſtill hope that his Majeſties great Wiſdom and unexampled clemency may yet prevail, even with the worſe affected of thoſe his Subjects, to bring them to that Conformity and ſubmiſſion, which by the Laws of God and Nature they owe unto him. But if his Majeſty ſhall be inforced to uſe his power to Vindicate his juſt Authority, this Houſe for themſelves, and the Commons of this Kingdom do profeſs, that their zeal and duty ſhall not ſtay here at theſe four Subſidies. But they do humbly offer their Perſons and Eſtates, even to the utmoſt of their ability, for his Majeſties future Supply in a Parliamentary way, as his great occaſions by the continuance of that diſtemper ſhall require. This they pray that it may be repreſented to his Sacred Majeſty, by the Right Honourable the Lord Lieutenant, That it may be recorded as an Ordinance of Parliament; and that it may be Publiſhed in Print for a Teſtimony to all the World and ſucceeding Ages, That as this Kingdom hath the happineſs to be Governed by the beſt of Kings, ſo they are deſirous to give his Majeſty juſt cauſe to account of this people amongſt the beſt of his Subjects.

THe Privy Council was careful to provide all things Neceſſary in order to the carrying on of the War in England againſt the Scots, whatever the Iſſue of the Parliament ſhould prove to be, and took ſpecial care for Proviſions for the Horſe, as by the Inſtructions and Orders following do appear.

Inſtruction for John Gibbon Eſquire, appointed by Commiſſion under the Great Seal of England to be Commiſſary and Provider for Proviſions for the Horſe belonging to his Majeſties Army.

Commiſſary of Proviſions his Inſtructions.

FIrſt, You are to attend the Lord General of his Majeſties Army, and to take direction from his Lordſhip from time to time what Quantities of Oates, Beans, Hay, and other proviſions for Horſe will be requiſite and wanting, and provide the ſame by vertue of your Commiſſion, and cauſe them to be provided from time to time to ſuch places as his Lordſhip ſhall direct you; and for the preſent you are to provide the quantity of ſix hundred Loads of Hay, and three thouſand quarters of Oates to be laid in at Barwick before the laſt of June.

You are to require the aſſiſtance of the Juſtices of Aſſize, and Deputy Lieutenants, and likewiſe of the Peace jointly in Seſſions or ſeverally as occaſion ſhall require, and as in your diſcretion ſhall ſeem beſt for the ſervice, to which end Letters of Aſſiſtance are directed unto them.

For Coveyance and Carriage of thoſe Proviſions you ſhall by vertue of your Commiſſion, and your Letters of Aſſiſtance provide the ſame both by Land and Water, that is to ſay, either ſhips by Sea, or Boats by Rivers, as likewiſe all kind of Land Carriages, by Carts, Waggons, Horſes, &c. at ſuch moderate prices as you can agree upon.

You ſhall from time to time give due advertiſement to the Lord General of his Majeſties Army, or ſuch as his Lordſhip ſhall appoint, letting his Lordſhip know where you are, and how you proceed in the particular Services.

You ſhall likewiſe imploy your ſufficient Deputies for the better expedition of the ſervice, and to that end divers Duplicats of your Commiſſion are to be ſealed with the Great Seal.

If in the execution of this ſervice, you ſhall find any perſons either negligent in giving Aſſiſtance, or refractory in their Obedience, you ſhall give accompt thereof either to the Lord General, or to the Lords of the Council here, as you ſhall judge of the Reformation to be more ſpeedily expected in reſpect of the place and diſtance.

You ſhall give your Paſports or Certificates to all ſuch as you ſhall imploy in carriage of thoſe Proviſions you ſhall make, ſignifying that they are carried by your order, requiring all perſons to be aiding and aſſiſting unto the Conveyers, and not to preſume to divert or hinder them in their paſſage to thoſe places you have directed them. And in thoſe paſports you ſhall require all his Majeſties Officers and Miniſters to be aiding and aſſiſting; and the like Paſports your Deputies ſhall give from thoſe places, where they ſhall make any proviſions for your direction.

If in the Execution of this ſervice you ſhall find any defect in the Commiſſion, Power and Inſtructions given you, or your Deputies, you ſhall further advertiſe the ſame unto one of the principal Secretaries of State, that ſo it may be ſupplyed.

Laſtly, howſoever there is a fee allowed you in the eſtabliſhment of the Army, yet becauſe other ſumms may peradventure be neceſſarily expended both in reſpect of the charge of your Deputies, as many other wayes, his Majeſty hath given order that the ſame ſhall be from time to time payed unto you upon ſuch bills as you ſhall preſent unto the Lord Treaſurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer, and which they ſhall allow of. Dated and Signed as the Warrants.

An open Warrant directed to all his Majeſties Lords Lieutenants of Counties, their Deputies, Juſtices of Aſſize, Juſtices of Peace, Sheriffs, Mayors, and to all Admirals, Vice-Admirals, Bayliffs, Headboroughs, Conſtables, and all other his Majeſties Officers and Loving Subjects whatſoever.

Concerning Proviſions for Horſe in his Majeſties Army in the Northern parts.

WHereas his Majeſty by Commiſſion under the Great Seal of England, bearing date the firſt of April, hath been pleaſed to nominate and appoint John Gibbon Eſq; to be Commiſſary and provider of all manner of Proviſions for the Horſe belonging to the Army, now going towards the Northern parts; As likewiſe for providing all manner of Carriages, as well by Land as by Water, and whatſoever elſe ſhall be incident and neceſſary for that ſervice, as more at at large doth appear by the ſaid Commiſſion: And for that the due and diligent execution of this ſervice doth highly concern the proſperity and good ſucceſs of his Majeſties affairs, Theſe ſhall be in his Majeſties Name, ſtrictly to charge and require all thoſe his Miniſters whom it doth concern, and eſpecially thoſe to whom theſe preſents are directed, to be furthering, aiding and aſſiſting unto the ſaid John Gibbon his Agents and Deputies in the execution of the ſaid Commiſſion. And in caſe any perſon or perſons ſhall be found diſobedient or refractory in the performance of whatſoever may conduce to the execution and diſcharge of the ſaid Commiſſion, and duly required from the ſaid Commiſſary, They ſhall proceed by all lawful means and wayes for the exemplary and ſpeedy puniſhment of ſuch Offenders at their utmoſt perils. Dated at White-Hall the ſecond of April 1640.

On Monday April 13. the Parliament opened at Weſtminſter. Now becauſe we deſire to keep ſtrictly to point of Time, let Military preparations be poſt-poned till the end of this Parliament, which was diſſolved the fifth of May following.

But before the Parliament opened, a Proclamation was made before the Lord Steward in the Lobby as followeth.

A Proclamation before the Lord Steward.

The Kings Moſt Excellent Majeſty doth ſtraightly charge and command all manner of Perſons, choſen for the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes, to attend in this preſent Parliament, that they, nor any of them, do preſume to ſit or take their places in the Lower Houſe of Parliament, until they, and every of them, have firſt taken the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance in the uſual manner and place; nor until the Sheriff ſhall make return of his Writ according to Statute, unto the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, and his, or their names be there entred in ſuch manner as hath heretofore been accuſtomed, upon pain of the peril ſhall fall thereon.

God ſave the King.

All Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, choſen to attend this preſent Parliament, make your appearance, and anſwer to your Names as you ſhall be called.

The

MUNDAY

An. 1640.

MUNDAY the 13th of APRIL 1640.

the Parliament Opened,

The King ſpake,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THere was never a King that had a more great and weighty cauſe to call his People together than My Self: I will not trouble you with the Particulars; I have informed my Lord Keeper, and command him to ſpeak and deſire your Attention.

Sir John Finch Lord Keeper ſpake thus,

My Lords, and you the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons,

‘YOu are here this day aſſembled by his Majeſties gracious Writ and Royal Command to hold a Parliament, the general, antient and greateſt Council of this Renowned Kingdom. By you, as by a ſelect choice and abſtract the whole Kingdom is preſented to his Majeſties Royal view, and made happy in the beholding of his excellent and Sacred Perſon. All of you not only the Prelates, Nobles and Grandees, but in your perſons that are of the Houſe of Commons every one, even the meaneſt of his Majeſties ſubjects are graciouſly allowed to participate and ſhare in the honour of thoſe Counſels, that concern the great and weighty affairs of the King and Kingdom. You come all armed with the Votes and ſuffrages of the whole Nation: and I aſſure my ſelf, your hearts are filled with that zealous and humble affection to his Majeſties Perſon and Government, that ſo juſt, ſo pious, and ſo gracious a King hath reaſon to expect from all his ſubjects. I doubt not, but you rejoyce at this dayes meeting, and methinks you ſhould do ſo too; and good reaſon you have to do ſo, and with all humbleneſs of heart to acknowledge the great goodneſs of his Majeſty, who ſequeſtring the memory of all former diſcouragements in preceding aſſemblies, is now of a Fatherly affection to his people, and a confidence that they will not be failing in their duty to him, who is pleaſed graciouſly to invite you and all his loving ſubjects to a ſacred Unity of hearts and affections, in the ſervices of him and of the Common-wealth, and in the execution of thoſe Counſels that tend only to the honour of his Majeſty, and to the good preſervation of you all. His Majeſties Kingly reſolutions are ſeated in the Ark of his Sacred Breaſt, and it were a preſumption of too high a nature, for any Uzzah uncalled to touch it: yet his

Majeſty is now pleaſed to lay by the ſhining beams of Majeſty, as Phœbus did to Phaeton, that the diſtance between Soveraignty and ſubjection ſhould not barr you of that filial freedom of acceſs to his Perſon and Counſels ; only let us beware how with the Son of Clyméne, we aim not at the guiding of the Chariot ; as if that were the only teſtimony of Fatherly affection : and let us ever remember, that though the King ſometimes layes by the Beams and Rayes of Majeſty, he never layes by Majeſty it ſelf. —

‘In former Parliaments you have been adviſed with, for the preventing and diverting of thoſe dangers, which by foreign and more remote Counſels might have tended to the diſhonour and ruine of this Nation; therein his Majeſties great Wiſdom and Providence hath for many years eaſed you of that trouble, his Majeſty having with great judgement and prudence, not only ſeen and prevented our danger, but kept up the Honour and Splendor of the Engliſh Crown, of which at this day we find the happy and comfortable experience, Almighty God having vouchſafed ſuch ſucceſs to his Majeſties Counſels, that our Fleece is dry, when it raineth blood in all the Neighbour States. But what availeth this the Kingdom? Si foras hoſtem non inveniat, ſi modò domi inveniet. You are now ſummoned to Counſels and reſolutions that more nearly concern you, to prevent a danger and a diſhonour, that knocks at our gates, and that moves from ſuch, from whom we had little reaſon to ſuſpect it. It's well known upon what happy and ſolid Counſels, one of our Wiſeſt Kings made a match with Scotland for his eldeſt daughter. We cannot forget (I'm ſure we ſhould not) the bleſſed Succeſs that waited upon thoſe Counſels, when the Crown of England deſcended upon King James of ever bleſſed and famous memory, who with the fulneſs of Joy to all true Engliſh hearts, made his Entry not by Bloodſhed. The Wall of Separation was thereby taken away; and that glorious King to make his word good, faciam eos in Gentem unam, made all England rejoyce, and Scotland I'm ſure had no reaſon to be ſorry for it: They participated of Engliſh Honours, the Wealth and Revenue of this Nation they ſhared in, and no good thing was withholden from them, ſuch was the largeneſs of heart in that moſt excellent King, and ſuch was the comfort we took in this Fraternity, or rather Unity: When both of us had but one Brazen Wall of Fortification to look unto, the Sea, and all things ſo equally and evenly carried between us, that Tros Tyriuſque nullo diſcrimine habentur. His Majeſty our moſt gracious Soveraign became Heir, as well to his Fathers Vertues as to his Kingdoms, Pacatumque Regis, &c. and in his gracious and tender affection to that Nation, hath given as many indulgent teſtimonies of Love and Benignity, as they could expect. Thus became we both like a Land flowing with milk and honey; peace and plenty dwelt in our Streets, and we have had all our bleſſings crowned with the ſweet hopes of Perpetuity. God found out for my Lord the King, a Companion meet for him, his Royal Conſort our moſt gracious Queen, who as ſhe is not to be paralleled for her Perſon and Vertue, ſo hath ſhe made his Majeſty and the whole Kingdom moſt happy and bleſſed, in the ſweeteſt pledges of their love and our hopes which ever ſtood like Olive-branches about the Throne or Table : But which I ſorrow for,

16 Caroli.

‘Civiles furores patria nimia infelicitas, and when his Majeſty had moſt reaſon to expect a grateful return of Loyalty and Obedience from all the Scotiſh Nation, ſome men of Belial, ſome Zeba hath blown the Trumpet there, and by their Inſolencies and rebellious Actions draw many after them, to the utter deſertion of his Majeſties Government; his Majeſties and his Kingly Fathers love and bounty to that Nation quite forgotten, his goodneſs and piety unremembred.

‘They have led a multitude after them into a courſe of diſloyalty and rebellious Treaſon, ſuch as former times have not left in mention, nor this preſent age can any where equal; they have taken up Armes againſt the Lords Anointed, their rightful Prince and undoubted Soveraign, and following the wicked Counſels of ſome Achitophel, they have ſeized on the Trophies of Honour, and inveſted themſelves with Regal power and authority: ſuch and ſo many Acts of diſloyalty and diſobedience, as (let their pretences be what they will be,) no true Engliſh or Chriſtian heart, but muſt acknowledge them to be the effects of foul and horrid Treaſon.

‘The laſt Summer his Majeſty at his own charge, and at the vaſt expence of many of his faithful and loving Subjects of England, went with an Army, and then they took upon them the boldneſs to outface and brave his Royal Army, with another of their own raiſing; Yet for all this, his Majeſties goodneſs was not leſſened by that, nor could his gracious Nature forget what he was to them, nor what they were to him; but conſidering with himſelf they were ſuch (quos nec vincere, nec vinci glorioſum fuerat) out of his Piety and Clemency choſe rather to paſs by their former miſcarriages, upon their humble proteſtations of future Loyalty and Obedience, than by juſt vengeance to puniſh their Rebellions.

‘But his Majeſty (who is ever awake for the good and ſafety of all his Subjects) hath ſince too plainly diſcovered, that they did but prevaricate with him to divert the ſtorm which hung over their heads, and by gaining time to purchaſe themſelves more advantage, for purſuing their rebellious purpoſes.

‘For ſince his Majeſty came from Berwick, it is come to his certain knowledge, that inſtead of performing that Loyalty and Obedience, which by the Laws of God, of Nature, and Nations they owe unto him, they have addreſſed themſelves to Forraign States, and treated with them to deliver themſelves up to their protection and power (as by Gods great Providence and Goodneſs, his Gracious Majeſty is able to ſhew under the hands of the prime Ring-Leaders of that Faction) than which nothing could be of more dangerous conſequence to this and his Majeſties other Kingdoms. Whoſoever they be that do, or ſhall wiſh England ill, they may know it to be of too tough a Complexion and Courage, to be aſſailed in the face, or to be ſet upon at the Fore door: and therefore it is not unlikely, but they may (as in former times) find out a Poſtern-gate.

‘There were heretofore two of them, Scotland and Ireland, and both of them had their ſeveral Defences.

‘Ireland through his Majeſties juſt and prudent Government, is not only reduced from the diſtemper of former times, but ſettled in ſuch a condition of peace, and during his Majeſties happy Reign, 'ſo altered and civilized, that inſtead of being a charge to him (as 'it was to his Predeceſſors) hath yielded to him ſome Revenue, and 'his Subjects there do daily give very acceptable teſtimonies of their 'Loyal and Dutiful affection, both to his Perſon and Government. 'And now lately at the Parliament aſſembled, they have not only with 'full and free conſent, made his Majeſty a cheerful Aide towards his 'preſent preparations, to reduce his diſaffected Subjects in Scotland to 'their due obedience, but they have alſo profeſſed and promiſed, that 'they will be ready with their Perſons and Eſtates, to the uttermoſt of 'their Ability, for his Majeſties future Supply, as his great Occaſions 'by the continuance of his Forces againſt that diſtemper, ſhall re'quire; ſo that the hopes of hurting England that way, are quite ex'tinct.

'Scotland then only remains, whither (as to a weak and diſtem'pered part of the body) all the Rheumes and Fluxes of factious 'and ſeditious humours make way.

'His Majeſty hath taken all theſe, and much more into his Prince'ly Conſideration, and to avoid a manifeſt and apparent miſchief, 'threatned to this and his other Kingdoms, hath reſolved by the 'means of a powerful Army, to reduce them to the juſt and modeſt 'Conditions of Obedience.

'It is a courſe his Majeſty takes no delight in, but is forced unto it; 'for ſuch is his Majeſties grace and Goodneſs to all his Subjects, and 'ſuch it is and will be to them (how undutiful and rebellious ſoever 'they now are) that if they put themſelves into a way of humility 'becoming them, his Majeſties Piety and Clemency will ſoon ap'pear to all the World: But his Majeſty will not endure to have his 'honour weighed at the common Beam: nor admit any to ſtep be'tween him and his vertue: and therefore as he will upon no terms, 'admit the mediation of any perſon whatſoever; ſo he ſhall judge it 'as high preſumption in any perſon to offer it, and as that which he 'muſt account moſt dangerous to his Honour, to have any conceit, 'that the ſolicitation of others can by any poſſibility better incline 'him to his people than he is, and ever will be, out of his own grace 'and goodneſs.

'The Charge of ſuch an Army hath been throughly adviſed, and 'muſt needs amount to a very great ſumm, ſuch as cannot be imagi'gined to be found in his Majeſties Coffers, which how empty ſoe'ver, have neither yet been exhauſted by unneceſſary triumphs, 'or ſumptuous buildings, or other magnificence whatſoever, but 'moſt of his own Revenue, and whatſoever hath come from his 'Subjects, hath been by him employed, for the common good and 'preſervation of the Kingdom. And like vapours ariſing out of 'the Earth and gathered into a Cloud, are fallen in ſweet and refreſh'ing ſhowres upon the ſame ground. Wherefore his Majeſty hath 'now at this time, called this Parliament, the ſecond means under 'Gods bleſſing to avert theſe publick Calamities threatned to all his 'Kingdoms, by the mutinous behaviour of them.

'And as his Majeſties Predeceſſors have accuſtomed to do with 'your Fore-fathers, ſo his Majeſty now offers you the honour of 'working together with himſelf, for the good of him and his, and 'for the common preſervation of your ſelves and your poſterity.

An. 1640.

‘Counſels and Deliberations that tend to benefit or profit, may endure diſputes and debates, becauſe they ſeem only accompanied with perſwaſions; But deliberations that tend to preſervation, are waited upon by neceſſity, and cannot endure either debate or delay; of ſuch nature are the bleeding evils, that are now to be provided againſt.

‘This Summer muſt not be loſt, nor any minute of Time foreſtowed, to reduce them of Scotland, leſt by protraction here they gain time and advantage, to frame their parties with Foraign States.

‘His Majeſty doth therefore deſire, upon theſe preſſing and urgent occaſions, that you will for a while lay aſide all other debates, and that you would paſs an Act for ſuch, and ſo many Subſidies as you in your hearty affection to him, and to your common good, ſhall think fit and convenient for ſo great an Action, and withal that you would haſten the payment of it, as ſoon as may be: And his Majeſty aſſures you all, that he would not have propoſed any thing, out of the ordinary way, but that ſuch is the ſtraitneſs of Time, that unleſs the Subſidies be forthwith paſt, it is not poſſible for him to put in order ſuch things, as muſt be prepared before ſo great an Army can be brought into the Field.

‘And indeed, had not his Majeſty upon the credit of his ſervants, and ſecurity out of his own eſtate, taken up and iſſued between three and four hundred thouſand Pounds, it had not been poſſible for his Majeſty, to have provided thoſe things to begin with, which were neceſſary for ſo great an Enterprize, and without which we could not have ſecured Berwick and Carliſle, or avoided thoſe affronts, which the Inſolency of that Faction might have put upon us, by injuring the perſons and fortunes of his Loyal Subjects, in the Northern parts.

‘To avoid all queſtion and diſpute that may ariſe, touching his Majeſties taking of Tonnage and Poundage, his Majeſty hath commanded me to declare unto you, that he hath taken it only de facto, according to the example of former Kings, from the death of their paſt Predeceſſors, until the Parliament had paſſed an Act for it themſelves. That in like manner, his Majeſty deſires not to claim it, but by grant of Parliament; for this purpoſe his Majeſty hath cauſed a Bill to be prepared in the ſame form as it paſſed to his Royal Father of bleſſed memory, adding only words to give it him, from the firſt of his Majeſties Reign.

‘This and the Bill of Subſidies, his Majeſty expects (for the preſſing reaſons before delivered unto you) may be diſpatched with all ſpeed, which his Majeſty commanded me to tell you he ſhall graciouſly accept, as the welcome pledges of your loving, happy, and dutiful affection to him, his perſon, and Government.

‘And his Majeſty is moſt graciouſly pleaſed, to give you his Royal word, that afterwards he will give you time for conſidering of ſuch Petitions, as you ſhall conceive to be good for the Common Wealth, even now before you part, according as the ſeaſon of the year, and the great affairs in hand will permit; and what is now omitted, his Majeſty will give you time to perfect towards Winter, when your own leiſure and conveniency may better attend it, he knowing well, that theſe Subſidies can be of little uſe, without that more ample ſupply, which his Majeſty expects upon the happy con-

‘ cluſion of this Seſſion, and therein his Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed
‘ (according to the ancient way of Parliaments) to ſtay till your juſt
‘ grievances be heard and redreſſed.

‘ And his Majeſty aſſures you, that he will go along with you for ‘ your advantage, through all the gracious expreſſions of a juſt, a ‘ pious, and gracious King, to the end there may be ſuch a happy con-
‘ cluſion of this Parliament, that it may be a cauſe of many more ‘ meetings with you.

I have now delivered what I have in Command from his Majeſty.

The KING.

The King's Speech.

My Lords,

YOU ſhall ſee he hath ſpoken nothing hyperbolically, or nothing but what I ſhall make good one way or other.

And becauſe he did mention a Letter by my Subjects in Scotland, who did ſeek to draw in Foraign power for aid, here is the Original Letter, which I ſhall command him to read unto you.

And becauſe it may touch a Neighbour of mine, whom I will ſay nothing of, but that which is juſt (God forbid I ſhould); for my part, I think it was never accepted of by him; indeed it was a Letter to the French King, but I know not that ever he had it; for by chance I intercepted it, as it was going unto him; and therefore I hope you will underſtand me right in that.

His Majeſty delivering the Letter to the Lord Keeper, his Lordſhip began to read it, and obſerve as followeth.

Lord Keeper.

The Superſcription of the Letter is this.

AU ROY.

A Letter from the Scots to the French King.

‘ FOR the nature of which Superſcription, it is well known to
‘ all that know the ſtyle of France, that it is never written by ‘ any French man to any, but to their own King; and therefore be‘ ing directed (‘AU ROY) it is to their own King, for ſo in effect
‘ they do by that Superſcription acknowledge.

Then his Lordſhip read the Letter in French, being the original Language wherein it was Writ.

The Letter being read in French, his Lordſhip added.

‘ His Majeſty Commanded me to read it in Engliſh to you, as it is ‘ Tranſlated, for that is the Original under their own hands.

An. 1640.

SIR,

YOur Majeſty being the refuge and ſanctuary of afflicted Princes, and States, We have found it neceſſary to ſend this Gentleman Mr. Colvil, by him to repreſent unto your Majeſty, the Candor and Ingenuity, as well of our Actions and Proceedings, as of our Intentions, which we deſire ſhould be Engraven and Written to the whole World, with the Beams of the Sun as well as to your Majeſty: We moſt humbly beſeech you therefore, to give Faith and Credit to him, and all he ſhall ſay on our part concerning us, and our affairs: being moſt aſſured of an aſſiſtance, equal to your accuſtomed Clemency heretofore, and ſo often ſhewed to this Nation, which will not yield to any other whatſoever, the Glory to be eternally

Your Majeſties moſt humble, obedient and affectionate ſervants,

Rothes.
Montroſs.
Leſley.
Marre.
Montgomery.
Lowdon.
Foreſter.

Then the KING added.

OF theſe Gentlemen, that have ſet their hands to this Letter, here is one, and I believe you would think it very ſtrange, if I ſhould not lay him faſt; and therefore I have Signed a Warrant, to lay him cloſe Priſoner in the Tower.

My Lords, I think, (but that I will not ſay poſitively, becauſe I will not ſay any thing here, but what I am ſure of,) I think I have the Gentleman that ſhould have carryed the Letter, faſt enough; but I know not, I may be miſtaken.

And then my Lord Keeper concluded.

Gentlemen,

‘YOU of the Houſe of Commons, his Majeſties pleaſure is, that you do now repair to your own Houſe, there to make choice of your Speaker, whom his Majeſty will expect to be preſented to him on Wedneſday next, at two of the Clock in the Afternoon.

APRIL the 14th.

The Convocation began to ſit at St. Pauls.

The

The 15th of APRIL 1640.

His Majeſty being Seated on his Throne, Mr. Sergeant Glanvile was called in, being preſented by the Houſe of Commons as their Speaker, and he being come to the Bar, ſpake as followeth.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

The Speaker's Speech.

‘THE Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, of your Commons-houſe of Parliament, in conformity to moſt ancient and moſt conſtant uſage (the beſt guide in great ſolemnities) according to their well-known priviledges, (a ſure warrant for their proceedings) and in obedience to your Majeſties moſt Gracious Counſel and Command (a duty well becoming Loyal Subjects) have met together in their Houſe and choſen a Speaker, one of themſelves to be the mouth, indeed your ſervant of all the reſt, to ſteer watchfully and prudently in all their weighty Conſultations and debates, to collect faithfully and readily the genuine ſence of a numerous Aſſembly, to propound the ſame ſeaſonably, and in apt queſtions of their final Reſolutions, and ſo repreſent them and their Concluſions, their Declarations and Petitions, upon all urgent occaſions with truth, with right, with life and with luſtre, and with full advantage to your moſt excellent Majeſty, with what Judgement, what temper, what ſpirit, what Elocution ought he to be endowed and qualified, that with any hope of good ſucceſs ſhould un undergo any ſuch employment? your Majeſty in your great Wiſdom, is beſt able to diſcern and judge, both as it may relate to your own peculiar and moſt important affairs of State and Government, and as it muſt relate to the proper buſineſs of your Houſe of Commons, which was never ſmall nor mean, and is like at this time to be exceeding weighty.

‘Had your Houſe of Commons been as happy in their choice (as they were regular, well warranted, and dutiful) of my ſelf, who ſtand elected yet to be their Speaker, and am now preſented by them to your Majeſty, for your gracious and royal approbation, I ſhould not have needed to become troubleſome to your Majeſty in this ſuit, for my releaſment and diſcharge, which now in duty to your Majeſty and care for the good, proſperity, and ſucceſs of your affairs, I hold my ſelf obliged to make. My imperfections and diſabilities are beſt known to my ſelf, to your Majeſty I ſuppoſe not altogether unknown, before whom in the courſe of my practice and profeſſion, I have divers times had the honour and favour to appear and bear a part, as an ordinary pleader.

‘It is a learned Age wherein we live, under your Majeſties moſt peaceful and flouriſhing Government, and your Houſe of Commons (as it is now compoſed) is not only the repreſentative body, but the abſtracted quinteſſence of the whole Commonalty, of this your noble Realm of England; there be very many amongſt

An. 1640.

'them, much fitter for this place than I am, few or none in my opinion, ſo unfit as my ſelf.

'I moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty, as you are the Father of the Common-wealth and head of the whole Parliament, to whom the care of all our welfare chiefly appertains, have reſpect to your own ends, have regard to your Houſe of Commons, have compaſſion upon me the moſt unworthy member of that Body, ready to faint with fears, before the burthen light upon me.

'In the fulneſs therefore of your Kingly power, your piety and your goodneſs, be graciouſly pleaſed to command your houſe of Commons, once moer to meet together to conſult and deliberate better, about their choice of a meet Speaker, till they can agree of ſome ſuch perſon, as may be worthy of their chooſing, and of your Majeſties acceptation.

The Lord Keeper after directions received from his Majeſty, replyed as followeth.

The Lord Keeper's Reply.

HIS Majeſty with a gracious ear, a Princely attention, hath liſtened to your humble and modeſt excuſe, full of flowers of Wit, of flowers of Eloquence, and flowers of Judgement.

Many reaſons from your ſelf he hath taken, to approve and agree to the Choice and Election, made by the Houſe of Commons, he finds none from any thing that you have ſaid, to diſſent or diſagree from it; you have ſet forth your inabilities with ſo much Ability, you have ſo well deciphered and delineated the parts, duties, and office of a good Speaker, which is to collect the ſence of the Houſe judiciouſly, to render it with fidelity, to ſum it up with dexterity, and to mould it into fit, and apt queſtions for reſolutions, and thoſe as occaſion ſhall ſerve, to preſent with vigour, advantage, and humility to his Majeſty, he doubts not, but you that are ſo perfect in the Theory, will with great eaſe perform the practick part, and with no leſs Commendation.

His Majeſty hath taken notice, and well remembers, your often waiting on him in private Cauſes, wherein you have alwayes ſo carryed your ſelf, and won ſo much good opinion from his Majeſty, as he doubteth not but that now, when you are called forth to ſerve him, and the publick, your affections and the powers of your ſoul, will be ſet on work with more zeal, and more alacrity. It's that for which the Philoſophers call a man happy, when men that have ability and goodneſs, do meet with an object fit to bring it into Act, and ſuch at this time is your good fortune, an occaſion being miniſtred unto you, to ſhew your ability and goodneſs, and your fidelity to his Majeſties Service, to ſhew the candor and clearneſs of your heart towards thoſe of the Houſe of Commons; In all which his Majeſty nothing doubteth, but you will ſo diſcharge your ſelf, as he may to his former favours, find occaſion and reaſon to add more unto you, That the Houſe of Commons may rejoice in this election of theirs, and that the whole Kingdom, by your good, clear, and candid ſervice, may receive fruits that may be comfortable unto all.

His Majeſty therefore doth approve and confirm the choice of the Houſe of Commons, and ratifies you for the Speaker.

Then

Then Mr. Speaker addreſt himſelf again to his Majeſty.

The Speaker's farther Speech.

Moſt Gracious Soveraign,

‘MY Profeſſion hath taught me, that from the higheſt Judge and higheſt ſeat of Juſtice, there lyeth no writ of Error, no Appeal. Your Majeſty in full Parliament, hath been pleaſed by the mouth of the Lord Keeper, to declare your Royal Judgement in affirmation of the Election of your Houſe of Commons, whereby I'm become their Speaker, and their Servant. What is there therefore left unto me ? but in the firſt place devoutly to beſeech Almighty God, the Author and finiſher of all good works, to enable me by his bleſſing to diſcharge honeſtly and effectually, ſo great a task, ſo great a truſt.

‘And in the next place, humbly to acknowledge (as I do) the great grace and favour, that is done unto me by your Majeſty, and readily to conform my ſelf to your good pleaſure and command, to which I now ſubmit with all poſſible cheerfulneſs, leſt elſe my too much diffidence to undertake the ſervice, might add a further diſadvantage to my performance, than peradventure would ariſe out of my other Imperfections.

‘Two Enemies I might fear, the common Enemies of ſuch Services, Expectation and Jealouſie : I'm not worthy of the former, and I contemn the later. Time that tryeth truth, ſhall let the whole world ſee and know, that I am and will be found an equal Free-man, zealous to ſerve my Gracious King, and zealous to ſerve my deareſt Countrey.

‘Monarchy, Royal and Hereditary, is of all ſorts of Government the moſt compleat and excellent ; whether we regard the Glory, the Wealth, or the ſafety of the Governour or of the People, or of both. And I hope there are not of this Nation any that are of Antimonarchical ſpirits or reſolutions, no, nor diſpoſitions, nor friends to ſuch as are ſo ; If there be, I wiſh no greater honour to this Parliament, than to diſcover them ; and by all means poſſible to aſſiſt your Gracious Majeſty to ſuppreſs them, or to confound them.

‘You are a great King at all times, but ſitting now attended by your Prelates, your Lords, and People in free Parliament are in the higheſt ſtate of Majeſty and Glory.

‘I remember well, I heard your Majeſties moſt Royal and learned Father our late dear Soveraign King James of ſacred memory, ſpeak to that purpoſe of himſelf and of Kings in general ; his Majeſty ſitting then in Parliament, upon that Throne which by deſcent from him, and from innumerable Royal Anceſtors, is now become your Majeſties lawful Seat and rightful Inheritance.

‘To behold you thus in peace and ſafety, upon this great and good occaſion, after full fifteen years experience of your moſt peaceful Government, yields moſt compleat joy to all your Majeſties Loyal and Well-affected Subjects, who cannot but concur with me in this deſire, ſerus in Cœlum redeas diuq; lætus interſis Brittanno populo. England is your Seat of Reſidence not made a Province, nor Governed by a Vice-Roy. God open all our Eyes and underſtandings, to diſcern ‘and value the great bleſſings and benefits we enjoy, by your Majeſties gracious preſence and immediate influence of life and cheerfulneſs to all the parts of theſe your Nobleſt Kingdoms.

‘Scotland is your Birth-place, and therein hath advantage of your other Realms; God make them and keep them ever ſenſible and worthy of that Honour.

‘Ireland begins apace to imitate England, in a great and quick progreſſion in civility of manners and Converſation, by many ſedulous plantations and improvements of the Soyle, by their receiving and enacting of the more wholeſome Laws and Statutes of this Kingdom, and by many other good effects and fruits of Peace, and bleſſed Government.

‘France is ſtill an Attendant to your Royal Style and Title.

‘The Prerogative of a King is as neceſſary, as it is great: without it, he ſhould want that power and Majeſty which is, and ought to be inſeparable from the Crown and Scepter. Nor can there any danger reſult from ſuch prerogative in the King to the Liberty of the Subject, ſo long as both of them admit the Temperament of Law and Juſtice: Eſpecially under ſuch a King as your Majeſty, who to your immortal glory among your printed Laws, have publiſht this to the whole world for your Maxime, The liberty of the People ſtrengthens the Kings Prerogative, and the Kings Prerogative is to defend the Peoples liberty. Apples of Gold in Pictures of Silver.

‘Kings as they are Kings, are never ſaid to err, only the beſt may be abuſed by miſ-information. The higheſt point of Prerogative is, the King can do no wrong. If therefore by the ſubtilty of miſinformers, by the ſpecious falſe pretences of publick good, by cunning and cloſe contrivance of their ways to ſeduce, the Sacred Royal Perſon ſhall at any time be circumvented or ſurprized, or over-wrought and drawn to command things contrary to Law, and that the ſame be done accordingly; Theſe Commands will be void and the King innocent even in his very perſon, being defended by his Prerogative; Nevertheleſs the Authors in ſuch miſ-informations, and Actors in thoſe abuſes will ſtand lyable, and expoſed to ſtrict examination and juſt cenſure, as having nothing to defend themſelves but the colour of a void Command, made void by juſt Prerogative, and by the fundamental and true reaſon of State and Monarchy: and what difference is there, or can be in Law, between a void Command, and no Command at all?

‘If Religion, Juſtice and mercy, all happily aſſembled and graciouſly lodged together in your Royal Breaſt, may give to your well-affected Subjects a good hope of the good Succeſs of this Parliament, I know not why we ſhould not all of us, expect it with much confidence. Some few particulars pertaining to theſe general heads, I humbly beg of your Majeſty, that without offence to your ſacred Ears, I may have leave to mention and obſerve, for the further comfort of my ſelf and all that hear me.

‘What Prince of this Land was ever known to keep the hours and times ſet for Prayer and for the Service of Almighty God, with that Regularity and conſtancy as your Majeſty? Nay more, have you not ever ſince your acceſs to the Crown, had one day in every week beſides the Lords Day, dedicated and applyed to preaching and devotion? I may not ſtay here, there is another particular 'equalling, nay much excelling both the former, And that is your Majeſties great care, to educate thoſe pledges of Conjugal and moſt abundant mutual love, that is between your Majeſty and your moſt gracious Conſort, the beſt Queen and Woman, and the foundation of our future hopes, the moſt illuſtrious Prince Charles, and the reſt of your Royal Progeny, in the true Religion of Almighty God, publickly profeſſed and by Law eſtabliſht in this Kingdom; what tongue is able to expreſs the great Joy and Comfort, which all your Majeſties moſt loyal and loving Subjects do derive unto themſelves, in Contemplation of your Majeſties great piety and prudence in this one Act expreſſed, extending it ſelf not only to the preſent time, but to the good of Succeſſion and all after Ages!

'Touching Juſtice, there is not any more certain ſign to diſcern an equal Judge, than by his patience to be well informed before he give his ſentence; and I may boldly ſay all your Judges throughout all your Kingdoms, may take example by your Majeſty, and learn their duty, from your practice in this kind, I my ſelf have been witneſs of it, to my no little Admiration and Content.

'From your patient hearing, let me paſs on to your righteous Judgement; and therein bring but one Inſtance, but it ſhall be a great one. When your Lords and your People in your laſt Parliament, preſented to your Majeſty a Petition, concerning divers rights and liberties of your Subjects; the Petition being of no ſmall weight and importance, as by the ſame may well appear, your Majeſty after meet deliberation, in few but moſt effectual words (ſoit droit fait come eſt deſire,) made them ſuch an anſwer, as ſhall renown you for juſt Judgement, in this Age and to all Poſterity.

'I make haſte to come to your mercy, whereof I cannot but have need again and again, before I have finiſhed that ſervice to which I am enjoyned, and am not altogether in deſpair of obtaining it; Nevertheleſs the mercy which I mean to celebrate, is not only concerning ſingle or particular perſons, but whole Nations; that unexampled mercy and Clemency, which (in your Royal Wiſdom and abundant goodneſs, happily met together) your Majeſty vouchſafed to ſhew to us and all your Kingdom, in not drawing your Sword of Juſtice the laſt Summer, againſt your People of Scotland, though your Armies were much the better and the ſtronger.

'It ſeems your Majeſty remembred with more tenderneſs of heart than they do, that they were Chriſtians and your Subjects, and that your Power was poſſe & nolle nobile. Whatſoever might be the Rule that inclined you to mercy, I am ſure the benefit redounds to us and ours, who by this means are ſtill in peace and tranquillity, not without good hope of long continuance; A bleſſing peradventure undervalued by us, we have had ſo much of it, under your Majeſties moſt gracious Fathers Royal Government.

'I have yet no Inſtructions from your Houſe of Commons, therefore can propound nothing as by Warrant from them; But if I may have leave to preſent to your Majeſty my own moſt humble and moſt hearty wiſhes and deſires, they be directed upon Religion, and Chivalry, Commerce, Juſtice, and Unity: That this Parliament may be famous for the care and contentment of Gods true Religion in this world and that to come; and to that purpoſe, that the moſt Reverend Prelates your Majeſties Arch-Bi ſhops and Biſhops, ſitting on the right hand of your Throne, will be therein moſt forward, to whom it is moſt proper.

‘That the Lords Temporal girt with their Swords in their creation, as more ſpecially rewarded or deſired for Actions Military, would call to mind the moſt Noble and moſt Valiant of their Anceſtors, whoſe Lands and Honours they inherit; and how famous this Land hath been at home and abroad, for Deeds of Arms and Acts of Chivalry, and to labour to reſtore it by all means to its antient Glory. The beſt way to preſerve Peace, is to be ready prepared and well fitted for War.

‘That your Majeſty would be pleaſed to command, that your Grave and Reverend Judges, whoſe obſervations ſhould exceed all other mens, though they be but aſſiſtants in this ſervice, to contribute the beſt and utmoſt they can, to explain, to execute, to advance our good old Laws, and to propound ſuch things for the enacting of wholeſome and plain new Statutes, that every ſubject of this Realm may be enabled to know and underſtand himſelf clearly, both what he hath to do, and what he may poſſeſs, and what not. There are no conſiderable Mines Royal in this Kingdom: Trade and Commerce, the exportation of our Wools in Manufactures and native Commodities, is that which furniſheth us with Gold and Silver, the materials of our Moneys, and hath only power to enable us to ſupply your Majeſty, for the defending of our ſelves, and the offending of others. That Merchants and Tradeſmen therefore, ſhould have all meet encouragement, is a moſt ſpecial Intereſt of this Iſland.

‘But were we never ſo Valiant, never ſo Wealthy, if Love and Unity be not amongſt us, what good will our Wealth do to our ſelves, or to your Majeſty? He that commands a heart in Love, he and he only commands aſſuredly the Purſe to pay, and the Hands to fight. I pray God therefore, that we may all endeavour to knit ſuch a knot of true affection, betwixt the Head and Members, that all Jeſuited Foreign States, who look perchance with envious and malignant Eyes upon us, and would be glad to rejoice in our Diviſions, may ſee themſelves loſt and defeated of all their ſubtil Plots and Combinations, and of all their wicked hopes and expectations, to render us (if their Endeavours might prevail) a people inconſiderable at home, and contemptible abroad.

Religion teacheth us, Si Deus nobiſcum, quis contra nos? and experience I hope will teach us, Si ſumus inſeparabiles ſumus inſuperabiles. It was wont to be, and I hope it ever will be the Tenet and Poſition of your Houſe of Commons, That the good of the King and of the People cannot be ſevered, and curſed be every one that ſhall go about to divide them.

‘I fear I have adventured too far on your Royal patience, though yet I confeſs, I never knew it wearied; nevertheleſs I will here conclude. Only firſt beſeech your gracious Majeſty, in the name and right of the whole Houſe of Commons, that in your Juſtice you would be pleaſed, to grant and confirm to them (for their better Encouragement to proceed in their great buſineſs) theſe their antient and juſt Liberties, which time out of mind they have rightfully enjoyed.

'That they, their Servants and neceſſary Attendants, together with their Goods, may be freed from all Impriſonments, Arreſts and Moleſtations, during Parliament.

'That they may enjoy freedom of Speech, in all their Propoſitions and Debates; which I hope they will be careful to uſe, within the Bounds of Loyalty and Duty.

'That upon all neceſſary occaſions, they may have acceſs to your Majeſty, with ſuch a competent Number, and at ſuch ſeaſonable times and place, as your Majeſty ſhall appoint.

'And laſt of all, that your Majeſty will be pleaſed, graciouſly to make the beſt Conſtruction of all their Words and Actions, and of mine in particular.

Thurſday APRIL the 16th.

AS ſoon as the Houſe of Commons had this day ſetled the Grand Committees for Religion, Priviledges, Courts of Juſtice and Grievances, Mr. Secretary Windebanke acquainted the Houſe, that he had been by the Kings Commandment at the Tower, to examine the Lord Lowdon; who ſaid, he did believe that to be his hand-writing which was ſubſcribed to a Letter, mentioned in his Majeſties Speech, and did conceive the other names ſubſcribed to the ſame Letter, were of the hand-writing of the perſons therein named.

1. THe Speaker received a Command from the King, That his Majeſties Speech ſhould be entred in the Journal of the Commons Houſe of Parliament; whereupon the Houſe paſſed a Declarative Vote, That they did not expect, that this ſhould be performed by other Speakers, but upon the like ſpecial Command, or by the Order of the Houſe.

2. A Faſt was agreed upon by the Houſe of Commons; to which purpoſe, this Meſſage was ſent to the Lords, 'That they had taken into conſideration the great and weighty affairs now in agitation in both Houſes of Parliament, concerning the welfare of his Majeſty and this whole Kingdom: and becauſe the principal way and means to attain to a happy and proſperous concluſion in the ſame, is to beg the Divine Aſſiſtance and Direction of Almighty God, in all their Conſultations by ſolemn humiliation; therefore they deſired the Lords to joyn with them, to move his Majeſty for his gracious Allowance of ſo pious a work: and that he would be pleaſed, to grant and appoint a Faſt throughout the whole Kingdom.

SEveral Petitions were read, preſented by the Knights of the Shires, for the Counties of Middleſex, Hertford, &c. Arthur Capell Eſq; delivered in the firſt Petition given in by the Free-holders of the

An. 1640.

County of Hertford, complaining of Ship-money, Projects, Monopolies, Star-Chamber, High Commiſſion Courts, &c. ſetting forth the grievances of the People by the Church and State; which being read, ſeveral of the Members delivered their ſenſe of the preſent ſtate of affairs; and he who ſtood up firſt, was Harbottle Grimſton Eſq;, who ſpake to the effect following.

Harbottle Grimſtone Eſq; his Speech.

Mr. Speaker,

‘We are called by his Majeſty, to conſult together of the great and weighty affairs of the State and Kingdom. There hath now a great and weighty buſineſs been preſented to this Houſe, and a Letter hath been read, importing (according to the Interpretation which hath been collected out of it) a Defection of the Kings natural ſubjects. This is a great cauſe, and very worthy of the Conſideration and Adviſement of this great Council: But I am very much miſtaken, if there be not a Caſe here at home of as great danger, as that which is already put. The one ſtands without at the back-door (for ſo dangers from thence in all our Hiſtories have ever been termed) but the Caſe we will put, is a Caſe already upon our backs. And in theſe great caſes of danger, (which ſo much concern the welfare of the Body Politick) we ought to do like skilful Phyſicians, that are not led in their Judgements ſo much by outward expreſſions of a diſeaſe, as by the inward Symptoms and Cauſes of it: For it fares with a Body politick, as it doth with a natural Body. It is impoſſible to cure an ulcerous body, unleſs you firſt cleanſe the veins, and purge the body from the Obſtructions and peſtilent humours that ſurcharge Nature; and that being once done, the Botches, Blanes and Scabbs which grow upon the ſuperficies and outſide of the Body, will dry up, ſhed, and fall away of themſelves. The Danger that hath now been preſented to the Houſe, it ſtandeth at a diſtance; and we heartily wiſh it were further off: yet as it ſtands at a diſtance, it is ſo much the leſs dangerous. But the caſe that I ſhall put, is a Caſe of great danger here at home. And is ſo much the more dangerous, becauſe it is home-bred, and runs in the Veins.

‘If the one ſhall appear to be as great a danger as the other; we hope it will not be thought unreaſonable at this time, to put the one as well as the other.

Mr. Speaker,

‘The Caſe is this, The Charter of our Liberties called Magna Charta, was granted unto us by King John, which was but a Renovation and Reſtitution of the antient Laws of this Kingdom. This Charter was afterwards in the ſucceſſion of ſeveral Ages, confirmed unto us above thirty ſeveral times, and in the third year of his Majeſties Reign that now is, we had more than a Confirmation of it: for we had an Act declaratory paſt: and then to put it out of all queſtion and diſpute for the future, his Majeſty by his gracious Anſwer, Soit Droit fait come eſt deſire, inveſted it with the Title of Petition of Right. What expoſitions contrary to that Law of Right, have ſome men given to the undermining the liberty of the ſubjects, with new invented ſubtil diſtinctions, and aſſuming to themſelves a power (I know not where they had it) out of

16 Caroli.

'Parliament, to ſuperſede, annihilate and make void the Laws of the Kingdom? The Common-wealth hath been miſerably torn and maſſacred, and all Property and Liberty ſhaken, the Church diſtracted, the Goſpel and profeſſors of it perſecuted, and the whole Nation over-run with ſwarms of projecting Canker-worms and Caterpillars, the worſt of all the Egyptian Plagues: Then (as the caſe now ſtands with us) I conceive there are two points very conſiderable in it. The firſt is, What hath been done any way to impeach the liberties of the ſubjects, contrary to the Petition of Right? The ſecond is, Who have been the Authors and Cauſes of it?

'The ſerious examination and diſcuſſion of theſe two queſtions, do highly concern his Majeſty in point of honour, and his ſubjects in point of Intereſt. And all that I ſhall ſay to it, are but the words that Ezra uſed to King Artaxerxes of the ſettlement of that State, which at that time was as much out of frame and order, as ours is at this preſent; that which cured theirs, I hope will cure ours: his words are theſe, whoſoever, ſaith he, hath not done the Laws of God and the King, let Judgement be ſpeedily executed upon him, whether it be unto Baniſhment, or to confiſcation of goods, or to Impriſonment. It may be ſome do think this a ſtrange Text, and 'tis poſſible ſome may think it as ſtrange a Caſe: As for the Text, every man may read it that will; and for the Caſe, I am afraid there are but few here, that do not experimentally know it, as bad as I have put it, and how to mend a bad Cauſe, I take it is part of the buſineſs we now meet about.

'His Majeſty yeſterday did graciouſly confirm unto us, our great and antient Liberties of Freedom of Speech; and having his Kingly word for it, I ſhall reſt as confidently upon it, as the greateſt ſecurity under Heaven, whileſt I have the honour to have a place here, and I ſhall with all humility be bold to expreſs my ſelf like a Free-man.

'The diſeaſes and diſtempers that now are in our Bodies politick, are grown to that height, that they pray for and importune a Cure. And his Majeſty, out of his tender care and affection to his people, like a Nurſing Father, hath now freely offered himſelf to hear our Grievances and Complaints. We cannot complain we want good Laws; the wit of man cannot invent better than are already made: there want only ſome examples, that ſuch as have been the Authors and Cauſes of all our miſeries and diſtractions in Church and Common-wealth contrary to theſe good Laws, might be treacle to expell the poyſon of miſchief out of others.

'But my part is, but oſtendere partem; therefore having put the Caſe, I muſt leave it to the Judgement of this Houſe, Whether our dangers here at home, be not as great and conſiderable, as that which was even now preſented?

After him Sr. Benjamin Rudyard delivered his ſenſe of the preſent ſtate of affairs, in this manner.

Sr. Benjamin Rudyard's Speech.

'THere is a great door opened unto us of doing good, if we take the Advantage thereof: We are here met, by the bleſſing of God and our King: Parliaments have of late dayes become unfortunate;

An. 1640.

'tunate; it is our duty by our good temper and carriage, to reſtore them to their antient Luſtre.

'There be ſome here preſent, who can remember the breaking up of the laſt Parliament; a buſineſs certainly from which the Papiſts are not exempt, who now by the diſcontinuance of Parliaments, are come to that arrogance and boldneſs, that they contend with us, who are the better ſubjects. Their Envy I like, but their preſumption is not to be born. I wiſh them no harm, but good; for I deſire their Conviction: and the way to do that, is to ſet up better Lights, who have warmth in them, and are not luke-warm in Religion. Surely they that quarrel betwixt preaching and prayer, and would have them contend, never meant well to either: But both muſt have their due. And yet I know not how it comes to paſs, but it hapneth to us, which is in no other Religion in the World, that a man may be too religious: and many one by that ſcandal, is frighted into a deep diſſimulation. It is wiſdom in us, to preſerve temper and moderation: for breaking of Parliaments makes dangerous wounds in the body politick; and if the ſplinters be not pulled out with a gentle hand, we may hereafter deſpair of Cure.

In 14 Ed. 3. Subſidies were given to the King for his expedition into France, but by the ill Management of his Treaſure here, he was ſo low, that he was glad to make Truce with the French King.

'In 15 E. 3. he returns, and ſummoned a Parliament, wherein there was nothing but Jealouſies and diſtempers.

'In 17 E. 3. he called another Parliament, to procure an Atonement with his ſubjects, which took good ſucceſs by their humble carriage to him, and his willingneſs to ratifie their Liberty, whereby all breaches were then made up.

'A Parliament is the bed of Reconciliation between King and People; and therefore it is fit for us, to lay aſide all exaſperations, and carry our ſelves with humility: howbeit the Kings Prerogative may go far, yet if it be ſwayed with Equanimity, it may be the better born.

'Princes are, and will be as jealous of their power, as people of their liberties; though both are then beſt, when kept within their ſeveral Bounds. Levying of Moneys is a great diſturbance to the ſubject; and ſo will be the ſcarcity of the Kings Revenues, until they be ſupplyed. And where the Power of the King and neceſſity meets in one hand, he will not long be diſappointed. But before the ending of this Parliament, (the untimely breaking whereof would be the breaking of us) I doubt not but his Majeſties Revenues may be ſo ſetled, that he may live plentifully at home and abroad: and without taking any thing from his Majeſty, ſave that, which of it ſelf would fall away.

'In former Parliaments, the Carriage of ſome have been ſo haughty, as though Parliaments would laſt alwayes; and the carriage of others, as if there would be never any again. And therefore a moderation (if we love our ſelves) is requiſite.

'The Delayes of remedies are well known, how dangerous they are to the Common-wealth and Religion, ſeeing during this Vacation of Parliaments, ſo many diſorders have been committed, by Innovations in Religion, Violation of Laws, and intruding upon Liberties.

‘To ſet all which aright, is now our task: and if in theſe tempting provocations we bear a temperate moderation, we ſhall not miſs of our end, but ſhall vindicate God in his Religion, the King in his Honour, and the Common-wealth in its gaſping Extremities.

‘If temper and moderation be not reſpected by us, beware of having the Race of Parliaments rooted out.

‘Men and Brethren, What ſhall we do? If it were for my life, I would deſire nothing more, than that we proceed with moderation, that ſo we may have many happy Parliaments, and that no diſmal Events may happen to any: for when Parliaments are gone, we are loſt.

THe Houſe the next day April 17. falling again upon the Debate of Grievances in general, occaſioned by Petitions brought in by the Knights of the Shires, for Eſſex, Suffolk, &c. thereupon ſeveral other Members ſpake their ſenſe; but Mr. Pym ſpake more fully than the reſt, to this effect.

Mr. Pym's Speech.

‘HE that takes away weights from the Motions, doth as good ſervice, as he that adds wings unto them. Theſe weights are old grievances. He therefore will do a good work for the King, who to expedite his deſigns, will ſet good Rules and Patterns for effecting thereof.

‘When God made the World, he did it by a Pattern which himſelf had conceived: And Moſes did according to the Pattern he ſaw in the Mount.

‘I ſhall therefore offer you a Model of the Grievances which afflict the Common-wealth, and which have diſabled us to adminiſter any ſupply, until they be redreſſed, and will ſtill diſable us; which Grievances may be reduced to three Heads.

The Second, are Innovations in matters of Religion. 2.

‘The Third, Grievances againſt the Propriety of our goods. 3.

‘Which Grievances I will firſt propound, and Secondly, Shew that the permiſſion of them is as prejudicial to his Majeſty, as to the Common-wealth: and Thirdly, I will ſhew what way they may be remedied.

‘In all theſe, I ſhall take care to maintain, the great Prerogative of the King; which is, that the King can do no wrong.

‘And Firſt, I will begin with the Grievances againſt the Priviledges and Liberties of Parliament. We all know, that the intellectual part, which ought to govern all the reſt, ought to be kept from diſtemper; for it is that which purgeth us from all Errors, and prevents other miſchiefs for time to come.

‘If the underſtanding part be hurt, the mind cannot perform her function.

An. 1640.

‘A Parliament is that to the Common-wealth, which the Soul is to the body, which is only able to apprehend and underſtand the ſymptoms of all ſuch diſeaſes, which threaten the Body politick. It behoves us therefore, to keep the faculty of that Soul from diſtempers.

‘I ſhall briefly therefore give you a View of ſuch occurrences, as have altered the happy and healthful conſtitution of it: and in the firſt place, I muſt remember the breaches of our Liberties and Priviledges of Parliament, which are,

1. ‘Firſt, In that the Speaker the laſt Parliament, (the laſt day of it) being commanded to put the queſtion, the Houſe was commanded they ſhould not ſpeak. Theſe are conceived to be the grounds of whatſoever befell thoſe Gentlemen, which ſo lately ſuffered. ’Tis true, the Houſe was commanded to adjourn preſently, yet whilſt the Houſe ſate, God forbid we ſhould be barr’d from offering the laſt ſighs and groans to his Majeſty.

2. ‘Secondly, In that the Parliament was then diſſolved, before our Grievances had redreſs, or before we could make our Wills known, which is the priviledge of Dying men; and to be heard before condemned, is not denyed to private perſons.

3. ‘Thirdly, That the Judges preſume to queſtion the proceedings of this Houſe: it is againſt nature and order, that inferiour Courts ſhould undertake to regulate ſuperiour. The Court of Parliament is a Court of the higheſt Juriſdiction, and cannot be cenſured by any other Law or ſentence, but by its own.

4. ‘Fourthly, The ſeveral Impriſonments of divers Gentlemen, for ſpeaking freely in Parliament.

5. ‘Fifthly, That inferiour Courts ſhould be informed to puniſh Acts done in this Court, whereby divers members of the Houſe were ſo kept in Priſon, till they had put in ſecurity for their good behaviour; and ſome of them dyed in Priſon, others not releaſed, until Writs came for this Parliament.

6. ‘Laſtly, (which I conceive to be the greateſt) That the Parliament was puniſhed, without being ſuffered to make its own defence. I call the Diſſolution of the Parliament a puniſhment, and juſtly: The breaking of the Parliament, is death to a good ſubject.

‘But it is to be obſerved, that in this and the other Grievances, though the King be no party (for his Highneſſes Prerogative is to Do no Wrong) yet moſt of theſe diſtempers of State, ariſe and do invade the ſubjects, by means of miſ-informing him: As the Celeſtial Bodies of themſelves ſend forth nothing but wholeſomeneſs to man; but by the ill diſtemper in inferiour bodies, much hurt ariſeth from them.

‘The next ſort of Grievances I deliver, are thoſe that concern matters of Religion.

'Wherein I will firſt obſerve, the great Encouragement which is given to them of the Popiſh Religion, by an univerſal ſuſpenſion of all Laws that are againſt them, and ſome of them admitted into publick places of truſt and power.

'I deſire not to have any new Laws made againſt them (God be thanked we have enough) nor a ſtrict execution of the old ones, but only ſo far forth, as tends to the ſafety of his Majeſty, and ſuch a practice of them, that the Religion that can brook no Corrival, may not be the deſtruction of ours, by being too concurrent with it.

'There is an Intention of a Nuncio from the Pope, who is to be here, to give ſecret intelligence to Rome, how we incline here, and what will be thought fit to win us thither.

'I obſerve as a great Grievance, there are divers Innovations in Religion amongſt our ſelves, to make us more capable of a tranſlation; to which purpoſe Popiſh Books have been publiſht in print, and Diſputations of Popiſh Points are, and have been uſed in the Univerſities and elſewhere with priviledge, and preached in the Pulpit, and maintained for ſound Doctrine, whereby Popiſh Tenets are maintained.

'The introducing of Popiſh Ceremonies, as Altars, bowing towards the Eaſt, Pictures, Croſſes, Crucifixes, and the like, which of themſelves conſidered, are as ſo many dry Bones, but being put together, make the man. We are not now contented with the old Ceremonies, I mean ſuch as the conſtitution of the Reformed Religion hath continued unto us: But we muſt introduce again many of thoſe ſuperſtitious and infirm Ceremonies, which accompanyed the moſt decrepit age of Popery, bowing to the Altar and the like.

'I ſhall obſerve the daily diſcouraging of all godly men, who truly profeſs the Proteſtant Religion, as though men could be too Religious.

'Some things are urged by Eccleſiaſtical men, without any ground by any Canon or Article eſtabliſh't, and without any Command from the King, either under his Great Seal, or by Proclamation.

'The Parliament ever ſince Queen Elizabeth's time, deſired the Biſhops to deal moderately; but how they have anſwered thoſe deſires we all know, and theſe good men for the moſt part feel.

'I may not forget, that many of the Miniſters are deprived, for refuſing to read the Book for Sports and Recreation upon the Sabbath, which was a device of their own heads: which Book I may affirm hath many things faulty in it.

'Then the encroaching upon the Kings Authority by Eccleſiaſtical Courts, as namely the High Commiſſion, which takes upon it to Fine and impriſon men, enforcing them to take the Oath Ex Officio, with many of the like Uſurpations, which are puniſhments belonging only to Temporal Juriſdiction: And it hath been reſolved in the time of King James, that the Statute of 1 Eliz. cap. 1. gives them no ſuch power: moreover the power which they claim, they derive not from the King, nor from any Law or Statute; but they will immediately have it from Heaven Jure divino. Divers particular Ordinaries, Chancellors and Arch-Deacons take upon them to make and ordain Conſtitutions within their particular Limits:

'all theſe things are true to the knowledge of moſt that hear me.

'I now come to the general Head of Grievances, which is the Grievances belonging to our Goods, and are in Civil matters, the heads thereof are too many.

'The taking of Tonnage and Poundage, and divers other Impoſitions, without any Grant or Law for to do ſo, is a great Grievance.

'There are divers antient Cuſtoms due to the King, but they are certain what they are, and are due by preſcription: Theſe Cuſtoms being too narrow for his ſervice, and the affections of the People growing ſtronger and ſtronger to their Prince, Tonnage and Poundage were granted for years to the King; and afterwards by this Houſe granted for Lives; but never were taken by the Kings own Act without a Parliament; for doing which, there is no preſident, unleſs in a year or two in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth.

'In the next place of theſe Grievances, I rank Knighthood, the Original whereof was, that perſons fit for Chivalry might be improved: But this after was ſtretched for another end, for money, and extended not only to Terre tenants, but to Leſſees and Merchants, who were firſt to appear, and then to plead for themſelves at the Council Board; but were delayed from day to day, to their great charge and inconvenience: and notwithſtanding the juſt defence they have made for themſelves, there have been infinite diſtreſſes laid upon them until the Fines were paid, which were impoſed not by Courts, but by Commiſſioners aſſigned for that purpoſe: and this being a continuing offence, they are by the ſame Rule, as lyable now to Fines, as ever.

Monopolies and inundations of them, whereby a burthen is laid not only upon foreign, but upon Native Commodities; as Soap, Salt, Drink, &c. the particulars whereof are fit for the Committee of Grievances.

'Fourthly, Ship-money; and although there be a Judgement for it, yet I dare be bold to ſay it's againſt all former Preſidents and Laws, and not one Judgement that ever maintained it. This is a Grievance that all are grieved at, having no Limits either for time or proportion: If therefore any ſhall endeavour to defend this, he muſt know, that both his Reputation and Conſcience lye at ſtake in the Defence.

'The Enlarging the bounds of the Foreſt. Though our Anceſtors were heretofore queſtioned for the ſame thing, yet upon the ſatisfaction of all the objections that were, or could be made, they then ſaved themſelves; yet now the ſame things are turned upon us.

'The Sale of publick Nuſances, for ſo they are pretended to be. Many great Nuſances have been complained of: But when there hath been money given, and Compoſitions made, then they are no more Nuſances, as Buildings and Depopulations.

Military Charges and Impoſitions upon Counties, by Letters only from the Council Table, whereby Soldiers Conduct-money and Coats are to be provided at the Countreys charge; and Horſes alſo provided without ground or Law; many things in this kind being done by Deputy Lieutenants of their own accord.

‘Extrajudicial Judgements and Impoſitions of the Judges without any cauſe before them, whereby they have anticipated the Judgement which is legal and publick, and circumvented one of the parties of juſt remedies, in that no Writ of Error lyes, but only upon the Judicial proceedings.

‘The next ſort of Grievances is, that the great Courts do countenance the oppreſſions, as I may inſtance in the Court of Star-Chamber advancing and countenancing of Monopolies, which ſhould be inſtead of this great Council of the Kingdom; and the Star-Chamber now is become a Court of Revenue; Informations there being put in againſt Sheriffs, for not making returns of Money upon the Writs of Ship-money: It was not uſed, that meum & tuum ſhould be diſputed there.

‘The Privy Councellors ſhould be Lights of the Realm: Sure in them is the greateſt truſt, and they by Magna Charta, are to do Juſtice (as was urged by one in this Houſe the laſt Parliament) but now if theſe Councellors ſhould ſo far deſcend below themſelves, as to countenance, nay to plot projects and Monopolies, what ſhall we think of this? Surely it is much beneath their dignity: this is a great Grievance, but I muſt go higher.

‘I know the King hath a tranſcendent power in many Caſes, whereby by Proclamation he may prevent and guard againſt ſudden accidents: But that this power ſhould be applyed to countenance Monopolies (the projectors being not content with their private Grants without a Proclamation) is without preſident. But yet I muſt go higher than this; It hath been in the Pulpit applyed, and alſo publiſhed in Books and Diſputations, aſſerting a power unlimited in the King, that he may do what he pleaſeth.

‘This Grievance was complained of in the laſt Parliament, in the caſe of Dr. Mainwaring, who for maintaining that opinion in a Sermon, That a Subject had no Propriety in his goods, but that all was at the Kings pleaſure, made his ſubmiſſion upon his knees in this place; and was then brought ſo low, that I thought he would not have leapt ſo ſoon into a Biſhoprick.

‘I have by this time wearied you as well as my ſelf; but I am come to the laſt Grievance, which is the fountain of all theſe, and that is the Intermiſſions of Parliaments, whereas by two Statutes not repealed nor expired, a Parliament ought to be once in a year.

‘Theſe Grievances are as prejudicial to his Majeſty, as to the Common-wealth.

‘The Breach of Parliaments is much prejudicial; for by this means the great Union and Love, which ſhould be kept and communicated betwixt the King and his ſubjects, is interrupted: They cannot make known their Petitions, nor the King his Wants, to have ſupplies. Where the intercourſe of the ſpirits betwixt the head and the members is hindred, the Body proſpers not.

‘If Parliaments had been more frequent, the King had had more ſupplies.

‘By our Grievance in Religion, the Kings party abroad is much weakned; and that great part of his Aids abroad do forſake us, is for that they think we are forſaking our Religion.

16 Caroli.

'Many of the Kings ſubjects for that they cannot be quiet in things indifferent, and know not where they ſhall have an end of them, have departed this Land with their Goods, Eſtates and Poſterities.

'The Preferments of men ill deſerving, and neglecting others of great Integrity and Merit, hath much weakned and diſcouraged us.

'There are but a few now, that apply themſelves either to do well or to deſerve well; finding Flattery and Complyance to be the eaſier way to attain their ends and expectations.

'The not obſerving of Laws, but countenancing of Monopolies and ſuch like, breed Jealouſies in the minds of many, and may prepare a way for diſtempers, though (thanks be to God) as yet there have been none; our Religion having preſerved us. But if any thing but well ſhould happen, one Summers diſtempers would breed great change, and more than all unlawful Courſes would recompence.

'We know how unfortunate Henry III. and other Princes have been, by the occaſion of ſuch breaking of their Laws. I pray God that we never ſee ſuch times.

'We are not content to multiply Impoſitions upon Merchants Goods, which are exported and imported into the Kingdom: But now there is a growing miſchief in plotting for an Impoſition upon ſuch Goods as never ſee England, but are conveyed from France to Spain, or the like, by Engliſh Merchants. A courſe before this time never heard of: and ſuch illegal things are badly accounted for to the King; whereas Legal things will ſoon be diſcovered, if not accounted for.

'Beſides, in Monopolies and ſuch like, the third part comes not to his Majeſties Coffers, as to inſtance in that of Wines.

'The King hath Thirty Thouſand Pounds per Annum upon them, where the Wines in the gains by the Patent come to Eighty Thouſand Pounds at the firſt, from the time of their Arrival: and being drawn come to Two Hundred and Thirty Thouſand Pounds per Annum; and the ſame proportion holds in all other Monopolies, whereby it appears, how much the ſubject is damnified, and how little the King gains.

'I come now to the laſt thing, the remedy of theſe Grievances.

'Firſt, I adviſe to preſent them to the Houſe of Peers, that they may joyn with us to go to the King, and pray that theſe Grievances being clear in fact, may be Voted; if any thing in the Vote be ſtuck upon, that it may be debated and drawn according to the courſe of the Houſe, into a Remonſtrance, with an humble Petition of both Houſes for redreſs. And I hope the Wiſdom of this Houſe will prepare ſuch a Remedy, as will make the King a great King, and the people happy.

Saturday, April 18.

S*aturday, April* 18. ſpake divers other Members, and thereupon the Houſe Voted, That the proceedings remaining upon Record in the Upper Bench and Court of Star-Chamber againſt Sr. John Elliot, Mr. Hollis, and the impriſoned Members of the Parliament (3 & 4 Caroli) ſhould be ſent for; and that it be alſo referred to a Committee to conſider of the Breach of the Priviledge of Parliament; and more particularly, what was done by the Speaker of Parliament, when he refuſed to put the queſtion by the command of the Houſe; the Committee was ordered to ſtate matter of fact, and to report.

They alſo appointed another Committee to collect and diſpoſe the material points of the Grievances mentioned in the ſeveral Petitions, and other grievances of the like nature; And ordered that the Records in the caſe of Ship Money which concerned Mr. Hampden, ſhould be brought into the Houſe.

Munday April 20.

M*Unday April* the 20. The buſineſs concerning Sr. John Finch in the Parliament 3 Car. was preſently examined, and it was Reported by Mr. Treaſurer upon Examination, that he did not ſay, he would not put the Queſtion, but that he ſaid, he durſt not put it. That he left the Chair not to diſobey the Parliament, but to obey his Majeſty.

The Houſe thereupon reſolved, that it was a breach of priviledge of the Houſe, for the Speaker not to obey the Commands of the Houſe; and that it appeared the Speaker did adjourn the Houſe by the command of the King, without conſent of the Houſe, which is alſo a breach of the priviledge, it was therefore ordered that this ſhould be preſented to his Majeſty.

It was alſo reported unto the Houſe by Mr. Glyn from the grand Committee for Grievances, that Ship Money by the Vote of the Committee was preſented to the conſideration of the Houſe as a grievance.

Tueſday April 21.

T*Ueſday April* 21. The King ſent a Meſſage to both Houſes, to attend his Majeſty in the Banquetting-Houſe at two of the clock this afternoon, and they went accordingly, to whom the Lord Keeper ſpake to this purpoſe, the King being preſent.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

'YOU may well remember, upon the beginning of this Parliament his Majeſty commanded me, to deliver unto you the cauſes of calling of it, which was, for the Aſſiſtance and ſupply of his Majeſty in ſo great, weighty, and important affairs, as ever King of England had to require at his Subjects hands.

'I am now to put you in mind what I then ſaid unto you, and withal to let you know, that ſuch and ſo great are his Majeſties occaſions at this time, that if the ſupply be not ſpeedy, it will be of no uſe at all: for the Army is now Marching, and doth ſtand his Majeſty in at leaſt one hundred thouſand pounds a month, and if there be not means uſed to go on with this as is fitting, his Majeſties deſign will be loſt, and the charge all caſt away. It is not a great and ample ſupply for the perfecting of the work, that his Majeſty doth now expect, but it is ſuch a ſupply (as without which) the charge will be loſt, and the deſign fruſtrated, being built upon thoſe weighty reaſons which tend to the infinite good of the Kingdom, and preſervation of you all.

This done, his Majeſty will give you ſcope and liberty to preſent your juſt grievances unto him, and he will hear them with a gracious ear, and give them ſuch an anſwer, as you and all the Kingdom ſhall have reaſon to joy therein.

An. 1640. ‘His Majeſty taketh notice of one particular, and that is concerning Ship-money; wherein his Majeſty hath commanded me to declare thus much unto you: Firſt, His Majeſty never had it in his Royal heart, to make an annual Revenue of it, nor ever had a thought to make the leaſt benefit or profit of it: But whatſoever he did or intended in it, it was for the Common good of you all; for the honour, glory and ſplendor of this Nation, and that every one of us are made ſharers and partakers in the benefits, fruits, and ſucceſſes of it, which otherwiſe you would have felt the woes of it. He hath been ſo far from making the leaſt benefit of it, that he hath expended great Summs of Money out of his own Coffers to work with, to thoſe neceſſary ends I have named unto you.

‘The Accompts of ſuch Moneys ſo received, have been brought to the Council Table, the Moneys delivered to Sir William Ruſſel the Treaſurer of the Navy, and by them all it may appear whether there hath been a fulneſs and clearneſs of truth in the disburſements thereof, for the good and ſafety of the Kingdom.

‘It is true, his Majeſty had once intended this year not to have taken that courſe, but an Army which his Majeſty ſo juſt a King for the preſervation of the Kingdom hath now taken into Conſideration; And I muſt tell you, that his Majeſty prizeth nothing more than his honour, and he will not loſe for any earthly thing, his honour in the leaſt; They cannot make thoſe expreſſions of love, duty and affection to him, which the graciouſneſs of his nature will not exceed in.

‘Of all his Kingdoms, this ought to be the neareſt and deareſt unto him, yet for his Kingdom of Ireland the laſt Parliament before this, the very ſecond day of the Parliament they gave him ſix Subſidies, they relyed upon his gracious words, the ſucceſs was that before the end of the Parliament, they had all that they did deſire granted, and had it with an advantage. This laſt Parliament there, it is well known unto you all, what a cheerful ſupply they have given unto his Majeſty, for their hearts went with it; and let it not be apprehended, that Subſidies there are of ſmall Value; there is not a Subſidy that is granted, but it is worth fifty or ſixty thouſand pounds at the leaſt: Conſider that Kingdom, what proportion it holdeth with this of England, and you will find, that it is a conſiderable Gift, as hath been given in many years. It hath wrought this effect, That certainly his Majeſty will make it apparent to all the world, what a good conſtruction, and how graciouſly he doth eſteem and interpret this Act of theirs. I have directed hitherto my Speech to you that are of the Houſe of Commons; Now I ſhall addreſs my ſelf to your Lordſhips.

‘It is true, the proper and natural Supply proceeds from the Houſe of Commons, yet in aide at this time, his Majeſty hath called you hither; and hopeth he ſhall not find the Houſe of Commons backward to his deſires, nor your Lordſhips to concur with them.

‘To you of the Houſe of Commons, I did forget one thing, of an Objection that might perhaps be made; That Tonnage and Poundage is given towards the maintenance of a Fleet at Sea, let me tell you, that Tonnage and Poundage was never intended but for ordinary preſervation of the Sea, not that that ſhould be to defend the Dominion of the Narrow Seas, when the Navies of all the Princes of ‘Chriſtendom are ſo increaſed as they are. It is fit for his Majeſty (as things now ſtand) to have ſuch a ſtrength at Sea, as may be a terror to others abroad.

‘His Majeſty was once reſolved that no Shipping Writs ſhould have iſſued out this year, but he was enforced for your good, and the good of the Kingdom, and for his Honour, upon neceſſary and weighty reaſons to ſend forth Writs, and thoſe reaſons were theſe.

‘It was of neceſſity for his Majeſty to prepare an Army to reduce his diſaffected Subjects of Scotland to their due Obedience. This very year all the Neighbouring Princes are preparing with great Fleets of ſhips, ſo as it is time for his Majeſty to put himſelf into a ſtrength that he may be able to preſerve the Dominion of the Narrow Seas, without which this Kingdom will be loſt, he not able to maintain his right of being the Moderator of the Sea, whereby there may be Freedom and Commerce of Trade, which adds exceedingly to the flouriſhing of this Kingdom. Another reaſon for Shipping-Writs this year is, That thoſe of Argier are grown to that inſolency, that they are provided of a Fleet of ſixty ſail of ſhips, and have taken divers ſhips, and one called the Rebetta of London (well known to the Merchants upon the Exchange) taken upon the Coaſts of Spain, worth at the leaſt two hundred and ſixty thouſand pounds. And therefore the Writ having gone out upon thoſe weighty reaſons, before it was poſſible the Parliament could give any ſupply to provide for thoſe things, his Majeſty cannot this year forbear it, but he doth expect your Concurrence in the Levying of it for the future. I ſhall ſpeak that unto you by his Majeſties Command, which may comfort any Engliſh heart; His Majeſty hath no thoughts of inriching himſelf by the monies coming in upon theſe Writs; he doth deſire but to live as it behoves a King of England, able to defend you and this Nation in honour and in luſtre, which is famous abroad, and glorious at home, and to live but like ſuch a King, as every true Engliſh heart deſireth their King ſhould be.

‘Be maſters of your own way, ſettle it ſo ſecure and ſo ſafe, that it may never come to the leaſt benefit and advantage to himſelf, but for the common good, and thoſe neceſſary ends wherein you ſhall all ſhare in your plenty, peace, honour, and whatſoever any Engliſh man can glory in.

‘His Majeſty commands me to tell you, You ſhall propound nothing wherein you may receive all ſecurity for the property of your goods, and nothing for ſecuring your own Liberties, wherein he will not moſt readily liſten unto you; and be as willing to grant, as you to ask. His Majeſty doth now offer unto you the reaſons, occaſions, and the way to make this the moſt bleſſed and moſt happy Parliament that ever was, and that may produce ſuch effects, that the King may delight in his people, and the people in their King. And he layeth before you not only the Counſel to do ſo; but he will tell you the way, and that is by putting an obligation of truſt and confidence upon him, which ſhall more ſecure you, than all that you can invent; of Fears, or Jealouſies can imagine to be provided for; It is a courſe that good manners, Duty, and reaſon ſhould require of you, to take into Conſideration.

Wedneſday April 22.

WEdneſday April 22. Upon the Report made to the Houſe of the Kings Speech in the Banquetting-houſe yeſterday Edm. Waller Eſq; then a member of the Houſe (and of every Parliament ſince that time to the Diſſolution of the Parliament in the year 1678.) ſpake as followeth;

Mr. Waller's Speech.

Mr. Speaker,

‘I Will uſe no preface as they do who prepare men for ſomething in which they have a particular intereſt. I will only propoſe what I conceive fit for the Houſe to conſider, and ſhall be no more concerned in the Event, than they that ſhall hear me.

‘Two things I obſerve in his Majeſties demands, Firſt the Supply. Secondly, your ſpeedy diſpatch thereof. Touching the firſt, his Majeſties occaſions for money are but too evident; for to ſay nothing how we are neglected abroad and diſtracted at home, the calling of this Parliament and our ſitting here (an effect, which no light cauſe in theſe times hath produced) is enough to make any reaſonable man believe, that the Exchequer abounds not ſo much in money, as the State doth in occaſions to uſe it, and I hope we ſhall appear willing to diſprove thoſe, who have thought to diſſwade his Majeſty from this way of Parliaments, as uncertain; and to let him ſee it is as ready, and more ſafe for the advancement of his affairs, than any new or pretended old way whatſoever. For the ſpeedy diſpatch required, which was the ſecond thing; not only his Majeſty, but res ipſa loquitur, the occaſion ſeems to importune no leſs; neceſſity is come upon us like an Armed man.

‘The uſe of Parliaments heretofore (as appears by the Writs that call us hither) was to adviſe with his Majeſty, of things concerning the Church and Common-Wealth.

‘And it hath ever been the Cuſtome of Parliaments, by good and wholeſome Laws to refreſh the Common-Wealth in general; yea and to deſcend into the Remedies of particular grievances, before any mention made of a Supply. Look back upon the beſt Parliaments, and ſtill you ſhall find, that the laſt Acts are for the free gifts of Subſidies on the peoples part, and General Pardons on the Kings part: even the wiſeſt Kings have firſt acquainted their Parliaments with their deſigns, and the reaſons thereof; and then demanded the aſſiſtance both of their Counſel and purſes. But Phyſicians though they be called of the lateſt, muſt not ſtomach it, or talk what might have been, but apply themſelves roundly to the Cure; let us not ſtand too nicely upon Circumſtances, nor too rigidly poſtpone the matter of Supply to the healing of our lighter wounds, let's do what poſſibly may be done with reaſon and honeſty on our part, to comply with his Majeſties deſires, and to prevent the imminent Evils that threaten us. But conſider, that they who think themſelves already undone, can never apprehend themſelves in danger, and they that have nothing left can never give freely; nor ſhall we ever diſcharge the truſt of thoſe that ſent us hither, or make them believe that they contribute to their own defence and ſafety, unleſs his Majeſty be pleaſed firſt to reſtore them to the propriety of their goods and lawful liberties, whereof they ‘eſteem themſelves now out of poſſeſſion. One need not tell you the propriety of goods is the mother of Courage and the Nurſe of Induſtry; it makes us Valiant in War, and induſtrious in peace; the Experience I have of former Parliaments, and my preſent obſervation of the care the Countrey has had, to chuſe perſons of worth and Courage, make me think this Houſe like the Spartans, whoſe forward Valour required ſome ſofter Muſick to allay and quiet their ſpirits, too much moved with the ſound of Martial Inſtruments. ‘’Tis not the fear of Impriſonment, or (if need be) of Death it ſelf, can keep a true-hearted Engliſh man from the care to leave this part of his Inheritance as entire to poſterity, as he received it from his Anceſtors.

‘This therefore let us firſt do, and the more ſpeedily, that we may come to the matter of Supply. Let us give new force to the old Laws, which have been heretofore for the maintaining of our Rights and Priviledges, and endeavour to reſtore this Nation to the fundamental and vital Liberties, the propriety of our goods and the freedom of our perſons, no way doubting but that we ſhall find his Majeſty as gracious and ready as any of his Royal Progenitors have been to grant our juſt deſires therein; for not only the people do think, but the wiſeſt do know, that what we have ſuffered in this long Vacancy of Parliaments, we have ſuffered from his Miniſters; that the perſon of no King was ever better beloved of his people, and yet that no people were ever leſs ſatisfied with the preſent wayes of levying moneys. Theſe are two truths which may ſerve, the one to demonſtrate the other; for ſuch is the oppoſition to the preſent courſes, that neither the admiration they have of his Majeſties natural inclination to Juſtice and Clemency, nor the pretended conſent of the Judges, could make them willingly ſubmit themſelves to this late Tax of Ship-money, and ſuch is their natural Love and juſt eſteem of his Majeſties goodneſs, that no late preſſure could provoke them, nor any example invite them to diſloyalty or diſobedience; but what is it then, that hath bred this miſunderſtanding betwixt the King and his People? how is it that having ſo good a King, we have ſo much to complain of? Why Mr. Speaker; We are told of the Son of Solomon, that he was a Prince of a tender heart, and yet by the advice of violent Counſellors, how rough an anſwer he gave to his people, that his finger ſhould be as heavy as his Fathers loyns: this was not his own, but the voice of ſome perſons about him that wanted the gravity and moderation requiſite for the Counſellors of a young King. I love not to preſs Allegories too far, but the Reſemblance of Jobs ſtory with ours holds ſo well that I cannot but obſerve it unto you. It pleaſed God to give his Enemy leave to afflict him more than once or twice, and to take all that he had from him, and yet he was not provoked ſo much as to Rebel with his tongue (although he had no very good example of one that lay very near him) and felt not half that he ſuffered; I hope his Majeſty will imitate God in the benigner part too; he was ſevere to Job only while he diſcourſed with another concerning him; but when he vouchſafed to ſpeak himſelf to him, he began to rebuke thoſe who had miſtaken and miſjudged his caſe; and to reſtore the patient man to his former proſperity: ſo now that his Majeſty hath admitted us to his preſence, and ſpoken face to face with ‘us, I doubt not but that we we ſhall ſee fairer dayes, be reſtored again to the poſſeſſion of our property and liberty, and that his Majeſty will frown upon thoſe who have given the ill Counſel.

‘I wonder at thoſe that ſeem to doubt the ſucceſs of this Parliament, or that the miſunderſtanding between the King and his People ſhould laſt any longer when now they are ſo happily met.

‘His Majeſties wants are not ſo great, but that we may find means to ſupply him, nor our deſires ſo unreaſonable or incompatible with Government, but that his Majeſty might well ſatisfie them: for our late Experience I hope will teach us what Rocks to ſhun, and how neceſſary the uſe of moderation is; and for his Majeſty, he has had experience enough how that proſpers that is gotten without the concurrent good will of his People; never more money taken from the Subject, never more want in the Exchequer; if we look upon what has been paid, it's more than uſually the People of England were wont to pay in ſuch a time; if we look upon what has been effected therewith, it ſhews as if never King had been worſe ſupplyed, ſo that we ſeem to have endeavoured the filling of a ſive with water; whoſoever gave advice for theſe Courſes, has made good the ſaying of the wiſe man, Qui conturbat domum ſuam poſſidebit ventum; by new wayes they think to accompliſh wonders, but in truth they graſp the wind, and are at the ſame time cruel to us and to the King too: for let the Common-wealth flouriſh, and then he that hath the Soveraignty can never want, nor do amiſs; ſo as he govern not according to the intereſt of others, but go the ſhorteſt and eaſieſt wayes to his own and the common good.

‘The Kings of this Nation have alwayes governed by Parliament, and if we look upon the ſucceſs of things ſince Parliaments were laid by, it reſembles that of the Grecians, Ex illo fluere & retro ſublapſa referri Res Danaum; eſpecially on the Subjects parts; for though the King hath gotten little, they have loſt all; but his Majeſty ſhall now hear the truth from us, and we ſhall make appear the Errours of Divines, who would perſwade us that a Monarch muſt be abſolute, and that he may do all things ad Libitum; receding not only from their text, (though that be a wandering too) but from the way their own profeſſion might teach them, Stare ſuper vias antiquas; and remove not the antient bounds and Land-marks, which our Fathers have ſet: if to be abſolute were to be reſtrained by no Laws, then can no King in Chriſtendom be ſo; for they all ſtand obliged to the Laws Chriſtian, and we ask no more; for to this Pillar is our Government fixt; Our Kings at their Coronation taking a Sacred Oath to ſecure us.

‘I am ſorry theſe men take no more care to gain our belief of thoſe things which they tell us for our ſouls health, while we know them ſo manifeſtly in the wrong in that which concerns the liberties and priviledges of the Subjects of England: but they gain preferment, and then 'tis no matter though they neither believe themſelves, nor are believed by others: but ſince they are ſo ready to let looſe the Conſciences of their Kings, we are the more carefully to provide for our protection againſt this Pulpit-Law, by declaring and reinforcing the municipal Laws of this Kingdom. It is worthy the obſerving how new this opinion, or rather this way 'of riſing is, even amongſt themſelves; for Mr. Hooker, who was 'no refractory man (as they term it) thinks, that the firſt Government was arbitrary, until it was found that to live by one mans will, becomes all mens miſeries. Theſe are his words, concluding that 'this was the original of inventing Laws. And if we look further back, 'our Hiſtories will tell us that the Prelates of this Kingdom have often been the mediators between the King and his Subjects, to preſent and pray redreſs of their grievances, and had reciprocally then 'as much love and reverence from the People, but theſe Preachers '(more active than their Predeceſſors and wiſer than the Laws) 'have found out a better form of Government.

'The King muſt be a more abſolute Monarch than any of his Predeceſſors, and to them he muſt owe it, though in the mean time 'they hazard the hearts of his People, and involve him into a thouſand difficulties: for ſuppoſe this form of Government were inconvenient, (and yet this is but a ſuppoſition, for theſe five hundred 'years it hath not only maintained us in ſafety, but made us Victorious over other Nations:) But ſuppoſe they have another Idea of 'one more convenient; We all know how dangerous Innovations 'are, though to the better; and what hazard thoſe Princes muſt 'run, that enterprize the change of a long eſtabliſht Government? 'Now of all our Kings that have gone before, and of all that are to 'ſucceed in this happy race, why ſhould ſo pious and ſo good a King 'be expoſed to this trouble and hazard? beſides that Kings ſo diverted, can never do any great matter abroad.

'But whileſt theſe men have thus bent their wits againſt the Law 'of their Countrey, whether they have neglected their own Province, and what tares are grown up in the field which they ſhould 'have tilled, I leave it to a ſecond conſideration; not but that Religion ought to be the firſt thing in our purpoſes and deſires, but that 'which is firſt in dignity is not alwayes to precede in order of time: 'For well-being ſuppoſes a being, and the firſt impediment which 'men naturally endeavour to remove, is the want of thoſe things 'without which they cannot ſubſiſt.

'God firſt aſſigned to Adam maintenance of life, and gave him a 'title to the reſt of the Creatures, before he appointed him a Law to 'obſerve. And let me tell you, that if our Adverſaries have any 'ſuch deſign, as there is nothing more eaſie than to impoſe Religion 'on a people deprived of their liberties, ſo there is nothing more 'hard than to do the ſame upon Free-men.

'And therefore Mr. Speaker, I conclude with this motion, that 'there may be an Order preſently made, that the firſt thing this 'Houſe will conſider of, ſhall be the reſtoring of this Nation in general to the fundamental and vital Liberties, the property of our 'goods, and freedom of our perſons; and that then we will forthwith conſider of the Supply deſired.

'And thus ſhall we diſcharge the truſt repoſed in us by thoſe that 'ſent us hither. His Majeſty will ſee that we make more than ordinary haſte to ſatisfie his demands; and we ſhall let all thoſe know 'that ſeek to haſten the matter of Supply, that they will ſo far delay 'it, as they give interruption to the former.

An. 1640.

AFterwards the Houſe proceeded to conſider of Grievances, and a Committee being appointed to conſider of Mr. Smarts petition (who was ſentenced in the High Commiſſion at York) complaining of Dr. Couſins and others, the report was ordered to be made with all expedition.

The Lords deſired a conference with the Commons to meet this afternoon at three of the clock.

A Report was made from the Committee appointed to conſider of the Commiſſion to the Convocation that it was not enrolled nor went forth by order from the Signet or Privy Seal but by an immediate command of his Majeſty, that they found the Dockets of it remaining with the Clerk of the Crown, by which it appears that by this Commiſſion power is given to alter or amend the old conſtitutions and Canons, &c.

Thurſday, April 23.

THurſday April 23. and Friday April 24. was ſpent in the Debate about Grievances and hearing Reports from Committees, whereupon ſeveral votes paſſed which are hereafter particularly mentioned.

Saturday, April 25.

SAturday April 25. The Lords deſired a Conference with the Commons, the Subject-matter whereof the Commons conceived to be of a high nature, and ſo adjourned the debate thereof until Munday following.

Munday, April 27.

MUnday April 27. Mr. Herbert the Queens Solicitor General Reports the matter of the Conference.

‘That it pleaſed his Majeſty to honour the Lords Houſe ſo much as to come thither in perſon, and to make many Gracious expreſſions; and that he put them in mind, of what had been by my Lord Keeper in his Majeſties Name delivered, firſt in the Lords Houſe, and after to both Houſes in the Banquetting-houſe in White-Hall, and then he gave us his Royal Word and aſſurance, that he would not depart from one tittle of that, which in his Majeſties name had been delivered to the Houſe of Commons, but perform it really to the utmoſt.

‘He gave us to underſtand, that the neceſſity of his affairs was ſuch as would bear no delay, and a delay would be as good as a denyal, both in regard of the affairs themſelves, and of the dangers that did attend them, as well as of his honour in Foreign States which ſo much concerned him to uphold, as he held it as dear as his life, and of as great importance to maintain.

‘His Majeſty did think, that in Civility and good Manners, as well as neceſſity, it was fit for him to be truſted firſt.

‘There muſt be a Truſt, and whether it begin with him or you, in the execution the total truſt muſt be in him; the difference is but in point of time; though we truſt him in the beginning, yet it is but in part, he muſt truſt us in all before the end of this Parliament.

‘It is but a preſent ſupply that he expects at this time, to go on with the things in hand, or elſe all the things which hath been told ‘us will be loſt, and that a very little time delayed will make it impoſſible for my Lords and us, to recover the ſame.

‘That the Lords commanded him to tell us of the neceſſity of the affairs, and the urgency of the danger of ſomewhat that is lately come to their knowledge. The War is begun, and the men in Scotland have pitched their Tents at Dunce, and threaten an Invaſion in Northumberland, and have taken ſome of the Troopers of Sr. William Brounkards, ſo as their intention is plain; beſides the letter which may ſhew their purpoſe, to put themſelves into the protection and Defence of Foreign States.

‘The neceſſity is ſuch, that his Majeſty could not transfer the Truſt to us, to begin with us, or otherwiſe he would moſt willingly let you go on in your own courſe, to begin with redreſs of your grievances; but his Majeſties neceſſity requires a preſent ſupply for this purpoſe, after which he will let us go on with our Grievances, and doth promiſe a Princely and Gracious care, and will relieve you therein, as far as in Juſtice and Reaſon you can ask.

‘His Majeſty did expreſs that he holds nothing ſo glorious, as that he is King of a rich and free people, and if he do not ſecure you in your Liberties and property of Eſtate, he cannot account you a rich and free people, and conſequently himſelf not Glorious: And therefore his Majeſty declared, that for thoſe three things Religion, Property of Eſtate, and Priviledges of Parliament, he would graciouſly liſten unto you.

‘For Religion, his heart and his Conſcience doth ſtand with the Religion of the Church of England, and as he hath lived in it, ſo he would dye in it; and no man can be more careful to keep out Innovations than his Majeſty will be; and for that purpoſe he would lay a great charge upon his Archbiſhops and Biſhops, that they ſhould take order accordingly.

‘For Ship-money, his Majeſty declared, it was never in his thoughts, to make the leaſt profit or benefit of it, and that he never did make advantage of it. But contrarily had laid out many thouſand pounds out of his own Treaſury towards that Defence, for which that was intended, as many of the Lords can witneſs.

‘All his Majeſties care and aim was for the preſervation of your ſafety, peace and plenty, and his own honour abroad: That he may Reign among you a great and glorious King, as you ought to deſire he ſhould: Therefore think you of any other way for the guard and preſervation of the Seas, which (conſidering the great Naval preparations abroad) doth ſo much import, that he may be able to maintain a Navy, whereby he may be Moderator and keep Dominion of all the Narrow Seas, without which it is impoſſible for us to ſubſiſt. Keep the Sea which is the way by which God hath enabled his Majeſty to protect and defend us; put it into what way you will, his Majeſty will joyn with us in it.

‘The Lords have taken into conſideration his Majeſties gracious expreſſion; we have the Word of a King, and as ſome of the Lords were pleaſed to ſay, not only of a King but a Gentleman, and they would no more be guilty of diſtruſting him, than they would be of the higheſt undutifulneſs towards him.

‘And upon all theſe conſiderations, though my Lords would not meddle with matters of Subſidy, which belong properly and na-

'turally to you, no not to give advice therein, but have utterly declined it; yet being members of one body, Subjects of the ſame King, and all concerned in the common ſafety, their duty to his Majeſty, and in their zeal and natural love to their Countrey, themſelves and their Poſterity, they have declared by Vote, that they hold it moſt neceſſary and fit that the matter of ſupply ſhould have the precedence before any other matter or conſideration whatſoever, and therefore deſired a Conference with you, to let you know their reaſons for the ſame.

'This taken into conſideration, and done by you, truſting in his Majeſties promiſe, (which they hold the greateſt obligation upon him and the greateſt ſecurity to your ſelves) they will freely joyn with you in all that concerns matter of Religion, property of Eſtate, and Priviledge of Parliament. This courſe being followed, their Lordſhips are of opinion we ſhall have a moſt happy and bleſſed Parliament.

'1. Upon this Report, after long debate, It was Reſolved upon the Queſtion, That the Priviledges of the Houſe of Commons are violated by the matters propounded by the Lords at the laſt Conference.

'2. Reſolved that the Lords propounding a ſupply, is a breach of Priviledge. And it being referred to a Committee, to prepare heads for a Conference to be had with the Lords concerning that matter, they were agreed on to this effect:

'That a meſſage be ſent to the Lords, wherein the Houſe deſires a Conference with their Lordſhips upon the ſubject matter of the Conference on Saturday laſt, which they conceive doth intrench upon the Priviledges of the Commons Houſe.

'That at the Conference it being admitted by their Lordſhips, that matters of ſubſidy naturally and properly belong to this Houſe, and that their Lordſhips would not meddle therewith, or give advice therein, but had declined it; the Committee therefore conceives, that this Houſe ſhall not need to labour therein, or to think of Preſidents or reaſons, for the maintaining of this Priviledge.

'That notwithſtanding this Declaration, their Lordſhips meddled with, and adviſed concerning both the matter of ſupply and the time when, and that before ſuch time as the ſame was moved to them by the Commons. It appears by their Lordſhips Declaration (viz.) that they had Voted, That they held it moſt neceſſary and fit the matter of ſupply ſhould have the Precedence before any other matter or conſideration whatſoever; and therefore deſired that Conference with the Commons to let them know their Lordſhips reaſons; and that being taken into conſideration and done by the Commons, their Lordſhips would freely joyn with them in all that concerns matter of Religion, property of Eſtate, and priviledge of Parliament.

'The courſe the Committee doth offer, for repair of this breach of Priviledge is, That their Lordſhips be deſired in their wiſdom to find out ſome way of Reparation of their Priviledges for the preſent, and of prevention of the like infringement for the future.

'And whereas the Committee was induced to conceive, that their Lordſhips had been informed that the Commons upon debate thereof had taken into conſideration the matter of Religion, property of Eſtate, and Priviledges of Parliament, and that they mean to let the ſame have the precedency before the ſupply, they humbly offer that the ſame may be preſented to their Lordſhips in words to this effect.

'That in caſe their Lordſhips have taken notice of any Orders, or proceedings of the Commons concerning matters of Religion, property of Eſtate and Priviledge of Parliament, that they were to have precedency before the ſupply, which they ſeem to conceive by theſe words, That this being done, then their Lordſhips will freely joyn to the avoiding of all miſ-underſtanding between their Lordſhips and the Commons for time to come: They deſire their Lordſhips to take no notice of any things which ſhall be debated by the Commons, until they ſhall themſelves declare the ſame to their Lordſhips, which the Commons will alwayes obſerve towards the proceedings of their Lordſhips.

After long debate upon this Report, the Houſe did agree with the Committee, and Reſolved,

'That the Lords Voting the propounding and declaring matter of ſupply in ſuch ſort, as was contained in this Report, before it was moved from the Houſe of Commons, was a breach of the Priviledge of the ſaid Houſe. And the Commons at a Conference with the Lords (which enſued upon this occaſion) deſired their Lordſhips in their wiſdom, to find out ſome way for the reparation of their Priviledges broken by the matter delivered at the laſt Conference, and to prevent the like Infringement for the future, and that the Lords would not take notice of any thing which ſhall be debated by the Commons, until they ſhall themſelves declare the ſame to their Lordſhips, which the Commons ſhall alwayes obſerve to their Lordſhips proceedings.

And the manager of the Conference much enlarged himſelf upon the ſubject matter contained in the ſaid Report from the Committee, which we here omit, being repeated and anſwered by the Lords at another Conference which was afterwards had upon this occaſion at the deſire of the Lords.

Tueſday,
April 28.

T*Veſday* the 28th. of April. The Commons upon further Debate reſolved on theſe particulars following, as heads for a Conference to be had with the Lords.

'Firſt, concerning Innovation in matters of Religion. Secondly, Liberty and Property. Thirdly, Priviledge of Parliament.

'Firſt, As to Innovation in matters of Religion: that in this Conference with the Lords, there ſhall be a Proteſtation and ſaving made to preſerve and keep entire the Right of the Commons not to be bound by any Canons that are or ſhould be made upon any Commiſſion granted to the Convocation without their conſent in Parliament; and that there be alſo repreſented to the Lords, the Com'plaints ariſing from the ſeveral Petitions brought in by the ſeveral Members of the Houſe from divers Counties, againſt Innovations in matters of Religion.

'The Complaints which have been made to this houſe for publiſhing of Popiſh Tenets contrary to the Doctrine of the Church of England in Licenced Books, Arguments and Diſputations.

'The removing of Communion Tables in Pariſh Churches and Chapels in the Univerſities, and placing them Altar-wiſe at the Eaſt end of the ſame Churches and Chapels cloſe to the Wall.

'The ſetting up of Croſſes, Images, and Crucifixes in Cathedrals and Parochial Churches and Chapels in both the Univerſities, and in divers other places in this Kingdom.

'The refuſing to adminiſter the Sacrament to ſuch, as will not come up to the Rails before the Communion Table being ſet Altar wiſe, and Excommunicating ſome for not doing it.

'The making and enjoyning of Articles at Viſitations without any other Authority, than that of the Biſhop's of the Dioceſs.

The frequent Impriſonments and Vexations, for non-payment of unwarrantable Taxes, and for not ſubmitting to unlawful Monopolies.

'Thirdly, As to the Liberty and Priviledge of Parliament, Reſolved, That one head ſhall be the Complaints that have been made touching the puniſhing of men out of Parliament for things done in Parliament, in breach of the Priviledges of Parliament.

In Purſuance of theſe Votes, a Conference was accordingly had with the Lords on Wedneſday April 29.

THe firſt part of which Conference concerning Innovations in matters of Religion, was managed by Mr. Pym; the ſecond part as to Property of Goods and againſt Monopolies and Projects, was managed by Mr. St. John; and the third part of the Conference as to the Liberty and Priviledge of Parliament, was managed by Mr. Holborn, which held the Lords a long time in hearing.

AFterwards was read in the Houſe,
An Act concerning the Hearing of the Word of God.
An Act for Reformation of Abuſes in Elections.
An Act concerning Diſpoſing of Money for Commutation of Penance.
An Act concerning the granting of Letters of Adminiſtration, &c.

Thurſday, April 30.

T*Hurſday, April* 30. the Houſe was turned into Grand Committee concerning Ship-money, upon a Report made of that buſineſs by Mr. Maynard: and the Records where the Judges opinions were entered, were ordered to be ſent for.

In the midſt of this Debate, the Lords ſent to the Commons for a Conference, concerning the ſubject of the former Conference; The Houſe was divided, whether to yield to a preſent Conference or no: The greater part ſeeming to be unwilling to be diverted from the Debate of the Grand Buſineſs of Ship-money then under conſideration.

405. Members then preſent in the Houſe.

It was a full Houſe; for upon the Diviſion, there were for a preſent Conference 148. and againſt it 257. the Number in all being 405 Members.

This Diviſion of the Houſe fully diſcovered the temper thereof; for they that were againſt the preſent Conference were for Redreſs of Grievances forthwith, and to poſtpone ſupply. But this Dayes Debate produced no Reſolution.

Friday, May 1.

F*Riday, May* 1. the Commons gave the Lords a meeting at a Conference, as was deſired the day before: the matter of the Conference was thus delivered by the Lord Keeper.

The Lord Keeper's Speech.

‘MY Lords have commanded me to let you know, that the deſire and care on your part at the laſt Conference, repreſented unto them for preſerving a good Union and Correſpondence between their Lordſhips and you, is by them entertained with all reſpect, and requited with all good affection; as that which is the beſt way to bring our Conſultations and Reſolutions to an happy iſſue, to give his Majeſty a dutiful account of our zeal and forwardneſs in thoſe great and weighty affairs, for which we were aſſembled; and to further thoſe United Proceedings that may tend to the happineſs of this Kingdom, and the contentment of both Houſes.

‘Their Lordſhips well know the great priviledges belonging to both Houſes of Parliament, of which they and you alike participate: and they are not ignorant of thoſe that are diſtinctly proper ‘to each Houſe; what belongs to you of the Houſe of Commons they never had thought to impeach or diminiſh in the leaſt kind; and what they may juſtly challenge to themſelves, they preſume you will not attempt upon, ſince you cannot doubt but they will be as tender of their Honour in the preſervation and upholding of their own, as they are and ſhall be careful not to invade or violate any of yours.

‘This (their Lordſhips commanded me to tell you) will beſt and moſt clearly appear, by the Courſe hath been held in their own Houſe, and by their proceedings with you.

‘Their Lordſhips (as in Duty and affection to his Majeſties Crown and Government they are bound) took into ſerious Conſideration, the great and weighty motives of his Majeſties calling us together at this time, the great Evils and Calamities that hang over our Heads, and the apparent danger this Kingdom is like to run into, if by ſpeedy and fitting ſupply his Majeſty be not enabled to prevent it.

‘Theſe with Reaſons inforcing, how unſupportable Delay and Protraction was, and how impoſſible it is for both Houſes to recover the loſs of time, in a matter of ſo urging and preſſing Conſequence, whereby his Majeſties Command delivered to their Lordſhips and you both in the Lords Houſe and in the Banquetting Houſe at White-Hall, his Majeſty being preſent;

‘His Majeſty I ſay at both thoſe times, expreſſed his gracious and Princely deſire to do all that from a juſt and a gracious King might be expected, whereby this Parliament might have an happy and bleſſed concluſion, to bring Joy and Conſolation to his Majeſty and all his ſubjects. He told you, that all your juſt Grievances ſhould be graciouſly heard and relieved; that he would therein let you be at no loſs of time.

‘Their Lordſhips were Witneſſes, that his Majeſty gave his Royal Word herein, and for their parts lodge it in their hearts with as much truſt and confidence of his Majeſties Royal performance, as ever ſubjects did.

‘Not long after, his Majeſty was pleaſed to honour the Lords Houſe with his preſence again, to renew their Remembrance of all that before had been delivered to both Houſes, both for the neceſſity of the Supply deſired, with an impoſſibility of admitting delay, and the clearneſs of his Majeſties intention and reſolutions to give all juſt ſatisfaction, to what with reaſon could be deſired of him.

‘His Majeſty then took notice to their Lordſhips of ſomewhat that had been Voted in your Houſe concerning Religion, Property of Goods, and Liberty of Parliament, whereby his Majeſty conceived the matter of his Supplies ſet aſide, which he had ſo often and with ſuch weight of Reaſon deſired might have precedence, after very gracious aſſurances to their Lordſhips of his Majeſties conſtant affection and zeal for the true Religion, for preventing all Innovation therein, of his ſo often iterated promiſe to give a gracious Ear and juſt Relief to all your juſt Grievances, expreſſing his Royal Intentions in that of Ship-money, which he found ſo much ſtood upon. He was pleaſed to deſire their Lordſhips, (as perſons in their Ranks and Degrees neareſt to him in Honour, as much and more concerned than others, and in the ſafety and proſperity of his Kingdom, at leaſt equally intereſſed with the reſt of his ſubjects) in a caſe of this great and important weight.

‘They would by their counſel and perſwaſion, incline you of the Houſe of Commons to give his Majeſty a ſpeedy anſwer and reſolution in the matter of ſupply.

‘It was urged in your name, that the Voting of this was a breach of your priviledge, and that therein their Lordſhips had been tranſported beyond their grounds, which they had ſet to themſelves: becauſe in their former Conference their Lordſhips had admitted, that matter of ſupply ought to be given in the Houſe of Commons, as naturally belonging to that Houſe, and wherein their Lordſhips would not meddle, no not ſo much as to give advice: And yet by Voting what they did, had not only medled in matter of ſupply, but as far as in their Lordſhips lay, had concluded both of matter and order of proceeding, for which you demanded Reparation from their Lordſhips: Wherein I'm commanded by their Lordſhips to let you know, that they have neither varied nor been tranſported from their own grounds, nor Voted any thing contrary to your rights and priviledges, or to that admitting of them at that Conference, which is pretended. For their Lordſhips did and I do admit, that the Bill of Subſidies ought to have its Inception and beginning in your Houſe, that when it comes up to their Lordſhips, and is by them agreed unto, it muſt be returned back to you, and be by your Speaker preſented.

‘And therefore as they do diſclaim any thought or Intention of ſuch beginning in their Houſe, ſo they did at their Debate and Conference with you, diſclaim to meddle with the matter of Subſidies or Supplies; that is by naming the Time or Number, or any ſuch Circumſtances incident to the Bill, which ought to begin with you, or therein to give you any the leaſt advice, but to confer and talk with you about Supplies in general.

‘Their advice therein they do not, nor ever did hold derogatory to yours, or exceeding the priviledges of their own Houſe: for as you frequently impart your Grievances to them, ſo it's all the reaſon in the world they ſhould communicate their fears and foreſights of Dangers to you, their Lordſhips being a Body that moveth in an Orb nearer unto the Royal Throne than you do, and thereby the likelier to communicate in the Counſels and Secrets of

‘State, and for their Perſons and Fortunes, at leaſt as conſiderable in point of Danger.

‘Their Lordſhips are not unacquainted with that Eſtabliſhment in Parliament, which was by you at the Conference ſtyled, The Indempnity of the Commons: but it is indeed the Indempnity of the Lords and Commons, and ſo ſtyled in the Record it ſelf, by that Record made at Gloceſter 9 H. 4.

‘It appears there was a Conference between the Lords and Commons, about the State of the Realm and Defence of it, after which the King demanded of the Lords, What Aid was fit to be granted? they ſaid a Tenth and an half in Cities and Boroughs, and one Fifth and a half of others, and a Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage for two years.

‘Upon which, the King ſent to the Commons to ſend up to him and the Lords, twelve of their company; when they came, it was by the Kings Command declared, what had been of the King demanded of the Lords, and what the Lords anſwer thereunto was (which the King willed them to report to their Companions, that they might with better ſpeed conform themſelves to the intention of the Lords.)

‘This indeed the Commons were troubled at, as being a great Derogation to their Liberties; whereupon to prevent for the future any thing that might turn to the prejudice of their Liberty, or againſt the Liberty of the Lords, It was eſtabliſhed, That it ſhould alwayes be lawful for the Lords to commune among themſelves in the Kings abſence of the State of the Realm, and the Remedies needful; and ſo for the Commons among themſelves. Provided alwayes, that neither the Lords or Commons report to the King any things granted by the Commons and aſſented to by the Lords, nor the Communication of it, before the Lords and Commons be agreed, and then be repreſented (as the manner is) by the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons.

‘This is the ſubſtance of that Eſtabliſhment, which only hath relation to the manner of preſenting Subſidies and Aids to the King, and giving him knowledge of them. And as it hath not one word that barrs the Lords and Commons from conferring about them; ſo it plainly declares, that Lords and Commons in their ſeveral houſes, may equally treat amongſt themſelves of the Dangers the Kingdom is in, and of the way to remedy them: and this my Lords have well weighed, and are ſatisfied verifies their proceedings to have been according to antient uſage and cuſtome, as they are grounded upon juſt and weighty reaſons.

‘Many other Reaſons their Lordſhips have, to juſtifie their proceedings in this particular: but they conceive this Record alone mentioned by your ſelf, will give you herein abundant ſatisfaction, and plainly ſhew, that the Houſe of Commons had no cauſe to demand Reparation herein from their Lordſhips.

‘A ſecond thing objected, wherein their Lordſhips have been ſaid to have broke another great priviledge of the Houſe of Commons eſtabliſhed by that Ordinance which I have mentioned before, is, that their Lordſhips have taken notice of ſome proceedings in the Houſe of Commons, concerning three particulars, viz. Religion, Propriety of Goods, and Priviledge of Parliament. To which their Lordſhips have commanded me to give you this juſt and honourable anſwer.

'His Majeſty told their Lordſhips you had reſolved ſomething 'concerning theſe three heads, and by that way of proceeding pre-'ferred the grievances before the matter of ſupply. How his Majeſty 'knew that you had ſo reſolved, belongs not to their Lordſhips to en-'quire into, their Lordſhips not meddling with any thing that others 'ſaid to the King. But withal his Majeſty ſaid to their Lordſhips, 'and for their Lordſhips to hear what his Majeſty declared to them, and 'for them thereupon to report the ſame to the Houſe of Commons, 'their Lordſhips are ſo far from holding it any diminution, or vi-'olation of your priviledges, that on the contrary in Duty to his Ma-'jeſty they could do no other, and the communicating it to you in 'that manner, they think rather merits your opinion and belief of 'their affections to you, and deſire of Correſpondence with you, 'than any other miſconſtruction whatſoever.

'And that which you called the Indempnity of the Commons, hath 'no word in it that can be conſtrued to make that any breach of your 'priviledge; and therefore their Lordſhips having thus cleared and 'juſtified their own proceedings, and freed themſelves from any Im-'putation of invading your Liberties, they cannot but return to their 'firſt grounds and reſolution, which were in all fair and affectionate 'manner, to ſtir up in you the juſt conſideration of thoſe great and 'eminent dangers that threaten this Kingdom at this time, and how 'dangerous and irrecoverable delay is. And withal to diſpoſe you 'to take into your firſt and beſt thoughts the matter of his Majeſties 'Supply, and give him a ſpeedy anſwer therein.

'This their Lordſhips are confident, will be the means to preſerve 'and continue a good union and underſtanding between their Lord-'ſhips and you, to make this a happy Parliament, and to avert the 'publick calamities, that menace the ruine and overthrow of this fa-'mous and renowned Monarchy.

Saturday May 2. Sir Henry Vane Treaſurer of the Kings Houſhold delivered this meſſage from the King.

Saturday, May 2.

That his Majeſty hath by divers and ſundry wayes acquainted the Houſe with the urgent danger, inevitably to fall upon the whole State, upon his own honour, and the honour of the Nation if more time ſhall be loſt.

That neverthelеſs his Majeſty hath received no anſwer at all, though heretofore his Majeſty had told the Houſe that a Delay in this caſe is as deſtructive as a Denyal; and doth again deſire them to give him a preſent anſwer concerning his ſupply, his Majeſty being ſtill reſolved on his part, to make good his promiſe made by himſelf and the Lord Keeper.

Upon the delivery of this Meſſage, the Houſe of Commons immediately turned themſelves into a Grand Committee to take the ſame into conſideration, which held debate till almoſt ſix at night, but came to no reſolution, William Lenthall Eſq; being in the Chair.

Likewiſe the Houſe of Commons continued the Debate in a Grand Committee, Whether Supply or Grievances ſhould have precedency? but after the whole day was ſpent in Debate, came to no reſolution.

An. 1640.

May 4. Sir Henry Vane delivered a ſecond Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons in theſe words.

Monday, May 4.

Whereas, upon Saturday laſt his Majeſty was pleaſed to ſend a Meſſage to this Houſe, deſiring you to give a preſent anſwer concerning his Supply, to which as yet his Majeſty hath had no other anſwer, but that upon this day you will again take it into further conſideration: Therefore his Majeſty (the better to facilitate your Reſolutions*) this day hath thought fit to let you know, that of his* Grace and favour he is pleaſed, upon your granting twelve Subſidies to be preſently paſſed and to be paid in three years, with a proviſo, that it ſhall not determine the Seſſions, his Majeſty will not only for the preſent forbear the levying of any Ship Money, but will give way to the utter aboliſhing of it, by any courſe that your ſelves ſhall like beſt.

And for your Grievances, his Majeſty will (according to his Royal promiſe) give you as much time as may be now, and the next Michaelmas; and he expects a preſent and poſitive anſwer upon which he may rely, his affairs being in ſuch a condition as can endure no longer delay.

The Houſe was turned again into a Grand Committee, and ſpent the whole day till ſix at night in debate of this meſſage, but came to no reſolution, and deſired Sir Henry Vane to acquaint his Majeſty that they intended the next day to proceed in the further conſideration thereof.

Tueſday, May 5.

T*ueſday* the fifth of May, Secretary Windebanke went early to Mr. Speaker at his houſe in Chancery Lane, and had a command to bring the Speaker to White-Hall. The Commons met at the uſual hour, and the Speaker not coming according to his wonted cuſtom, the members concluded the Houſe ſhould be diſſolved, and while they were diſcourſing with one another, about eleven of the Clock James Maxwel Gentleman Uſher came with the black rod, to let the Commons know his Majeſty was in the Houſe of Lords, and expected their coming thither. When they were come his Majeſty thus ſpake.

The Kings Speech.

My Lords,

There can no occaſion of my coming to this Houſe be ſo unpleaſing unto me as this at this time. The fear of doing that which I am to do this day, made me not long ſince come into this Houſe, where I expreſt as well my fears as the remedy which I thought neceſſary for the eſchewing of what is to follow.

I muſt confeſs and acknowledge that you my Lords of the higher houſe did give me ſo willing an ear, and with ſuch an affection did ſhew your ſelves, that certainly I may ſay, that if there had been any means to have given an happy end to this Parliament, you took it, ſo that it was neither your Lordſhips fault nor mine, that it is not ſo. Therefore in the firſt place I muſt thank you my Lords for your good endeavours.

My Lords, I hope you remember what the firſt day of the Parliament my Lord Keeper ſaid to you in my name, and what likewiſe he ſaid in the Banquetting Houſe in White-Hall, and what lately I ſaid unto you in this place my ſelf. I name all this unto you, not doubting that you do not well remember it, but to ſhew you that I never ſaid any thing in way of Favour to my people, but (by the Grace of God*) I will punctually and really perform it.*

I know that they have inſiſted very much on Grievances; I will not ſay but there may be ſome, though I will confidently affirm, that there are not by many degrees ſo many as the publick voice doth make them. Wherefore I deſire you to take notice, now eſpecially at this time, that out of Parliament I ſhall be as ready (if not more willing) to hear and redreſs any juſt Grievances, as in Parliament.

There is one thing much ſpoken of, I mean as to matters of Religion. Concerning which, albeit I expreſſed my ſelf fully the laſt day in this place, yet I think it fit again on this occaſion to tell you, that as I am concerned, ſo I ſhall be moſt careful to preſerve that purity of Religion which I thank God is ſo well eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, and that as well out of, as in Parliament.

My Lords, I ſhall not trouble you long with words, it being not my faſhion; wherefore to conclude, what I offered the laſt day to the Houſe of Commons, I think it is very well known to you all; as likewiſe how they accepted it, which I deſire not to remember, but wiſh they had remembred, how at firſt they were told by my Lord Keeper, that delay was the worſt kind of denyal; yet I will not lay this fault on the whole Houſe of Commons; I will not judge ſo uncharitably of thoſe whom for the moſt part I take to be Loyal and well-affected Subjects, but it hath been the malicious cunning of ſome few ſeditiouſly affected men that hath been the cauſe of this miſunderſtanding.

I ſhall now end as I have begun, in giving you thanks for your affections ſhewn to me at this time, deſiring you to go on and aſſiſt me in the maintaining of that Regal power that is truly mine. As for the liberty of the people, that they now ſo much ſtartle at; know my Lords, that no King in the world ſhall be more careful in the propriety of their Goods, liberty of their Perſons, and true Religion, than I ſhall.

And now my Lord Keeper do as I have commanded you.

The Lord Keeper then added,

'MY Lords, and you the Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,
'The Kings Majeſty doth diſſolve this Parliament.

Soon after his Majeſty cauſed the aforeſaid proceedings to be comprized in a Treatiſe, and publiſhed in his name by way of Declaration.

His Majeſties Declaration to all his loving Subjects, of the Cauſes which moved him to diſſolve the laſt Parliament.

THE King's moſt Excellent Majeſty well knoweth, that the calling, adjourning, proroguing and diſſolving of Parliaments, are undoubted prerogatives inſeparably annexed to his Imperial Crown; of which he is not bound to render any account, but to God alone, no more than of his other Regal Actions,

Nevertheleſs his Majeſty (whoſe Piety and Goodneſs have made him ever ſo order and govern all things) that the clearneſs and candor of his Royal Heart may appear to all his Subjects, eſpecially in thoſe great and publick matters of State, that have relation to the Weale and Safety of his People, and the Honour of his Royal Perſon and Government, hath thought fit (for avoiding and preventing all ſiniſter constructions and miſ-interpretation, which the malice of ſome ill-affected perſons to his Crown and Soveraignty, hath or may practiſe to infuſe into the minds and Ears of his good and faithful Subjects,) to ſet down by way of Declaration, the true cauſes as well of his aſſembling as of his diſſolving the late Parliament.

It is not unknown to moſt of his Majeſties loving Subjects, what Diſcouragements he hath formerly had, by the undutiful and ſeditious carriage of divers of the lower Houſe in preceding Aſſemblies of Parliaments, enough to have made him averſe to thoſe ancient and accuſtomed wayes of calling his People together; when inſtead of dutiful expreſſions towards his Perſon and Government, they vented their own malice and diſaffections to the State, and by their ſubtil and malignant courſes endeavoured nothing more than to bring into contempt and diſorder all Government and Magiſtracy.

Yet his Majeſty well conſidering that but few were guilty of that ſeditious and undutiful behaviour, and hoping that time and Experience had made his loving Subjects ſenſible of the diſtemper the whole Kingdom was like to be put into by the ill-governed actions of thoſe men; And his Majeſty being over-deſirous to tread in the ſteps of his moſt noble progenitors, was pleaſed to iſſue forth his Writs under the Great Seal of England for a Parliament, to be holden the 13th day of April laſt. At which day his Majeſty by the Lord Keeper of his Great Seal, was graciouſly pleaſed to let both Houſes of Parliament know how deſirous he was, That all his People would unite their hearts and affections in the execution of thoſe Counſels that might tend to the Honour of his Majeſty, the ſafety of his Kingdoms, and the good and preſervation of all his People. And withal how confident he was that they would not be failing in their Duties and Affections to him and to the publick.

He laid open to them the manifeſt and apparent miſchiefs threatned to this and all his other Kingdoms, by the mutinous and rebellious behaviour of divers of the Scottiſh Nation, who had by their Examples drawn many of his Subjects there into a courſe of Diſloyalty and Diſobedience, not fit for his Majeſty in Honour, ſafety, or Wiſdom to endure.

How (to ſtrengthen themſelves in their diſloyal Courſes) they had addreſt themſelves to Foraign States, and treated with them to deliver themſelves up to their protection and Defence, as was made apparent under the hands of the Prime Ringleaders of that Rebellious faction.

Theſe courſes of theirs tending ſo much to the ruine and overthrow of this Famous Monarchy, united by the deſcent of the Crown of England upon his Majeſty and his Father of bleſſed memory: His Majeſty (in his great wiſdom, and in diſcharge of the Truſt repoſed in him by God, and by the Fundamental Laws of both Kingdoms, for the Protection and Government of them) reſolved to ſuppreſs, and thereby to vindicate that Soveraign power intruſted to him.

He had by the laſt Summers tryal found that his Grace and Goodneſs was abuſed, and that contrary to his expectation, and their faithful promiſes they had (ſince his being at Berwick, and the pacification there made) purſued their former rebellious deſigns: And therefore it was neceſſary now for his Majeſty by power to reduce them, to the juſt and modeſt condition of their obedience and ſubjection, which when ever they ſhould be brought unto, or ſeeing their own Errours ſhould put themſelves into a way of humility and obedience becoming them, his Majeſty ſhould need no other Mediator for Clemency and mercy to them, than his own piety and goodneſs, and the tender affection he hath ever born to that his native Kingdom.

This being of ſo great weight and conſequence to the whole Kingdom, and the charge of an Army fit to maſter ſuch a buſineſs amounting to ſuch a ſumm as his Majeſty hath no means to raiſe, having not only emptied his own Coffers, but iſſued between three and four thouſand pounds which he borrowed of his Servants upon ſecurity out of his own Eſtate, to provide ſuch things as were neceſſary to begin ſuch an Action with; his Majeſty after the example of his Predeceſſors, reſorted to his People in their repreſentative Body the Parliament, whom he deſired (with all the Expreſſions of grace and goodneſs which could poſſibly come from him) that taking into ſerious and dutiful conſideration the nature of theſe bleeding Evils, and how dangerous it was to loſe the leaſt minute of time, leſt thereby thoſe of Scotland ſhould gain the opportunity to frame their parties with Foraign States; that they would for a while lay aſide all other Debates, and paſs an Act for the ſpeedy payment of ſo many

An. 1640. many Subſidies, as might enable his Majeſty to put in readineſs for this Summers Expedition thoſe things which were to be prepared before ſo great an Army could be brought into the field.

For further Supply neceſſary for ſo great an undertaking his Majeſty Declared, that he expected it not till there might be a happy concluſion of that Seſſion, and till their juſt grievances might be firſt graciouſly heard and relieved.

Wherein as his Majeſty would moſt willingly have given them the precedence before matter of Supply, if the great neceſſity of his occaſions could have permitted; ſo he was graciouſly pleaſed for their full aſſurance and ſatisfaction therein to give them his Royal Word, that without determining the Seſſion (upon granting of the Subſidies) he would give them before they parted as much time as the ſeaſon of the year and the great affairs in hand would permit, for conſidering all ſuch Petitions as they conceived to be good for the Common-Wealth, and what they would not now finiſh, they ſhould have full time to perfect towards Winter: His Majeſty graciouſly aſſuring them, that He would go along with them for their Advantage, through all the expreſſions of a gracious and pious King, to the end there might be ſuch a happy concluſion of that as might be the cauſe of many more meetings with them in Parliament.

From their firſt Aſſembling until the 21*th* of April, the Houſe of Commons did nothing that could give his Majeſty any content or confidence in their ſpeedy ſupplying of him: Whereupon he commanded both the Houſes to attend him in the Banquetting Houſe at White-Hall in the afternoon of that 21*th* of April, where (by the Lord Keeper) his Majeſty put them in mind of the end for which they were Aſſembled, which was for his Majeſties Supplies; That if it were not ſpeedy it would be of no uſe unto him, part of the Army then marching at the Charge of above a hundred thouſand pounds a moneth; which would all be loſt if his Majeſty were not preſently ſupplyed, ſo as it was not poſſible to be longer forborn.

Yet his Majeſty then expreſt that the ſupply he for the preſent deſired was only to enable him to go on with his Deſigns for three or four months, and that he expected no further ſupply till all their juſt grievances were relieved.

And becauſe his Majeſty had taken notice of ſome miſ-apprehenſions about the leavying of Ship-Money, his Majeſty commanded the Lord Keeper to let them know that he never had any intention to make any Revenue of it, nor had ever made any, but that all the money collected had been paid to the Treaſurer of the Navy and by him expended, beſides great ſumms of money every year out of his Majeſties own purſe.

That his Majeſty had once reſolved this year to have leavyed none, but that he was forced to alter his Reſolution, in regard he was of neceſſity to ſend an Army for reducing thoſe of Scotland, during which time it was requiſite the Seas ſhould be well guarded.

And beſides, his Majeſty had knowledge of the great Fleets prepared by all neighbouring Princes this year, and of the inſolencies committed by thoſe of Algiers, with the ſtore of ſhips they had in readineſs.

And therefore though his Majeſty for this preſent year could not forbear it, but expected their concurrence in the leavying of it, yet for the future to give all his Subjects aſſurance, how juſt and Royal his Intentions were, and that all his Aim was, but to live like their King, able to defend himſelf and them; to be uſeful to his Friends, and conſiderable to his Enemies, to maintain the Soveraignty of the Seas, and ſo make the Kingdom flouriſh in Trade and Commerce: he was graciouſly pleaſed to let them know, that the ordinary Revenue now taken by the Crown, could not ſerve the turn: and therefore that it muſt be by Ship-money, or ſome other way, wherein he was willing to leave it to their conſiderations, what better courſe to find out, and to ſettle it how they would (ſo the thing were done) which ſo much imported the honour and ſafety of the Kingdom.

And his Majeſty for his part, would moſt readily and cheerfully grant any thing they could deſire, for ſecuring them in the propriety of their Goods and Eſtates, and in the Liberty of their Perſons. His Majeſty telling them, it was in their power to make this as happy a Parliament as ever was, and to be the cauſe of the Kings delighting to meet with his people, and his people with him.

That there was no ſuch way to effect this, as by putting Obligations of truſt and confidence upon him, which as it was the way of good manners with a King, ſo it was a ſurer and ſafer courſe for themſelves, than any that their own Jealouſies and fears could invent; his Majeſty being a Prince that deſerved their truſt, and could not loſe the honour of it; and a Prince of ſuch a gracious nature, that diſdained his people ſhould overcome him by kindneſs.

He had made this good to ſome other ſubjects of his; and if they followed his Counſel, they ſhould be ſure not to repent it, being the people that were neareſt and deareſt unto him, and ſubjects whom he did and had reaſon to value more, than the ſubjects of any his other Kingdoms.

His Majeſty having thus graciouſly expreſſed himſelf unto them, he expected the Houſe of Commons would have the next day taken into conſideration the matter of ſupply, and laid aſide all other Debates, till that was reſolved of, according to his deſire.

But inſtead of giving an Anſwer therein, ſuch as the preſſing and urgent occaſions required, they fell into Diſcourſes and Debates about their pretended Grievances, and raiſed up ſo many and of ſo ſeveral natures, that in a Parliamentary way they could not but ſpend more time, than his Majeſties great and weighty affairs could poſſibly afford.

His Majeſty foreſeeing in his great Wiſdom, that they were not in the way to make this a happy Parliament (which he ſo much deſired and hoped) that nothing might be wanting on his part, to bring them into the right way, for his honour, the ſafety of the Kingdom, and their own good, he reſolved to deſire the Aſſiſtance of the Lords of the Higher Houſe, as perſons in Rank and Degree neareſt to the Royal Throne, and who having received Honour from him and his Royal Progenitors, he doubted not would for thoſe and many other reaſons, be moved in Honour and Dutiful Affection to his Perſon and Crown, to diſpoſe the Houſe of Commons to expreſs their Duties to his Majeſty, in expediting the matter of Supply for which they were called together, and which required ſo preſent a Diſpatch.

For this purpoſe, his Majeſty in his Royal Perſon came again to the Lords Houſe on Wedneſday the twenty fourth day of April, where himſelf declared to the Lords the cauſe of his coming, which was to put them in mind of what had been by the Lord Keeper in his Name delivered to both the Houſes the firſt day of the Parliament, and after at White-Hall: how contrary to his Expectation, the Houſe of Commons having held conſultation of matter of Religion, Property of Goods, and Liberty of Parliament, and Voted ſome things concerning thoſe three Heads, had thereby given them the precedence before the matter of his Supply. That his neceſſities were ſuch, they could not bear delay; That whatever he had by by the Lord Keeper promiſed, he would perform, if the Houſe of Commons would truſt him.

For Religion, that his Heart and Conſcience went together with the Religion eſtabliſhed in the Church of England: and he would give order to his Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops, that no Innovation in matter of Religion ſhould creep in.

For the Ship-money, that he never made, nor intended to make any profit to himſelf of it, but only to preſerve the Dominion of the Seas; which was ſo neceſſary, that without it the Kingdom could not ſubſiſt. But for the way and means by Ship-money or otherwiſe, he left it to them.

For property of Goods, and Liberty of Parliament, he ever intended his people ſhould enjoy them; holding no King ſo great, as he that was King of a Rich and free people; and if they had not property of Goods and Liberty of Perſons, they would be neither rich, nor free.

That, if the Houſe of Commons would not firſt truſt him, all his affairs would be diſordered and his buſineſs loſt. That though they truſted him in part at firſt, yet before the Parliament ended, he muſt totally truſt them; and in concluſion, they muſt for Execution of all things, wholly truſt him.

Therefore ſince the matter was no more, than who ſhould be firſt truſted; and that the truſt of him firſt, was but a truſt in part, his Majeſty deſired the Lords to take into their conſiderations, his and their own Honour, the Safety and Welfare of this Kingdom, with the great danger it was in, and that they would by their Advice diſpoſe the Houſe of Commons, to give his Supply the precedence before the Grievances.

His Majeſty being departed, the Lords took into ſerious conſideration what his Majeſty had commended to their care, and forthwith laying aſide all other Debates (ſuch was their Lordſhips Dutiful and Affectionate Carriage, they well remembring what had been formerly declared in his Majeſties Name to both Houſes, his Majeſties gracious promiſes and expreſſions then and at this time, with the preſſing and urgent occaſions which ſo much imported the honour of his Majeſty, and the good of this Kingdom) their Lordſhips delivered their Votes in theſe words;

We are of opinion, that the matter of his Majeſties Supply ſhould have precedence and be reſolved of, before any other matter whatſoever. And we think fit, there ſhall be a Conference deſired with the Houſe of Commons, to diſpoſe them thereunto.

Accordingly the next day being Saturday the twenty fifth day of April, a Conference was had in the Painted Chamber by a Committee of both Houſes, where the Lord Keeper (by the Lords Command) told the Houſe of Commons of his Majeſties being the day before in perſon in the Higher Houſe, how graciouſly he had expreſt himſelf in matter of Religion, Property of Goods, and Liberty of Parliament; and that he would therein graciouſly hear and relieve them, and give them what in reaſon could be deſired, with the effect of what elſe had been graciouſly delivered unto them by his Majeſty, as well touching his conſtant zeal and affection to the Religion eſtabliſht in the Church of England, as touching the Ship-money.

Memorand. The Declaration proceeds further on to a great length in repeating the Kings Speech in the Houſe of Peers, and the Votes which the Lords did paſs thereupon in their Houſe, to diſpoſe the Commons to give Supply precedence, and how the Commons did Vote, the proceedings of the Lords to be a breach of their Priviledge, and to demand reparation, and how the Lords meant by their Votes, that it is no breach of Priviledge of the Commons. This Declaration alſo repeateth the two Meſſages which the King ſent by Sr. Henry Vane to the Houſe of Commons, and how they had no effect at all with them.

All which ſaid Paſſages are omitted here, becauſe they are fully ſet down in the Narrative of the Proceedings of this Parliament, which Omiſſion in this place is done to ſave the Reader a double trouble. That which follows in this Declaration after the ſaid Paſſages ſo omitted is in theſe words:

By all the proceedings herein declared, it is evident to all men, how willing and deſirous his Majeſty hath been, to make uſe of the antient and Noble way of Parliaments uſed and inſtituted by his Royal Predeceſſors, for the preſervation and honour of this famous Monarchy: And that on his Majeſties part nothing was wanting, that could be expected from a King whereby this Parliament might have had a happy Concluſion, for the comfort and content of his Majeſties ſubjects, and for the good and ſafety of this Kingdom.

On the contrary it is apparent, how thoſe of the Houſe of Commons, (whoſe ſiniſter and malitious courſes enforced his Majeſty to diſſolve this Parliament) have vitiated and abuſed that antient and noble way of Parliament, perverting the ſame to their own unworthy Ends, and forgetting the true Uſe and Inſtitution of Parliaments.

For whereas, theſe Meetings and Aſſemblies of his Majeſty with the Peers and Commons of this Realm, were in their firſt original, and in the practice of all ſucceeding Ages, ordained and held as pledges and teſtimonies of affection between the King and his people; the King for his part graciouſly hearing and redreſſing ſuch Grievances, as his people in humble and dutiful manner ſhould repreſent unto him; and the ſubjects on their part, (as teſtimonies of their Duty) ſupplying his Majeſty upon all extraordinary occaſions for ſupport of his Honour and Soveraignty, and for preſerving the Kingdom in Glory and Safety:

An. 1640.

Thoſe ill affected Members of the Houſe of Commons, inſtead of an humble and dutiful way of preſenting their Grievances to his Majeſty, have taken upon them to be the Guiders and Directors in all matters that concern his Majeſties Government, both Temporal and Eccleſiaſtical; and (as if Kings were bound to give an account of their Regal Actions, and of their manner of Government to their Subjects aſſembled in Parliament) they have in a very audacious and inſolent way, entred into examination and cenſuring of the preſent Government, traduced his Majeſties Adminiſtration of Juſtice, rendred as much as in them lay, odious to the reſt of his Majeſties Subjects, not only the Officers and Miniſters of State, but even his Majeſties very Government, which hath been ſo juſt and gracious, that never did this, or any other Nation enjoy more bleſſings and happineſs, than hath been by all his Majeſties Subjects enjoyed ever ſince his Majeſties Acceſs to the Crown: nor did this Kingdom ever ſo flouriſh in Trade and Commerce, as at this preſent, or partake of more peace and plenty in all kinds whatſoever.

And whereas, the Ordinary Revenues of the Crown not ſufficing to defray extraordinary charges, it hath ever been the uſage in all Parliaments, to aid and aſſiſt the Kings of this Realm with free and fitting Supply, towards the maintenance of their Wars, and for making good their Royal undertakings; whereby the Kingdom intruſted to their protection, might be held up in Splendour and Greatneſs:

Theſe ill affected perſons of the Houſe of Commons, have been ſo far from treading in the ſteps of their Anceſtors by their Dutiful expreſſions in this kind, that contrarily they have introduced a way of bargaining and contracting with the King; as if nothing ought to be given him by them, but what he ſhould buy and purchaſe of them, either by quitting ſomewhat of his Royal Prerogative, or by diminiſhing and leſſening his Revenues; which courſes of theirs, how repugnant they are to the Duty of ſubjects, how unfit for his Majeſty in honour to permit and ſuffer, and what hazard and diſhonour they ſubject this Kingdom to, all men may eaſily judge, that will but equally and impartially weigh them.

His Majeſty hath been by this means reduced to ſuch ſtraits and extremities, that were not his Care of the Publick Good and Safety the greater, theſe men (as much as in them lyes) would quickly bring ruine and confuſion to the State, and render contemptible this glorious Monarchy.

But this frowardneſs and undutiful behaviour of theirs, cannot leſſen his Majeſties Care of preſerving the Kingdoms entruſted to his Protection and Government, nor his gracious and tender affection to his People, for whoſe good and comfort his Majeſty by Gods gracious aſſiſtance will ſo provide, that all his loving Subjects may ſtill enjoy the happineſs of living under the bleſſed ſhade and protection of his Royal Scepter.

In the mean time, to the end all his Majeſties loving Subjects may know, how graciouſly his Majeſty is inclined to hear and redreſs all the juſt Grievances of his people as well out of Parliament as in Parliament, his Majeſty doth hereby further declare his Royal Will and Pleaſure, that all his loving Subjects who have any juſt cauſe to preſent, or complain of any Grievances or oppreſſions, may freely addreſs themſelves by their humble Petitions to his Sacred Majeſty, who will graciouſly hear their Complaints, and give ſuch fitting Redreſs therein, that all his people ſhall have juſt cauſe to acknowledge his Grace and Goodneſs towards them; and to be fully ſatisfied, that no Perſons or Aſſemblies can more prevail with his Majeſty, than the Piety and Juſtice of his own Royal Nature, and the tender affection he doth and ſhall ever bear to all his people and loving ſubjects.

Lord Brooke, Sr. John Hotham, &c. committed.

THe day following the Diſſolution of the Parliament, ſome Members were impriſoned; the Lord Brooks his Study, Cabinets and Pockets were ſearched for Papers, Henry Bellaſis Knight of the Shire for the County of York and Sr. John Hotham were convented before the Council, and there examined concerning ſome particulars importing the Kings ſervice, whereunto they making (as the Board conceived) no ſatisfactory anſwers, (for they were interrogated concerning paſſages in Parliament, his Majeſty being preſent in Council) were ordered to be Committed to the Fleet: the Order for their Commitment doth follow.

Warrant for the Commitment of Mr. Bellaſis and Sr. John Hotham after the Parliament was diſſolved.

W*Hereas* Henry Bellaſis Eſq;, and Sir John Hotham Knight Baronet, were this day Convented before the Board, and Interrogated concerning ſome particulars importing his Majeſties ſervice: whereunto they did make very undutiful Anſwers (his Majeſty being then preſent in Council) for which it was thought fit and reſolved, that they ſhould ſtand Committed to the Priſon of the Fleet: Theſe are therefore to will and require you to take into your Cuſtody the ſaid Henry Bellaſis and Sr. John Hotham, *and keep them ſafe Priſoners till further order from his Majeſty or this Board. The Council urged, that it was agreeable to the practice and courſe of all others who had ſerved in the like imployment as Chair-men to Committees appointed by that Houſe, and therefore required the ſaid Mr. Crew to deliver ſuch Petitions and Papers as he had ſo received, to the Clerk of the Houſe of Commons, to have them forth-coming when required by a Parliament; and being unwilling to diſcover the Names of Subſcribers to Petitions which complained of Innovations in Religion, and againſt proceedings in the High Commiſſion Court, &c. leaſt they ſhould (the Parliament being now diſſolved) fall into the hands of thoſe who would bring them into trouble about the ſame; whereupon he deſired to be excuſed as to the delivery of them: thereupon it was commanded, that he ſhould be committed Cloſe Priſoner to the Tower, where he continued till near the time of the meeting of another Parliament Novemb. 3. 1640. A Memorial of his Majeſties Declaration to continue the ſitting of the Convocation for the quiet of the Church.

‘ON the ſeventh of May, two dayes after the firſt Diſſolution, his Majeſty ſitting in Council was pleaſed to declare, that he intended according to his gracious Speech delivered at the diſſolution of the late Aſſembly in Parliament, to take into his Princely conſideration all the juſt Grievances there complained, and to remedy ſo many of them, as he ſhould find to be real: and more particularly and in the firſt place, thoſe concerning Religion. And that to this purpoſe, his Majeſty was minded to continue the ſitting of the Convocation Houſe for ſome time, for the better diſcovery and reformation of ſuch abuſes in that kind, as ſhall be found to be juſtly complained of; which his Majeſties pious and gracious Declaration and reſolution their Lordſhips having by his Majeſties command taken into due conſideration, after a ſerious debate they did all of them with one unanimous conſent humbly approve thereof, and commanded that a Memorial of his Majeſties care in continuing of the Convocation for the quiet of the Church, ſhould be entred in the Regiſter of the Acts of Council.

After this time the Convocation ſate till the 29th of May, and then ended.

On the 17th of May, 1640. it was alſo thus ordered by the Privy Council.

Order for the burning of Popiſh Books.

‘Whereas there was lately found in the houſe of one Alexander Lea a Taylor dwelling in Blomesbury a Trunk belonging to one Mary Silveſter, wherein was locked up to the number of 200 Popiſh Books or thereabouts all in Engliſh, viz. Jeſus Pſalters, Invectives and Rhimes againſt Luther and Calvin, Rhemes Teſtaments, Preparative Prayers to the Maſs, Manuels, and other ſuperſtitious Prayer Books and Catechiſms, ſuch as by the Law of this Kingdom ought to be burnt; It was this day ordered, his Majeſty preſent in Council, that all the ſaid Popiſh Books, ſhall be forthwith delivered to the Sheriffs of the City of London who are hereby authoriſed and required to cauſe all the ſaid Books to be brought into Smithfield, and there in the Market place, between ten and eleven of the Clock in the Morning on a Market day laid upon a heap and all publickly burned by the Hangman.

Gentlemen of Lincolns-Inn queſtioned for Drinking a health to the confuſion of the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

After the Diſſolution of this Parliament, and the apprehenſion which the people had, that his Grace of Canterbury was the principal cauſe thereof, occaſioned people of better ſort alſo to be diſſatisfied with his Grace; and it ſo fell out that at a meeting in a Tavern in Chancery Lane, certain Gentlemen of Lincolns-Inne were drinking a health of which a Drawer informed the Archbiſhop that it was a health to his Confuſion, whereupon his Grace procured a Warrant to Keym a Meſſenger to bring before the Board Mr. C. Mr. G. Mr. O. Mr. M. and Mr. T. young Gentlemen of Licolns Inn. And when the ſaid Gentlemen a little before their appearance made their application to the Earl of Dorſet to ſtand their Friend, and to pardon their unadviſedneſs in drinking a raſh health; the Earl askt them, who doth bear witneſs againſt you? they anſwered one of the Drawers; where did he ſtand, ſaid the Earl, when he heard you drink the health? they replyred, he was at the door going out of the Room; Tuſh, ſaid the Earl, the Drawer was miſtaken, you drank a health to the Confuſion of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury's foes, and he heard the firſt part of your words, and was gone before he heard the latter words. This Hint put the Gentlemen upon a new way of excuſe which they thought not of before, but the Earl adviſed them to carry themſelves with all humility and reſpect to the Arch-biſhop when they were called in before the King and his Council; they improved this Advice with as good language as they could; and by the favour of the ſaid Earl and others they only received a reproof and admonition, and ſo were diſmiſt.

AFter the Lords of the Council had Committed ſome Members of Parliament, and ſecured the Archbiſhop of Canterbury his Houſe at Lambeth from Tumults, they then took into Conſideration how to procure moneys for the Kings preſent ſupply; whereupon divers Aldermen were ſent for to the Council Table to give in the Names of ſuch Citizens in London as were able to lend the King money, which they refuſing to do were committed to Priſon, as by the following Orders and Warrants do appear.

Names of perſons in London able to lend money to the King, to be preſented to the Board.

'IT was the   day of May ordered (his Majeſty preſent in Council) That as well the Lord Mayor and all the Aldermen of the City of London, who this day attended his Majeſty (excepting Sir Nicholas Rainton, Alderman Somes, Alderman Geere, and Alderman Atkins) as alſo all the reſt of the Aldermen who were this day abſent, together with the Deputies of the Wards belonging to the ſaid Sir Nicholas Rainton, Alderman Somes, Alderman Geere, and Alderman Atkins, ſhall forthwith meet and ſet down in Writing the names of all ſuch perſons Inhabitants within their ſeveral and reſpective Wards, as they conceive are able to lend his Majeſty (upon ſecurity) in the whole amongſt them all) the ſumm of two hundred thouſand pounds. And that they ſhall every of them reſpectively ſet down particularly, how much every perſon in their Wards is able in their opinions to lend towards the ſaid ſumm of two hundred thouſand pound, and preſent the ſame in Writing to the Council Board, on Friday next at two a Clock in the Afternoon. And the ſaid Lord Mayor and Aldermen may (if they pleaſe) call to them the Deputies of their ſeveral and reſpective Wards to aſſiſt and inform them for their better diſpatch of this buſineſs. And if any of the Aldermen who were abſent or their Deputies of any of the ſaid Wards ſhall refuſe or delay to joyn herein, according to this order: his Majeſties expreſs command is, That the Lord Mayor do forthwith return his or their Names to the Board.

The ſame day this Order following was made.

Sir Nicholas Rainton and other Aldermen of London to be examined and proceeded againſt.

'WHereas Sir Nicholas Raynton Alderman of the City of London, Alderman Geere and Alderman Atkins were heretofore with the reſt of the Aldermen of the ſaid City made acquainted with his Majeſties urgent and preſent occaſions to uſe and imploy the ſumm of two hundred thouſand pounds for the ſafeguard and defence of the Realm, and were required in his Majeſties name to ſet down the names of ſuch perſons within their ſeveral and reſpective Wards, who are in their opinions able to lend his Majeſty moneys towards the ſaid defence, and to ſet down how much they conceive every ſuch perſon is able to lend: And whereas the ſaid Sir Nicholas Rainton, Alderman Geere, and Alderman Atkins being this day convented before the Board, his Majeſty preſent in Council, refuſed to ſet down the names of ſuch perſons within their ſeveral and reſpective Wards, which in their opinions were able to lend his Majeſty money for the ſervice aforeſaid, and how much

An. 1640.

‘they conceive every ſuch perſon is able to lend, (although other Aldermen have therein given his Majeſty ſatisfaction,) for which their contempt they now ſtand Committed by Warrant from this Board: It is ordered that Mr. Attorney General ſhall be hereby prayed and required forthwith to examine all the ſaid Aldermen apart, and having taken all their examinations, to take preſent order for proceeding againſt them for their ſaid contempts, by Information in the Star Chamber or otherwiſe, as he with the advice of others of his Majeſties Learned Council ſhall conceive to conduce moſt to his Majeſties ſervice.

In this Month of May this enſuing Order was made by the Lords of the Privy Council.

Order for a Proclamation to require Deputy Lieutenants, &c. to repair to their dwellings.

‘THeir Lordſhips taking notice, that there are now in and about this Town, divers Deputy Lieutenants and Juſtices of Peace, whereby the preſent ſervices of his Majeſty and the Government of the Countrey are very much neglected; It was therefore this day ordered, that Mr. Attorney General ſhall be hereby prayed and required forthwith to prepare a Bill fit for his Majeſties ſignature, containing a Proclamation requiring and commanding all Deputy Lieutenants, and Juſtices of Peace of Counties, forthwith to repair to their ſeveral and reſpective dwellings in the Countrey, and to reſide and attend there the ſervices of his Majeſty, and af'fairs of their Countrey. Which draught of a Proclamation is forthwith to be drawn up and preſented to be read at the Board.

At the Court at WHITE-HALL, May 20. 1640. His Majeſty preſent, Order appointing a Committee for the Shipping buſineſs.

'UPon conſideration this day had, how much it importeth the ſafety and defence of the Kingdom (in regard of the great preparations that are made of Sea Forces by Neighbouring Princes and States) that all the Ship-money which is in Arrear, ſhould be preſſed to be paid with all poſſible expedition; His Majeſty preſent in Council, did hold fit, that a ſelect Committee of the Board ſhould be appointed for the ſhipping buſineſs; and thereupon was pleaſed to nominate the Lord Keeper, Lord Privy Seal, Lord Chamberlain, Earl of Dorſet, Earl of Salisbury, and the Lord Chief Juſtice Littleton, or any three or more of them, who are by his Majeſties ſpecial command required to meet every Thurſday morning out of Term, and every Thurſday in the afternoon in the Term time, and oftner, as there ſhall be occaſion, to hear and conſider of ſuch Letters, Petitions, Accompts and Papers as ſhall be ſent or preſented concerning that weighty buſineſs, and to give anſwers and diſpatches to ſuch ordinary matters concerning that ſervice as they ſhall think good, and to acquaint his Majeſty and the Board with ſuch others as they ſhall hold to be of more importance and conſideration: and Mr. Nicholas Clerk of the Council is required to attend their Lordſhips at their ſaid meetings, and oftner as their Lordſhips ſhall appoint for diſpatch of ſuch buſineſſes concerning that ſervice, as their Lordſhips ſhall direct.

The ſame day His Majeſty preſent, this Order was made.

For a Provoſt Marſhall, and to be furniſhed with Arms, Saddles, &c.

'UPon conſideration of the many Inſolencies and diſorders lately committed by lewd and baſe people tumultuouſly aſſembled in divers parts in and about the City of London and Liberties, It was this day ordered, his Majeſty preſent in Council, that Captain William Davis (who hath formerly diſcharged with good ſatisfaction the Office of Provoſt Marſhall for the ſaid City and Liberties of London) ſhall be forthwith employed Provoſt Marſhall for the ſaid City and twenty miles compaſs thereabouts. And for his better performance of that Charge, he is to have twelve Horſe Carabins and twelve Foot; of which Foot, ſix are to be armed with half Pikes or Halberds, and ſix with Harquebuſſes. And that for his Sallary, the ſaid Captain ſhall be allowed five ſhillings per diem (being the like pay as is allowed to the Provoſt Marſhall of the Horſe employed in his Majeſties Army) and the twelve Horſe are to have two ſhillings a piece per diem, being the pay of Carabins; and the twelve Foot are to be allowed eight pence per diem; which entertainments or pay are to be made Monthly to the ſaid Captain for himſelf and his ſaid Company by the Treaſurer at War for the 'time being, or his Deputy. And there is further to be forthwith 'paid to the ſaid Captain, by the ſaid Treaſurer, the ſumm of one 'hundred forty and four pounds for preſent Levying of all the ſaid 'twelve Horſe, after the rate of twelve pounds an Horſe. Which 'Horſe are to be furniſhed with Arms, Saddles and Furniture out of 'his Majeſties Magazin of the Tower: And the ſaid Captain is to 'take care, that the ſaid Arms, &c. after the Service ſhall be ended, 'be carefully and entirely reſtored and delivered back into his Maje'ſties ſaid Magazin.

THurſday, May 21. one of the chief of the Tumult being taken, was brought to his Tryal, and Condemned at Southwark; Hanged and Quartered on Saturday Morning following.

The Burgeſſes of Weſtminſter to reſide in Town, and not to depart without leave from his Majeſty or the Board.

'IT was about this time thought fit and ordered, (his Majeſty 'being preſent in Council) that the twelve Burgeſſes and their 'Aſſiſtants of the City of Weſtminſter and Liberties thereof, ſhall for 'the more orderly Government of the ſaid City and Liberties, re'ſide and continue in Town, and none of them to depart without 'leave from his Majeſty or the Board. And they are to be vigilant 'in the Execution of their Offices in their ſeveral Wards, and be 'aiding and aſſiſting to all ſubordinate Officers within their Juriſ'diction upon all occaſions that ſhall ariſe; and eſpecially for the 'preventing and ſuppreſſing of all tumultuous Aſſemblies and Riots 'or other diſorders any way tending to the Breach of the Peace; as 'alſo to take care and provide for the Viſited in this time of Infe'ction. And for ſuch of the particulars aforeſaid, as are contained 'and provided for in the particular Act of Parliament of 27 Eliz. 'made for the better Government of the ſaid City and Liberties. 'Whereof all and every the perſons whom it may concern, are to 'take knowledge, and to govern themſelves accordingly.

M*Ay* 29. the Convocation having ſat from the Diſſolution of the Parliament on the fifth of May laſt till this day, they made in that time ſeventeen Canons: and the Oath therein contained, was as followeth:

The Oath.

'I A. B. do ſwear, That I do approve the Doctrine and Diſcipline or Government eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, as containing all things neceſſary to ſalvation: And that I will not endeavour by my ſelf or any other, directly or indirectly, to bring in any Popiſh Doctrine, contrary to that which is ſo eſtabliſhed: nor will I ever give my conſent to alter the Government of this Church, by Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Deans, and Arch-Deacons, &c. as it ſtands now eſtabliſhed, and as by right it ought to ſtand; nor yet ever to ſubject it to the Uſurpations and Superſtitions of the Sea of Rome. And all theſe things I do plainly and ſincerely acknowledge and ſwear, according to the plain and common ſenſe and underſtanding of the ſame words, without any equivocation, or mental evaſion, or ſecret reſervation whatſoever. And this I do heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the Faith of a Chriſtian. So help me God in Jeſus Chriſt.

The Table of the Canons then made, do follow.

1. COncerning Regal Power.
2. For the better keeping the day of his Majeſties moſt happy Inauguration.
3. For ſuppreſſing the Growth of Popery.
4. Againſt Socinianiſm.

5. Againſt Sectaries.
6. An Oath enjoyned for the preventing of all Innovations in Doctrine and Government.
7. A Declaration concerning ſome Rites and Ceremonies.
8. Of Preaching for Conformity.
9. One Book of Articles of Enquiry to be uſed at all Parochial Viſitations.
10. Concerning the Conſervation of the Clergy.
11. Chancellors Patents.
12. Chancellors alone not to cenſure any of the Clergy in ſundry caſes.
13. Excommunication and Abſolution not to be pronounced, but by a Prieſt.
14. Concerning Commutations, and the diſpoſing of them.
15. Touching concurrent Juriſdictions.
16. Concerning Licences to marry.
17. Againſt Vexatious Citations.

Dr. Goodman Biſhop of Gloceſter refuſeth the Oath, &c.

Which Canons were all Voted Nemine diſſentiente, except Godfrey Goodman Biſhop of Glouceſter, who did not relliſh the ſaid Oath, (notwithſtanding the main vertue and operation thereof was intended for the eſtabliſhing of the Hierarchy); wherefore, for refuſing to ſubſcribe the ſaid Oath, &c. he was ſuſpended: but afterwards he ſubmitted, took the Oath, and was releaſed by the Kings Command; and writ a Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury: of which this which followeth is a Clauſe:

Moſt Reverend, &c. Biſhop Mountague of Norwich did privately encourage me to diſſent (though I confeſs I was little moved with his words; for I never had an opinion of that man) yet in publick to pleaſe your Grace, he preſſed my deprivation, falſly quoting ſome Councils (God forgive him as I do) At that inſtant I could have proved, how that in his perſon he did viſit and held correſpondency with the Popes Agent, and received his Letters in behalf of his Son, who was then travelling to Rome, and by his Letters he had extraordinary entertainment there. This, Biſhop Mountague would aſcribe the credit which he had gotten was by his Writings, which in truth I think are not worth the reading.

His Majeſty confirmed the Canons before mentioned under the Great Seal in manner following.

'WE of our Princely inclination and Royal care for the 'maintenance of the preſent Eſtate and Government of the 'Church of England by the Laws of this our Realm now ſetled and 'eſtabliſhed; having diligently with great contentment and comfort 'read and conſidered of all theſe their ſaid Canons, Orders, Ordi'nances and Conſtitutions agreed upon, as is before expreſſed: and 'finding the ſame ſuch as we are perſwaded will be very profitable,

‘not only to our Clergy, but to the whole Church of this our Kingdom, and to all the true members of it (if they be well obſerved) have therefore for us, our heirs and lawful ſucceſſors, of our eſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion, given, and by theſe preſents do give our Royal aſſent, according to the form of the ſaid Statute or Act of Parliament aforeſaid, to all and every of the ſaid Canons, Orders, Ordinances and Conſtitutions, and to all and every thing in them contained, as they are before written. And furthermore, we do not only by our ſaid Prerogative Royal, and ſupream Authority in Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical, ratifie, confirm and eſtabliſh, by theſe our Letters Patents, the ſaid Canons, Orders, Ordinances and Conſtitutions, and all and every thing in them contained, as is aforeſaid; but do likewiſe propound, publiſh and straitly enjoin and command by our ſaid Authority, and by theſe our Letters Patents, the ſame to be diligently obſerved, executed and equally kept by all our loving ſubjects of this our Kingdom, both within the Povinces of Canterbury and York, in all points wherein they do or may concern every or any of them according to this our will and pleaſure hereby ſignified and expreſſed. May 31. 1640. For levying 4000. Foot for the preſent Expedition into the North.

B*Y his Majeſties Letters dated in* March laſt ſent herewith, you ſhall underſtand his Majeſties pleaſure and intention for the levying of 4000. Foot within the City of London and Liberties, to go in this preſent expedition into the North parts; By which Letters your Lordſhip is referred to us for ſuch inſtructions and directions as ſhall be requiſite for that ſervice; We have therefore thought good hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip to take order in the firſt place, that Coat and Conduct money be levyed for them, ſo as it may not fail to be ready by that time the ſaid men ſhall be raiſed; and that there be an eſpecial care had in the choice of the men, that they be of able bodies, and of years meet for this imployment, and well clothed; but none of the ſaid men are to be taken out of the Trained Bands, which you are ſtill to keep entire: Care is likewiſe to be had, and expreſs order to be given, that the men to be levyed, be all in a readineſs to march away by land by the firſt of July next; and that they be brought by their Conductors to ſuch Rendezvouz as our very good Lord the Earl of Northumberland, Lord General of his Majeſties Army, ſhall direct, there to be delivered to ſuch Captains or Officers, as ſhall be appointed by his Lordſhip to receive them. And for that it will be uncertain, what Conduct money will ſuffice for them, We think fit, that they be allowed eight pence a piece per diem ſterling for fourteen dayes from the time they ſhall be delivered to their Conductors, under whoſe leading they are to march by reaſonable journeys to the place of their ſaid Rendezvouz, which we expect ſhall not be under fifteen miles a day. And we further pray and require your Lordſhip to make choice of fit and able Conductors, and to make a reaſonable allowance, according to the preſidents of former times, having regard to the proportion and number of men they are to conduct; enabling them with ſome aſſiſtance to keep their men from ſtragling and pilfering the Countrey as they go, or from running from their Colours. And your Lordſhip is further to take care that they be commodiouſly provided of Coats. All which money to be employed for the Coating and Conducting of the Soldiers, and pay of the Conductors, you are to take order that the ſame be levied in the City and Liberties, according to the preſidents of former times upon other like occaſions of ſervice. And it is his Majeſties pleaſure, that the ſaid moneys ſo disburſed, ſhall upon a juſt accompt thereof made, be repayed again out of his Majeſties Exchequer, as in former times upon the like occaſion. And we do likewiſe pray and require your Lordſhip, that at the delivery of the men to the Conductors aforeſaid, the number and names of the perſons may be received by Indenture between the ſaid Conductors and ſuch as ſhall have charge by your commandment to ſee the men delivered to them. Whereof one Duplicate is to be ſent to the Board, and another to the Lord General, to the end there may be an account given when the ſame ſhall be required.

Order concerning the Mutiny of Soldiers in the County of Warwick of Colonel Lunceford's Regiment.

'THis day (his Majeſty being preſent in Council) the Board was informed, that the Soldiers under the Regiment of Colonel Lanſford, were fallen into ſuch a Mutiny againſt their Officers, and diſorders otherwiſe in the County of Warwick, in their paſſage through the ſaid County, as that a great part of them are run away, and the reſt perſiſting in ſo much diſobedience, as that they are ready all to disband; and that there is ſuch a general remiſsneſs and backwardneſs in the Deputy Lieutenants and others, to whom it appertains, to countenance and aſſiſt the Officers and Commanders in puniſhing and reducing them to conformity and obedience; and eſpecially in the raiſing and following of Hue and Cryes for the apprehending of thoſe that run away, as that they ſeem rather to foment, than to endeavour the ſuppreſſing and reformation thereof: upon conſideration and debate whereof had, and for that Information hath been given to the Board from other Counties of the like Mutinies and diſorders, and of the like remiſsneſs and backwardneſs, (though not altogether in ſo high a degree) in thoſe that ſhould aſſiſt the Commanders and Officers for puniſhing and ſuppreſſing the ſame; whereby a great number of the Soldiers are disbanded and run away, to the great diſ-ſervice of his Majeſty and the publick, and the high contempt and ſcandal of all Authority and Government: It was therefore reſolved and ordered, That a Proclamation ſhould be forthwith publiſhed throughout the Kingdom, requiring the Deputy Lieutenants and Juſtices of Peace in the ſeveral Counties, and all others to whom it appertains, that they uſe all poſſible diligence and endeavour for the apprehending and puniſhing according to the Laws, of all thoſe that ſhall be found to have run away from their Commanders and Officers; and likewiſe that they aſſiſt and endeavour all ‘that poſſibly they may, in puniſhing and ſuppreſſing of the Mutinies of the Soldiers againſt their Officers, or any other inſolencies and diſorders by them committed: Whereof his Majeſties Attorney General is hereby required to take notice, and accordingly to prepare a Proclamation ready for his Majeſties Signature.

The Privy Council being informed of another Mutiny in Herefordſhire, and of ſome men ſlain, writ this Letter following.

A Letter directed to the Judges of Aſſize for the County of Hereford.

July 6. 1640. Concerning a Mutiny in Lempſter in Herefordſhire, wherein ſome were ſlain.

After, &c. We ſend you here encloſed a Copy of a Letter of Captain Hennis, one of his Majeſties Commanders, complaining againſt the Bailiff of the Town of Lempſter and other Officers, who (as is informed by the ſaid Letter) firſt committed upon ſome occaſion one of his Majeſties Souldiers, and after raiſed the Town in Arms againſt the Commander and his Company, and cauſed the men of the Town to charge againſt his Majeſties ſaid Commander and Souldiers, whereby divers of the ſaid Soldiers were ſlain, many hurt, and twenty four gone away from their ſaid Commander, beſides the Serjeant and Drummer, in ſuch manner as by the ſaid Letter herewith ſent, you will perceive more at large. But in regard we know not how the buſineſs was carried, nor what ground the Bayliff, and the reſt had to commit the ſaid Soldier and to proceed as they did to the execution which followed, we have thought good to pray and require you, at the Aſſizes ſhortly to be holden for that County, to examine very particularly the whole proceeding of that tumult and uproar, and to cauſe Juſtice to be done. For which purpoſe we have prayed and required our very good Lord the Lord General, that ſome on behalf of the Commanders and Souldiers may be there by the twentieth of this Month, to give information and teſtimony of the Complaint. And ſo we bid you, &c., Dated the 6th of July 1640. Signed

Another Alarm came to the Privy Council from the County of Somerſet, touching the Death of a Lieutenant, by the Mutiny of Soldiers: whereupon this following Letter was writ.

A Letter from the Council Board, to the Lords Lieutenants of the County of Somerſet.

July 17. Touching the Death of a Lieutenant by the Mutiny of the Soldiers.

Whereas we are informed that the Souldiers Levyed in that County, falling into a deſperate Mutiny againſt ſome of their Commanders and Officers, have ſlain a Lieutenant of a Company; Now to the end the ſame being of ſo high and dangerous Conſequence may be exempla- rily puniſhed, We do hereby pray and require your Lordſhips forthwith to cauſe ſome of the principal Actors and Abettors in the ſaid Mutiny and Murder to be apprehended and committed to the Gaol, and herein your Lordſhips are to cauſe the Trained Bands to be raiſed and aſſiſt if there ſhall be cauſe. A further Order of the Privy Council concerning the Mutiny of the Souldiers in Dorſetſhire in killing their Lieutenant to the effect following.

July 28. 1640.

Concerning the mutinies of the Dorſetſhire Souldiers in their paſſage through Berks killing their Lieutenant.

‘WHereas the Souldiers lately preſſed in the County of Dorſet, for his Majeſties ſervice in this expedition into the Northern parts, did in their paſſage through the County of Berks, and in or near the Town of Farringdon (being in number ſix hundred men or thereabouts) fall into an inſolent and deſperate Mutiny, in which (amongſt other Outrages by them committed) they did moſt cruelly murther Lieutenant * Mohoune one of their Officers, and in a moſt Barbarous and an inhumane manner dragg'd him through the Streets, and after hang'd up his dead body. His Majeſty (now preſent in Council) out of a Princely care that an offence of this nature, and of ſo dangerous a conſequence ſhould not eſcape unpuniſhed, hath cauſed John Ludlov, Robert Thrillcot, and Humphrey Edwards, three of the principal Actors to be apprehended and committed to Priſon. And doth likewiſe order that a Proclamation ſhould be publiſhed, for the apprehending and committing to Priſon, John Lock, John Gates, Jeffery Stacy, William Garlant, Richard Tice, Chriſtopher Frompton, John Parſons, Robert Dibbin, William Bunne, and Chriſtopher Drodge, who were all likewiſe principal Actors and Abettors in the ſaid mutiny and murder; In which Proclamation alſo his Majeſties Royal tender of Grace and pardon is to be declared and publiſhed to all ſuch of thoſe ſix hundred Souldiers (other than the perſons before named) as either before the 13th day of July, now next coming, ſhall repair to Blandford in the ſaid County of Dorſet, and there render themſelves to his Majeſties Deputy Lieutenants of the ſaid County; or before the 25th day of July next ſhall render themſelves to Sr. Jacob Aſhly Sergeant Major General of his Majeſties Army at the Quarters at or near Selby in Yorkſhire, to be again received and imployed in his Majeſties ſervice. Whereof his Majeſties Attorney General is hereby required to take notice, and accordingly to prepare a Proclamation ready for his Majeſties ſignature.

A Letter from the Lords of the Council concerning the death of Lieutenant Mohoune.

AFter &c. Whereas his Majeſty by his late Proclamation occaſioned by the Mutiny and Barbarous Murder of Lieutenant Mohoune by the Souldiers Levyed in the County of Dorſet in their March and paſſage through the County of Berks, is pleaſed to declare and publiſh his Royal tender of Grace and pardon to all ſuch of thoſe ſix hundred Souldiers (other than the perſons in the ſaid Proclamation named excepted) who were guilty of the late Mutiny and Murder committed at Farringdon in the ſaid County of Berks, as either before the ſaid 13th day of July now next coming ſhall repair to Blandford in the ſaid County of Dorſet, and there render themſelves to his Majeſties Deputy Lieutenants of the ſaid County, or before the 25th of July next ſhall render themſelves to Sr. Jacob Aſhly Sergeant Major General of his Majeſties Army at the Quarters at or near Selby in the County of York to be again received and imployed for his Majeſties ſervice; We have therefore thought good hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip to give effectual order to your Deputy Lieutenants, That they cauſe ſuch of them as ſhall render themſelves by the time aforeſaid to be kept together and to be ſent by Conductors of their own, (to be appointed by the Deputy Lieutenants) to the General Rendezvouz at or near Selby in the ſaid County of York; And for the defraying of that charge ſuch Monies of the Kings as were intended to carry them to the ſaid Rendezvouz which are remaining in the hands of Sr. Thomas Culpeper *to be received from them by the Deputy Lieutenants, and to be employed on that behalf: and your Lordſhip is to cauſe the Deputy Lieutenants to give an account of ſuch of the ſaid Monies as they ſhall receive, and how the ſame is expended and imployed. Another Alarm came to the Court of Inſolencies committed by Souldiers in the County of Eſſex, whereupon this enſuing Order was made.

A Letter directed to the Earl of Warwick and Lord Maynard, Lords Lieutenants of the County of Eſſex.

Inſolencies of Souldiers in the County of Eſſex.

AFter &c. to your good Lordſhips. We have been made acquainted with the Letter of the 27th of this preſent to Mr. Treaſurer, and do not ſo much marvel at the Inſolencies and outrages therein mentioned to be committed by the ſouldiers (though they be of a high nature) as at the remiſneſs of thoſe in Authority in not preventing or repreſſing the ſame in an exemplary way, according to the quality of the offences and the great truſt repoſed in them for the ſervice of his Majeſty, and the publick publick peace and quiet, and more particularly, that the high Sheriff who hath the power of the County at his Command ſhould ſuffer ſuch an outrage to be acted, and the Actors to eſcape unapprehended or unpuniſhed in the Town and place where himſelf hath his houſe and reſidence. And whereas we find by your Letter that William Bates one of the Delinquents is already Committed to the Gaol of Colcheſter, and one other of them (whoſe name is not mentioned) to the houſe of Correction at Chelmſford; we think fit that the laſt ſhould be likewiſe committed to the Gaol of Colcheſter, *and that charge ſhould be given for the keeping them both in very ſafe and ſtrict Cuſtody, and that your Lordſhips ſhould give order for a ſufficient watch and guard to be in readineſs near the ſaid Priſon or Priſons where they or any other their Aſſociates or Abettors ſhall be committed for the preventing of any violence, or reſcue that may be attempted by the Souldiers for their delivery out of Priſon. And we do likewiſe think fit that your Lordſhips ſhould cauſe ſpeedy and effectual order to be taken for the apprehending ſuch others as were principal actors therein, and to commit and continue them in ſtrict and ſafe Impriſonment until upon our acquainting his Majeſty herewithal, your Lordſhips ſhall receive further order and direction for proceeding againſt them, and that for the future more care and diligence be uſed for the ſuppreſſing of any the like inſolencies which ſhall happen to be attempted as well by raiſing the power of the County as by all other round and compulſory wayes. Order upon John Crew Eſq; his Petition.

'UPon Conſideration this day had at the Board of the Petition exhibited by John Crew Eſq; now cloſe priſoner in the Tower, for his miſcarriage and offence, expreſſed in an Order of the Board of the tenth of May laſt; their Lordſhips not being ſatisfied with the ſubmiſſion and acknowledgement by him made in the ſaid Petition, in that he pretended rather to have done what he did out of Ignorance, than acknowledgeth it (as he ought to do) to be an offence; It was therefore thought fit that he ſhould not be diſcharged of his Impriſonment, until he had mended his Petition in that particular, and had likewiſe ſigned the Petition ſo amended under his own hand; and had alſo made an affidavit before a Maſter of the Chancery to the effect following, viz.

'The Petitioner maketh Oath that he hath delivered to the Lieutenant of the Tower all ſuch Petitions, Papers and Complaints as he received being in the Chair at the Committee for Religion the laſt Parliament, a Catalogue whereof was annexed to his Petition.

'For the making of which affidavit, the Lieutenant of the Tower is hereby authoriſed and required to permit him to go with a Keeper before a Maſter of the Chancery.

But the ſaid Mr. Crew did not think fit to do the ſame, and thereby to bring into Queſtion in the High Commiſſion many ſilenced Miniſters who had Petitioned the Parliament for relief, being ſuſpended and deprived for not reading the Book of Sports on the Lords Day.

A Letter from the Lord Conway to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

July 13. 1640.

The Lord Conway to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury of an Alarm from Carliſle.

THE Deputy Lieutenants and Captain Alcocke did ſend me a fierce Alarm from Carliſle, deſiring me to ſend them five hundred Horſe, becauſe the Scots are within a few dayes of Dumfriſe, ſeven or eight thouſand, with which Army they mean to fall into Cumberland, but I am ſlow in anſwering the ſpur, becauſe the advertiſement of the Scotch preparations on this ſide are not ſuch as that they may be much feared as yet: in my opinion the Scots will not come into England; but leſt they ſhould go againſt the rules of right reaſon, I do provide as if they were coming; The Horſe are now come to the north part of Yorkſhire, into Cleeveland; the Foot about Selby were diſorderly, and took out of Priſon thoſe that were committed; but now a guard is ſet upon the Priſon, and they begin to be better in order.

Concerning Martial Law.

One thing I will tell you, and ſhall deſire that you will ſpeak with my Lord Lieutenant in it: I did write to him of it, but I have not heard any thing from him, ſo that I think that in his ſickneſs, believing that my Letter did only contain news of Scotland, he did not read it; the buſineſs is this, My Lord of Northumberland did write to me, that having had occaſion to look into the power he hath to give Commiſſions, the Lawyers and Judges are all of opinion that Martial Law cannot be executed here in England, but when an enemy is really near to an Army of the Kings, and that it is neceſſary that both my Lord of Northumberland and my ſelf do take a pardon for the man that was executed here for the mutiny; If this be ſo, it is all one as to break the Troops, for ſo ſoon as it ſhall be known, there will be no obedience; therefore put ſome remedy to this by all means very ſpeedily: there are now here in Priſon two men for killing of men, and the Provoſt Martial for letting them ſcape out of Priſon, although he took them again: I do forbear to call them to a Council of War, neither dare I tell the reaſon why I do not, being often urged, but ſuffer them to think me negligent; I do not think it fit that the Lawyers ſhould deliver any opinion; for if the Souldiers do know that it is queſtioned, they will decide it by their diſobedience, as the Countrey doth by their Ship-Money, and with far more dangerous conſequence, for the Souldier may bring the Countrey to reaſon, but who ſhall compel the Souldier? therefore if it cannot be helped with a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer, which muſt be only in the Officer or Officers of the Army, or in ſome ſpecial Commiſſion of the Kings, ſuch as he gives when Noblemen are arraigned; let him then give under his own hand a Commiſſion for the execution of Martial Law, to him that will hazzard his life and eſtate upon the Kings word Sir Jacob Aſhley hath no Commiſſion for the execution of Martial Law, but if the fault deſerve death, he is to advertiſe my Lord of Northumberland; this will abſolutely undo all: the Souldier muſt be puniſhed by his officer: if it would come to debate, ſome may peradventure ſay, that for faults that deſerve death, the Souldier may be ſent to the Gaol to be tryed by the Judges, this will take away the reſpect of the Souldier to the Officer, and there will preſently be no obedience, or care, either in Soul- dier or Officer. I think that this doth ſo much concern the King in the Government of the Army, that if a Lawyer ſhould ſay ſo here, if I had a Commiſſion I would hang him, and ſo I think the King ought to do others. I ſhall ever be

A Letter to the Lords Lieutenants of the Counties of Cumberland and Weſtmerland.

Watches to be kept upon the Borders of Scotland as uſual.

After and amongſt other particulars taken into Conſideration by his Majeſty and the Board concerning the ſafety and defence of the Realm; eſpecially in thoſe parts, which are moſt expoſed to danger: theſe following being of great importance were reſolved on as fit to be ſpeedily and timely provided for; viz.

1. That ſtrict watches ſhould be kept upon the paſſages of the Borders into Scotland by the ſeveral Townſhips as formerly hath been * accuſtomed in times of Hoſtility, and that the Beacons be ſo watched and kept as that they be fit and ſerviceable upon any ſuddain occaſion or Alarm.

* Spy Cragg.

2. That ſearch and inquiry ſhould be made what ſtore of Corn there is in any of the Graineries or Barnes on the other ſide of the River of Eden, betwixt it and Scotland; and that no perſons ſhould keep by them more proviſion of any kind (eſpecially of Corn) than ſhould ſerve their Families reſpectively for a week, and the reſt to be put in places of ſafety, leſt the enemy might ſurpriſe and poſſeſs himſelf of it.

3. That it being the uſual manner in thoſe parts to take one thouſand or fifteen hundred Cattle to Juyſte or Depaſture in the Summer time, and to have none but a boy or two to look to them; That thoſe who receive the profits of the Juyſtment of thoſe Cattle may be compelled to keep ſuch and ſo many Herdſmen as may preſently upon notice and warning, drive thoſe Cattle over the Eden, *that they may be the better ſecured from the pillage of the Enemy; We have therefore thought good in his Majeſties name, and by his expreſs command hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip, and in your abſence your Deputy Lieutenants to give ſpeedy and effectual order concerning the premiſes: hereof we require a ſpeedy execution and your anſwer. A ſharp Letter for not levying of Ship-Money.

A Letter to the High Sheriff of the County of Huntingdon.

After &c. We have read and conſidered of your Letter of the 24th of this preſent, wherein we perceive that you have been rather induſtrious to repreſent the difficulties which (as you ſay) you find in the execution of his Majeſties Writ, than circumſpect and careful as you ought to have been in overcoming and removing them; and yet you well know that there are none of thoſe difficulties againſt which you are not armed by his Majeſties Writ, and for which you have not already received directions how how to proceed by your Inſtructions, and former Letters from this Board. And we cannot but make this judgement upon your proceedings, that inſtead of doing your duty in perſon, and compelling others ſubordinate to you to do theirs; you endeavour to make excuſes both for your ſelf and them: And therefore we will you again to know, that his Majeſty and this Board expects and requires that you perform and expedite the ſervice according to the Writ and Inſtructions ſent you therewith. And in caſe of your further neglect therein, whereby you are the cauſe (for ſo much as concerns that County) that the ſervice of his Majeſty and the publick both in honour and ſafety ſhall ſuffer and be endangered, there will be a round Courſe taken againſt you, and quick and exemplary reparation required of you, proportionable to the ill effects and dangerous conſequence of your neglect; and if upon this admonition you ſhall refuſe to redeem your former Omiſſions and Diſſervice, and ſhall only make diſcourſes and excuſes as hitherto you have done, inſtead of acting and performing your Duty, this will likewiſe be added to your account, And ſo &c.

MR. Attorney General did this day preſent to his Majeſty and the Board, a Copy of the Commiſſion of Array ſetled by Parliament in 5 Hen. 4. Upon reading whereof, and upon mature debate had thereupon, It was thought fit and Ordered by his Majeſty, with advice of the Board, that the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England ſhall iſſue out Commiſſions of Array in the form aforeſaid, for each of the ſeveral Counties in England and Wales; directed to the Lords or Lords Lieutenants of the ſaid ſeveral Counties, and the Sheriff of the ſaid Counties, and ſuch other of the Deputy Lieutenants by their names or others, being three or more, as the ſaid Lords Lieutenants ſhall recommend. And his Majeſty and the Board did declare that there is no intention by this Commiſſion of Array to derogate from, or in any ſort to abridge the Commiſſions of Lieutenancy already iſſued, or to be iſſued, but that the Lords Lieutenants may make uſe of theſe concurrent Commiſſions of Array, where they ſhall find a fit occaſion for the advancement of his Majeſties ſervice.

For which purpoſe there is nothing more neceſſary than a fit proviſion to be made of Horſes for the Train of Artillery; and for the Carriage of Ammunition and other requiſite proviſions. We have thought fit to pray and require your Lordſhip to take order that there may be provided fifty ſtrong and able Horſes, and ſeventeen able Carters to take care of them within the Limits of your Lieutenancy in ſuch places where they may be moſt conveniently had, to be ready at* New-caſtle upon Tine by the 20th of this inſtant July. And for the charge of ſending the Horſe and Carters to the Rendezvouz at Newcaſtle, that is to be born by that County; but when they ſhall arrive there they ſhall enter into

Concerning Coat and Conduct Money in the County of Surry.

AFter &c. We ſend you here incloſed Warrants for apprehending of all the parties which you have returned refuſers to pay the Coat and Conduct Money, and for the three Conſtables who have made you no return, and we have ſent down two Meſſengers of his Majeſties Chamber; but by reaſon that the Delinquents are ſo very many, we did not think fit to deliver the Warrants to the Meſſengers themſelves, but have ſent them incloſed unto you, to the end that by notifying to the parties either by the Meſſengers themſelvet, or by ſuch other means as you ſhall think fit, you may draw as many to Conformity as will be willing to avoid their further trouble and charge, and for thoſe that ſhall ſtand out, you are to give direction upon whom they ſhall ſerve the Warrants, and then as many of them as ſhall conform, we do think fit that they be diſcharged there, without coming up to their further trouble and charge. But for ſuch as ſhall not be Conformable, they muſt of neceſſity be brought up. In all which proceedings we do adviſe that the moſt able and the moſt refractory ſhould be firſt begun with, and the reſt by their example be reduced if it may be: and becauſe in ſo general a caſe there may be ſome miſcarriage by the Meſſengers under colour of their Fees; we have ſent you a copy of the Order of the Board in that behalf of the ninth of December 1635. *to the end it may be obſerved. And although we are willing to let you underſtand our Opinions for your better encouragement in theſe proceedings, yet becauſe there may be much variety in the particular caſes, we do rely our ſelves upon your diſcretion (whereof we have received good proof in your long ſervice) for direction of the execution of the incloſed Warrants, as you ſhall find moſt conducing to his Majeſties ſervice. ‘HIs Majeſty and the Board taking notice of the great neglect and contempt of Sir Symonds Dewes Knight, now High Sheriff of the County of Suffolk, in not executing the Writ for the Shipping buſineſs for this preſent year, have thought fit and ordered, that Mr. Attorney General ſhall forthwith proceed againſt the ſaid Sir Symonds Dewes in the Star-Chamber.

From

From Northamptonſhire, July 1640.

Grounds of exception againſt the Oath, &c. required in the Sixth Canon eſtabliſht in the Synod 1640.

1. THe taking of this Oath doth ſeem to eſtabliſh the legality of it, and prepare a way for the impoſing of other new Oaths; whereas it is queſtionable, whether any Oath may be impoſed, not eſtabliſh't and appointed by Parliament.

2. The taking of it, may ſeem to approve the exacting of it of all the perſons of whom it is required; many of whom cannot take it (probably) in judgement, as not being acquainted with the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Church, nor the Controverſies concerning them.

3. It is required, we ſhould ſwear all things neceſſary for ſalvation to be contained in the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Church of England.

1. It is not declared, What is to be accounted the Doctrine of the Church.
   The Book of Homilies hath been diſclaimed: The Articles claimed by the Arminians and others, and ſome of them corrupted.
2. It hath not been conceived, that any particular kind of Diſcipline was neceſſary to ſalvation.
   The Presbyterians have been derided and writ againſt, for making the Diſcipline a part of the Kingdom of Chriſt.
   It's acknowledged, That the Reformed Churches that differ from us in Diſcipline, want nothing neceſſary to ſalvation.

4. It's required to ſwear, Not to conſent to the alteration of the Government by Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Arch-Deacons, &c. as it is by Law eſtabliſhed, and by right they ought to ſtand: which Clauſe we dare not ſwear to, for theſe cauſes:

1. Becauſe we judge it unlawful to ſwear the perpetuation of any meer Eccleſiaſtical Ordinance which is ſubject to ſuch corruptions as may neceſſitate an alteration; and ſuch we judge this Government to be, at leaſt in part; for Arch-Biſhops, Arch-Deacons and Deans are but Eccleſiaſtical, whatever may be ſaid for Biſhops.
2. We have taken the Oath of Supremacy, by which we acknowledge the Kings Majeſty and his Succeſſors Supream Head of the Church, and Governour in Cauſes and over Perſons Eccleſiaſtical as well as Civil, which this Oath ſeems to contradict.

In that,

1. It binds from conſenting to the alteration of Church Government, ſo that if the King or his Succeſſors ſhould alter it, it, we muſt diſſent and preach againſt them, as in the eighth Canon.

2. It binds to acknowledge a further Right that Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops, &c. have in the Government of Church, than that which is given them by Law, meaning a Divine Right, as we are induced to believe:

Becauſe,

1. Many Biſhops have ſo declared themſelves.
2. In the firſt Canon they have not given the King any power in Eccleſiaſtical Government, diſclaiming only Papal, Popular, Independent, co-active power, but not Epiſcopal; whereas the Controverſies of this time require a more preciſe and open declaration.

3. It ſeems to make more account of the Diſcipline, than of the Doctrine of the Church; for in that we abjure Conſent to any alteration, in this we abjure endeavour to induce Popiſh Errours only.
4. This Clauſe is adminiſtred with an &c. which we conceive was never tendered in any Oath before now.
5. There are ſome things in the Diſcipline of the Church, which we have juſt ground to deſire and endeavour the alteration of, ſhould it be offered. As,

That the Biſhop delegates his power to be officiated by a Chancellor, whereby it comes to paſs, that the ſentence of Excommunication, which is incompatible with a meer Lay-man (as our Church teacheth againſt Preſbyterians) is devolved upon a meer Lay-man, and the Plaiſter provided by the thirteenth Canon is too narrow for this ſoar.

For,

The Grave Miniſter to whom the pronouncing the Sentence belongs, is but the Chancellors Voice to ſpeak what he decrees; and ſo the power of Excommunication is ſtill in him.

5. The whole Oath is filled with ſo many ambiguities, that we dare not take it.

6. The taking of it, makes us approve of the Synod, by which there are induced and tolerated divers Ceremonies contrary to the Book of Common Prayer, which we have ſubſcribed unto, and muſt in this Oath (if we take it) abjure.

7. It is required, to be taken heartily and willingly, and yet they that refuſe it, are threatned with ſevere puniſhments; by which means it is to be feared, that many that are weak, may forſwear themſelves.

The

The Queries of Kent concerning the Oath &c.

1. WHether it be lawful to take an Oath with an &c. where there may be a doubt, how much is thereby ſignified?

2. Whether to affirm in an Oath, that ſuch a thing ought ſo by right to ſtand, doth not ſuppoſe it to be a Divine Right?

3. Whether it be lawful to ſwear the perpetual maintaining any Order meerly Eccleſiaſtical?

4. Whether the Superiority of Arch-Biſhops above Biſhops, and the ſubſtitution of Arch-Deacons, Deans, &c. be not meerly Eccleſiaſtical.

5. Whether when Divine Authority hath ordained only Biſhops to be Church Governours, particularly in point of Excommunication, it be lawful to conſent any more than paſſively, to any other Governours Eccleſiaſtical, to exerciſe the ſame Authority of Excommunication?

6. Whether ſince the Church of England rejects the Lay Elders of other Churches, it doth not thereby condemn the giving of any power to Commiſſaries, Chancellors and Officials which are meerly Lay-men, to meddle in Excommunication even jointly with Miniſters, much leſs as chief Surrogates, being but his Deputies and Eccleſiaſtical?

7. Whether the Scriptures Authorize ſuch power being given to meer Lay-men?

8. Whether having ſworn to the Kings Supremacy in all cauſes Eccleſiaſtical, it be not a violation of that Oath, or at leaſt a hazard of it in time to come, to ſwear not to give conſent to ſuch an alteration in Government, which may at leaſt poſſibly be thought fit, and even be commanded with all Authority by the King or any Succeſſor of his hereafter.

Devonſhire Exceptions to the Oath.

1. THat they are bound to take it willingly, which they cannot do with ſafe Conſcience, and ſo ſhall be perjured ipſo facto.

2. That they muſt ſwear ſincerely, without any mental reſervation, yet that &c. in the Oath, referreth and implyeth ſomewhat more than is expreſſed, which they muſt conceive or underſtand.

3. That they muſt acknowledge both the Doctrine and Diſcipline of our Church, to contain all things neceſſary to ſalvation: which is not true of the Diſcipline.

4. That they are tyed never to give conſent to any alteration of the ſaid Diſcipline, though the King and State ſhould enjoyn them thereunto.

5. That it croſſeth or contradicteth the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy which they have already taken; becauſe if the King by Parliament would diſanull any part of the Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, or by a Synod ſhall alter it, they are bound never to conſent.

6. That it is a flat bandy againſt the power of Parliaments; becauſe the Clergy can conſtitute no Canons, much leſs create or impoſe Oaths, unleſs the Parliament confirm them: and therefore they think it a project to ſuppreſs all Parliaments for ever.

7. That it clips the wings of the Kings Royal Prerogative and Spiritual Supremacy, bereaving him and his Succeſſors from altering any thing in Church Government, either by Synod, Convocation or Parliament.

The main foundation the Clergy build upon, is the general reſolution of the Lawyers, that no Oath can be ordained, nor any authorized to give it, unleſs it be firſt eſtabliſhed by Parliament.

This Week being our Aſſizes, the Gentry and Clergy have taken much pains to frame a Petition againſt the Oath in the new Canon, wherewith goeth the heads on which they ground their Petition: my Lord of Bathe firſt firmed it, moſt of the Gentry and Clergy that were here have firmed it; and they ſay Mr. Wiſe, and Mr. Seymour, our Parliament Knights, have undertaken to deliver it, what ever anſwer they have. I believe very few in this County will take the Oath; beſides it doth open mens mouths extreamly againſt the Arch-Biſhop.

Auguſt 8. 1640.

To the Right Honourable the Lords of His Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy Council.

The moſt humble Petition of the Subſcribers, with the Conſent of many Gentlemen and others of good Worth of this County of Devon,

Sheweth,

A Petition from Devonſhire againſt the Oath, &c.

THat your Petitioners obſerving to their comfort, your Lordſhips conſtant providence for his Majeſties honour and ſervice, and by experience often finding your Lordſhips to be favourable Mediators to his moſt excellent Majeſty in behalf of his Subjects in many of their Grievances, which his Majeſty hath lately graciouſly declared himſelf ready to redreſs, they are thereby heartened to tender to your Lordſhips conſideration, ſome ſcruple of their Conſciences, and other doubts of great inconveniencies ariſing from the Oath expreſſed in Canons lately made by the Reverend Synod, which as they conceive, do not only concern your Petitioners and their poſterity, but his Majeſty and his Succeſſors in his Royal Dignity and Prerogative: his Majeſties Supremacy of the Church of England, whereunto moſt of your Lordſhips Petitioners have been often ſworn; and by that Oath, are in expreſs words bound to defend it; they believe will be mainly weakned, if not in ſubſtance totally ſubverted and taken away, if this new Oath doth receive the intended permiſſion. The Doctrine of this Church, no good Prote- ſtant will deny, to contain all things neceſſary to ſalvation; but the Diſcipline, many men think worthy of Reformation. The Book of Common Prayer in the Commination doth wiſh it, and the late Synod endeavoured it in part Canon 17. had they thought fit to have done it more fully, their Acts confirmed by his Majeſty had been no leſs lawful; for moſt of the Officers of Diſcipline, have their Juriſdiction meerly from the King, as is plainly declared 37 H. 8. 17. and it cannot be denyed, but that they may by him be changed. what pretence then can be ſo fair, or intention ſo good, as to juſtifie an Oath binding ſubjects from ever conſenting to their Princes lawful Prerogative in doing lawful acts? It muſt needs in ſhort ſpace make the whole Clergie and moſt of the Laity to be in Spiritual matters independant on the Crown. If the abuſe of Excommunication, which hath been a long noted ſpot in our Church, cannot be really Reformed, until that long Liſt of Officers which the Synod thought fit to involve in an &c. and are not known to many, do ſuffer a change by his Majeſties Royal Prerogative, then certainly this Oath once generally taken, his Majeſty will want means, becauſe he ſhall have no inſtruments (indeed no Subjects) when the younger Laity ſhall take it in the Univerſities, to make this Reformation in Diſcipline, whenſoever God ſhall put it into his religious and Princely heart; ſo will his Majeſty and his Succeſſors to the great grief of your Lordſhips Petitioners, be for ever abridged of that free power in the Supremacy of this Church, which their Anceſtors ever had and have enjoyed as their due right and chief flower of their Crown ſince the Popes juſt rejection: had this courſe been thought on in the time of the Popes reign here, the Doctrine of the Church had never attained the preſent purity. Other inconveniencies which your Lordſhips Petitioners confidently ſuppoſe, will follow the taking this Oath, will be theſe; no decreaſe of Popery as is pretended, every Changeling to that Religion may have his diſpenſation for this or any other Oath: But this Oath ſtriking deeply at the root of many Conſcientious and conſtant preaching Miniſters, whoſe purity and zeal to the peace of the Church, hath led them hitherto to dutiful conformity, muſt needs deprive them, if they take not the Oath, both ab Officio & Beneficio, and conſequently duce a general ignorance, the mother only of Popiſh devotion. Again, your Petitioners do verily believe, that this Oath uſed as is enjoined in the Univerſities, will in ſhort ſpace prove their great dammage and decay: for all thoſe that account it croſſing with the Oath of Supremacy, will ſeek their Childrens breeding in any other Countrey rather than this, where they will be ſubject to an enlargement, oppoſite to the Laws of this Kingdom, namely, the 25 H. 8. 19. and 37 H. 8. 17. and 1 Eliz. 1. and the other binds to nothing but to duty and obedience to the Laws, and the defence and maintenance of his Majeſties Royal Prerogative as Supream Head of this Church, by the Oath of Supremacy the takers are bound to defend it; and by this new Oath taken they muſt never conſent to the uſe of it in matters of greateſt moment: It is therefore the moſt humble deſire of your Lordſhips Petitioners, that your Lordſhips would vouchſafe your noble mediation to his moſt excellent Majeſty, that he would be pleaſed piouſly to weigh theſe doubts of theirs, no leſs concerning his undoubted Right, than it doth the growth of the true profeſſed Religion, as dear to them as their lives, and their conſciences no leſs dear to your Lordſhips moſt humble Petitioners.

An. 1640.

Scotland, June and July.

LEt us ſee what they have been doing in Scotland theſe two Months of June and July: for on the ſecond of June there was a Parliament to meet; but it ſeems the King had ſent an Order to the Juſtice Clerk to Prorogue it; and he is to carry along with him in this affair, the Aſſiſtance of the Kings Advocate, who was at this time confined to his houſe in Fife, upon pretence of ſome miſcarriage in his Office; but really becauſe he was ſuſpected to adhere to the Covenanters: the Advocate was glad upon this occaſion to be delivered from the diſgrace of Confinement, and to be honoured with the Employment.

Concerning the Proroguing of the Parliament.

It is to be obſerved, that when Traquaire got his Commiſſion under the Broad Seal, there was another Commiſſion given under the Quarter Seal to the Lord Elphingſtown, the Lord Napier, the Kings Advocate and the Juſtice Clerk; theſe, or three of them, were impowred to act as Commiſſioners in Traquaire's abſence: and upon his Orders therefore the Kings Advocate adjudged it needleſs to fill up a Blank that was ſent down to be made uſe of, if need were, to make the Prorogation Legal, but reſolved to require one of the other two to concurr with the Juſtice Clerk and himſelf in the Prorogation, which was to be done after the Parliament was Fenced: therefore they provided the perſons neceſſary for Fencing of it, (a Ceremony they uſe in the beginning of a Seſſion) who are the Conſtable, the Marſhal, the Provoſt of Edenburgh, the Sheriff of Lowthian, and a Doomeſter; and if any of theſe be abſent, the King muſt name others for their ſervice that day. So the Members of Parliament being met, the Kings Advocate required the Lord Elphinſtown, who was firſt in the Commiſſion, to go up with them to the Throne, for executing the Kings Commands; who having read the Commiſſion, found their Power was only to act by the Commiſſioners Order, and therefore called for Traquaire's Warrant: The Kings Advocate anſwered, That as when the King is preſent, a Commiſſioners Power of it ſelf expires; ſo alſo when his Warrant is produced, there is no need of one from his Commiſſioner: but Elphinſtown ſtood on the Letter of the Commiſſion, and ſo found he was not Legally warranted to do it. The like was the Lord Napier's Anſwer, who was alſo of the Commiſſion; and ſo the Kings Advocate and the Juſtice Clerk could do nothing, but take Inſtruments.

By which Deportment of the Advocate, the Members of Parliament proceeded to Vote themſelves to be in a Parliamentary Capacity, as being Summoned by the King at firſt, and again Adjourned to this day. Whereupon they proceeded to the Enacting of what they had deſigned the former year: and their Acts, though of great importance, yet meeting no oppoſition, were quickly diſpatched. All which, with a Prologue and Epilogue of two High Declarations, were ſent in the Pacquet to the Earl of Lanerick, with the following Letter, written by a Committee of Lords, whom they had left to ſit at Edinburgh, to attend the Kings Anſwer concerning the Acts of the Parliament ſent up to his Majeſty by their Commiſſioners.

A Letter from the Council in Scotland to the Earl of Lanerick.

Right Honourable,

IT is not unknown to your Lordſhip, with what difficulties this Kingdom hath wraſtled this time paſt, in aſſerting their Religion and Liberties againſt the dealings of bad Inſtruments with his Majeſty to the contrary.

trary. The means which they have uſed, have been no other, but ſuch as they humbly petitioned and obtained from his Majeſty, a free National Aſſembly and Parliament. The Aſſembly went on in a fair way, and was cloſed with the liking and full conſent of his Majeſties Commiſſioner; but the Parliament Indicted by his Majeſty was prorogated, till the Reaſons of the Demands of the Eſtates were rendered to his Majeſty; which having done by their Commiſſioners, they kept the ſecond of June (the day appointed by his Majeſty) for the ſitting of the Parliament: and after diligent Enquiry, hearing nothing from his Majeſty nor his Commiſſioner, neither by their own Commiſſioners or any others ſent from his Majeſty, which might hinder the Parliament to proceed to the ſetling of their Religion and Liberties, after mature deliberation, and long waiting for ſome ſignification of his Majeſties pleaſure, they have all with one conſent reſolved upon certain Acts, which they have adjudged to be moſt Neceſſary and Conducible for his Majeſties Honour and the Peace of the Kingdom, ſo far endangered by delayes: and have committed to us the Truſt to ſhew you ſo much, and withal to ſend a juſt Copy of the Acts, that by your Lordſhip (his Majeſties Principal Secretary of Scotland*) they may be preſented to his Majeſty. The Declaration prefixed to the particular Acts, and the Petition in the End contain ſo full expreſſions of the warrants of the Proceedings of the Eſtates, and of their humble continued deſires, that no word needs to be added by us. We do therefore in their Name (according to the Truſt committed to us) deſire your Lordſhip (all other wayes of Information being ſtopt) with the Preſenting of the Acts of Parliament, to repreſent unto his Majeſty againſt all ſuſpicions, ſuggeſtions and tentations to the contrary, the conſtant love and loyalty of this Kingdom unto his Majeſties Royal Authority and Perſon, as their Native King and kindly Monarch: And that they are ſeeking nothing but the Eſtabliſhing of their Religion and Liberties under his Majeſties Government, that they may ſtill be a free Kingdom, to do his Majeſty all the honour and ſervice that becometh humble Subjects; that their Extremity is greater, through the Hoſtility and Violence threatned by Arms, and already done to them in their Perſons and Goods, by Caſtles within, and Ships without the Kingdom, than they can longer endure: And that as his Majeſty loveth his own Honour and the Weal of this his Antient Kingdom, ſpeedy courſe may be taken for their relief and quietneſs; and that if this their Faithful Remonſtrance (to which as the great Council of the Kingdom they found themſelves bound at this time for their Exoneration) be paſſed over in ſilence, or anſwered with delayes, they muſt prepare and provide for their own defence and ſafety. We are very hopeful, that your Lordſhip (as a good Patriot, and according to the obligement of your place) will not be deficient in that duty for your Native Countrey, and ſend us a ſpeedy Anſwer, as we ſhall in every duty be careful at all occaſions to ſhew our ſelves*

THe Covenanters at this laſt meeting of the Parliament did ſign a Bond among themſelves, for adhering to thoſe Acts, and proſecuting of thoſe who had been the Incendiaries from the beginning of thoſe Stirs; the chief of which they accounted, were Marqueſs Hamilton and Traquaire; but this buſineſs gave great offence to the King, and he judged himſelf bound to repair this Affront with the Sword.

ON the twenty ſeventh of June the Earl of Lanerick returns Anſwer to the Committee in Scotland to the effect following:

The Earl of Lanerick's anſwer to the Committees Letter.

My Lords,

BY my former of the date of the 23d of June, his Majeſty was pleaſed to promiſe by me, to let you know within few dayes his further pleaſure concerning thoſe proceedings and deſires of the Noble-men, and Barons, and Burgeſſes, which you ſent me to be preſented to his Majeſty; whereupon he hath now commanded me to tell you, that the Not Proroguing of the Parliament in a Legal and formal way, was not for want of clear Inſtructions, and of full and ample Power from his Majeſty, he having fully ſignified his pleaſure to thoſe whom he did entruſt with the executing thereof, not thinking it fit to employ other Servants of greater Eminence, by reaſon of the diſorders and Iniquities of the times: and as forced by the importance of his other great and weighty affairs, he was neceſſitated to Prorogue the Parliament for ſome few dayes, ſo did he moſt really intend to perform at the time prefixed, whatſoever he had promiſed by the Act of Pacification; but neither can the neglect of his ſervants, (if any be) nor thoſe other Reaſons alledged by the foreſaid Noble-men, Barons and Burgeſſes, in their Declaration for their ſitting, ſatisfie his Majeſty for their proceeding in a Parliamentary way; ſince by the Duty and Allegiance of Subjects, they are bound to acknowledge in a moſt ſpecial manner his Tranſcendent Power in Parliaments. And if Subjects there do aſſume the Power of Making Laws, and Reſcinding thoſe already made, what Act can be done more Derogatory to that Regal Power and Authority we are all ſworn to maintain? Therefore his Majeſty conceives, they cannot in reaſon expect he can interpoſe his Royal Authority to theſe, or any other Acts whatſoever, whereto neither he in his own real Perſon, nor by his Commiſſioner did aſſiſt. Yet ſuch is his Majeſties Clemency, that when they ſhall take ſuch an humble and dutiful way, as may witneſs, that they are as careful and tender of his Majeſties Royal Power, as they are deſirous of his Approbation, then ſhall it be time for them to expect ſuch a Gracious and Juſt Anſwer, as may teſtifie his Majeſties Fatherly Compaſſion of that his Native Kingdom, and his Pious and Princely care of performing whatſoever is neceſſary for Eſtabliſhing their Religion and Laws. So thus having imparted unto you all that was enjoyned me by his Majeſty, I ſhall ſay no more from my ſelf, but I am

To which the Committee on the ſeventh of July, made this Reply following to the Lord Lanerick.

A Reply from the Committee.

My Lord,

We received your Lordſhips Letter of the twenty ſeventh of June from the Lord Lowdon, whoſe Relief out of Priſon gives us occaſion (before we anſwer your Lordſhips Letter) to acknowledge the ſame as an Act of his Majeſties Royal Juſtice and Goodneſs, although the pretended Cauſe of his Impriſonment, was but a Malicious Calumny of the Enemies of the Kings Honour and our Peace, forged to engage both his Majeſties Kingdoms in a National War. As we cannot but regret, that any Neglect of his Majeſties Officers, or abſence of his Commiſſioner, whoſe preſence we did both deſire and expect, ſhould hinder the interpoſing of his Royal Authority to theſe Acts of Parliament, which were found moſt neceſſary for eſtabliſhing Religion and the Peace of this Kingdom, and which according to the Acts of Pacification, his Majeſty was Graciouſly pleaſed to promiſe; ſo we have and ſhall ſtill endeavour, to give demonſtration of that tender Reſpect we have of his Majeſties Honour and Royal Power. And whereas your Lordſhips Letter doth imply, that we ſhould take ſome other way for the more eaſie obtaining of his Majeſties Approbation, which alſo by ſeveral reaſons hath been moſt inſtantly preſſed by the Lord Lowdon, yet we conceive, that Parliamentary way, which was taken by the Eſtates Convened by his Majeſties ſpecial Warrant, to have been moſt Legal and Neceſſary, and no wayes Derogatory to his Majeſties Power in Parliament, nor contrary to the Duty of good Subjects, who are warranted by the Articles of Pacification under his Majeſties hand, to Determine all Civil Queſtions, Ratifie the Concluſions of the Aſſembly, and remove the preſent Diſtractions of this Kingdom, as is more abundantly demonſtrated by their Declaration in Parliamentt hereabout; ſo that we dare not take any other courſe, which may entrench upon their Parliamentary Power or Proceedings, nor will we, (being ſo few in number appointed to ſtay here) preſume of our ſelves, in a matter of ſo great moment, to return a more full and particular Anſwer, till there be a more frequent meeting of thoſe appointed by Parliament, which will be ſhortly; and then your Lordſhip ſhall be acquainted, that you may ſhew his Majeſty their reſolutions and humble deſires: and we ſhall remain

Towards

*An.*1640.

TOwards the latter end of this Month and the beginning of Auguſt the Scots were very Active in raiſing their Forces, and impoſing a Tax of a tenth Penny upon every mans Rents throughout the Kingdom, towards the maintenance of their Army to march into England; and advanced part of their Forces Southward: but General Leſly was reſolved not to move with the whole Body, till he was Maſter of Edinburgh Caſtle, conceiving it unſafe to leave a place of that ſtrength behind him, which was kept for the King by Ruthwyn the Governour, a man of known Courage: who nevertheleſs being ſomewhat ſtraitned for want of Ammunition and Victuals, and the falling away of the Water into the Rock of the Caſtle, by the often diſcharging of his great Guns, was conſtrained to Capitulate, and ſo the Caſtle was delivered up to the Covenanters. And now General Leſley prepares all things in order to a March with the whole Army.

Let us now return to give an account of Affairs in England, where we left in the Month of July.

THe Kings Army in their March to Newcaſtle in the Month of July, quartered much in the County of York; and being Billetted upon the Inhabitants, grew to be a great Burthen to the Country: whereupon the Gentry of the ſaid County of York aſſembled at the Aſſizes at York on the 28th of July, agreed upon this following Petition to be preſented to the King.

To the Kings Moſt Excellent MAJESTY.

The humble Petition of the Gentry of your Majeſties County of York now aſſembled at the Aſſizes at York July 28.1640.

May it pleaſe your Sacred Majeſty,

'YOur moſt humble Subjects ſhew unto your Sacred Majeſty, 'that in all humility this Countrey had endeavoured to fulfil your Majeſties Commands with the forwardeſt of your Majeſties 'Subjects, and the laſt year in the execution of your Majeſties Royal 'Commands about the Military Affairs did expend one hundred 'thouſand pounds to our great impoveriſhment, and far above the 'proportion of other Counties; which although at that time we 'were willing (out of a deſire to ſerve your Majeſty) to do, yet 'for the future the burthen is ſo heavy, that we neither can, nor are 'able to bear it. Now upon this our cheerfulneſs to ſerve you, we 'thought to have found equal favours with other Counties.

‘But ſo it is, moſt Gracious Soveraign, to our great grief, and (as we conceive) to the great diſ-ſervice of your Majeſty, we find our ſelves oppreſſed with the Billetting of unruly Soldiers, whoſe Speeches and Actions tend to the burning of our Villages and Houſes, and to whoſe Violences and Inſolencies we are ſo daily ſubject, as we cannot ſay we enjoy our Wives, Children and Eſtates ſafely: wherefore we are emboldned, humbly to preſent theſe our Complaints, beſeeching that as the Billetting of Soldiers in any of your Subjects houſes againſt their will, is contrary to the Antient Laws of this Kingdom confirmed by your Majeſty in the Petition of Right, we moſt humbly pray, that this inſupportable burthen be taken from us, leſt by their Inſolencies ſome ſuch ſad Accidents may happen, as will be much diſpleaſing unto your Sacred Majeſty and your Loyal and Obedient Subjects, who will never ceaſe to pray for your Majeſties long and happy Reign over us.

THis Petition being thus agreed unto, was ſent up by ſome of the Gentry of the County of York to the King then at London, and the ſame being preſented at the Council Board (the Earl of Strafford being preſent) his Lordſhip thought fit to acquaint his Majeſty, that he conceived the Petitioners were miſtaken in computing the Charge of the laſt years Expedition, in ſaying it amounted to One Hundred Thouſand Pound: and for them at ſuch a time as this is, thus to Complain when an Invaſion is threatned by the Scots, it ſeemed to be a Mutinous Petition; with ſome other expreſſions of Diſſatisfaction with his Countrey-men for offering ſuch a Petition.

An. 1640.

The King ſeizeth on the Bullion in the Tower.

IN this Month of July the Kings Neceſſities being great, he was pleaſed to give order to ſeize upon the Bullion in the Mint at the Tower, which was brought from beyond Seas to be Coyned there, which gave a great Alarm to the Spaniſh Merchants and others, with which they were obliged forthwith to acquaint their Correſpondents and Partners beyond Seas; yet they made an immediate Addreſs to his Majeſty, humbly declaring, that this Example would for ever after hinder the bringing of Bullion into the Tower, and would prove to his Majeſties great prejudice, not only by the loſs of the Coynage of the Bullion, but in his Reputation (his Faith being pledged for the freedom of Merchants to bring in their Bullion into the Tower, and freely to carry the ſame out again.) So the Reſult of that dayes debate at the Council was, that the Owners of that Bullion ſhould be deſired to let the King have Forty Thouſand Pound of it, being the third part of the Money in the Mint; and his Majeſty tendered them ſecurity for the payment thereof with Intereſt by his Farmers of the Cuſtoms; whoſe ſecurity the Merchants did accept; who accommodated his Majeſty with the ſaid ſumm, which was afterwards duly re-paid unto them: and thereupon the Council ordered, that the Foreign Poſt which was ſtayed upon the ſeizure of the Mint, ſhould now be at liberty to carry Letters beyond Seas.

The King buyes all the Pepper kept under the Old Exchange.

ABout the ſame time the Kings Neceſſities for want of Money ſtill increaſing, a device was found out, to perſwade the King to buy all the Pepper the Merchants had in ſtore lying under the Old Exchange, which amounted to a great ſumm; for which the King gave ſecurity to the Owners, that the ſame ſhould be paid: but the Pepper was immediately ſold again at a much under-value; yet it being ready money to his Majeſty, though with dammage to himſelf, his Majeſty was enabled thereby the better to carry on the War againſt the Scots.

A deſign to make Copper money.

But theſe wayes of getting Money were but ſhifts to ſtop one Leak in twenty in the Ship; for that nothing but a ſtanding ſupply could conſtantly keep up an Army in good Order and Reputation; and thereupon it was debated at the Council, to mix Silver and Copper together, and to Coyn to the value of Three Hundred Thouſand Pound, and the Coyn to be ſuch, that Three Pence in Silver added to a quantity of Copper, ſhould be made to go Currant for Twelve Pence. And that it be declared by Proclamation, that it ſhould be Currant Money to pay the Army, marching to Newcaſtle: This buſineſs held ſeveral dayes debate: yet at laſt his Majeſty and the Council thought fit to hear Sr. Thomas Rowe his Judgement and Opinion in this buſineſs, being a Perſon well experienced in the Coyns in Sweden and other Foreign Parts; who being permitted to ſpeak his Opinion, he declared himſelf to the effect following:

Sr. Thomas Rowe his Speech at the Council Table, touching Braſs Money, or againſt mixing Braſs Money with Silver, with many notable Obſervations thereupon, July 1640.

July 1640 Sr. Thomas Rowe his Speech a-gainſt Braſs Money.

My Lords,

'Since it hath pleaſed this Honourable Table, to command, 'amongſt others, my poor Opinion concerning this weighty 'Propoſition of Money; I muſt humbly crave pardon, if with that 'Freedom that becometh my duty to my Good and Gracious Maſter, 'and my obedience to your great commands, I deliver it ſo.

'I conceive this intended Project of infeebling the Coyn, will 'intrench very far both into the Honour, Juſtice and Profit of the 'King.

'All Eſtates do ſtand magis fama quam vi, as Tacitus ſaith of Rome; 'and Wealth in every Kingdom, is one of the eſſential marks of 'their Greatneſs; and is beſt expreſſed in the meaſures and purity 'of their moneys. Hence it was, that ſo long as the Roman Empire, a pattern of the beſt Government, held up their Glory or 'Greatneſs, they ever maintained with little or no change the 'Standard of their Coyn: but after the looſe time of Commodus had 'led into need by exceſs, by that ſhift of changing the Standard, the 'Majeſty of that Empire fell by degrees: And as Vopiſcus ſaith, the 'ſteps by which that State deſcended, were viſible moſt by the gene'ral alteration of their Coyns; and there is no ſurer ſymptomes of 'Conſumption in State, than the Corruption of Money.

'What renown is left to the poſterity of Edward I. in amending 'the Standard both in purity and weight, from that of elder and bar'barous times? It muſt needs ſtick as a blemiſh upon Princes that 'do the contrary.

'Thus we ſee, it was with Henry VI. who after he had begun 'with abating the meaſures, he afterwards fell into abaſing the mat'ter, and granted Commiſſion to Miſſend and others, to practiſe Al'chymy to ſerve his Mint.

'The extremity the State in general felt by this Grievance, be'ſides the diſhonour it laid upon the perſon of the King, was not the 'leaſt diſadvantage his diſloyal Kinſman took to ingrace himſelf into 'the peoples favour, to his Soveraigns ruine.

'When Henry VIII. had gained as much of Power and Glory 'abroad, of Love and Obedience at home as ever any, he ſuffered a 'loſs by this Rock.

'When his Daughter Queen Elizabeth came to the Crown, ſhe 'was happier in Counſel to amend that error of her Father; for it 'appears in a Memorial of the Lord Treaſurer Burleigh's hand, that 'he and Sr. Thomas Smith, a Grave and Learned man, adviſed the 'Queen, that it was the Crown and the true Wealth of her ſelf and 'people, to reduce the Standard to the Antient Parity and Purity of 'her great Grand-father Edward IV. and that it was not the ſhort 'end of wits, nor ſtarting holes of devices, that can ſuſtain the ex'pence of a Monarchy, but ſound and ſolid courſes: for ſo are the ‘words. She followed their advice, and began to reduce the Moneys to their elder goodneſs, ſtyling this work in her firſt Proclamation Anno 3. a famous Act. The next year following Ann. 3. having perfected it, as it after ſtood, ſhe telleth her people by another Edict, That ſhe had conquered now that Monſter that had ſo long devoured them; meaning the variation of the Standard. And ſo long as that ſad Adviſer lived, ſhe never (though often by Projectors importuned) could be drawn to any ſhift or change in her moneys.

‘To avoid the trouble of permutation, Coyns were deviſed as a rule and meaſure of Merchandize, and Manufactories, which if mutable, no man can tell either what he hath, or what he oweth; no contract can be certain, and ſo all commerce both publick and private is deſtroyed, and men again enforced to permutation with things not ſubject to will and fraud.

‘They cannot, ſaith Bodin, alter the price of moneys to the prejudice of the ſubject, without incurring the reproach of Faux moneyans: And therefore ſtories term Phillip de Belle falſificator de monet. Integritas debet quæri ubi vultus noſter Imprimatur, ſaid Theodoret the Goth to his Mint-maſter, Quidnam erit tutum ſi noſtra peccetur effigie? Princes muſt not ſuffer their Faces to warrant falſhood.

‘Although ſome are not of opinion with the Minor des Juſtices, the Antienteſt Book of the Common Law, that Le Roy ne veut ſa money impaire ne amander ſans l’aſſent des touts les Counties, which was the great Council of the Kingdom: Yet we may paſs over the goodneſs and grace of many other our Kings, as Edward I. Edward III. Henry IV. and V. and others, who out of the Rule of their Juſtice, Quod ad omnes ſpectat, ab omnibus debet approbari, have often adviſed with their people in Parliament, both for the Allay, Weight, Number of Pieces, Rate of Coynage and Exchange; and moſt with infinite goodneſs acknowledge the Care and Juſtice now of my good Maſter, and your Lordſhips Wiſdoms, that would not upon the information of ſome few Officers of the Mint, before a free and careful debate, put in execution this project: yet I muſt under your Lordſhips favour, ſuſpect it would have taken away the tenth part of every mans due Debt or Rent already reſerved throughout the Realm, not ſparing the King; which could have been little leſs than a Species of that which the Roman Stories call Tabula nova, from whence every Sedition hath ſprung; as that of Marius Grantidianus in Livy, who pretending in his Conſulſhip, that the Currant money was waſted, called in and altered the Standard; which grew ſo heavy and grievous to the people, (as the Author ſaith, becauſe thereby no man knoweth certainly his wealth) that it cauſed a Tumult.

‘In this laſt part, which is the diſ-profit that the enfeebling the Coyn will bring both to his Majeſty and to the Common-wealth; I muſt diſtinguiſh the moneys of Gold and Silver as they are Bullion and Commodities, and as they are meaſures, the one of the ex-

‘trinſick quality, which is at the Kings pleaſure, as all other meaſures to name; the other, the intrinſick quality of pure metal, which is in the Merchant to value; as their meaſure ſhall be either to be leſſened or enlarged, ſo is the quantity of the Commodity that is to be exchanged: If then the King ſhall cut his Shilling or Pound in money leſs than it was before, a leſs proportion of ſuch Commodities as ſhall be exchanged for it, muſt be received; it muſt then of force follow, that all things of neceſſity, as Victuals, Apparel, and the reſt, as well as thoſe of Pleaſure, muſt be inhanced. If then all men ſhall receive in their Shillings and Pounds a leſs proportion of Silver and Gold than they did before this projected alteration; and pay for what they buy at a rate inhanced, it muſt caſt upon all a double loſs. What the King will ſuffer by it in the Rents of his Lands, is demonſtrated enough by the alteration ſince the 18th of Edward III. when all the Revenues of the Crown came unto the receipts, pondere & numero, after five Groats the Ounce; which ſince that time, by ſeveral changes of the Standard, is come to five Shillings, whereby the King hath two third parts of his juſt Revenues.

‘In his Cuſtoms, the Book of Rates being regulated by Pounds and Shillings, his Majeſty muſt loſe alike, and ſo in all and whatſoever moneys that after this he muſt receive; the profits of his Coynage cannot be much more permanent, the loſs laſting, and ſo long it tendeth to the diminiſhing of his Revenue; for in every pound tail of Gold is 7. Ounces 1 Penny weight and 19 Grains loſs, which is twenty five pounds in account: and in ſeven hundred pound tail of Silver 14 l. 17 s. more. And his Majeſty ſhall undergo all this loſs hereafter in all his receipts, ſo ſhall he no leſs in all his disburſements: the wages of his Soldiers muſt be rateably advanced, as the money is decreaſed. This Edward III. as appeareth by the Accounts of the Wardrobe and Exchequer, (as all the Kings after him) was enforced to do, as often as he leſſened the Standard of the moneys. What ſhall be bought for his Majeſties ſervice, muſt in like manner be inhanced on him. As his Majeſty hath the greateſt profits of receipts and iſſues, ſo muſt he of neceſſity taſte of the moſt loſs by this device.

‘It will deſtroy or diſcourage a great proportion of the Trade in England; impair his Majeſties Cuſtoms; for that part being not the leaſt that paſſeth upon truſt and credit, will be overthrown: for all men being doubtful of diminution hereby of their perſonal eſtates, will call in their moneys already out, and no man will part with that which is lying by him upon apparent loſs, as this muſt bring: What dammage may befall the State by ſuch a ſudden change of Trade, is ſubmitted to conſideration.

‘The moneys both of Gold and Silver, formerly Coyned and abroad, richer than thoſe intended, will be tranſported: which I conceive to be none of the leaſt Inducements that hath drawn ſo many Goldſmiths to ſide in this Project, that they may be thereby Factors for the Strangers, who by the Law of Mintage, bring but two ſhillings Silver to the pound weight, and four ſhillings for Gold; whereas with us, the one is two ſhillings ſix pence, and the other five ſhillings; many make that profit beyond the Sea, they cannot here; and ſo his Majeſties Mint will be unſet of work.

An. 1640.

‘And as his Majeſties loſs appeareth in the alteration of money a fourteenth in the Silver, and a twenty fifth part in all the Gold he after ſhall receive; ſo ſhall it be with the Gentry and Nobility, and all other Landed men in all their former ſetled Rents, Annuities, Penſions and ſumms of money: the like will fall upon the Labourers and Work-men in their Statute Wages: and as their receipts are leſſened hereby, ſo are their iſſues increaſed either by improving all prices, diſ-furniſhing the Market, which muſt neceſſarily follow; for in the fifth of Edward VI. 3 Mary, 4 Eliz. as appeareth by their Proclamations, a Rumour only of alteration cauſed ſuch effects; and they puniſhed the Authors of ſuch reports, with Impriſonment and Pillory. It cannot be doubted, but the projecting of ſuch a change muſt be of far greater conſequence and danger to the State, and it would be wiſhed, that the Actors and Authors of ſuch diſturbances in the Common-wealth at all times hereafter, might undergo a puniſhment proportionable.

‘It cannot be held an advice of beſt Judgement, that layeth the loſs upon our ſelves, and the gain upon our Enemies: for who are like to be in this the greateſt thrivers? Is it not viſible, that the Strangers who import money for Bullion, our own Goldſmiths who are their Brokers, and the Hedge-Minters of the Netherlands (as one termed them well) will have a freſh and full Trade by this abaſement? And we cannot do the Spaniſh King, our greateſt Enemy, a greater favour than by this, who being Lord of the Commodities by his Weſt-Indies, we ſhall ſo advance them to our Impoveriſhment: for it is not in the power of any State to raiſe the price of their own Commodities: But it is the value that their Neighbours ſet upon them. Experience hath taught us, that the enfeebling of the Coyn, is but a ſhift for a while, as Drink to one in a Dropſie, to make him ſwell the more: But the State was never thoroughly cured, as we ſaw in Henry the Eighth's time, and the late Queens, until the Coyn was made rich again.

‘To conclude, If the proportion of Gold and Silver to each other be wrought to that purity, by the advice of the Artiſts, that neither may be too rich for the other, that the Mintage may be reduced to ſome proportion of Neighbour parts. and that the Iſſue of Native Commodities may be brought to overballance the entrance of the Foreign, we need not ſeek any ſhift; but ſhall again ſee our Trade to flouriſh, the Mint, as the Pulſe of the Common-wealth, again to beat; and our Materials by Induſtry, to be Mines of Gold and Silver, (which we all wiſh and work for) ſupported unto us, and the honour of Juſtice, and profit of his Majeſty.

ON the fifteenth of Auguſt the Lord Conway having received certain Intelligence that the Scots would on ſuch a day enter England, writ to the effect following to Mr. Secretary Windebanke for the Information of the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

Lord Conway for the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

Mr. Secretary,

MY time is very ſhort, I now received your Letter, I have within theſe two hours word brought to me, [I pray you tell my Lord of Canterbury, that it is by that man I did write laſt to him, that I have ſent into Scotland and gave him ſixteen pounds] that the Scotch Army, as he doth aſſure me upon his life, and bids me hang him if it be not ſo, will upon Munday or Tueſday next come into England, that they will upon Saturday be before this Town, which they ſay they will take or here be broken, from hence they intend to go to Yorkſhire, &c.

ON the 20th of Auguſt the King began his Journey from London towards York in ſome haſte, upon information that the Scots were ready to enter the Kingdom with an Army, which accordingly they did on the ſame twentieth of Auguſt.

Auguſt 20 Proclamation againſt ſupplying the Scots.

On which day his Majeſty publiſhed a Proclamation, whereby he declared that all thoſe of Scotland who have already entred, or hereafter ſhall preſume to enter in an Hoſtile manner into any part of the Kingdom of England, and their adherents, aſſiſtants and others, who ſhall ſupply them with Money, Munition, Victuals or other Proviſions, ſhall be adjudged Traitors againſt his Majeſty his Crown and Dignity, and incurr the Penalties of High Treaſon; yet the King declares he will forgive the Scots if they return to obedience, and profeſſeth it before God and the World as often formerly, and in his late Declaration he hath done, and that he never did nor will hinder his Subjects of Scotland from the enjoying of their Religion and Liberties according to the Eccleſiaſtical, Civil and Municipal Laws of that Kingdom, and according to his promiſe and their deſires ſubſcribed by themſelves at the Pacification, but that he will govern them as a juſt and Religious Prince, in aſſurance whereof if they will yet acknowledge their former Crimes and Exorbitancies and in humble and ſubmiſs manner like penitent Delinquents crave Pardon for what is paſt, and yield Obedience for the time to come, they ſhall ſtill find that his Majeſty will be more ſenſible of their due Conformity and Obedience, than he hath been of their Rebellions, that he rather deſires their Reformation than their Deſtruction.

* Upon Spy Cragg and other places.

* Whence probably Edenburgh took its name.

IN Expectation of the Entrance of the Scotiſh Army, the Privy Council ſitting at White-Hall this day ſent Letters directed to the Lieutenants of the Counties of Cumberland and Weſtmerland, requiring firſt that ſtrict Watches be kept upon the Paſſages of the Borders into Scotland by the ſeveral Townſhips as formerly hath been * accuſtomed in time of Hoſtility. Secondly, That the Beacons be Watched and kept ſerviceable. Thirdly, That ſearch be made of what ſtore of Corn there was in any of the Granaries on the other ſide of the River * Eden, betwixt it and Scotland, and that no Perſon ſhall keep more proviſion of any kind than ſhall ſerve their Family for a Week, and that the reſt be put into ſafe places. Fourthly, That it being the uſual manner in thoſe parts to put a thouſand or fifteen hundred Cattle to Paſture in the Summer time, and to have none but a boy or two to look to them; thoſe who receive the profits of thoſe Cattle ſhall be compelled to keep ſo many Herdſmen as may preſently upon warning, drive thoſe Cattle over the Eden, that they may be ſecured from the Pillage of the Enemy.

The names of the chief Commanders of the Scotch Army. Their ſtrength in Horſe and Foot.

THE beſt intelligence we could get of the ſtrength of the Scotiſh Army on their march towards England was, that they conſiſted of 20000 Foot, and 2500 Horſe, commanded by General Leſly in chief, Earl of Kallender Lieutenant General, Alex. Hamilton Major General of Artillery, and Colonel Bailey Major General of the Army. There were many other Noblemen, Barons and Gentlemen who were Commanders in the Army, who marched with them as a ſtanding Committee of the Army, conſiſting of ſix Noblemen, ſix Barons, ſix Burgeſſes, beſides the General Officers.

The Scots enter England.

ON Thurſday the 20th of Auguſt one part of the Scotch Army marched over the River Tweed at a Ford named Cald Streame into England, and another part of their Army at a Ford lower down upon the ſame River; The Earl of Montroſs commanded the Vaunt-Guard, and firſt took the River, the Colledge of Juſtice Troop conſiſting of one hundred and ſixty Gentlemen commanded by Sir Thomas Hope rode upon the right wing of the Foot, which helpt to break the ſtream; that night they encamped at a place called Hirſlaw in England bordering on Scotland.

F*Riday Auguſt* 21. they marched from thence and pitched that night on Misfield Moore, but the Horſe lay at ſeveral Villages thereabouts.

S*aturday Auguſt* 22. they marched to Middleton Haugh near Wooller, and that night ſome of the Berwick Troops came out and fell upon part of the Camp, and ſeized three Field pieces, but the Alarm being quickly taken, they were preſently regained, and the Berwick Troops forced to retreat, and ſome of them taken Priſoners.

Aug. 23. THE next day being Sunday, Auguſt 23. after Sermon they removed from Middleton Haugh, and Encamped that night at Branton Field.

24. MUnday Auguſt 24. they removed from thence and Encamped on the Hill betwixt the New and Old Towns of Eglingam or Eglington.

25. TUeſday Auguſt 25. they Marchedfrom thence and Encamped that night at Nether Wotten.

26. WEdneſday Auguſt 26. they removed from thence and pitched that night on the Eaſt part of a Village called Creich or ſome ſuch name.

27. THurſday Auguſt 27. they marched from thence and Encamped their Army about Newborne upon Tyne, a Town of the Earl of Northumberland's, four miles Weſt from Newcaſtle.

It is to be obſerved that at the Scots entry into England, they publiſhed certain Conſiderations to manifeſt the Lawfulneſs of their Expedition, and declared the intention thereof to their Brethren here in England (as they called them) which Conſiderations were as followeth.

Six Conſiderations of the Lawfulneſs of their Expedition into England manifeſted.

Conſiderations to juſtifie the Scots expedition into England.

'AS from the beginning till this time, we have attempted nothing preſumptuouſly in this great work of Reformation, but have proceeded upon good grounds, and have been led forward by the good hand of God; ſo now, from our own perſwaſion, are we ready to anſwer every one that asketh us a reaſon of this our preſent expedition, which is one of the greateſt and moſt notable parts of this wonderful work of God, beſeeching all to lift up their minds above their own particulars, and without prejudice or partiality, to lay to heart the Conſiderations following.

'Firſt, As all men know and confeſs what is the great force of neceſſity, and how it doth juſtifie actions otherways unwarrantable, ſo it cannot be denyed but we muſt either ſeek our peace in England at this time, or lye under the heavy burdens which we are not able to bear.

'1. We muſt maintain Armies on the Borders, and all places neareſt to hazard, for the defence and preſervation of our Countrey, which by laying down of Armes, and disbanding of our Forces, ſhould be quickly over-run by hoſtile invaſion, and the incurſions of our enemies.

'2. We ſhall want trade by Sea, which would not only deprive the Kingdom of many neceſſaries, but utterly undo our Boroughs, Mer-

An. 1640. ‘Merchants, Mariners, and many others who live by Fiſhing, and by Commodities Exported and Imported, and whoſe particular callings are utterly made void, by want of Commerce with other Nations and Sea-trade.

‘3. The Subjects through the whole Kingdom, ſhall want adminiſtration of Juſtice; and although this time paſt, the marvellous power and providence of God hath kept the Kingdom in order and quietneſs without any Judicatories ſitting, yet cannot this be expected for afterward, but ſhall turn to confuſion. Any one of the three, much more all of them put together threaten us with moſt certain ruine, unleſs we ſpeedily uſe the remedy of this Expedition. And this we ſay not from fear, but from feeling: for we have already felt to our unſpeakable prejudice, [what it is to maintain Armies, what to want traffick, what to want adminiſtration of Juſtice.] And if the beginning of theſe evils be ſo heavy, what ſhall the growth and long continuance of them prove unto us? ſo miſerable a being all men would judge, to be worſe than no being.

‘Secondly, If we conſider the nature and quality of this Expedition, it is defenſive, and ſo the more juſtifiable. For proof hereof let it be remembred,

‘1. The Kings Majeſty miſled by the crafty and cruel faction of our Adverſaries began this years war, not we. When articles of pacification had been the other year agreed upon, Armes laid down, Forts and Caſtles rendred, an Aſſembly kept, and concluded with the preſence and conſent of his Majeſties High Commiſſioner, the promiſed Ratification thereof in Parliament (contrary to the foreſaid Articles) was denyed unto us, and when we would have informed his Majeſty by our Commiſſioners, of the reaſons and manner of our proceedings, they got not ſo much as preſence or audience. Thereafter his Majeſty being content to hear them, before that they came to Court or were heard, War was concluded againſt us at the Council Table of England, and a Commiſſion given to the Earl of Northumberland for that effect.

‘1. The Parliaments of Ireland and England were alſo convocate, for granting Subſidies unto this war againſt us, as is notoure, Plots have been hatcht, and military preparations made againſt us: many invaſions by Sea, which have ſpoiled us of our ſhips and goods: men, women and children killed in Edenburgh by his Majeſties Forces in the Caſtle: Our enemies therefore are the authors and beginners of the War, and we defenders only.

‘2. We intend not the hurt of others, but our own peace and preſervation, neither are we to offer any injury or violence: And therefore have furniſhed our ſelves according to our power with all neceſſaries, not to fight at all, except we be forced to it in our own defence, as our Declaration beareth.

‘3. We ſhall retire and lay down Armes, as ſoon as we ſhall get a ſure peace, and ſhall be ſatisfied in our juſt demands. Upon which ground even ſome of thoſe who would ſeem the greateſt Royaliſts, hold the Wars of the Proteſtants in France againſt the King, and the faction of the Guiſians to have been lawful defenſive Wars, becauſe they were ever ready to diſband and quiet themſelves, ‘ſelves, when they got aſſurance of peace and liberty of Religion. Now this preſent Expedition being in the nature of it defenſive, hence it appeareth that it is not contrary, but conſonant to our former Proteſtations, Informations and Remonſtrances: In all which there is not one word againſt defenſive War in this cauſe; but ſtrong reaſons for it, all which militate for this expedition.

‘Our firſt information ſent to England this year, though it accurſeth all offenſive or invaſive war, yet ſheweth plainly, that if we be invaded either by Sea or Land, we muſt do as a man that fighteth himſelf out of priſon. If a private man when his houſe is blocked up, ſo that he can have no liberty of Commerce and Traffick to ſupply himſelf and family, being alſo in continual hazard of his life, not knowing when he ſhall be aſſaulted by his Enemies who lye in wait againſt him, may in this caſe moſt lawfully ſtep forth with the Forces which he can make, and fight himſelf free, of how much more worth is the whole Nation? and how ſhall one and the ſame way of defence and liberation be allowed to a private man, and diſallowed to a whole Nation?

‘Thirdly, We are called to this Expedition by that ſame divine providence and vocation which hath guided us hitherto in this great buſineſs. We ſee the expediency of it, for the glory of God, for the good of the Church, for advancing the Goſpel, for our own peace: after ſeeking of God, and begging light and direction from Heaven, our hearts are inclined to it, God hath given us zeal and courage to proſecute it, ability and opportunity for undertaking it, unanimous Reſolution upon it, ſcruples removed out of minds where they were harboured, encouragements to atchieve it from many paſſages of divine providence, and namely from the proceedings of the laſt Parliament in England, their grievances and deſires being ſo homogeneal and akin to ours, we have laboured in great long-ſuffering by Supplications, Informations, Commiſſions, and all other means poſſible, to avoid this Expedition. It was not premeditate nor affected by us (God knows) but our enemies have neceſſitated and redacted us unto it, and that of purpoſe to ſow the ſeed of National Quarrels: yet as God hitherto hath turned all their plots againſt themſelves, and to effects quite contrary to thoſe that they intended; ſo are we hopeful that our coming into England (ſo much wiſhed and deſired by our adverſaries for producing a National quarrel) ſhall ſo far diſappoint them of their aymes, that it ſhall link the two Nations together in ſtraiter and ſtronger bonds, both of Civil and Chriſtian love, than ever before.

‘And that we may ſee yet further evidences of a calling from God to this voyage, we may obſerve the order of the Lords ſteps and proceedings in this work of Reformation. For, beginning at the groſs Popery of the Service Book, and Book of Canons, he hath followed the back trade of our defection, till he hath Reformed the very firſt and ſmalleſt Novations, which entered in this Church. But ſo it is, that this back trade leadeth yet further, to the Prelacy in England, the fountain whence all thoſe Babyloniſh ſtreams iſſue unto us: The Lord therefore is ſtill on the back trade, and we following him therein, cannot yet be at a ſtay. Yea, we truſt, that he ſhall ſo follow forth this trade, as to chaſe home the Beaſt, and the falſe Prophet to ‘Rome, and from Rome out of the world. Beſides, this third Conſideration reſulteth from the former two; for if this Expedition be neceſſary, and if it be defenſive, then it followeth inevitably, that we are called unto it, for our neceſſary defence is warranted, yea commanded by the Law of God and Nature, and we are obliged to it in our Covenant.

‘Fourthly, The lawfulneſs of this Expedition appeareth, if we conſider the party againſt whom, which is not the Kingdom of England, but the Canterburian faction of Papiſts, Atheiſts, Arminians, Prelates, the miſleaders of the Kings Majeſty, and the Common Enemies of both Kingdoms. We perſwade our ſelves, that our Brethren and Neighbours in England, will never be ſo evil adviſed, as to make themſelves a party againſt us, by their defence and patrociny of our Enemies among them, as ſometimes the Benjamites made themſelves a party againſt the Iſraelites, by defending the Gibeathites in their wicked cauſe, Judg. 20. We pray God to give them the wiſdom of the wiſe Woman in Abel, who when Joab came near to her City with an Army, found out a way which both kept Joab from being an Enemy to the City, and the City from being an Enemy to him, 2 Sam. 20. As touching the proviſion and furniture of our Army in England, it ſhall be ſuch as is uſed among friends, not among enemies. The rule of humanity and gratitude will teach them to furniſh us with neceſſaries, when as beſide the procuring of our own peace, we do good offices to them. They deteſt (we know) the churliſhneſs of Nabal, who refuſed victuals to David and his men, who had done them good and no evil, 1 Sam. 20. And the inhumanity of the men of Succoth and Penuel, who denyed bread to Gideons Army, when he was purſuing the Common Enemies of all Iſrael, Judg. 8. But let the Engliſh do of their benevolence, what humanity and diſcretion will teach them; For our own part our Declaration ſheweth, that we ſeek not victuals for nought, but for money or ſecurity: And if this ſhould be refuſed (which we ſhall never expect) it were as damnable as the barbarous cruelty of Edom and Moab, who refuſed to let Iſrael paſs through their Countrey, or to give them bread and water in any caſe, Numb. 20. Judg. 11. and this offence the Lord accounted ſo inexpiable, that for it he accurſed the Edomites and Moabites from entring into the Congregation of the Lord, unto the tenth Generation, Deut. 23. 3, 4.

‘Fifthly, The fifth Conſideration concerneth the end for which this Voyage is undertaken. We have atteſted the ſearcher of hearts, It is not to execute any diſloyal act againſt his Majeſty, It is not to put forth a cruel or vindictive hand againſt our Adverſaries in England, whom we deſire only to be Judged and Cenſured by their own Honourable and High Court of Parliament; It is not to enrich our ſelves with the Wealth of England, nor to do any harm thereto. But by the contrary, we ſhall gladly beſtow our pains and our means to do them all the good we can, which they might juſtly look for at our hands, for the help which they made us at our Reformation, in freeing us from the French, a bond of peace and love betwixt them and us to all generations. Our Conſcience, and God who is greater than our Conſcience beareth us record, that we aim 'altogether at the glory of God, peace of both Nations, and honour of the King, in ſuppreſſing and puniſhing (in a legal way) of thoſe who are the troublers of Iſrael the firebrands of Hell, the Korhas, the Baalams, the Doegs, the Rabſhakahs, the Hamans, the Tobiahs and Sanballats of our time, which done, we are ſatisfied. Neither have we begun to uſe a military Expedition to England, as a mean for compaſſing thoſe our pious ends, till all other means which we could think upon have failed us, and this alone is left to us as ultimum & unicum remedium, the laſt and only remedy.

'Sixthly, If the Lord ſhall bleſs us in this our expedition, and our intentions ſhall not be croſſed by our own ſins and miſcarriage, or by the oppoſition of the Engliſh, the fruits ſhall be ſweet, and the effects comfortable to both Nations, to the Poſterity, and to the Reformed Kirks abroad: Scotland ſhall be Reformed as at the beginning, the Reformation of England long prayed and pleaded for the Godly thereby ſhall be according to their wiſhes and deſires, perfected in Doctrine, Worſhip and Diſcipline. Papiſts, Prelates, and all the members of the Antichriſtian Hierarchy, with their Idolatry, Superſtition, and humane Inventions ſhall pack from hence, the names of Sects and Separatiſts ſhall no more be mentioned, and the Lord ſhall be one, and his name one throughout the whole Iſland, which ſhall be glory to God, honour to the King, Joy to the Kingdoms, comfort to the poſterity, example to other Chriſtian Kirks, and Confuſion to the incorrigible Enemies.

The Covenanters alſo diſperſed another Paper in Juſtification of their intentions to come into England, which ſee at large in the Appendix.

On the twentieth of Auguſt the King publiſhed a Proclamation to ſummon all ſuch as hold of his Majeſty by grand Sergeanty, Eſcuage, or Knights-Service, to do their ſervices againſt the Scots, according to their tenures.

Whereas the King's Majeſty intends forthwith in his own perſon, or by his Lieutenant, with an Army Royal, to go in War againſt the Scots (by Gods aſſiſtance) to repreſs their Treaſons and rebellions, and for that end hath already begun his journey towards the Northern parts of this Kingdom, his Majeſty therefore doth hereby require and ſtraitly charge and command, all Lords Spiritual and Temporal, Baronets, Knights, Eſquires, Gentlemen, and all others of what eſtate or condition ſoever, who hold of his Majeſty by grand Sergeanty, or hold of his Majeſty or of any of his Wards by Eſcuage, or Knights Service (and are thereby bound to go in their own perſons, or to find others for them to go with his Majeſty, or his Lieutenant in the ſaid War againſt the ſaid Rebels) That they take knowledge of this his Majeſties publick Summons, and with all meet expedition after the publiſhing hereof, and at the fartheſt before the twentieth day of September next, be ready furniſht with Horſe and Armes for performance of their ſaid Services, at the Town of Newcaſtle upon Tyne, or at ſuch other place where his Majeſties ſaid Army ſhall then reſide; from thence to go with his Majeſty, or his Lieutenant in War againſt the ſaid Rebels: and hereof they may not fail, under the penalties of the Law, and as they tender the Service of his Majeſty, and the ſafety of the Kingdom.

Nevertheleſs, for ſuch as do ſo hold of his Majeſty, or of his ſaid Wards, who upon juſt occaſions ſhall ſeek to be ſpared and diſpenſed with, for their attendance and ſervice in this Expedition, his Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed, and hath authorized the Lord Treaſurer, Chancellour and Barons of his Exchequer for the time being, or any two or more of them (whereof the Lord Treaſurer or Chancellour to be one) upon fines to his Majeſties uſe, to admit to compoſition, and compound with ſuch of thoſe Tenants, as they ſhall think fit to be ſpared and diſpenced with for this preſent Service, whom his Majeſty doth hereby declare ſhall be freed and exempted accordingly: ſo as they ſhall make their ſaid Compoſitions before the ſaid twentieth day of September next, whereby his Majeſty may be provided of other meet perſons in their turn to perform the ſaid Services.

Given at our Court at White-Hall the twentieth day of Auguſt in the ſixteenth year of his Majeſties Raign.

White-Hall Aug. 20. 1640.

A PROCLAMATION

For the Levying and payment of the Ship-Money in Arrear.

WHereas his Majeſty out of his Princely care of the Defence of this Realm and ſafety of his Subjects, underſtanding of the great preparations of Shipping beyond the Seas, as well this preſent year as in divers years preceding, and the imminent Perils thereby appearing on every ſide in theſe Dangerous and Warlike times; For the ſpeedy Defence of this Kingdom and People, guarding of the Seas, and ſecure Conduct of Shipping and Merchandize (wherein all his Subjects were concerned) did as well for divers years paſt, as in November laſt, direct his ſeveral Writs to ſeveral Sheriffs, Mayors, Bayliffs, and other his Officers and Subjects of the ſeveral Counties of England and Wales, Thereby Commanding the Providing and Setting in readineſs certain Ships furniſhed with Ordnance and Arms, and Manned and Victualled at the Charges of the ſaid Counties, in ſuch ſort as by the ſame Writs were appointed: but his Majeſty finding that the ſaid Ships were not provided according to the Tenour of the ſaid Writs, nor the Moneys Levyed (according to the Eſtimates yearly given by the Lords and Others of his Majeſties Privy Council) for ſetting forth thoſe Ships, his Majeſty for the Common Defence and Safety of his Kingdom and People, was conſtrained at his own great Charges, yearly to make out and maintain that Shipping which he expected from his Subjects.

And therefore his Majeſty as he cannot but cenſure the moſt of his Sheriffs and other his Miniſters of great neglect in the Execution of that ſervice, according to their Oaths and the Duty of their places, ſo he will now expect from them an Undelayed and faithful performance of the ſame without favour or connivance. And to that end, his Majeſty doth hereby ſtraitly Charge and Command all his preſent Sheriffs, Bayliffs, and other his Officers and Miniſters to whom it appertaineth, forthwith not only to Raiſe and Levy the ſaid moneys appointed to be Collected and Raiſed for the Providing and Furniſhing the ſaid Ships for this preſent Year, But alſo to give forth their Warrants to the preceding Sheriffs, Mayors and other Officers reſpectively for the Raiſing and Levying of thoſe Arrears which happened in their times: And that as well the Sheriffs, Mayors and other Officers for this preſent year, as thoſe for the year paſt, who are in Arrear to his Majeſty ſhall make their payments Reſpectively to the Treaſurer of his Majeſties Navy at or before the firſt day of November next, without further Reſpite or delay upon pain of high Contempt againſt his Majeſty, and to be further proceeded with and puniſhed according to the Quality of their Offences in that which ſo much importeth the publick good and ſafety of the Kingdom.

Orders to the Lord Keeper to iſſue out Commiſſions of Array.

ON the ſame twentieth of Auguſt the Kings Attorney preſented the Lords of the Council at White-Hall a Copy of a Commiſſion of Array ſetled by Parliament in 5 Hen. 4. and upon debate had thereupon, it was ordered that the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal ſhall iſſue out Commiſſions of Array in the form aforeſaid for each of the Counties of England and Wales, directed to the Lords Lieutenants and Sheriffs of the Counties, and to ſuch of the Lieutenants or others being three or more as the ſaid Lord Lieutenants ſhould recommend. And his Majeſty and the Board declared that there was no intention by theſe Commiſſions of Array to derogate from or in any ſort to abridge the Commiſſions of Lieutenancy, but that the Lords Lieutenants may make uſe of both theſe concurrent Commiſſions where they ſhall find a fit occaſion for the advancement of his Majeſties Service. And accordingly the Lord Keeper was directed forthwith to take effectual care herein.

The Deputy Lieutenants of Devonſhire raiſe a doubt about the Commiſſions of Array.

THE Deputy Lieutenants of Devonſhire about this time repreſented to the Earl Marſhal two difficulties in putting the Trained Bands and other Forces in readineſs to march and ſerve in the common Defence. Firſt, the diſtraction among the Gentry and others, unto which ſervice perſonally to apply themſelves; that which the Trained Bands required as aforeſaid, or the other according to Eſcuage and tenures in Knights Service, both of them being Commanded by Proclamation. Secondly, the way of raiſing money for the Charge of the ſaid Bands and Forces when they ſhall be required to March.

In theſe objected difficulties directions being deſired from the Council Table, they anſwered that the ſervice impoſed upon the Trained Bands and other Forces for the Common Defence by his Majeſties Letters and Proclamation is carefully to be performed by every man in his own perſon, but for that attendance on his Majeſty required by the other Proclamation according to the tenures in Knights Service, it may and will ſuffice that the ſame be done by Deputy, or elſe that perſons ſo holding their Lands give ſatisfaction by way of Compoſition; and for the other difficulty how to provide for the Charge of theſe Forces when they ſhall March, it was ordered by them that not only the Laws and Cuſtomes of this Kingdom require that in time of actual invaſion every man ſerve in the common defence at his own charge, but that the very Law of nature doth teach and oblige us thereunto without ſticking or ſtaying upon any ſuch terms or queſtions, and that it hath been the Cuſtome and Practice within this Kingdom both in Ancient and Modern times when there was a doubt and fear of Invaſion; but this preſent danger is paſt all manner of doubt by an actual Invaſion of the Scottiſh Rebels with ſo great an Army that his Majeſties Subjects in the North ſerve him cheerfully at their own charges with Bodies and Fortunes, it was hoped that the Subjects in other parts would take the like care for the iſſuing of the Commiſſions of Array into the ſeveral Counties, and for thoſe Counties which were under the Lieutenancies of thoſe Lords that attended his Majeſty into the North, or were ſo imployed in his Majeſties Service, that they could not be preſent within their own Lieutenancies, that the Commiſſions ſhould be directed to ſuch Perſons of Quality and worth as the Lords Lieutenants ſhall thereunto name and recommend to the Lord Keeper.

The Earl Marſhal ordered to Execute the Commiſſion of Array, the Scots being Entred into England.

THE Earl Marſhal of England had a Commiſſion to command all Forces on the South ſide Trent, and by his Majeſties private Inſtructions was enjoyned to receive the advice and direction of the Privy Council, or of ſix or more of them. And it being made known to the Board that the Scots were paſſed over the River Tweed, and were entred and marched with great Forces within this Kingdom, and the Earl Marſhal moving their Lordſhips for their direction, it was ordered by the Board, that the ſaid Earl ſhall proceed forthwith to Execute his Commiſſion, and that for this end he ſhall write Letters to all the Lords Lieutenants, and in their abſence to the Deputy Lieutenants of all the Counties within his Commiſſion to require them to have in readineſs not only the Trained Bands both Horſe and Foot of their ſeveral Lieutenancies, but to put all other perſons that are able either in Body or Eſtate to do Service, into the beſt Order they can for Arms both for Horſe and Foot, to be ready either to defend the County in which they dwell, or to come under the Command and Conduct of their Lords Lieutenants or their Deputy Lieutenants to ſuch Rendezvouz elſewhere, and ſuch times for Defence of the Publick, as the ſaid Earl Marſhal or his Lieutenants ſhall appoint, and to be all in ſuch readineſs as they may be able to March at twenty four hours warning after command received from him.

ON the twenty third day of Auguſt, his Majeſty having in three dayes Arrived at York, the next day Auguſt 24. the Gentry of that County waited upon his Majeſty at the Pallace called the Mannor at York, and preſented him a ſecond Petition to the effect following;

The ſecond Petition of the Gentry to his Majeſty at York.

‘WHereas there was an humble Petition lately preſented unto ‘your Majeſty by divers of the now Petitioners, and others of ‘the Nobility and Gentry of this County, without any intention of ‘Tumult though ſo conceived, touching the preſſure then lying up‘on the County by the Billeting of Souldiers, with intimation of ‘an hundred thouſand pound Expended by the County concerning ‘Military affairs the laſt year in your Majeſties Service, the Calcula‘tion of which ſumm by the anſwer to the ſaid Petition was held ‘exorbitant and much miſtaken, the truth whereof and the reſt of ‘the Petition we ſhall in all humility make appear if your Majeſty ‘require it, and we moſt humbly ſupplicate your Majeſty to be gra‘ciouſly pleaſed that we be not for the future debarred of the imme‘diate Petitioning to your moſt Sacred perſon, in matters wherein ‘the publick good and ſafety of this County ſhall be intereſſed.

‘And whereas your Majeſty did yeſterday to our great comfort ‘and encouragement declare your Royal intentions to lead on the ‘Trained Bands of this Countrey to the Frontiers of the ſame, for ‘the defence and ſafety of your Royal Perſon and Countrey, where‘to with all cheerfulneſs we humbly offer our beſt endeavours, with ‘our moſt humble thanks for ſo gracious a favour:

‘Yet ſo it is, moſt Gracious Soveraign, that the poverty of this ‘Countrey is ſuch that we conceive they cannot be drawn to Raiſe ‘and March without fourteen dayes pay from your Majeſty before they ‘move, upon receipt whereof we are confident they will be ready ‘to March under your Majeſties ſole Command, to ſuch Rendezvouz ‘as your Majeſty ſhall appoint within this County, humbly deſiring ‘your moſt Excellent Majeſty, that ſeeing the Armes of this County ‘will be twelve thouſand Foot, and four hundred Horſe, a conſide‘rable number, that we may not be diſunited upon any occaſion of ‘ſervice.

AVguſt 26. Whereas it is formerly mentioned that the Lords of the Privy Council had writ ſeveral Letters to ſecure the perſons of ſuch Souldiers in Eſſex as had in their March mutined and committed Inſolencies, and Information being further given that others of thoſe new Levyed Souldiers had broke into a Church, pulled away the Communion Table from the Altar, &c. and burnt the Railes that were about it, before the door of the Miniſters Houſe, frightning him therewith, ſo that he forſook his Houſe for a time; Now the Aſſizes being near at hand, the Lords of the Privy Council thought fit to write this enſuing Letter.

Commiſſioners to attend the tryal of the Eſſex Offenders.

'THeir Lordſhips this day ſitting in Council upon weighty and good Conſiderations, did think fit and order that the Earl of Warwick, and the Lord Maynard, Lords Lieutenants for the County of Eſſex, ſhould be hereby prayed and required to give Command, and provide that all the Commiſſioners appointed in his Majeſties late Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer, iſſued for the enquiry and puniſhment of the late Rioters and ſuch like Offenders within that County, ſhould not fail of being preſent, together with the ſaid Lords Lieutenants themſelves in their own perſons, at the time of executing the ſaid Commiſſion, and of the Trial that is to be had of the ſaid offenders, and more eſpecially that the ſaid Lords Lieutenants, Sir Thomas Barrington, Sir Harbottle Grimſton, Knights and Baronets, and Sir William Hix, Baronet, do by no means fail of being preſent thereat, together with the Judges, and attending upon the ſaid Commiſſion, until the ſame be fully executed. Whereof they the ſaid Lords Lieutenants for themſelves and all the ſaid Commiſſioners, more eſpecially the three Gentlemen herein named, are hereby required to take notice, and to govern themſelves accordingly.

Aug. 26. Directions for Commiſſions of Array to ſome fit perſons, for as much as the Earl of Northumberland, &c. cannot be in perſon in the North.

'WHereas the Kings Moſt Excellent Majeſty before his departure for the Northern parts, did declare and give order that Commiſſions of Array ſhould be diſpatched into all the Counties of England and Wales, whereby the better to enable the Lords Lieutenants in doing his Majeſties ſervice, according to the ſeveral duties of their places, in this ſtirring and dangerous time: Their Lordſhips having this day taken conſideration thereof, together with the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, now preſent in Council, It was thought fit and ordered, that his Lordſhip ſhould forthwith take effectual care for the iſſuing thoſe Commiſſions accordingly. And that the Commiſſion to be iſſued for the County of Cumberland, which is under the Earl of Arundel and Surry, Earl Marſhal of England, and of his Son the Lord Maltravers, that in regard neither the ſaid Earl nor his Son can perſonally be preſent in the ſaid County by reaſon of their other ſaid great occaſions of his Majeſties Service in theſe Southern Parts; as alſo the Commiſſion for the County of Northumberland, which is under the Earl of Northumberland, Lord High Admiral of England, that in regard the ſaid Lord High Admiral cannot be perſonally preſent in the ſaid County of Northumberland by reaſon of his Lordſhips extremity of Sickneſs; It was ordered, that the ſeveral Commiſſions for thoſe Counties ſhould be directed to ſuch perſons of Quality and Worth, 'whom the ſaid Lords Lieutenants ſhould thereto name, and recommend unto the Lord Keeper. And that the like courſe ſhould be taken for the Counties, which are under the Lieutenancies of the Lord Chamberlain, and the Earl of Holland, and ſuch other Lords Lieutenants, who being now tyed to attend his Majeſty in perſon in the North, cannot themſelves be preſent in their Lieutenancies, who are to have notice of this their Lordſhips Order, and are hereby to be prayed and required to ſend ſuch names unto the Lord Keeper, of perſons upon whom they can confide, that the ſame may be inſerted in the ſaid Commiſſion, who in abſence of the ſaid Lords Lieutenants, are thereby to be Authoriſed for the full performance of all Service required by the aforeſaid Commiſſion to be iſſued for the Biſhop of Durham, Lord Lieutenant of that County Palatine, which Commiſſion of Array is to be directed unto them both.

At WHITE-HALL, Aug. 26. 1640.

An Order and Direction of the Lords of the Privy Council, to put the Commiſſion of Array in Execution.

The Captain General of his Majeſties Forces on the South of Trent to take Order that all that are able to bear Armes be in readineſs, the Scots having actually invaded the Kingdom.

'WHereas the Kings Majeſty having for the Defence of this Kingdom in this occaſion of the Rebellion of the Scots, and for other great and weighty Conſiderations given his Royal Commiſſion unto the Earl Marſhal of England of Captain General of all his Majeſties Forces on this ſide Trent, and hath by his private Inſtructions unto the ſaid Earl enjoyned his Lordſhip to receive the advice and direction of the Lords of his Council, or of ſix or more of them, who ſhall be reſident here in his Majeſties ſervice, when to put the ſame in execution, It being this day made known unto their Lordſhips by Mr. Secretary Windebanke, that the ſaid Rebels were paſſed over the River Tweede, and were entred and marched with great Forces within this Kingdom, the ſaid Earl Marſhal hereupon moving their Lordſhips, for their direction as aforeſaid, It was thought fit and ordered by the Board, that the ſaid Earl Marſhal ſhould be hereby prayed and required with all expedition to proceed to the execution of his Lordſhips ſaid Commiſſion, and that for this end he ſhould write Letters to all the Lords Lieutenants, and in their abſence to their Deputy Lieutenants of all the Counties that are within his Commiſſion, whereby to require them to have in readineſs, not only all the Trained Bands both Horſe and Foot of their ſeveral Lieutenancies, but likewiſe all other perſons that are able either in Body or Eſtate to do ſervice, to be put into the beſt order they can for Arms both for Horſe and Foot, and be ready either to defend the County in which they dwell, or to come under the Command and Conduct of their Lords Lieutenants, or their Deputy Lieutenants, to ſuch Rendezvouz elſewhere, and at ſuch times for the defence of the publick as the ſaid Captain General, or in his abſence his Lieutenants ſhall appoint, and all to be in ſuch readi-

‘neſs, that they may be able to march at twenty four hours warning at the fartheſt, after Command to be received from him or his Lieutenant on that behalf. And although the ſaid Captain General hath full power of himſelf to call for all Forces both of Horſe and Foot, as well Trained Bands as others within his ſaid Commiſſion to attend ſuch Rendezvouz, and at ſuch time, and upon ſuch warnings as he ſhall judge fit according to the neceſſity of affairs, Yet his Majeſty being now in the North, and ſeeing all things there at a nearer diſtance, It was further thought fit and ordered by their Lordſhips, that his Majeſties Attorney General ſhould prepare a Draught of a Proclamation fit for his Majeſties ſignature, to declare his Majeſties pleaſure in the premiſes, to the end that all true obedience, aid and aſſiſtance may be given unto the Commands and Directions of the ſaid Earl Marſhal and his Lieutenant from time to time in the execution of his Lordſhips aforeſaid Commiſſion; Nevertheleſs his Majeſties pleaſure is that for ſuch Forces as are or ſhall be Commanded by himſelf, or Levyed by his Majeſties Captain General of his Army, for his Majeſties ſervice in the North, that they ſhall be ſpared from ſerving in his Majeſties Army on this ſide Trent.

A Warrant with General Directions as followeth.

‘WHereas there are ſix Waggons and two Carts now ſent towards his Majeſties Army in the North parts, under the Charge of the bearer hereof, Henry Bold, with divers Proviſions for our very good Lord the Earl of Strafford, Lord Lieutenant General of his Majeſties ſaid Army, Theſe are ſtraitly to Charge and Command you and every of you, whom it may concern, in caſe any of the ſaid Waggons and Carts, or the Horſes belonging to them, ſhould fail in that Journey, the ſaid Henry Bold paying for them ſuch reaſonable prices as are accuſtomed in his Majeſties like ſervices. And we do likewiſe hereby Will and Command you to give any other further aſſiſtance herein, which ſhall be needful for the ſafe and ſpeedy paſſage of the ſaid proviſions to his Majeſties ſaid Army, as you will anſwer the contrary at your perils. ON the twenty ſeventh of Auguſt in the Forenoon, his Majeſty received intelligence from the Lord Conway, that the Scots would that night be near Newcaſtle with their Army, craving his Majeſties pleaſure and directions, about the diſpoſing of his Army to the Interruption of the march of the Scots.

The King immediately called the Gentry of Yorkſhire then at York together, to wait upon his Majeſty, to whom the Earl of Strafford made a Speech, (the King being preſent) to the effect following.

Aug. 27. 1640.

The Earl of Strafford's Speech to the Gentry of Yorkſhire.

‘That the Scots have Invaded England; this County in former times with a ſmall help beſides, kept them within their Bounds; their pretence to Religion appears now to be nothing elſe but Rebellion and Invaſion, it is now no time of Diſputation, but of Preparation and Action; and though ſome of my Countrymen, who would fain ſeem to the World to know much of the Law, (but indeed, are ignorant and know nothing they ſhould) are loth to advance at their own Charges, I muſt let all ſuch know, that they, and ſo are we all bound out of our Allegiance to his Majeſty at our own proper Coſts and Charges to attend his Majeſty in this Service, in caſe of Invaſion, and that it is little leſs than high Treaſon in any one to refuſe it; I ſay it again, we are bound unto it by the Common Law of England, by the Law of Nature, and by the Law of Reaſon, and you are no better than Beaſts, if you refuſe in this caſe to attend the King, his Majeſty offering in perſon to lead you on; and if the laſt year ye were ſo forward to attend his Majeſty beyond the Frontiers of this County, to prevent an Invaſion, now you ſhould be far more willing, (now having already Invaded, and are on their march near Newcaſtle) It is your prudence to keep them from coming nearer to you, if they once find the ſweetneſs of your ſoyle, they will hardly depart from the ſame. In a word, Gentlemen, if you will be cloſe fiſted, and not open your purſes, nor attend the King's perſon, you muſt be content to loſe all, but if you will be free and liberal you will ſave all.

‘But Sir, I muſt not lay the whole Burthen upon this County, ſhall they bear the Burthen and the Brunt, and other Counties reap the Benefit, and not Contribute towards the Charges? Let Northamptonſhire, Leiceſterſhire and other Counties bear a proportionable part, (and great reaſon too, ſaid his Majeſty); ſpare me one word more, ſaid the Earl, for this County in eighty eight, they were brought from ſix thouſand to twelve thouſand of the Trained Bands, by reaſon of the then Preſſing occaſion, but with promiſe to be reduced to their former number, that ſervice being done; yet notwithſtanding they have continued to twelve thouſand ever ſince. I ſhall therefore become a humble ſuiter to your Majeſty, that after this ſervice done, they may be reduced to their former number, or at leaſt four thouſand to be abated; I will, ſaid the King, upon my Royal word, take off four thouſand from the twelve thouſand after this ſervice done; and I give my Lord Lieutenant thanks for his motion, though I had before declared to the Marqueſs my Intention therein.

Preſently after the Earl of Strafford had ended this Speech to the Gentry of Yorkſhire, he immediately prepared a Pacquet to be ſent Poſt to the Lord Conway, then underſtanding the Scots were come near Newcaſtle. And the Author of theſe Collections being newly come Poſt from London to York, and hearing a Pacquet was about to be ſent to Newcaſtle, took the opportunity to bear the meſſenger company thither: but when the Authour and the Meſſenger with the Pacquet came to Newcaſtle upon the twenty eighth of Auguſt in the morning, they were informed that the Lord Conway was gone to the

Army

An. 1640.

It is deliver-ed to him.

Army near Newborn, whither we went immediately, and found the Lord Conway and the Field Officers at a Council of War at Stella, half a mile diſtance from the Army, and delivered the Lord Conway the Pacquet, which being opened, it contained ſpecial Orders to prepare the Army for an Engagement with the Scots. Whileſt they were in debate of this matter, an Herauld came in all haſte from the Army to acquaint the Lord Conway and Council of War, that the Army was already engaged with the Scots; which ſeemed ſtrange to them, becauſe orders were given not to Fight but upon the Defence: but the Council of War ſuddenly broke up and haſtened to the Army. And as it was reported, Colonel Goring came out of the Room where the Council of War ſate, and publickly ſaid to ſome of the Officers, that the Lieutenant General of the Army needed not to have ſent Orders to bid them Fight whatever came of it, for the Enemy had begun the work to their hands; his Majeſty and the Earl of Strafford were at this time at York.

At the ſame time, the Army was ſuddenly Engaged.

The Scots ſend a Drummer to Newcaſtle.

IT is to be obſerved that on the ſaid twenty ſeventh of Auguſt, when the Scots encamped their Army about Newborne, General Leſly ſent his Drummer towards Newcaſtle, at which time Sir Jacob Aſhley, Colonel Goring and ſome other Commanders were riding a little out of Town to view the ground near the Walls, where they met the Drummer, who being demanded whence he came, he ſaid from General Leſly, and ſhewed two Letters, one directed to the Commander in Chief, and the other to the Mayor of Newcaſtle, which Sir Jacob Aſhley took, and read the Superſcriptions, but in regard they were Sealed, delivered them back to the Drummer, and bid him remember his ſervice to his General, and tell him no ſealed Letters ought to be received, and if he ſent any more, the bearer thereof had better ſtay at home; ſo the man with his Kettle Drums on Horſeback returned, but the Contents of the Letters were not known, conceived only to be a kind of Summons.

That night the Scots pitched their Tents on Heddon-Law above Newborne, from whence there went a continued deſcent to the River of Tyne. In the night time they made great fires in and round about their Camp on an open Mooriſh ground, (having Coals plenty thereabouts) ſo that the Camp ſeemed to be of large compaſs and extent.

That night and the next morning they ſuffered any Engliſh man to come into their Camp, and made them welcome with expreſſions of great love and proteſtations of doing harm to none but thoſe who ſhould oppoſe them in demanding Juſtice of the King againſt Incendiaries.

The ſame night part of the Kings Army conſiſting of three thouſand Foot and fifteen hundred Horſe were drawn forth into a plain Meadow ground which was near a mile in length, cloſe on the South ſide of Tyne called Newborne-Haugh or Stella-Haugh, to hinder the Scots from paſſing the River in the night time, where were two ſeveral Sconces or Breaſt-works raiſed by the Engliſh againſt the two Fords, which the Scots might paſs over at Low water, for till then they could not paſs the Tyne, and into each Sconce were put four hundred Muſqueteers and four pieces of Ordinance.

The Horſe were drawn into Squadrons in the ſaid Haugh at ſome diſtance from the Foot, in this poſture Horſe and Foot guarded the River all that night and the next day, till the engagement.

The Scots all the forenoon watered their Horſes at one ſide of the River and the Engliſh on the other ſide without affronting one another or giving any reproachful language.

The Scots having the advantage of the riſing ground above Newbourne eaſily diſcerned the poſture and motion of the Engliſh Army below in the Valley on the Southſide the River, but the poſture of the Scots Army the Engliſh could not diſcern by reaſon of the Houſes, Hedges and Incloſures in and about Newbourne. The Scots brought down Cannon into Newbourne Town, and planted ſome in the Church Steeple a ſmall diſtance from the River Tyne, their Muſqueteers were placed in the Church, Houſes, Lanes and Hedges in and about Newbourne.

The Skirmiſh began thus (as the Author of theſe Collections was informed, being then upon the place). A Scottiſh Officer well mounted having a black Feather in his Hat came out of one of the thatcht houſes in Newbourne and watered his Horſe in the River Tyne, as they had done all that day, an Engliſh Souldier perceiving he fixed his eye towards the Engliſh Trenches on the South-ſide of the River fired at him (whether in earneſt, or to fright him is not known) but wounded the Scotiſh man with the ſhot, who fell off his Horſe, whereupon the Scotiſh Muſqueteers immediately fired upon the Engliſh, and ſo the fight begun with Small-ſhot, but was continued with great ſhot as well as ſmall.

The Scots played with their Cannon upon the Engliſh Breaſtworks and Sconce; The Kings Army played with their Cannon to beat the Scots out of the Church-ſteeple; thus they continued firing on both ſides, till it grew to be near low water, and by that time the Scots with their Cannon had made a breach in the greater Sconce which Colonel Lunsford commanded, wherein many of his men were killed and began to retire, yet the Colonel prevailed with them to ſtand to their Armes, but preſently after a Captain, a Lieutenant, and ſome other officers more were ſlain in that work. Then the Souldiers took occaſion to complain that they were put upon double duty, and had ſtood there all night and that day to that time, and that no Souldiers were ſent from the Army at Newcaſtle to relieve them; but Colonel Lunsford again prevailed with them not to deſert their Works, but another Cannon-ſhot hitting in the Works amongſt the Souldiers, and killing ſome more of them, they threw down their Armes and would abide in the Fort no longer.

The Enemy on the riſing Hill above Newbourne plainly diſcerned the Poſture of the King's Army, and how the Souldiers had quit the great Work, and being low Water, the Scots commanded a Forlorn party of twenty ſix Horſe, being Gentlemen of the Colledge of Juſtice Troop, to paſs the River which they did with ſome ſwiftneſs, their orders were only to make diſcovery in what poſture the Souldiers were about the uppermoſt Work, but not to come to cloſe engagement, but fire at a diſtance and retreat.

The Scots playing at this time very hard upon the furthermoſt Trench, forced the Engliſh Foot to retreat from that work alſo, which the Scots diſcerning on the riſing ground at Newbourne, more Horſe commanded by Sr. Thomas Hope, and two Regiments of Foot commanded by the Lord Craford Lindſey and Lord Lowdon waded through the River, and General Leſly at this inſtant of time played hard with nine piece of Cannon from a new Sconce which they had raiſed on a Hill to the Eaſt, and ſo galled the King's Horſe drawn up in plain Meadow ground, that it much diſordered them, and ſending more Forces over the River, a retreat was ſounded, and Colonel Lunsford drew off the Cannon. Immediately Commiſſary Wilmot Son to the Lord Wilmot, Sr. John Digby a Romiſh Recuſant, and Daniel O Neal an Iriſh-man joyntly engaged the Enemy, and had a ſharp Encounter with their Horſe, they being commanded to bring up the Rear, whileſt the Foot retreated up Riton and Stella Banks, but the Scots with their freſh Supply newly come over the River, environed theſe three Commanders, and took them and ſome others of their Troops Priſoners; General Leſley treated theſe Commanders nobly in the Scots Camp, and afterwards gave them their liberty freely to return to the King's Army.

In this Engagement Cornet Porter, Son to Endymion Porter of the Bed-Chamber was ſlain, and during the whole Fight about ſixty men more as the Scots told us, after the Ceſſation of Armes was agreed unto; for the Scots buried the dead; and afterwards they further told us that moſt of them that were killed lay about the works; how many of the Scots were ſlain we know not. At the Engagement with the King's Horſe, none of the Scots of quality were ſlain, but Captain Macgee Son of Sr. Patrick Macgee Sheriff of Galloway, and one Mr. Thomas Dacolmy a Gentleman of the General's Life-guard.

Engliſh Army retreats to Durham.

After this retreat the Lord Conway called a Council of War, and it was there reſolved at twelve at night, that the whole Army ſhould retreat to Durham Horſe and Foot, and Train of Artillery, and to quit Newcaſtle.

THe next day being Saturday, Auguſt 29. the Lord Conway and Sr. Jacob Aſhly by five of the Clock in the Morning cauſed all the Souldiers both Foot and Horſe in Newcaſtle to march away with the Ordnance and other Warlike Proviſion to Durham, leaving Newcaſtle naked of Souldiers, and in the Afternoon Douglaſs Sheriff of Tividale came with a Trumpet, and certain Troops of Horſe to the Gates at Newcaſtle which were ſhut againſt him, and after ſome Parley and Threatning to plant Ordnance againſt the Town, the Mayor Sir Peter Riddel, Knight, (who was deſtitute of men and Armes to defend the Town) opened the Gates and ſuffered him to come in, and the next day being Sunday, fifteen Lords and Douglaſs came and dined with the Mayor, drank a health to the King, had three Sermons that day by their own Divines. On Monday after Leſly came and pitched his Tents on Gateſide hill, half a Mile South of Newcaſtle.

The Scots enter Newcaſtle.

ON Tueſday, Septemb. 1. he demanded of the Mayor of the Town to Bake certain quantities of Bread, and to Brew ſo may Tun of Beer a day, which the Mayor unwilling to undertake, the Scots employed men about it, giving money in part, and a Note in Writing as ſecurity for the reſt.

ON Thurſday, Sept. 3. there came a Smmons to Sr. William Bellaſis, Knight, Sheriff of the County Palatine of Durham, and Sr. William Lambton, Knight, two Gentlemen of good quality in the ſame County, (the latter of which was afterwards at York Battle ſlain fighting under the King's Colours), which Summons was to appear before General Leſley at his Leagure at Newcaſtle on Saturday the fifth of September, by eight of the Clock, Signed by Montroſs, Rothes, and Lindſey; and accordingly they went (having firſt obtained leave from the King to go to the Scots Quarters for the good of the Countrey); that Summons under thoſe Scots Lords hands was to require the Countrey to bring in Proviſion to the Scots Army upon payment of money in part, and ſecurity for the reſt, or otherwiſe they muſt take it without Security.

At this time Newcaſtle and the Cole-Mines that had wont to employ ten thouſand people all the year long about their Coalery, ſome working under ground, ſome above, others upon the water in Keels and Lighters, now not a man to be ſeen, not a Coal wrought, all abſconding, being poſſeſt with a fear the Scots would give no Quarter; 400 ſhips uſing to be there often at a time in the River, not a ſhip durſt come in, and an hundred and odd coming to the mouth of the Haven the day after the Fight, and hearing the Scots had poſſeſſed Newcaſtle returned all empty, and Tradeſmen in the Town for ſome dayes kept their ſhops ſhut, many Families gone leaving their houſes and goods to the mercy of the Scots; who poſſeſſed themſelves of ſuch Corn, Cheeſe, Beer, &c. as they found, giving the owners thereof or ſome in their ſtead ſome money in hand and ſecurity in writing for the reſt to be paid at four or ſix months end, in money or Corn, and if they refuſe, ſaid the Scots, ſuch is the neceſſity of their Army, that they muſt take it without ſecurity rather than ſtarve.

The great fear of the Inhabitants of Newcaſtle, after the defeat at Newborn.

As for the City of Durham, it became a moſt depopulated place, not one ſhop for four dayes after the fight open; not one houſe in ten that had either man, woman or child in it, not one bit of bread to be got for money, for the Kings Army had eat and drank all in their march into Yorkſhire, the Countrey People durſt not come to Market, which made that City in a ſad condition for want of Food.

As alſo of Durham.

At this time a Letter came from the Lord Lieutenant General of the Army to bury or break every upper Milſtone, and drive and carry away all Cattle and Goods to a great diſtance, inſomuch that moſt drove their Cattle and Sheep into Yorkſhire, and removed moſt of their Families thither alſo.

ON the ſaid Auguſt 29. Dr. Morton Biſhop of Durham a learned and moderate Biſhop had an account of the Defeat at Newborne, and that the King's Army was Retreating into Yorkſhire, whereupon the ſaid Biſhop went to his Caſtle at Stockton in the Biſhoprick of Durham, ſtanding on the edge of Yorkſhire, but he quickly removed thence into Yorkſhire, but Dr. Belcanqual Dean of Durham fled in great haſte, becauſe he underſtood the Scots gave out that they would ſeize upon him as an Incendiary for writing the King's large Declaration againſt the Scots; all the reſt of the Clergy of Durham fled away alſo, and the Scots ſhortly after employed men to receive their Rents, and the Rents of Papiſts for the uſe of the Scotiſh Army.

THe News of this Defeat met the Earl of Strafford, Auguſt 29. the next day at Darlington, fourteen Miles South of Durham, and about twenty ſix Miles from Newcaſtle, and as far from York, purpoſing to have been with the Army before any Engagement; but now endeavouring to make the beſt he could of an ill buſineſs, he ſent a Meſſenger to the Army, requiring the Chief Officers to Rally thoſe Forces that were ſcattered, and to keep cloſe in a Body and March into Yorkſhire.

THe ſame day the King was come from York as far as Northallerton towards the Army, being ten miles ſhort of Darlington, hoping to have been with them at a Fight with the Scots; but underſtanding his Army was Defeated and upon their Retreat, and had quit Newcaſtle to the Scots, his Majeſty haſtened back again that night to York. And the ſame day the Earl of Strafford ſent out this following Order to deſtroy Milſtones, &c.

The Earl of Strafford Lord Lieutenant General of his Majeſties Army, To all Sheriffs, Conſtables of the peace, high Conſtables and other his Majeſties Officers.

Aug. 30. The Earl of Strafford's Warrant after the defeat given, to the King's Army at Newborn to break Milſtones, &c.

‘WHereas his Majeſties Army is now marching from Newcaſtle to Darlington, and the Villages thereunto adjacent, Theſe are ſpecially to require you, and the reſt of the high Conſtables, to uſe your utmoſt diligence in cauſing to be brought hither by four a Clock this Afternoon at the fartheſt, all ſuch quantities of Butter, Bread, Cheeſe, and Milk as you can poſſibly furniſh for the Victualing of his Majeſties ſaid Army, which being brought hither by the ſeveral owners, I ſhall take ſpecial care to ſee them juſtly ſatisfied the price of their ſaid Commodities, It being his Majeſties Gracious intention, there ſhall be no Burthen nor Oppreſſion to his Majeſties good and loving Subjects. Theſe are likewiſe farther to require you, that with the aſſiſtance of the Juſtice of peace adjoyning, you give order for the taking away of all the upper Milſtones in all the Mills in that your Ward, and to bury or otherwiſe to break them, that the ſaid Mills may not be of any uſe to the Army of the Scotch Rebels. You are likewiſe to require all his Majeſties Subjects, to remove all their Cattle, and other goods, aſſoon as poſſibly they can, out of their Countrey into places more remote, and of greater ſafety for them, until the return of his Majeſty, which will be very ſhortly by the help of God, that his good Subjects may be powerfully ſecured from the fears and dangers threatned by the ſaid Rebels.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Darlington, Aug. 30. 1640.

Strafford.

After the Arrival of the Kings Army in the County of York, a Muſter was taken thereof, which was as followeth:

Septemb. 3. 1640. Biſhoprick Gentlemen ſummoned to come to General Leſley at Newcaſtle.

ON Thurſday the third of September, there came a Warrant in nature of a Summons to Sr. William Bellaſis, Knight, Sheriff of the County Palatine of Durham, and to Sr. William Lambton Knight, a Gentleman of Quality in that County, Signed by Montroſs, Rotheſs, Lindſey and others; theſe two Knights and their Eſtates being in the Power of the Scots, and having Licence from the King, went to General Leſley: the thing propoſed unto them, was how to get Proviſion for the Scots Army in that County upon payment of Money in Part, and Security for the reſt.

ON Friday morning the fourth of September came a Petition to the King from the Commiſſioners of the late Parliament in Scotland, incloſed in a Letter to the Lord Lannerick, at which time the Kings Army were all retreated into Yorkſhire, and ſome of them quartered about York. The Petition followeth.

To the Kings Moſt Excellent MAJESTY.

The humble Petition of your Commiſſioners of the late Parliament, and others of his Majeſties moſt Loyal Subjects of the Kingdom of SCOTLAND.

Humbly ſheweth,

Septemb. 4. The Petition of the Scotch Commiſſioners of the late Parliament.

‘THat whereas through many ſufferings, in this time paſt, Extream neceſſity hath conſtrained us, for our reliefs, and obtaining our humble and juſt deſires, to come unto England; where according to our Intentions formerly delivered, we have in all our Convoy, lived upon our own Means, Victuals and Goods brought along with us; and neither troubling the Peace of the Kingdom of England, nor hurting any of your Majeſties Subjects of whatſoever quality in their Perſons or Goods, having carried our ſelves in a moſt peaceable manner, till we were preſſed by ſtrength of Arms to put ſuch forces out of the way, as did without our deſervings, and (as ſome of them at their point of death have confeſſed) againſt their own Conſciences oppoſed our peaceable paſſage at Newburne upon Tine; and have brought their own blood upon their own heads againſt our purpoſes and deſires, expreſſed by Letters ſent to them at Newcaſtle. For preventing of the like, or greater Inconveniencies, and that without further oppoſition we may come to your Majeſties preſence, for obtaining from your Majeſties Juſtice and Goodneſs, full ſatisfaction to our juſt demands, we your Majeſties moſt humble and Loyal Subjects, do perſiſt in that moſt humble and ſubmiſſive way of petitioning, which we have kept from the beginning, and from the which, no provocation of your Majeſties Enemies and ours, no Adverſity we have hitherto ſuſtained, no proſperous ſucceſs that can befall us, ſhall be able to divert our minds; moſt humbly entreating, that your Majeſty would in the depth of your Royal Wiſdom conſider at leaſt our preſſing Grievances, and provide for the repair of our wrongs and loſſes, and with the Advice of the States of the Kingdom of England Convented by Parliament, ſettle a firm and durable Peace againſt all Invaſions by Sea and Land.

An. 1640.

'That we may with Cheerfulneſs of heart pay unto your Majeſty, as our Native King, all duty and obedience, that can be expected from Loyal Subjects; and that againſt the many and great Evils which at this time threaten both Kingdoms, whereat all your Majeſties good Loyal and Loving Subjects tremble to think, and which we unanimouſly beſeech God Almighty to Avert; that your Majeſties Throne may be eſtabliſhed in the midſt of us in Religion and Righteouſneſs.

And your Majeſties Anſwer we humbly deſire and earneſtly wait for.

At the Court at YORK, Sept. 5. 1640.

His Majeſties Anſwer thereunto.

'HIs Majeſty hath ſeen and conſidered this within written Petition, and is graciouſly pleaſed to return this Anſwer by me, That he finds it in ſuch General Terms, that till you expreſs the particulars of your deſires, his Majeſty can give no direct Anſwer thereunto: wherefore his Majeſty requireth, that you would ſet down the particulars of your Demands with expedition; he having been alwayes ready to redreſs the Grievances of his people. And for the more mature deliberation of the weighty Affairs, his Majeſty hath already given out Summons for the meeting of the Peers of this Kingdom in the City of York, the twenty fourth day of this Month, that with the Advice of the Peers, you may receive ſuch Anſwer to your Petition, as ſhall moſt tend to his honour, and the peace and welfare of his Dominions. And in the mean time if Peace be that you ſo much deſire, as you pretend; he expects, and by this his Majeſty commands, that you advance no further with your Army into theſe parts, which is the only means that is left for the preſent to preſerve Peace between the Two Nations, and to bring theſe unhappy differences into a Reformation; which none is more deſirous of than his moſt Sacred Majeſty.

Lanericke.

At WHITE-HALL, Sept. 6. 1640.

Touching a Commiſſion to the Lords of the Council, for ordering Affairs in the Kings abſence.

'IT was this day ordered that his Majeſties Attorney General be hereby required to prepare a Commiſſion to be directed to the Lord Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, Lord Keeper, Lord Treaſurer, Lord Privy Seal, Earl Marſhal, Lord High Admiral of England, Earl of Dorſet, Earl of Salisbury, Earl of Bridgewater, Earl of Danby, Earl of Berkſhire, Earl of Newcaſtle, Earl of Cork, Lord Viſcount Wilmot, Lord Cottington, Lord Newburgh, Mr. Comptroller, Mr. Secretary Windebanke, Sir Thomas Rowe, Lord Chief Juſtice Littleton; and to all and every other the Lords and others of the Privy Council,

'cil, who ſhall not attend his Majeſty in the Northern part, authoriſing them or any ſix or more of them, (whereof the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, Lord Treaſurer, Lord Privy Seal, the Earl Marſhal of England, or Mr. Secretary Windebanke to be one) by all good wayes and means in his Majeſties abſence to provide for the peace and ſafety of his Majeſties Kingdom and people, in the ſame manner and form as it was drawn up (mutatis mutandis) at his Majeſties going into the North, Anno 1639. And with like power to them to hear and order all Complaints and matters touching the Levies of the Moneys and other occaſions in the Shipping buſineſs as was granted by the former Commiſſion.

Sept. 6. 1640. Ships deſigned for New-caſtle with Victuals, and not ſent, ordered to go to Hull.

'WHereas by an Order of the Board of the 26th of Auguſt laſt, the Officers of the Navy were required to haſten away twelve ſhips appointed to tranſport Victuals from London to lye without the Bar at Tinmouth, For as much as the Town of New-caſtle is now poſſeſſed by the Scottiſh Rebels, It was this day ordered, That ſo many of the ſaid ſhips as are yet not ſent, ſhall now go for Hull, and ride thereabout in ſome ſafe and ſecure place, till ſuch time as the Lord Lieutenant General of his Majeſties Army ſhall be advertiſed of their arrival there and give order for the diſpoſing of the ſaid Victuals.

A Copy of the King's Writ, Dated Sept. 7. 1640. ſent to all the Peers to meet as a great Council at York the 24th of September, 1640.

Sept. 8. 1640. The Scots Letter at Newcaſtle to the Earl of Lannerick.

Right Honourable,

As nothing on earth is more deſired of us than his Majeſties favour, ſo nothing doth delight us more than that his Majeſty beginneth again to hearken unto our humble deſires, wherein we truſt nothing ſhall be found, but what may ſerve to his Majeſties honour, and for the peace of his Dominions. The particulars we would have expreſſed, but that they are contained in the Concluſion of the laſt Parliament, and the printed Declarations which were ſent to your Lordſhip. But in caſe the papers be not by your Lordſhip, we now ſummarily repeat them.

1. That his Majeſty would be graciouſly pleaſed to command that the laſt Acts of Parliament may be publiſhed in his Highneſs Name as our Soveraign Lord with the Eſtates of Parliament convened by his Majeſties Authority.

2. That the Caſtles of Edenburgh and other ſtrengths of the Kingdom of Scotland may according to the firſt foundation be furniſhed and uſed for our defence and ſecurity.

3. That our Countreymen in his Majeſties Dominions of England and Ireland may be freed from cenſure for ſubſcribing the Covenant, and be no more preſſed with Oaths and Subſcriptions unwarrantable by your Laws and contrary to their National Oath and Covenant approved by his Majeſty.

4. That the common Incendiaries which have been the Authors of this Combuſtion may receive their juſt Cenſure.

5. That all our ſhips and goods with all the Damage thereof may be reſtored.

6. That the Wrongs, Loſſes and Charges which all this time we have ſuſtained may be repaired.

7. That the Declarations made againſt us as Traitors may be recalled in the end by the Advice and Counſel of the State of England Convened in Parliament, his Majeſty may be pleaſed to remove the Garriſons from the Borders, and any Impediments which may ſtop free Trade, and with their Advice to condeſcend to all particulars that may eſtabliſh a ſtable and well-grounded Peace for the enjoying of our Religion and Liberties againſt all Force and Moleſtation, and undoing from year to year, or as our Adverſaries ſhall take the advantage.

This Royal Teſtimony of his Majeſties Goodneſs we would eſteem to be doubled upon us, were it ſpeedily beſtowed, and therefore muſt crave leave to that his Majeſties pleaſure concerning the of the Peers the 24th of this inſtant will make the time long ere the Parliament be Convened, which is conceived the only means of ſetling both Nations in a firm Peace, and which we deſire may be ſeriouſly repreſented unto his Majeſties Royal thoughts; the more the time is abridged, the more able we to obey his Majeſties prohibition of our advancing with our Army;

Army; our Actions, and whole Comportment ſince the beginning of theſe Commotions, and eſpecially of late ſince our coming into England, are real declarations of our Love and deſire of peace, nothing but invincible neceſſity hath brought us from our Countrey to this place, no other thing ſhall draw us beyond the Limits appointed by his Majeſty, which we truſt his Majeſty will conſider of, and wherein we hope your Lordſhip will labour to be a profitable Inſtrument for the Kings Honour, the good of the Countrey, and of

Your Lordſhips humble Servants.

Sept. 9. The Scots Letter from Newcaſtle to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London.

Right Honourable,

WHat care and pains have been taken by us theſe years paſt to ſettle our grievances at home, and what heavy complaints have been made heretofore to all our dear Brethren in England, that the ground of our evils and ſufferings is from the abuſed power of this Kingdom in the hands of wicked Councellors, what neceſſity hath been laid upon us of late to enter into England with our lives in our hands, to Petition his Majeſty, the manifold Declarations and Informations that have been publiſhed for that end bear us witneſs, and that our appearing in Armes is not to wrong any, but to guard our ſelves againſt all unjuſt perſons that may hinder us from obtaining our humble and juſt deſires from our Gracious Soveraign; and therefore as it was the end of our Journey not to make us Enemies but kind Friends, ſo we profeſs and declare to your Lordſhip, and the Aldermen your Brethren, that our abode at Newcaſtle, a Town of great importance for our ſecurity until our Petition be heard and granted, is not to make any ſtop of Trade in that River, ſince the free traffick of Coles is ſo neceſſary for the City of London, and other places of England; but on the contrary, our purpoſe is to uſe the beſt means we can to continue that Trade: and for this effect at our coming to Newcaſtle, hearing that many Maſters of ſhips poſſeſſed with needleſs fears were haſtning out of the River empty, we ſent two Noblemen of our number to make this Declaration unto them, whereby many of them reſted ſatisfied, and ſtayed to Load; and hereby we do renew our former aſſurance, as the ſmalleſt teſtimony of greateſt reſpect, and good will to the City of London, of whoſe affection to the peace of theſe two Kingdoms, wherein they have greateſt ſhare and intereſt, we are fully informed, med, and to whom we deſire not to be found wanting in any act of friendſhip and thankfulneſs that may flow from us to the utmoſt of our power. Signed,

A Letter Directed to the Lord High Treaſurer of England.

Sept. 9. 1640. Tranſportation of Victuals beyond Sea, or from Port to Port (but only to Hull) inhibited.

HIS Majeſty out of his Royal care for the preſervation of his Army, having been graciouſly pleaſed to command that the ſame be furniſhed with all manner of proviſion of Victual that the County of York, and the adjacent Counties can afford; and fearing that the proportion of Victuals in thoſe parts ſhould not be ſufficient, hath commanded likewiſe to have ſupply ſent from hence, and that the tranſportation of Corn, Butter, Cheeſe, and all other Victuals out of the Realm, or from Port to Port, within the Kingdom ſhould be ſtrictly inhibited; We have therefore thought good hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip forthwith to give effectual order that no Corn, Butter, Cheeſe, nor any other Victual be tranſported into the parts beyond the Seas, nor from Port to Port, but ſent to Hull, where the Owners ſhall receive juſt and due payment in ready money for the ſame, and be ſecured that neither themſelves nor their goods ſhall ſuffer the leaſt prejudice or moleſtation, but by all means of good uſage be encouraged to make continual repair thither. Hereof your Lordſhip may not fail, And ſo &c. Dated Septemb. 9. 1640. Signed by the

To the King's Moſt Excellent MAJESTY,

The humble Petition of your Majeſties moſt Loyal and Obedient Subjects, whoſe names are here under-written, in behalf of themſelves and divers others.

The Petition of the Earl of Eſſex, Hertford, &c. to the King to call a Parliament.

Moſt Gracious Soveraign,

'THE ſenſe of that Duty and Service which we owe unto your Sacred Majeſty, and our earneſt Affection to the good and welfare of this your Realm of England, have moved us in all humility to beſeech your Royal Majeſty, to give us leave to offer unto your moſt Princely Wiſdom, the Apprehenſion which we and other ‘your faithful Subjects have conceived of the great diſtempers and dangers now threatning the Church, and State of your Royal Perſon, and the fitteſt means by which they may be prevented.

‘The Evils and Dangers whereof your Majeſty may be pleaſed to take notice are theſe;

‘1. That your Sacred Majeſty is expoſed to hazard and danger in the preſent Expedition againſt the Scotiſh Armie, and by the occaſion of the War, your Revenue is much waſted, your Subjects burthened with Coat and Conduct Money, Billeting of Souldiers, and other Military Charges, and divers Rapines and diſorders committed in ſeveral parts in this your Realm, by the Souldiers raiſed for that Service, and your whole Kingdom become full of fear and diſcontent.

‘2. The ſundry Innovations in matters of Religion, the Oath and Canons lately Impoſed upon the Clergy, and other your Majeſties Subjects.

‘3. The great Encreaſe of Popery, and Imploying of Popiſh Recuſants, and others ill-affected to the Religion by Law eſtabliſhed in places of power and truſt, and eſpecially commanding of Men and Armes both in the Field and other Counties in this Realm, whereas by the Laws they are not permitted to have Armes in their own houſes.

‘4. The great mihſcief which may fall upon this Kingdom, if the Intentions which have been credibly reported, of bringing in of Iriſh forces, ſhall take effect.

‘5. The urging of Ship-money, and proſecution of ſome Sheriffs in the Star-chamber for not Levying of it.

‘6. The heavy charges of Merchandiſe to the diſcouragement of Trade, the multitude of Monopolies, and other Patentees, whereby the Commodities and Manufactures of the Kingdom are much burthened, to the great and univerſal Grievance of your people.

‘7. The great grief of your Subjects by the Intermiſſion of Parliaments, in the late former diſſolving of ſuch as have been Called, with the hoped Effects which otherwiſe they might have procured.

‘For a remedy whereof and prevention of the danger that may enſue to your Royal perſon, and to the whole State, we do in all humility and faithfulneſs beſeech your moſt Excellent Majeſty that you would be pleaſed to ſummon a Parliament within ſome ſhort and convenient time, whereby the cauſe of theſe, and other great Grievances, which your poor Petitioners now lye under, may be taken away, and the Authours and Councellours of them, may be there brought to ſuch Legal Tryal, and condign puniſhment, as the nature of the offence does require, and that the preſent War

‘may be compoſed by your Majeſties wiſdom without Bloodſhed, in ‘ſuch manner as may conduce to the honour and ſafety of your Majeſties perſon, and content of your people, and continuance of both of ‘your Kingdoms againſt the common Enemy of the Reformed Religion.

The Privy Council being informed that the City of London was about to Petition his Majeſty to call a Parliament, wrote a Letter to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London, as followeth.

Sept. 11. 1640. To ſtop the Londoners Petition to his Majeſty.

Whereas we have ſeen the Copy of a Petition pretended to be preſented to his Majeſty in the name of the Citizens of London, to which many hands as we underſtand are endeavoured to be gotten in the ſeveral Wards concerning divers grievances; Out of the care which we have for your good, and the duty which we owe to his Majeſty, being the repreſentative Body of his Authority, and to whom he hath particularly recommended the care and quiet of theſe parts in his abſence: we have thought fit to ſignifie unto your Lordſhip, and the reſt, the ſence and apprehenſion we have of the ſaid Petition, and of the time, and of the manner of contriving the ſame. And we cannot but hold it very dangerous and ſtrange to have a Petition framed in the name of the Citizens, and endeavoured to be ſigned in a way not Warranted by the Charters and Cuſtomes of the City, ſetting forth of Grievances which they cannot but know, that his Majeſty of his abundant grace and goodneſs to his people will preſently take into his Conſideration, and give thereunto all juſt redreſs; Concluding the Petition with a demand which they be moſt certain will come from his Majeſties own grace and goodneſs, from which only it can proceed with comfort and ſucceſs. And all this in a time, when his Majeſty is in his own perſon ingaged in an Army for the defence of this City, and the whole Kingdom, againſt the Rebels who have invaded this Kingdom with ſo great an Army, and have ſo far advanced to the danger of the Kingdom, and diſhonour of the Nation, eſpecially his Majeſty having ſo particularly at his parting hence recommended the care and ſafety of the Queen his deareſt Conſorts perſon and the Prince, and his Royal Children to your Lordſhip and the Aldermen, and the ancient and approved Loyalty and fidelity of this City of London honoured from all Antiquity with the Title of his Majeſties own Chamber. We have therefore thought fit hereby to pray and require your Lordſhip and the reſt to take a courſe by all good and lawful wayes to ſtop the proceedings of this intended Petition, wherein we doubt not but you ſhall have the concurrence of the moſt able and beſt affected Citizens, for the avoiding of the great diſturbance, which it may bring to the Kings affairs (thus ingaged as he is) and the juſt cenſure which may lye upon this City, in future times; And ſo &c. Dated Sept. 16. 1640. Signed by the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, &c.

NOtwithſtanding this Order of the Lords of the Council, the City of London (having been grievouſly Burthened with Projects and Monopolies) did proceed to perfect their ſaid Petition, and ſent ſome of the Court of Aldermen and Common Council to preſent it to the King at York, which Petition followeth.

To the King's Moſt Excellent MAJESTY.

The humble Petition of your Majeſties Subjects the Citizens of LONDON.

A Petition of the Londoners to the King to call a Parliament.

Moſt Gracious Soveraign,

'BEing moved with the duty and obedience which by the Laws 'your Petitioners owe unto your Sacred Majeſty, they humbly 'preſent unto your Princely and pious wiſdom, the ſeveral preſſing 'grievances following; viz.

'1. The preſſing and unuſual Impoſitions upon Merchandize, Im'porting, and Exporting, and the urging and Levying of Ship-money 'notwithſtanding both which, Merchants Ships and Goods have been 'taken and deſtroyed both by Turkiſh and other Pirates.

'2. The multitude of Monopolies, Patents, and Warrants where'by Trade in the City and other parts of the Kingdom is much de'cayed.

'3. The ſundry Innovations in matter of Religion.

'4. The Oath and Canons lately enjoyned by the late Convoca'tion whereby your Petitioners are in danger to be deprived of their 'Miniſters.

'5. The great concourſe of Papiſts, and their Inhabitations in 'London, and the Suburbs, whereby they have more means and op'portunity of Plotting and Executing their deſignes againſt the Re'ligion eſtabliſhed.

'6. The ſeldom Calling, and ſuddain diſſolutions of Parliaments, 'without the redreſs of your Subjects Grievances.

'7. The Impriſonment of divers Citizens for non-payment of Ship-

'money, and Impoſitions, and the proſecution of many others in the Star-Chamber, for not conforming themſelves to Committees in Patents of Monopolies, whereby Trade is reſtrained.

'8. The great danger your Sacred perſon is expoſed unto in the preſent War, and the various fears that ſeized upon your Petitioners, and their Families by reaſon thereof, which grievances and fears have occaſioned ſo great a ſtop and diſtraction in Trade, that your Petitioners can neither Buy, Sell, receive, or pay as formerly, and tends to the utter Ruine of the Inhabitants of the City, the decay of Navigation, and Cloathing, and the Manufactures of this Kingdom.

'Your humble Petitioners conceiving that the ſaid Grievances are contrary to the Laws of this Kingdom, and finding by Experience that they are not redreſt by the ordinary Courſe of Juſtice, do thereſore moſt humbly beſeech your moſt Sacred Majeſty to cauſe a Parliament to be Summoned with all convenient ſpeed, whereby they may be relieved in the premiſes.

'And your Petitioners and Loyal Subjects ſhall ever pray, &c.

Upon his Majeſties Calling this laſt Parliament.

* Meaning the Parliament which met at Weſtminſter, Nov. 3. 1640.

'This laſt * Parliament I called, not more by others advice, and neceſſity of my Affairs, than by my own Choice and Inclination, who have alwayes thought the Right way of Parliaments moſt ſafe for my Crown, as beſt pleaſing to my People. And although I was not forgetful of thoſe ſparks which ſome mens Diſtempers formerly ſtudied to kindle in Parliaments (which by forbearing to Convene for ſome years, I hoped to have extinguiſhed) Yet Reſolving with my ſelf to give all juſt ſatisfaction to modeſt and ſober deſires, and to redreſs all publick grievances in Church and State, I hoped by my freedom and their moderation to prevent all miſunderſtandings, and miſcarriages in this. In which as I feared affairs would meet with ſome Paſſion and Prejudice in other men, ſo I reſolved they ſhould find leaſt of them in my ſelf, not doubting but by the weight of reaſon I ſhould counterpoize the over-ballancing of any Factions, &c.

Sept. 10. The King's Propoſal to the Gentry of Yorkſhire.

THE King called the Yorkſhire Gentry together, and propounded unto them the Payment of the Trained Bands for two months, which Propoſition they took into preſent Conſideration, being alſo much ſatisfied that his Majeſty had Summoned a Great Council of his Peers to meet at York.

And on the 11th of September returned Anſwer, the ſubſtance whereof was to this effect.

That

The Anſwer of the Gentry of Yorkſhire.

THat the Petitioners have conſulted together concerning the Payment of the Trained Bands for two months, and have agreed upon doing the ſame, to which purpoſe they will uſe their utmoſt endeavours, humbly beſeeching his Majeſty to conſider out of his Royal Wiſdom how to compoſe the differences with the Scots, that the Countrey may enjoy peace again, and not run more and more into Danger, and do moſt humbly beſeech his Majeſty to think of Summoning a Parliament, the only way to confirm a peace betwixt both Kingdoms.

Which anſwer they deſired the Earl of Strafford to preſent to his Majeſty which he inclined to do, leaving out thoſe words in the Petition of Advice to the King to call a Parliament, for that he knew it was the King's full purpoſe to do; but the Yorkſhire Gentlemens Hearts, and the Voice of the Kingdom being fervent for a Parliament, were unwilling to leave out thoſe words of Summoning a Parliament, therefore they delivered their anſwer themſelves, and which was well taken by his Majeſty.

A Letter to the Earl of Bedford and to the Lord Ruſſel, &c. his Majeſties Deputy Lieutenants for the County of Devon.

Sept. 11. 1640. An Anſwer to Letters from their Deputy Lieutenants concerning ſome difficulties about marching, &c.

WE have been made acquainted by our very good Lord the Earl Marſhal of England, Captain General of all his Majeſties Forces on this ſide Trent, with the Letters of your Deputy Lieutenants for that County of Devon, of the Second and fourth of this preſent, by you put into his Lordſhips hands, and thereby underſtand two difficulties they conceive they ſhall find in the execution of his Majeſties late Command for the preparing and putting in readineſs the Trained Bands and other Forces of the ſaid County to March and to ſerve in the Common Defence as occaſion ſhall require, and further ſhall be Commanded in this time of Common Danger.

The Firſt whereof is the diſtraction which is amongſt the Gentry, and others unto which Service perſonally to apply themſelves, whether that Commanded as aforeſaid with the Trained Bands, or elſe that other concerning Eſcuage and Tenures in Knights Service, both commanded by Proclamation.

The Second difficulty they apprehend being the way how to furniſh or procure moneys for the Charge of the ſaid Bands and Forces when they ſhall be required to March. Whereunto ſome direction being deſired from this Board; unto the firſt we anſwer, That it is his Majeſties Pleaſure and Intention that the Service Commanded the Trained Bands and other Forces for the common Defence by his Majeſties Letters and Proclamations is carefully to be performed and executed by every man in his own perſon; But for that attendance on his Majeſty required by the other Proclamation according to the Tenures in Knights Service, &c. It may and will ſuffice that the ſame be done by Deputy, or elſe that Perſons ſo holding Lands of his Majeſty may give ſatisfaction by way of Compoſition as by the ſame Proclamation is more particularly expreſſed. And for the other other difficulty how to provide for the Charge of theſe Forces, when they ſhall march; we do underſtand that not only the Laws and Cuſtomes of this Kingdom do require that in a time of actual invaſion every man ought to ſerve in the common Defence at his own Charge, but that the very Law of Nature doth teach and oblige us all thereunto, without ſticking or ſtaying upon any ſuch terms or Queſtions, and that thus it hath been the Cuſtome and Practice within this Kingdom both in antient and modern times is very manifeſt, even but when a doubt or fear was had of an Invaſion; but whereas this preſent danger is paſt all manner of doubt by reaſon of the actual Invaſion of the Scotiſh Rebels, with ſo great an Army, and the ſame ſo far advanced that the whole Kingdom may ſoon be overrun unleſs by a greater power they be repelled and beaten back. And whereas his Majeſties Subjects of the North parts of this Kingdom do cheerfully joyn together and ſerve his Majeſty in this great occaſion at their own Charge both with Bodies and Fortunes, without trouble to his Majeſty or Deputies; we are therefore hereby to pray and require your Lordſhips, to ſignifie to your Deputy Lieutenants, what the ſence of this Board herein is, that the ſame may by you and them be infuſed into others, and that we will not doubt but that his Majeſties Subjects of that County will in this occaſion ſhew as much forwardneſs and zeal for the common ſafety, wherein we are all ſo nearly concerned, as is either now in the North parts, or hath been practiſed in any other time of Danger heretofore within this Kingdom, which we do hereby effectually recommend unto your Lordſhips care. And bid &c.

Sept. 11. 1640. Sheriffs of London to diſpoſe of Mrs. Huſſey in ſome ſafe place, who made diſcovery of an intended riſing of the Papiſts in England.

‘THeir Lordſhips being this day credibly informed that Mrs. Anne Huſſey an Iriſh woman is much threatned by certain Iriſh people to be miſchieved, and that there have been ſome Iriſh to enquire after her as is ſtrongly ſuſpected to offer ſome violence to her, for that ſhe hath given an Information and teſtimony of certain Lewd and Traiterous Speeches uttered by one William O Conner an Iriſh Prieſt. It was this day ordered by their Lordſhips, that the Sheriffs of London ſhall be hereby prayed and required forthwith to receive into their or one of their Charge the perſon of the ſaid Mrs. Huſſey, and diſpoſe of her in ſome ſuch ſafe place, as ſhe may be free from any violence or danger.

At White-Hall, Sept. 11. 1640.

Touching William O Conner an Iriſh Prieſt.

Upon an Information of Mrs. Anne Huſſey againſt one William O Conner an Iriſh Prieſt, It was this day ordered by their Lordſhips that John Herne Eſq; one of the Juſtices of Peace of the County of Middleſex ſhall be hereby prayed and required to examine the ſaid Mrs. Anne Huſſey and William O Conner, and all ſuch others as upon their Examination he ſhall diſcover to know any thing concerning the matters whereof the ſaid O Conner is now accuſed. And hereof the Keeper of the Gatehouſe (where the ſaid O Conner is now Priſoner) and all others whom it may concern, are to take notice and to conform themſelves accordingly.

Sept. 13. 1640. To iſſue 80 l. for Conduct of Iriſh Officers to the Army.

Whereas Serjeant Major James Nolan is to Conduct divers Officers and Souldiers of the Iriſh Nation to his Majeſties Army near York, for the performance whereof it is thought fit that the ſumm of threeſcore pounds for their Conduct thither be advanced to them, being after 15 dayes pay for himſelf and Company, according to a Liſt of their names, ſigned under his hand, and according to the Eſtabliſhment of Pay for his Majeſties Army, as alſo the ſumm of twenty pounds more by way of advance to Captain Jo. Bermingham, Captain Bartholomew St. Lawrence, Captain Tho. Revel, and Captain Maurice Macdonell for their ſpeedy Conduct to York aforeſaid.

Theſe are therefore to pray and require your Lordſhips to cauſe 60 l. to be paid to the ſaid Serjeant Major Nolan, and 20 l. to the ſaid other Captains, by vertue of his Majeſties Privy Seal, dated May 22. for iſſuing of 300 l. Sept. 14. That Enquiry be made after the Rents of Biſhops and Papiſts in the County of Durham. George Grey and Anthony Smith Collectors.

‘BY vertue of a Commiſſion from General Leſley his Excellency, ‘and the reſt of the Right Honourable Lords, and other of the ‘Committee for ordering Buſineſs for the Scottiſh Army, directed ‘to me Tobias Knowles and William Hamilton Gentlemen, to enquire ‘and find out the Rents, Tythes and Profits belonging to the Biſhops, ‘Papiſts, or any other Aſſociates, Enemies to this Army, and to ‘take an Inventory of their Rents, Goods and Profits whatſoever, and ‘to chuſe able men to aſſiſt us in this buſineſs: We underſtanding ‘that Mr. G. G. and Mr. S. A. have been employed in buſineſs for the ‘Tenants of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, and underſtand that ‘the ſaid Tenants have Rents in their hands due at St. Cuthbert's day ‘laſt, and Rents that will be due at Martinmas next, with Tythes and ‘many other profits, &c. Theſe are therefore by vertue of the ſaid ‘Commiſſion, to require and charge you Mr. G. G. and Mr. A S. ‘to enquire and ſearch out all the Rents, Tythes and Profits ‘belonging to the Biſhop of Durham, the Dean and Chapter, or any ‘their Aſſociates or Papiſts, Enemies to this Cauſe and Expedition, ‘and to give in their Names, with a Schedule or Inventory of their Goods, Rents and Profits whatſoever: and to warn all the Tenants ‘of the aforeſaid Parties, eſpecially the Tenants of the Dean and ‘Chapter of Durham, for the Rents, Tythes and Profits which are ‘due at St. Cuthbert's day laſt, or any other former Debts or Summs ‘of money due or become due at Martinmas next by the Tenants of ‘Weſtoe, Harton, Fulwell, Munckwarmouth, Sudwick, Mountain Hedworth, the two Hedworths, and Southſheilds, not to pay any Rents to ‘the aforeſaid Dean and Chapter, nor to any of their Receivers or ‘Officers, but towards the relief and maintenance of the Army, as ‘they will anſwer the contrary: And thoſe that ſhall refuſe to pay ‘the ſaid Rents, Tythes and Profits as aforeſaid, and to ſet their ‘hands thereunto; We require and charge you to return their ‘Names in writing, with the places of their abode, that ſuch further courſe may be taken with them, as ſhall be thought fit by the ‘General. And of this fail not, as you will anſwer the contrary at ‘your peril. Dated at Newcaſtle the 14th of September 1640.

A Minute of Letters of the Tenour following, directed to the Lords Lieutenants of the ſeveral Counties, expreſſed in the Liſt hereafter mentioned.

September 16. 1640. For providing divers ſorts of Munitions and Proviſions for Soldiers raiſed by the Commiſſion of Array, South of Trent.

‘WHereas as well by his Majeſties late Proclamation of the ‘laſt of Auguſt laſt, as alſo by a Letter ſent unto you from ‘our very good Lord, the Earl Marſhal of England, Captain General ‘of all his Majeſties Forces on this ſide Trent, you may take notice of ‘his Majeſties Pleaſure and Command for the Trained Bands, and ‘other Forces of that County, to be put in readineſs to march upon ‘twenty four hours warning, or Command to be given for that purpoſe from his Majeſties ſaid Captain General. And whereas the danger is great and eminent to his Majeſty and the whole State by the Invaſion of the Scottiſh Rebels with a powerful Army, which hath already ſo far advanced and prevailed, that unleſs by a ſtronger power, and the unanimous reſiſtance of all his Majeſties Subjects the ſame be repelled and forced back, this whole Kingdom may ſoon be over-run. For which reſpects, we find it very needful, that both a good and ſpeedy Accompt be by you returned either unto this Board, or unto his Majeſties ſaid Captain General of your proceedings therein; as alſo that no directions neceſſary to be given by us be wanting unto you for what concerns the common defence; We have therefore thought good, hereby to require you, to have in readineſs a ſufficient number of able Pioneers, good Carts furniſhed with men and horſes; and likewiſe a ſufficient number of Spades, Shovells and Pick-Axes, and all other Tools neceſſary for the making of Works of defence in theſe perilous times. And further, that you take an effectual care, that the Magazine of the County be well ſtored with Powder, Shot and Match, to the end that every Muſquetteer may have a ſufficient proviſion thereof: And that the Beacons in that County be preſently made ready and duely watched. And if that County be not already ſufficiently furniſhed with the aforeſaid Munitions and Proviſions, that then you make all poſſible ſpeed to procure and provide the ſame. Of all which, and how far you have proceeded ſince his Majeſties ſaid Proclamation, you are to return a particular Accompt with all expedition, either unto this Board, or unto his Majeſties ſaid Captain General, that it may be thereby known, what are the Forces of that County, and how much of each kind of thoſe Munitions and Proviſions you have in readineſs againſt ſuch time as the ſame ſhall be called upon. Sept. 16. A Letter to the Lord Lieutenant of Dorſetſhire.

‘After our hearty commendation to your good Lordſhip, Whereas we underſtand, there have been delayes and difficulties in ſome places, in the execution of his Majeſties late Command, for putting in readineſs the Trained Bands and other Forces of that County, to march and to ſerve in the Common defence in this time of publick danger; which delayes have been occaſioned through ſome miſapprehenſion concerning the defraying of the charge of the Trained men to the place of ſervice when they march. We have therefore thought good for the preventing of ‘further delay in matters of this importance, hereby to advertiſe ‘your Lordſhip, that not only the Cuſtoms and Laws of this Kingdom do require, that in a time of actual invaſion, every man ‘ought to ſerve in the common defence at his own charge; but ‘that the very Law of Nature doth teach and oblige us all thereunto, ‘without ſticking or ſtaying upon any terms or queſtions. And that ‘it hath been the cuſtome and practice within this Kingdom, both ‘in antient and modern times, (even but when a doubt or fear was ‘had of an invaſion) is very manifeſt. But this preſent danger is ‘paſt all manner of doubt, by reaſon of actual invaſion of the Scottiſh Rebels with ſo great an Army, and the ſame ſo far advanced, ‘that the whole Kingdom may be ſoon over-run, unleſs by a great ‘power they be repelled and beaten back. And whereas his Majeſties Subjects of the North parts of this Kingdom do cheerfully ‘hold together, and ſerve his Majeſty in this great occaſion at their ‘own charge, both with their bodies and fortunes, without trouble ‘to his Majeſty, we have therefore thought good, hereby to pray ‘and require your Lordſhip, to acquaint the Countrey with the ‘ſenſe of this Board in this particular, and that we doubt not, but ‘his Majeſties Subjects of that County, will in this occaſion ſhew as ‘much forwardneſs and zeal for the common ſafety, wherein we ‘are all ſo nearly concerned, as either is ſhewn now in the Northern ‘parts, or hath been practiſed in any other time of danger heretofore in this Kingdom; which we do hereby effectually recommend ‘to your Lordſhips care, and bid your Lordſhip very heartily ‘farewell.

Dr. Belcanquall's Petition.

Humbly ſheweth,

‘That whereas your Petitioner lyeth under a great ſcandal for ‘your Majeſties Large Declaration, your Majeſty would be ‘graciouſly pleaſed, to require the Right Honourable the Engliſh

'Lords Commiſſioners for the Scottiſh Treaty, to call before them 'your Petitioner, and to give unto their Lordſhips a faithful and 'true Account of that ſervice.

And as he is bound, your Petitioner ſhall and happy Reign.

To the Kings Moſt Excellent MAJESTY.

The humble Petition of the diſtreſſed Inhabitants of the poor County of Northumberland.

September. Inhabitants of Northumberland do pay 300 l. a day to the Scots Army.

'Moſt humbly ſhewing to your moſt Sacred Majeſty what they 'preſented by a former Petition, wherein was humbly offered 'to your Majeſties gracious Conſideration, the great diſtreſs under 'which your Petitioners are by the burden of the Scottiſh Army, 'who by plundering ſome, and threatning to plunder others, have 'for ſome fourteen dayes laſt, compelled your Petitioners to ſubmit 'to their unreaſonable and inſupportable exactions of Three Hundred Pound a day, and a great proportion of Hay and Straw; by 'the latter whereof, thoſe Cattle, if any ſhall be left to your Petitioners, will be in hazzard to be ſtarved. All which exactions they 'expect to have from your Petitioners ſo long as they remain on 'this ſide Tweed. We have no ſuccour or relief to fly to, for the redreſs of theſe unexpected Miſeries, but to God and your Majeſty, 'moſt humbly beſeeching your Majeſty, in the ſorrows of our hearts, 'to afford us your Princely Compaſſion, in relieving us and our 'Countrey from this ſudden and unexpected Calamity; whereby 'your Majeſty will preſerve us and our Poſterities daily to pray, as in 'all humble duty we are bound, for your Majeſty.

To the Kings Moſt Excellent MAJESTY,

The humble Petition of the poor diſtreſſed Inhabitants of the County Palatine of Durham.

Who humbly ſhew,

September. The Inhabitants of Durham do pay 350 l. a day to the Scots Army.

'That ſince the Eleventh of this inſtant September, they have 'been under the burden of a Compoſition of 350 l. per diem to 'the Scotch Army, which they were enforc't to pay, to preſerve their 'Countrey from deſtruction: ſince which time, they have further 'taken from them Hay and Straw, for which they pay nothing:

‘which all together is ſo intolerable a burthen, as they are no way
‘able to bear it.

‘Therefore their moſt humble Suit to your Majeſty is, that either
‘by ſome directions from your Majeſty to the Lords now aſſembled,
‘or by ſome other means, as in your Princely Wiſdom ſhall be ‘thought moſt neceſſary, this inſupportable burden may preſently
‘be removed; delay being unto the Countrey an unavoidable de-
‘ſtruction.

And we according to our bounden duty
ſhall pray, &c.

The humble Petition of the Tenants belonging to the Biſhop and Dean and Chapter of Durham.

Moſt humbly ſheweth,

September. The Tenants of the Dean and Chapter of Durham their Complaint.

‘THat whereas they have paid to the Scots a great ſumm of Mo‘ney, that thereby the Inhabitants within that County might ‘be freed from any further trouble of the Scots, and that their Army
‘ſhould make no Waſte nor Spoil in their Countrey, nor to demand
‘no more Moneys to be paid to them till that time be expired: Yet ‘ſo it is, may it pleaſe your Honours, That the Commanders for the ‘Scots Army have cauſed one Tobias Knowles an Engliſhman, to ſend
‘forth his Warrants under his hand, to divers Pariſhes, thereby ‘commanding the Conſtables, Greves and Officers to pay to their ‘Collectors, the Rents due from your Petitioners to the Biſhop and ‘Dean and Chapter of Durham at Michaelmas next; and that they ‘ſhould pay the ſame at Biſhop-waremouth on Tueſday laſt, being the ‘part abated; and if they did refuſe to pay them that day, then that ‘they ſhould pay all their Rents to them the ſecond day of October in‘ſtant, without any abatement at their perils.

‘Their moſt humble Suit is, that your Honours would be graci-
‘ouſly pleaſed, to move the Scots Lords, that the poor Tenants may ‘be eaſed for paying the ſaid Rents, they being no way able; and the ‘Rents not yet due, and they not able to give them any diſcharge
‘therefore. And that their Officers may deſiſt from further trou‘bling the ſaid Tenants about the payment of the ſaid Rents.

And they ſhall daily pay, &c.

Proceedings at the Great Council of Peers aſſembled at York upon Sept. 24. 1640, in purſuance of the Kings Writ.

THis day his Majeſty came to the Deans Houſe at York near the Minſter about Nine of the Clock in the Forenoon, and being ſet under the State at the upper end of the Hall where the Great Council was kept, ſpake as followeth.

His Majeſties Speech to his Great Council of Peers aſſembled at York, September 24. 1640.

My Lords,

UPon ſudden Invaſions where the dangers are near and inſtant, it hath been the Cuſtom of my Predeceſſors to aſſemble the Great Council of the Peers, and by their Advice and Aſſiſtance, to give a timely remedy to ſuch Evils, which could not admit a delay ſo long, as muſt of neceſſity be allowed for the Aſſembling of the Parliament.

This being our Condition at this time, and an Army of Rebels lodged within this Kingdom, I thought it moſt fit to conform my ſelf to the practice of my Predeceſſors in like Caſes; that with your Advice and Aſſiſtance We might juſtly proceed to the Chaſtiſement of theſe Inſolencies, and ſecuring of my good Subjects.

In the firſt place, I muſt let you know, that I deſire nothing more, than to be rightly underſtood of my people. And to that end, I have of my ſelf reſolved to call a Parliament; having already given order to my Lord Keeper to iſſue the Writs inſtantly, ſo that the Parliament may be aſſembled by the third of November next: Whither if my Subjects bring thoſe good affections, which become them towards me, it ſhall not fail on my part to make it a happy meeting. In the mean time, there are two points wherein I ſhall deſire your Advice, which indeed were the chief Cauſe of your meeting.

Firſt, What anſwer to give to the Petition of the Rebels, and in what manner to treat with them. Of which, that you may give a ſure Judgement, I have ordered, that your Lordſhips ſhall be clearly and truly informed of the State of the whole buſineſs, and upon what reaſons the Advices that my Privy Council unanimouſly gave me, were grounded.

The ſecond is, How my Army ſhall be kept on foot and maintained, until the Supplies of a Parliament may be had. For ſo long as the Scotch Army remains in England, I think no man will counſel me to disband mine: for that would be an unſpeakable loſs to all this part of the Kingdom, by ſubjecting them to the greedy appetite of the Rebels, beſides the unſpeakable diſhonour that would thereby fall upon this Nation.

Then his Majeſty commanded the Petition of the Scots dated the fourth of September to be read; and the Anſwer thereunto the fifth of September. Alſo the Letter of the Scots to the Earl of Lanerick, dated at the Leaguer near Newcaſtle, the eighth of September, containing their demands; and the Anſwer thereunto.

All which are mentioned in order of time in theſe Collections, and therefore not now repeated again.

An. 1640.

After this was read a Letter to the Lord Lanerick, dated by the Scots at Newcaſtle September 23. 1640. deſiring his Lordſhip to procure them a ſpeedy Anſwer to their Petition and demands: and likewiſe the Petition to the ſame effect.

And that their Lordſhips might perceive and know, upon what Grounds and Reaſons the Lords of the Privy Council had unanimouſly adviſed to raiſe an Army againſt the Scots, his Majeſty commanded their particular demands made in their laſt Parliament, and acknowledged by the Lord Lowdon to be read. Which demands the Earl of Traquaire explained to the Peers for their better Information; and ſhewed, how ſome of them ſubverted the Fundamental Laws of that Kingdom; others the Prerogative and Dignity of his Majeſty derived from all his Predeceſſors, and whereof many were to the detriment of the Kings Profit, and prejudice of divers good Subjects there.

Commiſſioners appointed to treat with the Scots.

ALL which being heard and conſidered of by the Peers, it was at laſt reſolved (as touching the firſt Point propoſed by his Majeſty) "That certain of themſelves ſhould be ſent as Commiſſioners to Treat with Commiſſioners of theirs. The number agreed upon were Sixteen; viz.

Earl of Bedford.
Earl of Hertford.
Earl of Eſſex.
Earl of Salisbury.
Earl of Warwick.
Earl of Briſtoll.
Earl of Holland.
Earl of Berkſhire.

Viſcount Mandevile.
Lord Wharton.
Lord Pagget.
Lord Brooke.
Lord Pawlett.
Lord Howard.
Lord Savile.
Lord Dunſmore.

ANd becauſe the Commiſſioners for their better proceeding and information, deſired ſome ſuch Aſſiſtance to be preſent with them at the Treaty, as were either verſed in the Laws of Scotland, or had been formerly acquainted with the paſſages of this buſineſs, Theſe following were named and appointed Aſſiſtants by his Majeſty; viz.

Earl of Traquaire.
Earl of Morton.
Earl of Lanerick.

Mr. Secretary Vane.
Sir Lewis Steward.
Sir John Burrough.

AS touching the place of Meeting, it was at firſt deſigned to be at York; and afterwards ordered to be at Northallerton.

It was further ordered, That the Earl of Lanerick Secretary of Scotland, ſhould write his Letter to the Scots at Newcaſtle, ſignifying the reſolution of the King and Peers to treat with them at the day and place appointed, with the Names of the Commiſſioners.

Alſo to let them know, that they ſhould have ſufficient Safe-Conducts for their Commiſſioners; and likewiſe a releaſing of their Priſoners for exchange of ours detained by them, and fair Quarter to be kept betwixt both Armies.

The Letter followeth in theſe words:

The Earl of Lanerick's Letter to the Scots about the Treaty.

My Lords,

'According to his Majeſties appointment, the moſt part of the 'Peers of this Kingdom of England, met here at York this day, 'where his Majeſty did communicate unto them your Deſires and 'Petitions: And becauſe you do ſo earneſtly preſs for a ſpeedy Anſwer thereunto; his Majeſty with the advice of the Peers, hath 'nominated ſuch a number of them, for a Conference with you upon Tueſday next at Northallerton, whoſe Names are here underwritten: But withal, if you ſhall think the time too ſhort, and 'with conveniency you cannot come ſo ſoon thither, if betwixt this 'and Sunday you do acquaint his Majeſty therewith, he will take 'order for the delay thereof, for one day or two.

'And that you may without all fear or danger of Detention, ſend 'ſuch perſons unto the ſaid Conference as you ſhall think moſt fit, if 'betwixt this and Sunday, you ſend thither the Names of thoſe you 'mean to employ; his Majeſty will with all poſſible Diligence retain 'a Safe-Conduct under his own Royal Hand for them and their neceſſary Servants.

'His Majeſty hath likewiſe commanded me to let you know, that 'upon your releaſing of ſuch Officers, and others of his Subjects, as 'are detained by you, he will return all ſuch of yours, as are his 'Priſoners, either here or at Berwick. And hereafter reſolves, that 'fair Quarter ſhall be kept betwixt both Armies. Thus having reported his Majeſties pleaſure, I continue

Your Lordſhips Servant,

YORK, Septemb. 24.

Lanerick.

The ſame Commiſſioners were inſerted in this Letter, who were agreed upon at the Great Council, and are before mentioned.

Earl of Bedford.
Earl of Hertford, &c.

This Letter was ordered to be ſent by Mr. John Bellaſis Son to the Lord Faulconbergh, appointed for that purpoſe by his Majeſty and the Peers.

September 25, 1640.

Preſent

The Kings Moſt Excellent Majeſty,

Lord Keeper.
Lord Privy Seal, &c.

The Subjects matters to be conſidered by the Great Council of the Peers at York.

HIs Majeſty in the firſt place commanded the Petition of the Inhabitants of Northumberland to be read, complaining of divers unreaſonable and inſupportable Exactions of the Scots.

Alſo the Petition of the Inhabitants of the Biſhoprick of Durham.

Then the Petition of the Tenants to the Biſhop, Dean and Chapter of Durham.

All which are before mentioned.

Then his Majeſty cauſed the before mentioned Letter which the Earl of Lanerick had drawn up, to be read in full Council, bearing date the 24th of September, which was agreed upon and ordered to be ſent to the Scots at Newcaſtle by Mr. Bellaſis.

The Biſhop of Durham alſo having preſented to the Council the great Calamities which the Inhabitants of the Biſhoprick endured by reaſon of the Scottiſh Exactions, humbly beſought, that the Lords Commiſſioners would procure the Scots to forbear Acts of Hoſtility during the Treaty.

Whereupon his Majeſty gave order, that the Commiſſioners for the Treaty at Rippon ſhould take that particular into conſideration, and as they ſhould ſee opportunity to deal therein.

THe Incommodities which the Lords ſhould meet withal at Northallerton, being ſignified by the Earl of Strafford, the whole Council afterward concluded to change the place to Rippon, and the day of Meeting was to be the firſt of October.

THen his Majeſty moved the Lords to apply themſelves to the buſineſs of the day; which was to enter into debate of the ſecond Propoſition propoſed the day before by his Majeſty; viz.

How the Army ſhould be maintained until the Supplies of a Parliament might be had.

And that their Opinions might be more freely delivered, his Majeſty offered to retire and depart the Council. But the Peers humbly beſought his Majeſty, to continue his preſence amongſt them; for that by his great Wiſdom and particular knowledge of his affairs, they ſhould be the better directed to reſolve upon that which was moſt expedient to be done. Unto which their humble requeſt his Majeſty graciouſly aſſented.

And then his Majeſty deſired the Peers to enter into Conſideration,

1. Firſt, What, and how much, was fit to be had, for the maintenance of his Army. And,

Secondly, How it ſhould be raiſed or procured. Informing them, that it was only Money that was wanting: For as for other Neceſſaries, there was ſufficient proviſion made already. And that they might the better conceive what ſumm was requiſite, he referred them to the Relations of the Earl of Strafford, and others his Officers, that ſhould give them information of the true State of the Army: adding, that in his own opinion, no leſs ſumm than Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds would ſerve the turn.

Whereupon the Earl of Strafford, Lieutenant General of the Army, declared the State of it to be as followeth:

The State of the Kings Army.

'1. THat the Kings Army was in Arrear to Yorkſhire for one Fortnights Victuals.

'2. That there was in pay Nineteen or Twenty Thouſand Foot, and about Two and Twenty or Three and Twenty Hundred Horſe, beſides Three Regiments of Scottiſh Reformed Officers all in pay, which amounted to Threeſcore Thouſand Pounds a Moneth.

'3. That if this Army ſhould disband for want of Money to pay them, the County of York would be loſt in two dayes, and the whole Kingdom endangered.

'4. Laſtly, That to keep the Army together for three Moneths, no leſs would ſerve than the ſumm of Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds.

'HEreupon it was reſolved, That a Letter ſhould be written to the City of London, ſubſcribed by all the Peers preſent, for lending the foreſaid ſumm of Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds; which Letter was to be drawn by a ſelect Committee of the Council being nominated, as followeth:

Lord Keeper.
Lord Privy Seal.
Earl of Bedford.
Earl of Hertford.
Earl of Briſtoll.
Earl of Strafford.
Lord North.
Lord Goring.
Mr. Secretary Vane.
Lord Chief Juſtice Littleton.
Mr. Attorney.

A Letter from the Lords of the Great Council at York to the City of London.

AFter, &c. Having been by his Majeſties Writ under the Great Seal of England, aſſembled here the twenty fourth of this inſtant Moneth, to our exceeding Joy and Comfort, before our entry into any Conſideration his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare his gracious reſolution for holding a Parliament at Weſtminſter the third of November next; to which Declaration his Majeſty was pleaſed to add ſo full aſſurance of his great deſire to be rightly underſtood by his people, and of his reſolution to relieve all the juſt grievances at this ſucceeeding Parliament, that we all reſt confident upon his Royal Word, that this whole Kingdom ſhall be firmly united in a loyal and hearty care for the preſervation of the true Religion eſtabliſhed here, the honour of his Moſt Sacred Majeſty, and the general good and happineſs of all his Majeſties loving Subjects. We are every way ſenſible of the great calamity, that cannot but

An. 1640. light upon both Kingdoms by the preſent diſtractions and diſtempers, and have for timely remedy therein, been (by his Majeſties great Wiſdom and Prudence) put into a way of Treaty with thoſe of Scotland, for ſuch an accommodation, as may tend to the honour of his Majeſty, and the perfect union of both Kingdoms; wherein as we reſt moſt aſſured, that his Majeſty will be no way wanting in his Grace and Goodneſs, to liſten to the juſt and reaſonable Demands of his Subjects of Scotland; ſo if they ſhall inſiſt upon terms diſhonourable for his Majeſty and the Engliſh Nation to condeſcend unto, we ſhall all hold our ſelves obliged in honour and duty to preſerve and defend this Kingdom from all invaſions and ſpoils, by any kind of enemy whatſoever. The Lords appointed by his Majeſty and the Great Council of the Peers are to meet with thoſe of Scotland on Thurſday next at Rippon; and we all are not out of hope, that all things may come to a happy and ſpeedy concluſion. In the mean time, taking into our ſerious conſideration the ſtate of Newcaſtle, the Commodities whereof are ſo neceſſary and behoveful for the City of London, and indeed for the whole Kingdom; the miſerable conditions of the Counties of Northumberland, and the Biſhoprick of Durham; the particulars whereof, the Lords deputed and entruſted with theſe our Letters and other Inſtructions, will fully acquaint you with: and withal finding that the ſafety of this great and conſiderable County of York, and the adjacent Counties, depend upon the holding together of his Majeſties Army; and knowing well, that although theſe Counties ſhould for the preſent firſt undergo the Calamity that would enſue thereon, yet the danger and miſery would ſoon undertake all other Counties of the Realm, We could not in our Judgements think it wiſdom, to adviſe his Majeſty to diſband our Forces, but much rather, to continue them together, till by the happy ſucceſs of this Treaty, or the great Wiſdom of the Parliament, ſome courſe might be taken for a firm Peace, or juſt War: the conſideration whereof, we ſhall, as in all things, humbly referr to that Great and Honourable Body now ſummoned, and which will undoubtedly, with Gods Grace, aſſemble at the day and place appointed. His Majeſty hath made it appear to us, that his Treaſure is exhauſted, and that he is altogether unprovided to keep his Forces together for ſo long a time, as the Parliament can ſettle ſome ſuch courſe, as they in their Wiſdoms ſhall think fitteſt. To the end therefore that the Engliſh Forces may not diſband till thoſe of Scotland do, we have all with an unanimous conſent reſolved, that it is neceſſary, that his Majeſty be ſupplyed with Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds, as well for the continuing of them together, as for the orderly diſmiſſing of them when it ſhall be time ſo to do, leſt in their return his Majeſties Subjects ſhould undergo any of thoſe inconveniencies, that Soldiers ſent away unſatisfied are apt to put upon them. We aſſuredly perſwade our ſelves, that the City of London is well able to ſupply his Majeſty with this ſumm; and we do not doubt, but (our hearts being all here united) the ſame affection will ſhew it ſelf in you of London, who are ſo concerned in the Danger, and ſo conſiderable in your ſelves. To theſe arguments, which we doubt not but you will ſeriouſly conſider, and fortifie with many of your own, we cannot but add our hearty, earneſt and unanimous deſires and affectionate requeſts, that you would not at this time be failing to ſo gracious a King, to the whole Kingdom, and to your ſelves; and to this purpoſe we have deputed their Lordſhips Henry Earl of Mancheſter, Lord Privy Seal, Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſties Houſhold, Jo. Earl of Clare, Ed. Viſcount Campden, the Lord Coventry, and George Lord Goring, Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſties Houſhold, members of this Great Council, who being aſſiſted by the principal Officers of his Majeſties revenues, ſhall treat and conclude with you of all particulars both for ſecurity and dayes of payment, ſuch as may beſt ſuit with his Majeſties real performance of the premiſes, we offer our ſelves to joyn in any further ſecurity in ſuch manner as ſhall be agreed upon by theſe Lords and your ſelves: all which we the rather offer to your serious conſiderations, in regard we do viſibly foreſee, that the disbanding of his Majeſties Army, may be the abſolute loſs of all thoſe adjacent Counties, and the endangering of the whole Kingdom, and that no other preſent means than by Loan of Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds from you, can be found, for the publick preſervation of the King and Kingdom. And ſo we bid you heartily farewell, and we reſt

Your ever loving friends, &c.

Theſe Instructions were drawn up for the Lords deputed to treat with the City of London.

Inſtructions given to the Lords that were to treat with the City of London for the Loan of 200000 l.

'1. TO acquaint them with the Petitions from Newcaſtle, Northumberland and the Biſhoprick of Durham, with ſuch Circumſtances as they conceive material concerning them.

'2. To acquaint them with the Acts and proceedings of this Aſſembly of the Peers.

'3. The Security which they ſhall offer from the Peers, is to be by Bond.

'4. All other Peers (though not preſent at this Aſſembly) are to be deſired to engage themſelves as far forth as the Peers now aſſembled ſhall.

'5. The Lords deputed ſhall have authority to deſire, in the name of this Great Council, the Aſſiſtance of any Peer of the Realm for furtherance of the Buſineſs, wherein they are employed.

'6. The Lords deputed, to agree for times of Payment and Re-payment, wherein they are to take notice, that his Majeſties Occaſions will require Fifty Thouſand Pound to be paid by the twelfth of October next, One Hundred Thouſand Pound by the fifteenth of November, and the other Fifty Thouſand Pound by the firſt of December, and to draw the City as near as they can to theſe times.

'For the Dayes of Re-payment, they are to conferr with the Officers of his Majeſties Revenue.

The Kings Commiſſion impowering the Engliſh Lords to treat with the Scots, as it paſſed under the Great Seal.

CHARLES by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To our Truſty and well beloved Couſins and Councellors of our great Council now aſſembled, Francis Earl of Bedford, William Earl of Hertford, Robert Earl of Eſſex, William Earl of Salisbury, Robert Earl of Warwick, John Earl of Briſtoll, Henry Earl of Holland, and Thomas Earl of Berks; and to our right Truſty and right well beloved Councellors of our ſaid Great Council, Phillip Lord Wharton, William Lord Pagett, Edward Lord Kimboulton, Robert Lord Brooke, John Lord Paulett of Hinton St. George, Edward Lord Howard of Eſtricke, Thomas Lord Savile, and Francis Lord Dunſmore, Greeting: Whereas divers of our Subjects of Scotland have by their ſeveral Petitions humbly beſought Us, that We would be graciouſly pleaſed to grant unto them certain Demands, whereupon We let them know, That by the Advice of the Great Council, We would give anſwer thereunto; We repoſing ſpecial truſt and confidence in your great Wiſdoms and Fidelity, by the Advice of our ſaid Great Council, have given and granted unto you, and by theſe preſents do give and grant unto you or any Ten or more of you, full power and authority to treat with Charles Earl of Dumfermling, John Lord Lowdon, Sir William Dowglas of Caveris, Sir Patrick Hepburne of Waughton, John Smith, Alexander Wedderburne, Alexander Henderſon, and Archibald Johnſton, or any of them deputed by our ſaid Subjects of Scotland, or nominated on their behalf: and to take into your ſerious Conſideration the ſaid Demands, and to compoſe, conclude and end all differences ariſing thereupon, or otherwiſe as you or any Ten or more of you in your Wiſdoms ſhall think fit. And whatſoever you our ſaid Commiſſioners, or any Ten or more of you ſhall do in the premiſes, We do by theſe preſents ratifie and confirm the ſame. In Witneſs whereof, We have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs Our Self at Our City of York, the Nine and Twentieth Day of September in the Sixteenth Year of Our Reign.

For the better management of this Treaty, certain Inſtructions were given to the Kings Commiſſioners of this Tenor:

Inſtructions for our Right Truſty and Right Well beloved Couſins and Councellors of our Great Council, the Earls of Bedford, Hertford, Eſſex, Salisbury, Briſtoll, Warwick, Holland and Berks, and for our Right Truſty and well beloved Councellors of our Great Council, the Lords Mandevile, Paget, Wharton, Brooke, Pawlett, Howard, Savile, and Dunſmore, Barons and Councellors nominated and deputed by Us and the Great Council of Peers, now aſſembled by vertue of our Writ of Summons at our City of York, to meet and Treat of an Accommodation of Differences; and if poſſible, a firm peace, with ſuch Lords and others of Scotland, as ſhall be deputed and authorized to the ſame effect: Which Conference is appointed by Us to be held on Thurſday next at Rippon the firſt of October 1640.

'First, You are for a ground and rule unto this preſent Treaty, to take the Articles of Pacification agreed upon, and ſigned by Us and them the laſt year at our Camp near Berwick. And in caſe they aſſent unto them, you are then to declare in our Name, that we are ſtill reſolved not to depart from any thing therein contained on our part.

'But if ſo you find upon Conference, that they will not lay the ſaid Pacification as a ground to the Treaty, you are then to hear their Reaſons, and to advertiſe Us and the Peers thereof.

'And whereas the Scotch Lords, by their Letter of the eighth of this inſtant September to the Lord Lanerick, have made ſeveral Demands:

'Firſt, That the laſt Acts of Parliament may be publiſhed in our Name; you are to let them know, that the Convention being convened without our Royal Authority, contrary to the Laws and Conſtitutions of that Kingdom, We may not Ratifie the ſame with our Royal aſſent; yet nevertheleſs ſuch are our Inclinations to peace and the preſervation of that our Kingdom, that we having taken into conſideration thoſe particular Acts, concerning ſuch and ſuch perſons, We will give our Conſent in a Parliament to be ſummoned by Us according to the Legal way: and for ſuch other Acts, as are either Derogatory to our Crown and Dignity, or alter the Fundamental Conſtitutions of the Parliament of that Kingdom, We have commanded the Earls of Traquair, Morton and Lanerick, to give you the beſt Informations herein they can.

An. 1640.

'2. To the ſecond demand, touching the Caſtle of Edenburgh, and other ſtrenghts of Scotland; You are to let them know, that as the laſt year, ſo now, We expect that they ſhall be reſtored. Which we mean to keep for the Defence of that Kingdom, as hath been done in the times of our Predeceſſours.

'3. Concerning the third Demand, that the Scotch in England and Ireland ſhould be freed from Oaths and Subſcriptions, You are to declare unto them, that the Subjects of each Nation are to be ſubject to the Laws of that Kingdom wherein they live.

'4. To the fourth, That the common Incendiaries who have been the Authors of this Combuſtion in his Majeſties Dominions, may receive their juſt Cenſure, You are to tell them that we conceive that all perſonal Animoſities and Diſputes touching the actions of private perſons, not being eaſie to be compoſed, It were much better and more Chriſtian to bury them on all hands, than to raiſe them again by ſuch Demands. But if they preſs particulars againſt any perſon, you are to hear them, and to report the ſame to Us, and the Great Council of the Peers.

'5. To the fifth, that their ſhips and Goods, with all the Damages thereof may be reſtored, You are to let them know, That the other points of the Treaty being accorded, We are graciouſly pleaſed that the Ships and Goods of our Subjects be reſtored.

'6. To the ſixth, That the Wrongs, Loſſes and Charges ſuſtained may be repaired, You are to underſtand from them, for what and from whom they intend their ſatisfaction.

'7. To the ſeventh, That the Declarations made againſt them as Traytours may be recalled, You are to let them know, that when the Treaty is agreed upon, and they conform themſelves as Dutiful and obedient Subjects, We ſhall then be graciouſly pleaſed to recall the ſaid Declarations.

'8. And for the removing of the Garriſons from the Borders, and Impediments that may ſtop Free-Trade, You may declare unto them, that this was not demanded by the Articles of Pacification. And though afterwards deſired by them, yet refuſed by us. Nevertheleſs when the Scottiſh Army and Forces ſhall be withdrawn out of this Kingdom, We ſhall be content to do therein, as our Great Council of the Peers now aſſembled ſhall adviſe us. And for the Freedom of Trade, We will then take ſuch order as ſhall content them.

'As touching the ſuſpenſion of Armes, We do give you power to move, or accept of any thing concerning the ſame, as you ſhall ſee cauſe upon the place, Taking the beſt care you can, for relieving of ſuch Counties as are under Contribution.

'Now the Articles of Pacification the laſt year, being the Rule to govern this Treaty by, and for theſe Articles and the particular anſwers to their Demands, You are then to endeavour to draw them as near to the ſame as you can, but not to break the Treaty, only to Report the Differences, with the reaſons that fall between you, to us, and our great Council of the Peers now aſſembled.

'Laſtly, We have commanded that the Earls of Traquair, Morton, Lanerick, Mr. Secretary Vane, with the aſſiſtance of Sr. Lewis Steward, and Sir John Burough, may be preſent at the Treaty between you and our Subjects of Scotland, at all your publick Debates, Meet‘ings and Conferences concerning the ſame. It is therefore our expreſs pleaſure, that they or any of them may object, debate, and propoſe what they (out of the knowledge and experience they have had of theſe affairs) ſhall conceive to conduce to our ſervice, and the peace of theſe our Kingdoms.

Soon after this the Scots appointed a ſelect Committee to Treat with the Lords Commiſſioners agreed on by his Majeſty and the Council, and ſignified the ſame to the ſaid Commiſſioners in this following Letter.

The Scots Letter to the Engliſh Commiſſioners.

Right Honourable,

THeſe are to ſignifie to your Lordſhips, that We have appointed the Earl of Dumfermlin, the Lord Lowdon, the Sheriff of Teviottdale, Sr. Patrick Hepburne of Wanchtowne, John Smith, Mr. Alexander Wedderburn, Mr. Alexander Henderſon, and Mr. Archibald Johnſton to attend thoſe Noblemen, whom his Majeſty hath been pleaſed to nominate, for that Conference appointed by his Majeſty to be at Rippon on Thurſday next, they getting that ſafe-Conduct here encloſed under his Majeſties Royal hand, with ſubſcription of the Peers, returned with this Bearer; and that We have not (in this preparatory Treaty.) ſent a Number equal to thoſe Peers expreſſed in your Lordſhips Letters, the fewneſs of our number here, and the nature of our Commiſſion, being a Committee from the Parliament, and the greater part of the Peers of Scotland being abſent, will plead our excuſe. And to witneſs how much deſirous we are to obey all his Majeſties juſt Commandments, We have releaſed ſuch Officers and others, as were detained by us, being confident, that his Majeſty, (out of his Royal Juſtice and Goodneſs*) will be graciouſly pleaſed to releaſe all ſuch as are impriſoned, or detained for our Cauſe in any place within his Majeſties Dominions; and that ſuch fair Quarter ſhall be condeſcended upon, and kept hereafter betwixt both Armies, as are in any Wars, till we attain a happy peace; That from the ſenſe of Royal benignity, we may be encouraged to the performing of every Duty can be required, or expected from good Subjects, In which Reſolution we remain*

Your Lordſhips

Newcaſtle Sept. 26.

Affectionate Friends to ſerve you.

The Commiſſion.

‘WE Commiſſioners of the Parliament of Scotland, under ſubſcribed, Do by theſe preſents give full power and Commiſſion to Charles Earl of Dunfermelin, John Lord Lowdon, Sir Patrick Hepburne of Wanchtown, Sir William Douglas of Caneris, John Smith, Mr. Alexander Wedderburn, Mr. Alexander Henderſon, and Mr. Archibald Johnſton, to meet and Convene with the Noblemen Peers of England, appointed for the Conference anent his Majeſties Anſwer to our Demands, with power to them to Confer, Treat, and Demand, conform to the Inſtructions already given, or which ſhall be hereafter given, or ſent to them, and to report to Us at all occaſions.

The Treaty at Rippon.

OCtober the firſt, being the day appointed, they met at Rippon, and the Earl of Briſtol opened the occaſion of the Conference and meeting at this time to this effect.

'IT is by his Majeſties ſpecial Commandment, that We give your Lordſhips this Meeting; We come authorized by his Majeſties Commiſſion, under the Great Seal of England.

'And by his Majeſties further permiſſion, We have been nominated and deputed by the great Council of Peers now met at York.

'Our ends and our Deſires, I conceive are the ſame, which are by Gods holy permiſſion, to endeavour to accommodate thoſe unhappy miſunderſtandings and Differences which are now on foot, in ſuch ſort as may moſt redound to the Glory of God, the Eſtabliſhment of true Religion, the Honour of the King, Soveraign to Us both, and the Peace and Tranquillity of both Nations.

At the day appointed, &c.

Rippon, Oct. 2. 1640.

The Scottiſh Commiſſioners at their firſt meeting took exceptions to the Aſſiſtants, and gave the effect thereof in Writing as followeth.

The Scots Commiſſioners except at the Aſſiſtants of the Engliſh.

'BEcauſe we doubt not but your Lordſhips are well acquainted with our proceedings, and the Reaſons of our Demands, and ſince by our Commiſſion We are not Warranted to Treat, but with the Noblemen named by his Majeſty, with the advice of the Peers, and are particularly Warranted to make exception againſt the Earl of Traquair for his Maleverſation in the matter of the Aſſembly and Parliament, and for which his Lordſhip, and all ſuch as have done evil Offices to divide betwixt the King and his Subjects, are demanded to be Cenſured; therefore we expreſly decline the Earl of Traquaire, and do not conceive that according to his Warrants granted to us in his Majeſties Letter and our Commiſſion, any man can aſſiſt at the Treaty but the Noblemen expreſſed in his Majeſties Letters.

The Scotch Commiſſioners being moved to ſet down certain Heads for Introduction to the Treaty, they exhibited a Paper of the tenour following.

Rippon, Oct. 2. 1640. Heads for introduction to the Treaty ſet down by the Scots Commiſſioners.

'1. WE conceive that ſince our humble deſires and demands 'are particularly expreſſed, the moſt convenient Order for bringing of matters ſpeedily to a wiſhed end, muſt be to 'Treat upon the very demands as they are expreſſed; And whatſoever from the Articles of the laſt Pacification, or any other grounds, 'may ſerve for expeding of matters, that it be brought in as ſub venia.

'2. If there be a Treaty of Pacification, and Armes ſhall ceaſe; 'It is neceſſary that your Lordſhips firſt take into your Conſideration, how our Army ſhall be maintained, until the Treaty be ended, 'and our peace ſecured.

'3. If it ſhall be found expedient that a greater number of Commiſſioners be ſent to the Treaty, from the Commiſſioners of the 'Scotch Parliament, It is humbly craved, that the like ſafe-Conduct 'may be given to them, as is granted to us.

'4. A ſafe-conduct is likewiſe demanded to all ſuch as ſhall be 'ſent from the Commiſſioners of the Parliament to us, or from us 'to them upon all occaſions; and that the ordinary Poſt may be 'free for carrying of our Letters to Edenburgh, and from thence for 'giving of ſpeedy Advertiſement and Reſolutions, becauſe of the 'neceſſary intercouſe and correſpondence betwixt both the Committees.

'5. That (for the benefit of the Subjects of both Kingdoms) 'Trade, and free Commerce, of Importing and Exporting of Commodities be allowed, eſpecially that Victuals from Scotland and 'other places may be tranſported to Newcaſtle, for the better eaſe of 'the Engliſh, and more convenient entertainment of our Army.

Theſe Propoſitions the Lords Commiſſioners ſent to the King, and received direction to give them this Anſwer, which they did in writing as followeth.

To the Propoſition of the ſafe-Conduct and freedom of the Poſt way.

'HIS Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to grant the ſame, during 'the Treaty.

'Concerning the Aſſiſtants.

The Anſwer to the Scots exception of the Aſſiſtants.

'That in regard of the unequal condition which is conceived his 'Majeſties affairs will be put into, if his Majeſty ſhould not make 'choice of ſuch aſſiſtants as he conceiveth be verſed in them; We 'have order to offer it to your ſecond conſideration, and to let you ‘know, that the ſaid Aſſiſtants are not any way authorized to Conferr or Treat with the Commiſſioners of Scotland, nor to have any ‘voice or vote in the debating, or concluding of any thing; but to ‘give Us a right Underſtanding of ſuch things as can no otherwiſe ‘fall under our knowledge.

To this the Scotch Commiſſioners replyed the ſame day, as followeth.

The Scots Reply.

‘WE do thankfully acknowledge his Majeſties goodneſs in ‘granting the ſafe-Conduct, and opening the Poſt way, and ‘that we may at all occaſions make uſe thereof, we deſire that ſo ‘ſoon as may be, the ſame may be made known to the Poſts all ‘the way to Berwick, and Warrant given that there be no impediment to ſuch, as ſhall come and go.

‘Concerning the Aſſiſtants, the reaſons of our former Anſwer ‘permitteth us not to take any new Reſolution in our ſubſequent ‘Conſiderations: And ſince your Lordſhips do declare, that it is ‘not intended that they ſhall have any voice in debating, and all ‘points material are to be committed to Writ, If your Lordſhips ‘conceive their advice to be neceſſary, it may be given to your Lordſhips by them, although they aſſiſt not openly in the Treaty.

After this, the Commiſſioners on both ſides falling into ſpeech of a Ceſſation of Armes during the Treaty; The Engliſh Lords preſſed to have them particularize their Demands, and eſpecially to ſet down in writing what they expected upon their Propoſition of having their Army maintained during the Treaty.

This the Scotch Commiſſioners requeſted to have in Writing, which was given them as followeth.

The Scots Commiſſioners deſired to ſet down in writing, what maintenance they require for their Army during the Treaty.

IT is propounded to your Lordſhips, that you give a particular of all your demands under your hands, and eſpecially what you do expect for the Loſſes which you pretend to have ſuſtained; As likewiſe for maintenance of your Army during the Treaty, and how you intend or would adviſe, it ſhould be raiſed or ſatisfied unto you.

To which they made Anſwer the ſame day in writing, in theſe words.

The Scots Anſwer.

IT is our deſire unto your Lordſhips, that ſuch things which are preparative and neceſſary for the Treaty, may be diſtinguiſhed from the matters and parts of the Treaty it ſelf; And thus we ſhall be ready to give the particular of that our demand, concerning our Loſſes and Charges which we have ſuſtained, and of all our other demands, each one in their own place; And we are willing to anſwer preſently according to our Inſtructions, to that which is propounded by your Lordſhips, concerning the maintenance of our Army; for by them we are Warranted to demand the ſumm of Forty thouſand pounds in the Month. But concerning the way of raiſing thereof, neither are we inſtructed, nor do we preſume to adviſe; And your Lordſhips in your wiſdoms, can beſt conſider the wayes how this may be done, that we may the better proceed in the intended Treaty.

UNto this Propoſition the Earl of Briſtol (by order of the reſt of the Engliſh Lords Commiſſioners) demanded of the Commiſſioners of Scotland, whether the demand of Forty thouſand pounds a Month were poſitive, or ſuch as upon debate, and juſt reaſons they might mitigate.

This the Scotch Commiſſioners craved to have in Writing, and returned their Anſwer in writing, as followeth.

AS we have (according to our Inſtructions) ſhewn your Lordſhips what is required for the maintenance of our Army, ſo it is our deſire, that your Lordſhips may be pleaſed to expreſs, what ſumm your Lordſhips think to be a Competency; and that as your Lordſhips think meet to make Remonſtrance of our propoſition to his Majeſty, we alſo may be enabled to make your Lordſhips minds known to the Committee of Parliament that ſent us, for the better and more ſpeedy accommodation.

Rippon Octob. 5.
1640.

TO this Demand of the Scotch Commiſſioners, the Lords Commiſſioners of England (before they returned Anſwer) thought fit to ſend five of their own number, viz. the Earls of Hartford, Briſtol, and Holland, and the Lords Wharton and Savil, to acquaint the King and the Great Council of the Peers therewith, and to receive direction how to proceed therein.

Octob. 2. 1640. A Letter from the Commiſſioners at Rippon to the King.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

WE met with the Commiſſioners of Scotland this morning, being Friday the ſecond of October, where the Earl of Briſtol made a ſhort Introduction. And in the firſt place we made your Majeſties Commiſſion under the Great Seal of England to be read. In the next place, we deſired to know how they came authorized. Whereupon they produced a Commiſſion from the Commiſſioners of their Parliament of Scotland, a copy whereof we ſend your Majeſty. After this the Lord Lowdon ſaid it was moſt needful to repeat their demands; for the concluſion of the late Parliament, their Printed Declarations, and their Letters to the Earl of Lanerick contained the ſubject and ſubſtance of all their demands. Hereunto after conſultation amongſt our ſelves, we replyed that if their demands had been ſet down in any Letter or Petition, we might have had certain grounds to Treat of; but to have relation to all their Printed Declarations, were to leave things to uncertainties. Hereunto they replyed, that the word Printed Declarations was in the Letter to the Lord Lanerick, which they cauſed to be read. After this they propounded this Queſtion, In what quality the Lords of their own Nation ſate there. Where- upon after private conſultation amongſt our ſelves, we declared, that we being nominated as Commiſſioners, humbly ſignified unto your Majeſty, that we being meer ſtrangers to the Laws and Conſtitutions of Scotland, deſired the aſſiſtance and information of ſome ſuch as your Majeſty knew to be well verſed in thoſe affairs. So that in the matter it ſelf, it was upon our humble requeſt; but for the perſons they were nominated by your Majeſty, ſuch as your Majeſty held fit and beſt inſtructed in the Laws and Conſtitutions of that Kingdom. Whereupon the Lord Lowdon, in the name of the reſt ſaid, that they were limited by their Commiſſion to Treat with ſuch Lords as in your Majeſties name were ſignified unto them by the Earl of Lanerick's Letter to be Deputed to Treat with them and with no other. Whereupon deſiring that there might be no miſunderſtanding, we intreated them to ſet down in writing the contents of their Inſtructions in this particular. Which they did accordingly: and herewith we ſend it your Majeſty incloſed. Hereupon having debated amongſt our ſelves, and finding it neceſſary according to our duties to hold our ſelves preciſely to your Majeſties Inſtructions, and it appearing doubtful unto us, whether we might proceed without ſuch Aſſiſtants as your Majeſty hath aſſigned unto us by your Inſtructions under your hand, we held it fit to have recourſe unto your Majeſty therein to receive ſuch further inſtructions as your Majeſty in your Princely wiſdom ſhall be pleaſed to give us, which we ſhall not fail to purſue with all the Loyalty and Affection as your Majeſty may juſtly expect from

1640.

Your Majeſties moſt humble and obedient Subjects.

Since the writing of this Letter, the Commiſſioners of Scotland deſired a meeting, although we had ſent to diſcharge it, until we had heard from your Majeſty. They have made ſome propoſitions to us, and have promiſed to deliver them unto us in writing. But fearing leſt we ſhould retard this diſpatch too long, we have ſent it away, and within few hours do hope to ſend unto your Majeſty what hath ſince occurred.

The Engliſh Commiſſioners at the Treaty at Rippon made choice of Mr. Fran. Palmes a younger Son to Sir Guy Palmes to carry the Letter above mentioned to his Majeſty.

The KING's Letter to the Lords concerning the Scots Demands.

The King's Anſwer to the Lords.

Right Truſty and Right Well beloved Couſins, and Councellours of our great Council now Aſſembled, We perceive by your Letter of the ſecond of this month, That the Commiſſioners of Scotland alledge, they are not warranted to Treat but with the Noblemen named by us with the advice of the Peers, for which cauſe beſides the exception they are warranted to make againſt the Earl of Traquaire, they decline him and conceive that by the Warrant granted them in our Letter and Commiſſion none are to aſſiſt at the Treaty, but the Noblemen expreſſed in our Letter. This we have have imparted to ſuch of our great Council as are left here, and by their Unanimous Advice we return this anſwer, That the Earl of Traquaire, and the reſt, with the advice of our Peers appointed to aſſiſt you, were not any way authorized to conferr or Treat with the Commiſſioners of Scotland, nor to have any voice or vote in the debating or concluding any thing, but only to give you a right underſtanding of ſuch things as you could not otherwiſe be enabled to Treat of or debate, in regard of your being ſtrangers not only to the Laws and Cuſtomes of the Kingdom of Scotland, but altogether unacquainted in the paſſages of the Aſſembly and Parliament, without knowledge whereof the matters in difference cannot be ſo well cleared; And therefore by the advice of the Peers here Aſſembled, we hold it very reaſonable that the Earl of Traquaire ſhould be preſent, to whom all things that will require Debate are beſt known, and that you ſhould preſs them to admit thereof, giving this and ſuch other reaſons for it as you ſhall think fit.

Neverthelesſ becauſe we are willing the Treaty ſhould go on with as little loſs of time as may be, We have by like Advice of our Peers, and to the intent we may the better diſcern what need there will be of ſuch Aſſiſtants, thought fit to give you this Direction, in caſe they refuſe, that then without Aſſiſtants you ſhould preſs the Commiſſioners of Scotland to give you a particular of all their Demands under their hands, and eſpecially what they do expect for their loſſes which they pretend they have ſuſtained; And for maintenance of their Army during the Treaty, or how they Intend or would Adviſe how it ſhould be raiſed and ſatisfied unto them, of which you are to make report to us.

For the ſafe-conduct which they deſire for ſuch only as ſhall be ſent to the Treaty from the Commiſſioners of the Scottiſh Parliament, and for all ſuch as ſhall be ſent from the Commiſſioners unto them, or from them to the Commiſſioners upon all occaſions, with the freedom of the Poſt for carrying of all the Letters to and from Edenburgh, We are graciouſly pleaſed to grant the ſame during the time of all the Treaty. Touching the Trade or free Commerce of Importing and Exporting of Commodities, when the buſineſs is a little further admitted, we ſhall the better reſolve what anſwer to give therein as a thing more proper to the Concluſion than for the beginning of a Treaty.

For the ceſſation of Arms you have our Inſtructions already, whereby we and our Council are of opinion that the Disbanding of both Armies were much better than a Ceſſation, which therefore we would have you propound and endeavour with them, and ſo we bid you heartily farewel.

York Octob. 3.
1640.

ON Wedneſday the ſeventh of October his Majeſty with the Advice of his Peers ordered to Transfer the Treaty from Rippon to the City of York, and Letters to that effect were ſent to the Lords Commiſſioners of England, and they were to certifie thoſe of Scotland thereof with the Reaſons, as firſt the want of Health in that place, ſecondly that it will be a means to expedite the Treaty by bringing it nearer to his Majeſty.

The Contents of this Letter was delivered by the Lord's Commiſſioners to the Scotch Commiſſioners at Rippon, October 8. 1640.

The King reſolves to transferr the Treaty from Rippon to York.

'THat his Majeſty in regard of the unhealthfulneſs of this place, and for the expediting of this Treaty, hath been induced to this Reſolution, That the Treaty be transferred from Rippon to York. His Majeſty alſo expects that the Scottiſh Commiſſioners ſhould ſend preſently for order to come thither; and that they procure abſolute and full power to conclude as well as to Treat, and that they ſhall find the like power there: and to this end his Majeſty hath ſent ſuch ſafe-conduct as they can deſire.

RIPPON, Octob. 8. 1640.

The anſwer of the Scotch Commiſſioners hereupon.

THE Scottiſh Commiſſioners being made acquainted with his Majeſties purpoſe herein, expreſſed their minds fully and largely concerning that matter in theſe words:

'Nothing is ſo greatly deſired of us and thoſe that ſent us, as that this Treaty may begin timely and end happily; this moved us in our laſt Propoſition to deſire to know what your Lordſhips did conceive to be a competency for the maintenance of our Army? and now his Majeſty being acquainted therewith, we deſire to know his Majeſties mind, that the Army being provided for in a competent manner, and ſo much being made known to thoſe that ſent us (according to the Inſtructions we have received from them, who make the maintenance of the Army previous to the Treaty) we may with all diligence ſhew them his Majeſties pleaſure, concerning the change of the place, and new power to us granted for concluding; and as we are warranted to give this Anſwer, ſo ſhall we not conceal our own thoughts about all this matter of the maintenance of the Army, and altering of the Treaty to York, and enlarging of our power.

'1. It is univerſally known that our Army was ſtayed in their march by his Majeſties ſpecial command, without which they might before this time, either have been better provided or further advanced in their Petition and intention, and that in hope of Proviſion to be made this way, they are kept from taking ſuch wayes and uſing ſuch means as might ſerve for their neceſſary maintenance, which yet are not to lay any burden on the Nation, or good people of England; (whoſe Weal and Happineſs we do ſeek as our own, and with whom we have determined, as we have declared, to ſtand and fall) but our meaning is, that neceſſary allowance being denyed to our Army, we take our ſelves to the Papiſts and Prelates with their Adherents our profeſſed Enemies, and the unhappy

'Inſtruments of all our trouble, Charges and hazard, theſe years 'by-paſt, who therefore in all equity ought to ſuffer in the ſame 'kind.

'2. We cannot conceal what danger may be apprehended in our 'going to York, and ſurrendring our ſelves and others who may be 'joyned with us, into the hands of an Army commanded by the 'Lieutenant of Ireland, againſt whom as a chief Incendiary (ac'cording to our Demands, which are the Subject of the Treaty it 'ſelf) we intend to inſiſt as is expreſſed in our Remonſtrance and 'Declaration, who hath in the Parliament of Ireland proceeded 'againſt us as Traitors and Rebels, (the beſt Titles his Lordſhip in 'his common talk doth honour us with,) whoſe Commiſſion is to 'ſubdue and deſtroy us, and who by all means and upon all occaſi'ons deſireth the breaking up of the Treaty of peace; the Army 'being commanded alſo by divers Papiſts, who conceive our pacifi'cation to be their ruine and diſſolution; and when there be divers 'Godleſs perſons doing the worſt office about his Majeſty, and wait'ing the occaſion of expreſſing their malice and revenge againſt us, 'and their own Nation.

'3. The whole power of the Committee of Parliament cannot 'be tranſmitted unto us, and the want of power neither hath been, 'nor needed it to be any hinderance to the ſpeedy progreſs and 'peaceable concluſion of the Treaty, ſince we have already in the 'beginning of the Conference ſhewed your Lordſhips what is the 'ſubject and ſubſtance of all our Demands.

The iſſue was, that his Majeſty altered his former Reſolution, and the Treaty was continued at Rippon.

The Lord Herbert's advice to the King.

EDward Lord Herbert, commonly called the black Lord Herbert, unſatisfied with the Scots demands of 40000 l. per menſem, upon the hearing thereof, firſt adviſed the King to fortifie York, and ſecondly diſſwaded his Majeſty from yielding to that demand, and he alleadged his reaſons for both, &c. Touching his firſt Propoſition he ſaid;

'1. Firſt, That Newcaſtle being taken, it is neceſſary to fortifie 'York, there being no other conſiderable place betwixt the Scots and 'London, which might detain their Army from advancing forwards.

'2. Secondly, That reaſon of State having admitted Fortification 'of our moſt Inland Towns againſt Weapons uſed in former times, 'it may as well admit Fortification againſt the Weapons uſed in theſe 'times.

3. Thirdly, That Towns have been obſerved alwayes averſe to 'Wars and Tumults, as ſubſiſting by the peaceable wayes of Trade 'and Traffick. Inſomuch that when either great perſons for their 'private Intereſts, or the Commons for their Grievances, have taken 'Armes, Townſmen have been noted ever to continue in their ac'cuſtomed Loyalty and Devotion.

An. 1640.

‘4. Fourthly, That this agreeth with the cuſtome of all other Countreys, there being no Town of the greatneſs of York any where I know in Chriſtendom that hath not his Baſtions and Bulwarks.

‘As for the Charges, the Townſmen of York might undertake that by his Majeſties permiſſion; For ſince it is a Maxim of War, that every Town may Fortifie its circumference within the ſpace of two months, the expences cannot be great,

‘And for the manner of doing it, nothing elſe is needful, but that at the diſtance of every five and twenty ſcore Paces round about the Town, the Walls ſhould be thrown down, and certain Baſtions or Bulwarks of Earth be erected by the advice of ſome good Engineer.

‘For the performing whereof every Townſman might give his helping hand, digging and caſting up earth only, where the ſaid Engineer (according to a Line given) ſhould appoint. And for Ordnance, Ammunition and a Magazin, the Townſmen likewiſe for their Security might be at the Charges thereof in theſe dangerous times; It being better to imploy ſome money ſo to prevent the taking of the Town, than to run the hazard of being in that eſtate in which Newcaſtle men now are. I could add ſomething concerning an ancient Law or Cuſtome called Murage, by which money was raiſed for Fortifying of Inland Towns. But becauſe I know not of what validity this Law or Cuſtome is at this time, I ſhall referr the further Conſideration thereof to the learned in our Antiquities.

‘I will conclude therefore, with your Majeſties good, favour for the Fortifying of York, as aſſuring my ſelf that if for want of Fortification it fall into the Scotchmens hands, they will quickly Fortifie it as they have already done Newcaſtle.

His Lordſhip further ſpake concerning the ſecond Particular.

‘1. Firſt, That Treaties are like thin aiery things, and have no real being in themſelves, but in the Imaginations of thoſe who projected them, and might quickly diſſolve and come to nothing; And to give ſo great a ſumm of Money for the Treating only of a peace, might be loſs both of the money, time, and many advantages.

‘2. Secondly, That he never read that ever Prince bought a Treaty of his Subjects at ſo dear a rate; but it is true, that Princes have bought Peace at a great price of their Subjects, and that they have thought it a good purchaſe, and found means at laſt to bring them to Reaſon.

‘3. Thirdly, That it would reflect upon the Honour of his Majeſty abroad, when Foraign Nations ſhould hear of ſuch an affront given to his Majeſty and this Kingdom, that he could not find means to come to a Treaty with his Subjects for a peace, but by giving that money to defray the Charges of their Army, which ſhould pay his.

‘4. Fourthly, It is probable that the Citizens of London, when they ſhould hear that any of their money was imployed that way, would detain the reſt in their hands for defending themſelves.

‘5. Fifthly, If his Majeſty would try whether they meant really a Treaty or Invaſion, the Commiſſioners ſhould move for disbanding

‘the Armies on both ſides, all things elſe remaining in the ſtate they ‘now are, until the Treaty were ended; Howſoever the 40000 l.
‘monthly ſhould be kept rather for paying the Kings Army, and re‘inforcing it (if need were) than any other way whatſoever.

Octob. 16. 1640. Articles agreed on for the maintenance of the Scots Army.

THE Treaty produced little or no effect till the 16th of October, on which day theſe Articles were agreed upon for the maintenance of the Scots Army.

1. First, That the Scotch Army now lying in the Counties of Northumberland, Biſhoprick of Durham, and Town of Newcaſtle, ſhall have for a competent maintenance the ſumm of 850 l. per diem, being the ſumm before agreed on by the Counties; and that the payment thereof ſhall begin upon the 16th of October, and to continue for two Months, in caſe the Treaty ſhall ſo long laſt; which payment to be made weekly upon the Friday of every Week, the firſt Friday being the twenty third day to be for the payment of the Week paſt.

2. The dayes of the returning of the Army to be numbred, within the dayes of the allowed maintenance.

3. That the Scotch Army ſhall content themſelves with the aforeſaid maintenance, and ſhall neither moleſt Papiſts, Prelates, nor their Adherents, nor any other perſons of whatſoever quality, during the time of payment, but ſhall keep themſelves free of all other Taxes and Plundrings not only during their abode, but in their returns, and ſuch ſecurity as is uſual ſhall be given for the performance of the ſame, and this to be ordered upon the condition of the Treaty.

4. That the Inhabitants of the ſaid Counties ſhall alſo have liberty, to return peaceably to their own dwellings, and ſhall be refuſed no Courteſie, it being alwayes preſuppoſed that the fit Lodging of their Army ſhall be allowed.

5. That the Army be furniſhed with Coals in a Regular way, and not at the pleaſure of the Souldiers, which is eſpecially recommended to the care of the Scotch Commiſſioners.

6. That there be a proviſion of Forrage at the prices to be ſet down in a Table, which muſt alſo contain the particular prices of all ſort of Victuals, and other neceſſaries for the Army, to be indifferently agreed upon by perſons nominated on both ſides.

7. That the Sea-Ports be opened, and there be free Trade and Commerce by Sea and Land, as in the time of peace; with this Proviſo, that with the Victuals no Armes nor Ammunition be imported into Newcaſtle, or any Harbour of England, and this Free Trade and Commerce to be preſently intimated, and not to be interrupted, but upon the warning of three Months, that there may be a ſufficient time allowed for Ships to return, and for the diſpoſing of their Commodities.

8. That Victuals and other Neceſſaries for the Army be free of Cuſtome; And that his Majeſties Cuſtome of Coals, and other Ware be left free to be levyed by his own Officers.

9. That all reſtraints be removed, and that there be a freedom to furniſh neceſſaries for both Armies, in ſuch ſort as is agreed on by the Articles, and liberty be granted for Milling, Brewing, Baking, and other things of that kind.

10. That the Arrears be compleatly paid to Octob. 16. and that ſuch rents as are anticipate, and not yet due, be allowed in the Arrears.

11. That there be a Ceſſation of Armes according to the particulars to be agreed upon.

12. As for ſecuring the ſumm of 850 l. per diem above ſpecified, there is a Committee appointed by the Great Council of the Peers, who have power to Treat with Northumberland, the Biſhoprick of Durham, Newcaſtle, and (if need require) with other adjacent Counties, that there may be a real performance of what is agreed on by us: And for that we find many Difficulties of raiſing the Contribution out of the Counties of Northumberland, the Biſhoprick, and Town of Newcaſtle, we have thought fit and neceſſary to add unto them the Counties of Cumberland and Weſtmerland, to aſſiſt towards the ſaid Contribution according to their abilities.

13. And further, the Lords will before their going from York ſettle a Committee who ſhall have charge to ſee the Contribution orderly raiſed and paid; and that there ſhall likewiſe be a Committee nominated of the Lords Commiſſioners, to whom either the Scotch Commiſſioners may addreſs, or the Committees of the Countrey may Weekly give an Accompt of the carriage of the buſineſs. And that from thence there may further Order be given for the due performance of that which is promiſed. Signed

The Scottiſh Commiſſioners were not ſatisfied with the Security tendred them for the Raiſing of the ſaid Proviſion, which they expreſſed in the enſuing Paper to the Engliſh Lords, who imparted it to his Majeſty.

A Paper of the Scotch Commiſſioners to the Engliſh Lords about the Security for raiſing their Proviſion.

We make no queſtion of the abilities of the prime Gentlemen of the County, and will not doubt but your Lordſhips have made them willing; Yet now after the delayes of ſo many dayes, from the firſt to the 19th of this Month, and after the ſo often acknowledged neceſſity of the orderly proviſion of Maintenance, during the time of the Treaty, and our confident expectation thereof, We are ſorry that your Lordſhips have not (according to the profeſſion of the Will and power of thoſe Gentlemen) given unto us a real ſecurity, that we might have entred with your Lordſhips upon the Treaty, but that the performance of the Security is ſtill ſuſpended.

Divers other demands, as Free Trade by Sea and Land, and other particulars contained in our laſt Papers, the ſatisfaction whereof was alſo neceſſary before the Treaty, are not at all touched by your Lordſhips in your Anſwer.

Concerning the Diminution of the Army propounded by your Lordſhips, we have received no Inſtructions, neither ſhall it be neceſſary upon the reaſons expreſſed, becauſe competent Maintenance being ſecured, and the Seas opened, the Army we truſt ſhall be eaſily kept in order; And for removing Jealouſies and Doubts, we have made large Declarations, and given real proofs, wiſhing in like manner that no cauſe of ſuſpicion be given unto us by ſuch Propoſitions, ſeconding the bitter Speeches of ſome Incendiaries who Command in his Majeſties Army.

We therefore earneſtly intreat your Lordſhips to let us know at laſt what may be expected, at what time the promiſed Security ſhall be performed, and our previous demands ſatisfied, that we may have ſome certainty to ſhew to thoſe who ſent us, and who upon your Lordſhips Declaration do wait for it from us, and that we may proceed to the Treaty.

In concluſion that difference was accorded.

Remembrances for the Engliſh Lords Commiſſioners, to put them in mind of ſuch things as have fallen in debate about the demands of the Scots, for the maintenance of their Army during the Treaty.

Remembrances for the Engliſh Commiſſioners.

'1. THE firſt thing they are to endeavour is a preſent Ceſſation of Armes.

'2. They are by all honourable, ſafe and convenient means to find 'out ſome wayes for the relieving the Counties of Northumberland 'and Biſhoprick of Durham from the hard condition in which they 'now are.

'3. For the better effecting whereof, they are to conſider how 'Barwick and Carliſle may be victualled out of Scotland, and the Ar'my at Newcaſtle in proportion, if victualled out of England.

'4. They are alſo for this purpoſe to take into conſideration the 'opening of a free paſſage and Trade between Scotland and Newcaſtle 'by Land and Sea, whereby the Army there may be better Victual'led from Scotland.

'5. If beſides the former means, there be urgent neceſſity, they 'are to take into conſideration, what other adjacent Counties ſhall Con'tribute, in what proportion, and in what manner.

'6. They are to remember the great detriment his Majeſty hath 'ſuſtained in his Revenue, by hindring the trade of Coals, to make 'what uſe they can thereof by leſſening the Contribution.

An. 1640.

‘7. They are to take into Conſideration the Leſſening of both Armies.

‘8. They are to take further care, that upon the leſſening or diſbanding the Armies, or otherwiſe there be no plundring of the Countrey, and that ſecurity be given for that purpoſe.

‘9. They are by all poſſible means, to haſten the Treaty, and that there be no unneceſſary delay therein.

‘10. For the better Encouragement of ſuch Counties as their Lordſhips ſhall think fit to move to a Contribution, they are to declare unto them, That his Majeſty and the Lords of the Great Council will recommend to the Parliament, as well the great Loſſes they have ſuſtained, as the charge they have or ſhall be at for the good and ſafety of the reſt of the Kingdom.

Theſe Remembrances not to be Concluding, but any other way to be taken that the Commiſſioners ſhall think fit.

The Lords Anſwer to the Scots concerning the Maintenance of their Army.

The Engliſh Commiſſioners Anſwer to the Scots concerning the maintenance of their Army.

‘First, Concerning the 850 l. per diem, we find it to be the utmoſt the Countrey can bear; And it is a Contribution fit for an Army only for ſafety and ſecurity, eſpecially where any other means by leſſening the King's Army or otherwiſe, is offered to remove all doubts and jealouſies, ſo that you may make your Army ſuitable to the means of maintaining it: beſides to give any greater allowance whereby a greater Army ſhall be ſuſtained, will cauſe a greater diſtruſt and apprehenſion in the whole Kingdom of England, and therefore we do adhere to our former propoſition.

‘As for allowance of Coals or Forrage, if any thing be left to the Soldiers diſcretion were to leave things to great uncertainty and occaſions of difference, but for money at reaſonable prices agreed upon, the Army is to be provided.

‘Concerning the day of payment to be the firſt of October, we have already endeavoured to ſettle with the Counties for the payment of two months, from the 16th of October, and it would overthrow our former endeavours.

‘Further, it is to be conceived no way prejudicial to the Scotch Army, ſince the ſame ſumm of 850 l. per diem, is to be made good unto them upon the arrears, even unto this day. For the opening of the Ports, his Majeſty is pleaſed to give way unto it, it being alwayes to be underſtood that no Armes or Ammunition be imported.

‘As for the dayes of returning the Army it is to be numbred within the dayes of Contribution; it is fit that the ſecurity of payment be ſettled in all particulars.

‘Whereas your Lordſhips propounded as a competency for the maintenance of an Army 30000 l. per menſem at 30 dayes the month, we leave unto your Lordſhips as a fitting competency, as we conceive, the continuance of thoſe contributions, which have been formerly ſettled by the County of Northumberland and the Bi-

16 Caroli.

'ſhoprick of Durham, and the Town of Newcaſtle, amounting to the ſumm of 850 l. per diem, but ſo as for the raiſing of the ſaid ſumm of the Biſhoprick, Dean and Chapter, Clergie and Papiſts, ſhall be no otherwiſe Charged or Taxed, but by the ordinary way of Levying of the ſaid Contribution; and that the ſaid Scotch Army in reſpect of the ſaid 850 l. per diem, forbear to take any exaction, tax, Proviſion or Forrage whatſoever from the ſaid Counties, or any other place; as likewiſe leave Free to his Majeſty and all other the Cuſtomes of Coals, and all other, the true meaning being that for all pretences and demands whatſoever, the ſaid Scotch Army ſhall be fully ſatisfied, with the payment of the ſaid 850 l. per diem, and that the Biſhop and other Clergy men, and all other inhabitants of the Biſhoprick and Northumberland, return unto their dwellings, and to enjoy their own, without any moleſtation; and in regard of the ſaid Contributions paid by theſe Counties, the ſaid Scottiſh Army is to give ſecurity, that both whileſt they ſtay, and likewiſe when they ſhall disband or march back with their Army, they ſhall keep and ſave the ſaid Counties from all ſpoil and plundering, and that upon ſettling and perfecting the payment and contribution, there be preſently declared on both ſides ceſſation of Armes and certain limits and bounds, which neither ſide ſhall paſs in hoſtile manner; and for ſecuring of the ſaid payments all reaſonable ſatisfaction ſhall be given them, and the ſaid payments to begin from the 16th of October, 1640. and to continue for the ſpace of two months, if the Treaty ſhall ſo long laſt, and be paid weekly parata; and ſo ſoon as this accommodation for the maintenance of the Scotch Army, ſhall be ſettled and ſigned by the Commiſſioners on both ſides, there ſhall be a preſent Entry upon the Treaty.

The Scots Reply to the Lords Anſwer, Concerning the Maintenance of the Army.

The Scots Reply.

'AS with all due reſpect we acknowledge the benefit of the condeſcending to the Maintenance of our Army, are glad that your Lordſhips have begun to think on the competency, we repreſent that neither the 850 l. per diem which thoſe Countreys were moved to grant, nor the Thirty thouſand pounds moved by us, were conceived by us to be a full maintenance, the one being ſo much as we could with the conſent of the Countrey obtain, and the other joined with all other ſupplies that can be made by our ſelves being reckoned, is not a competency, and therefore leſt contrary to our hopes, the Army be put on worſe condition than before the Treaty, we deſire your Lordſhips to conſider that beſides the 850 l. per diem, they had the time paſt the benefit of the Cuſtomes and proviſion of Coals, and of ſuch proportion of Forrage; We indeed deſire that his Majeſties Cuſtomes may be left free, but we hope your Lordſhips will think on ſome ſupply of that want, and will alſo provide that the Army be ſtill furniſhed with Coals and other neceſſary Forrage. We do not deny the difference to be wide between the former Loan and allowed maintenance, but touching the point of preſent proviſion of the Army, which in caſe of neceſſity is principally 'and above all conſiderations to be looked into by us, the inequality betwixt that which we had, and which is now allowed, is very conſiderable; when competency ſhall be condeſcended unto, we ſhall content our ſelves therewith, and neither moleſt Papiſts, or Prelates, or their adherents, during the time of the payment of the maintenance; and as it was grievous unto us, that the inhabitants of Newcaſtle or any other whatſoever ſhould have left their dwellings, ſo ſhall we be glad of their return, and will refuſe them no kindneſs or courteſies, which can ſtand with the accommodation of the Army; we alſo promiſe what ſecurity is uſual in like caſes, that during the aboad of the Army, and in their return, none of theſe Counties ſhall be plundered or ſpoiled, but ſo far as is poſſible, be ſaved from all harm and damage; and withal it is ſuppoſed, that the dayes of our return be numbred within the compaſs of the time of our allowed maintenance; concerning the Ceſſation of Armes, and the limits of both Armies, we heartily agree unto both.

'It is declared that the ſecurity of payment promiſed by your Lordſhips be condeſcended in all particulars, that the payment of the maintenance to be agreed upon, begin the firſt of October and continue during the Treaty, until our peace be ſecured by Parliament; and that the ſaid payment be made weekly; that all arrearages which are reſting unpaid, preceding the firſt of October of the allowed maintenance, be agreed upon.

'That there be free trade by Sea and Land as in time of peace, and that Victuals and other neceſſaries for the Army be free of Cuſtome, that all reſtraints be moved and the Subjects of the Countrey made free to furniſh us with neceſſaries for our Army, and alſo all ſorts of Commerce allowed and liberties granted of milling, brewing, baking and other things of that kind.

'That the outrage or eruption of any Souldier be not accounted a breach of the Ceſſation, but that the Loſſes be repaired and the delinquent puniſhed.

'So ſoon as the maintenance ſhall be ſettled and ſecured, we ſhall be moſt willing to enter upon the Treaty it ſelf.

'Our conſtant deſires againſt all ſuſpicions and iealouſies, to obtain our own demands, and to have a firm and well-grounded peace concluded. And for the end the Treaty may be continued, and our hopes of ſupply by opening of the Sea-Ports and freedom of Trade by Sea and Land, doth ſo far prevail with us, that we reſolve rather to burthen our ſelves with a great part of the maintenance, and to accept of the 850 l. per diem, than that the Treaty ſhould be broken up, and the dangerous conſequences to both Kingdoms ſhould follow, which we earneſtly deſire for our parts to prevent.

'Although the beginning of the payment the firſt of October, hath been ſtill preſſed and expected by us, and transferring thereof to the 16th of October, importeth no ſmall prejudice; yet leſt in any point we ſhould croſs your Lordſhips Laudable endeavours already taken for the ſetling of the payment of the Biruns, and ſufficient ſecurity for afterwards, we receive alſo the conditions.

'And as we deſire there be no need of new Armes and Ammunition, ſo do we not crave liberty that any ſhould be imported during the the Treaty; in this point we are ſatisfied with the liberties of Trade and Commerce by Sea and Land, as in the time of peace, which ‘may be profitable to both Kingdoms, and prejudicial to neither of us.

‘Since both deſire and have accorded, that the Security be ſetled in the particulars, and ſigned before we entred upon the demands, it were fit we ſhould now agree upon all the particulars of the ſecurity that there be no more queſtion about it.

‘We deſire alſo your Lordſhips anſwer to ſuch particulars as is expreſſed in our payment given in yeſter-night, which are not yet anſwered; and that the point of Ceſſation, the Limits to be offered to both Armies, and the matter of Coal and Forrage may be made ſo plain and clear, that there be no miſunderſtanding.

After our hearty Commendations unto you, His Majeſty and the Great Council of Peers now aſſembled, much commiſerating the great Loſſes which your County hath ſuſtained by the Scottiſh Army, and the utter plundering thereof which would in all probability follow, unleſs ſome preſent Remedy be taken for preventing of the ſame, commended it to the care of the Lord Commiſſioners remaining at Rippon, that ſome courſe might be taken for your Relief; who finding no other better way, thought fit, That all you of the ſaid County ſhould continue your former Contributions of Three Hundred Pounds per diem; which if you ſhall cheerfully and readily do, the ſaid Lords will ſo agree with the Scottiſh Commiſſioners, that you may be free in your Perſons, and ſafe in your Eſtates, during the continuance of that Contribution. And you ſhall likewiſe be recommended by his Majeſty and this Great Council to the now approaching Parliament, that you may have Reparation made you, not only for ſuch Contributions as now you ſhall agree unto, but for your former Contributions, and other loſſes ſuſtained by you from the Scottiſh *Army. And ſince the Gentlemen here attending this Buſineſs for your County, would not conclude you without your own Conſents, We have thought fit, to let you receive from them the Advice and Direction of this Great Council, which for your own good and ſafety, We recommend unto you, and wiſh you to liſten unto, that greater inconveniencies fall not upon you. A ſecond Letter to the Lord Mayor of London, Octob. 19.

York, Octob. 19
A ſecond Letter to the Lord Mayor of London.

A*Fter our hearty Commendations to your Lordſhip and the reſt; By our Letters of the twenty fifth of* September laſt, and by thoſe Lords which were the Bearers of them, We made known unto you, in what condition the Countie of Northumberland and the Biſhoprick of Durham ſtood, and how much it concerned the adjacent Counties, and in conſequence the whole Kingdom, that his Majeſty ſhould continue his Forces together, till by the happy ſucceſs of the preſent Treaty, or the great Wiſdom of the Parliament, ſome courſe might be taken for a firm Peace or juſt War: Being ſatisfied that his Majeſty was altogether unprovided of Money, for keeping of his Forces together, till the Parliament might have time to ſettle a Courſe therein agreeable to their Wiſdoms. And having all reſolved, That it was neceſſary for his Majeſty to be ſupplyed with the ſumm of Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds, as well for continuing his Forces together, as for orderly diſmiſſing of them, when it ſhould be fit ſo to do; We made it our hearty and affectionate requeſt unto you, that you would not at this time be wanting to aſſiſt his Majeſty, and oblige the whole Kingdom by lending that ſumm: for which we then offered (as we ſtill do, and ſhall be ever ready to perform) to joyn with his Majeſty in any ſuch Security, as ſhould be agreed upon by thoſe Lords and your ſelves. We then gave you our Reaſons and Opinions, how much it imported the publick preſervation both of King and Kingdom, aſſuring our ſelves, that the conſideration thereof, with your own affections and love of the publick, would incline you, to lend willing ears to our Requeſts, wherein we find we have not been deceived; your cheerfulneſs and forwardneſs herein, having been repreſented unto us by thoſe Lords that came unto you from this Great Council, for which we give your Lordſhip and the whole City very hearty thanks; his Majeſty making every day his Grace and Goodneſs ſo appear unto us, that we cannot but take infinite comfort in the knowledge and confidence of his gracious Reſolutions, of which we doubt not, but you and the whole Kingdom will very quickly find the comfortable and happy effects. We are now in a hopeful way of making this Treaty ſucceſsful to the Content of both Kingdoms. But in affairs of ſo great weight and importance, time and mature deliberation are requiſite, leſt by precipitate Counſels, the danger might be increaſed, inſtead of being prevented: ſo as we cannot yet find any reaſon, to adviſe the diſbanding his Majeſties Forces; eſpecially ſince by the Wiſdom of the Lords Commiſſioners deputed by his Majeſty and this Great Council to treat with thoſe of Scotland, care is taken for relieving the Counties of Northumberland and the Biſhoprick of Durham, by a Contribution to the Scots Army, during the Treaty; that ſo by a preſent Ceſſation of Arms, thoſe greater Inconveniencies may be avoided, which otherwiſe would light upon his Majeſties Subjects in thoſe parts. And as the keeping together of his Majeſties Forces till thoſe of Scotland disband, cannot but facilitate and advance the Treaty; ſo it were diſhonourable and unſafe, that his Majeſties Army ſhould not in the mean time be well provided for: therefore we once again earneſtly and heartily pray you, as you tender the publick good and ſafety, to make all poſſible ſpeed in ſupplying his Majeſty preſently with the remainder of the Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds, that it be not uſeleſs to his Majeſty and the Kingdom, by the too late furniſhing of it. For ſhould his Majeſty jeſty for lack of means to pay his Army, be inforced to diſſolve it, the whole Kingdom would be in apparent and eminent danger. The care of preventing this publick Danger, wherein we are all ſo deeply concerned, hath been the Cauſe of theſe our ſecond Letters, that you might truly underſtand the neceſſity of your ſpeedy aid and aſſiſtance. By thoſe Lords which we ſent unto you with our firſt Letters, we gave you notice of thoſe dayes of payment, which his Majeſties Occaſions did require, which were the 12th of this Month for Fifty Thouſand Pounds, the 15th of November for One Hundred Thouſand Pounds, and the firſt of December for the laſt Fifty Thouſand Pounds. And upon conſideration of the State of his Majeſties Army, we plainly foreſee, That if you ſhould fail his Majeſty, and our very earneſt deſires herein, it would be impoſſible for his Majeſty to hold his Forces together; which we all with one heart earneſtly wiſh and adviſe his Majeſty ſhould do. And cannot but again and again very affectionately commend the ſame to your Loves and Care. And ſo we bid you heartily farewell, and reſt

York, October 19. 1640.

To our very Loving Friends, the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of London.

The Lords Commiſſioners to the King to tranſfer the Treaty to London.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

WE have thought it fit to give your Majeſty a perfect Account of the Eſtate of your affairs at this preſent, which we conceive will beſt be done, by tranſmitting unto your Majeſty the Papers themſelves, which go herein incloſed; your Majeſty will ſee, that the Scotch Commiſſioners are not fully and finally ſatisfied with the Security which we have been yet able to propound unto them for the raiſing of the Eight Hundred and Fifty Pounds a day, which was the Contribution formerly ſetled by the Countrey with them. But finding that they are very clearly dealt withal, and that all poſſible endeavours are uſed for their ſatisfaction in this point, they think it fit to repreſent the true State of the buſineſs to thoſe of Newcaſtle; and in the interim, although their Inſtructions be, not to enter into the main Treaty, until the Competency for the maintenance of their Army be fully ſecured; yet for the beginning of time, they are contented to enter upon a debate of their Demands, and ſo to prepare them, that they may be in a readineſs for a concluſion when they ſhall receive power; and this day (God willing) we ſhall give a beginning unto that work. But we entring into a due conſideration of the multitude of the Articles to be treated of, and of the intricacy and difficulty of many of them, and likewiſe, that divers of the ſaid Articles cannot be ſetled before the Parliament, the time whereof approacheth ſo faſt, that there will be few dayes left to be employed in the ſetling of this Treaty, before there will be a neceſſity for us to undertake our Journey towards the Parliament, we have holden it our Duties to repreſent this ſtraitneſs of time unto your Majeſty, and with it our moſt humble Opinion, that as you were formerly pleaſed, that this Treaty might have been transferred from Rippon to York; ſo you will be now pleaſed, that it be transferred from hence to London, without breaking or diſſolving of the Treaty; and that you would be pleaſed to give us Power to treat and ſettle the ſaid Removal with the Scotch Commiſſioners. All which we muſt humbly ſubmit to your Majeſties great Wiſdom.

One thing further we preſume to repreſent unto your Majeſty, which is the preſent opening of the Ports; being a thing as much deſired by your Majeſties Subjects of England, as by the Scots. And that it is already agreed by the Articles of the Ceſſation, and likewiſe aſſented unto by your Majeſty by the Advice of the Peers, that both the Ports and Trade by Sea and Land might be ſet free upon the firſt entrance into the Treaty. Many other Reaſons there are, eſpecially concerning the Coal, which are repreſented unto us, both for the benefit of London and the whole Kingdom; by which it is made apparent unto us, that much more diſadvantage would redound unto your Majeſties good Subjects, than to the Scots, if any ſuch ſtop of Trade ſhould be continued. God have your Majeſty in his holy keeping.

Upon which Ceſſation, and not before, the Ports to be opened, and free Trade permitted: but not for bringing in of Ammunition to* Newcaſtle, as your Lordſhips may remember, was alwayes inſiſted upon. Their Lordſhips are likewiſe of opinion, that your Lordſhips ſhould endeavour to procure the Scottiſh *Commiſſioners preſently to clear their demands, by delivering the particulars thereof in writing to your Lordſhips, and explaining them, ſo as it may be fully underſtood what it is they expect; and eſpecially in point of Satisfaction for their Coſts and Damages. The Treaty transferred to London.

CHARLES REX.

RIght Truſty and right well beloved Couſins and Counſellours of our Great Council, and right Truſty and well beloved Counſellors of our ſaid Great Council, We greet you well. Whereas We have received your unanimous Advice, That it will moſt conduce to Our ſervice, that the preſent Treaty with our Subjects of Scotland, be transferred from Rippon to London, We are ſo confident as well of your judgements and diſcretions, as of your fidelity to Our ſervice, That we cannot but condeſcend thereunto. And do therefore hereby give you or any Ten or more of you, full power and authority to treat and ſettle with our ſaid Subjects of Scotland, all particulars belonging to the ſaid Removal. For which this ſhall be your ſufficient Warrant. Given at our Court at York this Three and Twentieth day of October in the Sixteenth Year of our Reign.

THe time of Meeting for the Parliament approaching, his Majeſties Commiſſioners concluded to adjourn the Treaty from Rippon to that City, and ſent the Powers and Directions to that purpoſe ſigned with his own hand to the ſaid Lords, by which he impowered any Ten or more of them, to treat and ſettle with his Subjects of Scotland all particulars concerning the ſaid Removal: his Majeſty leaving the Circumſtances to their Lordſhips Wiſdoms; only he recommended two things to their Care. Firſt, The ſetling the Ceſſation of Arms: and Secondly, The procuring from the Scottiſh Commiſſioners, as full and clear a ſetting forth of their Demands as poſſibly they could.

An. 1640.

IN the mean time his Majeſty did deliberate about the increaſe of his Forces at Stockton Caſtle, a place of great importance, ſcituate on the River of Tees the Border of the Biſhoprick and Yorkſhire, in regard the Scots had brought in more men to Newcaſtle, and placed more at Durham, than were at the beginning of the Treaty. However to avoid all ſuſpicion and jealouſie, his Majeſty was pleaſed to wave thoſe intentions.

Upon the twentieth of October a Ceſſation of Arms was agreed on by both parties upon theſe Articles.

Ceſſation of Arms agreed on, Octob. 26.

‘1. THat there be a Ceſſation of Arms both by Sea and Land ‘from this preſent.

‘2. That all Acts of Hoſtility do henceforth ceaſe.

‘3. That both parties ſhall peaceably retain, during the Treaty, ‘whatſoever they poſſeſs at the time of the Ceſſation.

‘4. That all ſuch perſons who live in any of his Majeſties Forts ‘beyond the River of Tees, ſhall not exempt their Lands which lye ‘within the Counties of Northumberland and the Biſhoprick from ſuch ‘Contribution, as ſhall be laid upon them for the payment of the ‘850 l. a day.

‘5. That none of the Kings Forces upon the other ſide of Tees, ‘ſhall give any impediment to ſuch Contributions, as are already ‘allowed for the Competency of the Scotch Army, and ſhall take no ‘Victuals out of the bounds, except that which the Inhabitants and ‘Owners thereof ſhall bring voluntarily to them: And that any ‘reſtraint or detention of Victuals, Cattle and Forrage which ſhall be ‘made by the Scots within thoſe bounds for their better maintenance, ‘ſhall be no breach.

‘6. That no Recruits ſhall be brought unto either Army from the ‘time of the Ceſſation, and during the Treaty.

‘7. That the Contribution of 850 l. a day, ſhall be only raiſed ‘out of the Counties of Northumberland, the Biſhoprick, Town of ‘Newcaſtle, Cumberland and Weſtmorland; and that the not payment ‘thereof ſhall be no breach of the Treaty; but the Counties and ‘Town ſo failing, it ſhall be left to the Scotch power to raiſe the ſame, ‘but not to exceed the ſumm agreed upon, unleſs it be for the charges ‘of driving to be ſet by the Commiſſioners of the Forrage.

‘8. That the River of Tees ſhall be the bounds of both Armies, ‘excepting alwayes the Town and Caſtle of Stockton, and the Village of Eggscliffe: And that the Counties of Northumberland and ‘the Biſhoprick of Durham be the Limits, within the which the ‘Scottiſh Army is to reſide; ſaving alwayes Liberty for them to ſend ‘ſuch Convoyes, as ſhall be neceſſary for the gathering up only of ‘the Contributions which ſhall be unpaid by the Counties of Weſtmorland and Cumberland.

'9. If any perſons commit any private Inſolencies, it ſhall be no breach of the Treaty, if (upon Complaint made by either party) reparation and puniſhment be granted.

'10. If Victuals be deſired upon that price which ſhall be agreed upon, and ready Money offered for the ſame, and refuſed; it ſhall be no breach of the Ceſſation, to take ſuch Victuals, paying ſuch price.

'11. No new Fortifications to be made during the Treaty, againſt either party.

'12. That the Subjects of both Kingdoms, may in their Trade and Commerce freely paſs to and fro, without any Paſs at all; but that it be particularly provided, that no member of either Army ſhall paſs without a formal Paſs under the hand of the General, or of him that commandeth in Chief.

The Reaſons of the Lord Commiſſioners for giving of their Advice to his Majeſty for the Confirmation of the Treaty at Rippon, the 17th day of October 1640.

The Commiſſioners reaſons for their advice to his Majeſty to confirm the Treaty.

'ON the twenty ſeventh of October the Lords Commiſſioners returned to York, and in the Afternoon waited upon the King in his Great Council of the Peers. The Earl of Briſtoll by direction of the Lords, gave a ſhort account of the proceedings in the Treaty. And then were read both the Articles for the Ceſſation of Arms, and the Articles of eaſing of the Counties under the Scottiſh power, and for a Competency for the Maintenance of the Scottiſh Army during the Treaty. After the Narration and Examination of ſome particular Articles, It was declared by his Majeſty and the Peers then preſent, That the Commiſſioners had

An. 1640.

'had in all things proceeded punctually according to their In-'ſtructions.

'His Majeſty then demanded of the Lords, Whether they would 'counſel him to confirm the ſaid Treaty, and required them, 'that they would therein give their Advice. Whereunto it was 'replyed in the name of the Commiſſioners, that as they had ſerved 'his Majeſty in this Treaty with exact fidelity, ſo in their Advice 'and Counſels they would be glad to ſerve him according to their 'Conſciences: the firſt being an Act of pure Obedience, the other 'of their Judgements and Opinions. And therefore they humbly 'beſought his Majeſty, that they might retire and conferr among 'themſelves: Which his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to aſſent un-'to. Upon their debating and weighing of the particulars of 'the ſaid Treaty, they found that it could not but be held deroga-'tory to the honour of the King and Kingdom, to treat at all with 'Subjects, and ſuch as had already actually poſſeſſed themſelves of 'ſeveral Provinces of this Kingdom. They found likewiſe many of 'the Articles unfit to have been condeſcended unto by any Army, 'that had been but in a probable condition of defence. They there-'fore thought it not fit for them, abſolutely to give the King any 'ſuch advice, unleſs they might jointly with it obtain his Majeſties 'leave, to make unto him a Declaration of ſuch Reaſons and Mo-'tives, as induced them to give the ſaid Advice; which being aſ-'ſented unto by his Majeſty, they cauſed a ſhort Declaration to be 'read, to the effect of that which followeth.

'That they muſt crave his Majeſties leave, to reduce into his Me-'mory, thoſe Reaſons and Motives, which firſt induced the Lords 'of the Great Council to adviſe his Majeſty to admit of a Treaty, 'then of a Ceſſation of Arms, and laſtly of a Competency towards 'the maintenance of the Scottiſh Army, thereby to ſave the Coun-'treys under the the Scotch power from plundering. For that the 'ſame Motives, which had produced the former unanimous Counſel 'of the Peers, were likewiſe now to be the grounds of their preſent 'advice, which they held fit to be ſet down by way of Declaration, 'for the better Juſtifying of this their advice, both towards his 'Majeſty, and towards the World.

'They then declared, that at the firſt aſſembling of the Great 'Council, his Majeſty propounded two things unto them; the one, 'How his Majeſties own Army might be held together, until it 'might be helped by thoſe Supplies which were hoped for by Parlia-'ment? The Peers with great alacrity and affection fell preſently in-'to debate, how a conſiderable Supply might ſpeedily be raiſed. 'And conceiving no means ſo effectual, as by a Loan of Two Hundred 'Thouſand Pounds by the City of London; they cheerfully and unani-'mouſly offered their Security by Bond, to be joyned with ſuch as 'ſhould be offered on his Majeſties behalf, if need ſhould ſo require. 'And to that effect they wrote their Letters to the Mayor and Citi-'zens of London, and diſpatched away divers of the Peers, to ſo-'licite and take care of the ſaid Loan.

'The ſecond Propoſition made by his Majeſty was, What anſwer 'he ſhould give unto the Scots, and in what way he ſhould treat with ‘them? having formerly promiſed an Anſwer to their Petition ‘preſently upon the meeting of the Great Council. Hereunto the ‘Peers made anſwer, that they could not well give any advice herein, without a perfect information of the State of his Majeſties Affairs, and the preſent condition of his Army; which points falling ‘then naturally under debate, it was upon examination found, that ‘the Scotch Army had paſſed the River of Tyne; and that upon diſputing the paſſage at Newburn, our Horſe were put to the worſt, and ‘had retired in diſorder. That his Majeſties Army of Foot then in ‘Newcaſtle, had likewiſe retired from thence unto York; whereby ‘that Town fell the next day into the hands of the Scots without reſiſtance: ſo likewiſe did the whole Countries of Northumberland and ‘the Biſhoprick; which were preſently drawn into Contribution, ‘Newcaſtle paying Two Hundred Pounds per diem; Northumberland ‘Three Hundred Pounds, and the Biſhoprick Three Hundred and Fifty. ‘And it was declared by Mr. Secretary Vane, that theſe Contributions were not condeſcended unto by the Countreys, until they were ‘put out of all hope of Protection by the Kings Forces. For he delivered it in the Great Council, that the chief Gentlemen of the ‘Biſhoprick addreſſing themſelves unto him, he carryed them to his ‘Majeſty, who was pleaſed to referr them to the Lord Lieutenant; ‘who poſitively declared unto them, that they could not expect any ‘relief from his Majeſty; and therefore left them to make the beſt ‘Conditions they could for themſelves and their Eſtates.

‘The Lord Lieutenant likewiſe declared in the Great Council, ‘That it was not poſſible to keep the Counties of Cumberland and ‘Weſtmorland out of the Scottiſh power, whenſoever they ſhould ‘endeavour to take them in: And for the Town of Newcaſtle, he ‘ſaid it was not to be gotten out of the Scots hands this Winter, although his Majeſty had an Army of One Hundred Thouſand Men. ‘He further declared, That (unleſs it were by the Difficulties of ‘an Army to march in Winter) the Scotch Army could not be hindered from paſſing forwards into England; for that the Paſſages of ‘the River of Tees, which is the Boundary of Yorkſhire, was not to ‘be defended, being in many places fordable by Forty Horſes in Front; ‘neither could the ſaid Army be kept from marching up unto York, ‘without the adventuring to give them Battle; which his Lordſhip ‘ſaid he would not adviſe: neither conceives he his Majeſties Army ‘for the preſent, to be in a fitting poſture to fight. For although it ‘conſiſted of a conſiderable number, and very good bodies of men; ‘yet, for want of uſe of their Arms, he held it not fit to rely upon ‘them, eſpecially where ſo much was to be hazarded, and ſo little ‘to be gained.

‘Upon theſe grounds, the Great Council formerly gave their ‘Advice unto his Majeſty for the Treaty concerning a Ceſſation of ‘Arms, and eaſing of the Counties under the Scotch power, by ſetling ‘a Competency by agreement. And upon the ſame grounds, the ‘Commiſſioners (finding no Cauſe by any Alteration in his Majeſties affairs for the better, but rather ſome doubts and uncertainties ‘about the Supplies from the City of London (as was publickly declared unto the Great Council of the Peers) and that there was ‘not means for the payment of the Army for one Fortnight longer) ‘the ſaid Commiſſioners upon theſe grounds, (as likewiſe, there

An. 1640.

'being no reaſon to queſtion his Majeſties powers granted unto them 'under the Great Seal of England, by which they had treated and 'concluded the Articles by them ſigned, did give their Advice to his 'Majeſty, to Confirm the ſaid Articles, and all that had been ſigned 'and condeſcended unto by the ſaid Commiſſioners; conceiving it 'to be great Wiſdom in a Prince (in caſes of Neceſſity) to diſpenſe 'with the ſtrict rules of Honour, for the ſafety and preſervation of 'his Eſtate and people.

'And upon the ſame reaſons, the reſt of the Peers there preſent, 'concurred in their Advices unto his Majeſty. And thereupon his 'Majeſty was pleaſed the ſame day, in the preſence of the ſaid Great 'Council, to confirm under his Hand and Signet, all that had paſſed 'and been agreed upon betwixt his Majeſties Commiſſioners and the 'Commiſſioners of the Scotch Army.

A Plot diſcovered by the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury to the King.

WHileſt the King was at York in the Month of September, the Arch-Biſhop of Cant. thought fit to acquaint his Majeſty by Letter of a great Plot and Deſign tending to the deſtruction of his Majeſty and Proteſtant Religion; which being a thing of great concern, the Author thinks fit to communicate the ſame as it is confirmed by the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury's own Hand-writing.

Here followeth Sir William Boſwell's firſt Letter, which he ſent to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury concerning the Plot.

Sir William Boſwell's firſt Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury concerning the Plot.

May it pleaſe your Grace,

Sir William Boſwell's firſt Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury concerning the Plot.

*T*HE offers (whereof your Grace will find a Copy) here encloſed towards a further and more particular Diſcovery, were firſt made unto me at the ſecond hand, and in ſpeech, by a friend of good Quality and worth in this place; but ſoon after (as ſoon as they could be put into order) were avowed by the Principal Party; and delivered me in Writing by both together, upon promiſe and Oath, which I was required to give, and gave accordingly, not to reveal the ſame to any other man living but your Grace, and by your Graces hand unto his Majeſty.

In like manner they have tyed themſelves not to declare theſe things unto any other but my ſelf, until they ſhould know how his Majeſty and your Grace would diſpoſe thereof. The Principal giving me withal to know, that he puts himſelf and this Secret into your Graces Power, as well becauſe it concerns your Grace ſo nearly after his Majeſty, as that he knows your Wiſdom to guide the ſame aright, and is aſſured of your Grace's Fidelity to his Majeſties Perſon, to our State and to our Church.

Firſt, Your Grace is humbly and earneſtly prayed, to ſignifie his Majeſties pleaſure (with all poſſible Speed) together with your Graces Diſpoſition herein, and purpoſe to carry all with ſilence from all but his Majeſty until due time.

Secondly, When your Grace ſhall think fit to ſhew theſe things unto his Majeſty, to do it immediately, not truſting to Letters, or permitting any other Perſon to be by or in Hearing; And to entreat and counſel his Majeſty as in a caſe of Conſcience to keep the ſame wholly and ſolely in his

his own Boſome, from the knowledge of all other Creatures living but your Grace; until the buſineſs ſhall be clear, and ſufficiently in his Majeſties and your Graces hands to effect.

Thirdly, Not to Enquire or Demand the Names of the Parties from whom theſe Overtures do come, or any further Diſcoveries and Advertiſements in Purſuit of them which ſhall come hereafter, until due ſatisfaction ſhall be given in every part of them. Nor to bewray unto any Perſon but his Majeſty in any meaſure or kind, that any thing of this nature, or of any great Importance is come from me.

For as I may believe theſe Overtures are Verifiable in the way they will be laid, and that the Parties will not ſhrink; ſo I make account that if never ſo little a glimpſe or ſhadow of theſe Informations ſhall appear by his Majeſties or your Graces Speech or Carriage unto others, the means whereby the buſineſs may be brought beſt unto Tryal will be utterly diſappointed; and the Parties who have in Conſcience towards God, and Devotion to his Majeſty, affection to your Grace, and Compaſſion of your Countrey, diſcloſed theſe things, will run a preſent and extream hazard of their Perſons and Lives. So eaſily it will be conjectured (upon the leaſt occaſion given upon his Majeſties or your Graces parts) who is the diſcoverer; by what means and how he knows ſo much of theſe things, and where he is: theſe are the points, which together with the offers they have preſſed me eſpecially to repreſent moſt ſeriouſly unto your Grace.

For my own particular having moſt humbly craved pardon of any Errour or Omiſſions, that have befaln me in the Meſſaging of this buſineſs, I do beſeech your Grace to let me know;

Firſt, Whether, and in what order I ſhall proceed hereafter with the Parties.

Secondly, What points of theſe Offers I ſhall chiefly and firſt put them to enlarge and clear.

Thirdly, What other points and Enquiries I ſhall propoſe unto them, and in what manner.

Fourthly, How far further I ſhall ſuffer my ſelf to hear and know theſe things.

Fifthly, Whether I ſhall not rather take the Parties Anſwers and Diſcoveries ſealed up by themſelves, and having likewiſe put my own Seal upon them, without queſtioning what they contain, ſo to tranſmit them to his Majeſty or your Grace.

Sixthly, whether I may not inſinuate upon ſome fair occaſions, that there will be a due regard held of them and their Service, by his Majeſty and your Grace, when all Particulars undertaken in theſe General Offers, and neceſſary for Perfection of the diſcovery and work intended, ſhall be effectually delivered to his Majeſty or your Grace.

Upon theſe Heads, and ſuch other as his Majeſty and your Grace ſhall think proper in the buſineſs, I muſt with all humility beſeech your Grace to furniſh me with Inſtructions, and Warrant for my Proceedings under his Majeſties hand with your Graces atteſtation, as by his Majeſties goodneſs and royal diſpoſition is uſual in like caſes.

May it pleaſe your Grace to entertain a Cypher with me upon this occaſion, I have ſent the Counter-part of one here encloſed: In the vacant ſpaces whereof your Grace may inſert ſuch Names more, with Numbers to them, as you think requiſite.

If theſe Overtures happily ſort with his Majeſties and your Graces mind, and ſhall accordingly prove effectual in their operation, I ſhall think my ſelf a moſt happy man to have had my Oblations in ſo Pious a Work for my moſt Gracious Soveraign and Maſter: more particularly, in that your Grace under his Majeſty ſhall be, Opifex rerum & mundi melioris origo. Which I ſhall inceſſantly begg in my Prayers at his hands, who is the giver of all good things, and will never forſake or fail them, who do not firſt fail and fall from him, The God of all mercy and peace, with which I ſhall remain ever

Your Graces moſt Dutiful and obliged Servant,

William Boſwell.

I have not dared more to truſt this buſineſs without a Cypher, but by a ſure hand, for which I have ſent this Bearer my Secretary Expreſs, but he knoweth nothing of the Contents hereof.

Andreas ab Habernfeld his Letter to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

Moſt Illuſtrious and moſt Reverend Lord,

ALL my Senſes are ſhaken together as often as I revolve the preſent buſineſs, neither doth my underſtanding ſuffice (to conceive) what wind hath brought ſuch horrid things, that they ſhould ſee the Sun-ſhine by me; for beſides expectation this good man became known unto me, who when he had heard me diſcourſing of theſe Scottiſh ſtirs, ſaid, that I knew not the nerve of the buſineſs, that theſe things which are commonly ſcattered abroad are ſuperficial. From that hour he every day became more familiar to me, who acknowledging my Dexterity herein with a full breaſt poured forth the burdens of his Heart into my boſome, ſuppoſing that he had diſcharged a burden of Conſcience wherewith he was preſſed. Hence he related to me the Factions of the Jeſuits, with which the whole earthly world was aſſaulted, and ſhewed, that I might behold how through their poyſon, Bohemia and Germany were devoured, and both of them maimed with an irreparable wound; that the ſame Plague did creep through the Realms of England and Scotland, the matter whereof revealed in the adjacent writing he diſcovered to me: which things having heard, my Bowels were contracted together, my Loyns trembled with horrour that a pernicious Gulf ſhould be prepared for ſo many thouſands of ſouls, with words moving the Conſcience; I inflamed the mind of the man, he had ſcarce one hour concocted my admonitions but he diſcloſed all the ſecrets, and he gave free liberty that I ſhould treat with thoſe whom it concerned, that they might be informed hereof. I thought no delay was to be made about the things; the ſame hour went to Sr. William Boſwell the King's Leger at the Hague, who being tyed with an Oath of Secrecy to me, I communicated the buſineſs to him, I admoniſhed him to weigh theſe things by the ballance, neither to deferr but act, that thoſe who were in danger might be ſpeedily ſuccoured; He as becomes an honeſt man, mindful of his duty, and having nearer looked into the buſineſs, refuſed not to obey the monitions; moreover he forthwith cauſed that an Expreſs ſhould be diſpatched, and ſent word back again what a moſt acceptable oblation this had been to the King, and your Grace, for which we rejoiced from the Heart, and we judged that a ſafe and favourable Deity had interpoſed it ſelf in this buſineſs, whereby you might be preſerved.

Now that the verity of the things related might be confirmed, ſome principal heads of the Conſpiracy were purpoſely pretermitted, that the knowledge of them might be extorted from the circumvented Society of the Conſpirators.

Now the things will be ſpeedily and ſafely promoted into Act if they be warily proceeded in at Bruxels. By my advice, that day ſhould be obſerved wherein the Packet of Letters are diſpatched, which under the title of, To Monſ. Strario Arch-Deacon of Cambray, tyed with one Cover are delivered to the Poſt-maſter; ſuch a Packet may be ſecretly brought back from him, yet it will be unprofitable becauſe all the incloſed Letters are written Characteriſtically: likewiſe another Packet coming weekly from Rome, which is brought under this Subſcription, To the moſt Illuſtrious Lord Count Roſetti Legat for the time; theſe are not to be neglected; to whom likewiſe Letters writ in the ſame Character are included; That they may be underſtood, Read is to be conſulted with. The forenamed day of diſpatch ſhall be expected: In Read's Houſe an accumulated Congregation may be circumvented, which ſucceeding, it will be your Graces part to order the buſineſs. The inteſtine Enemy being at length detected by Gods Grace, all bitterneſs of mind which is cauſed on either ſide may be aboliſhed, delivered to Oblivion, deleted and quieted, the enemy be invaded on both parts: thus the King and the Kings Friends and both Kingdoms near to danger ſhall be preſerved, delivered from iminent danger.

Your Grace likewiſe may have this Injunction by you, if you deſire to have the beſt advice given you by others, that you truſt not overmuch to your Purſevants, for ſome of them live under the ſtipend of the Popiſh party; How many Rocks and how many Scylla's, how many diſpleaſed Charybdes appear before your Grace, in what a dangerous Sea the Cockboat of your Graces life, next to Shipwrack is toſſed, your ſelf may judge, the Foredeck of the Ship is ſpeedily to be driven to the Harbour.

All theſe things I whiſper into your Graces ear, for I know it bound with an oath of Secreſie, therefore by open Name I would by theſe preſents become known to your Grace,

Your Graces moſt Obſervant and moſt Officious,

The General Overture and Diſcovery of the Plot ſent with Sir William Boſwell's firſt Letter, Sept. 6. 1640. Foraign Stile.

The general diſcovery of the Plot by A. Habernſeld.

THE King's Majeſty and Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury are to be ſecretly informed by Letters,

‘1. That the King's Majeſty and Lord Arch-Biſhop are both of them in great danger of their lives.

‘2. That the whole Common-wealth is by this means endangered, unleſs the miſchief be ſpeedily prevented.

‘3. That theſe Scottiſh troubles are raiſed, to the end, that under this pretext the King and Arch-Biſhop might be deſtroyed.

‘4. That there is a means to be preſcribed, whereby both of them in this caſe may be preſerved, and this tumult ſpeedily compoſed.

‘5. That although theſe Scottiſh tumults be ſpeedily compoſed, yet that the King is endangered, and that there are many wayes by which deſtruction is plotted to the King and Lord Arch-Biſhop.

‘6. That a certain Society hath conſpired, which attempts the death of the King and Lord Arch-Biſhop, and Convulſion of the whole Realm.

‘7. That the ſame Society every week depoſits with the Preſident of the Society, what intelligence every of them hath purchaſed in eight dayes ſearch, and then conferr all into one Packet, which is weekly ſent to the Director of the buſineſs.

‘8. That all the Confederates in the ſaid Conſpiracy may verily be named by the Poll, but becauſe they may be made known by other means, it is thought meet to deferr it till hereafter.

‘9. That there is a ready means whereby the Villany may be diſcovered in one Moment, the chief Conſpirators circumvented, and the primary members of the conjuration apprehended in the very Act.

10. That very many about the King, who are accounted moſt faithful and intimate, to whom likewiſe the more ſecret things are intruſted, are Traytors to the King, corrupted with a Foraign Penſion, who communicate all ſecrets of greater or leſſer moment to a Foraign power.

11. Theſe and other moſt ſecret things which ſhall be neceſſary to be known for the ſecurity of the King, may be revealed if theſe things ſhall be acceptable to the Lord Arch-Biſhop.

‘12. In the mean time, if his Royal Majeſty, and the Lord Arch-Biſhop deſire to conſult well to themſelves, they ſhall keep theſe things only ſuperficially communicated unto them, moſt ſecretly under deep ſilence, not communicating them ſo much as to thoſe whom they judge moſt faithful to them, before they ſhall receive by name in whom they may confide, for elſe they are ſafe on no ſide. Likewiſe they may be aſſured, that whatever things are here propoſed are no Figments, nor Fables, nor vain dreams, but ſuch real verities which may be demonſtrated in every ſmall tittle, for thoſe who thruſt themſelves into this buſineſs are ſuch men who mind no gain, but the very Zeal of Chriſtian Charity ſuffers them not to conceal theſe things, yet both from his Majeſty and the Lord Arch-Biſhop ſome ſmall Exemplar of Gratitude will be expected.

‘All theſe premiſes have been Communicated under good Faith, and the Sacrament of an Oath, to Mr. Leiger Embaſſador of the King of Great Britain at the Hague, that he ſhould not immediately truſt, or communicate theſe things to any Mortal, beſides the King and the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

AS great as the ſecret is which comes herewith, yet I chooſe rather to ſend it in this ſilent covert way, and I hope ſafe, than to come thither, and bring it my ſelf. Firſt, becauſe I am no way able to make haſte enough with it. Secondly, becauſe ſhould I come at this time and antedate the meeting Sept. 24. there would be more jealouſie of the buſineſs, and more enquiry after it, eſpecially, if I being once there, ſhould return again before that day, as I muſt if this be followed, as is moſt fit.

I beſeech your Majeſty read theſe Letters as they are Endorſed, &c. 1, 2, 3, &c.

Ye had reaſon ſo to do.

The Danger it ſeems is imminent, and laid by God knows whom, but to be executed by them which are very near about you (for the great honour which I have to be in danger with you, or for you, I paſs not, ſo your Sacred Perſon and the State may be ſafe.) Now may it pleaſe your Majeſty, This information is either true, or there is ſome miſtake in it: if it be true, the perſons which make the diſcovery will deſerve thanks and reward; if there ſhould be any miſtake in it, your Majeſty can loſe nothing but a little ſilence.

It is an unanſwerable Dilemma.

I concur totally with you in opinion, aſſuring you that no body doth or ſhall know of this buſineſs, and to ſhew my care to conceal it, I received this but this Afternoon, and now I make this diſpatch before I ſleep.

The buſineſs (if it be) is extream foul, The diſcovery thus by Gods Providence offered, ſeems fair. I do hereby humbly beg it upon my knees of your Majeſty, that you will conceal this buſineſs from every Creature and his name that ſends this to me. And I ſend his Letters to me to your Majeſty, that you may ſee his ſence both of the buſineſs and the Secreſie. And ſuch Inſtructions as you think fit to give him, I beſeech you let them be in your own hand for his Warrant without imparting them to any. And if your Majeſty leave it to his diſcretion to follow it therein in the beſt way he can, that in your own hand will be inſtruction and warrant enough for him. And if you pleaſe to return it herewith preſently to me, I will ſend an Expreſs away with it preſently.

Herewith I ſend his Warrant as you adviſe, which indeed I judge to be the better way.

I like your anſwer extream well, and do promiſe not to deceive your Confidence, nor make you break your word.

In the mean time I have by this Expreſs returned him this anſwer, that I think he ſhall do well to hold on the Treaty with theſe men with all care and ſecreſie, and drive on to the diſcovery ſo ſoon as the buſineſs is ripe for it, that he may aſſure himſelf and them, they ſhall not want reward, if they do the ſervice; That for my part he ſhall be ſure of ſecreſie, and that I am moſt confident your Majeſty will not impart it to any. That he have a ſpecial eye to the Eighth and Ninth Propoſition.

I have ſent all back, I think theſe Apoſtyles will be warrant enough for you to proceed, eſpecially when I expreſly command you to do ſo.

Sir, For Gods ſake and your own ſafety, ſecreſie in this buſineſs: And I beſeech you ſend me back this Letter, and all that comes with it, ſpeedily and ſecretly, and truſt not your own Pockets with them, I ſhall not eat nor ſleep in quiet till I receive them. In this I am as far from condemning your Judgement as ſuſpecting your fidelity. C. R.

This is the greateſt buſineſs that ever was put to me, And if I have herein propoſed or done any thing amiſs, I moſt humbly crave your Majeſties pardon. But I am willing to hope I have not herein erred in Judgement, and in fidelity I never will.

Which ſaid larger Diſcovery here followeth,

A large particular Diſcovery of the Plot and Treaſon againſt the King, Kingdom and Proteſtant Religion, and to raiſe the Scottiſh Wars.

A larger diſcovery of the Plot.

Moſt Illuſtrious and Reverend Lord,

‘WE have willingly and cordially perceived, that our offers have been acceptable both to his Royal Majeſty, and likewiſe to your Grace. This is the only Index to us, That the bleſſing of God is preſent with you, whereby a ſpur is given, that we ſhould ſo much the more cheerfully and freely utter and detect thoſe things whereby the hazard of both your lives, the ſubverſion of the Realm and State both of England and Scotland, the tumbling down of his moſt Excellent Majeſty from his Throne is intended. Now leſt the diſcourſe ſhould be enlarged with ſuperfluous circumſtances, we will only premiſe ſome things which are meerly neceſſary to the buſineſs.

‘They may firſt of all know, that this good man, by whom the enſuing things are detected, was born and bred in the Popiſh Religion, who ſpent many years in Eccleſiaſtical dignities. At length being found fit for the expedition of the preſent deſign, by the Counſel and Mandate of the Lord Cardinal Barbarino, he was adjoyned to the aſſiſtance of Maſter Cuneus (Cun) by whom he was found ſo diligent and ſedulous in his office, that hope of great promotion was given to him; yet he, led by the inſtinct of the good Spirit, hath, howſoever it be, contemned ſweet promiſes, and having known the vanities of the Pontifician Religion (of which he had ſometimes been a moſt ſevere defender) having likewiſe noted the malice of thoſe who fight under the Popiſh Banner, felt his Conſcience to be burthened; which burden that he might eaſe himſelf of, he converted his mind to the Orthodox Religion. Soon after, that he might exonerate his Conſcience, he thought fit, that a deſperate Treaſon machinated againſt ſo many ſouls, was to be revealed, and that he ſhould receive eaſe if he vented ſuch things into the boſom of a friend; which done, he was ſeriouſly admoniſhed by the ſaid friend, that he ſhould ſhew an example of his converſion and cha'rity, and free ſo many innocent ſouls from imminent danger. To whoſe monitions he willingly conſented, and delivered the following things to be put in writing, out of which the Articles not long ſince tendered to your Grace, may be clearly explicated and demonſtrated.

'1. Firſt of all, That the hinge of the buſineſs may be rightly diſcerned, it is to be known, that all thoſe factions with which all Chriſtendom is at this day ſhaken, do ariſe from the Jeſuitical offſpring of Cham, of which four Orders abound throughout the world.

'1. Of the firſt order are Eccleſiaſticks, whoſe office is to take care of things promoting Religion.

'2. Of the ſecond order are Politicians, whoſe office it is by any means to ſhake, trouble, reform the ſtate of Kingdoms and Republicks.

'3. Of the third Order are Seculars whoſe property it is to obtrude themſelves into Offices with Kings and Princes, to inſinuate and immix themſelves in Court-buſineſſes, bargains and ſales, and to be buſied in Civil affairs.

'4. Of the fourth order are intelligencers, (or ſpies) men of inferiour condition, who ſubmit themſelves to the ſervices of great men, Princes, Barons, Noble-men, Citizens, to deceive (or corrupt) the minds of their Maſters.

'2. A Society of ſo many Orders, the Kingdom of England nouriſheth: for ſcarce all Spain, France and Italy can yield ſo great a multitude of Jeſuites as London alone; where are found more than fifty Scottiſh Jeſuites. There the ſaid Society hath elected to it ſelf a ſeat of iniquity, and hath conſpired againſt the King, and the moſt faithful to the King, eſpecially the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, and likewiſe againſt both Kingdoms.

'3. For it is more certain than certainty it ſelf, that the fore-named Society hath determined to effect an univerſal Reformation of the Kingdom of England and Scotland. Therefore the determination of the end, neceſſarily inferrs a determination of means to the end.

'4. Therefore to promote the undertaken villany, the ſaid Society dubbed it ſelf with the title of, The Congregation of propagating the faith; which acknowledgeth the Pope of Rome the head of the Colledge, and Cardinal Barbarino his ſubſtitute and Executor.

'5. The Chief Patron of the Society at London, is the Popes Legat, who takes care of the buſineſs; into whoſe boſome, theſe dreggs of Traytors weekly depoſite all their intelligences. Now the Reſidence of this Legation was obtained at London in the name of the Roman Pontiſe, by whoſe mediation it might be lawful for Cardinal Barbarino, to work ſo much the more eaſily and ſafely upon the King and Kingdom. For none elſe could ſo freely circumvent the King, as he who ſhould be palliated with the Popes Authority.

'6. Maſter Cuneus did at that time enjoy the Office of the Popes Legate, an univerſal inſtrument of the conjured Society, and a ſerious promoter of the buſineſs, whoſe ſecrets, as likewiſe thoſe of all the other intelligencers, the preſent good man, the communicator of all theſe things, did receive and expedite whither the buſineſs required.

An. 1640.

‘Cuneus ſet upon the chief men of the Kingdom, and left nothing unattempted, by what means he might corrupt them all, and incline them to the Pontifican party: he inticed many with various inticements, yea he ſought to delude the King himſelf with gifts of Pictures, Antiquities, Idols, and of other vanities brought from Rome, which yet would prevail nothing with the King.

‘Having entred familiarity with the King he is often requeſted at Hampton Court, likewiſe at London, to undertake the cauſe of the Palatine, and that he would interpoſe his Authority, and by his interceſſion perſwade the Legat of Colen, that the Palatine in the next Diet to treat of peace, might be inſerted into the conditions, which verily he promiſed, but performed the contrary. He writ indeed, that he had been ſo deſired by the King concerning ſuch things, yet he adviſed not that they ſhould be conſented to, leſt peradventure it might be ſaid by the Spaniard, that the Pope of Rome had Patronized an Heretical Prince.

‘In the mean time, Cuneus ſmelling from the Arch-Biſhop moſt truſty to the King, that the Kings mind was wholly pendulous (or doubtful), reſolved that he would move every ſtone, and apply his forces, that he might gain him to his party: Certainly confiding, that he had a means prepared, for he had a command to offer a Cardinals Cap to the Lord Arch-Biſhop in the name of the Pope of Rome, and that he ſhould allure him alſo with higher promiſes, that he might corrupt his ſincere mind. Yet a fitting occaſion was never given whereby he might inſinuate himſelf into the Lord Arch-Biſhop (for the Scorpion ſought an egg). Free acceſs was to be impetrated by the Earl and Counteſs of Arundel, likewiſe by Secretary Windebanke: The interceſſion of all which being neglected, he did fly the company or familiarity of Cuneus, worſe than the Plague: He was likewiſe perſwaded by others of no mean rank, well known to him, neither yet was he moved.

‘7. Another alſo was aſſayed who hindred acceſs to the deteſtable wickedneſs, Secretary Cook, he was a moſt bitter hater of the Jeſuites, from whom he intercepted acceſs to the King; he entertained many (of them) according to their deſerts, he diligently enquired into their factions; by which means every incitement breathing a magnetical (attractive) power to the Popiſh party, was ineffectual with him; for nothing was ſo dear unto him that might incline him to Wickedneſs: hereupon being made odious to the Patrons of the Conſpiracy, he was endangered to be diſcharged from his Office; it was laboured for three years ſpace, and at laſt obtained. Yet notwithſtanding there remained on the Kings part a knot hard to be untyed, for the Lord Arch-Biſhop by his conſtancy, interpoſed himſelf as a moſt hard rock.

‘When Cuneus had underſtood from the Lord Arch-Biſhops part, that he had laboured in vain, his malice and the whole Societies waxed boyling hot: ſoon after ambuſhes began to be prepared, wherewith the Lord Arch-Biſhop together with the King ſhould be taken.

‘Likewiſe a ſentence is paſſed againſt the King (for whoſe ſake all this buſineſs is diſpoſed) becauſe nothing is hoped from him, which might ſeem to promote the Popiſh Religion (but eſpecially when he had opened his mind, that he was of this opinion, that every one might be ſaved in his own Religion, ſo as he be an honeſt pious man.)

‘8. To perpetrate the Treaſon undertaken, the Criminal execution * at Weſtminſter cauſed by ſome writings of Puritans, gave occaſion of the firſt fire; which thing was ſo much exaſperated and exaggerated by the Papiſts to the Puritans, that if it remained unrevenged, it would be thought a blemiſh to their Religion, the flames of which fire, the ſubſequent Book † of Prayers encreaſes.

‘9. In this heat a certain Scottiſh Earl, called * Maxwell, if I miſtake not, was expedited to the Scots by the Popiſh party; with whom two other Scottiſh Earles, Papiſts, held correſpondency: he ought to ſtir up the people to Commotion, and rub over the injury afreſh, that he might enflame their minds, precipitate them to Armes, by which the hurtful diſturber of the Scottiſh liberty might be ſlain.

‘10. There, by one labour, ſnares are prepared for the King: for this purpoſe the preſent buſineſs was ſo ordered, that very many of the Engliſh ſhould adhere to the Scots; That the King ſhould remain inferiour in Armes, who (thereupon) ſhould be compelled to crave aſſiſtance from the Papiſts; which yet he ſhould not obtain, unleſs he would condeſcend unto conditions, by which he ſhould permit univerſal liberty of the exerciſe of the Popiſh Religion; for ſo the affairs of the Papiſts would ſucceed according to their deſire. To which conſent, if he ſhould ſhew himſelf more difficult, there ſhould be a preſent remedy at hand: For the King's Son growing now very faſt to his youthful age (who is educated from his tender age, that he might accuſtome himſelf to the Popiſh party) the King is to be diſpatched; for an Indian Nut ſtuffed with moſt ſharp poyſon, is kept in the Society (which Cuneus at that time ſhewed often to me in a boaſting manner) wherein a poyſon was prepared for the King, after the example of his Father.

‘11. In this Scottiſh Commotion, the Marqueſs of Hamilton was often diſpatched to the Scots in the name of the King, to interpoſe the Royal authority, whereby the heat of minds might be mitigated, returned notwithſtanding as often without fruit, and without ending the buſineſs: His Chaplain at that time repaired to us, who communicated ſomething ſecretly with Cuneus. Being demanded of me in jeſt, whether alſo the Jews agreed with the Samaritans, Cuneus thereunto anſwered, Would to God all Miniſters were ſuch as he: what you will may be hence conjectured.

‘12. Things ſtanding thus, there arrived at London from Cardinal Richlieu, Mr. Tho. Chamberlaine, his Chaplain and Almoner, a Scot by Nation, who ought to aſſiſt the Colledge of the confederate Society, and ſeriouſly to ſet forward the buſineſs, to leave nothing unattempted, whereby the firſt heat might be exaſperated. For which ſervice he was promiſed the reward of a Biſhoprick: He Cohabited with the Society four months ſpace; neither was it lawful for him firſt to depart, until things ſucceeding according to his wiſh, he might be able to return back again with good news.

‘13. Sir Toby Matthew a Jeſuited Prieſt, of the order of Politicians, a moſt vigilant man of the chief heads, to whom a bed was never ſo dear, that he would reſt his head thereon, refreſhing his body with ſleep in a Chair for an hour or two, neither day nor night ſpared his machinations; a man principally noxious, and himſelf the plague of the King and Kingdom of England; a moſt impudent

* When Prin, Baſtwick and Burton had their ears cut off in the Pillory, and Prin ſtigmatized.

† The Common-Prayer Book ſent into Scotland implying Tranſubſtantiation in the Sacrament.

*Or Maxfield.

‘man, who flies to all banquets, and feaſts, called or not called, never quiet, alwayes in action, a perpetual motion; thruſting himſelf into all converſations of Superiours; he urgeth Conferences familiarly, that he may fiſh out the minds of men; whatever he obſerveth thence, which may bring any commodity or diſcommodity to the part of the Conſpirators, he communicates to the Popes Legat; the more ſecret things he himſelf writes to the Pope, or to Cardinal Barbarino. In ſumm he adjoyns himſelf to any mans company, no word can be ſpoken that he will not lay hold on, and accommodate to his party. In the mean time, whatever he hath fiſhed out, he reduceth into a Catalogue, and every Summer carryeth or conveyeth it to the general Conſiſtory of the Jeſuites politicks, which ſecretly meets together in the Province of Wales, where he is an acceptable gueſt. There Counſels are ſecretly hammered which are moſt meet for the convulſion of the Eccleſiaſtick and politick eſtate of both Kingdoms.

‘14. Captain Read a Scot, dwelling in Long-acre ſtreet, near the Angel Tavern, a Secular Jeſuite; in his houſe the buſineſs of the whole Plot is concluded, where the Society which hath conſpired againſt the King, the Lord Arch-Biſhop and both Kingdoms meet together, for the moſt part every day: but on the day of the Carriers (or Poſts) diſpatch, which is ordinarily Friday, they meet in greater numbers; for then all the Intelligencers aſſemble and conferr in common, what things every of them hath fiſhed out that week; who that they may be without ſuſpicion, ſend their ſecrets by Toby Matthew or Read himſelf, to the Popes Legate, he tranſmits the compacted packet which he hath purchaſed from the Intelligencers to Rome.

‘With the ſame Read, the Letters brought from Rome are depoſited under feigned Titles and Names, who by him are delivered to all to whom they appertain, for all and every of their names are known to him.

‘Upon the very ſame occaſion Letters are brought hither under the Covert of Father Philips; (he notwithſtanding being ignorant of things) from whom they are diſtributed to the Conſpirators.

‘There is in that very houſe a publick Chapel, wherein an ordinary Jeſuite Conſecrates, and dwells there. In the ſaid Chapel Maſſes are daily Celebrated by the Jeſuites; and it ſerves for the Baptizing of the Children of the houſe, and of ſome of the Conſpirators.

‘Thoſe who aſſemble in the forenamed houſe, come frequently in Coaches or on Horſe-back in Lay-mens habits, and with a great Train, wherewith they are diſguiſed, that they may not be known, yet they are Jeſuites, and conjured members of the Society.

‘15. All the Papiſts of England contribute to this Aſſembly, leſt any thing ſhould be wanting to promote the undertaken deſigns, upon whoſe Treaſury one Widow, owner of the houſes wherein Secretary Windebanke now dwelleth, dead above three years ſince, beſtowed Forty Thouſand Engliſh Pounds, ſo likewiſe others contribute above their abilities, ſo as the buſineſs may be promoted unto its deſired end.

‘16. Beſides the foreſaid Houſes, there are Convents kept alſo in other more ſecret places, of which verily they confide not even 'among themſelves, for fear leſt they ſhould be diſcovered. Firſt, every 'of them are called to certain Inns, (one not knowing of the other); 'hence they are ſeverally led by ſpies to the place where they ought 'to meet, otherwiſe ignorant where they ought to aſſemble, leſt per'adventure they ſhould be ſurprized at unawares.

'17. The Counteſs of Arundel, a ſtrenuous She-Champion of the 'Popiſh Religion, bends all her Nerves to the Univerſal Reformati'on; whatſoever ſhe hears at the King's Court that is done ſecretly 'or openly in words or deeds, ſhe preſently imparts to the Popes Le'gat, with whom ſhe meets thrice a day, ſometimes in Arundel 'Houſe, now at the Court, or at Tart-Hall. He ſcarce ſucks ſuch 'things by the Claw.

The Concluſion of the whole Diſcovery endeth in theſe words;

The concluſion of the Diſcovery.

'THeſe things being thus ordered, if every thing be laid to the bal'lance, it will ſatisfie in ſpecial all the Articles propounded; 'wherein,

'1. The Conſpiracy againſt the King and Lord Arch-Biſhop is 'detected, and the means whereby ruine is threatned to both demon'ſtrated.

'2. The Imminent dangers to both Kingdoms are rehearſed.

'3. The Riſe and Progreſs of that Scotiſh Fire is related.

'4. Means whereby theſe Scotiſh troubles may be appeaſed are ſug'geſted; for after the Scots ſhall know by whom and to what end 'their minds are incenſed, they will ſpeedily look to themſelves, nei'ther will they ſuffer the Forces of both parts to be ſubdued, leſt a 'middle Party interpoſe, which ſeeks the Ruine of both.

'5. With what Sword the Kings Throat is aſſaulted, even when 'theſe ſtirs ſhall be ended, Cuneus his Confeſſion, and a viſible De'monſtration ſheweth.

'6. The Place of the Aſſembly in the Houſe of Captain Read is 'nominated.

'7. The day of the eight dayes diſpatch by Read and the Legat is 'preſcribed.

'8. How the names of the Conſpirators may be known.

'9. Where this whole Congregation may be circumvented.

'10. Some of the principal unfaithful ones of the King's Party are 'notified by name; many of whoſe names occur not, yet their habi'tations are known, their names may be eaſily extorted from Read.

'If theſe be warily proceeded in, the ſtrength of the whole buſi'neſs will be brought to Light, ſo the Arrow being foreſeen, the dan'ger ſhall be avoided; Which that it may proſperouſly ſucceed, the 'Omnipotent Creator grant.

WHereas the ſaid large diſcovery gives a particular Character of Sr. Toby Mathew an Engliſh man, a Jeſuite and Prieſt, we ſhall offer to the Conſideration of the Reader the Popes Bull granted unto him, a Copy of which was found among the Papers of Mr. Secretary Windebanke. By which Bull it doth appear, that Count Roſſetti the Popes Nuntio was committed to take the Care and Tutelage of Sr. Toby; hoping that the Nuntio, aſſiſted by his Counſels, would produce no ſmall fruits to the Catholick Church through the help of the female Amazons there, to reſtore the Authority of the See Apoſtolick in the Kingdom of England: the Copy whereof followeth.

BEloved Son, Health and Apoſtolical Benediction. Your burning zeal for the ſalvation of ſouls, by which for ſo many years you have approved your ſelf a diligent and faithful Workman in our Lords Vineyard, deſerveth its due praiſe and grateful remembrance from us. The truth is, the account of thoſe troubles that you have gone thorough for the enlargement of the greatneſs of the Apoſtolical See, and that charitable zeal, whereby you have become all things to all men, that you may gain ſome, we have heard with a great deal of rejoycing. It becometh indeed ſuch an Apoſtolical man (in imitation of the Grand Apoſtle) for the glory and dignity of the Apoſtolical See, to become as a Jew to the Jews, and as one without Law to thoſe who are without Law: Therefore when we had reſolved to ſend our beloved Son Count Roſſetti (a young man full of divine zeal) into Britain with power and authority of our Legate à Latere and Nuntio of the Apoſtolical See, we did account our ſelves freed and acquitted of all our Apoſtolical anxiety and duty, when we had recommended him to your care: and upon that account we have commanded him to communicate to you all thoſe inſtructions ctiones ſibi datas, & à dilecto filio & Nepote noſtro, Franciſco Sanctæ Reverendiſ. Eccleſiæ Card. Barbarino ſubſcriptas, Téque ab eo quo pro ſede Apoſtolica zelo ardes rogamus, & in quantum opus eſt, tibi mandamus, ut prædictum filium, & Nuntium noſtrum, in omnibus dirigas, moveas, inſtruas, lapſus & errores ejus, (qui per juventutem facilè accidere poſſunt) corrigas (ut ſedis Apoſtolicæ decor inviolatus permaneat) & ut denique in omnibus ei te Angelum cuſtodem præbeas. Magnam certè ſpem concepimus prædictum filium & Nuntium tuis conſiliis adjutum, non parvos in Eccleſia Catholica fructus producturum. Labora igitur, dilecte fili, opus fac Evangeliſtæ, miniſterium tuum imple, Catholicos zelo Dei accende, ipſos comforta, ſed præcipuè Amazones illas quæ (ut à dilecto filio Georgio Conneo audivimus) die ac nocte ſtrenuè decertant pro dignitate ſedis Apoſtolicæ. Non diffidimus de Domino, neque de potentia ejus, quia ſicut occaſione unius fœminæ, authoritas Sedis Apoſtolicæ in Regno Angliæ ſuppreſſa fuit, ſic nunc per tot Heroicas fœminas (illas imitantes quæ à Galileo *ſequebantur Dominum) ſocietatem ejus aſſiduè ſequentes, brevi in eodem Regno reſtituenda ſit. Adhortare igitur illas ut opus aggreſſum viriliter proſequantur, & de ſede Apoſtolica (quæ devoti fœminei ſexus peculiarem Curam gerit) bene mereri pergant. Rogamus patrem Domini noſtri Jeſu Chriſti, ut tibi Spiritum ſanctum ſuum mittat, qui te in omnibus & per omnia cuſtodiat. inſtructions which are given to him, and ſubſcribed by our beloved Son and Nephew, the moſt Reverend Cardinal Franciſco Barbarino; and we conjure you by that zeal and reſpect you have for the dignity of the Apoſtolical See, yea, we charge and command you, that (ſo far as it is needful) you not only direct, adviſe and inſtruct our foreſaid Son and Nuntio in all things, but that you correct all his eſcapes and errors (which by reaſon of his youth he may eaſily be guilty of) that the glory and Dignity of the Apoſtolical See, may remain chaſte and inviolate; and in ſhort, that in all things, you be to him an Angel-Guardian. We have indeed aſſured our ſelf of a plentiful harveſt from the labours of our foreſaid Son and Nuntio (by the help of your counſel) in the Catholick concern. Go on therefore beloved Son, do the work of an Evangeliſt, fulfil your Miniſtry, enkindle the Catholicks with a divine zeal: comfort them all, but chiefly thoſe Amazones and Virago's for the Catholick cauſe, who (as we have had an account from our beloved Son George Conneo) night and day do champion-like fight for the glory and dignity of the Apoſtolical See. We neither diſtruſt God nor his power; for as the authority of the Apoſtolical See was ſuppreſſed in the Kingdom of England by the power and influence of one Woman, ſo now we hope by the help of ſo many heroick and noble ſpirited Women, in a ſhort time to have it reſtored in that Kingdom to its antient right and glory again: Pray therefore exhort and encourage them, to proſecute with a Maſculine ſpirit the deſign on foot, and to go on in meriting from the Apoſtolical See, which hath an extraordinary and peculiar care and concern for that devouter Sex. We beſeech the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt to ſend you

'THey who will diligently compare this Information with what hath conformably occurred in the preceding parts of theſe Annals, and ſhall withal well conſider the practices both antient and modern of thoſe pragmatical ſpirits, will find cauſe enough to think there was in it ſomewhat more than fiction: and that it may make ſome impreſſion upon faith, without ſetting it upon the rack. Only one Objection I ſhall rid out of the way, which may ſeem to diſcredit the truth thereof. And it is this,

'The Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury ſtands aſperſed in common fame, as a great friend (at leaſt) and Patron of the Romiſh Catholicks, if he were not of the ſame belief: And it were a Policy miſ-becoming ſuch ſubtile Serpents cauſeleſly to plot the death of their ſo eminent well-wiſher. To which I anſwer, by conceſſion; True it is, he had too much and long favoured the Romiſh faction; but as upon what account he favoured them, is uncertain; ſo was it but the Romiſh faction (not the Romiſh faith) he favoured. He tampered indeed to introduce ſome Ceremonies bordering upon Superſtition, diſuſed by us, and abuſed by them; from whence the Romaniſts collected ſuch a diſpoſition in him to their Tenets, as they began not only to hope, but in good earneſt to cry him up for their Proſelyte. Upon this Hypotheſis, this ſuppoſition, they grew exceſſive proud and inſolent, as well they might) knowing how grand a Confident and Truſtee he was of the Kings (had not their perſwaſion miſled them. But the Arch-Biſhop finding that his tacite reſervedneſs in point of Opinion, and former compliance with the Papiſts, was no longer expedient for his deſigns, and did begin to create ill boading Jealouſies in another party, reſolved to ſpeak out, and unbeguile them both. And firſt in the year 1637. openly at the Council Table, he paſſionately complained to the King of their audacious reſort to Denmark-Houſe; uſing ſome expreſſions of vehemency; more particularly againſt the haughty deportment of Mr. Walter Montague and Sr. Tobias Mathew. But that which moſt deſpighted them, was his publiſhing the next year the Relation of his Conference with the Jeſuite Fiſher; wherein he declared himſelf ſo little theirs, as he hath for ever diſ-abled them from being ſo much their own, as they were before; it being the exacteſt Maſter-piece of Polemique Divinity of all extant. Pity it is, his thoughts which were in other affairs a thought too high, had ſo fatal a diverſion from his ſtudies. But what one is excellent in every thing? Now the Arch-Biſhop thus profeſſedly owning the Proteſtant Cauſe, and having ſo potent an influence upon the King, it was no wonder if he became formidable to the Romaniſts, as Hannibal was to the Romans; (and where Hannibal was, there his Enemies judged the

'the Life and Soul of the Carthaginian ſtrength to reſide; and ſo by 'conſequence his deſtruction, the main concernment of their in'tereſt.

WHereas the large Diſcovery before mentioned takes notice, that the Pope had given a Command to his Nuntio ſent into England, to make offer of a Cardinals Cap to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury in the Name of the Pope; which offer, till this diſcovery, was not known: but the Arch-Biſhop in his Diary (found among his Papers in the Tower about two years after the ſaid diſcovery) doth make ſome mention concerning the ſame: viz. Auguſt 4. 1633, At Greenwich, ſaith he, there came one to me ſeriouſly, and that avowed Ability to perform it, and offered me to be a Cardinal.

And likewiſe Auguſt 17. Saturday, I had a ſerious offer made me again to be a Cardinal. I was then from Court, but as ſoon as I came thither (which was Wedneſday Auguſt 21.) I acquainted his Majeſty with it: But my Anſwer again was, That ſomewhat dwelt within me, which would not ſuffer that, till Rome were otherwiſe than it is.

The Arch Biſhop having refuſed the Cardinals Cap, and the King having opened his mind ſo far, as that he was of opinion, that every one might be ſaved in his own Religion, ſo as he be an Honeſt and Pious man; they haſtened to paſs Sentence againſt the King, who was to be cut off by Poyſon.

Sr. Kenelme Digby and Mr. Walter Mountague their examinations at the Barr of the Houſe of Commons, concerning the Popes Nuntio, and the Papiſts Contribution to the War againſt the Scots, &c.

Sr. Kenelme Digby and Mr. Mountague examined by the Parliament.

IN January 1640. Sr. Kenelme Digby was called into the Houſe of Commons, and being demanded ſeveral Queſtions concerning the Inſtructions diſperſed to the Papiſts throughout England to lend Money to maintain the War againſt the Scots, and what Money was levied thereupon, and who were the Collectors, and how the Popes Nuntio came to be the chief man employed therein.

The Anſwer which he returned was to this purpoſe; 'That he 'did conſider before whom he did appear, and in whoſe preſence he 'ſpake, the graveſt and wiſeſt Aſſembly in the whole World, whoſe 'Majeſty is ſo great, that it might well diſorder his thoughts, and 'impede his expreſſions; That he was ſuddenly ſurpriſed with unex'pected Queſtions; and apprehended there might be ſome diſlike in 'that honourable Houſe, of that which once he did conceive was an 'Act of Service and Merit. But ſince he is askt of things apart, he 'ſhall humbly repreſent what he can remember upon this occaſion, 'and what may be ſatisfactory to the Houſe. So he related the beginning of the buſineſs, and took along the Series as it went from ſtep to ſtep.

'About two years ſince (ſaid he) my ſelf with ſome others had 'a meeting concerning this buſineſs upon my Lord of Traquair's 'coming out of Scotland, and repreſenting to the King ſome pro-

An. 1640.

‘ceedings there much to the diſadvantage of his Majeſties affairs,
‘inſomuch that his Majeſty with the advice of his Council, declared
‘a War againſt the Scots. And his Majeſty did generally intimate,
‘that his Neceſſities did require to be ſupplyed in the going on with
‘the War. This intimation of his Majeſty was communicated to ‘the ſeveral Judges of the Kingdom, to the Societies of the Inns of ‘Court, to the Judges and others of the Civil Law, and to the City
‘of London likewiſe; and more eſpecially to the Clergy of London.
‘Having theſe Examples before our eyes, we conſidering our ſelves
‘as dutiful Subjects though Recuſants, might as Subjects in this ‘caſe follow the good examples of Loyalty to our Prince, which the ‘Learned and others of the Land had done before us. The Queen
‘hereupon was pleaſed to recommend to thoſe who were Catholicks
‘of this Kingdom, to ſhew themſelves as forward as others were in ‘ſerving of the King; and to each Catholick to ſpeak to his acquaintance
‘to do the like. I was one of thoſe her Majeſty ſpake unto;
‘whereupon I confeſs I did both in example and ſpeeches with ‘others, encourage them to make what Contribution they could.
‘But how to convey this Money that ſhould be thus contributed to
‘the Army, I found it very difficult; conſidering it was to be gathered
‘in ſeveral places of the Nation, and I had but little Correſpondency
‘among the Catholicks of this Kingdom; there was a Gentleman
‘that did take upon him to ſupply that care of mine; and that was ‘Seigneur Con, who was Reſident here from the Pope I conceive to ‘attend the Queen; whoſe acquaintance with the particular Perſons
‘of the Recuſants was beyond any others; and meetings were ‘generally kept at his Houſe, in order to the advancement of this ‘buſineſs: he alſo took upon him to name the perſons in every County
‘who ſhould be the Collectors of the Money: and therefore we ‘diſcourſed of Motives to induce them freely to contribute, (The ‘chief whereof was, that his Majeſties Grace and Goodneſs had been ‘much extended to Catholicks, conſidering how ſharp and Penal ‘the Laws were againſt them) and ſo to ſeek by way of gratitude
‘upon this occaſion to make return anſwerable. Other Motives there
‘were, which were drawn by Siegn. Con, which I was not acquainted
‘with; but he told me, he had ſent down ſuch Motives and Instructions
‘as he thought were fit inducements upon that occaſion. And
‘as to the Queſtion, What perſons I conſulted withal, there were at ‘the meeting ſeveral times Sr. John Winter the Queens Secretary,
‘Sr. Baſil Brookes, Mr. Mountague, and one Mr. Foſter, who was a ‘perſon Seigneur Con had particular confidence in. For the particular ‘ſumms received, I am not able to give a particular account,
‘for my attendance was not long upon that ſervice. I remember ‘Ten Thouſand Pounds at one time paid into the Exchequer, and ‘Two Thouſand Pounds at another time (for which Tallies were ‘ſtruck) collected from Recuſants in theſe Southern parts; and ‘Sir Baſill Brookes was nominated Treaſurer; he kept the account,
‘and managed the buſineſs. He ſaid he had dealt clearly and candidly
‘with the Parliament, and declared as much as he knew in ‘this buſineſs.

'Mr. Walter Mountague being afterwards called in and examined at the Bar of the Houſe of Commons, did acknowledge much of what was ſaid by Sr. Kenelme Digby for the Motives and inducements to the raiſing of theſe Moneys; and that the whole tranſaction of the buſineſs was at Seigneur Con's houſe; and ſaid, that it is true, he is called the Popes Nuntio; but Mr. Mountague did not believe he was Commiſſionated by the Pope in that capacity; but rather that he comes from the Pope particularly to attend the Queens perſon, in order to matters of their Religion in reference to her Majeſty alone.

About two dayes after Sr. Kenelme Digby was again called into the Houſe, and demanded in what capacity Seigneur Con came into England, and how it came to paſs, he coming immediately from the Pope, ſhould be the principal in that buſineſs, and ſhould ſo willingly undertake the engagement of two Kingdoms in a bloody War?

To this he made anſwer, 'How his acquaintance came to be ſo great in the Nation he could not tell; but ſure he was, that his intereſt was greater than any intereſt Sr. Kenelme Digby had to advance the buſineſs; for the application was great unto him from Catholicks all over the Nation; that he doth not know of any particular Authority or Juriſdiction he had by any power from the Pope over the Catholicks of England, but as they ſay, he is a Nuntio or Legat of the Popes; though Nuntio is a word doth imply a different ſenſe; for if he do but come to keep a Civil Correſpondency between the Pope and the Queen, in that caſe he may be ſaid to be a Nuntio: But whether he was an Agent, ſo as to carry any Juriſdiction from the Pope, he doth not know, he cannot ſpeak it poſitively: he was willing to keep himſelf ignorant as much as he might of many things, having much leſs acquaintance with Catholicks, than is imagined he had. But as for Count Rozetti, he hath heard ſay, that he came with ſome Juriſdiction from the Pope; but had heard him (Rozetti) likewiſe ſay at White-Hall, that he did particularly renounce any ſuch Juriſdiction in England as was reported he had from the Pope.

Mr. Mountague was again interrogated upon theſe Queſtions, and made anſwer much to the purpoſe that Sr. Kenelme Digby had done.

TO promote the aforeſaid Contribution, the Queen wrote this Letter to be communicated to all the Roman Catholicks in England.

The Queens Letter to the Papiſts about Contributions.

Henrietta Maria R.

WE have ſo good a belief of the Loyalty and affection of his Majeſties Catholick Subjects, as we doubt not but upon this Occaſion that hath called his Majeſty into the Northern parts for the Defence of his Honour and Dominions, they will expreſs themſelves ſo affected as We have alwayes repreſented them to his Majeſty: So in this Common Conſent which hath appeared in the Nobility, Judges, Gentry and others, to forward his Majeſties ſervice by their Perſons and Eſtates, We have made no difficulty to anſwer for the ſame Correſpondency in his Catholick Subjects as Catholicks, notwithſtanding they have already concurred to this his Majeſties ſervice according to the quality whereof they are, when others of the ſame quality were called upon: For We believe that it became Us, who have been ſo often intereſſed in the ſolicitation of their benefits, to ſhew Our ſelves now in the perſwaſion of their Gratitudes. Therefore having already by his Majeſty by other means recommended to them this earneſt deſire of Ours to aſſiſt and ſerve his Majeſty by ſome conſiderable ſumm of Money freely and cheerfully preſented, We have thought fit (to the end that this Our deſire may be the more publick and more authoriſed) hereby to give you Commiſſion and direction to diſtribute Copies under Our hand of this teſtification thereof unto thoſe that have met in London by Our direction about this buſineſs, and unto the ſeveral Collectors of every County. And as We preſume, the ſumm they will raiſe, will not be unworthy Our preſenting to the King; ſo ſhall We be very ſenſible of it as a particular reſpect to Our ſelves, and will endeavour in the moſt efficacious manner we can, to improve the merit of it, and to remove any apprehenſion of prejudice that any (who ſhall employ themſelves towards the ſucceſs of this buſineſs) may conceive: By this they may be aſſured that We will ſecure them from all ſuch objected Inconveniencies. And We are very confident, that this Our firſt Recommendation will be ſo complyed withal, as may not only afford us particular ſatiſfaction, but alſo facilitation towards their own Advantages.

IN purſuance of her Majeſties Letter, Mr. Walter Mountague and Sr. Kenelme Digby wrote to ſome of the principal of that Party as followeth:

Mr. Mountague & Sr. Kenelme Digby's Letter on the ſame occaſion.

IT is ſufficiently already known to every one, what extraordinary Graces and protections we owe the Queens Majeſty, to whoſe favourable interceſſion we muſt aſcribe the happy moderation we live under: So as we doubt not, but an occaſion of the expreſſion of our Gratitudes will very joyfully be embraced by every body in this preſent eſtate of his Majeſties affairs. We have already by our former Letters endeavoured to prepare you to a cheerful aſſiſtance of his Majeſty in his declared Journey to the Northern parts, for the ſecuring of this Kingdom, and ſuch other purpoſes as his Royal Wiſdom ſhall reſolve of, that ſo you may really demonſtrate your ſelves as good Subjects as God and Nature requires of you. Now her Majeſty hath been graciouſly pleaſed to recommend unto us the expreſſions of our duties and zeal to his Majeſties ſervice, by ſome conſiderable Gift from the Catholicks, and to remove all ſcruples (that even well affected perſons may meet with,) ſhe undertakes to ſecure us and all that ſhall employ themſelves in this buſineſs, from any inconvenience that may be ſuſpected by their or our forwardneſs and declaration in this kind. It will eaſily appear to every body, how much it imports us in our ſenſe of his Majeſties deſires, to preſs every body to ſtrain himſelf even to his beſt abilities in this propoſition, ſince by it we ſhall certainly preſerve his gracefulneſs to us, and give good Characters of our devotion to the King and State, of whoſe benignity we have all reaſon to give teſtimonies, and to endeavour to produce Arguments for the proſecution and encreaſe of it.

Now for the beſt expedition of this buſineſs (which is the chief Circumſtance that importeth in it) we have thought fit to recommend it to your your Nominations of ſuch perſons as ſhall in your opinions be agreed for the ableſt and beſt diſpoſed in every ſeveral County, not only to ſolicite, but collect ſuch voluntary Contributions, as every bodies Conſcience and duty ſhall proffer. And we ſhall deſire you to give us an account of what acceptation this finds; which we cannot but expect very ſucceſsful and anſwerable to the forwardneſs we meet with here about London; for which we ſhall offer up our prayers to God.

W. Mountague,

Ke. Digby.

ANother Letter was ſent from thoſe aſſembled at London to ſome of the Romiſh Clergy, with inſtructions incloſed to be delivered by them to ſuch perſons as they concerned in order to the ſame buſineſs.

A Letter from ſome aſſembled at London, about the ſame buſineſs.

THe incloſed Advices and Motives being ſo ample, as you will perceive by peruſing them, it will not be needful that we enlarge our ſelves upon any particulars concerning the conduct of the buſineſs which they direct the way in: this therefore ſerveth only to convey them to you (as we are intreated by thoſe that have met here, and have undertaken to do) and deſire you to repair immediately unto thoſe perſons unto whom they be directed, and to deliver the ſame unto them in the name of all the Noble-men and Gentry (together with our ſelves) aſſembled here at London by the Queens commandment, to ſet forward this work. And we pray you aſſure them in the moſt efficacious manner you can (engaging all our Credits for the Truſt thereof) that it is the ſenſe of us all, both Eccleſiaſtical and Lay perſons, that beſides the diſcharging of their and our duties to God and the King, it mainly importeth the good of the Catholicks, to have their buſineſs take good ſucceſs. Therefore intreat them to deal Actively and Efficaciouſly and ſpeedily according to theſe Advices and Motives. We are ſo well perſwaded of their devotion to put forward ſo pious a work, that we doubt not, but they will be as well ſatisfied in the needfulneſs of the thing, and be as ready to employ themſelves in it, receiving the aſſurance thereof, and perſwaſions thereunto, only from our hands, as if they came by all the formal ways that can be imagined, which in a buſineſs of this nature cannot be expected. And although the Advices and Motives be directed only to the Lay Gentlemen, yet we deſire you (and have anſwered for you) that you will employ your ſelves, and all thoſe that depend upon you, ſincerely to ſolicite and diſpoſe all their minds that you have relation unto, as powerfully as you can, to contribute cheerfully and bountifully upon this occaſion; which as it is the firſt that ever we laboured in of this kind, ſo we hope in God it will be the laſt; there being no probability of ſo preſſing and urgent Neceſſity to occurr any more.

The Remonſtrance of both Houſes of Parliament unto the King, delivered by the Lord Keeper, January 29. 1640.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

Concerning Prieſts and Jeſuites.

'YOur Loyal Subjects, the Lords and Commons now aſſembled by your Majeſties Writ in the High Court of Parliament, humbly repreſent unto your gracious conſideration, That Jeſuites and Prieſts ordained by Authority from the See of Rome, remaining in this Realm, by a Statute made in the twenty ſeventh year of Queen Elizabeth, are declared Traytors, and to ſuffer as Traytors.

27 Eliz. c. 2.

'That this Law is not ſo rigorous, as ſome apprehend, or would have others to believe; for that it is reſtrained to the natural born Subjects only, and doth not extend to any ſtrangers at all.

1 Jac. c. 4.

'That it is enacted in the firſt year of King James, That all Statutes made in the time of Queen Elizabeth againſt Prieſts and Jeſuites, be put in due and exact execution.

'And for further aſſurance of the due execution of theſe Laws, the Statute of the third year of King James invites men to the diſcovery of the offendors, by rewarding them with a conſiderable part of the forfeiture of the Recuſants eſtate.

'So that the Statute of Queen Elizabeth is not only approved, but by the Judgement of ſeveral Parliaments in the time of King James of happy memory, adjudged fit and neceſſary to be put in execution.

'That conſidering the ſtate and condition of this preſent time, they conceive this Law to be more neceſſary to be put in ſtrict execution, than at any time before; and that for divers weighty and conſiderable reaſons: viz. for that by divers Petitions from the ſeveral parts of this Kingdom, Complaints are made of the great encreaſe of Popery and Superſtition, and the people call earneſtly to have the Laws againſt Recuſants put in Execution; Prieſts and Jeſuites ſwarm in great abundance in this Kingdom, and appear here with ſuch boldneſs and confidence, as if there were no Laws againſt them.

'That it appears unto the Houſe of Commons by proof, That of late years about the City of London, Prieſts and Jeſuites have been diſcharged out of Priſon, many of them being condemned of High Treaſon.

'They are credibly informed, That at this preſent the Pope hath a Nuntio or Agent reſident in this City, and they have a juſt cauſe to believe the ſame to be true.

'The Papiſts, as publickly, and with as much confidence and importunity reſort to Maſs at Denmark-Houſe and at St. James's, and the Embaſſadors Chappels, as others do to their Pariſh Churches: They conceive the not putting of theſe Statutes in execution againſt Prieſts and Jeſuites, is a principal cauſe of the encreaſe of Popery.

'That the putting of theſe Laws in execution, tendeth not only to the preſervation and advancement of the true Religion eſtabliſhed in this Kingdom, but alſo the ſafety of your Majeſties Perſon, 'and ſecurity of the State and Government, which were the principal cauſes of the making of the Laws againſt Prieſts and Jeſuites, as is manifeſtly declared in the Preamble of the Laws themſelves, which are the beſt Interpreters of the minds of the Makers 'of them.

'And becauſe the words being penned by the Advice and Wiſdom 'of the whole State, are much more full and clear, than any particular mans expreſſion can be; they were therefore read as they 'are vouched; thoſe of the twenty ſeventh year of Queen Elizabeth 'being thus: viz.

'That the Prieſts and Jeſuites come hither, not only to draw the 'Subjects from their true obedience to the Queen; but alſo to ſtir 'up Sedition, Rebellion and open Hoſtility within the Realm, to the 'great endangering of the ſafety of her Royal Perſon, and to the 'utter ruine, deſolation and overthrow of the whole Kingdom, if 'not timely prevented: and the tenour of the words of the third 'year of King James are in this manner: viz.

'Whereas divers Jeſuites and Prieſts do withdraw many of his 'Majeſties Subjects from the true ſervice of Almighty God, and 'the Religion eſtabliſhed within this Realm to the Romiſh Religion, 'and from their loyal obedience to his Majeſty; and have of late ſecretly perſwaded divers Recuſants and Papiſts, and encouraged and 'emboldned them to commit moſt damnable Treaſons, tending to 'the overthrow of the whole State and Common-wealth; if God of 'his goodneſs and mercy had not within few hours of the intended 'execution thereof, revealed and diſcloſed the ſame.

'The Houſes did further inform, that ſome Jeſuites and Prieſts 'had been executed in the time of Queen Elizabeth and King James 'of happy memory; and when any of them have received mercy, it 'was in ſuch a time, and upon ſuch Circumſtances, as that the ſame 'might be extended to them without danger; whereas now of late, 'there hath been a great apprehenſion of endeavours by ſome ill 'Agents to ſubvert Religion: and at this preſent both Kingdoms 'have a general expectation of a thorough reformation.

'And there is already found ſo ill a conſequence of the late Reprieve of John Goodman the Prieſt; that the Houſe of Commons 'having ſent to the Citizens of London for their aſſiſtance in the advancement of Money, for the preſent and neceſſary ſupply of his 'Majeſties Army, and the relief of the Northern Counties; upon 'this occaſion, they have abſolutely denyed to furniſh the ſame: 'and how far the like diſcontent may be effuſed into other parts of 'the Kingdom, to the interruption of the levying of the Subſidies, 'the Houſes leave to your Majeſties conſideration. It is found that Goodman the Prieſt hath been twice formerly committed and diſcharged: 'That his reſidence now about London, was in abſolute contempt of 'your Majeſties Proclamation, as the Houſes are credibly informed, 'that he hath been ſometimes a Miniſter in the Church of England, 'and conſequently is an Apoſtate: both Houſes are very ſenſible, that 'any man ſhould preſume to intercede with your Majeſty in a caſe of 'ſo high a nature.

An. 1640.

'They humbly deſire, that a ſpeedy courſe may be taken for the 'due execution of the Laws againſt the Prieſts and Jeſuites, that all 'miſchiefs before mentioned may be timely remedied by your Ma'jeſties great Wiſdom.

'And Laſtly, That Goodman the Prieſt be left to the Juſtice of 'the Law.

To which the King makes anſwer to this effect.

The Kings Anſwer.

That it was againſt his mind, that Popery or Superſtition ſhould any way encreaſe within this Kingdom; that he will reſtrain the ſame, by cauſing the Laws to be put in execution.

That he is reſolved to provide againſt Jeſuites and Papiſts, by ſetting forth a Proclamation ſpeedily, commanding them to depart the Kingdom within one Month; of which if they fail, or ſhall return, then they ſhall be proceeded againſt according to Law.

Concerning the Popes Nuntio (Roſſetti) he hath no Commiſſion, but only to retain Correſpondency between the Queen and the Pope, in things requiſite for the exerciſe of her Religion, which is warranted to her by the Articles of Marriage, which gave her a full liberty of Conſcience: yet he hath perſwaded her, that ſince the miſunderſtanding of that perſons condition gives offence, ſhe will within a time convenient remove him.

Moreover, he will take ſpecial care to reſtrain his Subjects from reſorting to Maſs at Denmark-Houſe, St. James's, and the Chappels of Embaſſadors.

Laſtly, Concerning Goodman, becauſe he will avoid the inconvenience of giving ſo great diſcontent to his people, as his mercy may produce; therefore he doth remit his particular caſe to both Houſes. But he deſired them to take into their conſiderations, the inconvenience that may upon this occaſion fall upon his Subjects, and other Proteſtants abroad; eſpecially, ſince it may ſeem to other States to be a ſeverity.

When the Author of theſe Collections came to the Preſs with this his Second Part, he had no intention to have gone further than to the third of November 1640. but finding his Collections to end as the King and his Nobles came from York after the Great Council there broke up and arrived at London immediately before the Parliament met; and finding the King in his Speech the firſt day at the opening of the Parliament, to take notice of the Proceedings at the Great Council, and at the Treaty at Rippon, the Author hath adventured to give an Account of ſome Proceedings of that Parliament during the firſt ſix Months, where many Speeches were made concerning the State and Condition of the Kingdom, and the Grievances the People had undergone: ſome of which Speeches you have at large, and Abſtracts of others of them, with ſome few Remarkable Paſſages in the Parliament during that time.

The Kings Majeſties Speech at the Opening of the Parliament at Weſtminſter, Novemb. 3. 1640.

The Kings Speech at the opening of the Parliament.

My Lords,

T*He knowledge I had of the deſires of my* Scottiſh Subjects, was the cauſe of my calling the laſt Aſſembly of Parliament: wherein had I been believed, I ſincerely think, that things had not fallen out as now we ſee. But it is no wonder, that men are ſo ſlow to believe that ſo great a Sedition ſhould be raiſed on ſo little Ground. But now my Lords and Gentlemen, the Honour and Safety of this Kingdom lying ſo near at the ſtake, I am reſolved to put my ſelf freely and clearly on the love and affection of my Engliſh Subjects, as theſe of my Lords as did wait on me at York, very well remember I there declared.

Therefore my Lords, I ſhall not mention mine own Intereſt, or that ſupport I might juſtly expect from you, till the Common ſafety be ſecured; though I muſt tell you, I am not aſhamed to ſay, thoſe Charges I have been at, have been meerly for the ſecuring and good of this Kingdom, though the ſucceſs hath not been anſwerable to my deſires: therefore I ſhall only deſire you to conſider the beſt way both for the Safety and Security of this Kingdom; wherein there are two Parts chiefly conſiderable. Firſt, The Chaſtiſing out of the Rebells; and Secondly, That other, in ſatisfying your juſt Grievances, wherein I ſhall promiſe you to concur ſo heartily and clearly with you, that all the World may ſee my Intentions have ever been and ſhall be to make this a Glorious and Flouriſhing Kingdom. There are only two things that I ſhall mention to you; Firſt, The one is to tell you, that the Loan of Money which I lately had from the City of London, wherein the Lords that waited on me at York aſſiſted me, will only maintain my Army for two Months from the beginning of that time it was granted. Now my Lords and Gentlemen, I leave it to your conſiderations, what Diſhonour and Miſchief it might be, in caſe for want of Money, my Army be disbanded before the Rebells be put out of this Kingdom. Secondly, The ſecuring the Calamities the Northern People endure at this time, and ſo long as the Treaty is on foot: And in this I may ſay, not only they, but all this Kingdom will ſuffer the harm: therefore I leave this alſo to your conſideration, for the ordering of theſe great affairs, whereof you are to treat at this time. I am ſo confident of your love to me, and that your care is for the Honour and Safety of the Kingdom, that I ſhall freely and willingly leave to you where to begin. Only this, that you may the better know the State of all the affairs, I have commanded my Lord Keeper to give you a ſhort and free Account of theſe things that have happened in this Interim, with this Proteſtation, That if this Account be not ſatisfactory as it ought to be, I ſhall whenſoever you deſire, give you a full and perfect Account of every particular. One thing more I deſire of you, as one of the greateſt means to make this a happy Parliament, That you on your parts, as I on mine, lay aſide all ſuſpicion one of another, as I promiſed my Lords at York; It ſhall not be my fault, if this be not a happy and good Parliament.

An. 1640.

The Kings Majeſties Speech in Parliament the fifth of November 1640. when he declared his Approbation of William Lenthall of Lincolns-Inn, Eſq; to be Speaker.

My Lords,

I Do expect, that you will haſtily make relation to the Houſe of Commons of thoſe great affairs for which I have called you hither at this time, and ſo the truſt I have repoſed in them; and how freely I put my ſelf on their Love and Affections at that time: And that you may know the better how to do ſo, I ſhall explain my ſelf as concerning one thing I ſpake the laſt day: I told you, that the Rebels muſt be put out of this Kingdom. Its true, I muſt needs call them ſo, ſo long as they have an Army that do invade us: And although I am under Treaty with them, and I under my Great Seal do call them my Subjects, and ſo they are too: But the State of my Affairs in ſhort is this; It's true, I did expect when I did will my Lords and Great Ones at York, to have given a Gracious Anſwer to all their Grievances; for I was in good hopes by their Wiſdoms and Aſſiſtances, to have made an end of that buſineſs. But I muſt tell you, that my Subjects of Scotland did ſo delay them, that it was not poſſible to end there: therefore I can no wayes blame my Lords that were at Rippon, that the Treaty was not ended; but muſt thank them for their pains and Induſtry: and certainly had they as much power as affections, I ſhould by that time have brought theſe diſtempers to a happy Period: ſo that now the Treaty is tranſported from Rippon to London, where I ſhall conclude nothing without your knowledge, and I doubt not but by your approbation: for I do not deſire to have this great Work done in a Corner; for I ſhall lay open all the ſteps of this Miſunderſtanding, and Cauſes of the great difference between me and my Subjects of Scotland; and I doubt not but by your aſſiſtance, to make them know their duty, and to make them return whether they will or no.

Mr. Edward Hide, Of a crying Grievance in the North.

* Mr. Edward Hide, Of a Crying Grievance in the North.

My Lords,

‘I Am commanded by the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons, to preſent to your Lordſhips a great and crying Grievance, which though it be complained of in the preſent preſſures, but by the Northern parts, yet by the Logick and conſequence of it, it is the Grievance of the whole Kingdom. The Court of the Preſident of the North, or as it is more uſually called, the Courts of York, which by the ſpirit and ambition of the Miniſters truſted there, or by the natural inclination of Courts to enlarge their own Power and Juriſdiction, hath ſo prodigiouſly broken down the Banks of the firſt Channel in which it ran, as it hath almoſt overwhelmed that Countrey under the Sea of Arbitrary power, and involved the people in a Labyrinth of diſtemper, oppreſſion and poverty.

‘My Lord of Strafford came to that Government, in December 4 Caroli, and ſince the Commiſſion hath been three ſeveral times renewed. But into that Commiſſion of the 8 and 13 years of the King's Raign, a new clauſe was inſerted for the granting, ſequeſtring and eſtabliſhing poſſeſſions according to inſtructions, which crowded in a Maſs of new exorbitant and intolerable power; our complaint is againſt this Commiſſion it ſelf, and againſt the whole body of thoſe inſtructions.

‘The ninth Inſtruction requires an obedience to ſuch Ordinances and determinations, as be or ſhall be made by the Council Table, or High Commiſſion Court. A grievance of ſo tranſcendent a nature, that your Lordſhips noble Juſtice will provide a Remedy for it, with no leſs care than you would reſcue the life and blood of the Common-Wealth. There are among them in the whole 58 inſtructions, ſcarce one that is not againſt, or beſides the Law.

‘Whether his Majeſty may cantonize out a part of his Kingdom to be tryed by Commiſſion, though according to the rules of Law, ſince the whole Kingdom is under the Laws and Government of the Court eſtabliſhed at Weſtminſter, and by this reaſon the ſeveral parts of the Kingdom may be deprived of that priviledge, will not be now the queſtion; That his Majeſty cannot by Commiſſion erect a new Court of Chancery, or a proceeding according to the rules of the Star-Chamber is moſt clear to all who have read Magna Charta, which allowed no proceedings, niſi per legale judicium Parium, & per legem terræ.

* Geo. Lord Digby, Of Grievances in the Weſt.

* He was with the King at Oxford during the War.

Geo. Lord Digby, Of Grievances in the Weſt.

Mr. Speaker,

‘YOU have received now a ſolemn account from the moſt of the Shires of England, of the ſeveral grievances and oppreſſions they ſuſtain, and nothing as yet for Dorſetſhire.

‘It's true Mr. Speaker, the County of Dorſet hath not digeſted its complaints into that formal way of Petition, which others (I ſee) have done. But the County of Dorſet have intruſted their Complaints to my Partner and my delivery of them by word of mouth, unto this Honourable Houſe, and there was given unto us in the County-Court the day of our election, a ſhort memorial of the heads of them, which was read in the hearing of the Free-holders there preſent, who all unanimouſly with one voice ſignified upon each particular, that it was their deſire, that we ſhould repreſent them to the Parliament, which with your leave I ſhall do, and theſe they are.

‘1. The great and intolerable burthen of Ship-money, touching the legality whereof they are unſatiſfied.

‘2. The many great abuſes in preſſing of Souldiers and raiſing moneys concerning the ſame.

‘3. The multitude of Monopolies.

‘4. The new Canon, and the Oath to be taken by Lawyers, Divines, &c.

‘5. The Oath required to be taken by Church-Officers, to preſent according to Articles new and unuſual.

‘Beſides this, there was likewiſe preſented to us by a very conſiderable part of the Clergy of that County, a note of remembrance containing theſe two particulars.

‘Firſt, The impoſition of a new Oath, required to be taken by all Miniſters and others: which they conceive to be illegal, and ſuch as they cannot take with a good conſcience.

‘Secondly, The requiring of a pretended benevolence, but in effect a Subſidy, under the penalty of ſuſpenſion, excommunication and deprivation, all benefit of appeal excluded.

This is all we had particularly in charge.

* Sir Jo. Culpepper, Of Grievances in Kent, Monopolies, &c.

* He was with the King at Oxford during the War.

Sir Jo. Culpepper, Of Grievances in Kent, Monopolies, &c.

Mr. Speaker,

‘I Stand not up with the Petition in my hand as others have done before me, I have it in my Mouth, and in charge from them that ſent me hither to preſent the Grievances of the County of Kent.

‘1. The great encreaſe of Papiſts by the remiſs Execution of thoſe Laws which are made to ſuppreſs them.

‘2. The intruding and countenancing of divers new Ceremonies in matters of Religion, as placing the Communion Table Altarwiſe, and bowing or cringing to or towards the ſame.

‘3. A great Grievance by the Military Charges; 1. of Coat and Conduct Money. 2. The Inhanſing of the price of Gun-Powder, whereby the Trained Bands are diſcouraged in their Exerciſing. 3. The laſt Summer was Twelve Month a Thouſand of our beſt Armes were taken from the Owners and ſent into Scotland; The Compulſory way was this, if you will not ſend your Armes you ſhall go your ſelves, this had not wont to be done to the Trained Bands, a Militia of great ſtrength and Honour, and of no charge to the King.

‘The next Grievance is the Canons, beſides the Oath &c. made by a Convocation that ended with the Parliament, yet afterwards the ſame men without any new Election were ſhuffled into a Sacred Synod, and without Parliament aſſumed unto themſelves Power to make Laws, to grant Benevolence and to meddle with our Freehold concerning the ſame.

‘The next Grievance is Ship-money, this cries aloud, it ſtrikes the Firſt-born of every Family, I mean our Inheritance. If the Laws give the King Power in any danger of the Kingdom whereof he is Judge, to impoſe what and when he pleaſe, we owe all that is left to the goodneſs of the King.

‘There is one Grievance more, but it compriſeth many, it is a neſt of Waſps or ſwarm of Vermin which have over-crept the Land, I mean the Monopolies and Pollers of the People; theſe like the Frogs of Egypt have gotten Poſſeſſion of our Dwellings, they ſup in our Cup, they dip in our Diſh, they ſit by our Fire, we find them in the Waſh-Houſe and Powdring-Tub, they ſhare with the Butler in his Box; They have Marked and Sealed us from Head to Foot, they will not abate us a pin; theſe are the Leaches that have ſucked the Common-Wealth ſo hard that it is almoſt become Hectical.

* Mr. Waller, Of Ship-money, Judges, and Intermiſſion of Parliaments.

* He was ſentenced to ſuffer death for adhering to K. Charles I.

Mr. Waller, Of Ship-money, Judges, and Intermiſſion of Parliaments.

My Lords,

'THE Articles againſt Judge Crawley you have heard read, and they have told you how theſe Brothers of the Coif are become fratres in malo, how theſe Sons of the Law have torn out the Bowels of their Mother.

'This Impoſition of Ship-money ſpringing from a pretended neceſſity, was it not enough that it was now grown Annual, but they muſt intail it upon the State for ever, at once making neceſſity inherent to the Crown, and ſlavery to the Subject? Neceſſity, which diſſolving all Law, is ſo much more prejudicial to his Majeſty, than to any of us, by how much the Law has inveſted his Royal State with a greater power, and ampler fortune; for ſo undoubted a truth it hath ever been, that Kings as well as Subjects are involved in the confuſion which neceſſity produceth.

'That this was a ſuppoſititious impoſed neceſſity, and ſuch as they could remove when they pleaſed; at the laſt Convention in Parliament, a price was ſet upon it, for twelve Subſidies you ſhall reverſe this ſentence; It may be ſaid, So much Money would have removed the preſent neceſſity; but here was a Rate ſet upon future neceſſity, For Twelve Subſidies you ſhall never ſuffer neceſſity again, you ſhall for ever aboliſh that Judgement; here this Myſtery is revealed, this viſor of neceſſity is pulled off, and now it appears this Parliment of Judges had very frankly and bountifully preſented his Majeſty with Twelve Subſidies to be Levyed on your Lordſhips, and the Commons. Certainly there is no priviledge which more properly belongs to a Parliament, than to open the Purſe of the Subject, and yet theſe Judges, who are neither capable of ſitting among us in the Houſe of Commons, nor with your Lordſhips, otherwiſe than as your aſſiſtants, have not only aſſumed to themſelves this Priviledge of Parliament, but preſumed at once to make a preſent to the Crown of all that either your Lordſhips or the Commons of England do, or ſhall hereafter poſſeſs.

'On every County a ſhip is Annually impoſed, and who would not expect, but our Seas by this time ſhould be covered with the number of our Ships; Alas, my Lords, the daily complaints of the decay of our Navy tell us how ill Ship-money hath maintained the Soveraignty of the Seas, and by many Petitions which we receive from the Wives of thoſe miſerable Captives at Algier (being between four and five thouſand of our Countreymen) it doth evidently appear that to make us ſlaves at home is not the way to keep us from being made ſlaves abroad; ſo far has this Judgement been from relieving the preſent, or preventing the future neceſſity, that as it changed our real propriety into the ſhadow of a propriety, ſo of a feigned it hath made a real neceſſity.

'Our known Diſcontents at home have been a concurrent cauſe to invite our Neighbours to viſit us ſo much to the expence and trouble of both theſe Kingdoms.

‘And here my Lords, I cannot but take notice of the moſt ſad effects of this oppreſſion, the ill influence it has had upon the ancient reputation and valour of the Engliſh Nation: and no wonder, for if it be true that oppreſſion makes a wiſe man mad, it may well ſuſpend the Courage of the Valiant. The ſame happened to the Romans, when for renown in Armes they moſt excelled the reſt of the world; the ſtory is but ſhort, 'Twas in the time of the Decemviri (and I think the chief troublers of our State may make up that number:) the Decemviri, My Lords, had ſubverted the Laws, ſuſpended the Courts of Juſtice, and (which was the greateſt grievance both to the Nobility and People) had for ſome years omitted to aſſemble the Senate, which was their Parliament; This ſayes the Hiſtorian, did not only deject the Romans, and make them deſpair of their Liberty, but cauſed them to be leſs valued by their Neighbours: The Sabines take the advantage and invaded them: and now the Decemviri are forced to call the long deſired Senate, whereof the people were ſo glad, that Hoſtibus belloque gratiam habuerunt: This aſſembly breaks up in diſcontent; nevertheleſs the war proceeds, Forces are raiſed, led by ſome of the Decemviri, and with the Sabines they meet in the Field: I know your Lordſhips expect the event; my Authors words of his Countreymen are theſe, ne quid ductu aut auſpicio Decemvirorum proſperè gereretur, vinci ſe patiebantur. They choſe rather to ſuffer a preſent Diminution of honour, than by Victory to confirm the Tyranny of their new Maſters. At their return from this unfortunate expedition, after ſome diſtempers and expoſtulations of the people, another Senate, that is a ſecond Parliament is called, and there the Decemviri are queſtioned, deprived of their Authority, impriſoned, baniſhed, and ſome loſe their lives; and ſoon after this vindication of their Liberties, the Romans by their better ſucceſs made it appear to the world, that liberty and courage dwell in the ſame breſt, and are never to be divorced. No doubt, my Lords, but your Juſtice ſhall have the like effect upon this diſpirited people; 'Tis not the reſtauration of our ancient Laws alone, but the reſtitution of our ancient Courage which is expected from your Lordſhips.

My Lords,

‘THere cannot be a greater Inſtance of a Sick and Languiſhing Common-Wealth, than the buſineſs of this day; Good God how have the Guilty theſe late years been puniſhed, when the Judges themſelves have been ſuch delinquents! 'Tis no marvel that an Irregular, Extravagant, Arbitrary Power like a Torrent hath broke in upon us, when our Banks and our Bullworks, the Laws, were in the Cuſtody of ſuch Perſons. Men who had loſt their Innocence could not preſerve their courage, nor could we look that they who had ſo viſibly undone us, themſelves ſhould have the Vertue or Credit to reſcue us from the oppreſſion of other men. 'Twas ſaid by one who alwayes ſpoke excellently, That the twelve Judges were like the twelve Lyons under the Throne of Solomon, 'under the Throne in obediences, but yet Lyons: Your Lordſhips ſhall this day hear of ſix, who (be they what they will be elſe) were no Lyons, but who upon vulgar Fears delivered up the Pretious Forts they were truſted with, almoſt without aſſault, and in a tame eaſie Trance of Flattery and Servitude, loſt and forfeited (ſhamefully forfeited) that Reputation, awe and Reverence, which the Wiſdom, Courage and Gravity of their venerable Predeceſſors had contracted and faſtned to the places they now hold.

Lord Digby, Of Frequent Parliaments.

Lord Digby, Of Frequent Parliaments.

Mr. Speaker,

'Surely there is no man but will conclude with me, that as the want of Parliaments hath been the Cauſa Cauſarum, of all the miſchiefs and diſtempers of the preſent times: ſo frequency of Parliaments is the ſole Catholick Antidote, that can preſerve and ſecure us for the future from the like danger.

'Let me yet draw my diſcourſe a little nearer to his Majeſty himſelf, and tell you that the frequency of Parliament is moſt eſſentially neceſſary to the power, the ſecurity, the Glory of the King.

'There are two wayes of powerful rule, either by fear or love, but one is of a happy and ſafe rule, that is by love.

'To which Camillus adviſed the Romans, let a Prince conſider what it is that moves a people principally to affection, and dearneſs towards their Soveraign, he ſhall ſee that there needs no other Artifice in it, than to let them enjoy unmoleſted what belongs unto them of right, and a wiſe Prince that would be happy, will fervently labour to regain Love.

* Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of frequent Parliaments.

* A Servant to K. Charles I. and Surveyor General in the Court of Wards.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of Frequent Parliaments.

'It hath been boaſted, that the King ſhould never Call a Parliament till he had no need of his people; theſe were words of Diviſion, and malignity. The King muſt alwayes according to his occaſions have uſe of his peoples power, hearts, hands, purſes. The people will alwayes have need of the Kings Clemency, Juſtice, Protection: And this reciprocation is the ſtrongeſt, the ſweeteſt Union.

'It hath been ſaid too of late, That a Parliament will take away more from the King, than they will give him. It may well be ſaid, that thoſe things which will fall away of themſelves, will enable the Subject to give him more than can be taken any way; Projects and Monopolies are but leaking Conduit-pipes; The Exchequer it ſelf at the fulleſt, is but a Ciſtern, and now a broaken one; frequent Parliaments only are the Fountain: and I do not doubt but in this Parliament, as we ſhall be free in our advices, ſo ſhall we be the more free of our Purſes, that his Majeſty may experimentally find the real difference of better Counſels, the true ſolid grounds of raiſing and eſtabliſhing his greatneſs, never to be brought again (by Gods bleſſing) to ſuch dangerous, ſuch deſperate perplexities.

Lord Digby, Of Intermiſſion and breaking of Parliaments.

‘AS it cannot be denyed, Mr. Speaker, that ſince the Conqueſt,
‘there hath not been in this Kingdom a fuller concurrence of all
‘Circumſtances, to have made a Kingdom happy, than for theſe
‘twelve years laſt paſt; ſo it is moſt certain that there hath not been
‘in all that deduction of Ages ſuch a conſpiracy (if one may ſo ‘ſay) of all the Elements of miſchief, to bring a flouriſhing King‘dom (if it were poſſible) to ſwift ruine and deſolation.

‘I will be bold to ſay (and I thank God, we have ſo good a King,
‘under whom we may ſpeak boldly of the abuſe by ill Miniſters,
‘without reflection upon his perſon) That an accumulation of all
‘the publick Grievances ſince Magna Charta, put one upon another, ‘unto that hour in which the Petition of Right paſt into an Act of ‘Parliament; would not amount to ſo oppreſſive, I am ſure not to ‘ſo deſtructive a height and magnitude, to the rights and property
‘of the Subject, as one branch of our beſlaving, ſince the Petition of ‘Right.

‘The branch I mean is the Judgement concerning Ship-money,
‘this being a true repreſentation of England in both aſpects. As for ‘unmatcht oppreſſion and enthralling of free Subjects in a time of the ‘beſt Kings Reign, and in memory of the beſt Laws enacted in favour ‘of Subjects liberty, let any man find a truer cauſe than the ruptures
‘and intermiſſion of Parliaments. Let him and him alone be againſt
‘the ſettling of an inevitable way, for the frequent holding of them.

‘’Tis true Sir, Wicked Miniſters have been the proximate cauſes
‘of our miſeries; but the want of Parliaments the primary and the ‘efficient cauſe.

‘Ill Miniſters have made ill times, but that Sir hath made ill Mi-
‘niſters.

* With the King at Oxford and ſlain at Newberry Fight.

* Lord Faulkland, Of Uniformity.

Lord Faulkland, Of Uniformity.

‘HE is a great ſtranger in Iſrael who knows not, that this King‘dom hath long laboured under many and great oppreſſions,
‘both in Religion and liberty: and his acquaintance here is not great,
‘or his ingenuity leſs who doth not both know and acknowledge, that ‘a great if not a principal cauſe of both theſe, have been ſome Bi-‘ſhops and their adherents.

‘A little ſearch will ſerve to find them to have been the deſtruction
‘of unity, under pretence of Uniformity, to have brought in Super-
‘ſtition and ſcandal, under the titles of reverence and decency, to have ‘defiled our Church by adorning our Churches, to have ſlackned the ‘ſtrictneſs of that union which was formerly between us and thoſe of ‘our Religion beyond the Sea; an action as unpolitick as ungodly.

‘We ſhall find them to have tythed Mint and Aniſe, and have ‘left undone the weightier work of the Law; to have been leſs
‘eager upon thoſe who damn our Church, than upon thoſe,
‘who, upon weak conſcience and perhaps as weak reaſons
‘(the diſlike of ſome commanded Garment, or ſome uncom‘manded poſture) only abſtained from it: Nay, it hath been more ‘dangerous for men to go to ſome Neighbours Pariſh, when they ‘had

‘had no Sermon in their own, than to be obſtinate and perpetual Recuſants; while Maſſes have been ſaid in ſecurity, a Conventicle hath been a crime, and which is yet more, the conforming to Ceremonies hath been more exacted, than the conforming to Chriſtianity; and we ſhall find them to have been like the Hen in Eſop, which laying every day an Egg, with ſuch a proportion of Barley, her Miſtris encreaſing her proportion in hopes ſhe would encreaſe her Eggs, ſhe grew ſo fat upon that addition, that ſhe never laid more: ſo though at firſt their preaching were the occaſion of their preferment, they after made their preferment the occaſion of their not Preaching.

* Mr. Bagſhaw, About Epiſcopacy.

* He was with the King at Oxford during the War.

Mr. Bagſhaw, about Epiſcopacy.

‘I Do diſtinguiſh and ſuppoſe a twofold Epiſcopacy, the firſt in Statu puro, as it was in the primitive times: the ſecond in ſtatu corrupto, as it is at this day, and is ſo intended and meant in the London-Petition. Now I hold that Epiſcopacy in this latter ſence is to be taken into conſideration, as a thing that trencheth not only upon the right and liberties of the Subject (of which I ſhall have occaſion to ſpeak hereafter) but as it is now, it trencheth upon the Crown of England in theſe four particulars, wherein I know this houſe will willingly hear me.

‘Firſt, It is maintained by the Biſhop of Exeter in a Book, which he hath writ to this purpoſe, that Epiſcopacy it ſelf, both in the office and in the Juriſdiction is, jure divino, of Divine Right; which poſition is directly contrary to the Laws of England, of which I will cite but two or three inſtead of many more. The Statute of Carliſle, 35 Ed. 1. mentioned in Caudries caſe, in the fifth report, ſaith, that the Church of England is founded in the ſtate of Prelacy by the Kings of England and their Progenitors, which likewiſe appears by the firſt Chapter in Magna Charta, in theſe words, Conceſſimus Deo & Eccleſiæ Anglicanæ omnes libertates, &c. and in the twenty fifth year of Edward 3. in the French-Roll which I have ſeen, there the Arch-Biſhop and Clergy Petition the King for their Liberties, in theſe words thus Engliſhed, That for the Reverence of God and holy Church, and of his Grace and bounty, he will confirm all thoſe liberties, priviledges and rights, granted and given by him and his Noble Progenitors, to the Church by their Charters: which plainly ſheweth, that they have their Epiſcopal Juriſdiction from the Kings of England, and not jure divino, by divine right: and this likewiſe is acknowledged by themſelves in the Statute of 37 H. 8. Cap. 17. that they have their Epiſcopal juriſdiction, and all other Eccleſiaſtical juriſdiction whatſoever ſolely and only, by, from, and under the King.

‘The ſecond thing that is trenching upon the Crown, is this, That it is holden at this day, that Epiſcopacy is inſeparable to the Crown of England; and therefore it is commonly now ſaid, no Biſhop no King, no Mitre no Scepter; which I utterly deny, for it is plain and apparent, that the Kings of England were long before Biſhops, and have a ſubſiſtence without them, and have done and may ſtill depoſe them.

‘The third is likewiſe conſiderable, as trenching upon the Crown, which is that was ſaid under the Gallery, that Epiſcopacy was a

An. 1640.

‘third Eſtate in Parliament; and therefore the King and Parliament
‘could not be without them. This I utterly deny; for there are ‘three Eſtates without them, as namely, the King, who is the firſt ‘Eſtate; the Lords Temporal the ſecond, and the Commons the ‘third; and I know no fourth Eſtate. Beſides the Kings of England
‘have had many Parliaments, wherein there have been no Biſhops
‘at all: as for example, Ed. 1. 24. of his Reign held his Parliament
‘at Edmundsbury excluſò Clerò; and in the Parliament 7 Rich. 2. cap. 3.
‘and 7 R. 2. 12. it doth appear, that they were enacted by the King,
‘with the aſſent and agreement of the Lords Temporal and Com‘mons, where the Eſtates of Parliament are mentioned, and not the ‘Clergy. Divers other Statutes might likewiſe be named to this ‘purpoſe, which I omit.

‘The fourth and laſt thing, is of the Biſhops holding of the Ec-‘cleſiaſtical Courts in their own Names, and not in the Name of the ‘King, nor by Commiſſion from him, contrary to the Statute of
‘1 Ed. 6. cap. 2. and contrary to the practice of Biſhop Ridley, *Cover-
‘dale* and Ponnet, who took Commiſſions from the King, for hold‘ing their Eccleſiaſtical Courts, as may be ſeen this day in the ‘Rolls.

‘And although it will be objected, That by a late Proclamation
‘in the year of our Lord God 1637. wherein the Opinion of the ‘Judges is mentioned, it is declared upon their Opinion, That the Act
‘of 1 Ed. 6. was repealed, and that Biſhops may now keep Courts
‘in their own Names, and ſend Proceſs under their own Seals; yet
‘it is well known, that the Statute of 1 Queen Mary, which repealed
‘the Statute of 1 Ed. 6. was it ſelf repealed by the Statute of 1 Ja‘cobi cap. 25. Whereupon it was holden upon a full debate of this ‘point in Parliament 7 Jac. which I have ſeen, That upon conſidera-
‘tion of the Statutes of 1 Jac. and 1 Eliz. cap. 1. and 8 Eliz. cap. 1.
‘that the Statute of the firſt of Edward the ſixth was revived, and
‘that Biſhops ought not to keep Courts in their own Names: ſo
‘that for theſe Reaſons ſo nearly concerning the Right of the ‘Crown of England in the point of Epiſcopacy, I am for a thorough ‘Reformation of all Abuſes and Grievances of Epiſcopacy; which ‘Reformation may perhaps ſerve the turn, without alteration of the ‘Government of England, into a form of Presbyterie, as it is in other ‘Kingdoms, of Scotland, France, Geneva and the Low Countreys;
‘which for mine own part, had I lived in theſe Kingdoms, I ſhould
‘have been of the opinion of the Proteſtant Party in point of ‘Presbyterie, &c.

Sr. Benjamin Rudyard about Church Government.

Sr. Benj. Rudyard, about Church Government.

‘CErtainly Sir, This Superintendency of eminent men, Biſhops
‘over divers Churches, is the moſt Primitive, the moſt ſpread-
‘ing, the moſt laſting Government of the Church; wherefore ‘whilſt we are earneſt to take away Innovations, let us beware we ‘bring not in the greateſt Innovation that ever was in England.

‘I do very well know, what very many do very frequently deſire:
‘But let us very well bethink our ſelves, Whether a popular Demo-
‘cratical Government of the Church (though fit for other places) will ‘be

‘be either ſuitable or acceptable to a Regal Monarchical Government of the State?

‘Every man can ſay, (it is ſo common and known a Truth) That ſuddain and great Changes both in Natural and Politick Bodies, have dangerous operations. And give me leave to ſay, That we cannot preſently ſee to the end of ſuch a conſequence, eſpecially in ſo great a Kingdom as this; and where Epiſcopacy is ſo wrapped and involved in the Laws and Life of it.

Sr. Ed. Deering about Epiſcopacy.

Sr. Ed. Deering about Epiſcopacy.

‘GIve me leave by word of mouth to interpoſe my thoughts of Gods true Religion, which is violently invaded by two ſeeming enemies; but indeed they are like Herod and Pilate, faſt friends for the deſtruction of truth: I mean the Papiſts for the one part, and our Prelating faction for the other. Between theſe two in their ſeveral progreſſes, I obſerve the concurrence of ſome few parallels, fit as I conceive to be repreſented to this honourable Houſe.

‘Firſt, With the Papiſts there is a ſevere Inquiſition, and with us (as it is uſed) there is a bitter High Commiſſion; both theſe contra fas & jus are Judges in their own caſe: yet herein their Inquiſitors are better than our High Commiſſioners: they (for ought I ever heard) do not (ſævire in ſuos) puniſh for Delinquents and Offenders, ſuch as profeſs and practiſe their Religion, according as it is eſtabliſhed by the Laws of the Land, where they live.

‘But with us, how many poor diſtreſſed Miniſters, nay, how many ſcores of them in a few years paſt have been ſuſpended, degraded and excommunicated, though not guilty of the breach of any eſtabliſhed Laws? The Petitions of many are here with us, more are coming, all their prayers are in Heaven for their redreſs: Down therefore with theſe Money-changers: they do confeſs Commutation of Penance; and I may therefore moſt juſtly call them ſo.

‘Secondly, With the Papiſts there is a myſterious artifice; I mean their Index Expurgatorius, whereby they clip the tongues of ſuch witneſſes, whoſe evidence they do not like. To theſe I parallel our late Imprimators Licenſers for the Preſs, ſo handled, that Truth is ſuppreſt, and Popiſh Pamphlets fly abroad cum privilegio: witneſs the audacious Libells againſt true Religion, written by D. C. D. D. D. P. D. M. D. S. D. S. D. R. and many more: I name no Biſhops, but I add &c. Nay, they are already grown ſo bold in this new trade, that the moſt Learned Labours of our antient and beſt Divines, muſt be new corrected and defaced with a Deliatur, by the ſupercilious Pen of my Lords young Chaplain, fit perhaps for the Technical Arts, but unfit to hold the Chair for Divinity.

‘But herein the Roman Index is better than our Engliſh Licences; they thereby do prove the current of their own eſtabliſhed Doctrines, a point of Wiſdom; but with us our Innovators by this Artifice, do alter our ſetled Doctrines: nay, they do ſuperinduce points repugnant and contrary: and this I do affirm, and can take upon my ſelf to prove.

‘One Parallel I have more, and that is this: Amongſt the Papiſts there is one acknowledged Pope, ſupream in honour over all, and in power; from whoſe Judgement there is no appeal. I confeſs

An. 1640.

'Mr. Speaker, I cannot altogether match a Pope with a Pope; yet one of the antient Titles of our Engliſh Primate, was Alterius orbis Papa; but thus far I can go (ex ore ſuo) it is in Print; he pleads fair for a Patriarchal, and for ſuch a one whoſe Judgement (he beforehand profeſſeth) ought to be final; and then I am ſure it ought to be unerring: Put theſe two together, and you ſhall find, that the final determination of a Patriarch, will want very little of a Pope; and then we may ſay, mutato nomine de te fabula narratur: he pleadeth Popeſhip under the name of a Patriarch; and I much fear the end and top of his Patriarchal plea, may be as that of Cardinal Pool his Predeceſſor, who would have two Heads, one Caput Regale, the other Caput Sacerdotale, a proud parallel to ſet up the Miter above the Crown.

'But herein I ſhall be free and clear, if one there muſt be, be it a Pope, be it a Patriarch, this I reſolve upon for mine own choice, Procul à Jove, procul à fulmine, I had rather ſerve one as far as Tyber, than to have him come to me ſo near as the Thames: a Pope at Rome will do me leſs hurt, than a Patriarch may do at Lambeth.

'I have done, and for this third Parallel, ſubmit it to the Wiſdom and Conſideration of this Grave Committee for Religion: In the mean time, I do ground my motion upon the former two, and it is this in brief.

'That you would be pleaſed to ſelect a Sub-Committee of four, ſix, eight, nine, or ten at the moſt, and to impower them for the diſcovery of the great numbers of oppreſſed Miniſters, under the Biſhops tyranny for theſe ten years laſt paſt: we have the Complaints of ſome, but more are ſilent; ſome are patient and will not complain; others are fearful and dare not; many dead, and many beyond the Seas, and cannot complain.

'And in the ſecond place, That the Sub-Committee may examine the Printers, what Books by bad Licence have been corruptly iſſued forth; and what good Books have been (like good Miniſters) ſilenced, clipped or cropped.

'The work I conceive, will not be difficult, but will quickly return into your hands, full of weight.

This is my Motion.

Sr. Benjamin Rudyard, about Epiſcopal Clergy.

Sr. Benj. Rudyard, about Epiſcopal Clergy.

Mr. Speaker,

'I Do verily believe, that there are many of the Clergy in our Church, who do think the ſimplicity of the Goſpel too mean a Vocation for them to ſerve in: They muſt have a ſpecious, pompous, ſumptuous Religion, with additionals of Temporal Greatneſs, Authority, Negotiation: notwithſtanding they all know better than I, that Fathers, School-men, Councils are againſt their mixing themſelves in Secular affairs.

'The Roman Ambition at length brings in the Roman Religion, and at laſt a haughty inſolency even againſt Supream Power it ſelf, if it be not timely and wiſely prevented.

'They have amongſt them an Apophthegm of their own making, which is, No Miter, no Scepter; when we know by dear experience, that if the Miter be once in danger, they care not to throw the Scepter after; to confound the whole Kingdom for their intereſt.

'ence,

'And Hiſtories will tell us, That whenſoever the Clergy went high, Monarchy ſtill went lower; if they could not make the Monarch the Head of their own Faction, they will be ſure to make him leſs: Witneſs one example for all, the Popes working the Emperour out of Italy.

'Some of ours, as ſoon as they are Biſhops, adepto fine ceſſat Motus, they will preach no longer; their Office then is to Govern. But in my opinion they govern worſe than they preach, though they preach not at all; for we ſee to what paſs their Government hath brought us.

A Branch of the Lord Digby's Speech about Epiſcopacy.

Lord Digby, about Epiſcopacy.

Mr. Speaker,

'I Know it is a tender ſubject I am to ſpeak of, wherein I believe ſome within theſe Walls, are engaged with earneſtneſs in contrary opinions to mine; and therefore it will be neceſſary, that in the firſt place I beſeech the patience of this Houſe, that they will be pleaſed to hear me without interruption, though ſomewhat I ſay ſhould chance to be diſpleaſing; I hope there will be ſomewhat from me ere I conclude, that may be of ſervice to this Houſe.

Sir, If I thought there were no further deſign in the deſires of ſome, that this London Petition ſhould be committed, than meerly to make uſe of it as an Index of Grievance, I ſhould wink at the faults of it, and not much oppoſe it.

'There is no man within theſe Walls, more ſenſible of the heavy Grievance of Church Government, than my ſelf; nor whoſe affections are more keen to the clipping of thoſe wings of the Prelates, whereby they have mounted to ſuch inſolencies, nor whoſe zeal is more ardent to the ſearing them, ſo as that they may never ſpring again.

'But having reaſon to believe, that ſome aim at a total extirpation of Biſhops, which is againſt my heart, and that the committing of this Petition may give countenance to that deſign, I cannot reſtrain my ſelf from labouring to divert it, or at leaſt, to ſet ſuch notes upon it, as may make it ineffectual to that end.

'Truly Sir, When this Petition was firſt brought into the Houſe, I conſidered it in its nature, in the manner of the delivery of it in the preſent conjuncture of affairs, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, to be a thing of the higheſt conſequence that any Age hath preſented to a Parliament, and the ſame thoughts I have of it ſtill.

'I profeſs I looked upon it then with terrour, as upon a Comet or Blazing Star, raiſed and kindled out of the ſtench, out of the poyſonous exhalation of a corrupted Hierarchy: Methought the Comet had a terrible tail with it, Sir, and pointed to the North; the ſame fears dwell with me ſtill concerning it, (and I beſeech God they may not prove Prophetical:) I fear all the prudence, all the forecaſt, all the vertue of this Houſe, how unitedly ſoever collected, how vigorouſly applyed, will have a hard work of it. Yet to hinder this Meteor from cauſing ſuch Diſtempers and Combuſtions by ‘his influence, as it then portended by its appearance; whatever ‘the event be, I ſhall diſcharge my Conſcience againſt it, freely ‘and uprightly, as unbyaſt by popularity, as by any Court reſpects, &c.

Of Epiſcopacy Jure Divino, yet perhaps formalized by the Apoſtles.

A Branch of the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury his Letter to D. Hall Biſhop of Exeter.

THe reſt of your Lordſhips Letter is fitter to be anſwered by my own hand, and ſo you have it; and ſince you are pleaſed ſo worthily and Brother-like to acquaint me with the whole Plot of your intended work, and to yield it up to my Cenſure and better Advice (ſo you are pleaſed to write) I do not only thank you heartily for it, but ſhall in the ſame Brotherly way, and with equal freedom put ſome few Animadverſions, ſuch as occurr on the ſuddain, to your further conſideration, aiming at nothing but what you do, the Perfection of the work, in which ſo much is concerned.

And firſt for Mr. George Graham, I leave you free to work upon his buſineſs and his ignorance as you pleaſe, aſſuring my ſelf, that you will not depart from the gravity of your ſelf, or the cauſe therein. Next you ſay in the firſt Head, That Epiſcopacy is an Antient, Holy and Divine Inſtitution. It muſt needs be Antient and Holy, if Divine: Would it not be more full, went it thus? So Antient as that it is of Divine Inſtitution. Then you define Epiſcopacy by being joyned with Imparity, and Superiority of Juriſdiction: this ſeems ſhort, for every Arch-Presbyters, or Arch-Deacons place is ſo; yea, and ſo was Mr. Henderſon in his Chair at Glaſgow; unleſs you will define it by a diſtinction of Order: I draw the Superiority not from that Juriſdiction which is attributed to Biſhops Jure Poſitivo, in their Audience of Eccleſiaſtical Matters, but from that which is Intrinſecal and Original in the Power of Excommunication.

Since they challenge their Presbyterian Fiction to be Chriſts Kingdom and Ordinance (as your ſelf expreſſeth) and caſt out Epiſcopacy as oppoſite to it, we muſt not uſe any Mincing terms, but unmask them plainly: nor ſhall I ever give way to hamper our ſelves for fear of ſpeaking plain truth, though it be againſt Amſterdam or Geneva: and this muſt be ſadly thought on. Concerning your Poſtulata, I ſhall pray you to allow me the like freedom: among which, the two firſt are true; but (as expreſt) too Reſtrictive: for Epiſcopacy is not ſo to be aſſerted to Apoſtolical Inſtitution, as to bar it from looking higher, and from fetching it Materially and Originally in the ground and intention of it, from Chriſt himſelf; though perhaps the Apoſtles Formalized it. And here give me leave a little to enlarge. The Adverſaries of Epiſcopacy are not only the furious Aerian Hereticks (out of which are now raiſed Prynne, Baſtwick and our Scottiſh Maſters) but ſome alſo of a Milder and Subtiller alloy, both in the Genevian and Roman Faction; and it will become the Church of England ſo to vindicate it againſt the furious Puritans, as that we lay it not open to be wounded by either of the other two, more Cunning and more Learned Adverſaries. Not to the Roman Faction; for that will be content it ſhall be Juris Divini Mediati, by, from, for and under the Pope; that ſo the Government of the Church may be Monarchical in him; but not Immediati, which makes the Church Ariſtocratical in the Biſhops. This is the Italian Rock, not the Genevian; for that will not deny Epiſcopacy to be Juris Divini; ſo you will take it ut Suadentis vel Approbantis, but not Imperantis; for then they may take and leave as they will, which is that they would be at.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, About Religion.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, About Religion.

‘WE are here aſſembled to do Gods buſineſs and the Kings, in which our own is included, both as we are Chriſtians, and as we are Subjects: Let us firſt fear God, then ſhall we honour the King the more: for I am afraid we have been the leſs proſperous in Parliaments, becauſe we have preferred other matters before him: Let Religion be our Primum quærite, for all things elſe are but terrena in reſpect of it; yet we may have them too, ſooner and ſurer, if we give God his precedence.

‘We well know what diſturbance hath been brought upon the Church, for vain and petty trifles. (How the whole Church, the whole Kingdom hath been troubled where to place a Metaphor, an Altar. We have ſeen Miniſters, their Wives, Children and Families undone againſt Law, againſt Conſcience, againſt all Bowels of Compaſſion, about not dancing upon Sundays. What do theſe ſort of men think will become of themſelves, when the Maſter of the Houſe ſhall come, and find them thus beating their fellow ſervants? Theſe inventions were but ſives made of purpoſe to winnow the beſt men, and that's the Devils occupation; They have a mind to worry preaching; for I never yet heard of any but diligent preachers that were vext with theſe and the like devices.) They deſpiſe Prophecie, and as one ſaid, they would fain be at ſomething like the Maſs, that will not bite, (a muzzled Religion.) They would evaporate and diſpirit the power and vigour of Religion, by drawing it out into ſolemn ſpecious formalities, into obſolete, antiquated Ceremonies, new furbiſhed up.

* Mr. Grimſton, About Biſhops Juriſdiction.

Mr. Grimſton, About Biſhops Juriſdiction.

Mr. Speaker,

‘THere hath been ſince the laſt Parliament a Synod, and in that Synod a New Oath hath been made and framed, and enjoyned to be taken.

‘They might as well have made a new Law, and enjoyned the Execution of that, as enjoyned and urged the taking of the Oath not being Eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament; and in point of miſchief, the ſafety of the Common-Wealth, and the freedom and Liberties of the Subject, are more concerned in the doing of the one, than if they had done the other.

‘The next exception I ſhall take to it, is to the matter contained in the Oath it ſelf.

‘They would have us at the very firſt daſh ſwear in a damnable Hereſie, that matters neceſſary to ſalvation are contained in the Diſcipline of the Church.

‘Whereas Mr. Speaker, it hath ever been the tenet of our Church, that all things neceſſary to ſalvation are comprehended and contained in the Doctrine of our Church only. And that hath alwayes been uſed as an argument, until this very preſent, againſt ‘Antidiſciplinarians, to ſtop their mouths withal; and that for that reaſon they might with the leſs regret and offence, confirm and ſubmit themſelves to the Diſcipline of our Church.

‘And for Prevention, in caſe the Wiſdom of the State in this great Council, ſhould at any time think fit to alter any thing in the Government of our Church, they would Anticipate and Foreſtall our Judgements by making us ſwear before-hand, that we would never give our conſent to any alteration.

‘Nay Mr. Speaker, they go a little further, for they would have us ſwear, that the Government of the Church by Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Deans, Arch-Deacons, &c. is Jure Divino: their words are, as of right it ought to ſtand. Whereas Mr. Speaker, we meet not with an Arch-Biſhop, or a Dean, or an Arch-Deacon in all the New-Teſtament: and whatſoever may be ſaid of the Function of Biſhops is one thing, but for their Juriſdiction it is meerly Humana inſtitutione, and they muſt thank the King for it.

‘As for their groſs, abſurd &c. wherein they would have men ſwear they know neither what, nor how many fathom deep, there is neither Divinity nor Charity in it, and yet they would put that upon us.

‘What they meant and intended by this New Oath, and their Book of Canons, and their Book of Articles, which they would have our Church-Wardens ſworn unto, to Enquire of, and to preſent thereupon, I muſt confeſs I know not, unleſs they had a purpoſe therein to blow up the Proteſtant Religion, and all the Faithful Profeſſors of it, and to advance their Hierarchy a ſtep higher, which I ſuppoſe we all fear is high enough already.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of the King and Kingdoms buſineſs.

Mr. Speaker,

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of the King and Kingdoms buſineſs.

‘NOW to the Kings buſineſs more particularly, which indeed is the Kingdoms; for one hath no exiſtence, no being without the other, their relation is ſo near; yet ſome have ſtrongly and ſubtilly laboured a divorce, which hath been the very bane of both King and Kingdom.

‘When Foundations are ſhaken, it is high time to look to the building: he hath no heart, no head, no ſoul, that is not moved in his whole man to look upon the diſtreſſes, the miſeries of the Common-Wealth, that is not forward in all that he is, and hath, to redreſs them in a right way.

‘The King likewiſe is reduced to great ſtraights, wherein it were undutifulneſs beyond inhumanity to take advantage of him: Let us rather make it an advantage for him, to do him beſt ſervice when he hath moſt need, Not to ſee our own good, but in him and with him, elſe we ſhall commit the ſame crimes our ſelves, which we muſt condemn in others.

Lord Faulkland, Of Ill Counſellours about the King.

Lord Faulkland, Of Ill Counſellors about the King.

‘IT hath often been ſaid, and I think can never be too often repeated, That the Kings of England can do no wrong; but though they could, yet Princes have no part in the ill of thoſe actions which their Judges aſſure them to be juſt, nor in what their Counſellours ſay are prudent, nor in what their Divines ſay are conſcientious, if they miſlead the King.

‘This conſideration leadeth me to that which is more neceſſary at this ſeaſon, than any farther laying open of our miſeries; that is the way to the remedy, by ſeeking to remove from our Soveraign ſuch unjuſt Judges, ſuch pernicious Counſellors, and ſuch diſconſcientious Divines, as have of late years by their wicked practiſes, provoked aſperſions upon the Government of the moſt gracious and beſt of Kings.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of Evil Miniſters of State.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of Evil Miniſters of State.

Mr. Speaker,

‘HIS Majeſty is wiſer than thoſe that have adviſed him, and therefore he cannot but ſee and feel their ſubverting deſtructive Counſels, which ſpeak lowder than I can ſpeak of them: for they ring a doleful deadly knell over the whole Kingdom. His Majeſty beſt knows who they are: for us let the matter bolt out the men; their actions diſcover them.

‘They are men that talk largely of the King's Service, have done none but their own, and that's too evident.

‘They ſpeak highly of the King's power, but they have made it a miſerable power, that produceth nothing but weakneſs, both to the King and Kingdom.

‘They have exhauſted the King's Revenue to the bottom, and beyond.

‘They ſpent vaſt ſumms of money waſtefully, fruitleſly, dangerouſly, ſo that more money without other Counſels will be but a ſwift undoing.

‘They have alwayes peremptorily purſued one obſtinate pernicious courſe: firſt they bring things to an extremity, then they make that extremity of their own making, the reaſon of their next action, ſeven times worſe than the former, and at this paſs we are at this inſtant.

‘They have almoſt ſpoiled the beſt inſtituted Government in the world, for Soveraignty in a King, liberty to the Subject; the proportionable temper of both which, makes the happieſt State for power, for riches, for duration.

‘They have unmannerly and ſlubberingly caſt all their Projects, all their Machinations upon the King, which no wiſe or good Miniſter of State ever did, but would ſtill take all harſh, diſtaſteful things upon themſelves, to clear, to ſweeten their Maſter.

‘They have not ſuffered his Majeſty to appear unto his people in his own native goodneſs, but they have eclipſed him by their interpoſition: although groſs condenſe bodies may obſcure, and hinder the Sun from ſhining out, yet is he ſtill the ſame in his own ſplendour. And when they are removed, all Creatures under him are directed by his light, comforted by his beams: But they have framed a ſuperſtitious ſeeming Maxime of State for their own turn; That if a King will ſuffer men to be torn from him, he ſhall never have any good ſervice done him; when the plain truth is, that this is the ſureſt way to preſerve a King from having ill ſervants about him. And the Divine truth likewiſe is, Take away the wicked from the King, and his Throne ſhall be eſtabliſhed.

‘Mr. Speaker, I confeſs I have now gone in a way much againſt my nature and ſomewhat againſt my cuſtome heretofore uſed in this place. But the deplorable diſmal condition both of Church and State, have ſo far convinced my judgment, as it hath wrought upon my diſpoſition; yet am I not vir ſanguinis; I love no mans ruine; I thank God I neither hate any mans perſon, nor envy any mans fortune; only I am zealous of a thorow Reformation in a time that exacts, that extorts it. Which I humbly beſeech this Houſe may be done with as much lenity, as much moderation, as the publick ſafety of the Kingdom can poſſibly admit.

Lord Digby, Of Triennial Parliaments.

‘WHat Friendſhip, what Union can there be ſo comfortable, ſo happy, as between a Gracious Soveraign and his people? and what greater misfortune can there be to both, than for them to be kept from entercourſe, from the means of clearing miſunderſtandings, from interchange of mutual benefits?

‘The People of England cannot open their ears, their hearts, their mouths, nor their purſes to his Majeſty, but in Parliament.

‘We can neither hear him, nor complain, nor acknowledge, nor give.

‘But a Bill for a Trienial Parliament is the ſole Key that can open the way to a frequency of thoſe reciprocal endearments, which muſt make and perpetuate the happineſs of the King and Kingdom.

‘Let no man object any derogation from the King's prerogative by it. We do but preſent the Bill, 'tis to be made a Law by him, his honour, his power, will be as conſpicuous, in commanding at once that a Parliament ſhall aſſemble every third year, as in commanding a Parliament to be called this or that year; there is more of his Majeſty in ordaining primary and univerſal cauſes, than in the actuating particularly of ſubordinate effects.

‘I doubt not, but that glorious King Edward the third, when he made thoſe Laws for the yearly calling of a Parliament, did it with a right ſenſe of his dignity and honour.

‘The Kings of England never appear in their glory, in their ſplendour, in their Majeſtick Soveraignty, but in Parliaments.

'Where is the power of impoſing Taxes? where is the power of 'reſtoring from incapacities? where is the legiſlative Authority? 'in the King, but how? in the King circled in, fortified and ſurrounded by his Parliament.

'The King out of Parliament hath a limited and circumſcribed juriſdiction, but waited on by his Parliament, no Monarch of the Eaſt 'is ſo abſolute in diſpelling grievances.

'Mr. Speaker, In chaſing ill Miniſters we do but diſſipate Clouds 'that may gather again, but in voting this Bill for a Parliament every 'three years, we ſhall contribute, as much as in us lyes, to the perpetuating our Sun, our Soveraign, in his Vertical, in his Noon-day 'luſtre.

The Barons refuſe to Impoſe any Fine, 'they had no power to do that, he muſt Treat with certain Commiſſioners appointed for that purpoſe, and Compound with them; 'Your Lordſhips have not met in the ſame men ſuch contradictions 'of crimes; who would ſuſpect the ſame men in one charge, to 'have the mettle to Uſurp the Power, and Exerciſe the Juriſdiction 'of the Higheſt Court, the Court of Parliament, and preſently to 'want the ſpirit to do that which was ſo Reſtrained and Peculiar 'to their places to have done, as that none elſe could do it? They 'had no power to Fine! as if the ſole buſineſs of ſworn Judges 'in a Court of Law, were to ſummon and call men thither, and 'then to ſend them on Errands to other Commiſſioners for Juſtice.

An. 1640.

'The Commiſſions in Edw. 1. time granted to Tiptoffe and others, were and have been to compound with thoſe, who deſired to compound, not otherwiſe; they had no power to Compel any, to Fine any; that truſt by the Law was and is only in the Judges: ſo that if this Duty were a Right to his Majeſty, and the perſons Lyable refuſe to compound, for ought theſe Judges can do, the King muſt loſe his Duty, they can impoſe no Fine, only they have found a trick, which they call the Courſe of the Court (to make his Majeſty a ſaver) Appear while you will, Plead what you will, ſubmit to the mercy of the Court, Iſſues ſhall go on ſtill, as if you did neither, till you have done ſomewhat the Court will not order you to do, nor is bound to take notice of when you have done: Your Lordſhips will help us out of this Circle, and that you may ſee how incapable they are of any excuſe in this point, the very Mittimus out of the Chancery gives them expreſs command among other things, Vt fines omnium illorum qui juxtà Proclamationem prædict. Ordinem ante prædict. diem ſuſcepiſſe debuerunt, capiatis, &c. 'Tis only worth your Lordſhips obſervation, this misfortune commonly attends (and may it ever) thoſe abſolute Diſuſed Rights, that be the thing in it ſelf in a degree Lawful, the Adviſers and Miniſters of it ſo fail in the Execution, that as it uſually proves as grievous to the Subject, ſo by ſome circumſtances it proves as Penal to the Inſtruments, as if it were in the very nature of the thing againſt all the Laws of Government.

Lord Digby, of the Convocation and the Oath with an &c.

'COncerning the Acts of that Reverend new Synod, made of an old Convocation, Doth not every Parliament mans heart riſe, to ſee the Prelates thus uſurp to themſelves the grand Preheminence of Parliament? The granting of Subſidies, and that under ſo prepoſterous a name as of a Benevolence, for that which is a Malevolence indeed; a Malevolence I am confident in thoſe that granted it againſt Parliaments: and a Malevolence ſurely in thoſe that refuſe it, againſt thoſe that granted it; for how can it inſinuate leſs? when they ſee wreſted from them what they are not willing to part with, under no leſs a penalty, than the loſs both of Heaven and Earth: of Heaven by excommunication; and of the Earth by deprivation; and this without redemption by appeal. What good Chriſtian can think with patience on ſuch an enſnaring Oath, as that which is by the new Canons enjoyned to be taken by all Miniſters, Lawyers, Phyſicians, Graduates in the Univerſities? where beſides the ſwearing ſuch an impertinence, as that things neceſſary to ſalvation are contained in Diſcipline, beſides the ſwearing thoſe to be of Divine Right, which amongſt the learned was never pretended to, as the Arch things in our Hierarchy: Beſides, the ſwearing not to conſent to the change of that, which the State may upon great reaſon think fit to alter: beſides the bottomleſs perjury of an &c. Beſides all this, men muſt ſwear that they ſwear freely and voluntarily what they are compelled unto: and laſtly, that they ſwear that Oath in the literal ſence, whereof no two of the makers themſelves, that I have heard of, could ever agree in the underſtanding.

Mr. Grimſton; Of Synods, Convocation, and the Oath &c.

Mr. Grimſton, Of Synods, Convocation, and the Oath &c.

Mr. Speaker,

‘They have in this Synod granted a Benevolence, but the nature of the things agrees not with the name, for in plain Engliſh it is ſix Subſidies to be paid by the Clergy in ſix years, and the Penalty they have impoſed upon the refuſers for non-payment, is to be deprived of their Functions, to be ſtript of their Free-hold, and to be Excommunicated: and this Act of their Synod is not Publiſhed amongſt their Canons, for which they might have ſome colourable ſeeming Authority; but it comes out in a Book alone by it ſelf in the Latine Tongue, ſuppoſing (as I conceive) that Laymen are as ignorant as they would have them; and thus they think they dance in a Net.

‘And as in this, ſo in moſt of their new Canons, if they be throughly conſidered, any judicious man may eaſily diſcern and perceive, that they do therein like Water-men that look one way and Row another, they pretend one thing, but intend nothing leſs; and certainly Mr. Speaker, in this they have flown to a high pitch, for a Synod called together upon a pretence of reconciling and ſettling Controverſies and matters in Religion, to take upon them the boldneſs thus out of Parliament to grant Subſidies, and to meddle with mens Free-holds; I dare ſay the like was never heard of before, and they that durſt do this will do worſe, if the currant of their raging Tyranny be not ſtopt in time.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, About Puritans.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, About Puritans.

‘A Romaniſt hath bragged, and congratulated in print, That the face of our Church begins to alter, the language of our Religion to change. And Sancta Clara hath publiſhed, That if a Synod were held non intermixtis Puritanis, ſetting Puritans aſide, our Articles and their Religion would ſoon be agreed. They have ſo brought it to paſs, that under the name of Puritans, all our Religion is branded, and under a few hard words againſt Jeſuites, all Popery is countenanced.

‘Whoſoever ſquares his actions by any rule, either divine or humane, he is a Puritan, whoſoever would be governed by the Kings Laws, he is a Puritan.

‘Their great work, their maſter-piece now, is, To make all thoſe of the Religion to be the ſuſpected party of the Kingdom. If we ſecure our Religion, we ſhall cut off and defeat many Plots, that are now on foot by them and others. Believe it Sir, Religion hath been for a long time, and ſtill is, the great deſign upon this Kingdom; it is a known and practiſed principle, That they who would introduce another Religion into the Church, muſt firſt trouble and diſorder the Government of the State, that ſo they may work their ends in a confuſion which now lyes at the door.

'Let me appeal to all thoſe that were preſent in this Houſe, at the agitation of the Petition of Right, and let them tell themſelves truly, of whoſe promotion to the management of affairs do they think, the generality would at that time have had better hopes, than of Mr. Noy and Sr. T. Wentworth? both having been at that time, and in that buſineſs, as I have heard, moſt keen and active Patriots; and the latter of them, the firſt mover and inſiſter to have this Clauſe added to the Petition of Right, That for the comfort and ſafety of his Subjects, his Majeſty would be pleaſed to declare his will and pleaſure, and that all his Miniſters ſhould ſerve him, according to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm.

'And to whom now can all the Inundations upon our Liberties under pretence of Law, and the late ſhipwrack at once of all our property, be attributed more, than to Noy? And thoſe and all other miſchiefs, whereby this Monarchy hath been brought almoſt to the brink of deſtruction, ſo much to any, as to that grand Apoſtate to the Common-wealth, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland?

Mr. Grimſton, concerning the Parliament which met in April 1640.

Mr. Grimſton, Concerning the Parliament which met at Weſtminſter, April 1640.

Mr. Speaker,

'These Petitions which have been now read, they are all Remonſtrances of the General and Univerſal Grievances and Diſtempers that are now in the State and Government of the Church and Common-wealth: and they are not them alone, but his Majeſties Gracious Expreſſions the firſt day of Parliament, that call me up to ſpeak at this preſent, contrary to my own intentions.

'His Majeſty who is the Head of the Body Politick, and the Father of the Common-wealth, hath firſt complained, declaring his ſenſibleneſs of our ſufferings; and amongſt other things, hath put us in mind of our Grievances, and hath freely left it to our ſelves (for our Redreſs and Repair therein) to begin and end, as we ſhall think fit. And this draws me on with much cheerfulneſs and zeal, to contribute my poor Endeavours to ſo great a Work.

'I conceive it will not be altogether impertinent, for your Direction and Guidance in that great place, which by the favour of his Majeſty and the Houſe you now poſſeſs, a little to recollect our ſelves, in the Remembrance of what was done the laſt Parliament, and where we ended.

'It will likewiſe be very conſiderable what hath been done ſince that Parliament; and who they are that have been the Authors and Cauſers of all our Miſeries and Diſtractions, both before and ſince.

‘Mr. Speaker, The laſt Parliament as ſoon as the Houſe was ſetled, a Subſidiary Aid and Supply was propounded, and many Arguments uſed to give the Precedency before all other Matters and Conſiderations whatſoever.

‘On the other ſide, a multitude of Complaints and Grievances of all ſorts, as well concerning our Eternal as our Temporal Eſtates, were preſented and put in the other Ballance; the Wiſdom of the great Council weighing both indifferently; and looking not only upon the dangers then threatned from Scotland (which are now upon us) but likewiſe taking into their Conſideration, the Condition and Conſtitution of the preſent Government here at home, concluded that they were in no capacity to give, unleſs their Grievances were firſt redreſſed and removed.

‘It then was, and ſtill is, moſt Manifeſt and Apparent, that by ſome Judgements lately obtained in Courts of Juſtice, and by ſome new wayes of Government lately ſtarted up amongſt us, the Law of Property is ſo much ſhaken, that no man can ſay, he is Maſter of any thing; but all that we have, we hold as Tenants by Courteſie, and at Will, and may be ſtript of it at pleaſure.

‘Yet we were deſirous to give his Majeſty all poſſible Satisfaction and Contentment, as well in the manner of Supply for Expedition, as in the ſubſtance and matter of it: we confined and limited our ſelves but to three particulars only, and to ſuch matters as properly and naturally ſhould have Reference and Relation to thoſe three Heads.

‘1. The firſt was, The Priviledges of Parliament.
‘2. The ſecond, Matters of Religion.
‘3. The third, The Propriety of our Goods and Eſtates.

‘And we began with the firſt, as the great Ark, in which the other two, Religion and Property are included and preſerved.

‘Mr. Speaker, The Violations complained of the laſt Parliament, touching our Priviledges, were of two ſorts: either ſuch as had been done in Parliament, or out of Parliament.

‘Concerning the Violations of the firſt ſort, it was Reſolved by Vote, That the Speaker refuſing to put a Queſtion, being thereunto required by the Houſe, or to Adjourn the Houſe upon any Command whatſoever, without the Conſent and Approbation of the Houſe it ſelf, were Breaches and Violations that Highly Impeached our Priviledges.

Sr. Benjamin Rudyard, of the Vertical Point.

Sir Benj. Rudyard, Of the Vertical Point.

'HIs Majeſty hath clearly and freely put himſelf into the hands of this Parliament; and I preſume there is not a man in this Houſe, but feels himſelf advanced in this high truſt; but if he proſper no better in our hands, than he hath done in theirs, who have hitherto had the handling of his affairs, we ſhall for ever make our ſelves unworthy of ſo gracious a confidence.

'I have often thought and ſaid, that it muſt be ſome great extremity, that would recover and rectifie this State; and when that extremity did come, it would be a great hazard, whether it might prove a remedy, or ruine. We are now Mr. Speaker, upon that Vertical Point, and therefore it is no time to palliate; for this will but foment and haſten our own undoing.

* Mr. Denzill Hollis created a Baron by King Charles the ſecond, & ſent Embaſſadour into France.

* Mr. Hollis, about the Integrity of a Judge.

Mr. Hollis, About the Integrity of a Judge.

My Lords,

'THeſe Gentlemen have repreſented unto your Lordſhips, the ſad object of Juſtice perverted, Liberty oppreſſed, of Judgement turned into Wormwood; the Laws, which ſhould be the barrs of our Gates, to protect us, keep us, and all that is ours in ſafety, made weak and impotent, to betray us unto the hands of violence, inſtead of props to ſupport us; become broken reeds to deceive us, and run into our ſides when we lean upon them, even ſo many ſnares to entrap and entangle us.

'And all this by the perfidiouſneſs of thoſe who are entruſted with our Laws, who call themſelves the Guardians and Interpreters of the Law: but by their accurſed gloſſes have confounded the Text, and made it ſpeak another language and another ſenſe, than ever our Anceſtors the Law-makers intended.

'But what honour then is he worthy of, who meerly for the publick, hath ſuffered himſelf to be diveſted and deprived of his particular intereſt; ſuch a Judge, as would loſe his place, rather than do that which his Conſcience told him was prejudicial to the Common-wealth, Is not he worthy of double honour?

'And this did that Worthy Reverend Judge, the Chief Judge of England at that time, Sr. Randol Crew, becauſe he would not, by ſubſcribing, countenance the Loan in the firſt year of the King, contrary to his Oath and Conſcience, he drew upon himſelf the diſpleaſure of ſome great perſons about his Majeſty, who put on that Project, which was afterwards condemned by the Petition of Right, in the Parliament of Tertio, as unjuſt and unlawful, and by that means he loſt his place of Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, and hath theſe fourteen years, by keeping his innocency, loſt the profit of that Office, which upon a juſt calculation, in ſo long a revolution of time, amounts to 26000 l. or thereabouts.

'He kept his innocency, when others let theirs go; when himſelf and Common-wealth were alike deſerted, which raiſes his merit to a higher pitch: For to be honeſt when every body elſe is honeſt, when honeſty is in faſhion, and is Trump (as I may ſay) is nothing ſo meritorious: but to ſtand alone in the breach, to own honeſty when others dare not do it, cannot be ſufficiently applauded, nor ſufficiently rewarded. And that did this good old man do, in a time of general deſertion, he preſerved himſelf pure and untainted.

My Lords, The Houſe of Commons are therefore Suiters unto your Lordſhips, to joyn with them in the repreſentation of this good mans caſe unto his Majeſty, and humbly to beſeech his Majeſty to be ſo good and gracious unto him, as to give him ſuch honour, (the quality of this caſe conſidered) as may be a noble mark of Soveraign Grace and Favour, to remain to him and his poſterity, and may be in ſome meaſure a proportionable compenſation for the the great loſs he hath with ſo much patience and reſolution ſuſtained.

The Lord Andever, concerning the Star-Chamber.

The Lord Andever, Concerning the Star-Chamber.

My Lords,

'Since your Lordſhips have already looked ſo far into Priviledges of Peers, as to make a ſtrict Inquiſition upon Foreign Honors: let us not deſtroy that among our ſelves, which we deſire to preſerve from Strangers.

'And if this Grievance I ſhall move againſt, have ſlept till now; it is very conſiderable, leſt cuſtom make it every day more apparent than other: your Lordſhips very well know, there was a Statute framed 3 Hen. 7. authorizing the Chancellor, Treaſurer and Privy Seal, and the two Chief Juſtices, calling to them one Biſhop, and a Temporal Lord of the Kings Council, to receive Complaints upon Bill of Information, and Cite ſuch parties to appear as ſtand accuſed of any Miſdemeanour; and this was the Infancy of the Star-Chamber: but afterwards the Star-Chamber was by Cardinal Woolſey 8 H. 8. raiſed to mans eſtate: from whence (being now altogether unlimited) it is grown a Monſter, and will hourly produce worſe effects, unleſs it be reduced by that hand which laid the foundation: for the Statutes that are ratified by Parliament, admit of no other than a repeal.

'Therefore I offer humbly unto your Lordſhips theſe enſuing Reaſons, why it ſhould be repealed.

'Firſt, The very words of the Statute clearly ſhew, that it was a needleſs Inſtitution; for it ſayes, They who are to Judge, can proceed with no Delinquent otherwiſe than if he were convicted of the ſame crime by due proceſs of Law.

'And do your Lordſhips hold this a rational Court, that ſends us to the Law, and calls us to the Law, and calls us back from it again?

An. 1640.

'Secondly, Divers Judicatories confound one another, & in 'peſſima republica plurimæ leges.

'The ſecond Reaſon is, from Circumſtance, or rather à conſuetu- 'dine; and of this there are many examples both domeſtick and 'foreign: but more particularly, by the Parliaments of France ab- 'breviated into a ſtanding Committee by Philip the King, and conti- 'nued according to his inſtitution until Lewis the Eleventh came to 'the Crown, who being a Subtil Prince, buried the Volume in the 'Epitome: for to this day, when ever the three Eſtates are called, 'either at the death of the old King, or to Crown the new, it is a 'common Proverb, Allons voire le van des eſtates. My Lords, Arbi- 'trary Judgements deſtroy the Common Laws, and in them the two 'great Charters of the Kingdom; which being once loſt, we have 'nothing left but the Name of Liberty.

'Then the laſt Reaſon is, (though it was the firſt Cauſe of my 'ſtanding up) the great Eclipſe it hath ever been to the whole No- 'bility; for who are ſo frequently vexed there, as Peers and Noble- 'men? and notwithſtanding their Appeal to this Aſſembly is ever 'good, whilſt that famous Law of the 4 Ed. 3. remains in force for 'the holding of a Parliament once a year, or more if occaſion require: 'yet who durſt a year ago mention ſuch a Statute, without the in- 'curring the danger of Mr. * Kilverts perſecution? Therefore I 'ſhall humbly move your Lordſhips, that a ſelect Committee of a 'few may be named to conſider of the Act of Parliament it ſelf, and 'if they ſhall think it of as great prejudice as I do, that then the 'Houſe of Commons in the moſt uſual manner may be made ac- 'quainted with it either by Bill or Conference; who alſo happily 'think it a burthen to the Subject; and ſo when the whole body of 'Parliament ſhall joyn in one Supplication, I am confident his Ma- 'jeſty will deſire that nothing ſhall remain in force, which his peo- 'ple do not willingly obey.

* An Informer and Proſecutor in that Court.

THE Barons of the Exchequer being charged for not doing Juſtice to Mr. Rolls and other Merchants of London, who had their Goods ſeiſed upon in November 4 Car. by the Officers of the Cuſtom-Houſe, for refuſing to pay the Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage. And having ſued out a Writ of Replevin directed to the Sheriffs of London, the Court awarded an Injunction, commanding the Sheriff not to execute the ſame, and denyed reſtitution.

The Offences of theſe Judges therein at the Delivery of their Impeachment to the Houſe of Lords, were aggravated as to this caſe by Mr. Edward Hide, who ſpake to this effect:

My Lords,

Mr. Hide's Speech, concerning the Judges, Tonnage and Poundage, &c.

'THere cannot be a greater Inſtance of a Sick and Languiſhing 'Common-wealth, than the buſineſs of this day. Good God! 'How have the guilty theſe late years been puniſhed, when the 'Judges themſelvs have been Delinquents. 'Tis no ſuch marvail, that 'an Irregular, Extravagant, Arbitrary Power, like a Torrent, hath 'broke in upon us, when our Banks and our Bulwarks, the Laws, were in the Cuſtody of ſuch Perſons. Men who had loſt their Innocence, could not preſerve their courage: nor could we look, that they who had ſo viſibly undone us, themſelves ſhould have the vertue or credit, to reſcue us from the oppreſſion of other men. 'Twas ſaid by one, who alwayes ſpoke excellently, That the twelve Judges were like the twelve Lyons under the Throne of Solomon: under the Throne in obedience, but yet Lyons. Your Lordſhips ſhall this day hear of Six, who (be they what they will be elſe) were no Lyons, who upon Vulgar fears delivered up the precious Forts they were truſted with, almoſt without aſſault; and in a tame eaſie trance of Flattery and Servitude, loſt and forfeited (ſhemefully forfeited) that reputation, awe and reverence, which the Wiſdom, Courage and Gravity of their Venerable Predeceſſors had contracted and faſtened to the Places they now hold: And even rendred that Study and Profeſſion (which in all Ages hath been, and I hope now ſhall be of an honourable eſtimation) ſo contemptible and vile, that had not this bleſſed day come, all men would have had that quarrell to the Law it ſelf, which Marius had to the Greek Tongue, who thought it a Mockery, for a man to learn that Language, the Maſters whereof lived in bondage under others. And I appeal to theſe unhappy Gentlemen themſelves, with what a ſtrange negligence, ſcorn and indignation the Faces of all men, even of the meaneſt, have been directed towards them, ſince (to call it no worſe) that Fatal Declenſion of their underſtandings in thoſe Judgements, of which they ſtand here charged before your Lordſhips. But, my Lords, the work of this day is the greateſt inſtance of a growing and thriving Commonwealth too: and is as the dawning of a fair and laſting day of happineſs to this Kingdom: 'tis in your Lordſhips Power (and I am ſure 'tis in your Lordſhips Will) to reſtore the dejected broken people of this Iſland to their former Joy and Security, the ſucceſſors of theſe men to their old Priviledge and Veneration, & ſepultas prope leges revocare.

‘As for that Preſumptuous Decree againſt Mr. Rolls and others, and in truth, whatſoever Gloſs they put upon it, it is no other than a plain Grant of the Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage to his Majeſty upon all Merchandize. After their Goods ſeized for Non-Payment of that pretended Duty the Proprietors brought Replevins (which is the Natural and Genuine Remedy appointed by Law in caſe of Property, and grounded upon Property) the Court awards an Injunction to ſtay theſe Replevins, the Goods were in the Kings Poſſeſſion, and no Replevin would lye againſt the King.

‘Truly, My Lords, The Injuſtice here is not ſo ſcandalous as the Fraud: we all know, a Replevin (as in no other Suit) lyes againſt the King, if the Goods be in his own hands.

‘Here they found a Right, a known and unqueſtionable Right; yet inſtead of aſſiſting, took away the Remedy to preſerve that Right. What ſhall we call theſe Judges?

Tonnage and Poundage.

‘My Lords, In this Argument I am not willing to ſay much: 'tis enough that your Lordſhips know, Tonnage and Poundage is not a Duty to the Crown, but a Subſidy, and ſo granted in ſubſidium ſome-

'times pro una vice tantum; ſometimes for years, and then ceaſed when the time did expire; that when it was firſt granted for liſe, it was with this Clauſe, Ita quod non trahatur in Exemplum futuris Regibus: but 'tis abundantly enough known, that his Sacred Majeſty cannot be tainted with the Advices and Judgements of theſe men, but looks on this Duty ſingly as the meer affection and bounty of his Subjects, the which no doubt he ſhall never want.

* This Gentleman was not at Oxford in time of War, as the Lord Faulkland, &c. were.

Mr. Rous part of his ſpeech concerning Dr. Mainwaring and the Altar Clergy.

* Mr. Rous part of his Speech concerning Dr. Mainwaring and the Altar Clergy.

'YOur Lordſhips have heard of a great Deſign to bring in Popery, you have heard of Armies of Soldiers, and particularly of the Popiſh Iriſh Army, the Burthen and Complaint of the Commons. But there is another Army not ſo much ſpoken of, and that is an Army of Prieſts: for ſince Altars came in, they delight to be called Prieſts. It is a ſaying of Gregory the Great, that when Antichriſt comes, Præparatus eſt exercitus Sacerdotum; There is an Army of Prieſts ready to receive him. This is fulfilled in our time: for certainly this Army of Prieſts doth many wayes advance the Deſign and Plot of Popery. A firſt is, by the ſubverſion of our Laws and Government: our Laws and Popery cannot ſtand together; but either Popery muſt overthrow our Laws, or our Laws muſt overthrow Popery: But to overthrow our Laws, they muſt overthrow Parliaments, and to overthrow Parliaments they muſt overthrow Property; they muſt bring the Subjects Goods to be arbitrarily diſpoſed, that ſo there may be no need of Parliaments: this hath been done by Doctor Mainwaring, (whom we find wanting yet not in the Seats, but in the Barr of the Lords Houſe.)

'A ſecond way by which this Army of Prieſts advanceth the Popiſh Deſign, is the way of Treaty. This hath been both by Writings and Conference. Sancta Clara himſelf on his part, labours to bring the Articles of our Church to Popery; and ſome of our ſide ſtrive to meet him in that way. We have a Teſtimony that the Arch-Prieſt himſelf hath ſaid, It were no hard matter to make a Reconciliation, if a Wiſe man had the handling of it. But I verily believe, that as the State of Papacy ſtands, a far wiſer man than he cannot reconcile us, without the loſs of our Religion. For the Pope being faſtned to his Errors, even by his Chair of Inerrability, he ſits ſtill unmoved, and ſo we cannot meet, except we come wholly to him. A man ſtanding in a Boat tyed to a Rock, when he draws the rope, doth not draw the Rock to the Boat, but the Boat to the Rock. And Sancta Clara doth (in this ſomewhat honeſtly) confeſs it; for he ſaith, that he dealt in this way of Treaty, not to draw the Church to the Proteſtants, but the Proteſtants to the Church.

'A third way is a way of Violence. This Violence they exerciſe partly by Secular Arms, and partly Prieſtly Arms, which they call Spiritual: for Secular Arms, we have their own confeſſion, that the late War was Bellum Epiſcopale; and we have the Papiſts confeſſion, that it was Bellum Papale; for in their motives 'they ſay, that the war concerns them not only as Subjects, but as Catholicks, for ſo they falſly call themſelves.

Mr. Plydal, about Epiſcopacy.

Mr. Plydal, About Epiſcopacy.

'I Have heard, ſince I had the honour to ſit here, many grievances preſented, and truly Sir my heart bleeds within me when I think of them, eſpecially thoſe that concern Religion. But what ſhould I ſpeak of grievances concerning Religion, when Religion it ſelf is become a grievance, nay the very nurſe and mother of all grievances, all ſcandals, all reproaches?

Tantum Religio potuit ſuadere malorum.

'Sir, Not to trouble you with any long diſcourſe, if I have any ſight, that Bark both of Church and State hath a long time floated betwixt Scylla and Charybdis, Popery on the one ſide, and I know not what to call it on the other; in many reſpects both alike dangerous, unleſs the Italian Proverb may alter the caſe, God defend me from my reputed friends, and I will defend my ſelf from my profeſt enemies.

'Sir, We are intruſted by God, the King and the Countrey, with the managing of this Bark, fraught with the fortunes of three great Kingdoms: Now ſhould we ſo decline the former Rock, that we daſh on the other ſide, I humbly offer it to this Honourable Aſſembly, whether ſhe might not have juſt cauſe to ſay, ſhe had changed her Pilot rather than her condition, and only ſhifted places to find her ruine: for Sir, there is as much beyond truth, as on this ſide it; and would we ſteer a right Courſe, we muſt be ſure to keep the Channel, leſt we fall from one extream to another; from the dotage of Superſtition, to the frenzie of profaneneſs, from bowing to Idols, to worſhip the Calves of our own imaginations.

'I beſeech you conſider, what libellous Pamphlets are now Printed, what Sermons are now preached, not building hay and ſtubble, but utterly ſubverting the foundations of Truth; what irreverence in Churches, what profanation of Gods ſervice, to the ſcandal of Chriſtianity, the reproach of Religion, and the intollerable grief of all good men; of which I may take up the words of Petrus de Aliaco to the Council of Conſtance, Niſi celeriter fiat reformatio, audeo dicere quod licet magna ſint quæ videmus, tamen in brevi incomparabilia majora videbimus, & poſt iſta tam horrenda majora alia audiemus.

'Sir, I take God to record, I am no mans advocate, no mans enemy, but a faithful lover of truth and peace, and a dutiful ſon of our diſtreſſed mother, the Church of England; in whoſe behalf, and our own, my motion ſhall be ſhortly this, That the Miniſters Petition, with ſo much of their Remonſtrance as hath been read, may be committed, and the reſt of it, concerning matter of Doctrine, may be referred to ſome Learned and approved Divines, who have ſpent their time in that noble ſtudy. For give me leave to tell 'you, there is a vulgus among the Clergy, as among the Laity, Et in utroque modicum; and for theſe and all things, which ſtrike at the root and branch, as they pleaſe to call it, I ſhall humbly move, that we rather conſider how to ſatisfie the Petitioners with ſome timely declaration from both Houſes, of the Lawfulneſs and conveniency of Epiſcopal Government, derived from the Apoſtles, and ſo long eſtabliſhed in this Kingdom, rather than to venture upon any alteration, the conſequence whereof the wiſeſt man cannot foreſee. And in truth, Sir, would we once begin (for my own part) I know not how or where we ſhould ſtay. Nevertheleſs if any one doubt the ſuperiority of Biſhops over Prieſts and Deacons in Eccleſiaſtical Government, or in Ordination, I ſhall be ready, whenſoever this Houſe ſhall command me, to make it good, and I think by as pregnant teſtimonies as we are able to prove the difference betwixt Canonical and Apocryphal Scripture, the neceſſity of Infants Baptiſm, or that the Apoſtles were the Authors of their own Creed. But Sir, I hope you will ſave your ſelf and me that labour, and rather deviſe ſome ſet way to bind up the Churches wounds, which (God knows) are too wide already, that ſo the Clergy and Laity being made friends, and all reduced to the model of our Anceſtors ſince the Reformation, we may all together preſerve the Unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace; and ſo his Majeſty having graciouſly and prudently expreſt himſelf, I am the more confident, we ſhall not only put an end to all miſ-intelligence betwixt Prince and People, but alſo highly advance the Proteſtant cauſe, and give a deadly blow to the See of Rome.

Sir, I humbly crave the favour of the Houſe, for God is my Witneſs, Non potui aliter liberare animam meam.

THe Speeches before-mentioned Concerning Grievances, and the debates and diſcourſes of other Members did ſo convince the reſt of the Houſe, as when any queſtion was put concerning any conſiderable grievance, not one member of the Houſe gave a No thereunto. Here follow a few of thoſe Votes amongſt many.

Monday, Decemb. 7. 1640.

1. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

Votes in Parliament nemine contradicente. Ship-money.

'THat the Charge impoſed upon the Subjects for the providing and furniſhing of the Ships, and Aſſeſſments for raiſing of money for that purpoſe, commonly called Ship-money, are againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Subjects Right of Property, and contrary to former Reſolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right.

2. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

‘THat the Extrajudicial Opinions of the Judges publiſhed in the Star-Chamber, and Inrolled in the Courts of Weſtminſter, in hac verba, &c. In the whole and in every part of them are againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Right of Property, and the Liberty of the Subject, and contrary to former Reſolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right.

3. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

‘THat the Writ following in hac verba, &c. and the other Writ commonly called the Ship-Writ, are againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Right of Property, and the Liberty of the Subject, and contrary to former Reſolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right.

Tueſday, Decemb. 15. 1640.

1. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

Convocation.

‘THat the Clergy of England Convented in any Convocation or Synod, or otherwiſe, have no power to make any Conſtitutions, Canons, or Acts whatſoever in matter of Doctrine, Diſcipline or otherwiſe, to bind the Clergy or the Laity of the Land, without common Conſent of Parliament.

2. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

‘THat the ſeveral Conſtitutions and Canons Eccleſiaſtical, treated upon by the Arch-Biſhops of Canterbury and York Preſidents of the Convocation for the reſpective Provinces of Canterbury and York, and the reſt of the Biſhops and Clergy of thoſe Provinces, and agreed upon with the King's Majeſties Licence in their ſeveral Synods begun at London and York, 1640. do not bind the Clergy or Laity of this Land, or either of them.

Wedneſday, Decemb. 16. 1640.

1. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

‘THat theſe Canons and Conſtitutions Eccleſiaſtical treated upon, (the Arch-Biſhops of Canterbury and York, Preſidents of the Convocations for the reſpective Provinces of Canterbury and York) and the reſt of the Biſhops, and Clergy of thoſe Provinces, and agreed upon with the Kings Majeſties Licence in their ſeveral Synods begun at London and York, in the year 1640. do contain in them many matters contrary to the Kings Prerogative, to the Fundamental Laws and Statutes of the Realm, to the Right of Parliament, An. 1640. ment, to the Property and Liberty of the Subjects and matters tending to Sedition, and of dangerous conſequence.

2. Reſolved upon the Queſtion, nullo contradicente.

That the ſeveral Grants of the Benevolences, or Contribution granted to his Moſt Excellent Majeſty by the Clergy of the Provinces of Canterbury and York in the ſeveral Convocations or Synods holden at London and York, Anno Dom. 1640. are contrary to the Laws, and ought not to bind the Clergy.

After the Paſſing of theſe Votes againſt the Judges, and Tranſmitting of them unto the Houſe of Peers, and their concurring with the Houſe of Commons therein, an Addreſs was made unto the King ſhortly after, that his Majeſty for the future would not make any Judge by Patent during pleaſure, but that they may hold their places hereafter, Quam diu ſe bene geſſerint, and his Majeſty did readily grant the ſame, and in his Speech to both Houſes of Parliament, at the time of giving his Royal Aſſent to two Bills, one to take away the High Commiſſion Court, and the other the Court of Star-Chamber, and regulating the power of the Council Table, he hath this paſſage, If you conſider what I have done this Parliament, diſcontents will not ſit in your Hearts, for I hope you remember that I have granted that the Judges hereafter ſhall hold their places, Quam diu ſe bene geſſerint.

And likewiſe his Gracious Majeſty King Charles the Second obſerved the ſame rule and method in granting Patents to Judges, Quam diu ſe bene geſſerint, as appears upon Record in the Rolls, (viz.) to Serjeant Hide to be Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, Sir Orlando Bridgeman to be Lord Chief Baron, and afterwards Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, to Sr. Robert Forſter and others; Mr. Serjeant Archer now living (notwithſtanding his Removal) ſtill enjoys his Patent, being Quam diu ſe bene geſſerit, and receives a ſhare in the Profits of that Court, as to Fines and other Proceedings by virtue of his ſaid Patent, and his name is uſed in thoſe Fines, &c. as a Judge of that Court.

Articles of the Commons aſſembled in Parliament, in maintenance of their Accuſation againſt William Laud Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury; whereby he ſtands charged with High Treaſon, preſented and carried up to the Lords, by Mr. J. Pym, Feb. 26. 1640.

Mr. Pym coming to the Lords Bar to preſent the Articles, ſpake as followeth.

My Lords,

I Am commanded by the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, now aſſembled for the Commons in Parliament, to deliver to your Lordſhips theſe Articles, in maintenance of their charge againſt the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury: Their deſire is, that, firſt, your Lordſhips would be pleaſed to hear the Articles read; and then I ſhall endeavour to preſent to you the ſence of the Commons, concerning the nature of the Charge, and the order of their Proceedings.

1. That he hath traiterouſly endeavoured to ſubvert the fundamental Laws and Government of this Kingdom of England, and inſtead thereof, to introduce an Arbitrary and Tyrannical Government againſt Law; and to that end, hath wickedly and traiterouſly adviſed His Majeſty, that he might, at His own Will and Pleaſure, levy, and take Money of His Subjects, without their conſent in Parliament; and this he affirmed was warrantable by the Law of God.

2. He hath, for the better accompliſhment of that his traiterous deſign, adviſed and procured Sermons, and other Diſcourſes, to be Preached, Printed, and Publiſhed, in which the Authority of Parliaments, and the force of the Laws of this Kingdom, have been denied; and abſolute and unlimited Power over the Perſons and Eſtates of His Majeſties Subjects maintained and defended, not only in the King, but in himſelf, and other Biſhops, againſt the Law: And he hath been a great protector, favourer, and promoter of the publiſhers of ſuch falſe and pernitious opinions.

He hath traiterouſly cauſed a Book of Canons to be compoſed and publiſhed without any lawful Warrant, and Authority in that behalf; in which pretended Canons many matters are contained contrary to the Kings Prerogative, to the fundamental Laws and Statutes of this Realm, to the Right of Parliament, to the Property and Liberty of the Subject, and matters tending to Sedition, and of dangerous conſequence, and to the eſtabliſhment of a vaſt unlawful, and preſumptuous Power in himſelf, and his Succeſſors; many of which Canons by the practice of the ſaid Arch-Biſhop were ſurreptitiouſly paſſed in the late convocation, without due conſideration and debate; others by fear and compulſion were ſubſcribed by the Prelates and Clarks there aſſembled, which had never ver been voted and paſſed in the Convocation as they ought to have been. And the ſaid Arch-Biſhop hath contrived and endeavoured to aſſure and confirm the unlawful and exorbitant Power which he hath uſurped and exerciſed over his Majeſties Subjects by a wicked and ungodly Oath in one of the ſaid pretended Canons, injoyned to be taken by all the Clergy, and many of the Laity of this Kingdom.

He hath traiterouſly aſſumed to himſelf a Papal and tyrannical Power, both in Eccleſiaſtical and Temporal matters, over His Majeſties Subjects in this Realm of England, and in other Places, to the diſheriſon of the Crown, diſhonour of His Majeſty, and derogation of His Supream Authority in Eccleſiaſtical matters; and the ſaid Arch-Biſhop claims the Kings Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, as incident to his Epiſcopal Office, and Archiepiſcopal in this Kingdom, and doth deny the ſame to be derived from the Crown of England, which he hath accordingly exerciſed, to the high contempt of His Royal Majeſty, and to the deſtruction of divers of the Kings Liege-People, in their Perſons and Eſtates.

That he hath traiterouſly endeavoured to alter and ſubvert Gods true Religion, by Law eſtabliſhed in this Realm, and inſtead thereof, to ſet up Popiſh ſuperſtition, and Idolatry. And to that end hath declared and maintained in Speeches and Printed Books divers Popiſh Doctrines and Opinions, contrary to the Articles of Religion eſtabliſhed by Law. He hath urged and injoyned divers Popiſh and ſuperſtitious Ceremonies without any Warrant of Law, and hath cruelly perſecuted thoſe who have oppoſed the ſame by corporal puniſhments and impriſonment, and moſt unjuſtly vexed others, who refuſed to conform thereunto by Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures of Excommunication, ſuſpenſion, deprivation, and degradation, contrary to the Laws of this Kingdom.

He hath, for the ſame traiterous and wicked intent, choſen and imployed ſuch Men to be his own Domeſtical Chaplains, whom he knew to be notoriouſly diſaffected to the reformed Religion, groſly addicted to Popiſh Superſtition, and erroneous and unſound both in Judgment and Practiſe; and to them or ſome of them hath he committed the Licenſing of Books to be printed, by which means divers falſe and ſuperſtitious Books have been publiſhed, to the great ſcandal of Religion, and to the ſeducing of many of His Majeſties Subjects.

He hath traiterouſly and wickedly endeavoured to reconcile the Church of England with the Church of Rome; and for the effecting thereof, hath conſorted and confederated with divers Popiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits, and hath kept ſecret intelligence with the Pope of Rome, and by himſelf, his Agents and Inſtruments, treated with ſuch as have from thence received Authority and Inſtruction, he hath permitted and countenanced a Popiſh Hierarchie, or Eccleſiaſtical Government to be eſtabliſhed in this Kingdom: By all which traiterous and malicious Practiſes, this Church and Kingdom hath been exceedingly indangered, and like to fall under the Tyranny of the Roman See.

He hath maliciouſly and traiterouſly plotted and endeavoured to ſtir up War and Enmity betwixt His Majeſties two Kingdoms of England and Scotland, and to that purpoſe hath laboured to introduce into the Kingdom of Scotland divers Innovations both in Religion and Government, all or the moſt part of them tending to Popery and Superſtition, to the great grievance and diſcontent of His Majeſties Subjects of that Nation; and for their refuſing to ſubmit to ſuch Innovations, he did traiterouſly adviſe His Majeſty to ſubdue them by force of Arms, and by his own Authority and Power, contrary to Law, did procure ſundry of His Majeſties Subjects, and enforced the Clergy of this Kingdom to contribute towards the maintenance of that War: And when His Majeſty with much Wiſdom and Juſtice had made a pacification betwixt the two Kingdoms, the ſaid Arch-biſhop did preſumptuouſly cenſure that pacification, as diſhonourable to His Majeſty, and by his counſels and endeavours ſo incenſed His Majeſty againſt His ſaid Subjects of Scotland, that he did thereupon (by advice of the ſaid Arch-biſhop) enter into an offenſive War againſt them, to the great hazard of His Majeſties Perſon, and His Subjects of both Kingdoms.

The ſaid Commons do further aver, that the ſaid William Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, during the times that the Crimes afore-mentioned were done and committed, hath been a Biſhop, or Arch-biſhop of this Realm of England, one of the Kings Commiſſioners for Eccleſiaſtical matters, and one of His Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy-Council, and hath taken an Oath for his faithful diſcharge of the ſaid Office of Councellor, and hath likewiſe taken an Oath of Supremacy and Allegiance.

Further Articles of Impeachment by the Commons aſſembled in Parliament, againſt William Laud Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, of High Treaſon, and divers high Crimes and Miſdemeanours, as followeth.

1. THat the ſaid Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, to introduce an arbitrary Government within this Realm, and to deſtroy Parliaments in the third and fourth years of His Majeſties Reign that now is; a Parliament being then called, and ſitting at Weſtminſter, traiterouſly and maliciouſly cauſed the ſaid Parliament to be diſſolved, to the great grievance of His Majeſties Subjects, and prejudice of this Common-wealth: And ſoon after the diſſolution thereof, gave divers Propoſitions under his Hand to George then Duke of Bucks, caſting therein many falſe aſperſions upon the ſaid Parliament, calling it a Factious Parliament, and falſely affirming, that it had caſt many ſcandals upon His Majeſty, and had uſed Him like a Child in his minority, ſtiling them Puritans, and commending the Papiſts for harmleſs and peaceable Subjects.

2. That within the ſpace of ten years laſt paſt, the ſaid Arch-biſhop hath treacherouſly endeavoured to ſubvert the fundamental Laws of this Realm; and to that end hath in like manner endeavoured to advance the Power of the Council-Table, the Canons of the Church, and the Kings Prerogative, above the Laws and Statutes of the Realm; and for manifeſtation thereof, about ſix years laſt paſt, being then a Privy-Councellor to His Majeſty, and ſitting at the Council-Table, he ſaid, 'That as long as he ſat there, they 'ſhould know that an Order of that Board ſhould be of equal force 'with a Law or Act of Parliament. And at another time uſed theſe words, 'That he hoped e're long that the Canons of the Church, 'and the Kings Prerogative, ſhould be of as great Power as an 'Act of Parliament. And at another time ſaid, 'That thoſe that 'would not yield to the Kings Power, he would cruſh them to 'pieces.

3. That the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, to advance the Canons of the Church, and Power-Eccleſiaſtical above the Law of the Land, and to pervert and hinder the courſe of Juſtice, hath at divers times within the ſaid time, by his Letters, and other undue means and ſollicitations uſed to Judges, oppoſed and ſtopped the granting of His Majeſties Writs of Prohibition, where the ſame ought to have been granted, for ſtay of Proceedings in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, whereby Juſtice hath been delayed and hindered, and the Judges diverted from doing their Duties.

4. That for the end and purpoſe aforeſaid, about ſeven years laſt paſt, a Judgment being given in His Majeſties Court of Kings-Bench againſt one Burley a Parſon, being a Man of bad Life and Converſation, in an Information upon the Statute of 21 Hen. 8. for wilful non-reſidency, the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, by ſollicitations, and other undue means uſed to the Judges of that Court, cauſed Execution upon the ſaid Judgment to be ſtayed, and being moved therein, and made acquainted with the bad Life and Converſation of the ſaid Parſon, he ſaid, that he had ſpoken to the Judges for him, and that he would never ſuffer a Judgment to paſs againſt any Clergy-man by Nihil dicit.

5. That the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, about eight years laſt paſt, being then alſo a Privy-Councellor to His Majeſty, for the end and purpoſe aforeſaid, cauſed Sir John Corbet of Stoake in the County of Salop Baronet, then a Juſtice of Peace of the ſaid County, to be committed to the Priſon of the Fleet, where he continued Priſoner for the ſpace of half a year or more, for no other cauſe but for calling for the Petition of Right, and cauſing it to be read at the Seſſions of the Peace for that County, upon a juſt and neceſſary occaſion; and during the time of his ſaid Impriſonment, the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, without any colour of Right, by a Writing under the Seal of his Arch-biſhoprick, granted away parcel of the Glebe-Land of the Church of Adderly in the ſaid County, whereof the ſaid Sir John Corbet was then Patron, unto Robert Viſcount Kilmurry, without the conſent of the ſaid Sir John, or then the Incumbent of the ſaid Church; which ſaid Viſcount Kilmurry built a Chappel upon the ſaid parcel of Glebe-Land, to the great prejudice of the ſaid Sir John Corbet, which hath cauſed great Suits and Diſſentions between them. And whereas the ſaid Sir John Corbet had a Judgment againſt Sir James Stonehouſe Knight, in an Action of Waſt, in His Majeſties Court of Common-Pleas at Weſtminſter, which was afterwards affirmed in a Writ of Error in the Kings-Bench, and Execution thereupon awarded; yet the ſaid Sir John, by means of the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, could not have the effect thereof, but was committed to the Priſon by the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, and others at the Council-Table, until he had ſubmitted himſelf unto the Order of the ſaid Table; whereby he loſt the benefit of the ſaid Judgment and Execution.

6. That whereas divers Gifts, and diſpoſitions of divers Sums of Money[illegible] heretofore made by divers charitable and well-diſpoſed Perſo[illegible] the buying in of divers Impropriations for the maintenance [illegible] Preaching the Word of God in ſeveral Churches, the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, about eight years laſt paſt, wilfully and maliciouſly cauſed the ſaid Gifts, Feoffments, and Conveyances made to the uſes aforeſaid, to be overthrown in His Majeſties Court of Exchequer, contrary to Law, as things dangerous to the Church and State, under the ſpecious pretence of buying in Impropriations; whereby that Pious Work was ſuppreſſed and trodden down, to the great diſhonour of God, and ſcandal of Religion.

7. That the ſaid Arch-Biſhop at ſeveral times, within theſe ten years laſt paſt, at Weſtminſter, and elſewhere within this Realm, contrary to the known Laws of this Land, hath endeavoured to advance Popery and Superſtition within the Realm: And for that end and purpoſe hath wittingly and willingly received, harboured, and relieved divers Popiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits, namely one called Sancta Clara, alias Damport, a dangerous Perſon, and Franciſcan Friar, who having written a Popiſh and Seditious Book, entituled Deus natura gratia, wherein the 39 Articles of the Church of England, eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, were much traduced and ſcandalized: The ſaid Arch-Biſhop had divers Conferences with him, while he was in writing the ſaid Book; and did alſo provide maintenance and entertainment for one Monſieur St. Gyles, a Popiſh Prieſt at Oxford, knowing him to be a Popiſh Prieſt.

8. That the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, about four years laſt paſt, at Weſtminſter aforeſaid, ſaid, That there muſt be a Blow given to the Church, ſuch as hath not been yet given, before it could be brought to conformity; declaring thereby his intention to be, to ſhake and alter the true Proteſtant Religion eſtabliſhed in the Church of England.

9. That in or about the Month of May 1640. preſently after the diſſolution of the laſt Parliament, the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, for the ends and purpoſes aforeſaid, cauſed a Synod or Convocation of the Clergy to be held for the ſeveral Provinces of Canterbury and York; wherein were made and eſtabliſhed by his means and procurement divers Canons and Conſtitutions-Eccleſiaſtical, contrary to the Laws of this Realm, the Rights and Priviledges of Parliament, the Liberty and Property of the Subject, tending alſo to Sedition, and of dangerous conſequence: And amongſt other things the ſaid Arch-Biſhop cauſed a moſt dangerous and illegal Oath to be therein made and contrived, the tenor whereof followeth in theſe words. That I A. B. do ſwear, that I do approve the Doctrine and Diſcipline or Government eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, as containing all things neceſſary to Salvation; and that I will not endeavour by my ſelf, or any other, directly or indirectly, to bring in any Popiſh Doctrine, contrary to that which is ſo eſtabliſhed: Nor will I ever give my conſent to alter the Government of this Church by Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Deans, and Arch-Deacons, &c. as it ſtands now eſtabliſhed, and as by right it ought to ſtand; nor yet ever to ſubject it to the uſurpations and ſuperſtitions of the See of Rome. And all theſe things do I plainly and ſincerely acknowledge and ſwear according to the plain and common ſenſe and underſtanding of the ſame words, without any equivocation, or mental evaſion, or ſecret reſervation whatſoever; and this I do heartily, willingly and truly upon the faith of a Chriſtian: So help me God in Jeſus Chriſt. Which Oath the ſaid Arch-Biſhop himſelf did take, and cauſed divers other Miniſters of the Church to take the ſame, upon pain of ſuſpenſion, and deprivation of their Livings, and other ſevere Penalties: And did alſo cauſe Godfrey, then Biſhop of Glouceſter, to be committed to Priſon, for refuſing to ſubſcribe to the ſaid Canons, and to take the ſaid Oath; and afterwards, the ſaid Biſhop ſubmitting himſelf to take the ſaid Oath, he was ſet at liberty.

10. That a little before the calling of the laſt Parliament, Anno 1640. a Vote being then paſſed, and a Reſolution taken at the Council-Table, by the Advice of the ſaid Arch-Biſhop, for aſſiſting of the King in extraordinary ways, if the ſaid Parliament ſhould prove peeviſh, and refuſe to ſupply His Majeſty; the ſaid Arch-Biſhop wickedly and maliciouſly adviſed His Majeſty to diſſolve the ſaid Parliament, and accordingly the ſame was diſſolved: And preſently after the ſaid Arch-Biſhop told His Majeſty, That now he was abſolved from all Rules of Government, and left free to uſe extraordinary ways for his Supply.

For all which matters and things the ſaid Commons aſſembled in Parliament, in the Name of themſelves, and all the Commons of England, do Impeach the ſaid Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury of High Treaſon, and other Crimes and Miſdemeanours, tending to the ſubverſion of our Religion, Laws, and Liberties, and to the utter ruine of this Church and Common-wealth.

And the ſaid Commons by proteſtation ſaving to themſelves the liberty of exhibiting at any time hereafter, any further, or other Accuſation or Impeachment againſt the ſaid William Laud Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, and alſo of replying to the Anſwer that he ſhall make unto the ſaid Articles, or any of them; or offering proof of the Premiſſes; or any other Impeachments or Accuſations that ſhall be exhibited by them, as the Cauſe ſhall (according to the courſe of Parliaments) require; do pray, that he the ſaid William Laud Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury may be called to anſwer the ſaid ſeveral Crimes and Miſdemeanours, and receive ſuch condign puniſhment as the ſame ſhall deſerve: And that ſuch further Proceedings may be upon every one of them had, and uſed againſt him, as is agreable to Law and Juſtice.

The Charge of the Scottiſh Commiſſioners againſt the Prelate of Canterbury.

NOvations in Religion, which are univerſally acknowledged to be the main cauſe of Commotions in Kingdoms and States, and are known to be the true cauſe of our preſent troubles, were many and great, beſides the Books of Ordination and Homilies;

1. Some particular alterations in matters of Religion, preſſed upon us without order, and againſt Law, contrary to the form eſtabliſhed in our Kirke. 2. A new Book of Canons and Conſtitutions-Eccleſiaſtical. 3. A Liturgy, or Book of Common-Prayer, which did alſo carry with them many dangerous Errors in matters of Doctrine; of all which we challenge the Prelate of Canterbury, as the prime cauſe on Earth.

And firſt, that this Prelate was the Author and Urger of ſome particular changes which made great diſturbance amongſt us, we make manifeſt:

Firſt, by fourteen Letters ſubſcribed William Cant. in the ſpace of two years, to one of our pretended Biſhops, Bannatine, wherein he often enjoyneth him, and other pretended Biſhops, to appear in the Chappel in their Whites, contrary to the Cuſtom of our Kirke, and to his Promiſe made to the pretended Biſhops of Edenburgh at the Coronation, that none of them after that time ſhould be preſſed to wear theſe Garments, thereby moving him againſt his will to put them on for that time, wherein he directeth him to give order for ſaying the Engliſh Service in the Chappel twice a day for his neglect, ſhewing him that he was diſappointed of the Biſhoprick of Edenburgh, promiſing him, upon the greater care of theſe Novations, advancement to a better Biſhoprick, taxing him for his boldneſs in Preaching the ſound Doctrine of the reformed Kirks againſt Mr. Mitchel, who had taught the Errors of Arminius in the Point of the extent of Merit of Chriſt, bidding him ſend up a Liſt of the Names of Councellors and Senators of the Colledge of Juſtice, who did not communicate in the Chappel in a form which was not received in our Kirk, commending him when he found him obſequious to theſe his Commands, telling him, that he had moved the King the ſecond time for the puniſhment of ſuch as had not received in the Chappel; and wherein he upbraideth him bitterly, that in his firſt Synod at Aberdein he had only diſputed againſt our Cuſtom of Scotland, of faſting ſometimes on the Lords-day, and preſumptuouſly cenſuring our Kirk, that in this we were oppoſite to Chriſtianity it ſelf; and amongſt us there were no Canons at all.

The ſecond Novation which troubled our Peace, was a Book of Canons, and Conſtitutions-Eccleſiaſtical, obtruded upon our Kirk, found by our General Aſſembly to be deviſed for eſtabliſhing a Tyrannical Power in the Perſons of our Prelates over the Worſhip of God, over the Conſciences, Liberties and Goods of the People, and for aboliſhing the whole Diſcipline and Government of our Kirk, by General and Provincial Aſſemblies, Presbyteries, aod Kirk-Seſſions, which was ſetled by Law, and in continual practice ſince the time of Reformation; that Canterbury was Maſter of this Work is manifeſt.

He will not have Canons come from the Authority of Synods, but from the Power of Prelates, or from the Kings Prerogative.

Thirdly, the formidable Canon, Cap. 1. 3. threatning no leſs than Excommunication againſt all ſuch Perſons, whoſoever ſhall open their mouths againſt any of theſe Books, proceeded not from our Prelates, nor is to be found in the Copy ſent from them, but is a Thunder-bolt forged in Canterburies own Fire.

An. 1640.

The third and great Novation was the Book of Common-Prayer, Adminiſtration of the Sacraments, and other parts of Divine Service, brought in without Warrant from our Kirk, to be univerſally received, as the only form of Divine Service, under all higheſt pains both Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, which is found by our National Aſſembly, beſides the Popiſh freme and forms in Divine Worſhip, to contain many Popiſh Errors and Ceremonies, and the Seeds of manifold and groſs Superſtitious and Idolatrous, and to be repugnant to the Doctrine and Diſcipline and order of our Reformation, to the confeſſion of Faith, Conſtitutions of General Aſſemblies and Acts of Parliament, eſtabliſhing the true religion; that this alſo was Canterburies Work we make manifeſt.

By the Memoirs and Inſtruction ſent unto him from our Prelates; wherein they gave a ſpecial account of the diligence they had uſed, to do all which herein they were enjoyned by the approbation of the Service-Book ſent to them; and of all the Marginal Correction, wherein it varieth from the Engliſh Books, ſhewing their deſire to have ſome few things changed in it, which notwithſtanding was not granted: This we find written by St. Androis own hand, and ſubſcribed by him, and nine other of our Prelates.

But the Book it ſelf, as it ſtandeth Interlined, Margined, and patch'd up, is much more than all that is expreſſed in his Letters, and the Changes and Supplements themſelves taken from the Maſs-Book, and other Romiſh Rituals, by which he maketh it to vary from the Book of England.

The Corporal Preſence of Chriſts Body in the Sacrament is alſo to be found here; for the words of the Maſs-Book ſerving to this purpoſe, which are ſharply cenſured by Bucer, in King Edwards Liturgy, and are not to be found in the Book of England, are taken in here: Almighty God is in-called, that of his Almighty Goodneſs he may vouchſafe ſo to Bleſs and Sanctify with his Word and Spirit theſe Gifts of Bread and Wine, that they may be unto us the Body and Blood of Chriſt.

The Change here is made a Work of Gods Omnipotency: The words of the Maſs, ut fiant nobis, are Tranſlated in King Edwards Book, That they be unto us, which are again turned into Latin by Aleſuis, ut fiant nobis; on the other part the expreſſions of the Book of England, at the delivery of the Elements feeding on Chriſt by Faith, and of eating and drinking in remembrance that Chriſt died for thee, are utterly declared; many Evidences there be in this part of the Communion, of the Bodily Preſence of Chriſt, very agreeable to the Doctrines taught by his Sectaries, which this Paper cannot contain. They teach us, That Chriſt is received in the Sacrament, Corporaliter, both Objective and Subjective, Corpus Chriſti eſt Objectum quod recipitur, & Corpus noſtrum Subjectum quo recipitur.

Our Supplications were many againſt theſe Books, but Canterbury procured them to be anſwered with terrible Proclamations. We were conſtrained to uſe the remedy of Proteſtation; but for our Proteſtations, and other lawful means, which we uſed for our deliverance, Canterbury procured us to be declared Rebels and Traitors in all Pariſh-Kirks of England: When we were ſeeking to poſſeſs our Religion in peace againſt theſe Devices and Novations, Canterbury kindleth War againſt us. In all theſe it is known that he was, although not the ſole, yet the principal Agent and Adviſer.

When by the Pacification at Barwick, both Kingdoms looked for peace and quietneſs, he ſpared not openly in the hearing of many, often before the King, and privately at the Council-Table, and the Privy Jointo, to ſpeak of us as Rebels and Traitors, and to ſpeak againſt the Pacification as diſhonourable, and meet to be broken. Neither did his malignancy and bitterneſs ever ſuffer him to reſt till a new War was entred upon, and all things prepared for our deſtruction.

When our Commiſſioners did appear to render the Reaſons of our demands, he ſpared not, in the preſence of the King and Committee, to rail againſt our National Aſſembly as not daring to appear before the World and Kirks abroad; where himſelf and his actions were able to endure tryal: And againſt our juſt and neceſſary defence as the moſt malicious and treaſonable contempt of Monarchial Government that any by-gone Age heard of; his hand was alſo at the Warrant for the reſtraint and impriſonment of our Commiſſioners, ſent from the Parliament warranted by the King, and ſeeking the Peace of the Kingdoms.

When we had by our Declarations, Remonſtrances, and Repreſentations, manifeſted the truth of our intentions, and lawfulneſs of our actions to all the good Subjects of the Kingdom of England, when the late Parliament could not be moved to aſſiſt or enter in War againſt us, maintaining our Religion, and Liberties, Canterbury did not only adviſe the breaking up of that High and Honourable Court, to the great grief and hazard of the Kingdom, but (which is without example) did ſit ſtill in the Convocation, and make Canons and Conſtitutions againſt us, and our juſt and neceſſary defence; ordaining under all higheſt pains, that hereafter the Clergy ſhall preach four times in the year againſt our Proceedings.

And as if this had not been ſufficient, he procured ſix Subſidies to be lifted of the Clergy, under pain of deprivation to all that ſhould refuſe. And which is yet worſe, and above which malice it ſelf cannot aſcend, by his means a Prayer is framed, Printed, and ſent through all Pariſhes of England, to be ſaid in all Churches in time of Divine Service, next after the Prayer for the Queen and Royal Progeny, againſt our Nation by name of Traiterous Subjects, having caſt off all obedience to our anointed Sovereign, and coming in all rebellious manner to invade England, that ſhame may cover our faces as Enemies to God and the King.

We are therefore confident that your Lordſhips will, by your means, deal effectually with the Parliament, that this great Firebrand be preſently removed from His Majeſties Preſence, and that he may be put to tryal, and put to his deſerved Cenſure according to the Laws of the Kingdom.

On the 22*d* of January the Arch-Biſhop, perſonally appearing at the Lords Bar according to the former Orders, did then put in this following Anſwer both to the Commons original and additional Articles.

An. 1640.

The humble Anſwer of William Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury to the firſt and further Articles of Impeachment, brought up by the Honourable Houſe of Commons againſt him, and by Order of the Right Honourable the Lords in Parliament of the 16*th* of this inſtant directed to be put in.

As to the 13*th* Article of the ſaid firſt Articles, and the matters therein charged, and all matters or things in the ſame, or any of the reſt of the ſaid Articles contained, which concern any Act of Hoſtility, whether between the King and His Subjects, or between Subject and Subject, or which may be conceived to ariſe upon the coming of any Engliſh Army againſt Scotland, or the coming of the Scottiſh Army into England, or upon any Action, Attempt, Aſſiſtance, Councel or Device, having relation thereunto, and falling out by the occaſion of the late Troubles preceding the late Concluſion of the Treaty, and return of the Scottiſh Army into Scotland; this Defendant ſaith, That it is Enacted by an Act made during the ſitting of this preſent Parliament, That the ſame, and whatſoever hath enſued thereupon, whether trenching upon the Laws and Liberties of the Church and Kingdom, or upon His Majeſties Honour and Authority, in no time hereafter may be called in queſtion, or reſented as a wrong National, or Perſonal, and that no mention be made thereof in time coming, neither in Judgment nor out of Judgment; but that it be held and reputed as though never ſuch things had been thought or wrought, as by the ſaid Act may more at large appear, with this, that this Defendant doth aver, that he is none of the Perſons excepted by the ſaid Act, or the ſaid Offences charged upon this Defendant any of the offences excepted by the ſaid Act.

And as to all the reſt of the ſaid firſt and further Articles; this Defendant ſaving to himſelf all advantages of exception to the ſaid Articles, humbly ſaith, He is not guilty of all or any of the matters by the ſaid Articles charged, in ſuch manner and form as the ſame are by the ſaid Articles charged againſt him.

W. Cant.

After the before-mentioned Articles were read, the Arch-Biſhop made this following Speech.

My Lords,

'MY being in this place in this condition, recalls to my memo-
'ry that which I long ſince read in Seneca, Tormentum eſt,
'etiamſi abſolutus quis fueris, cauſam dixiſſe; (6. de Benef. c. 28.)
''Tis not a grief only, no, 'tis no leſs than a torment for an inge-
'nuous Man to plead capitally or criminally, though it ſhould ſo
'fall out that he be abſolved. The great truth of this I find at
'preſent in my ſelf; and ſo much the more, becauſe I am a Chriſtian,
'and not that only, but in Holy Orders; and not ſo only, but by 'Gods Grace and Goodneſs preferred to the greateſt Place this 'Church affords, and yet brought, cauſam dicere, to plead for my
'ſelf at this great Bar.

'And whatſoever the World think of me (and they have been 'taught to think much more ill of me, than, I humbly thank Chriſt 'for it, I was ever acquainted with) yet, my Lords, this I find, 'Tormentum eſt, 'tis no leſs than a Torment to me to appear in this 'place.

'Nay, my Lords, give me leave to ſpeak plain truth; no Sen'tence that can juſtly paſs upon me, (and other I will never fear 'from your Lordſhips) can go ſo near me, as Cauſam dicere, to 'plead for my ſelf upon this occaſion, and in this place.

'For as for the Sentence, be it what it ſhall, I thank God for 'it, I am for it at St. Pauls word, (Acts 25. 11.) If I have com'mitted any thing worthy of death, I refuſe not to die. For I thank 'God I have ſo lived, as that I am neither afraid to die, nor aſhamed 'to live. But ſeeing the malignity which hath been raiſed againſt 'me by ſome Men, I have carried my very Life in my Hands theſe 'divers years paſt: But yet, my Lords, if there be none of theſe 'things whereof they accuſe me, though I may not in this Caſe, 'and from this Bar, appeal unto Cæſar, yet to your Lordſhips Juſtice 'and Integrity I both may and do; not doubting, but that God of 'his Goodneſs will preſerve my Innocency.

'And as Job in the midſt of his affliction ſaid to his miſtaken 'friends, ſo ſhall I to my Accuſers; God forbid I ſhould juſtifie you, 'till I die I will not remove mine Integrity from me, I will hold it 'faſt, and not let it go, my Heart ſhall not reproach me as long as I 'live, Job 22. 5.

'My Lords, The Charge againſt me is brought up in ten Arti'cles, but the main Heads are two; An endeavour to ſubvert the 'Laws of the Land, and the Religion eſtabliſhed; ſix Articles, '(the five, firſt and the laſt) concern the Laws, and the other 'four, Religion.

'For the Laws, firſt I may ſafely ſay, I have been to my under'ſtanding as ſtrict an obſerver of them all the days of my life, ſo 'far as they concern me, as any Man hath; and ſince I came into 'Place, I have followed them, and been as much guided by them 'as any Man that ſate where I had the Honour to ſit. And of this 'I am ſorry I have loſt the Teſtimony of the Lord Keeper Coventry, 'and other Perſons of Honour ſince dead.

'And the Council which attended at the Council-Board can wit'neſs, ſome of them here preſent, that in all references to the 'Board, or debates ariſing at the Board, I was for that part of the 'Cauſe where I found Law to be; and if the Council deſired to 'have the Cauſe left to the Law, well I might move in ſome Cau'ſes Charity or Conſcience to them; but I left them to the Law, 'if thither they would go; and how ſuch a carriage as this through 'the whole courſe of my Life in private and publick can ſtand 'with an intention to overthrow the Laws, I cannot yet ſee.

'Nay more, I have ever been of opinion, That Laws bind the 'Conſcience, and have accordingly, made Conſcience of obſerving 'them; and this Doctrine I have conſtantly preached as occaſion 'hath been offered me; and how is it poſſible, I ſhould ſeek to 'overthrow thoſe Laws which I held my ſelf bound in Conſcience 'to keep and obſerve.

An. 1640.

‘As for Religion, I was born and bred up in and under the Church of England, as it ſtands eſtabliſhed by Law; I have by Gods Bleſſing, grown up in it to the years which are now upon me, and to the Place of preferment which I now bear.

‘I have, ever ſince I underſtood ought in my Profeſſion, kept one conſtant Tenor in this my Profeſſion, without variation or ſhifting from one opinion to another, for any worldly ends: And if my Conſcience would have ſuffered me to do ſo, I could eaſily have ſlid through all the difficulties which I have preſt upon me in this kind; but of all Diſeaſes, I have ever held a Palſey in Religion moſt dangerous, well knowing and remembring that Diſeaſe often ends in a dead Palſie.

‘Ever ſince I came in Place, I have laboured nothing more than that the Eternal publick Worſhip of God (ſo much ſlighted in divers parts of this Kingdom) might be preſerved, and that with as much decency and uniformity as might be; for I evidently ſaw, that the publick neglect of Gods Service in the outward face of it, and the naſty lying of many Places dedicated to that Service, had almoſt caſt a damp upon the true and inward Worſhip of God, which while we live in the Body, needs external helps, and all little enough to keep it in vigour. And this I did to the uttermoſt of my knowledge, according both to Law and Canon, and with the conſent and liking of the People; nor did any command iſſue from me againſt the one, or without the other.

‘Further, my Lords, give me leave, I beſeech you, to acquaint you with this alſo, that I have as little acquaintance with Recuſants, as I believe any man of my Place of England hath, or ever had ſithence the Reformation; and for my Kindred, no one of them was ever a Recuſant, but Sir William Web, Grand-child to Sir William Web, ſometimes Lord Major of London, and ſince which ſome of his Children I reduced back to the Church of England.

‘On this, one thing more I humbly deſire may be thought on, That I am fall'n into a great deal of obloquy in matter of Religion, and that ſo far, (as appears by the Articles againſt me) that I have endeavoured to advance and bring in Popery: Perhaps, my Lords, I am not ignorant what Party of Men have raiſed theſe ſcandals upon me, nor for what end, nor perhaps by whom ſet on; but howſoever, I would fain have a good reaſon given me, if my Conſcience ſtood that way, and that with my Conſcience I could ſubſcribe to the Church of Rome, what ſhould have kept me here before my Impriſonment to endure the libelling and the ſlander, and the baſe uſage that hath been put upon me, and theſe to end in this queſtion for my Life? I ſay, I would know a good reaſon for this.

‘Firſt, my Lords, is it becauſe of any Pledges I have in the World to ſway me againſt my Conſcience? No ſure, for I have neither Wife nor Children to cry out upon me to ſtay with them; And if I had, I hope the calling of my Conſcience ſhould be heard above them.

‘Is it becauſe I was loth to leave the Honour and Profit of the Place I was riſen to? Surely no, for I deſire your Lordſhips, and all the World ſhould know, I do much ſcorn the one and the other, ‘in compariſon of my Conſcience. Beſides it cannot be imagined by any man, but that if I ſhould have gone over to them, I ſhould not have wanted both honour and profit, and ſuppoſe not ſo great as this I have here, yet ſure would my Conſcience have ſerved my ſelf of either, leſs with my Conſcience would have prevailed with me more than grater againſt my Conſcience.

‘Is it becauſe I lived here at eaſe, and loath to venture that? Not ſo neither, for whatſoever the world may be pleaſed to think of me, I have led a very painful life, and ſuch as I would have been content to change, had I well known how; and would my Conſcience have ſerved me that way, I am ſure I might have lived at far more eaſe, and either have avoided the barbarous libelling and other bitter grievous ſcorns which have been put upon me, or at leaſt been out of the hearing of them.

‘Not to trouble your Lordſhips too long, I am ſo innocent in the buſineſs of Religion, ſo free from all practice, or ſo much as thought of practice for any alteration unto Popery, or any blemiſhing the true Proteſtant Religion eſtabliſhed in England, as I was when my Mother firſt bore me into the world; and let nothing be ſpoken but truth, and I do here challenge whatſoever is between Heaven or Hell, that can be ſaid againſt me in point of my Religion, in which I have ever hated diſſimulation. And had I not hated it, perhaps I might have been better for worldly ſafety than now I am, but it can no way become a Chriſtian Biſhop to halt with God.

‘Laſtly, If I had any purpoſe to blaſt the true Religion eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, and to introduce Popery, ſure I took a wrong way to it; for, My Lords, I have ſtaid more going to Rome, and reduced more that were already gone, than, I believe any Biſhop or Divine in this Kingdom hath done; and ſome of them, men of great abilities, and ſome Perſons of great place; and is this the way to introduce Popery?

‘My Lords, If I had blemiſhed the true Proteſtant Religion, how could I have brought theſe men to it? And if I had promiſed to introduce Popery, I would never have reduced theſe men from it.

‘And that it may appear unto your Lordſhips how many, and of what condition the Perſons are, which by Gods bleſſing upon my Labours, I have ſetled in the true Proteſtant Religion eſtabliſhed in England: I ſhall briefly name ſome of them, though I cannot in order of time as I converted them.

‘Henry Berkinſtead of Trinity Colledge Oxon, ſeduced by a Jeſuit and brought to London, (the Lords and others perceiving him to be Berchinhead, the Author of all the Libellous Popiſh Oxford Aulicuſſes, againſt the Parliament, at the naming of him ſmiled; which the Arch-biſhop perceiving, ſaid, My Lords, I mean not Brchinhead the Author of Oxford Aulicus, but another.)

‘Two Daughters of Sir Richard Lechford, in Surrey, ſent towards a Nunnery.

‘Two Schollers of Saint Johns Colledge Cambridge, Toppin and Aſhton, who had got the French Ambaſſadors Paſs, and after this I allowed means to Toppin, and then procured him a Fellowſhip

‘in

An. 1640.

‘in Saint Johns; and he is at this preſent as hopeful a Young Man as any of his time, and a Divine.

‘Sir William Webb, my Kinſman, and two of his Daughters, and his Son I took from him; and his Father being utterly decayed, I bred him at my own charge, and he is a very good Proteſtant.

‘A Gentleman brought to me by Mr. Chesford, His Majeſties Servant, but I cannot recall his name.

‘The Lord Mayo of Ireland, brought to me alſo by Mr. Chesford.

‘The Right Honourable the Lord Duke of Buckingham, almoſt quite gone between the Lady his Mother and Siſter.

‘The Lady Marqueſs Hamilton, was ſetled by my direction, and ſhe died very religiouſly, and a Proteſtant.

‘Mr. Digby, who was a Prieſt.

‘Mr. James, a Gentleman brought to me by a Miniſter in Buckinghamſhire, as I remember.

‘Dr. Heart the Civilian, my Neighbours Son at Fulham.

‘Mr. Chriſtopher Seaburn, a Gentleman of an antient Family in Herefordſhire.

‘The Right Honourable the Counteſs of Buckingham.

‘Sir William Spencer of Paruton.

‘Mr. Shillingworth.

‘The Sons and Heirs of Mr. Winchcomb, and Mr. Welleſcot, whom I ſent with their Friends liking to Wadham Colledge, Oxford; and received a certificate 1638 of their continuing in Conformity to the Church of England: Nor did ever any one of theſe named relapſe again, but only the Counteſs of Buckingham and Sir William Spencer; it being only in Gods power, not mine, to preſerve them from relapſe.

‘And now let any Clergy-man of England come forth and give a better account of his Zeal to the Church.

Here followeth ſome Paſſages concerning Auricular Confeſſion.

The Contents of Mr. Adams his Sermon about Auricular Confeſſion.

ONe Mr. Adams Preaching publickly in Saint Maries Church in Cambridge before the Univerſity, on John 20. 23. Whoſoever ſins ye remit they are remitted, &c. uſed theſe exorbitant Popiſh aſſertions touching confeſſion of ſins to Prieſts; that a ſpecial confeſſion unto a Prieſt (actually where time and opportunity preſents its ſelf, or otherwiſe in explicite intention, and reſolution) of all our ſins committed after Baptiſm, ſo far forth as we do remember, is neceſſary unto Salvation, in the judgement of Fathers, Schoolmen, and almoſt all Antiquity, not only neceſſitate præcepti, but alſo neceſſitate medii, ſo that according to the ordinary, or revealed means appointed by Chriſt, there can be no Salvation without the aforeſaid Confeſſion. That Chriſt intended this Confeſſion of our ſins in ſpecial before the Prieſt, for a neceſſary means to bring us to ſalvation; and to fruſtrate his intention or will through miſconceits, what were it more but an Argument no leſs of indiſcretion, than of madneſs and impiety? That God being an Enemy to all ſin will not pardon any, if we willingly conceal but one in our confeſſion to the Prieſt. That Confeſſion is as neceſſary to Salvation as the Miniſtry of Baptiſm, as neceſſary to Salvation as meat is to the Body.

That ſince Chriſt ordained a Tribunal-Seat of Judgement, where ſins ſhould be remitted or retained at the diſcretion of a lawful Miniſter (as was evident by the Text he did) then without doubt 'twas his intention that the Faithful ſhould neceſſarily confeſs all their ſins before the Prieſt, ſo far forth as they remember, for the purchaſing of his pardon and remiſſion. This he averred to be (as he conceived) the Doctrine of the Church of England, contained in our Lyturgie. That Confeſſion is a Duty of far more Antiquity and Extent than ever Popery was, in regard 'twas inſtituted by our Saviour, practiſed by the Apoſtles, the Holy Fathers and all ſucceeding Ages, and therefore though the Papiſts uſe it, it is not, it cannot be, as ſome would have it, a point of Popery; what! ſhall their errors in ſome Tenets prejudice the Truth in this? What! ſhall we refuſe the Grape becauſe the Stalk is withered? This were a Puritannical Novation-Nicety. I never heard of any thing but a fooliſh Cock that ever refuſed a Gem, though in a Dunghil.

Mr. Adams queſtioned for this Sermon.

The whole Sermon being to this effect, Dr. Ward, Dr. Love, Dr. Brownrig and Dr. Holdſworth, took exceptions againſt this Sermon, as Scandalous and Popiſh, whereupon Mr. Adams was Convented for it before the Vicechancellor and Heads, who both required and peruſed the Copy of his Sermon; which done the Vice-chancellor Dr. Brownrig, drew up this enſuing Recantation, which he enjoyned him to make in publick, to give ſatisfaction to thoſe whom his Sermon had ſcandalized.

WHereas, &c. on Sunday the 25*th* of June laſt, in my publick Sermon on theſe words (Saint John 20. 23. Whoſe ſins ye remit, they are remitted, and whoſe ſins ye retain, they are retained; I delivered this Doctrine, that a ſpecial confeſſion unto a Prieſt (actually, where time or opportunity preſents it ſelf, or otherwiſe in explicit intention, and reſolution) of all our ſins committed after Baptiſm, ſo far forth as we do remember, is neceſſary unto Salvation, not only neceſſitate præcepti, but alſo neceſſitate medii; ſo that according to the Ordinance, or revealed means appointed by Chriſt, there can be no Salvation without the aforeſaid Confeſſion; upon more mature thoughts, and better information, I do find that this Doctrine then delivered, was both erroneous, and dangerous, having not warrant from the word of God, and croſſing the Doctrine of our Church, as may appear by her Lyturgie in the ſecond Exhortation at the Communion, and in the Viſitation of the Sick, and in the ſecond part in the Homily of Repentance. As therefore in general, I do acknowledge in the words of the aforeſaid Homily, that it is moſt evident and plain, that this auricular Confeſſion hath not his warrant of Gods word, and that therefore being not led with the Conſcience thereof, if we with fear and trembling, and with a contrite heart, uſe that kind of Confeſſion, which God doth command in his word (namely an unfeigned Confeſſion unto Almighty God himſelf) then doubtleſs (as he is faithful and true) he will forgive us our ſins, and make us clean from all our wickedneſs; ſo in the caſe of a troubled, or doubtful Conſcience, I do conform my Opinion unto the direction of our Church, which in her Lyturgie doth exhort, and require thoſe whoſe Conſciences are troubled with any weighty matter to a ſpecial Confeſſion, ſo that they who cannot quiet their own Conſciences, are to repair to their own, or ſome other diſcreet and learned Miniſter of Gods Word to open to them their grief, that ſo they may receive ſuch ghoſtly Counſel, Advice and Comfort, as their Conſciences may be relieved, and by the Miniſtry of Gods word, they may receive Comfort and the Benefit of Abſolution to the quieting their Conſcience, and the avoiding of all ſcruple and doubtfulneſs. But it is againſt true Chriſtian liberty, that any man ſhould be bound to the numbering of his ſins, as it hath been uſed heretofore in times of ignorance and blindneſs. This I do acknowledge to be the Doctrine of the Church of England concerning Confeſſion, and to it I do ex animo, ſubſcribe, and am heartily ſorry for what ever I have delivered to the contrary.

Mr. Adams refuſed to make this Recantation, ſaying he was not conſcious to himſelf of any thing he had ſaid in his Sermon contrary to the Doctrine of the Church of England; whereupon at a full meeting of the Doctors it was put to the Vote whether this Recantation ſhould be enjoyned him or no, Dr. Ward, Dr. Bambridge, Dr. Banhcroft, Dr. Love, Dr. Holdſworth and the Vice-Chancellor voted he ſhould make this Recantation, but Dr. Collins, Dr. Smith, Dr. Cumber, Dr. Couſin, Dr. Lany, Dr. Martin, Dr. Stern, and Dr. Eden voted againſt the making of it; ſo Mr. Adams without making any Submiſſion or Recantation at all was diſmiſſed, and the whole proceedings in this buſineſs were ſent up to the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, and found in his Study at the Tower indorſed with his own hand thus, received March 16. 1637. Dr. Couſins Letter about the proceedings of Brownrig Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge againſt Mr. Adams, for his Sermon about Confeſſion, Jan. 25. 1637; and ſo this matter ſlept.

Mr. Croxton recommended by the Arch-Biſhop for preferment.

Dr. Laud Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury thought fit to recommend to Sir Thomas Wentworth, the Lord Deputy of Ireland, one Mr. Croxton a young Miniſter, requeſting his Lordſhip to take notice of him, not doubting but as it ſhall fall in his Lordſhips way, that he will beſtow ſome preferment on him for his maintenance, for which the Lord Arch-Biſhop would thank his Lordſhip.

Upon which recommendation the Lord Deputy promoted Mr. Croxton to Eccleſiaſtical preferments there, as it appears by his Letters of thanks to the Arch-Biſhop, in ſome of which he gives him the Title of Holineſs, and moſt Holy Father; and in his Letter dated and directed to him as Metrapolitan, &c. at Goran, April. 19. 1638. made the ſign of the † on the top of the firſt page of his Letter, a branch of which Letter was as followeth.

My Lord, In humbleſt manner I beg your gratious acceptance of this juſt as neceſſary duty; whilſt I make an unqueſtionable relation of that which ſo nearly concerns my ſelf. To provide the beſt I could for the more worthy receiving of the Holy Communion this laſt Eaſter, I have (I thank God for it) been able in ſome meaſure, to do that here which able men have ſufficiently ſpoken of elſewhere; I have ſacramentally heard the Confeſſions of the People committed to my charge in Goran (a certain through-fare Town in the County of Kilkeny in the the Chancel, they kneeliug before the Altar) this is every where now accounted a moſt ſtrnge Act without all Warrant, &c.

Which Letter was thus Indorſed with the Arch-Biſhops own hand, received July 6. 1638. Mr. Croxton his receiving of Confeſſion——

Here followeth an Abſtract of Acts which paſſed in the beginning of the Parliament, which met Novemb. 3. 1640, In the 16*th* year of the Reign of King Charles the firſt.

1. An Act for the preventing of Inconveniencies happening by the long Intermiſſion of Parliaments.

Repealed and Altered, 16 Car. 2. cap. 1.

BE it Enacted, firſt, That in caſe there be not a Parliament ſummoned by Writ under the Great Seal of England, and aſſembled and held before the 10*th* day of September, which ſhall be in the third year next after the laſt day of the laſt meeting, and ſitting of this preſent Parliament; the beginning of the firſt year to be accounted, from the laſt meeting and ſitting. And ſo from time to time, and at all times hereafter, if there ſhall not be a Parliament before the tenth day of September in the third year, next after the laſt day of the laſt meeting, and ſitting before that time aſſembled and held; then in every ſuch caſe the Parliament ſhall be aſſembled and held in the uſual place of Weſtminſter, on the ſecond Munday, which ſhall be in the Month of November then next enſuing, &c. See the Act at large in the Statute 16 Car. 1.

2. An Act for the Relief of His Majeſties Army, and the Northern parts of the Kingdom. Exp.

3. An Act for the Reforming of ſome things miſtaken in the late Act made this preſent Parliament, for the granting of four Subſidies.

4. An Act for the further Relief of His Majeſties Army in the Northern parts of the Kingdom. Exp.

5. An Act for the better Raiſing and Levying of Marriners, Sailers, and others for the preſent guarding of the Seas, and neceſſary defence of the Realm. Exp.

6. An Act concerning the Limitation and Abreviation of Mich. Term.

THat the Term of Saint Michael yearly for ever, from and after the Feaſt of Saint Michael next coming, being in or upon tres ſeptimanas Sancti Michaelis, except it be the Lords day, called Sunday, for the keeping of Eſſoyns, Proffers, Returns, and other Ceremonies. And that the full Term of Saint Michael for ever, from and after the firſt day of Saint Michael, next coming, take Commencement upon quarto die of the ſaid Tres Septimanas Sancti Michaelis, and not before.

7. An Act to prevent Inconveniencies by the untimely Adjourning of the Parliament,

Ann. 17 Car.

THat this preſent Parliament now aſſembled ſhall not be diſſolved, unleſs it be by Act of Parliament to be paſſed for that purpoſe, nor ſhall be at any time or times, during the continuance thereof prorogued or adjourned, unleſs it be by Act of Parliament to be paſſed for that purpoſe, and the Houſe of Peers at any time or times, during this Parliament, ſhall not be adjourned unleſs it be by themſelves or their own order. And in like manner for the Houſe of Commons. And all and every thing done for the Adjournment, Prorogueing, or Diſſolving of this Preſent Parliament contrary to this Act, ſhall be utterly void.

8. A Subſidie granted to the King of Tonnage, Poundage and other ſums of mony, payable upon Merchandiſe, Exported and Imported.

THat it is and hath been the antient Right of the Subjects of this Realm, that no Subſidy, Cuſtom, Import, or other Charge whatſoever, ought or may be laid upon any Merchandiſe Exported or Imported, by any Subjects, Denizens, or Aliens, without conſent in Parliament.

Neverthleſs the Commons taking into Conſideration the great Peril that might enſue for not guarding of the Seas, in caſe the ſaid ſums ſhould upon the ſuddain be forbidden to be paid. 1. Grant to the Kings Majeſty a Subſidy called Tunnage, viz. upon every Tun of Sweet-Wine, that is, or ſhall come into this Realm, or any of His Majeſties Dominions, by way of Merchandiſe. 2. And of every Tun of Sweet-Wines, as well Malmeſey or others. 3. And ſo likewiſe other ſums upon other Commodities.

In which Act it is declared, that if any Cuſtomer, Comptroler, Officer or other Perſons, that after the determination of this Grant, ſhall take or receive the ſaid Subſidy, ſum of Mony, or other Impoſition upon Merchandiſe whatſoever, Exported or Imported, except by Grant in Parliament it ſhall be due, ſhall incur the forfeitures provided by the Statute of 16 R. 2. of Premuniary.

9. An Act for the ſpeedy Proviſion of Mony for disbanding the Army, and ſetling the Peace of the two Kingdoms of England and Scotland Exp.

10. An Act for the Regulating of the Privy Council, and for taking away the Court, commonly called the Star-Chamber.

THat the Court commonly called the Star-Chamber, and all Juriſdiction, Power and Authority, belonging unto, or exerciſed in the ſaid Court, by any of the Judges, Officers or Miniſters thereof, from the firſt of Auguſt 1641, be abſolutely diſſolved and taken away and determined. And all and every Act and Acts of Parliament, and every Article, Clauſe and Sentence in them, and every of them, by which any Juriſdiction, Power or Authority is given unto the ſaid Court, or unto all, or any the Judges, Officers or Miniſters thereof, or for any proceedings to be had in the ſaid Court, or for any matter or thing therein to be drawn in queſtion, examined and determined, ſhall for ſo much as concerneth the ſaid Court, be from the firſt of Auguſt 1641 repealed and abſolutely revoked and made void.

2. That the like juriſdiction exerciſed in the Court before the Preſident and Council of Wales, before the Preſident and Council of the Northern Parts, in the Court called the Court of the Dutchy of Lanchaſter, held before the Chancellor and Council of the Court, in the Court of Exchequer of the County Palatine of Cheſter, before the Chamberlain and Council of the Court, ſhall from the firſt of Auguſt 1641 be alſo repealed and abſolutely revoked and made void.

3. That neither His Majeſty, nor His Privy Council have, or ought to have any Juriſdiction, Power or Authority by Engliſh Bill, Petition, Articles, Libel or other Arbitrary way to examine, or draw in queſtion, determine or diſpoſe of the Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods or Chattels, of any of the Subjects of this Kingdom.

4. That if any Perſon ſhall be committed, reſtrained of his Liberty, or ſuffer Impriſonment, by the Order or Decree of the Court of Star-Chamber, Courts holden before the Preſident of the Marches of Wales, Courts of Dutchy of Lancaſter, Court of Exchequer of the County Palatine of Cheſter, or by the Command or Warrant of the Kings Majeſty, His Heirs or Succeſſors in their own Perſons, or by Command or Warrant of the Council-Board, or by any of the Lords or otherwiſe of His Majeſties Privy Council; in every ſuch caſe the Perſon committed or reſtrained of his liberty, or ſuffering of Impriſonment, upon demand or motion of His Council, or other imployed by him, ſhall have a Writ of Habeas Corpus, to all and every Sheriff, Goaler, or other Perſon in whoſe Cuſtody the Perſon Committed or Reſtrained ſhall be at the return of the ſaid Writ, at the charge of the Party ſhall forthwith cauſe to be brought the body of the Party ſo committed before the Judge or Juſtices of the ſaid Court, from whence the Writ ſhall iſſue forth in open Court. And the Court within three days after ſuch return made, ſhall proceed to examine whether the cauſe of ſuch Commitment be Juſt or legal or not, containing alſo a penalty upon the Lord Chancellor and Keeper of the Great ſeal, or any Privy Councellor or Judge, who ſhall do any thing contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Law, Particularizing what the penalty ſhall be.

11. A Repeal of the Branch of a Statute primo Elizabethæ concerning Commiſſioners, or Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical.

THat whereas in the Statute of 1 Eliz. Cap. 1. there is a Clauſe to this effect, viz. That the Queens Majeſty, Her Heirs and Succeſſors ſhall have power and authority, by that Act by Tres Patent' under the Great Seal of England, to aſſign, name, and authorize ſuch perſon and perſons, being natural born Subjects to her Highneſs, as She, her Heirs or Succeſſors ſhould think meet, to exerciſe, uſe, and execute under her Highneſs, her Heirs, or Succeſſors, all manner of Juriſdiction, Privileges and Preheminences touching or concerning any Spiritual Juriſdiction, within her Realms of England and Ireland, or any her Highneſs Dominions or Countries. And to uſe, reform, redreſs, order, correct, and amend all Errors, Hereſies, Schiſms, Abuſes, Offences, Contempts and Enormities whatſoever, which by any manner, Spiritual or Eccleſiaſtical Power, Authority, or Juriſdiction can or may be lawfully reformed, ordered, redreſſed, corrected, reſtrained, or amended; and that ſuch perſons ſo to be aſſigned, named, authorized, and appointed by and after the ſaid Tres Patent', to him or them made and delivered, ſhould have full power and authority by vertue of that Act, and of the ſaid Tres Patent', to exerciſe, uſe, and execute all the premiſſes, according to the tenour and effect of the ſaid Tres Patent'.

1. Its Enacted by Parliament, That the ſaid Branch, Clauſe, Article, Sentence, and every manner and thing in that Branch ſhall from henceforth be repealed, annulled, revoked, and utterly made void for ever.

2. That no Archbiſhops, Biſhops, nor Vicar-General, Chancellor, or Official, nor Commiſſary of any Archbiſhop, Biſhop, or Vicar-General, or any other Spiritual or Eccleſiaſtical Judge, Officer, or Miniſter, exerciſing any Spiritual or Eccleſiaſtical powers by any Grant, Licence or Commiſſion from the King, his Heirs or Succeſſors, ſhall from and after the firſt of Auguſt 1641, award, impoſe, or inflict any Pain, Penalty, Fine, Amercement, Impriſonment, or other corporal puniſhment upon any of the Kings Subjects, for any contempt, miſdemeanour, crime, matter, or thing whatſoever belonging to Spiritual or Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, or ſhall ex officio, or otherwiſe tender, give, or miniſter unto any Church-warden, Sideman or any other perſon whatſoever, any corporal Oath to make any Preſentment of any crime or offence, or to confeſs or accuſe himſelf of any crime or offence, delinquency, quency, or miſdemeanour, whereby or by reaſon whereof he or ſhe may be liable to any pain, penalty or puniſhment whatſoever, upon pain to forfeit to every Party ſo grieved treble damages, and 100 l. to him or them that ſhall firſt demand or ſue for the ſame, the ſaid treble damages, and 100 l. to be demanded and recovered by Action of Debt, in any Court of Record, wherein no Priviledge is Eſſoyned, Protection or Wager of Law ſhall be allowed the Defendant: And every Perſon for any act or offence prohibited by this Statute ſhall be diſabled to continue in any Office or Imployment of Juſtice, or to exerciſe any Authority by force of any Commiſſion or Letters Patents of the King, His Heirs and Succeſſors.

That after the firſt of Auguſt (41.) no new Courts ſhall be erected, ordained or appointed within the Realm of England, and Dominion of Wales, that ſhall have the like Power, Juriſdiction, or Authority, as the High-Commiſſion Court hath or pretendeth to have; but all ſuch Letters Patents, Commiſſions, and Grants, made, or to be made, by the King, His Heirs or Succeſſors, and all Powers and Authorities granted, or mentioned to be given thereby, and all Acts, Sentences, and decrees made by vertue and colour thereof, ſhall be utterly void.

12. A Subſidy granted to the King of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money payable upon Merchandize Exported and Imported. Exp.

13. An Act for the ſecuring of ſuch Monies as are or ſhall be due from the Inhabitants of the County of York, and the other adjoyning Counties; wherein His Majeſties Army is or hath been Billited for the Billit of the Soldiers of the ſaid Army.

14. An Act for the declaring unlawful, and void the late Proceedings touching Ship-Money, and for the vacuating all Records and Proceſs concerning the ſame.

THat the Charge impoſed upon the Subject for providing and furniſhing of Ships, commonly called Ship-Money, and the extra-judicial Opinions of the Juſtices and Barons, and the Writs, and every of them, and the Agreement or Opinion of the greater part of the Juſtices and Barons, and the Judgment given againſt John Hampden Eſq; for the Payment of Ship-money, were, and are contrary to, and againſt the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, the Right of Property, the Liberty of the Subjects, former Reſolutions of Parliament, and the Petition of Right made in the third year of His Majeſty that now is.

That all and every the Particulars prayed and deſired in the Petition of Right, ſhall from henceforth be put in execution, and ſhall be firmly and ſtrictly holden and obſerved, as in the ſame Petition they

An. 1640. they are prayed aud expreſſed; and that all and every the Records and Remembrances of all and every the ſaid Judgments againſt the ſaid John Hampden, and all and every the Proceedings whatſoever upon or by colour of any of the ſaid Writs, called Ship-Writs, and all and every the Defendants on every of them, ſhall be adjudged to all intents, conſtructions and purpoſes, to be utterly void, and that all and every the ſaid Judgment, Inrollment, Entries, Proceedings, and Dependants of what kind ſoever, ſhall be vacated and cancelled, in ſuch manner and form as Records uſe to be that are vacated.

15. An Act againſt divers Incroachments and Oppreſſions in the Stannery Courts.

16. An Act for the certainty of Forreſts, and of the Meets, Meers, Limits, and Bounds of the Forreſts.

Balfield Cler. verſus Poppleton & al.

THe Defendant Nelſon having conceived malice againſt the Plaintiff, being an Aged Miniſter, and of very ſmall Eſtate, vowed to be revenged of him, and to beggar him; and to that end the Defendants riotouſly aſſembled themſelves upon the Plaintiffs Glebe, and digged ſeveral Trenches therein, and the Plaintiffs Wife coming thither, and perſwading them to deſiſt; Nelſon aſſaulted her, beat her, and dragged her on the ground; And the Defendant Nelſon, being an Attorny, ſued out a Writ of Priviledge againſt the Plaintiff for a pretended old Debt of forty ſhillings, and procured Warrant thereupon to be directed to the Defendant Poppleton, who by colour thereof, by the procurement of the other Defendants, arreſted the Plaintiff in his Pariſh Church upon Good Friday, when he and his Pariſhioners attended to receive and celebrate the Holy Communion, and refuſed to accept any Bail for him; and the Plaintiff thereupon withdrawing himſelf into the Veſtry, the Defendants round beſet the Church, and vowed to pine and ſtarve the Plaintiff there unleſs he would preſently render himſelf to them, and to that end they continued in the Church in diſorderly manner day and night till Eaſter day in the Morning, and diſordered themſelves with exceſſive drinking, and did violently aſſault and beat the Plaintiffs Wife and Children in the Church-yard as they were coming with food to relieve him, and on Eaſter day, before the Plaintiff had fully ended the Celebration of the Communion, the Defendant Poppleton again Arreſted him, and refuſed Bail, and he and others of the Defendants forcibly carried him out of the Church in his Surplice to an Alehouſe, and the next day to the Goal, and there charged him with an Outlawry for a ſuppoſed Debt for which he had an Acquittance, and there kept him eight days without Bail, though ſufficient Bail were offered. And for theſe offences they were all committed to the Fleet: And Nelſon, for beating the Plaintiff on the Glebe-Lands, fined twenty pounds; Poppleton fined two hundred pounds, and two others twenty pounds apiece; and Poppleton to be ſet in the Pillory, with a Paper declaring his offence, and there, as alſo in the Plaintiffs Pariſh Church to ask him forgiveneſs, and in like manner to ask God, his Majeſty and the Plaintiff forgiveneſs in the Cathedral Church at York, kneeling upon his Knees in ſome eminent place of the Church, and the Decree to be read at both Churches after Service and Sermon ended, and the Defendants convicted to pay the Plaintiff one hundred pounds Damages.

Beverly verſus Power & al. Spitting in the Plaintiffs Face and kicking him. Plaintiff and Defendant both fined. Damage to the Defendants for ſcandal.

The Defendant Power meeting the Plaintiff in the High Way did ſpit in his face, and at another time kickt the Plaintiff with his Spurs as he followed him up Sir James Leigh his Stairs in Lincolns Inn, and for theſe offences was committed to the Fleet, and fined 200 l. And for that the Plaintiff had charged the Defendants with other foul Crimes, whereof they made no manner of Proof, but deſerted it, at the Hearing, the Court held it a meer Libel and Scandal, and Fined the Plaintiff 500 l. and to pay 500 Marks damages to two of the Defendants, and 100 l. Damages to three others who were charged to be Agents and Actors in the Conſpiracy with the other Defendants.

Remington & al. verſus Allen & al. Conſpiracy to Indict of Barratry. Raiſing a common Purſe to Proſecute the ſame. Labouring of Jurors.

The Defendants out of Malice to the Plaintiffs, and by Conſpiracy met together, and procured an Indictment of Barratry againſt the Plaintiffs, and deviſed and put in writing certain Articles againſt them, and agreed who ſhould depoſe and ſwear to the ſame, and made a Common Purſe to maintain the ſaid Indictment and Articles, and other neceſſary occaſions at the Aſſizes, and at the next Quarter Seſſions they did prefer thoſe Indictments and Articles to the Grand Jury, and deſired their favours therein, and ſaid they would be thankful unto them for it, and then the Plaintiffs upon the Defendants evidence were found Guilty by the Jury, but Traverſed the ſame, and were thereupon atquitted, although the Defendants did labour ſome of that Jury alſo for their favours, and promiſed them to be thankful for it, and for this they were all committed to the Fleet, Chambers Fined 200 l. and the others 300 Marks apiece.

Alexander verſus Yates. Falſifying a Copy of a Record, and offering to miſlead the Court in Judgment by it.

THe Plaintiff againſt the Hearing of the Cauſe, finding that he had but one Poſitive Witneſs againſt the Defendant, and that the Teſtimony of his other Witneſs was but upon Hearſay, did to bring about his ends, and to miſlead the Court in judgment, alter his Coppies by ſtriking out the words (that and did,) and by that means made it a Poſitive Depoſition, and cauſed it to be ſo read in Court: And for this offence he was committed, Fined 500 l. to acknowledge his offence in this Court, diſabled to practiſe as a Counſellour at Law, referred to the Governours of Lincolns Inn, to expel him the Houſe, and to pay Mr. Nevil his Attourneys Clerk, on whom he endeavoured to lay the offence, 100 l. damages.

Houghton verſus Hamſhire & al.

The Plaintiff having with much labour gotten one Thomſon arreſted at his ſuit upon a Bond of 400 l. the Bailiffs brought him to the Defendant Jordens houſe, being a Common Inn; and Jorden, being then alſo Conſtable, promiſed their Priſoner ſhould be ſafe; yet about Eleven and twelve of the Clock in the Night he and the other Defendants, one of Comes Cumbrie aerſus York Knight, & al.

Killing the Plaintiffs Deer in Appletreewick Fields.

THe Defendant Sir John York often gave direction to the Defendants Fenton and John York to hunt and kill Deer in Appletreewick fields, and accordingly they with others in 19 Jacobi with a Gun ſhot one of the Plaintiffs Stags feeding in one of his Grounds, and purſued him with a Bloud-hound; and being interrupted by one of the Keepers, Fenton bent the Cock of his Piece, and leveled it at the Plaintiffs Servant; and John York ſaid they would hunt and kill the Deer at their pleaſure: And Fenton at another time in Sir John Yorks preſence, and by his direction ſhot with his Gun at ten of the Plaintiffs Stags in Appletreewick fields, and Sir John in a haughty manner ſent the Plaintiff word he would hunt and kill Deer there if he could, and for this Hunting, and uſing braving and provoking ſpeeches, they were committed to the Fleet, Sir John Fined 200 l. Fenton 100 l. and John York 50 l. but the title touching the bounds of the Plaintiffs Chace of Skipton and Barden, and touching the Rights and Bounds of the Defendants Mannor of Appletreewick the Court would not meddle with, but left it to the Law without prejudice on either ſide.

Hambury & al. verſus Jones & al.

Maintenance of an Action in the name of one of the Plaintiffs.

The Defendant John Jones Eſquire, taking notice of a ſuit between John Thayer the Younger, one of the now Plaintiffs againſt John Thayer the Elder, his Brother, upon a Bond, forfeited for not performing an Award, often and earneſtly ſolicited one Wood an Attorney to follow the ſaid Cauſe with Effect, and promiſed, and undertook to pay the ſaid Wood all his Diſburſements thereabouts, and gave Wood directions to ſue forth a Latitate againſt him, and promiſed to procure Witneſſes againſt the Trial, and to be thankful to them, and to gratifie them for the ſame; and the cauſe being brought to iſſue, Judgment was Indirectly obtained, and an Execution ſued out by the ſaid John Jones his direction to levy a Debt of 40 l. and 9 l. for Charges; and the ſaid Thayer the Elder hearing of it, cauſed a Writ of Errour and Superſedeas to be ſued out, and a Superſedeas to be delivered to the Sheriffs Deputy, who gave notice thereof to the Sheriff; yet the Defendant John Jones having alſo Notice of the ſaid Superſedeas, and of the Sheriffs knowledge of it very earneſtly by threats and otherwiſe laboured and perſwaded the Sheriff to execute the ſaid Writ, and to Levy the ſaid Debt and Coſts, and offered to be bound to ſave the Sheriffs harmleſs;

Extortion by colour of being Clerk to a Regiſter of Glouceſter.

And the Defendant Gilbert Jones likewiſe laboured the Sheriff to execute the ſaid Writ, although he knew of the Superſedeas, and the Defendant John Addams being Clerk or Deputy to the Defendant John Jones, Regiſter of Glouceſter, did by colour of his Place extort for the Probate of a Will 6 s. over and above the due Fees, and for this Maintenance and Endeavour to pervert Juſtice, John and Gilbert Jones were both committed to the Fleet; John Fined 200 Marks, and Gilbert 20 l. and Addams for his Extortion was Committed and Fined 40 l.

Forgery of a Deed.

THe Defendant Watſon having gotten into his Cuſtody a Deed of certain Lands, made by John Shaw, the Grandfather to John Shaw the Son, in the Habendum whereof was contained an Eſtate Tail limited, John the Son did Forge and procure the other Defendant Richard Barrow to Forge and Write another Deed of the ſame date; and agreeing in all points with the true Deed, ſaving that in the Habendum of the falſe Deed, he made it to contain an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, limited to the ſaid John Shaw the Son and his Heirs, and thereto ſubſcribed the name of John Shaw the Grandfather, with his hand and Seal thereunto, and Endorced, or procured to be Endorced on the back-ſide of the ſaid forged Deed, the true names of the Witneſſes, as teſtifying the ſealing and delivery thereof, and Execution of livery thereupon; And at a Trial in September 17. Jacobi publiſhed and juſtified the ſaid falſe Deed to be a true Deed, thereby to make good his Title to the ſaid Lands, and the now Plaintiffs thereupon Exhibiting their Bill into Chancery againſt Watſon, they examined Barrow as a Witneſs, and there he truly confeſt that he writ the ſaid Forged Deed at Watſons earneſt ſolicitation, out of a Copy which Watſon delivered him, written with his the ſaid Watſons own hand; yet afterwards the ſaid Barrow, by the ſubornation of the ſaid Watſon, falſely depoſed before a Maſter of the Chancery, that the now Plaintiffs procured him to confeſs upon his ſaid Examination as a Witneſs that he writ the ſaid Forged Deed out of a Copy delivered to him by the Defendant Watſon, and that they promiſed him 40 l. for the ſame, and that thereby, and by the threats of one of the Plaintiffs, then Commiſſioners, he was drawn to confeſs that he writ the ſaid Deed, when as in truth he never made the ſaid Deed; and for this Forgery and ſubornation of Perjury Watſon was Committed to the Fleet, bound to his good behaviour, Fined 200 l. for the Forgery, and 200 l. more for the ſubornation of Perjury, and to ſtand in the Pillory at Weſtminſter, and in the Country, with a Paper on his head, declaring the nature of his offence, and his ears nailed to the Pillory; and Barrow in reſpect of his Confeſſion and Penitency at the Bar, and for that he was drawn thereto by Watſon, for fear of him, to whom he ſtood indebted, and was not able to ſatisfie him, was only Committed, and Fined 100 l. for the Forgery, and to wear Papers on his head declaring his offence of wilful Perjury, and both of them to pay the Plaintiff 100 l. Damages.

Woodrow verſus Criſp & al.

THe Defendant Dorothy Criſpe took upon her to cure the Plaintiffs Son of the Falling-ſickneſs, and had 20 l. given her in hand, and was to have 20 l. more when he was perfectly cured; and the ſaid Dorothy, under pretence of the more conveniency to work the Cure, got the Plaintiff to place her Son at a Houſe near to the ſaid Defendants Houſe; and having a ſecret intention in the time of his weakneſs to procure him to marry her Daughter Eleanor Criſpe, who then was a Servant, and attended a Lady; ſhe firſt endeavoured to perſuade the Plaintiffs Son that Marriage would be a great means to procure his Recovery, and told him that ſhe knew a Gentleman that was cured by it: And the better to accompliſh her deſign, got him home to her own Houſe, and endeavoured to draw and allure the Servant that attended him to further her deſign; but he, not yielding to it, gave notice to his Mother that he was not bettered by the ſaid Dorothies cure, but grew weaker both in body and mind through the violence and continuance of his Fits; the Plaintiff took him home to her houſe, and kept him there from May till October. And then the ſaid Dorothy continuing her Reſolution to make a prey of the ſaid Plaintiffs Son, who had a great Eſtate left him by his Father, and a poſſibility of a great increaſe thereto by the Plaintiff his Mother, perſwaded the Plaintiff to let her have her Son home again, pretending that by taking the benefit of the ſeaſon of the year, being then the Fall of the Leaf, and of the Spring following, (ſhe confidently aſſured the Plaintiff) ſhe would perfectly recover him thereof; and having by this perſwaſion gotten him again into her Houſe, ſhe then upon a falſe ſuggeſtion got his Servant, who formerly attended him, to be turned away, and procured the Defendant Lancellot Ainſworth, a fit Inſtrument for her purpoſe, to be appointed to attend him; and then acquainted all the Defendants with her purpoſe of marrying the Plaintiffs ſaid Son to the Defendant Eleanor; and for that purpoſe ſent for her home from Service, and cauſed the Defendant Anthony Criſpe to provide a Wedding Ring, and to get a Licenſe in readineſs to Authorize their Marriage, for the obtaining whereof, the ſaid Anthony Criſpe, with others, entred into a Bond of 100 l. with condition that there was no let or impediment but they might lawfully marry; and that they ſhould not proceed to marry without conſent of Parents or Governours; and thereupon obtained a Licenſe, directed to the Miniſter of the Pariſh, who refuſed to meddle therewith, and perſwaded the Defendant Dorothy to deſiſt from her practice; yet ſhe by practice with the other Defendants gave him ſundry Potions, and endeavoured by many perſwaſions, and taking advantage of his inſenſibility, by giving him over-much Wine, to take a liking to the Defendant Eleanor, telling him his Mother was content with it; and in the end, when by reaſon of the weakneſs of his body and underſtanding they knew not well how to effect their deſire, the Defendants agreed together immediately after his next Fit to ſolemnize the Marriage, which they effected accordingly, the Plaintiffs ſaid Son being at that time without common ſenſe or underſtanding, and ſcarce able to utter the words of Matrimony, although the Defendant Hugh Jones, that married them, helped and directed him the beſt he could; and then the ſaid Defendant Eleanor, with the advice and direction of the other Defendants, Practice to marry the Plaintiffs Son in his great weakneſs and ſickneſs, whereof he died, to the end to make a prey of his Eſtate.

An. 1625.

All benefit of the Marriage taken away by this Decree from the Defendant.

Defendants, ſued for Alimony out of the ſaid Plaintiffs Sons Eſtate: And for this foul practice the Defendants were all committed to the Fleet, Dorothy Criſpe Fined 500 l. Eleanor 500 l. Anthony Criſpe 300 l. Lancellot Ainſworth 250 l. and Hugh Jones Clerk 200 l. And to diſcourage others from the like attempts, the Court further decreed, that the ſaid Eleanor Criſpe, alias Woodrow, and all claiming from or by her, ſhould be barred and excluded from claiming any manner of benefit or advantage by Dower, or by the Cuſtom of the City of London, or otherwiſe, out of the real or perſonal Eſtate of the Plaintiffs ſaid Son ſince deceaſed.

Broadgate verſus Glover & al.

Deeds damned though no body ſentenced for the Forgery, and poſſeſſion given to the Defendants, although three Verdicts had paſt againſt their Title.

The Bill was exhibited for and concerning the forging, framing, and publiſhing a Deed of Feoffment ſuppoſed to be made by William Glover deceaſed, Grandfather to the Defendant William Glover, of divers Meſſuages, Lands, and Tenements in Hellidon in the County of Northampton, to defeat the Plaintiff and other Purchaſers of the Lands by them purchaſed, by William Glover, Father of the Defendant William Glover; And upon the hearing, albeit the Court could not ſentence any of the Defendants for the Forgery, or for publiſhing the Deed, knowing it to be forged, yet upon comparing the Deed with other true Deeds, and upon conſideration of ſundry forcible Circumſtances and violent Preſumptions, the Court was ſatisfied; adjudged, and decreed, that the Deed complained of was a forged Deed, and that it ſhould be damned and made void, never to be given in evidence after; and withal ſetled the Plaintiffs and their Heirs in the quiet poſſeſſion of the Lands in queſtion, never to be again moleſted for the ſame, although three Verdicts and a Judgment by Nihil dicit had formerly paſt in countenance of the ſaid forged Deed, and affirmation of the Defendants Title, and all thoſe Verdicts and Judgments were ordered to be of no uſe, benefit, or advantage to the Defendants, or any other claiming from, by, or under them.

Publiſhing of libellous Songs.

THe Defendant bearing malice to the Plaintiff did at ſeveral times and places, and to ſeveral perſons in Alehouſes, and elſewhere, publiſh, divulge, and ſing ſeveral Libels to the ſcandal of the Plaintiff, and alleged the Plaintiff was intended thereby; one of which Libels was intituled, A proper Song of a great Blockhead Woollen-Draper, dwelling in Holborn, who gave a Tailors Wiſe a Yard of old Frize for a Jerkin, &c. and contained obſcene and ſcurrilous matter, not fit to be recited; and for this they were committed to the Fleet, Bennet fined 500 Marks, Aylet 200 l. and Longdale 100 Marks: But the Court would give the Plaintiff no damages, becauſe he took delight in repetition of the Libel, and becauſe he was of ſuſpected life and converſation.

Attor. Regis Rel. Tho. Whitlache verſus Moody Armig. & Uxor.

THe Defend. Moody conceiving malice againſt the Relator for contracting Mary Rud, his Wives Daughter, unto one Charles Adyn, Nephew to the ſaid Moody; and the Marriage coming after in queſtion in the Court of Arches, the Defendant Moody alſo grew offended with Sir William Byrd Knight, then Judge of the ſaid Court, for granting a Sequeſtration of the body of the ſaid Mary, and a Licence to Marry her, and thereupon the ſaid Moody framed two libellous Letters, one in the name of his Wife, whereto ſhe ſet her hand after it was tranſcribed by a ſervant, and directed and ſent it to Mrs. Adyn, and another in his own name directed and ſent to the ſaid Mrs. Adyn, in which firſt Letter the Defendant did not only ſcandal the Court of Arches, terming it to be the Lemman Court, where none but Lemmans and Knaves ſeek their prey: And the Law thereof the cruel Law, with other ſcandalous and malitious terms and phraſes. But did alſo therein endeavour to lay an imputation and ſcandal upon the ſaid Sir William Bird, then Judg of the ſaid Court, and all others the Doctors and Proctors, and Officers of the Court, terming them Wolves that live by the rapine of innocent and harmleſs Virgins, and the other Letter contained the like phraſes: And the Defendant, Moody, afterwards read and publiſhed both the ſaid libellous Letters unto one Elizabeth Farnaby; and for this Moody and his wiſe were both Committed to the Fleet, he Fined 200 l. and ſhe 100 l. and Mr. Moody to come into this Court, and in humble and ſubmiſſive manner under his hand acknowledg his great offence in falſly ſcandalizing both the ſaid Court and Judg.

Scandal of the Court of Arches and the Judg and Officers thereof.

Bridges, Eſq; ver. Meek.

The Defendant, Meeke, taking upon him to Solicite Cauſes, and underſtanding of a Judgment entred of Record againſt the Plaintiff and one Vaughan, in the name of one Baker, about ſixteen years then paſt, upon a Bond of 200 l. wherein the Plaintiff bound as Surety for Vaughan, procured the Bond and Judgment to be Aſſigned over to himſelf, but to the uſe of one Walter Meek, his Uncle, and thereupon cauſed a Writ of Scire facias to be Sued out upon the ſaid Judgment, againſt the Plaintiff, and an Execution againſt his body, both directed to the Sheriffs of London, and in Eaſter-Term, 22. Jac. procured the Plaintiff to be Arreſted on a feigned Action of 300 l. in London, at the Suit of one Lewes, but without his privity, warrant, or conſent, and after he had been in Cuſtody about an hour and half, the Defendant Meek then cauſed him to be Arreſted upon the Execution, whereby he was compelled to pay 203 l. although as the Court conceived the Debt was long before ſatisfied. And for this the Defendant, William Meeke, was Committed and Fined 500 Marks. And for that it appeared that the Defendant being convented before the Plaintiff, for a miſdemeanour, kept his Hat on his Head, and being drunk anſwered him very contemptuouſly, and after in ſeveral Ale-houſes termed him ſhitten Juſtice, and Juſtice Break-peace, the Court Ordered him to be bound to the good behaviour, and withal Ordered that the Ale-houſe-keeper in whoſe houſe he was made drunk, being the Witneſs in this Cauſe, ſhould be put down and diſabled for three years to keep an Ale-houſe.

Attor. Regis ore tenus verſus Tho. Perkins.

Scandal of His Majeſty, His Privy-Council and Judges, by libellous and ſeditious Letters.

Seditious opposing His Majeſties ſervices.

The Defendant at ſuch time as His Majeſties Commiſſioners, for Collection of the Loan-mony, were to meet and ſit at Nottingham, ſcattered in the High-way, as the Freeholders were to come to the Town, divers Libellous, Scandalous, and Seditious Letters, both againſt the King and State, directed to Freeholders and true hearted Engliſh men, with intent to diſſuade all the Freeholders of the ſaid County of Nottingham, from yielding to ſubſcribe to the ſaid Loans, or to furniſh the King with any mony, but ſuch as ſhould be required in a Parliamentary courſe, and therein diſloyally ſlandered His Majeſty and Privy Council with injuſtice, oppreſſion and cruelty: affirmeth that His Majeſty, by this courſe of raiſing mony, did lay a Tax and Burthen on the Country heavier than they were able to bear, that this courſe was deviſed of purpoſe to ſubvert the power of Parliaments, that ſo the poor Country might be opprest without any means of redreſs, and great Offenders, the Blood-ſuckers of the Common-Wealth, eſcape without queſtioning and puniſhment, and that this courſe at once deſtroys all the Freedom of our Nation, and that if this courſe of raiſing mony, without Law, be yielded unto, they ſhould never ſee more Parliaments, but they and their Poſterity ſhould be ſlaves for ever: and thereby alſo laid a foul aſperſion, and falſe imputation upon all the Judges; falſly affirming that they withſtood this courſe as againſt Law, and ſeditiouſly laid an aſperſion, and endeavoured to bring envy and reproach upon all ſuch as either had or ſhould yield and condeſcend to theſe Loans, falſly and malitiouſly charging them that they did betray their own Liberties,, either for baſe fear, or to curry favour with Great Ones, and laſtly did moſt ſeditiouſly adviſe the Freeholders to Unite themſelves together, and if they meant to preſerve their Rights and Eſtates to Poſterity, they ſhould reſolutely with a common conſent refuſe to give mony any way but by Parliament, and that by yielding they would become the inſtruments of ther own bondage without recovery; and the better to diſſuade them, affirmed that divers Counties had ſo done, and that all the Commiſſioners in Lincolnſhire, but two or three, had refuſed and denyed to give any mony but by way of Parliament; and for this the Defendant was Committed to the Fleet during the Kings pleaſure, and Fined 3000 l.

Leaſe which ſhe Purchaſed for 1200 l. cauſed a Deed of Feoffment, to be made with an Antedate and Indorſement of Livery and Seizin to be Antedated thereupon, and the Deed to be then Enrolled, in the Court of Exchequer, the better to give countenance to it, whereby he ſettled the ſaid Lands, Sold and Leaſed to the Plaintiff as aforeſaid, upon his Son and his Heirs, and publiſhed and ſet on foot this Deed (although he had formerly undertaken to the Plaintiff that the ſaid Lands were free from all incumbrances,) and for this deceit he was Committed to the Fleet, Fined 500 l. and to pay 100 l. Damages to Titoe, and ordered the ſaid fraudulent deed to be damned, made void, and Cancelled, and no uſe or benefit ever to be made of the enrolment of it.

Setting on foot a Fraudulent Antedated Deed to deceive Purchaſers.

And the Court doth withal declare, that if any man do make Conveyances of his Lands, or acknowledge Statutes, or Recognizances, or ſuffer Judgments, whether the ſame be upon juſt and good conſiderations, or without, and concealing the ſame, do afterwards, for valuable conſiderations, convey the ſame Lands to other perſons, as though the ſame were free from any manner of incumbrance; ſuch double and unjuſt dealing is a notorious fraud and deceit againſt the Law of the Realm, and fit for the Cenſure of this Court; and that albeit ſuch former Conveyances and Incumbrances, if they be upon good conſideration, and bona fide, cannot be avoided; yet this Court will upon complaint puniſh the Offenders and their Confederates by Impriſonment, Fine, and Damages to the Party grieved, to the full of his loſs and hinderances, and otherwiſe, as the cauſe ſhall require.

Attor. Regis ore tenus verſus Heron and Banier.

The Defendant Heron about Whitſontide laſt at Loham in Cambridgeſhire fell into acquaintance with the Defendant Banier, whom he never ſaw before, and falſely told him his name was Robert Rich, and that he was a Kinſman to the Earl of Warwick, and that he had killed the Duke of Buckingham in the Kings Privy Chamber, and was glad to flee for it; and thereupon Banier entertained him, lent him money, and called him his Coſin, and agreed that Heron, who then took upon him the name of Robert Rich, ſhould be called John Henderſon, and be ſaid to come out of Kent, and to be Baniers Kinſman; but Banier never complained thereof to any Juſtice, whereby he might have been apprehended and puniſhed, but let him depart when he knew his news was falſe; and Heron, upon examination before the Earl of Newcaſtle, did, by the name of Robert Savage, confeſs himſelf privy to the intention of Felton to murder the ſaid Duke, and that Felton offered him money to effect it, and told him if he would do it, there would be many to back him, and that he would provide him a Piſtol and white Powder to effect it; and in that his Examination did accuſe divers Noblemen, and other perſons of good rank and quality to be Conſpirators with Felton to murther the ſaid Duke, and to have moved him the ſaid Heron to kill the Duke; and the ſaid Heron upon an Examination taken before the Lord Keeper, and other the Lords of his Majeſties Privy Council, confeſſed he had conference with Felton concerning the ſaid Murder, that Felton preſſed him to give an Oath to keep his Counſel, and that he did take an Oath to that purpoſe; and therein doth likewiſe accuſe ſome other noble and great Perſonages to have ſolicited him to murder the ſaid Duke, and that at Huntingdon Aſſizes he was burnt in the ſhoulder for taking on him to be the Earl of Warwick; and that he alſo took upon him the name of Charles Percy, and was whipt for it in Suſſex. And in the latter end of that Examination he confeſſeth, that all that he hath ſaid in his ſeveral Examinations concerning the Lords and other perſons of quality mentioned in his ſaid Examinations is utterly falſe, and that he knows not Felton, nor that any thing contained in his Examination, taken before the Earl of Newcaſtle, is true, and that his name is not Savage, but Heron; and for this Banier was committed to the Fleet, fined 1000 l. and bound to his good behaviour during life; and Heron was committed, fined 2000 l. to be whipt from the Fleet to Weſtminſter, and be there ſet in the Pillory, with one of his Ears nailed and cut off, his Noſtrils ſlit, his Face branded with the letter F in one cheek, and the letter A in the other cheek, for a Falſe Accuſer of himſelf and others: And at another time to be whipt from the Fleet to Charing Croſs, and be there ſet in the Pillory, with his other Ear nailed and cut off, and from thence be carried to Bridewell, there to be kept at work during life.

was Committed to the Fleet; Fined two hundred Marks, and Ordered to pay the Plaintiffs Debt and Damage, if it were not ſatisfied before.

Attorney Regis ver. Chambers.

Seditious words at the Council-Board.

The Defendant being Convented before the Lords of the Council at the Council-Board, for ſome miſcarriages at the Cuſtom-Houſe; and there being then ſome Speeches concerning the Merchants of the Kingdom, and his Majeſties well and gratious uſage of them; the Defendant falſly, malitiouſly, and ſeditiouſly ſaid, that they, meaning the Merchants, are in no part of the world ſo ſcrew'd and wrung as in England; and that in Turky they have more incouragement; and for theſe Seditious words he was Committed to the Fleet; Fined 2000 l. and before his Enlargement to make an humble acknowledgment and ſubmiſſion at the Council-Board, in this Court, and at the Royal Exchange, at ſuch time, and in ſuch manner as this Court ſhould direct.

Attorney Regis ore tenus ver. Jo. Maud.

For ſaying the King went to Maſs with the Queen.

The Defendant being brought to the Bar, was charged by Mr. Attorney General, that he Wickedly, Undutifully, Traiterouſly and Seditiouſly had given out in ſpeeches, that he had heard that the King went to Maſs with the Queen, and having confeſſed it upon his Examination, and named ſeveral perſons to be the Authors thereof, who, being Examined, did deny it. The Court declared, that it was His Majeſties great Grace, that the Defendant was not dealt withal in a higher degree; and therefore Fined him 5000 l. Committed him to the Fleet; and Ordered him to acknowledg his offence in this Court, with a Paper on his head, declaring his offence, and to make the like acknowledgment at all the Bars of all the Courts at Weſtminſter, and at the publick Aſſizes of Suffolk and Huntington, and at Pauls Croſs, and the Preacher at that time to reprove the Raiſers and Publiſhers of ſuch Notorious, Falſe and Slanderous Reports.

Great Riots and forcible Reſiſtance againſt Authority.

THE Defendant being Armed with ſeveral ſorts of Weapons, the 29. of July 2 Car. repaired to the Plaintiffs Dwelling-Houſe, and there brake down an outward Wall againſt a pair of Stairs in the Kitchin, and brake down a great part of a Glaſs-window into the Hall, and thereat the Rioters entred the Houſe, and one of them threatned and endeavoured to have killed the Plaintiffs Daughter, an infant, then in the Houſe; and ſhe and the Plaintiff, and his Brother crying out for help, ſome Officers and Conſtables hearing the outrage came to the Houſe, and required the Defendants and their Aſſiſtants to keep the Peace, and to ſhew by what Warrant, or Authority they Committed ſuch an outrage; whereat the Rioters derided the Conſtable, bid a Turd in his Teeth, and gave him other foul Terms not fit to be recited, and all of them refuſed to obey any Authority, but in unlawful manner, did, with their Weapons, and Engines, beat down ſix doors, and divers inner walls to come to the Plaintiff and his Brother, and having taken the Plaintiff they tumbled and lugg'd him through ſeveral Rooms down a pair of Stairs, and caſt him out of the Houſe, and kicked and ſpurned him upon the Back and Body, and the Plaintiffs Brother being got into a Hawks Mew, John Hill bid the Rioters fetch him down dead, or alive, and he would bear them out, if it coſt him 1000 l. and thereupon one of them gave him divers blows and thruſts on the Breaſt and Belly with a Pike, and drave him through a Wall into a Hay-mow, and there kicked and ſpurned him; which the Chief Conſtable perceiving, and ſuppoſing they had killed him, Hi. 5 Car.

him, made Proclamation and required the Rioters to keep the Peace, and to yield their Bodies to go before ſome Juſtice of Peace to anſwer their doings, which they refuſ'd; and Hill ſaid, if Barns were killed he would juſtifie it; and the Conſtable then endeavouring to go up and apprehend them on ſuſpicion of Murder, they made divers thruſts at him, and threatned to kill him; and as the Conſtable was going up the Ladder to them, they turned off the Ladder, and threw him to the ground, to the danger of his life, and after threw Barns amongſt Nettles and Weeds on the backſide of the Houſe, and would not ſuffer him to have any thing to wrap about him, although he lay almoſt ſpeechleſs, voiding ſtore of blood, and in danger of death, and in Unchriſtian manner bid let him die, or ſtarve, he ſhould have nothing from thence, John Hill ſaying, he would juſtifie all that they had done: And the Conſtables and others coming another day to keep the Peace, and apprehend the Rioters, they ſhot off Pieces at them, and Arrows, and did ſore hurt one of the Conſtables. And Suſan Hill being told that the Biſhop of Hereford, being a Juſtice, would come to view the Riot, and remove the Force: ſhe ſaid, ſhe thought he would have more wit; that it was fitter for him to be Preaching a Sermon, and that if he came thither, he ſhould have as many Holes made in his Black Jacket, as he had Eyletholes in his Doublet, and that ſhe would queſtion him and all his Company in the Star-Chamber. And the Biſhop coming thither, and requiring the Doors to be opened, they let in him, but would ſuffer none elſe to come into the Houſe, and when he was come forth, and would have gone in again to have taken a farther view of the Force, the Rioters would not ſuffer him. And for theſe Offences, John Hill, the Principal was Fined 100 l. divers others 50 l. apiece, ſome 40 l. apiece, and ſome 20 l. apiece, all of them Committed to the Fleet, and John Hill to pay the Fines of ſo many as were not able themſelves; Suſan Hill to make acknowledgment at the Aſſizes to the Biſhop and ask him forgiveneſs; and the parties hurt left to the Law for their damages, becauſe they did not here complain.

The Defendant, Thomas Cookes, pretending Title to a yearly Rent of 4 l. to be iſſuing out of certain Lands in the Pariſh of Broomſgrave in the tenure of John Smith, al. Arden, and that Rent to be for ſome time arrear, did in November 2 Car. diſtrain two Mares of the ſaid Smiths, and according to the cuſtom of the Mannor at the next Court Baron held before the Plaintiff Glasbrook, the Plaintiff Talbots Steward, and the Bailiff and Suitors there, Smith pretending no ſuch Rent due, entred a Plaint in the Court againſt the ſaid Cookes for taking and deteining his ſaid two Mares, to which Action Cookes at the next Court appeared, Smith Declared, and Cookes took a Copy of the Declaration, and at the Court following, by avowry juſtified the impounding of the Mares, and Smith took a Copy thereof, and at the Court next Demurred in Law, and Cookes waved his former avowry, and put in a new, to which Smith likewiſe Demurred, and Cookes joyned in that Demurrer: and a peremptory day was appointed to argue it, but Cookes before that day came, ſued forth a Bill or Plaint of Aſſize of Freſh-Force for the ſame Rent againſt Smith, and a Precept from the Steward to the Bailiff of the Mannor to Summon a Jury to try the ſame, and to Summon the ſaid Smith, and at the next Court being the time alſo appointed to argue the Demurrer, and for Trial of the Aſſize of Freſh-Force, the Defendant Thomas Cooks, accompanied with Edward and Henry Cooks, Suitors and Judges of the ſaid Court, came into the Court, and heard the Arguments and debate of Council on both ſides concerning the Demurrer, and that being ended, the Plaintiff Glasbrook the Steward told the Suitors that the matter in queſtion was matter of Law, and ſeemed doubtful in divers points, and therefore wiſhed them to be adviſed before they gave Judgment therein: Whereupon Edward Cooks violently commanded the Steward to enter Judgment for Thomas Cooks the Avowant; but the Steward refuſing to enter Judgment, for that the major part of the Suitors would be further adviſed, he and the other Defendants called for a Retorn of the Precept for a Jury to try the Plaint, or Aſſize of freſh force, which was done; and thereunto, and to the Plaint it ſelf Smiths Council took exceptions, and much time being ſpent therein, the Aſſize was continued, and an alias Summons granted to reſummon the Recognitors in the Aſſize Returnable the next Court, when the Defendants Thomas and Henry Cooks procured and ſolicited the other Defendants to come thither, and twenty four Tenants being ſummoned, and returned to try the Plaint; they were ſeveral times called to appear, but many not appearing at the third call, the Defendants Thomas and Henry Cooks went to divers of the Recognitors returned, and deſired them to appear of the Jury, and to give their Voices for their Judgment upon the Demurrer to the ſaid Avowry; and one of the Recognitors ſeeming unwilling to come, Henry Cooks promiſed to ſave him harmleſs, and thereupon a full Jury appearing, the whole Array was Challenged, and the Challenge allowed; which the Defendants ſeeing, Edward Cooks the Elder and Edward the Younger again bid the Steward enter Judgment for the Avowant Thomas Cooks in the Avowry formerly argued, ſaying, he ought to enter the ſame: And the Steward refuſing ſo to do, for that the Major part held it not fit to enter Judgment until they were better adviſed, Edward Cooks the Elder, and Edward the Younger, commanded the Steward again to enter Judgment, ſaying, he was their Servant, and with great Oaths vowed he ought and ſhould enter Judgment, and gave Mr. Low, one of the Suitors, very unſeemly terms, and Henry and Thomas Cooks went about to ſome of the Suitors to get their hands to a Note that Judgment ſhould be entred: And for theſe indirect proceedings they were all committed to the Fleet; Edward Cooks the Elder, and Edward the Younger fined 200 l. apiece, and Thomas and Henry Cooks 40 l. apiece, and the Decree to be read at the ſaid Court Baron.

And the Defendant Buſhen then falſly and malitiouſly reported, that Sir Terence Dempſie, one of the Commiſſioners ſhould be paid his Grand-Childs Wives Portion out of Buſhens Eſtate, and produced a Paper falſly containing that the Plaintiff procured the Lord Sarsfield to go that Circuit on purpoſe, that Buſhen might be Convicted, and that the Plaintiff cauſed his Goods to be delivered to Sir Terence Dempſie, as part of the Plaintiffs Daughters Marriage-Portion. And after theſe Rumors and Reports were ſpread in Ireland, then Buſhen the Son came into England, and procured a Petition to be preſented to His Majeſty containing divers Grievances touching the Execution of the ſaid Buſhen his Father, and that not ſucceeding, he intended to preſent his ſaid Grievance to the Commons Houſe of Parliament then Aſſembled, but was diverted from that Courſe by Sir Arthur Savage; who adviſed him to alter the direction of his Petition, and to preſent it to the Duke of Buckingham, and ſubtilely to Traduce the Plaintiff and his Government: adviſed him to pray a Commiſſion to examin the ſuppoſed practice; which advice Buſhen purſued, and the Duke having received his Petition, acquainted Sir Arthur therewith, and asked his advice, who contrary to his own direction, and cunningly to entrap the Plaintiff, diſſuaded the Courſe of a Commiſſion, and perſuaded the Duke, in reſpect the Buſineſs was Foul, to write his Letter to the Plaintiff to cauſe ſome Relief to be given to Buſhens Wife and Children, and ſo to ſtop their Mouths, which if the Plaintiff had given way to, it would have argued him foully Guilty: and the Duke directing his Secretary to prepare a Letter to that purpoſe, Sir Arthur Dictated the ſame unto him, and then affirmed the Contents of the Petition to be true, though he knew them to be falſe: and the Letter being written, it was delivered to the Defendant Buſhen to give unto the Plaintiff, who undertook ſo to do, but never delivered it. Yet after the Dukes death he opened the Letter, and annexed it to another like Scandalous Petition, and preſented it to the Commons Houſe of Parliament where it was publickly divulged to the diſhonor of the Plaintiff; and Sir Arthur gave out Speeches, both in England and Ireland, that if ever the Plaintiff were queſtioned about the matter of Buſhen, he would be found faulty, and that he ſent the Lord Sarsfield that Circuit, only to Execute the ſaid Buſhen: and for theſe Offences Welden was Committed, and Fined 1000 l. Savage Knight Committed, Fined 2000 l. to the King, and 3000 l. damage to the Plaintiff; and Buſhen Committed, and Fined 500 l. and both he, and Sir Arthur Savage to acknowledg their Offences at the Bar of this Court, and ask the Plaintiff forgiveneſs: Sir Arthur Savage to make the like acknowledgment and ſubmiſſion at the Council-Board in Ireland, and Buſhen at Kildare Aſſizes in Ireland, and this Decree to be there Read, and then Recorded, and Entred among the Records and Entries of the Caſtle-Chamber in that Kingdom.

Riotous taking the Guiſter Ore.

The Defendant Carrier, taking upon him the Office of Bar-maſter, wherewith he had nothing to do, appointed the other Defendants to be Deputy-Bar-maſters within the Wapentake of Wirkeſworth; and the ſaid Deputy-Bar-maſters, by the Abetment and encouragement of the ſaid Carrier, and his Wife, did, at ſeveral times, demand, exact, and take by force and ſtrong hands Guiſter Ore from divers of the Miners there, alleaging it to be their due: And Carrier ſaid, they ſhould not meaſure their Ore, unleſs they would pay Guiſter Ore, and ſaid, the Bar-maſters might take what they pleaſed, and he would bear them out in it. And all the Defendants, at ſeveral times, repaired to one Buxton's Grove, or Cove, and at one time brake open the Cove, and took away one Diſh of Guiſter Ore by Force and Violence; and another time Noton by Carriers Wives Procurement took from them one other Diſh of Guiſter Ore; and another time from one Hill, as much Guiſter Ore, by colour of the ſaid Office. And at another time they all came in Forcible and Riotous manner to Buxton's Grove; and there by force offered to take away ſix Load of Ore; and being reſiſted, Carrier ſaid, he was Bar-maſter, Judge, Juſtice, and Lord of the Mine, and whoſoever reſiſted, he would ſet them in the Stocks by the Neck, Middle, or Legs; and Carriers Wife drew forth a long Knife, and ſaid, ſhe would take a ſhorter Courſe with them: And being deſired to put up her Knife, ſhe ſaid, it was but a hanging-matter if ſhe killed one of them. And for theſe Riots, and forcible taking away of Guiſter Ore (pendente Lite in the Dutchy) they were all committed to the Fleet. Carrier fined 500 l. his Wife 100 l. Noton 100 Marks, Wright 50 l. and two others 20 l. apiece; Carrier diſabled, and made Incapable to have, or to deal or intermeddle in the Execution of the Office of Bar-maſter, or to hold, or execute any Temporal Office of Judicature; and referred to the Lord Keepers Conſideration, whether he be fit to be a Juſtice of Peace any longer.

Nota.

The Defendant Carrier appeared to be guilty of ſeveral other Offences committed with a high hand, by colour of the Office of Bar-maſter, both in the Bar-moot-Court, upon Trial of Cauſes, in Managing, Countenancing, and Directing the Suits, or Matters there Depending, and the Jurors what to find, and of divers Examinations, and Extortions; yet the Court would not ſentence him for them, becauſe they were complained of only in a general Charge of Oppreſſion, and Extortion, not naming any particulars thereof, in what Cauſes, or between what Perſons, or of whom the ſaid Extortious Fees were exacted, taken, and received. And for other Offences, proved but by one ſingle Witneſs, he was referred to the High-Commiſſion-Court.

Reproachful words to a Juſtice on the Bench.

THE Defendant being Attorney for one Armiger and Goddard, put a Bond of 100 l. in Suit againſt one Walton, and obtained Judgment thereupon, and upon that Judgment Sued forth a Writ of Fieri Facias to Levy the ſaid Debt with 5 l. Coſts, and procured a Warrant thereupon to be directed to the Defendant Walton, who by vertue thereof, took in Execution Goods of the ſaid Walton, which were valued at 77 l. 18 s. 6 d. which being ſold, Caſton received the mony, and then refuſed to deliver either the mony or Goods to the Sheriff, yet cauſed the Sheriff to be amerced 40 l. for not returning his Writ, the ſaid Caſton having before bought the ſaid Judgment of his Clients, which the Court Judged to be Champarty; and Caſton afterward Sued forth an Elegit, and extended the Moity of the ſaid Waltons Lands for the reſt of the Judgment, and Goddard his Client, had only 5 l. for his ſhare of the ſaid Judgment: and one Jenner owing Caſton 20 l. upon a Bond, which was forfeited, being made payable on a Sunday; Caſton, although the mony was tendred him the day before it was due, and the day after, procured Jenner to be Arreſted by the Defendants Walton and Gonnel, his ſpecial Bailiffs, upon a Writ of priviledg, whereupon Jenner acknowledged a Judgment with a Defeaſance, and paid the mony at the day. Yet the Defendant Caſton, for vexation, took advantage againſt the Bailiff of the Liberty of St. Etheldreds, and five of his Bailiffs for Arreſting the ſaid Jenner, and taking him out of the Cuſtody of the ſaid Walton and Gonnel, who had Arreſted him at Caſtons Suit, but would not acknowledg it, though they were asked, and cauſed Walton and Gonnel to return a Reſcue againſt them, and the five Bailiffs were thereupon Fined, Impriſoned and Out-lawed; and yet Caſton not therewith ſatisfied, cauſed all the ſaid Bailiffs to be Arreſted upon ſeveral Actions, and ſeveral Writs of priviledg, for the ſame Reſcue, at his Suit, and brought one of the Actions down to Trial, but would not proceed; and the reſt, being Arreſted, gave Bond to the Sheriff to appear, but did not, in reſpect they were not able to find ſpecial Bail; and then Caſton got from the Under-Sheriffs Clerk their Bonds to the Sheriff, and without the Sheriffs conſent, put them all in Suit, ſeverally, againſt them and their Sureties, to their great Charge and Vexation. The Defendant Caſton alſo procur'd ſeveral Blank Warrants from the Under-Sheriff with the Sheriffs Hand and Seal thereunto, and filled up ſome of them by inſerting the names of Special Bailiffs. He alſo Sued one Hills, both in the Court of Kings Bench, and Court of Common Pleas for one and the ſame Debt, and made him pay the Charges of both Suits. He alſo Sued forth Execution upon a Judgment againſt his own Client, and offered mony to have it Executed. A Counſellour ſuffering himſelf to be miſled, and drawing a Deed and Will by the Inſtruction of him who was to have the benefit by them, and not of the Party himſelf, being a very aged weak man.

three Locks was kept, was carried to Lownes his Houſe, and what is become of that Will ſince cannot be diſcovered: but Peter Bland being grown very Aged, and Infirm, and weak in Body and Underſtanding, by reaſon of his Age, and of an Apoplexy, and being wholly guided by the Defendants Lownes and Hoſkins, was, in July and November 1624. during ſuch Weakneſs, drawn to make two other Wills, and ſeal and deliver ſome Conveyances of his Lands to the ſaid Lownes, and others in Truſt for Lownes his uſe; and in June 1 Car. Lownes having gotten him to his Houſe, did, by practice with Hoſkins, circumvent Peter Bland in his greater Weakneſs, and drew him to Sign and Seal one Deed Indented, Dated 25 Junii 1 Car. whereby Lownes, in Conſideration of the ſaid former Conveyance to him, and others to his Uſe, of the ſaid Peter Bland's Lands, and of 1150 l. in hand paid to the ſaid Lownes by the ſaid Bland, did Covenant to pay ſeveral Sums of Money therein mentioned to ſeveral perſons therein named, in ſuch ſort as was therein expreſſed: And Lownes then Sealed a Bond of 4000 l. to Peter Bland, and his Executors, &c. to perform thoſe Covenants, and at the ſame Inſtant, by the practice of the ſaid Hsokins, drew the ſaid Peter Bland to ſeal, and publiſh a Writing, as his laſt Will and Teſtament, but dated June 27. reciting, and confirming the aforeſaid Deed; and of that Will made the ſaid Lownes, and John Bland his Executors, but none of Bland's Children, or Grand-children were privy thereunto, nor any of his Friends Witneſs thereunto; and by this means Lownes would have defeated all Peter Bland's Children, and Grand-children of his whole Eſtate: and by making himſelf Executor of that Laſt Will, he made void the Bond of 4000 l. by him entred into to perform the Covenants of the Deed of 25 Junii. And for this Fraud, Deceit, and Circumvention, Lownes and Hoſkins were committed to the Fleet, and fined, Lownes 1000 l. and Hoſkins 300 l. and did confirm and ſtrengthen the Decree in Chancery, whereby the now Plaintiff Bland's Children are relieved for his Eſtate. Pulling up the Pump, or Sluce of a Fiſh-Pond.

The Defendant Rowley, in March 6 Car: deſpitefully and maliciouſly took away the upper part or Cap of the Pump or Sluce of the Plaintiff's Fiſh-pond, and threw the ſame into the Pond, and thereby a great part of the water of the Fiſh-pond did run out, whereby the Fiſh therein might (as the Court conceived) have come to have been utterly ſpoiled, and deſtroyed. And therefore the Defendant was committed to the Fleet, and fined 100 l. to his Majeſties uſe.

Contempt of Proclamation and Orders.

Refuſing to furniſh the Market with Corn in a time of Want.

The Defendant, in contempt of his Majeſties Proclamation, and Book of Orders, whereof he had notice, and in contempt of ſeveral Orders made by the Relator, then Mayor of Lincoln, and other the Juſtices there to reſtrain him from ſelling any Corn, or Mault out of the Market, or in any other Market than Lincoln, and to injoyn him to bring both Mault and Corn weekly into the Market, and to ſell it as the Market would afford, he having then 400 Quarters of old Mault in ſtore, and 300 Quarters of Barly, which he bought out of the Market-ſtanding: and alſo to prohibit him from Maulting any more at that time, did not bring above ſix Strikes of Barley into the Market from October the ſixth until Auguſt following; but did buy ſeveral Quantities of Barley himſelf out of the Market, as it was coming to the Market, and Maulted above 200 Quarters, and continued Maulting from October the ſixth till Whitſontide following; yet in all that time did not ſell above twenty Quarters of Mault in the ſaid Market of Lincoln; but many times ſent Mault to the Market by his Servant, and ſet ſo great a Price upon it, that he ſometimes carried it away unſold, and refuſed 36 s. and 38 s. a Quarter; and being asked, Why he would not ſell at the Maket-price? He ſaid, The Mayor and Juſtices had injoyned him to bring his Corn to the Market, but they ſhould not, nor could not ſet a price on it; but he ſold twenty Quarters of Mault at Newark-Market to a Common Badger, Tri. 9 Car.

and ſeveral Quarters of Malt out of the Market to Ale-houſe-keepers, and other Cuſtomers weekly. And for theſe Contempts, and breach of the Proclamation and Orders aforeſaid he was committed to the Fleet, fined 1000 l. and to acknowledge his offences before the Juſtices of Aſſize, Mayor, Magiſtrates, and Juſtices at the Aſſizes to be held for the City of Lincoln; and the like acknowledgment at the Aſſizes to be held for the County of Lincoln, and 200 l. damage to the Relator for proſecuting this Cauſe, and defending another vexatious Cauſe proſecuted here againſt him by the ſaid Fowkes.

Practice to defame the Plaintiff by accuſing and Indicting him for ſtealing Sheep and Wooll.

Libellous hanging Wool on a Tree with a Halter before the Plaintiffsdoor.

Libel.

The Defendant, out of malice to the Plaintiff, for that the Plaintiff would not let him hold certain Lands, which the Plaintiff had in Farm, pretended that he had loſt two Sheep, and that the Plaintiff had ſhorn them among his Sheep, and marked them with his Mark; and to be revenged on the Plaintiff, he preferred an Indictment of Treſpaſs againſt him at the Quarter-Seſſions, at Tenterden, for taking away his Sheep, and Wool; and in the Afternoon of the ſame day, at the ſame Seſſions, he preferred another Indictment of Fellony to the Grand Inqueſt againſt the Plaintiff for ſtealing two of his Weathers, Price 20 s. and 16 pounds of Wooll, Price 16 s. of the ſaid Defendants Goods; and did there give Evidence, that the Plaintiff had ſhorn five of his Sheep, and marked them with the Plaintiffs own Mark: That three of the Sheep came home again; and that the Plaintiff kept, and conveyed away the other two, and the Wool; Yet upon this Indictment the Inqueſt returned Ignoramus. And in December following, as the Plaintiff, being one of the Jurats of Tenterden, was ſitting at the Bench with the Mayor and Jurats, the Defendant publickly charged, and accuſed the Plaintiff of Felony, for ſtealing his Sheep, and Wool, and preſſed the Mayor and Jurats, either to commit him, or bind him over to the next Seſſions to anſwer the Felony: And thereupon the Defendant having put his Accuſation in Writing, and ſet his hand to it, the Defendant was bound over to anſwer it at the Seſſions, and there the Defendant preferred the like Indictment, and gave the like Evidence as before; and brought three Fleeces of Wooll, which he pretended were ſtolen by the Plaintiff, and ſent home again unto him, into the Court, and ſhewed them to the Mayor, Jurats, and Grand Inqueſt, and then laid them on the Bank before the Seſſions-Door, the more to Traduce the Plaintiff; yet the Inqueſt then returned Ignoramus. And in farther diſgrace of the Plaintiff, the Defendant afterward hung ſome Wooll upon a Tree near the High-way, before the Plaintiffs Dwelling-houſe in Tenterden, Tied about with a Rope or Halter, and faſtned to the Tree, as if it had been Wooll ſtolen by the Plaintiff. And the Defendant in ſcoffing manner told one of the Neighbours, that he heard the Plaintiff had a Tree that bare Wooll, and wiſhed he had a Graft of that Tree, and that the Plaintiff could not chooſe but be rich having ſuch a Tree; and told another Neighbour, that there was a Tree before his Friend ſheep-ſtealers Houſe that bare Wooll, and wiſhed him to get him a Graft. And the Defendant framed another Libel againſt the Plaintiff, containing, Free-gift Stace, beware of Sheep, for he did take, drive away, and ſhear the Wooll, ſteal, and bear it away in the year 1628. and this Libel he fixed to a Turn-pike in the Foot-way between the Plaintiffs Houſe, and his Pariſh-Church, where it was found by a Neighbour. And the Defendant reported that he would have a ſtanding made to ſell Wooll upon Tenterden-Fair-day, before the Plaintiffs Dwelling-houſe, and went to borrow Boards for that purpoſe, and offered one mony to ſell Wooll there, being about half a Mile from the place where the Fair was uſually kept: and in farther purſuance of the Defendants malitious intention to defame the Plaintiff, he cauſed two other Bills of Indictment to be preferred againſt the Plaintiff for the ſame Felonies, at a Seſſions held at Canterbury twenty Miles off, and there gave the like Evidence as before; and thereupon, in the abſence of the Plaintiff, the Inqueſt returned on both Bills, Billa vera; and the Plaintiff being at the next Seſſions Tried thereupon, was, notwithſtanding the falſe and malitious Evidence then given againſt him by the Defendant, and others, acquitted: and for theſe Offences the Defendat was Committed to the Fleet, during life, Fined 1000 l. be ſet on the Pillory at Tenterden before the Plaintiffs door, and at Canterbury at the Seſſions with a Paper on his head declaring his Offence, and at each place acknowledg his Offence, and have an Ear cut off: to be tied to the Tree where he hanged the Wooll a whole day, with the Wooll about his Neck; be ſet in the Pillory at Maidſtone with the like Paper on his head, and there acknowledg his Offence, and pay the Plaintiff five hundred Marks damage.

VI. The Servants and Workmen of the Sope-boilers diſabled, recommended to the Governour and Company of New Sope-boilers to Employ them in their Works, in ſome convenient manner for their Livelyhood, elſe this Court will take a fit courſe for them.

VII. That the Eſſay-Maſter and Searchers, and their Deputies ſhall, from time to time, Execute their Offices, and that with a Conſtable, when they think fit to require it, by going into the Houſes, Work-Houſes, or Cellars of thoſe, who ſhall be Makers of Sope, to ſearch for all Sopes made, and for Oyls and other Materials provided for making Sope; and to Eſſay the Sopes, Oyls and other Materials; and that none oppoſe, hinder or delay ſuch Search to be made, and Eſſay taken.

VIII. That the New Company of Sopers do erect, and continue their Work-houſes for Sope-making, in, or within one Mile of the City of London and Weſtminſter, and no other Sope-boiler to erect any other Work-houſe, or place for making or boiling of Sope, but within London, Weſtminſter or Briſtol, or within one Mile of thoſe Cities; or in ſuch other place or places, as this Court ſhall upon other good Reaſons firſt approve of and allow: and the Governour, Eſſay-Maſter, or New Company of Sopers to have notice where their Work-houſes are, or ſhall be erected, before they uſe the Trade there.

IX. That all Sope-boilers and Sope-makers, not being of the New Company, ſhall be under the Survey, Rule, Order and Government of the ſaid Company and Officers thereof; ſo far forth only as concerns the Trade and true making of Sope, and not otherwiſe, or to any other purpoſe, without their own free conſents thereto:

X. That the Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows of the New Society of Sope-makers, ſhall henceforth, from time to time, take care, that there ſhall be and continue of the ſaid Society thirty perſons at the leaſt.

XI. And Laſtly, That if any perſon ſhall Offend againſt any thing therein Contained, Ordered, and Decreed; every ſuch perſon ſhall incur and undergo ſuch Impriſonment, and other puniſhment, as this Court ſhall hold fit, and inflict for the ſame.

Attorn. Regis ore tenus verſus Moor Armig. Erecting new Buildings contrary to Proclamation.

Continuing of Houſes built contrary to King James his Proclamation.

THe Defendant, in contempt, and contrary to his late Majeſties Proclamation about 13 Jacobi, built in the Pariſh of St. Martins in the Fields upon new Foundations ſeventeen Coach-houſes, and thirteen Stables all of Timber, and continued the ſame to this day: And about the ſame time, in the ſame Pariſh he alſo new built ſeven other Houſes, two were upon old Foundations in part, and the other five on new Foundations, and proceeded to finiſh them, though whilſt they were in Building he was Inhibited by ſome of the Commiſſioners concerning Building, and theſe Houſes he ſtill continued ſtanding, and let out to Tenants: And in his now Majeſties time, and contrary to his Majeſties Proclamation touching Buildings, the Defendant in the ſame Pariſh pulled down certain Work-houſes, Coal-houſes, and low Brick Buildings, and in the ſame place ſet up five new Dwelling Houſes, whereof two were part upon old Foundations, the other three upon Back Buildings. And for this he was committed to the Fleet, fined 1000 l. and his ſaid Buildings ordered to be demoliſhed and pulled down to the ground, and he to cauſe it to be done by Eaſter next, or pay 1000 l. Fine more.

Theſe were pulled down.

Attorn. Regis ore tenus verſus Smith. Buildings contrary to Proclamation. This Houſe was preſerved

The Defendant, contrary to, and in Contempt of his Majeſties Proclamation to reſtrain the ſetting up of new Buildings in, and about London and Weſtminſter, did Erect and build a Houſe in Lincolns Inn-Fields, by Lonches Buildings, and then converted it into two Houſes, part of them being upon a new Foundation, and part upon the Houſe, or Yard of a Gun-Powder-Houſe, which was ſet up 39 Eliz. and this he did by the ſufferance of one of the Commiſſioners for Buildings, to whom the reſt referred it. Yet for his contempt and offence therein he was committed to the Fleet, fined 200 l. and ordered to demoliſh thoſe Houſes by Eaſter next, or be fined 200 l. more.

Attorn. Regis per Rel. Apſley Armig. verſus Ridley & al.

Riot.

Two of the Ridleys came armed to the Plaintiffs Barn-door, where his Threſhers were at work; one of them being armed with a Sword, the other with a Piſtol, and wiſhed the Threſhers to open the Door, which they refuſing, Ridley the Son preſented his Piſtol at them, and ſware he would ſhoot them if they would not open it, at laſt brake open the door, and entred with a Piſtol and Sword drawn, and by force thruſt the Threſhers out of the Barn, and kept the poſſeſſion all that day, till others came to them, and then one of them ſet a Lock on the door, and ſo all departed till the next morning, when they ſet Threſhers at work to Threſh out all the Corn in that, and other Barns of the Relators, and which ſtood in Stack in the Yard, and carried together with a great Quantity of Hay, which lay in another Barn, unto Ridley, the Father's Houſe. And at another time Ridley the Younger, with others of the Defendants Armed, entred into the Relators Tenants Houſe forcibly at a Window, which they cut down, threatned to ſhoot and run them thorow that were in the Houſe, and there they kept the poſſeſſion thereof by force; and the Relator coming thither to gain his Poſſeſſion, divers other Rioters Armed aſſembled to them, armed with Daggers and Swords; the Defendants alſo Riotouſly beat the Relators Tenant's Wife and Servant as they were Collecting of Tythes, and took the Tythes from them. And for this they were all committed, and bound to their good Behaviour, two fined 500 l. apiece, one 100 Marks, and ſix others 40 l. apiece.

Damage and Poſſeſſion left to the Court of Wards to order.

Attorn. Regis ore tenus verſus Apſley Arm. Libellous Letter and Challenge to the Earl of Northumberland.

The Defendant, being on Ship-board going beyond the Seas, wrote a ſcandalous Letter, full of provoking and diſgraceful Language, to the Earl of Northumberland, who was then attending his Majeſty into Scotland, and withal containing a Challenge, but appointed neither Time, nor Place, and this Letter he ſubſcribed with his Name, ſealed it up, and ſent it to the Earl without making any one acquainted with the Contents thereof. And this Letter the Court Adjudged to be both a Libel, and a Challenge; and therefore the Defendant was committed to the Tower, during his Majeſties pleaſure, fined 5000 l. bound to his good Behaviour during life, if ever he be enlarged, and forejudged never to come within the Verge of the King's Houſhold, ſaving in the time of his now Impriſonment; diſabled to have, or execute any Office, and to acknowledge his offence to his Majeſty, and the Lords in this Court upon his Knees, and then ask his Majeſty Pardon; and alſo to make ſuch acknowledgment and ſubmiſſion to the Earl of Northumberland in the preſence of the Earl-Marſhal, and ſuch others as his Lordſhip ſhall be pleaſed to call to him, and in ſuch ſort as the ſaid Earl ſhall direct.

Attorn. Regis verſus Hillyard & al.

Buying and ſelling of Salt-Peter contrary to his Majeſties Proclamation.

Contempt of the King's Commiſſioners command. Salpeter-man exceeds his Commiſſion to the abuſe of the Country. Tampering with Witneſſes to forſwear themſelves, and ſo not to be examined.

The Defendant Hilliard having obtained a Commiſſion and Deputation from his Majeſties Commiſſioners to enter by himſelf and his Servants, and to work for Saltpeter in all convenient places within certain Counties therein named, by which Commiſſion it was provided, and he agreed, that he ſhould deliver all the Saltpeter he got to his Majeſties Powder-maker, for his Highneſs his ſervice, and ſhould not imbeazle, ſell, or otherwiſe diſpoſe of any part thereof to any perſon whatſoever, ſaving to his Majeſties Powder-maker. And his Majeſty by his Proclamation having alſo prohibited the making, buying, ſelling, or uttering any Saltpeter to, or for any other perſon, or uſe, than to his Highneſs his Pouder-maker, for his Majeſties uſe. The Defendant did ſet up ſeveral Works for Saltpeter in ſeveral Counties, where great Quantities were made, and contrary to his Majeſties ſaid Proclamation, and contrary to his ſaid Deputation and Commiſſion, the ſaid Hillyards Wife, and his Servants, by his, and his Wive's direction and allowance, did ſell divers great quantities of the Saltpeter gotten in his Majeſties Works to ſeveral perſons at 4 l. the hundred, and received Money for the ſame, part whereof the Defendant Hugh Nichols bought, contrary to his Majeſties ſaid Proclamation Dated in April 1 Car. And the Defendant Hillyard did not deliver in to his Majeſties Powder-maker the full quantity, which he Covenanted to deliver, to his Majeſties great prejudice, who was forced thereby to furniſh himſelf from Foreign parts at greater Rates, and to the hazard of the State, it being in a time of War and danger. And his Majeſties Commiſſioners taking notice of his abuſes, ſent Letters and a Command to the ſaid Hillyard, not to work any longer for the making of Saltpeter, but at his peril to give over to put in execution any part of his Deputation; yet the Defendant ſet up ſeveral Works in ſeveral places, in contempt of their Command, and alſo ſet up a Work in a County, where his Commiſſion did not extend to, and there took Carts to carry it, as for the King's Service, and yet ſold it to others, and it never came to the King's Store-houſe. And whereas Witneſſes were to be examined by Commiſſion out of this Court againſt the ſaid Defendants Hillyard and Goodenough, they perſwaded a Witneſs to forſwear himſelf, ſaying, It was no offence to God to forſwear himſelf to ſave his Friend; and that Goodenough would prove it by Scripture; and Goodenough perſwaded others not to appear at that Commiſſion to be examined, although they were Precepted; and told one of the Plaintiff's Witneſſes, That a Friend to ſave a Friend, and a Kinſman to ſave a Kinſman might forſwear himſelf, and that it was no offence to God ſo to do, and by ſuch like words and perſuaſions the Defendant Hillyard procured another material Witneſs of the Plaintiff's not to be examined againſt him, and they got divers others by Indirect means to ſet their Hands to a Note importing untrue Teſtimony. And for theſe offences Hillyard was committed during his Majeſties pleaſure, fined 5000 l. diſabled ever to be a Saltpeter-man, bound to his good Behaviour, and ſet on the Pillory at Weſtminſter, Andover, and Chippingham, with a Paper on his Head declaring his Offence, Goodenough Committed, bound to his Good Behaviour, Fined 1000 l. Set on the Pillory in the three places before-mentioned, with his Ears nailed, and a Paper on his Head declaring his Offence, and to be well whipped, and diſabled ever to be a Witneſs: and Nicholas Committed, and Fined 200 l.

Attornat. Regis verſus Pryn Arm. & al. Contriving, Licenſing, Printing and Publiſhing a Libelous and Seditious Book.

The Defendant Pryn contrived, framed and wrote an Infamous, Scurrilous and Seditious Book and Libel, Intituled Hiſtrio-maſtix, The Players Scourge and Actors Tragedy; which indeed, as appeared upon Reading, ſeveral parts thereof contained divers and ſundry Libelous and Scandalous Imputations, and Unchriſtian Cenſures of all ſorts of His Majeſties people, of both Sexs, of this Kingdom, the Magiſtrates, His Majeſties Houſhold, His Majeſty and His Royal Conſort, the Queen; which are of ſuch nature as are not fit to be mentioned, and therein he doth caſt Perſonal Aſperſions on His Majeſty and the Queen, taxes the Government, and endeavours to infuſe ſo much Diſobedience and Sedition into the hearts of His Majeſties people, that he might juſtly have been dealt with as a Capital Offender. The Defendant Buckner, being Chaplain to the Late Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, Licenſed ſixty four pages of this to be Printed, Sparks Printed them, and Pryn and Sparks, after the ſaid Books were called in by Warrant from the Arch-Biſhop, publiſhed divers of them: and for this Pryn was Committed during life, Fined 5000 l. expelled the Houſe of Court whereof he was, Disbarred and Diſabled ever to exerciſe his Profeſſion of a Barriſter, to be Degraded by the Univerſity of Oxford of his Degrees there taken; and then to be ſet on the Pillory at Weſtminſter with a Paper on his Head declaring his Offence, and have one of his Ears cut off, after to be ſet on the Pillory in Cheapſide with the like Paper, and have his other Ear cut off, and then the Books to be caſt into a Fire there by the Hangman, to be burned, never to be ſeen by any, Sparks Committed, Fined 100 l. to ſtand on the Pillory in Cheapſide, with the like Paper; Buckner Committed and Fined 50 l. Pryns Affidavit taken off of the File, and he recommended to the High-Commiſſion-Court for farther puniſhment, for thoſe parts of the Book, which Scandal the Church.

ARGUMENTS CONCERNING Martial Law.

Whereas the Author did omit in his firſt Part to Inſert ſome Arguments made in the Houſe of Commons 4 Car. I. concerning Martial Law, which at that time he had miſlaid, he doth now ſupply that Defect, and hath put them in the Appendix, being the Arguments (but imperfectly and briefly taken) of Sir Edward Coke, Mr. Noy, Mr. Banks, afterwards Attorney General, and Lord Chief Juſtice, Mr. Maſon, and Mr. Rolls, afterwards Lord Chief Juſtice of England, the Reſults of which Arguments are contained in the Petition of Right.

Mr. Banks at the Committee of the whole Houſe concerning Martial Law.

I Will ſay nothing to hinder the Kings Service, let us obſerve our order that the Kings Supply and the Fundamental Liberties go together, we have voted the queſtion, that of Meum and Tuum, and Liberty of Perſon: This now in Queſtion concerns Life and Member, I will not derogate from the Power of Kings, Subjects have their Right, and Kings their Prerogatives. The Ocean it ſelf bounds it ſelf within its Liberties, and Prerogatives have many hundred years gone together in ſweet harmony. I ſhall not queſtion that Point, whether in Caſe a Commiſſion of Martial Law duly granted, whether it will ſilence the Common Law; without all queſtion it doth not, it deſerves no debate. In Caſe of an Invaſion of an Enemy, and the King marcheth with an Army, whether Martial Law may then be executed, that is not now the Queſtion. But whether Commiſſions for Martial Law may be awarded in time of Peace, as this now is, that concerns life and death, I hold this Commiſſion is againſt Law. I will remove an Objection out of 6 *H.*8. in Kellways Reports, where it is ſaid that Fineax told H. 8. it belonged to the Law of Arms to determine that power, but I conceive that opinion is no Law; The Common Laws Regulate in what Caſes Commiſſions ought to be awarded, though it hath no Juriſdiction in them as in the Admiral Court, or Martial Courts, if they take Cognizance of Caſes, that belong to the Common Law, the Common Law grants Prohibitions, the Common Law is the Judge of other Courts, to keep them in their due bounds, this we ſee is the daily courſe in Prohibitions, and the Kings Bench doth regulate other Juriſdictions, ſo though the Common Law define not, nor ſet down the Law of Arms, yet the Law ſets down when they are to be exerciſed, and how, I will ſpeak nothing to oppoſe Authority, we will not be Authors of new Opinions, but maintain the old.

My firſt Reaſon is, the Kings Commiſſion under the Great Seal, cannot alter the Common Law, but this Martial Commiſſion in time of Peace alters the Law. For the Propoſitions that the King by his Letters Patents and Commiſſion under the great Seal cannot alter the Law, 39 H. 7. 24. the King granted a Protection with a non obſtante in a qua Imp. and was void 6 H. 7. 4. 11 H. 7. 24. the King granted a Leet to enquire for Rapes, and it was void, 36 H. 8. Br. 280. The King cannot grant that an Alien ſhall be Heir to his Father, 37 H. 8. br. 310. the King cannot grant Land to be deviſed, H. 11. Jac. a Grant to the Univerſities to proceed according to the Civil Law was a void Grant, and it was ſo reſolved by the Juſtices in the Common Bank.

But this Commiſſion for Martial Law alters the Common Law: For it extends to all that joyn with Souldiers, it is no daſh of a Pen that daſhes or takes away many a mans life. In that Courſe a man ſhall ſuffer death, without a Jury and Trial, and ſo againſt the Law, and alſo ſmall offences are made Capital, which are not by the Common Law; Alſo great care ought to be had by the Commiſſioners, 2 E. 3. C. 2. Provides that the Commiſſioners of Oyer and Terminer be not granted, but for horrible offences, and that before the Juſtices of the one Bench or the other. Perſons of ordinary quality are not to be Commiſſioners in this great Commiſſion, 13 R. 2. C. 3. regulates the Juriſdiction of the Conſtable and Martial, that goes only to ſuch as cannot be determined by the Common Law. But theſe offences now may be determined by the Common Law. The Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer is a Service of great expedition, if that Commiſſion be awarded they may make as great ſpeed as they pleaſe. Alſo this Commiſſion is againſt the Law: For this ought only to be awarded in time of War, or inevitable neceſſity.

8 E. 4. 29 H. 8. Dy. 36. a Houſe that is of a fire may be pulled down: We have no time of War, when the Courts of Juſtice are open in Weſtminſter and other Juriſdictions: Alſo the Law provides that in time of War there be proviſion.

I agree in ſome particular Caſes the Martial hath Juriſdiction, as in matters whereof the Common Law can take no notice, being done out out of this Realm, and alſo for Treaſons and Murders beyond Sea, 37 H. 6. 20. if one call me Traitor, an appeal will lie before the Conſtable and Martial, for it doth not lie at the Common Law, in reſpect of this, that the King cannot alter the Law.

Mr. Maſon of Lincolns Inn concerning Martial Law.

THe Commiſſion gives power to proceed againſt Souldiers or Mariners, or any that Joyn with them, and to proceed according to Martial Law. The execution is referred to Inſtructions, the puniſhment there appointed is Death, it falls into debate how far this extends, it was ſaid it extends only to Souldiers, but as it goes it is to ſuch as ſhall joyn with them, and the Commiſſioners are to Judge who joyns with Souldiers and they may execute them. But ſay it extends only to Souldiers, power to Preſs Souldiers is not now to be diſputed, I have known a Lord Lieutenant give leave to a Muſter-Maſter to Preſs a Man for a Souldier, and the Party refuſed, and he was committed by this Commiſſion, ſion, ſuch a one may be taken and hanged. It is ſaid, that we have yet ſuſtained no prejudice by this Commiſſion: But want comes on as a Traveller, all Innovation comes in gently at the firſt, and it grows ſtrong by degrees, hereafter it will not be for us to ſay, the Commiſſioners have not executed the truſt committed to them.

It was ſaid the Gentlemen of the Country are only Commiſſioners, but ſince that a Second Commiſſion went out, and divers Captains and Commanders are put in, and they are to joyn with them, and we all know and admit, in the time of War, when the Kings Courts are ſhut, the Law Martial may be executed. In the time of Rebellion the Sheriff hath Cuſtod. Comitat. and all Earls and Lords are to aſſiſt him, and he is to raiſe the Country to reſiſt them, 16 E. 43. the Rebels that roſe then the Sheriff was bound to ſuppreſs them, 11 E. 44. and 6. Fauconbridge committed many outrages and en faux impriſonment: le def. pl. fait inter mix que raiſe Armies, and there were 20000 Rebels, but then I ſaw no Martial Law, but he was brought to London, and there executed. 18 H. 6. that Statute is, That he that hath received Wages and departs it is Felony, that Statute were void if the Commiſſioners by Martial Law may hang him. 2 E. 6. divers Souldiers made away their Arms and Horſe, that Statute is they ſhall be impriſoned: But if they might have been puniſhed by Martial Law that Statute had been void; alſo by Martial Law he ought to be puniſhed by death.

Object. An Army cannot wait Legal proceedings. I anſwer, If an Army be in the Field the Common Law allows Martial Law, and alſo the Juriſdiction of the Admiral is part of the Common Law, and then there is placita exercitus, and there may be a Jury raiſed preſently by the Martial Law, and this is Legal.

12 H. 7. In dorſo Pat. two Letters Patents were directed to the Earl of Oxford that recited that divers Rebels did Levy War, &c. and power was given to ſuppreſs them, & facere omnia quæ ad officium Conſtabular. Martiali pertinent ſecundum Legem & Conſuetudinem ante uſitat. 15 H. 7. 2. pars Patent. there was a Patent to the ſame purpoſe; when an Army is in the Field the Martial is Judge, and he is to Judge according to the Law Martial.

1 E. 3. prima pars memb. 21. Parliament Roll. The Earl of Lancaſter exhibits a Petition to the Parliament, and ſhews that his Father was executed contrary to the Law, and the Record was produced placita coram Domino Rege; whereas ſeven Earls were before the King, and the ſaid Earl was ſent for before the King and the ſaid ſeven Earls, and the ſaid Earl was accuſed, that with Banners diſplayed they had raiſed Commotion, and this was notoriouſly known, and he was adjudged to be beheaded and hanged.

The Errour is aſſigned in the Record, that in time of Peace every Subject ought to be arraigned according to the Law of the Land, and he ſet forth that it was in time of peace, for during the Rebellion and Conviction the Chancery and the other Courts were open, and ſo he ought to be adjudged by the Law of the Land, and not otherwiſe.

Alſo the ſaid Earl of Lancaſter was Peer of the Realm, and he was not tried by his Peers, which was contrary to the Law, and the tenour of the great Charter, and therefore it was conſidered by the King, the Lords and Commons, that Judicium fuit nullum & vacuum in Lege; there was a Rebellion at that time, the King himſelf was preſent at the Conviction, whhich was ſtronger than here before Commiſſioners, and yet that was againſt the Law.

We have now no Army in the Field, no Enemy but among our ſelves, and it is no time of War, and therefore the Commiſſion is not fit, nor warranted by Law.

Mr. Rolls, afterwards Lord Chief Juſtice Rolls, at the Committee for Martial Law.

IN this Diſputation I will not trench on Power, but the abuſe of it, 37 H. 6.20. the Law of the Martial is the Kings Law, and the Common Law takes notice of it; we acknowledge it ſo to be, but now the Queſtion is, when it is to be uſed?

Poteſtas vitæ & mortis belong now to the Common Law, or to the Martial. The Queſtion is now when this Martial Law is to be uſed, and upon whom the Common Law is the higheſt for the Subject, 7 H. 8. Kellway 176. every Liege man inherits the Law, 19 H. 6. 63. it is the inheritance of the King, this great inheritance is not to be taken from him, and Martial Law is meerly for neceſſity, where the Common Law cannot take place; now for the time when that neceſſity falls out, in time of Peace it cannot, ſo we muſt conſider when is time of Peace or War.

If the Chancery and Courts of Weſtminſter be ſhut up that are Officina Juſtitiæ, it is time of War, but if the Courts be open it is otherwiſe; yet if War be in any part of the Kingdom, that the Sheriff cannot execute the Kings Writ, there is tempus belli.

If an Enemy come into any part, where the Common Law cannot be executed, there may the Martial Law be executed. If a Subject be taken in Rebellion, if he be not ſlain in the time of his Rebellion, he is to be tried after by the Common Law, 2 H. 5. Parliament Roll, 2 Pars, John Montague, Earl of Saliſbury, was in Rebellion againſt H. 4. and was taken and put to death, 2 H 4.

In 2 H. 5. his Son brought an Error, and aſſigned that he was a day and half in Priſon after his apprehenſion, and was put to death without due Trial at Law, contrary to Magna Charta: There is no neceſſity of Martial Law, but if an Alien Enemy come into the Realm, he cannot be executed by the Common Law, for he is not a Liege of the Kings, and ſo is to be tried by Martial.

If the Martial Law in time of Peace ſhould be executed on Souldiers, that were a great diſhonour and prejudice to them; the King may make Commiſſioners to them that are not Souldiers, or the Lord General only, ſo they ſhall be worſe than other Subjects; if there be a Body of an Army going out of the Kingdom, there is no neceſſity of Martial Law, but for Diſcipline the Marſhal and Conſtable may uſe the Martial Law, but to execute them they cannot, if they have not a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer, 5 H. 4. rot. 24. Parliament Roll, a Commiſſion to provide an Army was ſent down from the Lords to the Commons, which was there amended, and by that Commiſſion it was directed, that in every County the Sheriff and others may Arm, and muſter men ad inimicos Regis deſtruendos & debellandos & amicos qui in hac parte reſiſtunt, and will not be muſtered; He doth not ſay, that they ſhall execute, but that they ſhall be impriſoned donec aliud inde ordinarimus. If this Martial Law be uſed, the King will loſe his forfeitures of Attainder, 7 H. 4. 46. Martin: If a man be ſlain in Rebellion againſt the King, he may be Attainted after his death: 15. E. 3. Petition, the Chief ſhall view his body: 34. E. 3. ca. 12. ſets forth how he ſhall be Attainted after his death. Of the five Volumes of the Roman Law, one part is ſpent in Martial-Law, and the Title is de re militari, but that Law teacheth us to ask the Common-Law. Delictum militum is either Commune delictum, as Murder, Felony, &c. or militare delictum as to loſe and ſell their Arms. Delicta militaria by the Common-Law deſerves not a phillip, as by the Common-Law delicta levia are to be puniſhed by the Magiſtr. Milit.

Mr. Noy.

IF Martial-Law may be Executed in time of War, but it goes with a reſtraint only to Souldiers; that it may be in time of War there is no Queſtion, but for time of Peace it is a Queſtion?

What is time of Peace, In Hen. 3. time in the Battel of Lewis unto the Battel of Ewſham, it was a time of War, a Deſcent took not away Entry; and a Feofment then was void, if they were not both of one ſide, and this time of War is Entred in the Regiſter Book in the Exchequer, and yet the Courts of Juſtice were then open, and the Parliament Rolls at that time are yet extant, 24. E. 1. The King went into Scotland, there were placita exercitus, and it begun at Eaſter, and yet then the Chancery was open and Writs went out, which are yet to be ſeen. As for the Earl of Lancaſter, he drew Forces together and killed many, and was taken and carried to Pomfret and had a Judgment, and they never called him to anſwer for himſelf, but they made a Record of his Rebellion, and the King adjudged he ſhould be Executed, Forfeit his Lands, and this was Reverſed, becauſe the Kings Court was open, and no man muſt ſpill the blood of War in Peace, but if he had been ſlain in Battel it had been good, or if he had been in Exercitu, and pro hominibus de Exercitu. So in the time of Queen Eliz. 2. Commiſſions were granted for Martial Law pro hominibus de Exercitu and in Exercitu, and ſome were Executed and their Heirs afterwards Reverſed the Judgments: when the Judgments were given it was a time of Peace, and there is great Reaſon they ſhould be Reverſed, the Commiſſion was by the King to divers ad Juſtitiam reddend. juxta tenorem cujuſdam Schedulæ annexed, and with this Commiſſion they ſent the very Judgment itſelf, Becauſe you did thus, &c. Now to make Juſtices and to preſcribe a Judgment in ſuch a Form againſt one that was never called to Anſwer, was againſt the Law-Martial. Law is neceſſary to an Army, and to men of the ſame Army. This Commiſſion is not juſtifiable, for thought it were intended for the Army, it is ſomwhat too large, it extends to the Souldiers and Mariners, and others that join with them, the Mariners have a Law by themſelves, both cannot be under one Law. All old Commiſſions are inter homines de Exercitu and in Exercitu, It is a hard Law for the Souldier to have all his Laws writ in Death. It is very terrible and it will make them hate them that have that power.

For the time of Execution of it; when there is an Army, our Law allows Martial-Law, if there be an Army, that is in expectance of an Enemy, but had not the Martial-Law at the beginning of raiſing his Army, my, but when the Army was brought together, and the Enemy was to approach he had it then. But now no Enemy is approaching.

Obj. They are not able to Execute according to the Common-Law, they care not for a Conſtable.

Anſw. But they muſt care for the County and the Sheriff. If the Sheriff return that unruly people make reſiſtance it is no good return, for it ſounds to the diſhonor of the King.

Alſo theſe Laws thus made were not Proclaimed, and there was no Body of an Army expecting an approach of an Enemy, and that when they are diſperſed is not allowable by the Law.

Sir Edward Coke concerning Martial-Law.

I Shall maintain Jus belli. But God ſend me never to live under the Law of Conveniency or Diſcretion. Shall the Souldier and Juſtice Sit on one Bench, the Trumpet will not let the Cryer ſpeak in Weſtminſter-Hall. Non bene conveniunt.

The time of Peace, is when the Courts of Weſtminſter are open. For when they are open then you may have a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer, and where the Common-Law can determine a thing the Martial-Law ought not.

Drake ſlew Doughty beyond Sea. Doughties Brother deſired an Appeal in the Conſtable and Marſhals Court, and Wray and the other Judges reſolved he might there ſue. We make no Law we muſt not mediate ubi Lex non diſtinguit. To hang a man tempore pacis is dangerous, I ſpeak not of proſecution againſt a Rebel, he may be ſlain in the Rebellion; but if he be taken he cannot be put to death by the Martial-Law. 28. E. 2. M. 13. When the Courts are open Martial-Law cannot be Executed 5. H. 4. and 30. Willmons Caſe, the Conſtable and Marſhal deſired an addition to their Commiſſion and they proceeded againſt ſome according to that power, but becauſe it was not according to their ancient power it was void, for they cannot do any thing according to that additional power, and there was a Prohibition to ſtay their proceedings by vertue of that additional power: How ſhall the Souldiers know how to obey them? they are not under the Great Seal.

A Commiſsion to the Lords, and others of the Privy Council, for putting in Execution of the Laws and Statutes for Relief of the Poor, Puniſhment of Rogues, and imployment of Gifts to Charitable uſes. Jan. 5. 1630.

Sir John Cook, Knight, one other of our Principal Secretaries of State.
Sir Francis Cottington, Baronet, Chancellour of Our Exchequer.
Sir Julius Cæſar, Knight, Maſter of the Rolls.
And Sir William Alexander, Knight, Greeting.

Whereas divers good Laws and Statutes, moſt neceſſary for theſe times, have, during the happy Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and of Our late Father of Bleſſed Memory, and ſince Our coming to the Crown of England, been with great Wiſdom, Piety, and Policy, made and Enacted in Parliament, as well for the Charitable Relief of aged and impotent poor people, not able by their labours to get their livings; and for the training up of Youth in honeſt and profitable Trades and Myſteries, by putting them forth to be Apprentices, as alſo for the ſetting to work of Idle Perſons, who being of ability to work, in ſome kind or other, do nevertheleſs refuſe to labour, and either wander up and down the City and Country begging, or which is worſe, maintain themſelves by filching and ſtealing; And for the Puniſhment of ſundry Rogues and Vagabonds, and ſetting of them to work. And for the ſuppreſſing of that odious and loathſom ſin of Drunkenneſs, and the repreſſing of Idleneſs, the root of ſo many Evils: The due execution of which, and the like Laws and Statutes would prevent and cut off many offences and Crimes of high nature.

And whereas we are informed that the defect of the execution of the ſaid good and Politick Laws and Conſtitutions in that behalf made, proceedeth eſpecially from the neglect of Duty in ſome of Our Juſtices of the Peace, and other Officers, Magiſtrates, and Miniſters of the Peace within the ſeveral Counties, Cities, and Towns Corporate of this Our Realm of England, and Dominion of Wales, to whom the care and truſt of ſeeing the ſaid Laws to be put in execution, is by the ſaid Laws principally committed; which remiſneſs and neglect of Duty doth grow and ariſe from this, That by the moſt of the ſaid Laws, there are little or no Penalties or Forfeitures at all inflicted upon the ſaid Juſtices of Peace, Magiſtrates, Officers, and Miniſters for not performing their Duties in that behalf, or if any be, yet partly by reaſon of the ſmalneſs thereof, and partly by reaſon of their Power and Authority in their ſeveral Places, whereby they hold others under them in awe, there are few or no Complaints or Informations made of the neglects and want of due execution of the Offices of the ſaid Juſtices and other Miniſters; And although the care and diligence of Our Judges and Juſtices of Aſſize be never ſo great, yet by reaſon of the ſhortneſs of their Aſſizes and Seſſions in every County, and multiplicity of buſineſs, they neither have due Information of the ſaid neglects, nor in thoſe times can take ſuch exact Courſes as were requiſite for redreſs of ſuch general abuſes and inconveniencies ſo highly importing the Publick good of this Our Realm, by reaſon whereof the ſaid Juſtices of Peace, Magiſtrates, Offiicers and Miniſters are now of late in moſt parts of this our Kingdom grown ſecure in their ſaid negligence, and the ſaid Politick and neceſſary Laws and Statutes laid aſide, or little regarded as Laws of ſmall uſe, and conſequence, whereas upon the preſent making of the ſaid Laws, the ſame being then duly executed, as alſo at this day in ſome Counties and parts of this Our Kingdom; Where ſome Juſtices of Peace, and other Magiſtrates do duly and diligently execute the ſame, there evidently appeareth great Reformation, benefit and ſafely to redound to the Common Wealth. And likewiſe whenas there was care taken, and diligence uſed to have the Laws concerning Charitable uſes well executed, and all Pious Gifts to be employed according to the good intent of the Donors, theſe poor people were better relieved than now they are. All which we taking into Our Princely care for the Preſervation of the Common Peace of this Realm, the performance of mens Pious intentions in their gifts of Charity, and the general good and quiet of Our Subjects:

After long and mature Deliberation, finding that there is no better ways or means to have the ſaid Laws and Statutes put in full execution, than by committing the truſt and overſight thereof to the ſpecial care and induſtry of certain Perſons of principal place, dignity, and order near unto Our Perſon: Who upon their diligent enquiry how the ſaid Laws and Statutes are put in Execution, may be able upon all occaſions from time to time to give us particular Information thereof, and by their approved Wiſdoms, Experience and Judgments, give directions, and inſtructions from time to time for the better Execution of the ſaid Statutes.

Know ye therefore that We out of that long Experience and full aſſurance We have had of the great Integrity, Wiſdom, Fidelity, and Induſtry of you, and every of you, have Conſtituted, Authorized, and Appointed you to be Our Commiſſioners, and by theſe preſents do Conſtitute, Authorize, and appoint, and ſtrictly require you, or any four or more of you Our Commiſſioners, either by Examination upon Oath, or without Oath, or by all and every ſuch good and lawful means, as to you, or any four or more of you, in your Wiſdoms and Judgments ſhall ſeem convenient and requiſite from time to time from henceforth to make enquiry, and thereby to inform your ſelves how all and every the Laws and Statutes now in Force which any way concern the Relief of Impotent or poor People, the binding out of Apprentices, the ſetting to work of poor Children, and ſuch other poor people, as being able or willing to work have no ſtock or means to employ themſelves; The compelling and forcing ſuch lazy and idle Perſons to work, as being of bodies able and ſtrong, do nevertheleſs refuſe to labour; The maintenance, government, and well ordering of houſes of Correction, and other places for relief of poor indigent and impotent people, the Rating, Collecting, and Imployment of all ſuch Sums as by the Statute of the three and fortieth of Elizabeth are appointed for the relief of Souldiers and Mariners, the puniſhment, or ſetting on work of Rogues and Vagabonds: And all Laws and Statutes now in force for the repreſſing of Drunkenneſs and Idleneſs, the reforming of abuſes committed in Inns and Alehouſes, the abridging of the number of Alehouſes, and the well-ordering of ſuch as are Licenſed, the keeping of Watches and Wards duly, and how other publick Services for God, the King, and the Common-wealth are put in practice and executed.

To which end and purpoſe, to you Our Commiſſioners, or any ſix or more of you, We give full Power and Authority from time to time hereafter, to give ſuch directions and inſtructions, and by all other good and lawful means to ſet down, and give ſuch orders and directions, as that all and every the ſaid Laws and other neceſſary Statutes may be duly and effectually executed, and the Pains and Penalties thereof levied and imployed according to the purport and true meaning of the ſame Laws.

And whereas no Nation of the world hath provided more liberally, or ordained better Laws for due imployment of Lands, Goods, and Stocks of Money, given to Charitable uſes, than this Our Kingdom of England hath done: Yet nevertheleſs the ſaid Bounties and charitable gifts have not been employed according to the mind and intent of the Givers, by reaſon of ſome Devices, Frauds, breach of Truſt, aim at Private Gain, and partly by the negligence of thoſe that have been truſted to perform the ſame.

Therefore Our Will and expreſs Pleaſure is, that thoſe Statutes of the Thirty Ninth and Forty Third of Elizabeth, and all other Laws and Statutes concerning Hoſpitals, Almes-houſes, Maiſons de Dieu, and other pious Donations, Collections, or publick gifts for the benefit of the poor, or publick works, be ſtrictly inquired and put in execution. And all Deeds of Foundations, Charters, Wills, Devices, diſpoſitions of Lands, Goods, Annuities, or Rents, given, appointed, or intended to any the houſes aforeſaid, or to any charitable uſe or publick work, be diligently ſought out and diſcovered, to the end there may be an employment of all the Profits, according to the will, and mind of the Donors or Founders.

And We do further by theſe Preſents, give full Power and Authority unto you, or any ſix, or more of you, to call unto you for your aſſiſtance in the Premiſes, when you ſhall ſee it needful, all, or any of Our Juſtices of Aſſize, as often as you ſhall ſee cauſe, and to give ſuch directions and inſtructions by your Letters, or otherwiſe, as well to Our ſaid Juſtices of Aſſize, Oyer and Terminer, and Gaol-delivery, for their ſeveral Circuits: As alſo to Our Juſtices, Mayors, Bayliffs, and other head Officers, within Cities, and Burroughs, Clerks of the Aſſize and Seſſions, and other Officers and Miniſters within Our ſeveral Counties and Shires of this Our Realm of England, and Dominion of Wales, and the ſeveral Diviſions of the ſame, as to you, or any ſix or more of you in your wiſdom ſhall ſeem meet and requiſite, and ſhall be agreeable to the Laws and Statutes of this Our Realm for the better execution of the Laws and Statutes in the time to come. All which Directions, Inſtructions, and Orders at any time or times hereafter ſo to be made or taken by you, or any Six or more of you, by force of theſe Preſents; We will and ſtraitly charge and command you by theſe Preſents, to be ſincerely and duly from time to time obeyed, obſerved, and kept, by all and every Officer and Officers, Juſtice and Juſtices, Perſon and Perſons, to whom it ſhall appertain.

And We do hereby further will and require you, that you, or any four or more of you, do from time to time give unto Us particular and true information of the care and induſtry of our Juſtices of the Peace in their ſeveral Diviſions, Mayors, Bayliffs, and head Officers, in their ſeveral Cities and Towns Corporate, as upon the ſaid enquiry you ſhall find to be diligent in putting the ſaid Laws, Statutes, Orders, and Directions in Execution, that ſo by their ſervice and your report, they appearing to deſerve well of their King and Country, may receive not only good acceptance at our hands, but all due encouragement and comfort to continue in their well-doings; And if contrariwiſe you ſhall find any of our ſaid Juſtices of Peace, or other the perſons before-named to be negligent and remiſs in their ſeveral places and duties touching the performance and execution of the ſaid Laws and Statutes committed to their charge, or the Orders and Directions given by you, or any ſix of you, for the better execution of the ſaid Statutes: Then Our Pleaſure is, that you do likewiſe certifie the names of ſuch as you ſhall find ſo remiſs and negligent, that accordingly order may be taken for their removing and diſplacing out of the Commiſſion of the Peace, as men unworthy of their ſaid Truſt and Places; As alſo deſerving to receive ſuch further puniſhment in Our Court of Star-Chamber, or otherwiſe, as may be by Law inflicted upon them.

And further We do by theſe Preſents give unto you, or any Six or more of you, full Power and Authority to do and execute all and every other lawful and neceſſary Act and Acts, thing and things for the better and more due execution of the premiſſes, or any of them, as you, or any ſix, or more of you, ſhall in your Wiſdoms and Judgments think to be fit and convenient.

And becauſe you that are Attendants upon Our Perſon, or otherwiſe imployed in your Services cannot at all times be in Perſon in the ſeveral Shires of this Our Kingdom to execute this our Commiſſion in ſuch ſort as We have appointed it. And for that it will be very fit and requiſite for you to have Perſons of Truſt under you, who may faithfully aſſiſt you in the execution of this Our Commiſſion:

We do therefore give unto you for your better aid and aſſiſtance, and the better performance of this our Service, full Power and Authority from time to time, to Aſſign, Appoint, and Conſtitute by your Writing under your Hands and Seals, or the Hands and Seals of any Six or more of you, ſuch ſufficient meet Perſons as you, or any Six of you, in your diſcretions ſhall from time to time think fit and appoint to be your Deputies in every, or any County, City, Burrough, or Town Corporate of this Our Kingdom of England, or Dominion of Wales.

And We do give unto ſuch Perſons, ſo to be by you Deputed, Aſſigned, and Appointed, as aforeſaid, or to any two, three, or more of them full Power and Authority, to do and execute in Our ſaid Counties, Cities, Burroughs, and Towns Corporate, as well within Liberties as without; all and every thing and things, which by vertue of this Our miſſion, is to you Our Principal Commiſſioners, intruſted, and committed, or which you or any of you Our Commiſſioners, if you were perſonally Preſent, might, or ought to do; they your ſaid Deputies purſuing ſuch directions and inſtructions from time to time as you or any Six of you ſhall give unto them in writing: And the better to enable them ſo to do, you ſhall deliver to ſuch Deputies as you ſhall make in every County, City, or Town Corporate, as aforeſaid, a Duplicate, or true Tranſcript of this our Commiſſion, ſubſcribed with your Hands, or under the Hands of Six of you at the leaſt.

And we do further by the Tenour of theſe Preſents, Will and Command, and do give full power and Authority to Our Lord Chancellour, or Lord Keeper of our Great Seal for the time being, to cauſe ſeveral Commiſſions to be made forth, under Our Great Seal of England, to ſuch Perſons of Truſt and Quality as any Six, or more of you ſhall from time to time nominate unto him, and ſhall ſo ſignifie unto him by writing under your Hands to the ſame Tenour and Effect, in every material thing, as in theſe Our Letters Patents is expreſſed, with a Clauſe to be inſerted in every ſuch Commiſſion and Commiſſions, commanding ſuch

Perſons ſo to be nominated, that they certifie all their proceedings thereupon to you Our foreſaid Commiſſioners, or to any Six of you, at ſuch times and places as you, or any Six of you ſhall appoint. In Witneſs whereof, we have cauſed theſe Our Letters to be made Patents, Witneſs our Self at Weſtminſter the fifth day of January, in the Sixth Year of Our Reign.

ORDERS.

I. That the Juſtices of Peace of every Shire within the Realm do divide themſelves, and allot among themſelves what Juſtices of the Peace, and what Hundreds ſhall attend monthly at ſome certain places of the Shire. And at this day and place, the High Conſtables, Petty Conſtables, and Churchwardens, and Overſeers for the Poor of thoſe Hundreds, ſhall attend the ſaid Juſtices. And there enquiry ſhall be made, and information taken by the Juſtices how every of theſe Officers in their ſeveral Places have done their duties in execution of the Laws mentioned in the Commiſſion annexed, and what Perſons have offended againſt any of the ſaid Laws:

II. Where neglect or defect is found in any of the ſaid Officers, in making their Preſentments condign puniſhment to be inflicted upon them by the Juſtices according to Law.

III. When Offences are Preſented at one meeting, then the Penalties of the Laws offended, to be levied and brought to the Juſtices at their next meeting.

IV. When the Penalties are levied, the Juſtices are to take care that the ſame be implied accordingly as by the Statutes are appointed.

V. For encouragement to men that do inform and proſecute others for offending againſt theſe Laws, or any of them, liberty to be left to the Juſtices of Peace that do meet to reward the Informer or Proſecutor, out of part of the Money levied upon his, or their Preſentments or Information.

Though the Statute do not preſcribe this, yet this is not againſt the Law that gives the Penalty to the Poor, which Penalty, nor no part thereof would elſe come unto the Poor but by this means.

VI. That the ſeveral Juſtices of the Peace of every Shire do once every three Months certifie an account in writing to the High Sheriff of the County, of their proceedings in this way, whom they have puniſhed, what they have levied, and how they have imployed it.

VII. That the High Sheriff, within fourteen days after this Account delivered, do ſend the ſame over to the Juſtices of Aſſize for that County, or to one of them, and the Juſtice or Juſtices that receive the ſame, to certifie it in the beginning of every Term next after to the Lords Commiſſioners: And if any of the Juſtices of Peace ſhall fail to make ſuch account to the Sheriff, then the Sheriff ſhall certifie ſuch default to the Lords Commiſſioners.

VIII. The Juſtices of Aſſize in every Circuit, are to enquire, and ſpecially to mark what Juſtices of the Peace are careful and diligent in execution of theſe Laws, and the directions given, and who are negligent and remiſs. And what other things of Note happen in their Circuits to make report thereof to the King, upon their return from their Circuits every half year.

Directions.

I. That the Lords of Mannours and Towns take care that their Tenants and the Pariſhioners of every Town may be relieved by work, or otherwiſe at home, and not ſuffered to ſtraggle and beg up and down in their Pariſhes.

II. That Stewards to Lords and Gentlemen, in keeping their Leets twice a year, do eſpecially enquire upon thoſe Articles, that tend to the reformation or puniſhment of Common Offences and abuſes: As of Bakers and Brewers, for breaking of Aſſizes; of Foreſtallers, and Regraters: Againſt Tradesmen of all ſorts, for ſelling with under weights, or at exceſſive prizes, or things unwholſom, or things made in deceit: Of People, Breakers of houſes, common Thieves and their Receivers; Haunters of Taverns or Alehouſes, thoſe that go in good Cloaths, and fare well, and none knows whereof they live; thoſe that be Night-walkers; builders of Cottages, and takers in of Inmates; Offences of Victuallers, Artificers, Workmen, and Labourers.

III. That the poor Children in every Pariſh be put forth Apprentices to Husbandry, and other Handy-crafts, and money to be raiſed in the Pariſhes for placing them, according to the Law; and if any party ſhall refuſe to take the ſaid Apprentice, being put out according to the Law, ſuch party as ſhall refuſe to take the ſaid Apprentice, to be bound over to the next Quarter Seſſions, or Aſſizes, and there to be bound to his good Behaviour, or otherwiſe ordered as ſhall be found fit.

IV. That the Statute of Labourers, for retaining of Servants, and ordering of Wages, betwixt the Servant and the Maſter be not deluded by private Contracts, before they come to the Statutes, and the common faſhion of Eſſoyning many abſent, not to be allowed of courſe, as is uſed.

V. That the Weekly Taxations for relief of the Poor, and other purpoſes mentioned in the Statute of 43 Eliz. be in theſe times of Scarcity raiſed to higher Rates in every Pariſh, than in times tofore were uſed. And Contributions had from other Pariſhes to help the weaker Pariſhes, eſpecially from thoſe places where Depopulations have been, ſome good Contribution to come, for help of other Pariſhes. And where any money or Stock hath been, or ſhall be given to the relief of the Poor in any Pariſh, ſuch gift to be no occaſion of leſſening the Rates of the Pariſh.

VI. That the Petty Conſtables in all Pariſhes be choſen of the abler ſort of Pariſhioners, and the Office not to be put upon the poorer ſort, if it may be.

VII. Watches in the night, and Warding by day, and to be appointed in every Town and Village, for apprehenſion of Rogues, and Vagabonds, and for ſafety and good order.

VIII. And becauſe it is found by daily experience, that the remiſsneſs and negligence of Petty Conſtables is a great cauſe of the ſwarming of Rogues and Beggers: Therefore the High Conſtables in their ſeveral Diviſions are ſpecially to be charged to look unto the Petty Conſtables that they uſe diligence in their their Offices, and the High Conſtables to preſent to the Juſtices of Peace the defaults of the Petty Conſtables, for not puniſhing the Rogues, or not Preſenting thoſe that are relievers of the Rogues and Beggars, the Law inflicting a Penalty upon the Conſtable for not puniſhing them, and upon ſuch Party as ſhall relieve them.

IX. If in any Pariſh there be found any Perſons that live out of Service, or that live idlely, and will not work for reaſonable Wages, or live to ſpend all they have at the Alehouſe, thoſe perſons to be brought by the High Conſtables, and Petty Conſtables to the Juſtices at their meetings, there to be ordered and puniſhed as ſhall be found fit.

X. That the Correction-houſes in all Counties may be made adjoyning to the Common Priſons, and the Goaler to be made Governour of them, that ſo he may imploy to work Priſoners committed for ſmall Cauſes, and ſo they may learn honeſtly by Labour, and not live idlely and miſerably long in Priſon, whereby they are made worſe when they come out than they were when they went in, and where many houſes of Correction are in one County, one of them at leaſt to be near the Goal.

XI. That no man harbour Rogues in their Barns, or Out-houſes. And the wandring perſons with Women and Children, to give account to the Conſtable or Juſtice of Peace, where they were Married, and where their Children were Chriſtened, for theſe People live like Savages, neither Marry, nor Bury, nor Chriſten, which licentious liberty make ſo many delight to be Rogues and Wanderers.

XII. And becauſe the High-ways in all Counties of England are in great decay, partly ſo grown for that men think there is no courſe by the Common Law, or order from the State to amend the ſame: And the Work-days appointed by the Statute are ſo omitted or idlely performed, that there comes little good by them; therefore the Juſtices of Peace at theſe monthly meetings are to take ſpecial care of: And not only to cauſe the Surveyers of the High-ways to Preſent the ſame, but by their own view to inform themſelves, that at the next Quarter Seſſions after every meeting they may Preſent all ſuch neglects and offences, (as upon their own view) and the offenders there to be puniſhed according to Law.

Articles of Peace, ENTERCOURSE AND COMMERCE,

CONCLUDED

In the names of the moſt High and Mighty Kings, CHARLES by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. And PHILIP the Fourth King of Spain, &c. In a Treaty at Madrid, the fifth day of November, after the Old Syle, in the year of our Lord God, 1630.

Tranſlated out of Latin into Engliſh.

Articles of the Treaty.

I. FIRST, It is concluded, and accorded, that from this day forward there ſhall be a good, ſincere, true, firm, and perfect Amity, League and Peace to endure for ever, and inviolably to be obſerved and kept, as well by Land as Sea, and freſh water, betwixt the Renowned King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, &c. and the moſt Renouned King of Spain, &c. and their Heirs and Succeſſors whomſoever, their Kingdoms, Countries, Dominions, Lands, Peoples, Liegemen, and Subjects, now being, or which hereafter ſhall be, of whatſoever condition, ſtate or degree they are are may be, ſo as the ſaid Vaſſals, and Subjects from henceforth are each of them to favour other, and to uſe one another with all kind and friendly Offices.

II. And that from henceforth all Hoſtility and Enmity ſhall ceaſe, and all offences, injuries, and damages which either part in time of the troubles hath ſuſtained by the other, ſhall be taken away and forgotten in ſuch ſort, as that hereafter neither party againſt the other for and upon occaſion of any damages, offences, depredations or ſpoils paſt may pretend any matter, but that there ſhall be a perfect abolition of all and every of them until this preſent day; and that all Actions for the ſame ſhall be held and reputed to be extinguiſhed, excepting all ſuch depredations which ſhall be committed, ted, within the Narrow Seas after the ſpace of fifteen days; and betwixt the Narrow Seas and the Iſlands, after the ſpace of three months; and beyond the Line after the ſpace of nine months fully ended, to be reckoned from the publication of the Peace: or immediately after the notice of the Peace ſufficiently given to the ſaid places, by Authentical Acts, or Letters reſpectively to be ſhewn, Becauſe of theſe an account and full reſtitution is to be made. And each party ſhall hereafter abſtain from all depredations, offences and ſpoils, as well by Sea as Land and Freſh Waters, in whatſoever the Kingdoms, Dominions, Places or Governments of the other: neither ſhall the aforeſaid Kings conſent, that any of the grievances beforementioned, be done by any their Vaſſals, Inhabitants or Subjects, and they ſhall cauſe reſtitution to be made of all depredations and ſpoils, which hereafter ſhall be committed, and of the damages growing by means thereof.

III. Item, That none of the afore-named moſt Renowned Kings, their Heirs or Succeſſors whoſoever, by himſelf, or by any other, ſhall do, Treat or attempt any thing againſt the other, or againſt their Kingdoms, Lands, or Dominions, whatſoever in any place, on Land or Sea, or in the Ports of Freſh Waters, by pretence of any cauſe, or upon any occaſion; neither any of them ſhall give aſſiſtance or conſent unto any War, Counſel, Attempt or Treaties, had, made, or to be made in the prejudice of either or againſt the other.

IV. Item, That neither of the former parties, ſhall themſelves give or ſhall conſent to be given by any of the Vaſſals, Subjects, or Inhabitants, Aid, Favour, or Counſel, directly or indirectly, on Land, Sea, or Freſh Waters: nor ſhall ſupply and miniſter, nor conſent to be ſupplyed and miniſtred, by their ſaid Vaſſals, Inhabitants and Subjects, unto the Enemies or Rebels of either part, of what nature or condition ſoever they be, whether they ſhall invade the Countries and Dominions of either of them, or withdraw themſelves from their obedience and ſubjection, any Souldiers, Proviſion of Victuals, Monies, Inſtruments of War, Munitions, or whatſoever other Aid elſe to maintain War.

V. And furthermore the aforeſaid Kings ſhall renounce, as by the tenor of theſe preſents every of them hath and doth renounce, whatſoever League, Confederation, Capitulation and Intelligence, made by what manner ſoever, in the prejudice of the one or the other, which doth or may repugn againſt this Peace, or Concord, and all and ſingular the Contents thereof: All which and every of them, ſo far as they do concern the effect aforeſaid, they ſhall annul and make void, and declare to be of no force or moment.

VI. Item, It is agreed and accorded, that the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings ſhall take care, and their Subjects ſhall from henceforth abſtain from all force and wrong doing, and that they likewiſe ſhall revoke all Commiſſions and Letters of Repriſal, and Mart, or otherwiſe, containing Licence to take Prizes of what condition or kind ſoever they are, being to the prejudice of the one or other of the ſaid Kings, or of their Subjects or Inhabitants, or unto Strangers, and ſhall declare the ſame to be void and of no force, as by this Treaty or Peace they are declared ſo to be; and whoſoever ſhall do any thing to the contrary, he ſhall be puniſhed not only criminally according to the merit of his offence, but ſhall alſo be compelled to make reſtitution and ſatisfaction for the loſſes to the parties damnified, requiring the ſame.

VII. Item, It is agreed and accorded that between the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. and the moſt Renowned King of Spain, &c. and every of their Vaſſals, Inhabitants and Subjects, as well by Land as Sea and Freſh Waters, in all and ſingular their Kingdoms, Dominions, Iſlands, and other Lands, Cities, Towns, Villages, Havens and Streights of the ſaid Kingdoms and Dominions, there be or may be free Commerce: In which before the War between Philip the ſecond King of Spain, and Elizabeth Queen of England, there hath been Commerce betwixt the ſaid Kingdoms according as it was agreed on in the Treaty of Peace made in the Year 1604. in the ninth Article, like and according to the uſe and obſervance of the Ancient Leagues and Treaties made before the ſaid time, in ſuch ſort and manner, as that without any ſafe Conduct or other Licence general or ſpecial, the Subjects of the one or other King, may freely, as well by Land as by Sea and Freſh Waters, go, enter, and ſail, in and to the ſaid Kingdoms and Dominions, and all the Cities, Havens, Shores, Sea-Roads and Streights thereof, and put themſelves into whatſoever Havens of the ſame, where before the aboveſaid time, there hath been a mutual Commerce, and like and according to the uſe and obſervance of the Antient Leagues and Treaties aforeſaid, with Carriages, Horſes, Burdens, Ships as well Laden, as to be Laden, to bring in Merchandiſes, and there to Buy or Sell as much as they will, and in the ſame places upon juſt Prizes to procure and have Proviſion of Victuals for their Suſtenance and Voyages; and likewiſe as occaſion ſhall require, to repair ſuch Shipping and Carriages, as either appertain unto them in property, or elſe they have hired or borrowed, and from thence alſo with their Merchandiſes, Goods, and other Commodities whatſoever, the Cuſtoms, and Tolls, as they are preſently rated, according to the Ordinances of the Places, being paid, they may with like freedom depart and go to their own Countries, or any other Place at their pleaſure without let or impediment.

VIII. Item, It is likewiſe agreed and accorded, that it may be lawful to have acceſs unto the Ports of the ſaid Kings, and there to make ſtay, and from thence with the ſame liberty to depart, not only with their Ships of Merchandiſes and Burthen, but alſo with other Shipping furniſhed for War, and prepared to withſtand the force of Enemies: whether they ſhall arrive there either by Force of Tempeſt, or for repairing their Ships, or for Proviſion of Victuals, ſo as they exceed not the number of ſix or eight Ships, when they come in of their own accord, nor that they continue or make ſtay in the Havens, or about the Ports longer than they ſhall juſt cauſe for the repair of the ſame Shipping, or for Proviſion of other neceſſaries, leſt there ſhould be any occaſion of interruption unto the free Commerce and Entercourſe of other Friends and Nations in Amity: and whenſoever any greater number of Ships of War than is before ſpecified, ſhall have occaſion of acceſs into thoſe Ports, then ſhall it not be lawful for them to make any entrance without the privity and conſent of the King. Provided alſo that they do no Hoſtile Act within the ſaid Ports, to the prejudice of the Kings; but demean themſelves there quietly, as Friends and Confederates, with ſpecial caution ever to be had, that under the colour and pretext of Commerce, no Warlike Aid, Proviſion of Victuals, or of Arms, or of Munition, or other ſuch like materials for the Wars be carried by the Subjects, Vaſſals, or Inhabitants habitants of thoſe Kingdoms, to the Commodities or Benefit of the Enemies of the one or other King. And whoſoever ſhall attempt to the contrary, ſhall be puniſhed with thoſe ſharp pains and puniſhments uſed to be inflicted upon ſeditious perſons and breakers of Faith and Peace. Provided alſo, that the ſubjects of the one in the Dominions and Territories of the other, be not worſe handled, than the natural ſubjects in their Sales and Contracts for their Merchandiſe, as well in reſpect of the Prizes, as otherwiſe, but that the condition of Forraigners be equal and like herein unto natural Subjects notwithſtanding any Statutes or Cuſtoms to the contrary.

IX. Item, It is agreed and accorded, that the ſaid moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. Shall Prohibit, and after the confirming of theſe preſent Articles, by Proclamation forthwith provide, that no one of His Subjects, Inhabitants, or Vaſſals, ſhall Lade; or carry over by any means, directly or indirectly in his own name, or in the name of any others; neither ſhall lend his Ship or other Veſſel for carriage, or uſe his name for the Tranſporting or conveying of any Ships, Merchandiſes, Manufactures, or any other thing out of Holland and Zealand into Spain, and other the Kingdoms and Dominions of the King of Spain; neither ſhall carry in his Ships any Holland or Zealand Merchant unto the ſaid Ports upon peril of His Majeſties indignation, and other puniſhments uſually inflicted on the contemners of Royal Commandments. And to the effect that fraud, which through the likeneſs of Merchandize might happen, be the better avoided; It is alſo provided in this preſent Article, that the Merchandizes to be carried and conveyed out of England, Scotland and Ireland, to the Kingdoms and Dominions of the King of Spain, ſhall be Regiſtred and Sealed with the Seal of the Town or City from whence they ſhall be Laden, and that they being ſo Regiſtred and Sealed ſhall without any difficulty or queſtion whatſoever be reputed and held for Engliſh, Scottiſh, and Iriſh Merchandizes, and ſo reſpectively, according the Seal or Mark, be allowed and admitted. Always excepted, that in caſe of fraud, proof ſhall be admitted, without ſtay notwithſtanding or lett of the courſe or venting of the Merchandizes in the mean time. And touching ſuch Merchandizes, as ſhall, not be Regiſtred nor Sealed, the ſame are to be Confiſcated and taken for good prize. And likewiſe all Hollanders and Zealanders which ſhall be found in the ſame Ships, may alſo be taken and detained.

X. Item, It is alſo agreed, that the Engliſh, Scottiſh, and Iriſh Merchandiſes may freely be Conveyed and Tranſported out of the ſaid Kingdoms into Spain, and other Dominions of the ſaid moſt Renowned King, paying only the Cuſtoms and Tolls uſually required.

XI. Item, It is likewiſe agreed, that for the Merchandizes, which Engliſh, Scottiſh, and Iriſh Merchants ſhall buy in Spain, or other of the Kingdoms of the ſaid King of Spain, and ſhall carry in their own Ships, or in Ships hired or lent unto them (except, as before hath been ſaid, the Ships of Hollanders and Zealanders) no new Cuſtoms of Toll ſhall be encreaſed: Yet ſo as they convey and carry the ſame Goods and Merchandizes to the Kingdoms of the ſaid moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. or to the Ports of the Provinces being in obedience to the King of Spain. And for the more ſurety that fraud be not committed herein, and that the ſaid Merchandizes be not Tranſported to other Places and Kingdoms, and eſpecially into Holland or Zealand, It is concluded, that the ſaid Merchants chants ſhall bind themſelves at the time that they do lade their Ships in Spain, or in the other Kingdoms and Dominions of the ſaid King of Spain above declared, before the Magiſtrate of the place in which they ſhall Lade; to pay the impoſition of thirty in the hundred, in caſe they carry the ſame Goods and Merchandizes to other Dominions and Countries: And to obtain alſo within the ſpace of twelve months following, a Certificate from the Magiſtrates of the Places where they ſhall diſcharge or unlade the ſame Goods, teſtifying their diſcharge to have been either in the Kingdoms and Dominions of the King of Great Britain, &c. or in the Ports of the Provinces under the obedience of the ſaid King of Spain: Upon the exhibiting whereof, the obligations concerning thoſe matters ſhall be delivered up, unto the bringers of the ſame Certificates.

XII. And alſo that the ſaid moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. ſhall Prohibit ſoon after the confirming of this accord, that none ſhall export any Merchandizes out of Spain, or other Kingdoms of the King of Spain, to be carryed to other places, than to His Majeſties Kingdoms, and the ſaid Ports of the Provinces in obedience, upon penalty of Confiſcation of all their Merchandizes to the uſe of the ſaid King of Great Britain, &c. to be paid into His Majeſties Exchequer; of which Merchandizes, or the value thereof, one half is to be given to the Informer, the impoſition of thirty in the hundred being firſt deducted, to be paid to the Miniſters and Deputies of the King of Spain, and the proofs lawfully received in Spain, and tranſmitted into England in an Authentical form, are to be credited. And it is alſo declared, that the ſaid Prohibition of Goods to be carried out of Spain, unto other places than the Kingdoms of Britain, and the other obedient Provinces of Flanders, doth no way comprehend thoſe Kingdoms and Dominions which enjoy a Free Trade with the Kingdom of Spain: for the Subjects of His Majeſty of Great Britain, may lawfully Tranſport the Goods of the Kingdom of Spain, unto thoſe that have a mutual Trade with Spain, the aforementioned Cautions, Conditions, and Penalties rehearſed in the precedent Articles againſt the Offenders remaining ſtill in force and ſtrength.

XIII. Item, That the Magiſtrates of the ſaid Towns, or Cities of His Majeſties Kingdoms, which ſhall make Certificates of the unlading of Ships, and are to give Teſtimony of the Regiſtring of the Merchandizes, ſhall not commit any fraud therein under peril of indignation of the Kings Majeſty, and pain of loſs of their Offices, and other more grievous puniſhments at the Kings pleaſure.

XIV. That which hath before been expreſſed concerning the Free Commerce, granted unto the Subjects of the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings, is to be underſtood to be likewiſe, and in the ſame manner agreed on for the Subjects of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. and of the obedient Provinces of Flanders; To wit, that in all places whatſoever, their Subjects are bound reciprocally, to reſpect and to favour each other; and by mutual kind Offices, Friendly to entertain the one the other, and that by Land, Sea, and Freſh Waters, without any ſafe Conduct or other Licence, general or ſpecial, they may unto the ſaid Kingdoms, Dominions, Lands, Villages, Towns, Cities, Sea-Shores, Havens, Sea-Roads whatſoever, freely, ſafely, ſecurely, come, enter, ſail, carry, and recarry their Merchandizes, Buy and Sell, remain, abide and converſe in the ſame ſo long as it ſhall pleaſe them; take up any kind of Proviſion for Victual and things neceſſary for Suſtenance, and for Voyages, at juſt and reaſonable Prizes; and there repair alſo (as occaſion ſhall require) their Shipping and Carriages, whether the ſame be their own, or whether they be hired or borrowed: As alſo to depart from thence with like liberty, with Merchandizes, Goods and other things whatſoever (the Cuſtoms and Tolls, according to the Statutes of thoſe places being paid) and to diſpoſe, and follow their buſineſſes freely, and to return at their own pleaſure; either into their own Countries, or to any other place, without any impediment or lett, ſo as the Subjects of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. uſe not the Shipping of the Hollanders, or the United Provinces, and bring not into the Obedient Provinces, any of the Manufactures of Holland, or of the United Provinces, bought whereſoever; neither any other thing, for which there was paid in Holland any Tribute, nor that they Tranſport any thing from the Obedient Provinces, unto them of thoſe Provinces, until a pacification be confirmed: nor that they receive any the Goods of Hollanders, or of thoſe other places United, into their Ships, nor truſt any of their own Goods in the Ships of Hollanders, nor fraudulently by lending their names, colour the Goods of any Hollander, or other of the United Provinces: for that if any thing be committed to the contrary, and ſame be found, it ſhall be held for juſt and lawful Prize.

XV. And the aforeſaid Proviſos are not only to be underſtood of Ships Laden or to be Laden, in cauſe of Commerce, but alſo of Ships of War, which the ſaid Kings have, or ſhall have armed to repreſs the attempts of their Enemies: inſomuch as that it may be lawful for ſuch Ships of War, not exceeding the number before-mentioned, if they happen to be conſtrained, either by force of Tempeſt, or for buying of Victuals, or other things, or for repair of Shipping, to uſe the ſame liberty in arriving, ſtaying, and departing; ſo that they do no Hoſtile Act in the ſaid Ports, but demean themſelves honeſtly, and quietly, as it becometh Confederates and Friends: And ſo that they ſtay and remain not in, or about the ſame Ports any longer than ſhall be needful for Reparation and Proviſion of neceſſaries, that thereby they be not a hindrance, or interruption to the Free Commerce and Entercourſe with other Nations that are in Amity and Friendſhip: But where occaſion ſhall fall out of arrival of any greater number of Shipping than before ſpecified, it ſhall not be lawful for them to enter, but with the knowledg and allowance of the King.

XVI. And as the ſaid Kings do Religiouſly promiſe, that they will not any time yield any Warlike Succour to any of the others Enemies, ſo it is provided, that their Subjects, or the Inhabitants in their Realms, of what Nation or Quality ſoever they be, may not under colour of Entercourſe and Commerce, nor upon any other Colour or Pretence give any Aid or Help to the Enemies of the ſaid Kings, or of either of them, or confer or ſupply them with Mony, Proviſions of Victuals for War, Armour, Munition, Ordnance, Artillery, or other Warlike Proviſion, and thoſe which ſhall do the contrary, are to take knowledg, that they ſhall be puniſhed with the ſevere puniſhments accuſtomed to be inflicted upon breakers of League, and Seditious perſons.

XVII. And that alſo greater benefit may through this concord come unto the Subjects of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, and of the moſt Renowned King of Spain, in their Obedient Provinces, it is accorded and concluded that the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings joyntly and ſeverally will do their endeavours, that their Subjects have not the paſſages ſtopped or letted unto any of their Ports, Kingdoms and Dominions, that thereby they be not hindred, freely and without impediment to come and go with their Shipping, Merchandize and Carriages (the ordinary Cuſtoms and Tolls being paid) to all the ſaid Ports, Kingdoms, and Dominions: And with the like liberty (when it ſhall ſeem ſo good unto them) with other Merchandizes from hence to depart.

XVIII. But as concerning the Ancient Treaties of Entercourſe and Commerce, whereof divers are extant, betwixt the Kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions of the Dukes of Burgundy and Princes of the Low-Countries, which notwithſtanding during the troubles have been intermitted, and peradventure in ſome parts impaired; it is agreed by way of Proviſion, that they ſhall retain and have their Antient Force and Authority; and that they ſhall be uſed on both parts as they were before the War between Elizabeth Queen of England and Philip the Second, according as it was agreed on in the Treaty of Peace made in the Year one thouſand, ſix hundred and four, in the two and twentieth Article. And if it happen that either by both parts, or any one part, any breach thereof be alledged, or that the Subjects ſhall complain, that the Conventions are not obſerved, or that more grievous burdens than were accuſtomed, are impoſed on them, there ſhall be Deputies appointed on either part, which may meet, and calling unto them (if need be) Merchants experienced in ſuch matters, may Friendly Treat, and equally renew and reſtore ſuch things, as ſhall be found either to have ſlipped out of courſe, or to have been changed by the injury of time, or by corrupt cuſtom and uſe.

XIX. And for that the rights of Commerce which do enſue by Peace, ought not to be made unfruitful, as they would be, if the Subjects of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c. Whilſt they have recourſe to and from the Kingdoms and Dominions of the ſaid King of Spain, and do remain there for Commerce, ſhould be moleſted in the Cauſe of Conſcience: therfore to the intent their Traffick may be ſafe and without danger, as well on Land as on Sea, the ſaid moſt Renowned King of Spain ſhall take care, and provide, that for the ſaid Cauſe of Conſcience they ſhall not be moleſted nor inquieted in uſing their Trade and Commerce, ſo as they give not ſcandal unto others.

XX. Item, That if it happen any Goods or Merchandizes Prohibited to be carried or conveyed out of the Kingdoms and Dominions of the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings, by the Subjects of the one or of the other; That in ſuch caſe, the perſon only offending ſhall incur puniſhment, and the Goods only Prohibited ſhall be Confiſcated.

XXI. Item, That the Goods of the Subjects, dying within the Kingdoms or Dominions of either, ſhall be conſerved to the right Heirs and Succeſſors of the deceaſed; the right of a third perſon alway reſerved.

XXII. Item, That the grants and priviledges given by the Kings to Merchants of either of the Kingdoms, coming to their ſaid Kingdoms, and which priviledges through the Wars have ceaſed ſhall from henceforth wholly be revived, and have their full force and ſtrength.

XXIII. Item, if it ſhall happen hereafter (which God forbid) that any diſpleaſure do ariſe, betwixt the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings, the King of Great Britain, and the King of Spain, whereby danger might grow of the interruption of Entercourſe avd and Commerce, then the Subjects of either King are thereof ſo to be admoniſhed, as that they may have ſix months from the time of the monition to Tranſport their Merchandizes without any Arreſt, Diſturbance, or Hurt in the mean ſeaſon, to be done or given unto them either in their Perſons or Merchandizes.

XXIV. Item, That none of the foreſaid Kings ſhall imbarge or ſtay for their Proviſion in War, or for any other ſervice, to the prejudice of the Owners the Ships of the Subjects of any of the others, being in their Ports, or Waters, unleſs the King of thoſe parties to whom the Ships do appertain ſhall firſt be admoniſhed thereof, and ſhall alſo yield his conſent thereunto.

XXV. Item, It is accorded, that if during this Peace and Amity, any thing happen to be attempted, committed, or done, againſt the force and effect thereof by Land, Sea, or Freſh Waters, either by any of the ſaid Kings, their Heirs aud Succeſſors, their Vaſſals, Subjects or Allies comprehended in this League, or of any the Heirs or Succeſſors of thoſe Allies, their Subjects or Vaſſals; Yet notwithſtanding this Peace and Amity ſhall remain in ſtrength and vertue, and the attempters and ſuch as do offend therein only, and no other, ſhall be puniſhed for their attempts.

XXVI. Item, That ſuch as have been taken in War, and are Captives on either part, although they be Condemned to the Gallies, ſhall be releaſed and diſmiſſed, the Charges of the diet ſuch as are not in the Gallies, being firſt diſcharged, and the Ranſoms of ſuch as have before agreed for the ſame, being by them payed.

XXVII. Item, It is concluded, that all civil actions, which at the time when the laſt Wars began, were of validity and force, may yet be exerciſed and purſued, notwithſtanding any lapſe of time during the ſame War, ſo as no prejudice ſhall be underſtood to have grown unto them, during the continuance of the War, thoſe only excepted which are already come to the Exchequer or Princes Treaſury.

XXVIII. Item, If any Controverſie happen to be moved in the Kingdoms and Dominions, of the one or other of theſe Kings, by any perſon not being ſubject to the ſame King, for or upon occaſion of any depredations or ſpoils committed; the cauſe is to be remitted to the Judg of the juriſdiction under that King againſt whoſe ſubject or ſubjects the Suit is Commenced.

XXIX. Item, That if the Hollanders and other Confederate States, will propoſe conditions of pacification with the moſt Renowned King of Spain and his Succeſſours, through the means of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain: The ſaid moſt Renowned King of Spain and his Succeſſours, will always willingly harken unto that which ſhall be propoſed juſt and reaſonable therein; and will deſire that by the help of the ſaid moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, they may be brought to propoſe equal conditions, wherein they ſhall well underſtand, how much the ſaid King of Spain doth attribute unto the Authority of the ſaid King of Great Britain his loving brother.

XXX. Item, It is concluded and accorded, that in this preſent Treaty of Peace; there be comprehended, the Adherents, Friends, and Confederates of the forenamed Kings, That is to ſay,

On the part of the moſt Renowned King of Great Britain, &c.

Ferdinando, Roman Emperour: with the Arch-Dukes of Auſtria and the Electors of the Empire, together with the States and Cities of the Empire.
The Duke of Lorrain.
The Duke of Savoy.

XXXI. Item, It is likewiſe accorded and concluded, that the ſaid moſt Renowned Kings, Charles by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, &c. and Philip King of Spain, &c. ſhall ſincerely, and faithfully obſerve and keep, and procure to be obſerved and kept by their Subjects and Inhabitants, all and ſingular the Capitulations in this preſent Treaty accorded and concluded, neither ſhall they directly, or indirectly infringe the ſame, or conſent that the ſame ſhall be infringed directly, or indirectly by any of their Subjects or Inhabitants: and they ſhall Ratifie, Authoriſe and Confirm all and ſingular the conventions before accorded, and concluded by Letters Patents, Subſcribed with their own Hands, and Sealed with their Great Seals, in ſufficient, available, and effectual form, and the ſame ſo formed and made, ſhall upon the firſt occaſion deliver, or cauſe to be delivered faithfully, really, and effectually, whereby they may mutually bind themſelves in the word of a King and by Oath to be ſolemnly taken upon the Holy Evangeliſts, to obſerve and perform all and ſingular the premiſſes, whenſoever they ſhall be by either part thereunto required. And furthermore they ſhall cauſe this preſent Treaty of Peace to be publiſhed in the manner and places accuſtomed, ſo ſoon as conveniently the ſame may be.

By the KING.

Defective Titles, May 27. 1630.

An Abſtract of the ſeveral Heads and Branches for which his Majeſties Commiſſioners, by vertue of his Majeſties Commiſſion of Grace, bearing Date the 23. day of January laſt paſt, have Power to Compound with ſuch as ſhall deſire the ſame.

FOr all Mannours, Lands, Tenements, Waſts, Commons, Tythes, ariſing as well without Pariſhes, as within Pariſhes, Wards, Marriages, Liberties, Priviledges, and other Hereditaments, lying, being, and ariſing within, near, or adjoyning unto any of his Majeſties Mannours, Foreſts, Parks, Chaſes, and elſewhere, as well within the Survey of his Majeſties Exchequer, as in the Survey of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, or County Palatine of Lancaſter, Dutchy of Cornwal, and County Palatine of Cheſter, which are held and enjoyed under colour of ſome defective, void, or inſufficient Grant, or under ſome Letters Patents of Concealments, or otherwiſe, meerly intruded upon, and uſurped without any Grant thereof from his Majeſty, or any of his Predeceſſors.

For all Mannours, Lands, Tenements, and other Hereditaments, granted Entail out of the Crown, whereof the Eſtate Tail is not ſpent, and yet the ſaid Grants have been inſufficiently granted; or which ought to have deſcended upon the Kings Perſon, and yet have likewiſe been inſufficiently granted, or whereof the Eſtate Tail is ſpent and determined, or for all Remainders or Reverſions depending upon Eſtates Tail, except ſuch Eſtates as Sir William Haydon had power to Compound for.

For all Meſſuages and Cottages built, incroached, and made within, or adjoyning unto any City, Town, or Hamlet, or upon the Common High-ways, Streets, Paſſages, Lanes, Rivers, Sewers, Commons, and Waſts, with all other Encroachments, Aſſert Lands, Improvements, and Incloſures of Commons, Brecks, Fellets, and ſuch other Incloſures, waſte Grounds, Moors, and other Heathy Downes, Incloſed, or not Incloſed, being his Majeſties Inheritance, either in the right of his Crown of England, or otherwiſe, lying, and being within, near, or adjoyning unto any of his Majeſties Mannours, Foreſts, Parks, Chaſes, or elſewhere. For all Lands, Mariſhes, or other Grounds (with the Tenements thereupon built) heretofore recovered or deſerted from, or by the Sea, or now ſurrounded with Sea; or which hereafter ſhall or may be recovered and deſerted by or from the Sea.

For all Cuſtodies, and all Mannours, Lands, and Houſes, granted, or committed (to any Corporation, or other Perſon or Perſons, Bodies Politick or Corporate) to Cuſtody, with all ſuch Mannours, Lands, Tenements, and other Hereditaments formerly let by Leaſes, and the Leaſes expired, or otherwiſe determined, whereby the Inheritances of the ſaid Premiſſes do remain, and the Reverſions thereof are come unto the Crown, and yet, without any juſt Title thereunto, detained from the Crown.

For all Charters of Incorporations, which are either void or defective, with all Leaſes and Grants of Offices by Uſurpation, by Corporations, Cities, Burroughs, and Towns; or by any other Perſon or Perſons which are forfeited and determined in Law, by Non-uſage, or miſuſage thereof; or by exceeding the Extents and Limits of the ſaid Grants; or by the uſage thereof without any Grant thereof at all from the Crown. All Mannours, Lands, Tenements, and other Hereditaments which ought to come unto his Majeſty, by any manner of Eſcheat or Forfeiture whatſoever, or which might otherwiſe come unto his Majeeſty, by any which are Aliens born, all Felons goods, all Goods, Chattels and Credits of Felons de ſe, Fugitives and Perſons Outlawed, Deodands, Wayfes, Eſtrayes, Reliefs, Herriots, and other Perquiſites of Courts, with all Tolls of all kinds uſurped, or unjuſtly withholden from the Crown. For all Woods, Under-Woods, and Wood-grounds wrongfully withholden, intruded upon, incroached, or waſted to his Majeſties prejudice, with all the Damages which ought to be anſwered unto his Majeſty, or his Predeceſſors for the ſame.

For all Rents, Annuities, Quit-Rents, Annual Payments, and other yearly Sum and Sums of Money due unto his Majeſty out of any Mannour, Lands, Tenements, and other Hereditaments, by any Corporations, or other Burroughs, Towns, or any other Perſon or Perſons, Bodies Politick or Corporate, which have not been duly anſwered by them unto the Crown: With all Mannours, Lands, Tenements, and other Hereditaments, which ought to be in Charge, and are not, but ſome Fee-Farm Rent only anſwered in lieu of the Land, or where both the Lands and Rents ſtand in Charge, and the Rents anſwered, and yet the parties enjoying the Lands, never had any Grant thereof from the Crown, or where the Lands ſtand in Charge as Lands, and yet the Rents ſtand not in Charge, nor yet anſwered unto the Crown by them that pretend Intereſt in the ſaid Lands.

The aforeſaid Commiſſioners to Bargain, Grant, and Sell any of the Premiſes (which are not ſetled by the within named Act) in Fee-Simple, Fee-Farm, Fee-Tail, for term of Life, Lives, or Years, unto ſuch Perſon and Perſons as are the preſent Poſſeſſors of the ſaid Premiſſes; or otherwiſe to make unto them ſuch other Releaſes and Diſcharges, as their ſeveral Caſes ſhall require. But upon their refuſal or wilful neglect of this his Majeſties intended Grace (by not accepting the ſame within the time limited) the Commiſſioners to ſell any of the Premiſſes to ſuch others as ſhall be Suitors for the ſame. And for the ſurrounded Grounds, and ſuch like, where there is no preſent Poſſeſſors, the Commiſſioners to ſell thoſe Lands to ſuch as will Compound for the ſame.

And where the Tenure appeareth upon Record, the former Tenure is to be reſerved: But where no Tenure appeareth upon Record, there the Tenure is to be in Socage.

And Robert Shipper of Grayes Inn, his Majeſties Servant, is to attend the ſaid Commiſſioners in the Execution and proſecution of the ſaid Commiſſion.

A
In the STAR-CHAMBER,
About Counterfeiting of Seals to COLCHESTER Bays.

In Cam. Stell. coram Conc. ibid. xii. die Octob. Anno Octavo CAROLI Regis.

ONE Thomas Jupp a Cloathworker of the City of London, being at the Bar of this Court, His Majeſties Attorney General informed this Court, that he had taken the Examinations of the ſaid Thomas Jupp, concerning the Counterfeiting of Seals uſually affixed to the Bayes of Colcheſter, and fixing them to other Bayes of meaner condition, and ſhewed forth certain Iron Stamps and pieces of Bayes, Sealed ſome with the true Seals of that Town; atteſting that ſome of them were truly wrought, and that others of them were deficient, and others of them Sealed with Counterfeit Seals, put to Bayes not of the making of Colcheſter, but of leſs eſtimation, which being ſhewn to the ſaid Thomas Jupp, he acknowleged his Confeſſion made upon that Examination to be true, and that theſe Stamps and pieces of Bayes came from his hands to His Majeſties Attorney; which Confeſſion followeth in theſe words.

The Examination of Thomas Jupp, of Abchurch-Lane in the City of London, Cloathworker, taken before William Noy, His Majeſties Attorney General the fifth day of September, in the Eighth year of His Majeſties Reign. He ſaith that in July laſt he bought in Leaden-Hall Bay Market of John Bryan of Bocking, one hundred and ten Flemiſh Ell of Mynikin Bayes of Bocking making, at 21 d. ob. the Ell, and three other Pieces of about fifty like Ells, the Piece at 1 l. 13 s. ob. the Ell.

He ſaith alſo that Colcheſter Bayes are commonly ſomwhat dearer than the Bayes of Bocking.

He taketh it that Colcheſter Bayes ſell better beyond the Seas than other Bayes, and hath long been of that opinion.

He ſaith that he having long been a Workman, is able to diſcern a Colcheſter, or Sandwich, or Bocking Bay one from another, but other men that are not Workmen, diſcern them by their Seals.

He ſaith that he bought theſe Bayes for one Goddard a Sea-faring man, that abiding about Deptford, but what his Chriſtian name is he knoweth not, but thinketh it is either George or William, and that he was allowed no more in thoſe Bayes but as he paid for them, ſave for his Labour in Buying and Bailing of them, and Canvas, he had about 25 s. and for ſome other Labour.

He confeſſeth when the Bayes had been bought, Goddard asked the Examinant how he ſhould do for Seals, and the Examinant told him he would do his endeavour or the beſt he could to grace his Commodity.

And further acknowledgeth that when the Bayes were brought to the Examinants houſe, he put Seals to them like the Colcheſter Seals uſed for Bays, and ſaith that the Seals ſhewn to him by the Attorney General, in one ſide whereof is depicted a Griffin or a Dragon, and the other ſide three Crowns, which he takes to be the Arms of Colcheſter, and on another is written D. W. S. Colcheſter Bay, 1571. were Stamped on by himſelf, but it is Bungerly and not well done: And thoſe Seals that he put to one of thoſe Bayes, is cloſed up in a Paper Sealed by the Attorney and the Examinant.

He ſaith that thoſe Depictures are Graven in Iron, and that the Irons are in the Examinants keeping. And he ſaith that he will deliver the Stamps to the Attorney General.

Being demanded who did grave thoſe Irons which he uſed for Seals, he ſaith that he knoweth not who did grave them, but ſaith that ſome of them were graved in Foſter-Lane about half a year ſince, and the Examinant paid for the graving of them, for ſome of them more, and for ſome leſs. Thomas Jupp, William Noy.

Upon Friday the ſeventh day of the ſame September, the ſaid Thomas Jupp being again Examined, delivered to the Attorney General ſeven Iron Stamps, in one a Griffin, in another three Crowns, in another D.W.S. Colcheſter Bay, 1571. in the other four ſeveral numbers are Graven, and then being told that it appeareth by two of the Stamps that they had often Stamped, and demanded how long he hath had them, ſaith at one time, that he hath had them about half a year, at another time about a year: he ſaith that one Thomas Downs who is in Ireland, as he hath heard, did deliver them unto him at his laſt being in England, but remembreth not the time. Being demanded for whom he hath Stamped any Seals beſides Goddard, he refuſeth to declare.

He ſaith that the Buyers do commonly buy Bayes for Colcheſter Bayes without further enquiring than view of the Seal.

He ſaith that thoſe Stamps do differ from the Seal of Colcheſter.

He ſaith that the Seals of Lead ſhewn unto him Sealed up in Paper by him and the Attorney General, were made of the Stamps, now produced by him, by himſelf without the help of any other, and fixed to one of the Bayes which the Examinant bought and delivered to Goddard, as he formerly declared.

He ſaith that the ordinary price for Baling of five Bayes in Canvas Ropes and Labour comes to about eight ſhillings, and if in three Bales it comes to about a Mark, and thoſe Bayes were made up in three Bales.

The Iron Stamps are bound up in a piece of Canvas, which he hath Sealed and remaineth with the Attorney General. Tho. Jupp, William Noy.

Upon Friday the fourteenth of the ſame September, in preſence of the Examinant and of the Attorney General and others, one piece of the Bayes which he Sealed with the Counterfeit Seals, was brought and ſhewn to the Examinant which he confeſſeth to be the ſame which he Sealed for Goddard, and ſaith that it is no Colcheſter Bayes, and he knows it by the Work. At the ſame time two other pieces of Bayes were brought and ſhewn to him, which he knew by the Work (himſelf being a Workman) to be Colcheſter Bayes, whereof one hath the whole Seal and is not faulty, the other is marked as Faulty, by cutting off a piece and fixing the Seal at the Angle. And he ſaith that the Bay marked as faulty, is better than the Bocking Bay which he Sealed with the whole Seal.

The Examinant alſo ſaith that he hath often made the faulty Bayes have the whole Seal, by cutting off the puckle of the Bay at the Angle, and drawing it and fixing that Seal in another place, ſo as in view it is Sealed with the whole Seal, which he did ſhew the manner in the preſence of the Attorney and others, and ſaith that he hath ſo done above a hundred and a hundred times for Merchants, and many of them he hath done within this month, a piece of each Bay remaineth with the Attorney marked by the Examinant. Thomas Jupp, William Noy.

Which being Read, and view taken by their Lordſhips of thoſe pieces of Bayes, and the Stamps and Seals, His Majeſties Attorney General humbly prayed their Lordſhips that ſome exemplary puniſhment might be inflicted uponthe ſaid Tho. Jupp: whereupon their Lordſhips taking into conſideration the many Laws that have been provided for the true Draping of the Wooll of this Realm; by Ordaining the Searching, Meaſuring, Marking, Affixing Seals of divers places where they are Draped, and the publick Seals of the Alnager unto the Cloths; that the people of this Town of Colcheſter and of the parts adjoyning, receive a great part of their ſuſtenance by making of Bayes; that for many years paſt, by occaſion of the careful ſearch there made, they have been truly and not deceitfully made, and of a known goodneſs; that ſuch of them as are fully wrought are Sealed with a Seal atteſting their goodneſs: if upon ſearch any prove not ſo good, they are marked for ſuch, ſo as the Buyers both within the Realm and abroad may be aſcertained of the goodneſs of the Merchandize by view of the Seal, wherein (the Law requiring it) ſuch great care hath been had from time to time, that upon the credit of the Seal alone they were plentifully and readily vented in all places. And albeit there had not been hitherto any diſcovery made of Delinquents in this kind: Yet their Lordſhips taking into their ſerious conſideration, that the offence of the ſaid Thomas is a falſe Couſenage, by which the Buyers being deceived, will not be ſo ready to Buy any other Cloths upon the credit or atteſtation of the Seals, ſo as the good, and true Workers of Cloth will not receive encouragement to make true Workmanſhip as they were wont, but be enforced for vent, to make their Cloths like unto thoſe whereunto ſuch Counterfeit Seals ſhall be affixed, and in time produce a diſaffiance to the atteſtations of the Seals, whereof will enſue many inconveniencies; and they can foreſee that if this new falſity ſhould be unpuniſhed it will grow further abroad.

And therefore their Lordſhips have thought Fit, Ordered, Adjudged, and Decreed that the ſaid Delinquent, Thomas Jupp, ſhall ſtand and be Committed to the Priſon of the Fleet during His Majeſties pleaſure, and not to be thence enlarged until he ſhall diſcover and make known the names of ſuch Merchants for whom he hath uſed and practiſed the ſaid deceit. And if at any time His Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to enlarge the ſaid Jupp, It is then Ordered before his enlargement he ſhall find good Sureties for his Good Behaviour.

And it is alſo Ordered and Decreed, that the ſaid Delinquent ſhall pay a Fine of one thouſand pounds to His Majeſties uſe.

And the Court doth further declare, that if in caſe the ſaid Jupp ſhall continue ſtubborn and ſhall refuſe to diſcover the names of ſuch Merchants or other Tradeſmen for whom he hath uſed and practiſed the aforeſaid fraud and deceit, their Lordſhips do reſerve a power of inflicting ſome further Compulſory means to cauſe him to confeſs their names.

And to the end the world may take notice how much this Court doth diſlike and condemn ſuch notorious Couſenages and Deceits, their Lordſhips have further Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed that the ſaid Thomas Jupp ſhall on ſome Market day be ſet upon the Pillory in Cheapſide, with a Paper on his Head, wherein ſhall be inſcribed words declaring the nature of his offence. At which time it is alſo thought fit and Ordered that this Decree ſhall be publickly Read, and that ſeveral Copies be thereof Printed, and ſet up upon Poſts and other eminent places about and near the the ſaid Pillory, to remain there, ſo as the cauſe of his Puniſhment may be generally known, and other like lewd perſons deterred from committing the like offences.

And it is further Ordered and Decreed, That the ſaid Jupp ſhall in like manner be ſet upon the Pillory in Cornhil and againſt the Exchange, at Blackwel-Hall, Bocking and Colcheſter, upon ſeveral Market days, with the like Paper on his Head, inſcribed as is aforeſaid. At all which ſaid ſeveral times and places it is Ordered, that this Decree be publickly Read, and that ſeveral Printed Copies of this Decree ſhall alſo be ſet up on ſeveral eminent places, on, and about, and near the ſaid places and Pillories, to remain there for the purpoſes aforeſaid, and ſpecially at Blackwel-Hall, the Officers there ſhall continue the ſaid Printed Copies upon Poſts and open Places, in, and about the ſaid Hall ſo long that the Clothiers of all parts of the Kingdom coming thither may have notice thereof, whereby it may be divulged in all the Clothing Towns and Countries in the Kingdom, how unlawful and how dangerous it is to uſe any falſities and deceits tending to the diſcredit of the Clothing of the Realm, and how careful His Majeſty, and the State and all His Courts of Juſtice will be to ſee the ſame ſeverely puniſhed.

And Laſtly, to the end ſuch Merchants or other Tradeſmen as have ſet this Delinquent or any other Clothworker at Work, to practiſe this deceitful Sealing of Bayes, may be known and diſcovered, The Court doth hereby publiſh and declare, that ſuch perſon or perſons as ſhall make ſuch diſcovery, and bring the Delinquents to receive the Sentence of this Court, ſhall for their reward have half the Fine or Fines which ſhall by this Court be impoſed upon them. And if any Clothworker who have uſed and practiſed ſuch deceit ſhall diſcover their Procurers and Encouragers, ſuch perſons ſo confeſſing, ſhall receive the mercy and favour of this Court.

THis day came to be heard the matter of Complaint exhibited into this Court by his Majeſties Attorney General upon the proſecution, and by the Relation of John Philpot Eſquire, againſt Sir Anthony Roper Knight Defendant, for Depopulation, converting great quantities of Land into Paſture, which formerly, for the ſpace of about Forty years, had been Arable, uſed to Tillage, and occupied as belonging to ſeveral Farm-houſes, and houſes of Husbandry in the Pariſh of Farmingham in the County of Kent, and for ſuffering the ſaid Farm-houſes, with their out-houſes, to be ruined, and uninhabited, and one Water-Griſt-Mill to decay and go to ruine, as by the ſaid Information more fully and at large it doth and may appear upon full and deliberate hearing, whereof it plainly and evidently appeared to this Honourable Court by the Teſtimonies of ſeveral good and ſufficient Witneſſes, this day openly read in Court, that the ſaid Defendant being ſeized in Fee of Five ſeveral ancient Meſſuages, and Farm-houſes, and of a Water-Griſt-Mill, lying in Farmingham, Eveſford, Horton, Kirby, and Knightdown, in the County of Kent; One of which was called Pethams Place, or Pethams Farm, late in the occupation of Thomas Newington; to which Farm anciently belonged and was uſed, as Arable, one hundred, or one hundred and twenty Acres of Land, and whereupon was uſually kept one or two Plows, and divers Servants imployed in and about the Tilling, Manuring, and Husbanding thereof, to the great benefit of the Common Wealth, and of his Majeſty. One other Farm-houſe, late in the occupation of John Newington, whereunto belonged, and was anciently uſed one hundred and forty Acres of Land as Arable, and whereon was uſually kept one Plow for Husbandry, and half a dozen Servants imployed in the Husbandry thereof. One other Farm, late in the occupation of one Roger White, whereunto alſo anciently belonged, and was uſed ſix or ſeven ſcore Acres of Land as Arable, and for Tillage by the ſaid Roger White, who ordinarily kept and imployed ſix Servants in the Husbanding thereof. One other Farm, heretofore in the Tenure or occupation of Francis Beſt, whereunto was anciently uſed one hundred and twenty Acres of Land for Tillage, whereon one Plow was uſually kept, and ſeveral Servants imployed in the Plowing, Manuring, and Husbanding thereof: And one other Farm, heretofore in the occupation of one John Beſt, whereunto was anciently uſed one hundred and ſix Acres of Land for Tillage and ſowing of Corn, whereon one Plow and ſix Servants were uſually kept and imployed in the Husbanding of the ſaid Corn-Land; and all the ſaid ſeveral Farms, when they were uſed in Tillage, were furniſhed with ſufficient Houſes, Barns, and Out-houſes, neceſſary for Farmers to dwell in, who ſold and vented to

London and elſewhere yearly about forty or fifty Quarters of Wheat, beſides other Grain, out of each Farm one with another, and many poor men and women were then and there ſet on work, and about twenty perſons fit for War were maintained in and upon the ſaid Farms; as alſo ſeveral Carts ready and fit to do his Majeſty ſervice, in carrying Timber for repair of his Navy, and otherwiſe, which the ſaid Defendant nothing regarding, but reſpecting his own Commodity above the general good of the King, Country, and Commonwealth, hath of late years taken into his own occupation all the ſaid ſeveral Farms, and converted all the Lands thereunto, formerly uſed for Tillage, into Paſture, to the great decay of Husbandry in thoſe parts, although he might have had ſufficient Tenants for them, that would have given as great or greater Rents for the ſaid ſeveral Farms than they were formerly let for, and hath alſo depopulated and pulled down three of the ſaid Farm-houſes, and ſuffered the other two to run to ruine, and to lie uninhabited; inſomuch, that whereas in former times one of the ſaid Farms, called Pelhams Place, was a great defence and ſuccour to Travellers who paſſed that way; the ſame, ſince the Depopulation thereof, have been a harbour for Thieves, and many Robberies hath been thereabouts committed, and moneys recovered by the robbed perſons from the Hundred, which, together with the want of thoſe Plows which were formerly kept there, hath been a great burden to that part of the Country, there being never a Cart now kept upon any of the ſaid three Farms. And it alſo further appeared that the ſaid Defendant hath not only Depopulated the ſaid ſeveral Farms, and converted the Arable into Paſture, but hath in like ſort, to the great inconvenience and prejudice to the ſaid Town of Farmingham, pulled down, and ſuffered to go to decay, and be uninhabited one Water Corn Mill, which heretofore ground good ſtore of Corn weekly. Upon grave and deliberate conſideration of all which matters the Court did with a joynt Conſent and Opinion declare, that the ſaid Defendant was clearly guilty of the ſaid Depopulation, and converting his Arable into Paſture, wherewith he is charged by the Information in manner as before is expreſſed, and that the ſaid offences are puniſhable by the Common Law of this Kingdom, and fit to be ſeverely puniſhed the rather for that it is a growing evil, and hath already ſpread it ſelf into very many parts of the Kingdom; and mean time if it be not met withal, and prevented by the juſt Cenſure of this Court, grow very prejudicial and dangerous to the State and Commonwealth, and therefore their Lordſhips hold him to be a very great Offender, ſhall ſtand and be committed to the Priſon of the Fleet, and pay a Fine of 4000 l. to his Majeſties uſe, and, at the next Aſſizes to be held for the ſaid County of Kent, ſhall in the open Court, the Judges and Juſtices there ſitting, acknowledge his ſaid offences; at which time and place, for the better manifeſtation of his Offence to the Country, and to the end others ſeeing his puniſhment may thereby hereafter be warned to forbear to commit the like offences: It is ordered that this their Lordſhips Sentence and Decree ſhall be publickly read, and further the Court conſidering and commending the pains, care, and travel taken by the Relator in bringing this Cauſe to Judgment, and being ſatisfied upon hearing of the Cauſe, that the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh of Farmingham, and the Miniſter there have been ſeverally damnified by the ſaid Defendant; their Lordſhips have further ordered and decreed, that the ſaid Defendant ſhall pay unto the ſaid Relator a hundred pounds for a recompence of his Travel, beſides his Coſts of ſuit; and to the Miniſter of the ſaid Pariſh of Farmingham one hundred pounds; and to the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh one hundred pounds, to be diſtributed to, and amongſt them, at the diſcretion of four of the next Juſtices of the Peace adjoyning to the ſaid Town of of Farmingham. And laſtly, the Court hath ordered, that the ſaid Defendant ſhall within theſe two years repair and build again all the ſaid Farm-houſes, with their Out-houſes, and the ſaid Corn-Mill fit for habitation and uſe as formerly they were, and ſhall reſtore the Lands formerly uſed and let with the ſaid Farms to the ſaid Farm-houſes again, and let and demiſe the ſaid ſeveral Farms to ſeveral Tenants for reaſonable Rents ſuch as the Country will afford; and that all the ſaid Lands ſhall be again plowed up, and uſed for Tillage, as formerly it hath been.

A Decree in Star-Chamber concerning the Soap-boylers, in purſuance of a Cenſure of that Court upon May 10. 1633. 9 Car.

In Camera Stellata coram Concilio ibidem, Viceſimo tertio die Auguſti, Anno Nono Caroli Regis, &c.

WHereas Mr. Noy, his Majeſties Attorney General hath informed this Court, That the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty, by his Highneſs Letters Patents, under the Great Seal of England, bearing Date at Weſtminſter the Seventeenth day of December, in the Seventh year of his Majeſties Reign, for the Reaſons, Cauſes, and Conſiderations in the ſaid Letters Patents expreſſed, did give and grant to Roger Jones, ſince deceaſed, and to Andrew Palmer, Eſquires; and alſo to Sir Willam Ruſſel Baronet, Sir Baſil Brooke, Sir Richard Weſton, Sir Edward Stradling, Sir Rich.Bettiſon, Knights; George Gage, Thomas Jones, Beverly Bretton, Thomas Ruſſel, Thomas Jennings, Thomas Hicks, and Albertus Belton, Eſquires, and to Robert Carver Gent. a Patent of Priviledge, for the Term of Fourteen years, for the ſole making of Hard Soap, and Soft Soap, with ſuch Materials as by them have been newly Invented, and in ſuch manner as in the ſaid Letters Patents, and others Letters Patents therein recited appeareth. And for the burning and preparing of Pot-aſhes, and other Aſhes of Bean-ſtraw, Peaſe-ſtraw, Fern, Kelp, and other Vegetables to be found in his Majeſties own Dominions for the making of Soap, not formerly or ordinarily uſed or practiſed by others within the ſaid Realm, Dominions, and Town of Barwick, but by them newly invented, and deviſed, and alſo of the uſing of the Aſſay-Glaſs for Trying of their Lee. In, and by which Letters Patents there was careful proviſion made for the true making of the ſaid Soaps for the uſe of the Kings People, and for the ſearching and making thereof to diſtinguiſh the ſame from other Soaps. And for the ſelling of the ſame at, and for reaſonable Prices, as by the ſaid Letters Patents do at large appear. And his Majeſties ſaid Attorney further informed this Court, that becauſe his Majeſty in his great wiſdom foreſaw, that without government of that Trade it would ſoon fall to diſorder. Therefore for the better regulating and ordering of the ſaid Works, his Majeſty did by other Letters Patents, under the Great Seal of England, bearing Date at Weſtminſter the Twentieth day of January, in the Seventh year of his Majeſties Reign, incorporate divers perſons of principal worth and quality, who had been Adventurers in the ſaid Works, by the name of Governours, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows of the Society of Soap-makers within the City of Weſtminſter, in the County of Middleſex, to have perpetual ſucceſſion, and to them had given and granted divers Powers and Authorities for the preventing of Frauds and deceits, and other abuſes in that Trade and Manufacture. And afterwards by his Majeſties ſpecial Commandment ſignified by his Writ in that behalf the ſaid Grant of Priviledge for making of Soap and Pot-aſhes with the Powers and Authorities to the ſaid Patentees named in the ſaid Patent of the Seventeenth of December, granted as aforeſaid, were by them aſſigned unto the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows, and their Succeſſors, and in reſpect thereof the ſaid Governours, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows of the ſaid Society by Indenture bearing date the Third day of May, in the Eighth year of his Majeſties Reign, did covenant, promiſe, and agree to, and with our ſaid Soveraign Lord the King, his Heirs and Succeſſors, to do and perform divers things in that Indenture particularly mentioned for, and concerning the perfecting of the ſaid Works, and the furniſhing of this Kingdom with ſufficient quantities of ſweet and good Soap, and to ſell the ſame at, and for reaſonable Prices, not exceeding the price of Three Pence the pound, which was a cheaper rate than other ſweet and Merchantable Soap was uſually ſold for. And his Majeſties ſaid Attorny further informed this Court, That when his Majeſty had thus provided for the ſufficient Quantity, and reaſonable Prices of the ſaid Soaps out of his Princely care for the good of his People, foreſeeing that the goodneſs of the ſaid Soaps might ſoon decline and decay, unleſs by the continual care and pains of ſome truſty and diligent Officer a watchful eye were had to ſearch and try all the Soaps that ſhould be made and uttered, to ſee that the ſame were anſwerable in goodneſs to the firſt Pattern or Standard. His Majeſty, by other Letters Patents, bearing Date the Eighth day of June, in the Eighth year of his Majeſties Reign, did ordain, conſtitute, and appoint, that for ever then after there ſhould be an Office. And did thereby, for him, his Heirs, and Succeſſors, erect, create, and make an Office to be, and to be called the Office for keeping the Patterns, and making of the Aſſay of Soaps to be made by the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows who ſhall be called the Aſſay-Maſter for Soaps to be made by the ſaid Governours, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows. And thereby did appoint in what manner the ſaid Officer, having firſt taken a Corporal Oath to that purpoſe, ſhould execute the ſaid Office without any trouble or charge to his Majeſties Subjects which ſhould buy the ſaid Soaps. And his Majeſties ſaid Attorny further informed this Court, that his Majeſty in his Royal Care for the wealth and proſperity of his Loving Subjects, intending to advance the Native Commodities of this Realm, the ſetting of his own People at work, and the ſaving of the expence of the Treaſure of this Kingdom, which unthriftily and unneceſſarily was ſpent in buying and importing of Foreign Materials for the making of Soap from other Kingdoms, to the enriching of them, and the impoveriſhing of his Majeſties own Kingdoms to a great yearly Sum. And purpoſing to prevent or ſeverely to puniſh all frauds and deceits in the making of Soap with Foreign or unſweet materials, and the exceſſive Rates in the ſale of Soaps, as formerly it was practiſed by the Soap-boylers, being no body Politick, nor governed by any good Orders, or Conſtitutions regulating their Trade, but being a few ſingular Perſons who took this advantage to enrich themſelves, to the wrong and prejudice of his Majeſty, and his loving Subjects in general, who had no ordinary means to right themſelves therein: To the end that all his Loving Subjects might take notice of this his Princely care and providence for them herein: By his Highneſs Proclamation, given at the Court at Greenwich the Eight and Twentieth day of June, in the ſaid Eighth year of his Majeſties Reign, did ſtreightly charge and command as well the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows of the ſaid Society, who had formerly bound themſelves by Covenant with his Majeſty to a Regularity in that behalf, as all others not being of that Society, which ſhould then after make any Soaps, that they ſhould uſe no other Oyl in making that Soap, but Oyl Olive and Rape Oyl, as had been long ſithence decreed by the Mayor and Aldermen of London. That by that means the Soap might be good, ſweet, and ſerviceable, according to the Patterns delivered up to the Aſſay-Maſter. And did alſo thereby ſtrictly inhibit that no Perſon or Perſons ſhould import, or cauſe to be imported, or brought into this Realm, or Dominion of Wales, any unſweet or unſerviceable Soaps, and alſo that none preſume to put to ſale, or vent any Soaps, Potaſhes, Soapaſhes, Berrillia, or Soade, of what nature ſoever, before they ſhall be aſſayed and tried by the Searchers, to be aſſigned, and yearly to be choſen by the ſaid Governours, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows, and the Aſſay-Maſter for the time being, or ſome of them, and by them, or him found to be good, uſeful, and ſerviceable, and ſo marked by them, or their Deputies, with the Mark appointed for that purpoſe, being the Flower-de-luce; if any ſuch Officer ſhall reſide in the Towns where ſuch putting to ſale thereof ſhall be; and, being required, will ſearch and try the ſame without Fee or Salary. Notwithſtanding all which, divers Soap-boylers, inhabiting in, and near about the City of London, and places adjacent, have with much contempt oppoſed themſelves againſt all the ſaid ſeveral Letters Patents and Proclamation, and have endeavoured, to the utmoſt of their powers, to fruſtrate his Majeſties ſaid gracious Intentions; and did, contrary to the ſaid Proclamation, and in contempt thereof, make great quantities of Soap of Fiſh Oyl, very noyſom and unfit for that purpoſe, and wilfully oppoſed the Searchers, and Aſſay-Maſter, and their Deputies, and refuſed to ſuffer them to ſearch, and took upon them, without any Authority given to them, to uſurp and to exerciſe the Liberties and Authorities of a Corporation in holding Aſſemblies and Conventicles for their own private ends. And to ſet Prices at what Rates they would ſell their Soaps, and to make diſtribution of what Quantities of Fiſh Oyl every one ſhould weekly or monthly ſpend. And to appoint what quantity of Soap ſhould be weekly or monthly made by every one of them.

For which offences and miſdemeanours his Majeſties ſaid Attorney on his Majeſties behalf, on the Two and Twentieth of November, in the Eighth year of his Majeſties Reign, exhibited an Information in this Court againſt divers of the ſaid Offenders, whereunto they anſwered. And the Cauſe coming in a Legal way to be heard upon the Tenth day of May, in this Ninth year of his Majeſties Reign, the ſaid Defendants were juſtly Cenſured by the Decree and Sentence of this Honourable Court. And thereby amongſt other things by the Sentence of this Court diſabled by themſelves, their Workmen, Servants, Agents, or any other, to uſe or exerciſe the ſaid Trade of Soap-boyling at any time then after which they had ſo notably abuſed. And his Majeſties ſaid Attorney now further Informed, that nevertheleſs, ſince the exhibiting of the ſaid Information into this Court, upon which the ſaid Sentence was grounded, divers other perſons, who formerly did not uſe or exerciſe the ſaid Trade of Soap-boyling for themſelves, have taken upon them to uſe and exerciſe the Trade of Boyling and making of Soap, as well in the Houſes of divers of the ſaid Perſons ſo ſentenced and diſabled as in other places, and with their Veſſels and Stocks, to the high Contempt of this Court, and the deluding of the ſaid Decree and Sentence, and to the great diſcouragement of thoſe who would honeſtly and regularly uſe the ſaid Trade, and to the encouragement of all ſuch ill-diſpoſed Perſons, as for their own private Lucre and unjuſt gain would oppoſe a Work ſo manifeſtly tending to the publick good, and therefore his Majeſties ſaid Attorney humbly prayed, that in a caſe of this extraordinary nature, wherein the Publick had ſo much Intereſt, this Court would take theſe things into their Conſiderations and honourable Cares, and for the future ſettle and eſtabliſh ſuch order for the government of this Trade, which hath long continued irregular, and without any government at all, as may prevent thoſe abuſes, which otherwiſe, without the aid of this Court, cannot be prevented. And for that the Imployment and ſetting on work of ſo many of his Majeſties Subjects in the making of Pot-aſhes within this Kingdom, and that with the Materials here found, and the ſaving of the yearly expence of ſo great Sums of Money for that purpoſe formerly exhauſted out of this Kingdom, to the Diminution of the Stock and Treaſure thereof, are works of great weight and conſequence, and worthy the Conſideration of this Honourable Court, and of all aſſiſtance and encouragement for their eſtabliſhment as matters concerning the State. The Court taking the Premiſſes into their grave Conſiderations hath therefore thought fit, and ſo ordered:

I. That the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Society ſhall uſe all diligence to perfect their undertaking with his Majeſty for eſtabliſhing the ſaid Work, wherein this Court will be ready from time to time to give them all juſt aſſiſtance.

II. That the ſaid Company ſhall on the laſt day of every Michaelmas and Eaſter Term, and oftner, if it ſhall be required, make true Certificate into this Court, under the hands of the Governour and Aſſay-Maſter, and two of the Aſſiſtants for the time being, at leaſt of the goodneſs of the Soap from time to time to be made by them, and whether the Standard be duly renewed, and the Soap made according to the goodneſs of that Standard.

III. That the Aſſay-Maſter for the ſaid Soap do diligently attend, and juſtly and faithfully ſearch, and Mark all the Soap to be made which ſhall deſerve to be ſo marked, and do refuſe to mark all ſuch Soap as ſhall be any way deficient in ſweetneſs or goodneſs, or not anſwerable to the Standard; and that no Soap-maker whatſoever preſume to put any Soap to ſale which ſhall not be ſo marked, and be made of the like goodneſs with the Standard. Nevertheleſs if it ſhall hereafter appear to this Court that for any inferiour uſe, or for other uſe than waſhing of Linnen, there ſhall be cauſe to make any other ſort of Soap of leſs goodneſs and ſweetneſs, and conſequently of a lower Price: This Court, upon due conſideration of the neceſſity thereof, will give ſuch further Directions therein as ſhall be fit, and ſo order the making and uttering thereof that it ſhall not be an Evaſion for the making and uttering of Soap contrary to the true meaning of his Majeſty, and of this Court, to the abuſe of the Kings Subjects.

IV. Becauſe it hath already clearly appeared both to his Majeſty and to this Court by the Certificate of Sir Robert Ducy Knight and Baronet, late Lord Mayor of the City of London, and here remaining of Record (to whom the Examination thereof was ſpecially referred) That the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Society of the Soap-makers of Weſtminſter have brought the making of Soap with the Pot-aſhes, and other Materials of this Kingdom, and of his Majeſties own Dominions to that perfection that it exceedeth the beſt London Soap in the goodneſs thereof, and for that it doth alſo in the eaſineſs of the Price, the ſame being by them undertaken to be ſold at, and after the rate of Three Pounds and Four Shillings the Barrel, which is Three Pence the pound, and not above. And the ſame appeareth likewiſe to be true by the Oath of Francis Coningsby Eſquire, the preſent Aſſay-Maſter for Soap, appointed by his Majeſty, which Oath remaineth in this Court recorded. It is therefore thought fit, and ſo ordered and Decreed, that no ſoft Soap ſhall hereafter be uttered or ſold by any Soap-maker, his or their Factors, Workmen, or Servants, for above the ſaid rate or price of Three Pounds and Four Shillings the Barrel, which is Three Pence the Pound. And if any ſuch Perſon ſhall preſume to ſell any ſoft Soap at or for any greater rate or price, directly, or indirectly, than as aforeſaid, every ſuch Perſon ſo offending ſhall be puniſhed by the Cenſure of this Court as a Perſon who juſtly oppreſſeth the Kings Subjects by exceſſive prices of Commodities, this Court deeming and adjudging that Price, for the reaſons aforeſaid, to be a ſufficient Price for the beſt ſoft Soap. Nevertheleſs if at any time hereafter, by the increaſe of Prices of the Materials to be uſed in making of Soap, it ſhall be made to appear to this Court that there is juſt cauſe to inlarge the Prices of ſuch Soaps to be made by others, then the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows, then, and not otherwiſe, and for ſo long time only this Court will take ſuch order as ſhall be fit.

V. And foraſmuch as this Court is fully ſatisfied by the former carriage of ſuch perſons, who now ſtand under the Cenſure and ſentence of this Honourable Court, that they have uſed, and ſtill do uſe, all the indirect means they can to oppoſe the reformation of their own former abuſes, and the proſpering of this new Manufacture, which will be ſo profitable for the Publick: And do conceive that thoſe other Perſons, or moſt of them, who ſince the ſaid twenty ſecond day of November laſt, on which day the ſaid Information was exhibited in this Court, have ſet up a Trade of Soap-making as for themſelves, which before they uſed not, and exerciſe the ſame Trade in the Houſes, and with the Veſſels, and Utenſils, and Stock of the ſaid Delinquents, ſo Cenſured as aforeſaid, have ſet the ſame up by ſome ſecret Agreements and Compact, with, or on the behalf of the Delinquents, of purpoſe to delude the Sentence of this Court. And for that it is well known, that before the ſaid 22. of November a very few men exerciſed the Craft of making of ſoft Soap: And that but a few alſo were ſet on work by them, whereas in the making of Soap, and preparing the Materials for that Work, by the ways uſed by the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows, a very great number of his Majeſties People are imployed, and ſet on work in making of Soap, and preparing of Materials for it, whereof cometh an Increaſe of profit to the Commonwealth, and not a detriment. It is therefore further ordered and Decreed, that no Perſon or Perſons, who on the ſaid 22. day of November now laſt paſt, did not uſe the ſaid Trade of Soap-making, or Soap-boyling for themſelves, nor any other Perſon or Perſons, who by reaſon of his or their Profeſſion or Apprenticehood are capable of uſing that Trade, ſhall continue, or ſet up the ſaid Trade directly, or indirectly, until this Court, upon examination of the true ſtate of each particular Perſons Caſe, deſiring or intending to ſet up ſuch Trade, do receive ſatisfaction of the Juſtice of his pretence to uſe that Trade, and of the convenience and fitneſs of the place where he intendeth to uſe or exerciſe the ſame, and that he doth not colourably pretend to uſe that Trade for himſelf and his own uſe, where in ſubſtance he purpoſeth to uſe it for the benefit of ſome of the Delinquents, and this to continue until this Court ſhall give other order to the contrary.

VI. It is further ordered and Decreed, that becauſe by the offences of the ſaid Delinquents, and by their diſabilities to continue their ſaid Trades, ſome few Servants and Workmen, formerly imployed by them, or by ſome others in Soap-making, may be deſtitute of means for their Livelihood, this Court doth recommend them to the care of the ſaid Governour and Company to imploy them in their Works in ſome convenient manner; wherein if they ſhall fail (theſe Servants carrying themſelves faithfully and diligently towards them as is fit) this Court intendeth to ſettle ſuch a courſe for their relief as ſhall be fit, thoſe Servants and Workmen for any thing yet appearing to this Court not having offended, but as they were commanded by their Maſters.

VII. And to the Intent that a due ſearch may be had of all Soap hereafter to be made, and ſo the abuſive making thereof, contrary to the ſaid Proclamation, be prevented, it is ordered and decreed, that the Aſſay-Maſter and Searchers, or their Deputies, ſhall from time to time execute their Offices, with a Conſtable when they ſhall think fit to require it, by going into the Houſes, Work-houſes, or Cellars of all thoſe who ſhall be Makers of Soap, to make ſearch for all Soaps made, and for all Oyls, or other Materials provided for making of Soap, and to Aſſay as well the Soaps ſo made, as the Oyls, and other Materials provided for the making of Soap, and that no Perſon oppoſe, or hinder, or unneceſſarily delay ſuch ſearch to be made, and Aſſay to be taken.

VIII. And for that it is well known that within theſe few years laſt paſt no ſoft Soap was made within this Kingdom, but in, and about the Cities of London, Weſtminſter, and Briſtol, it is therefore ordered and decreed, for the more conveniency of making ſuch Searches and Aſſay, as aforeſaid, that the ſaid Governour and Company do erect and continue their Work-houſes for the making of ſoft Soap according to their undertaking, as aforeſaid, in, or within one Mile of the City of London or Weſtminſter: And that no other Soap-boyler, or Soap-maker do erect any other Work-houſes, or place for making or boyling of Soap but within the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, or City of Briſtol, or within a Mile of the ſaid Cities, or in ſuch other place or places as this Court ſhall upon other good Conſiderations and Reaſons think fit, and firſt approve of and allow. And that notice be given by thoſe that make or ſhall make Soap for Sale, to the ſaid Governour and Company, or Aſſay-Maſter, of all and every the ſaid places where their Work-houſes are, or ſhall be hereafter erected, before any Trade of Soap-making be there uſed, leſt by the erecting of ſuch Houſes in obſcure places, or farre remote one from the other, the Aſſay-Maſter be diſabled to perform his Office in the due Searching, Aſſaying, and Marking of Soap, Oyl, and other Materials, as aforeſaid.

IX. And becauſe thoſe who formerly uſed the Trade of Soap-making, or Soap-boyling are no Body Corporate, nor have any Government or Orders by which they are, or can be regulated, but every ſingular Perſon doth that in his Trade which he knoweth moſt for his private gain and advantage, though never ſo much to the prejudice of others, or of the Publick: It is therefore ordered and decreed, that all Soap-boylers and Soap-makers, not being of the ſaid Company, ſhall from henceforth be under the Survey, Rule, and Government of the ſaid Company, and Officers thereof, as well as the proper Members of the ſaid Company, ſo far forth only as concerneth the Trade, and the true making of the ſaid Soap, and not otherwiſe, nor to any other purpoſe, without their own free conſent thereunto.

X. And it is alſo ordered and decreed, that the ſaid Governour, Aſſiſtants, and Fellows of the ſaid Society, ſhall from henceforth from time to time take care that there ſhall be and continue of the ſaid Society Thirty Perſons at the leaſt. And laſtly, it is ordered and decreed, That if any Perſon ſhall offend againſt any thing herein contained, ordered, and decreed, every ſuch Perſon ſhall incur and undergo ſuch impriſonment, and other puniſhment as this Court, upon conſideration had of the quality of every ſuch offence, ſhall judge to be fit and juſt to be inflicted.

A Speech delivered in the Star-Chamber, on Wedneſday the 16. of June, 1637. at the Cenſure of John Baſtwick, Henry Burton, and William Prinn; Concerning pretended Innovations in the Church. By the moſt Reverend Father in God, William, Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, his Grace.

My Lords,

I Shall not need to ſpeak of the infamous courſe of Libelling in any kind:

Nor of the puniſhment of it, which in ſome caſes was Capital by the Imperial Laws. As appears, Cod. l. 9. T. 36.

In Jul. c. 75.

Nor how patiently ſome great men, very great men indeed, have born Animo civili (that's Suetonius his word) laceratam exiſtimationem, the tearing and rending of their Credit and Reputation, with a gentle, nay, a generous mind.

But of all Libels, they are moſt odious which pretend Religion: as if that of all things did deſire to be defended by a Mouth that is like an open Sepulcher, or by a Pen that is made of a ſick and a loathſom Quill.

There were times when Perſecutions were great in the Church, even to exceed Barbarity it ſelf: did any Martyr or Confeſſor, in thoſe times, Libel the Governors? Surely no; not one of them to my beſt remembrance: yet theſe complain of Perſecution without all ſhew of cauſe; and in the mean time Libel and Rail without all meaſure. So little of kin are they to thoſe which ſuffer for Chriſt, or the leaſt part of Chriſtian Religion.

In Apol. 1. David. c. 6.

My Lords, it is not every mans ſpirit to hold up againſt the venom which Libellers ſpit. For St. Ambroſe, who was a ſtout and a worthy Prelate, tells us, not that himſelf, but that a far greater man than he, that's King David, had found out (ſo it ſeems in his judgment 'twas no matter of ordinary ability) Grande inventum, a great and mighty invention, how to ſwallow and put off thoſe bitter Contumelies of the Tongue: and thoſe of the Pen are no whit leſs, and ſpread farther. And it was a great one indeed, and well beſeemed the greatneſs of David. But I think it will be far better for me to look upward, and practiſe it, than to look downward, and diſcourſe upon it.

Ad Ocean. de ferend. Opprob.

In the mean time I ſhall remember what an Antient under the name of St. Hierom tells me, Indignum eſt & præpoſterum, 'Tis unworthy in itſelf, and prepoſterous in demeanor for a man to aſhamed for doing good, becauſe other men glory in ſpeaking ill.

And I can ſay it clearly and truly, as in the preſence of God, I have done nothing, as a Prelate, to the uttermoſt of what I am conſcious, but with a ſingle heart, and with a ſincere intention for the good Government and Honor of the Church; and the maintenance of the Orthodox Truth and Religion of Chriſt Profeſſed, Eſtabliſhed, and Maintained in this Church of England.

For my care of this Church, the reducing of it into Order, the upholding of the External Worſhip of God in it, and the ſetling of it to the Rules of its firſt Reformation, are the cauſes (and the ſole cauſes, what ever are pretended) of all this malicious ſtorm, which hath loured ſo black upon me, and ſome of my Brethren. And in the mean time, they which are the only, or the chief Innovators of the Chriſtian world, having nothing to ſay, accuſe us of Innovation; they themſelves and their Complices in the mean time being the greateſt Innovators that the Chriſtian world hath almoſt ever known. I deny not but others have ſpread more dangerous Errors in the Church of Chriſt; but no men, in any age of it, have been more guilty of Innovation than they, while themſelves cry out againſt it: Quis tulerit Gracchos?

And I ſaid well, Quis tulerit Gracchos? For 'tis moſt apparent to any man that will not wink, that the intention of theſe men, and their Abettors, was and is to raiſe a Sedition, being as great Incendiaries in the State (where they get power) as they have ever been in the Church? Novatian himſelf hardly greater.

Our main Crime is (would they all ſpeak out, as ſome of them do) that we are Biſhops; were we not ſo, ſome of us might be as paſſable as other men.

Burton Apo. p. 110.

And a great trouble 'tis to them, that we maintain that our calling of Biſhops is Jure Divino, by Divine Right: Of this I have ſaid enough, and in this place, in Leightons Caſe, nor will I repeat. Only this I will ſay, and abide by it, that the Calling of Biſhops is Jure Divino, by Divine Right, though not all Adjuncts to their Calling. And this I ſay in as direct oppoſition to the Church of Rome, as to the Puritan humor.

And I ſay farther, that from the Apoſtles times, in all ages, in all places the Church of Chriſt was governed by Biſhops: and Lay-Elders never heard of, till Calvins new-fangled device at Geneva.

Now this is made by theſe men, as if it were Contra Regem, againſt the King, in right or in power.

But that is a mere ignorant ſhift; for our being Biſhops, Jure Divino, by Divine Right, takes nothing from the Kings Right or Power over us. For though our Office be from God and Chriſt immediately, yet may we not exerciſe that power, either of Order or Juriſdiction, but as God hath appointed us, that is, not in his Majeſties, or any Chriſtian Kings Kingdoms, but by and under the power of the King given us ſo to do.

And were this a good Argument againſt us, as Biſhops, it muſt needs be good againſt Prieſts and Miniſters too; for themſelves grant that their Calling is Jure Divino, by Divine Right; and yet I hope they will not ſay, that to be Prieſts and Miniſters is againſt the King, or any His Royal Prerogatives.

Next, ſuppoſe our Callings, as Biſhops, could not be made good Jure Divino, by Divine Right; yet Jure Eccleſiaſtico, by Eccleſiaſtical Right it cannot be denyed, And here in England the Biſhops are confirmed, both in their power and means, by Act of Parliament. So that here we ſtand in as good caſe, as the preſent Laws of the Realm can make us. And ſo we muſt ſtand, till the Laws ſhall be repealed by the ſame power that made them.

Now then, ſuppoſe we had no other ſtring to hold by (I ſay ſuppoſe this, but I grant it not) yet no man can Libel againſt our Calling (as theſe men do) be it in Pulpit, Print, or otherwiſe, but he Libels againſt the King and the State, by whoſe Laws we are Eſtabliſhed. Therefore, all theſe Libels, ſo far forth as they are againſt our Calling, are againſt the King and the Law, and can have no other purpoſe, than to ſtir up ſedition among the people.

If theſe men had any other intention, or if they had any Chriſtian or Charitable deſire, to Reform any thing amiſs; why did they not modeſtly Petition His Majeſty about it, that in his Princely wiſdom he might ſet all things right, in a Juſt and Orderly manner? But this was neither their intention, nor way. For one clamours out of his Pulpit, and all of them from the Preſs, and in a moſt virulent and Unchriſtian manner ſet themſelves to make a heat among the people; and ſo by Mutiny, to effect that, which by Law they cannot; And, by moſt falſe and unjuſt Calumnies to defame both our Callings and Perſons. But for my part, as I pitty their rage, ſo I heartily pray God to forgive their malice.

No Nation hath ever appeared more jealous of Religion, than the people of England have ever been. And their zeal to Gods glory hath been, and at this day is a great honour to them. But this Zeal of theirs hath not been at all times and in all perſons, alike guided by knowledg. Now Zeal, as it is of excellent uſe, where it ſees its way; ſo is it very dangerous Company, where it goes on in the dark: And theſe men, knowing the diſpoſition of the people have laboured nothing more, than to miſinform their knowledg, and miſguide their Zeal, and ſo to fire that into a Sedition, in hope that they, whom they cauſleſly hate, might miſcarry in it.

You may ſee it in the Example of St. Paul himſelf, whoſe very zeal in the darkneſs of his underſtanding, which he then had made him perſecute Chriſt and his Church, Act. xxii. 3, 4. And he was very dangerous Company then; for he breathed out threatnings againſt the Diſciples, Act. ix. 1. So true is that of Saint Greg.Naz.Orat. 21. Zelus Iracundiam acuit, All zeal puts an edge to anger it ſelf. And that muſt needs be dangerous in the dark, Page 5.

For the main ſcope of theſe Libels, is to kindle a Jealouſie in mens minds, that there are ſome great Plots in hand, dangerous Plots (ſo ſays Mr. Burton expreſly) to change the Orthodox Religion Eſtabliſhed in England; and to bring in, I know not what, Romiſh Superſtition in the room of it. As if the external decent worſhip of God could not be upheld in this Kingdom, without bringing in of Popery.

Now by this Art of theirs, give me leave to tell you, that the King is moſt deſperately abuſed and wounded in the minds of his people; and the Prelates ſhamefully.

The King moſt deſperately: for there is not a more cunning trick in the world, to withraw the peoples hearts from their Soveraign, than to perſuade them that he is changing true Religion, and about to bring in groſs Superſtition upon them.

And the Prelates ſhamefully; for they are charged to ſeduce, and lay the Plot, and be the Inſtruments.

For His Majeſty firſt. This I know, and upon this occaſion take it my duty to ſpeak: There is no Prince in Chriſtendom more ſincere in his Religion, nor more conſtant to it, than the King. And he gave ſuch a Teſtimony of this at his being in Spain, as I much doubt, whether the beſt of that Faction durſt have done half ſo much, as His Majeſty did, in the face of that Kingdom. And this you my Lord, the Earl of Holland, and other Perſons of Honour, were Eye and Ear-Witneſſes of, having the happineſs to attend Him there. And at this day, as His Majeſty (by Gods great bleſſing both on him and us) knows more, ſo is he more ſetled and more confirmed, both in the Truth of the Religion here Eſtabliſhed and in Reſolution to maintain it.

And for the Prelates; I aſſure my ſelf, they cannot be ſo baſe, as to live Prelates in the Church of England, and labour to bring in the Superſtitions of the Church of Rome, upon themſelves and it. And if any ſhould be ſo foul, I do not only leave him to Gods Judgment, but (if theſe Libellers, or any other, can diſcover that his baſe and irreligious falſhood) to ſhame alſo, and ſevere puniſhment from the State: and in any juſt way, no mans hand ſhall be more, or ſooner againſt him, than mine ſhall be.

And for my ſelf, to paſs by all the ſcandalous reproaches, which they have moſt injuriouſly caſt upon me, I ſhall ſay this only,

Firſt, I know of no Plot, nor purpoſe of altering the Religion Eſtabliſhed.

Secondly, I have ever been far from attempting any thing that may truly be ſaid to tend that way in the leaſt degree, and to theſe two I here offer my Oath.

Thirdly, if the King had a mind to change Religion, (which I know he hath not, and God forbid he ſhould ever have) he muſt ſeek for other Inſtruments. For as baſely as theſe men conceive of me, yet I thank God, I know my duty well both to God and the King: And I know that all the duty I owe to the King, is under God. And my great happineſs it is (though not mine alone, but your Lordſhips and all his ſubjects with me) that we live under a Gracious and a Religious King, that will ever give us leave to ſerve God firſt, and Him next. But were the days otherwiſe, I thank Chriſt for it, I yet knew not how to ſerve any man againſt the Truth of God, and I hope I ſhall never learn it.

But to return to the buſineſs: what is their Art to make the world believe a change of Religion is endeavoured? What? why, forſooth, they ſay, there are great Innovations brought in by the Prelates, and ſuch as tend to the advancing of Popery.

Now that the vanity and falſhood of this may appear, I ſhall humbly deſire your Lordſhips to give me leave to recite briefly all the Innovations charged upon us, be they of leſs or greater moment, and as briefly to anſwer them. And then you ſhall clearly ſee, whether any cauſe hath been given of theſe unſavoury Libels; and withal, whether there be any ſhew of cauſe to fear a change of Religion. And I will take theſe great pretended Innovations in order, as I meet with them.

Firſt, I begin with the News from Ipſwich.

Where the firſt Innovation is, That the laſt years Faſt was enjoyned to Page 2. be without Sermons in London, the Suburbs, and other infected places, contrary to the Orders for other Faſts in former times: whereas Sermons are the only means to humble men, &c.

To this I ſay Firſt, That an after-age may, without offence, learn to avoid any viſible inconvenience obſerved in the former. And there was viſible inconvenience obſerved in mens former flocking to Sermons in infected places.

Secondly, This was no particular Act of the Prelates; but the buſineſs was debated at the Council-Table, being a matter of State, as well as of Religion. And it was concluded for no Sermons in thoſe infected places, upon this Reaſon; That infected Perſons or Families, known in their own Pariſhes, might not take occaſion upon thoſe by-days to run to other Churches, where they were not known, as many uſe to do, to hear ſome humorous men Preach; For on the Sundays, when they better kept their own Churches: the danger is not ſo great altogether.

Nor Thirdly, is that true, that Sermons are the only mens to humble men. For though the Preaching of Gods word, where it is performed according to his Ordinance, be a great means of many good effects in the Souls of men; Yet no Sermons are the only means to humble men. And ſome of their Sermons are fitter a great deal for other operations: Namely, to ſtir up Sedition, as you may ſee by Mr. Burtons; for this his Printed Libel was a Sermon firſt, and a Libel too. And 'tis the beſt part of a Faſt to abſtain from ſuch Sermons.

Page 3. 2. The ſecond Innovation is, That Wedneſday was appointed for the Faſt-day, and that this was done with this intention, by the example of this Faſt without Preaching, to ſuppreſs all the Wedneſday-Lectures in London.

To this I anſwer Firſt, that the appointing of Wedneſday for the Faſt-day was no Innovation. For it was the day in the laſt Faſt before this: and I my ſelf remember it ſo, above forty years ſince, more than once.

Secondly, if there had been any Innovation in it, the Prelates named not the day; my Lord Keeper, I muſt appeal to your Lordſhip: The day was firſt named by your Lordſhip, as the uſual, and fitteſt day. And yet I dare ſay, and ſwear too, that your Lordſhip had no aim to bring in Popery; nor to ſuppreſs all, or any the Wedneſday-Lectures in London. Beſides, theſe men live to ſee the Faſt ended, and no one Wedneſday Lecture ſuppreſſed.

Page 5. 3. The third Innovation is, That the Prayer for ſeaſonable weather was purged out of this laſt Faſt-Book, which was (ſay they) one cauſe of Ship-wracks and Tempeſtuous weather.

To this I ſay, Firſt in the General; This Faſt-Book, and all that have formerly been made, have been both made, and publiſhed by the command of the King, in whoſe ſole power it is to call a Faſt. And the Arch-Biſhop and Biſhops to whom the ordering of the Book is committed, have power under the King, to put in, or leave out, whatſoever they think fit for the preſent occaſion; As their Predeceſſors have ever done before them. Provided that nothing be in contrary to the Doctrine or Diſcipline of the Church of England.

And this may ſerve in the General for all Alterations, in that or any other Faſt-Book or Books of Devotion upon any particular occaſions, which may and ought to vary with ſeveral times, and we may, and do, and will juſtifie, under His Majeſties power all ſuch Alterations made therein.

Secondly, for the particular. When this laſt Book was ſet out, the weather was very ſeaſonable. And it is not the Cuſtom of the Church, nor fit in it ſelf to pray for ſeaſonable weather when we have it, but when we want it. When the former Book was ſet out, the weather was extream ill, and the Harveſt in danger; Now the Harveſt was in, and the weather good.

Thirdly, 'tis moſt inconſequent to ſay, that the leaving that Prayer out of the Book of Devotions, cauſed the Ship-wracks and the Tempeſts, which followed. And as bold they are with God Almighty, in ſaying it was the cauſe: For ſure I am, God never told them, that was the cauſe. And if God never revealed it, they cannot come to know it; yet had the Biſhops been Prophets, and foreſeen theſe Accidents, they would certainly have prayed againſt them.

Fourthly, Had any Miniſter found it neceſſary to uſe this Prayer at any one time during the Faſt, he might with eaſe, and without danger, have ſupplied that want, by uſing that Prayer to the ſame purpoſe which is in the ordinary Liturgy.

Fifthly, I humbly deſire your Lordſhips to weigh well the Conſequence of this great, and dangerous Innovation. The Prayer for fair weather was left out of the Book for the Faſt; Therefore the Prelates intend to bring in Popery. An excellent Conſequence, were there any ſhew of Reaſon in it.

4. The Fourth Innovation is, That there is one very uſeful Collect left out, and a Clauſe omitted in another. Page 3.

To this I anſwer Firſt, as before; It was lawful for us to alter what we thought fit.

And Secondly, Since that Collect made mention of Preaching, and the Act of State forbad Sermons on the Faſt-days in infected places; we thought it fit, in purſuance of that Order, to leave out that Collect.

And Thirdly, for the branch in the other, which is the firſt Collect, though God did deliver our Forefathers out of Romiſh Superſtition, yet (God be bleſſed for it) we were never in. And therefore that Clauſe being unfittingly expreſſed, we thought fit to paſs it over.

5. The Fifth Innovation is, That in the ſixth Order for the Faſt, there is a paſſage left out concerning the abuſe of Faſting in relation to merit. Page 3.

To this I anſwer, That he to whom the ordering of that Book to the Preſs was committed, did therefore leave it out; Becauſe in this Age and Kingdom there is little opinion of meriting by Faſting.

Nay, on the contrary, the contempt and ſcorn of all faſting (ſave what humorous men call for of themſelves) is ſo rank, that it would grieve any Chriſtian man to ſee the neceſſary Orders of the Church concerning Faſting, both in Lent, and at other ſet times, ſo vilified as they are.

6. The Sixth Innovation is, That the Lady Elizabeth and her Princely Children are daſhed (that is their Phraſe) out of the new Collect, whereas they were in the Collect of the former Book. Page 3.

For this Firſt, The Author of the News knows full well that they are left out of the Collect in the latter Editions of the Common-Prayer-Book, as well as in the Book for the Faſt. And this was done according to the Courſe of the Church, which ordinarily names none in the Prayer, but the Right Line deſcending. Yet this was not done till the King himſelf commanded it; as I have to ſhew under his Majeſties hand.

Secondly, I beſeech your Lordſhips to conſider, what muſt be the Conſequence here: The Queen of Bohemia and her Children are left out of the Collect, therefore the Prelates intend to bring in Popery; For that (you know) they ſay is the end of all theſe Innovations. Now, if this be the end and the Conſequence; Truly the Libellers have done very dutifully to the King, to poyſon his People with this conceit; That the Lady Elizabeth and her Children would keep Popery out of this Kingdom, but the King and his Children will not. And many as good Offices as theſe have they done the King quite through theſe Libels, and quite through his Kingdoms. For my part, I honour the Queen of Bohemia, and her Line, as much as any man whatſoever, and ſhall be as ready to ſerve them, but I know not how to depart from my Allegeance, as I doubt theſe men have done.

Page 3.

7. The Seventh Innovation is, That theſe words (Who art the Father of thine Elect and of their Seed) are changed in the Preface of that Collect, which is for the Prince and the Kings Children. And, with a moſt ſpiteful inference, That this was done by the Prelates to exclude the Kings Children out of the number of Gods Elect. And they call it an intolerable impiety and horrid treaſon.

To this I anſwer, Firſt, That this Alteration was made in my Predeceſſors time, before I had any Authority to meddle with theſe things, further than I was called upon by him.

Secondly, This is not therefore to lay any aſperſion upon my Predeceſſor; for he did in that but his duty: For his Majeſty acknowledges, it was done by his ſpecial direction, as having then no Children to pray for.

And thirdly, this Collect could not be very old, for it had no being in the Common-Prayer-Book all Queen Elizabeths time, ſhe having no Iſſue.

The truth is, it was made at the coming in of King James; and muſt of neceſſity be changed over and over again pro ratione Temporum, as Times and Perſons vary. And this is the intolerable Impiety, and horrid Treaſon they charge upon Us.

In this Method the Innovations are ſet down in the News from Ipſwich. But then in Mr, Burtons news from Friday-ſtreet, (called his Apologie) they are in another Order, and more are added. Therefore with your Lordſhips leave I will not repeat any of theſe, but go on to the reſt, which Mr. Burton adds.

Burtons Apology, p. 2.

8. The Eighth Innovation is, That in the Epiſtle the Sunday before Eaſter, we have put out In, and made it, At the Name of Jeſus every Knee ſhall bow; which alteration, he ſaith, is directly againſt the Act of Parliament.

Here give me leave to tell you it is At the Name of Jeſus, in the late learned Tranſlation made in King James his time. About which many learned Men of beſt note in the Kingdom were imployed, beſides ſome Prelates.

But to this I anſwer, Firſt, It is true, the Common-Prayer-Book was confirmed by Act of Parliament, and ſo all things contained in it, at the paſſing of that Act. But I hope if any thing were falſe Printed then, the Parliament did not intend to paſs thoſe ſlips for current.

Secondly, I am not of opinion, that if one word be put in for another, ſo they bear both the ſame ſenſe, that there is any great matter done againſt the Act of Parliament.

Thirdly, This can make no Innovation. For In the Name, and at the Name of Jeſus, can make no Eſſential difference here. And Mr. Pryn (whoſe Darling buſineſs it hath long been to cry down the honour due to the Son of God, at the mentioning of his ſaving Name Jeſus) knows the Grammar Rule well, In a place, or at a place, &c.

Fourthly, If there were any error in the change of In into At; I do here ſolemnly proteſt to you, I know not how it came: For authority from the Prelates, the Printers had none; and ſuch a word is eaſily changed in ſuch a negligent Preſs as we have in England. Or if any altered it purpoſely, for ought I know, they did it to gratifie the Preciſer ſort. For therein they followed the Geneva Tranſlation, and Printed at Geneva, 1557. where the words are, At the Name of Jeſus. And that is Ninety four years ago; and therefore no Innovation made by us.

In Octavo.

Fifthly, this I find in the Queens Injunctions, without either word, In or At. Whenſoever the Name of Jeſus ſhall be in any Leſſon, Sermon, or otherwiſe pronounced in the Church (it is enjoyned) that due reverence be made of all perſons, Young and Old, with lowlineſs of Courſie, and uncovering of the heads of the men-kind, as thereunto doth neceſſarily belong, and heretofore hath been accuſtomed. So here is neceſſity laid upon it, and cuſtom for it, and both expreſſed by Authority in the very beginning of the Reformation; and is therefore no Innovation now.

Injunction 52.

9. The Ninth Innovation is, That two places are changed in the Prayers ſet forth for the Fifth of November: And ordered to be read (they ſay) by Act of Parliament. The firſt place is changed thus, From, Root out that Babyloniſh and Antichriſtian Sect, which ſay of Jeruſalem, &c. Into this form of words, Root out that Babyloniſh and Antichriſtian Sect (of them) which ſay, &c. The ſecond place went thus in the old: Cut off theſe workers of Iniquity, whoſe Religion is Rebellion. But in the Book Printed 1635. it is this altered: Cut off thoſe workers of Iniquity, who turn Religion into Rebellion, &c.

Pag. 3.

To this I ſay Firſt, It is a notorious untruth, that this Book was ordered to be read by Act of Parliament. The Act of Parliament indeed is Printed before it; and therein is a Command for Prayers and Thankſgivings every Fifth of November: But not one word or ſyllable for the Form of Prayer: That is left to the Church, therefore here is no Innovation againſt that Act of Parliament.

Secondly, The Alteration firſt mentioned, that is, That Sect, or That Sect of them: is of ſo ſmall conſequence, as it is not worth the ſpeaking of. Beſides, if there be any thing of moment in it, it is anſwered in the next.

Thirdly, Both for that and the ſecond place, which ſeems of more moment; and ſo for the reſt, not only in that Book, but that other alſo for his Majeſties Coronation; His Majeſty expreſly commanded me to make the Alterations, and ſee them Printed. And here are both the Books with his Majeſties Warrant to each of them. So that herein I conceive I did not offend, unleſs it were that I gave not theſe men notice of it, or asked them leave to obey the King.

Againſt this there can be but two Objections, ſhould Malice it ſelf go to work. The one is, that I moved his Majeſty to command the Change. And the other, that now, when I ſaw my ſelf challenged for it, I procured his Majeſties hand for my ſecurity.

To theſe I anſwer clearly; Firſt, that I did not move the King, directly, or indirectly, to make this change.

And Secondly, that I had his Majeſties hand to the Book, not now, but then, and before ever I cauſed them to be Printed, as now they are. And that both theſe are true, I here again freely offer my ſelf to my Oath.

And yet Fourthly, that you may ſee his gracious Majeſty uſed not his power only in commanding this change, but his wiſdom alſo; I ſhall adventure to give you my Reaſons, ſuch as they are, why this Alteration was moſt fit, if not neceſſary.

My firſt Reaſon is, In the Litany in Hen. VIII. his time [a]: And alſo under Edward VI. [b] there was this Clauſe: From the Tyranny of the Biſhop of Rome, and all his deteſtable enormities, from all falſe doctrine, &c. Good Lord deliver us. But in the Litany in Queen Elizabeths time this Clauſe about the Pope was left out, and it ſeems of purpoſe, for avoiding of Scandal: And yet the Prelates for that not accounted Innovators, or Introducers of Popery, Now it is a far greater ſcandal to call their Religion Rebellion, then it is to call their chief Biſhop Tyrant.

And this Reaſon is drawn from Scandal, which muſt ever be avoided as much as it may.

My ſecond Reaſon is, that the Learned make but three Religions to have been of old in the world, Paganiſm, Judaiſm, and Chriſtianity. And now they have added a fourth, which is Turciſm, and is an abſurd mixture of the other three. Now if this ground of theirs be true (as it is generally received) perhaps it will be of dangerous conſequence ſadly to avow, that the Popiſh Religion is Rebellion. That ſome opinions of theirs teach Rebellion, that is apparently true, the other would be thought on, to ſay no more. And this Reaſon well weighed, is taken from the very foundations of Religion it ſelf.

My third Reaſon is, Becauſe if you make their Religion to be Rebellion, then you make their Religion and Rebellion to be all one. And that is againſt the ground both of State, and the Law. For when divers Romiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits have deſervedly ſuffered death for Treaſon, is it not the conſtant and juſt profeſſion of the State, that they never put any man to death for Religion, but for Rebellion and Treaſon only? Doth not the State truly affirm, that there was never any Law made againſt the life of a Papiſt, quatenus a Papiſt only? And is not all this ſtark falſe, if their very Religion be Rebellion? For if their Religion be Rebellion, it is not only falſe, but impoſſible, that the ſame man in the ſame Act ſhould ſuffer for his Rebellion, and not for his Religion.

And this King James of ever bleſſed memory underſtood paſſing well, when (in his premonition to all Chriſtian Monarchs) he ſaith, I do conſtantly maintain that no Papiſt either in my time, or in the time of the late Queen, ever died for his Conſcience. Therefore he did not think, their very Religion was Rebellion. Though this Clauſe paſſed through Inadvertency in his time. And this Reaſon is grounded both upon the Practice, and the Juſtice of the Law.

Which of theſe Reaſons, or whether any other better, were in his Majeſties thoughts, when he commanded the alteration of this Clauſe, I know not. But I took it my duty to lay it before you, that the King had not only Power, but Reaſon to command it.

Page 3.

10. The Tenth Innovation is, That the Prayer for the Navy is left out of the late book for the Faſt.

To this I ſay, there is great Reaſon it ſhould. For the King had no declared Enemy then, nor (God be thanked) hath he now. Nor had he then any Navy at Sea. For almoſt all the Ships were come in, before the Faſt-book was ſet out.

But

[a] It was put into the Litany of H. VIII. his time, as appears in his Primer, with his Injunction before it.

[b] And it is in both the Service Books of Edward VI. both that which was Printed. 1549. And in that which was after. An. 1552.

But howſoever, an excellent Conſequence it is, if you mark it; The Prayer for the Navy was left out of the Book for the Faſt, therefore by that, and ſuch like Innovations the Prelates intend to bring in Popery. Indeed, if that were a piece of the Prelates Plots to bring in Popery from beyond Sea, then they were mightily overſeen that they left out the Prayer for the Navy. But elſe what Reaſon or Conſequence is in it, I know not, unleſs perhaps Mr. Burton intended to befriend Dr. Baſtwick, and in the Navy bring hither the Whore of Babylon to be ready for his Chriſtening, as he moſt prophanely ſcoffs.

Well: I pray God the time come not upon this Kingdom, in which it will be found, that no one thing hath advanced or uſhered in Popery ſo faſt, as the groſs Abſurdities even in the Worſhip of God, which theſe Men, and their like, maintain both in Opinion and Practice.

11. The Eleventh Innovation is, The reading of the Second Service at the Communion-Table, or the Altar.

To this firſt I can truly ſay, that ſince my own memory, this was in uſe in very many places, as being moſt proper (for thoſe Prayers are then read which both precede and follow the Communion,) and by little and little this Ancient Cuſtom was altered, and in thoſe places firſt, where the Emiſſaries of this Faction came to preach. And now if any in Authority offer to reduce it; this ancient courſe of the Church is by and by called an Innovation.

Secondly, with this the Rubricks of the Common-Prayer-Book agree: For the firſt Rubrick after the Communion tells us, that upon Holy-days, though there be no Communion, yet all elſe that is appointed at the Communion ſhall be read. Shall be read? That is true, but where? Why, the laſt Rubrick before the Communion tells us, that the Prieſt, ſtanding at the North ſide of the Holy Table, ſhall ſay the Lords Prayer, with that which follows. So that not only the Communion, but the Prayers which accompany the Communion (which are commonly called the Second Service) are to be read at the Communion-Table. Therefore if this be an Innovation, it is made by the Rubrick, not the Prelates; And Mr. Burtons Scoff, that this Second Service muſt be ſerved in for dainties *, ſavours too much of Belly and prophanation.

12. One thing ſticks much in their ſtomachs, and they call it an Innovation † too. And that is, bowing, or doing Reverence at our firſt coming into the Church, or at our nearer approaches to the Holy Table, or the Altar, (call it whether you will) In which they will needs have it, that we worſhip the Holy Table, or God knows what.

* Pag.105. [Then the Second Service as dainties, muſt be ſaid there.]
† Pag.105.

To this I anſwer: Firſt, That God forbid we ſhould worſhip any thing but God himſelf.

Secondly, That if to worſhip God when we enter into his houſe, or approach his Altar, be an Innovation, it is a very old one.

For Moſes did reverence at the very door of the Tabernacle, *Num.*20.6. Hezekiah, and all that were preſent with him, when they had made an end of offering, bowed and worſhipped, (2 *Chron.*29.29.) David calls the people to it with a Venite, O come let us worſhip, and fall down, and kneel before the Lord our Maker, (*Pſal.*95. 6.) And in all theſe places (I pray mark it) it is bodily Worſhip.

Nor can they ſay, that this was Judaical worſhip, and now not to be imitated. For long before Judaiſm began, Bethel, the Houſe of God, was a place of Reverence, *Gen.*28. 17, &c. Therefore certainly, Of, and To God.

And after Judaical Worſhip ended, Venite, Adoremus, as far upwards as there is any track of a Liturgy, was the Introitus of the Prieſt all the Latine Church over.

And in the daily Prayers of the Church of England; this was retained at the Reformation; and that Pſalm, in which is Venite, Adoremus; is commanded to begin the Morning Service every Day. And for ought I know, the Prieſt may as well leave out the Venite, as the Adoremus; the calling the people to their duty, as the duty it ſelf, when they are come.

Therefore even according to the Service-Book of the Church of England, the Prieſt and the People both are called upon, for external and bodily Reverence and Worſhip of God in his Church. Therefore they which do it, do not Innovate. And yet the Government is ſo moderate (God grant it be not too looſe therewhile) that no man is conſtrained, no man queſtioned, only religiouſly called upon, Venite, Adoremus, Come, let us worſhip.

For my own part I take my ſelf bound to worſhip with Body, as well as in Soul, when ever I come where God is worſhipped. And were this Kingdom ſuch as would allow no Holy Table, ſtanding in its proper place (and ſuch places ſome there are) yet I would worſhip God when I came into his Houſe. And were the times ſuch, as ſhould beat down Churches, and all the curious carved work thereof with Axes, and Hammers, as in Pſalm 74. 6. (and ſuch times have been) yet would I worſhip in what place ſoever I came to pray, though there were not ſo much as a ſtone laid for Bethel. But this is the miſery; it is Superſtition now adays for any man to come with more Reverence into a Church, than a Tinker and his Bitch come into an Ale-houſe; the Compariſon is too homely, but my Juſt Indignation at the Prophaneneſs of the times, makes me ſpeak it.

And you my Honourable Lords of the Garter, in your great Solemnities, you do your Reverence, and to Almighty God, I doubt not, but yet it is verſus Altare, towards his Altar, as the greateſt place of Gods Reſidence upon Earth. (I ſay the greateſt, yea, greater than the Pulpit. For there it is, Hoc eſt Corpus meum, This is my Body. But in the Pulpit, it is, at moſt, but, Hoc eſt Verbum meum, This is my Word. And a greater Reverence (no doubt) is due to the Body, than to the Word of our Lord. And ſo, in Relation, anſwerably to the Throne, where his Body is uſually preſent; than to the Seat, whence his Word uſeth to be Proclaimed. And God hold it there, at his Word; for, as too many men uſe the matter, It is Hoc eſt verbum Diaboli, This is the word of the Devil, in too many places, Witneſs Sedition, and the like to it.) And this Reverence ye do when ye enter the Chappel, and when you approach nearer to offer. And this is no Innovation, for you are bound to it by your Order, and that is not New.

And Idolatry it is not, to worſhip God towards his Holy Table; For if it had been Idolatry, I preſume Queen Elizabeth, and King James would not have practiſed it, no not in thoſe Solemnities. And being not Idolatry, but true Divine Worſhip, You will, I hope, give a poor Prieſt leave to Worſhip God, as your ſelves do: For if it be Gods Worſhip, I ought to do it as well as you: And if be Idolatry, you ought not to do it more than I.

I ſay again, I hope a poor Prieſt may Worſhip God with as lowly Reverence as you do, ſince you are bound by your Order, and by your Oath, according to a Conſtitution of Henry the Fifth, (as appears*) to give due honour and Reverence, Domino Deo, & Altari ejus, in modum virorum Eccleſiaſticorum; That is, to the Lord your God, and to his Altar (for there is a Reverence due to that too, though ſuch as comes far ſhort of Divine Worſhip) and this in the manner, as Eccleſiaſtical Perſons both Worſhip and do Reverence.

* In Libro. Nigro Windeſorienſi. p.65.

The Story which led in this Decree is this, King Henry the Fifth, that Noble and victorious Prince, returning glorioully out of France, ſate at this Solemnity; and finding the Knights of the Order ſcarce bow to God, or but ſlightly, and then bow towards him and his Seat, ſtartled at it (being a Prince then grown as Religious, as he was before victorious) and after asking the Reaſon; for till then the Knights of the Order never bowed toward the King or his Seat; the Duke of Bedford anſwered, it was ſetled by a Chapter Act three years before. Hereupon that Great, King replied, No, Ile none of this, till you the Knights do it Satis bene well enough, and with due performance to Almighty God. And hereupon the forenamed Act proceeded, that they ſhould do this duty to Almighty God, not ſlightly, but Ad modum virorum Eccleſiaſticorum, as low, as well, as decently, as Clergy-men uſe to do it.

Now if you will turn this off, and ſay, it was the Superſtition of that Age ſo to do; Biſhop Jewel will come in to help me there. For where Harding names divers Ceremonies, and particularly bowing themſelves, and adoring at the Sacrament, I ſay, adoring at the Sacrament, not adoring the Sacrament; there Biſhop Jewel (that learned, painful, and reverend Prelate) approves all both the kneeling and the bowing, and the ſtanding up at the Goſpel (which as ancient as it is in the Church, and a common Cuſtom, is yet fondly made another of their Innovations:[a]) And further the Biſhop adds, That they are all commendable geſtures, and tokens of devotion, ſo long as the people underſtand what they mean, and apply them unto God. Now with us the people did ever underſtand them fully, and apply them to God, and to none but God, till theſe factious Spirits, and their like, to the great diſ-ſervice of God and his Church, went about to perſwade them, that they are Superſtitious, if not Idolatrous geſtures: As they make every thing elſe to be, where God is not ſerved ſlovenly.

[a] B. Jewels reply to Harding' anſwer. Art.3.Div.29.

13. The Thirteenth Innovation is, The placing of the holy Table Altar-wiſe, at the upper end of the Chancel, that is, the ſetting of it North and South, and placing a Rail before it, to keep it from prophanation, which Mr. Burton ſays, is done to advance and uſher in Popery.

Pag.4,5.105.

To this I anſwer, That it is no Popery to ſet a Rail to keep prophanation from that Holy Table: Nor is it any Innovation to place it at the upper end of the Chancel as the Altar ſtood. And this appears both by the Practice, and by the Command and Canon of the Church of England.

Firſt, By the Practice of the Church of England. For in the Kings Royal Chappels, and divers Cathedrals, the Holy Table hath ever ſince the Reformation ſtood at the upper end of the Quire, with the large or full ſide towards the People.

And though it ſtood in moſt Pariſh Churches the other way, yet whether there be not more reaſon, the Pariſh Churches ſhould be made conformable to the Cathedral and Mother Churches, than the Cathedrals to them, I leave to any reaſonable man to judge.

And yet here is nothing done either by violence or command to take off the Indifferency of the ſtanding of the Holy Table either way, but only by laying it fairly before men, how fit it is there ſhould be Order and Uniformity; I ſay ſtill reſerving the Indifferency of the ſtanding.

But howſoever I would fain know, how any diſcreet moderate man dares ſay, that the placing of the Holy Table Altar-wiſe (ſince they will needs call it ſo) is done either to advance or Uſher in Popery? For did Queen Elizabeth baniſh Popery, and yet did ſhe all along her Reign from firſt to laſt leave the Communion Table ſo ſtanding in her own Cappel Royal, in St. Pauls, and Weſtminſter, and other places; and all this of purpoſe to advance or uſher in that Popery which ſhe had driven out?

And ſince her death have two Gracious Kings kept out Popery all their times, and yet left the Holy Table ſtanding, as it did in the Queens time, and all of purpoſe to advance or uſher in Popery which they kept out?

Or what is the matter? May the Holy Table ſtand this way in the Kings Chappel, or Cathedrals, or Biſhops Chappels, and not elſewhere? Surely, if it be decent, and fit for Gods Service, it may ſtand ſo (if Authority pleaſe) in any Church. But if it advance or uſher in any Superſtition and Popery, it ought to ſtand ſo in none.

Nor hath any Kings Chappel any Prerogative (if that may be called one) above any ordinary Church to diſ-ſerve God in by any Superſtitious Rites. Where, give me leave to tell you, that the King and his Chappel are moſt jeeringly, and with ſcorn abuſed, in the laſt leaf of Mr. Burtons Mutinous Appeal, for ſuch it is.

Secondly, this appears by the Canon or Rule of the Church of England too, for it is plain in the laſt Injunction of the Queen; That the Holy Table ought to ſtand at the upper end of the Quire, North and South, or Altar-wiſe. For the words of the Queens Injunctions are theſe:

The Holy Table in every Church (mark it I pray, not in the Royal Chappel, or Cathedrals only, but in every Church) ſhall be decently made, and ſet in the place where the Altar ſtood. Now the Altar ſtood at the upper end of the Quire North and South, as appears before by the Practice of the Church. And there to ſet it otherwiſe, is to ſet it croſs the place, not In the place where the Altar ſtood: And ſo Stulti dum vitant vitia —— weak men, as theſe Libellers are, run into one Superſtition, while they would avoid another; For they run upon the Superſtition of the Croſs, while they ſeek to avoid the Superſtition of the Altar. So you ſee here is neither Popery nor Innovation in all the practice of Queen Elizabeth, or ſince.

Theſe words of the Injunction are ſo plain, as that they can admit of no ſhift.

And give me leave to tell you, that a very learned Prelate of this Church, and one, whom I think theſe men will not accuſe, as a man like to advance or Uſher in Popery, is of the ſame opinion: It is my Lord the Biſhop of Saliſbury.

Some difference was lately riſing about placing the Communion-Table in a Pariſh Church of his Dioceſs. The Biſhop careful to prevent all diſorder, ſends his Injunction under his hand and Seal to the Curate and Church-Wardens, to ſettle that buſineſs: In which he hath theſe two paſſages remarkable. I have ſeen and read the Order. May 17. 1637.

The firſt paſſage is this; By the Injunction of Queen Elizabeth (ſaith he) and by Can. 82. under King James, the Communion Tables ſhould ordinarily be ſet and ſtand with the ſide to the Eaſt wall of the Chancel. Therefore this is no Innovation, ſince there is Injunction and Canon for it.

The other paſſage is this; It is Ignorance (ſaith that learned Biſhop) to think that the ſtanding of the Holy Table there, reliſhes of Popery. Therefore, if it do not ſo much as reliſh of Popery, it can neither advance it, nor uſher it in. And therefore this is a moſt odious ſlander, and ſcandal caſt upon us.

So here is enough both for the Practice and Rule of the Church of England ſince the Reformation. Now before that time, both in this and other Churches of Chriſtendom, in the Eaſt and Weſt ordinarily the Holy Table or Altar ſtood ſo; Againſt this Mr. Burton ſays little.

But the Lincoln-ſhire Miniſter comes in to play the Puritan for that. Concerning which Book (falling thus in my way) and the Nameleſs Author of it, I ſhall only ſay theſe two things:

The one is, that the Author prevaricates from the firſt word to the laſt in the Book, for he takes on him both for the Name and for the placing of the Holy Table, and the like, to prove, that Generally and Univerſally, and ordinarily in the whole Catholick Church, both Eaſt and Weſt, the Holy Table did not ſtand at the upper end of the Quire or Chancel. And this he muſt prove, or he doth nothing.

Now when he comes to make his Proofs, they are almoſt all of them particular, few or none general and concludent; For he neither brings Teſtimonies out of the General and received Rituals of the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches, nor of Fathers and Hiſtories of the Church, which ſpeak in General terms of all, but where they ſpeak of particular Churches only.

So that ſuppoſe the moſt that can be, that is, ſuppoſe his quotations be all truly alleaged, and true too in the ſenſe that the Miniſter takes them (though in very truth, the places, moſt of them, are neither truly alleaged, nor ſenſed,) yet they are but exceptions of, and exemptions from the General practice. And you know both in Law and Reaſon, Exceptio firmat Regulam in non exceptis. So that upon the ſudden I am not able to reſolve, whether this Miniſter hath done more wrong to himſelf or his Readers, for he hath abuſed both.

The other is, that in the judgment of very many learned men, which have peruſed this Book, the Author is clearly conceived to want a great deal of that Learning to which he pretends: Or elſe to have written this Book wholly, and Reſolvedly againſt both his Science, and his Conſcience.

And for my own part, I am fully of opinion, this Book was thruſt now to the Preſs, both to countenance theſe Libellers, and as much as in him lay, to fire both Church and State.

And though I wonder not at the Miniſter, yet I ſhould wonder at the Biſhop of the Dioceſs (a man of learning and experience) that he ſhould give Teſtimony to ſuch a buſineſs, and in ſuch times as theſe.

And once more, before I leave the Holy Table, Name, and Thing, give me leave to put you in mind, that there is no danger at all in the Altar, Name, or Thing. For at the beginning of the Reformation, though there were a Law for the taking down of the Altars, and ſetting up of Holy Tables in the room of them; yet in ſome places the Altars were not ſuddenly removed. And what ſays the Queen in her Injunction to this? Injunct. ultim.

Why, ſhe ſays, That there ſeems no matter of great moment in this, ſaving for uniformity, and the better imitation of the Law in that behalf. Therefore for any danger or hurt that was in the Altar, Name, or thing, they might have been left ſtanding, but for Uniformity, and the Imitation of the Law.

But howſoever, it follows in the ſame Injunction, That when the Altar is taken down, the Holy Table ſhall be ſet in (not croſs) the place where the Altar ſtood; which (as is aforeſaid) muſt needs be Altar-wiſe,

14. The Fourteenth and the laſt Innovation comes with a mighty Charge, and it is taken out of an Epiſtle to the Temporal Lords of his Majeſties Privy Council. Of which Epiſtle we got one ſheet, and ſo (for ought I yet know) that Impreſſion ſtaid: In that Sheet is this Charge, The words are,

The Prelates to juſtifie their proceedings, have forged a new Article of Religion, brought from Rome, (which gives them full power to alter the Doctrine and Diſcipline of our Church at a blow, as they interpret it) and have foiſted it (ſuch is their language) into the beginning of the Twentieth Article of our Church. And this is in the laſt Edition of the Articles, Anno 1628. in affront of his Majeſties Declaration before them, &c.

The Clauſe (which they is forged by us) is this: The Church (that is, the Biſhops, as they expound it) hath Power to decree Rites and Ceremonies, and Authority in matters of Faith. (The word is Controverſies of Faith, by their leave.) This Clauſe (ſay they) is a Forgery fit to be examined, and deeply cenſured in the Star-Chamber. For it is not to be found in the Latine or Engliſh Articles of Edward VI. or Queen Elizabeth, ratified by Parliament.

And then in the Margent thus, If to forge a Will or Writing be cenſurable in the Star-Chamber, which is but a wrong to a private man: How much more the Forgery of an Article of Religion, to wrong the whole Church, and overturn Religion which concerns all our ſouls.

This is a heavy Charge, my Lords: But I thank God the Anſwer is eaſie.

And truly I grant, that to forge an Article in Religion in whole or in part, and then to thruſt it upon the Church is a moſt hainous Crime, far worſe than the forging of a Deed; and is certainly very deeply cenſurable in this Court. And I would have humbly beſought you, that a deep cenſure might have been laid upon it, but that this Sheet was found after, and ſo is not annexed to the Information, nor in Judgment at this preſent before you.

But then, My Lords, I muſt tell you, I hope to make it as clear as the day, that this forgery was not, that this Clauſe mentioned was added, by the Prelates to the Article, to gain power to the Church, and ſo to ſerve our turns: But that that Clauſe in the beginning of the Article was by theſe men, or at leaſt by ſome of their Faction, razed out, and this to weaken the juſt power of the Church to ſerve their turns.

They ſay (to juſtifie their Charge) that this Clauſe is not to be found in the Articles, Engliſh or Latine, of either Edward VI. or Queen Elizabeth.

I anſwer: The Articles of Edward VI. and thoſe made under Queen Elizabeth differ very much: And thoſe of Edward VI. are not now binding. So whether the Clauſe be in or out of them, it is not much material.

But for the Articles of the Church of England, made in the Queens time, and now in force, that this Clauſe for the power of the Church to decree Ceremonies, and to have Authority in Controverſies of Faith, ſhould not be found in Engliſh or Latine Copies, till the Year, 1628. that it was ſet forth with the Kings Declaration before it, is to me a miracle, but your Lordſhips ſhall ſee the ſalſehood and boldneſs of theſe men.

What! Is this Affirmative Clauſe in no Copy, Engliſh or Latine, till the Year 1628? Strange! Why, my Lords, I have a Copy of the Articles in Engliſh, of the Year 1612. and of the Year 1605. and of the Year 1593. and in Latine of the Year 1563. which was one of the firſt Printed Copies, if not the firſt of all. For the Articles were agreed on but the Nine and twentieth day of January, Anno $156\frac{2}{3}$. { According to the Engliſh Account.

According to the Julian Acccount.

And in all theſe, this Affirmative Clauſe for the Churches power is in. And is not this ſtrange boldneſs then to abuſe the World, and falſely to ſay it is in no Copy, when I my ſelf, out of my own ſtore, am able to ſhew it in ſo many, and ſo anciently.

But, my Lords, I ſhall make it plainer yet: For it is not fit concerning an Article of Religion, and an Article of ſuch conſequence for the Order, Truth, and Peace of this Church you ſhould rely upon my Copies, be they never ſo many, or never ſo ancient.

Therefore I ſent to the Publick Records in my Office, and here under my Officers hand, who is a publick Notary, is returned me the Twentieth Article with this Affirmative Clauſe in it. And there is alſo the whole Body of the Articles to be ſeen.

By this your Lordſhips ſee how free the Prelates are from forging this part of the Article. Now let theſe men quit themſelves and their faction, as they can, for their Index Expurgatorius, and their foul Raſure in leaving out this part of the Article. For to leave out of an Article is as great a Crime as to put in; and a main Raſure is as cenſurable in this Court as a forgery.

Why, but then my Lords, what is this Myſtery of Iniquity?

Truly, I cannot certainly tell, but as far as I can, I'le tell you.

The Articles you ſee were fully, and fairly agreed to, and ſubſcribed in the year $156\frac{2}{3}$. But after this, in the year 1571. there were ſome that refuſed to ſubſcribe, but why they did ſo, is not recorded. Whether it were about this Article or any other I know not. But in fact this is manifeſt, that in that year 1571. the Articles were Printed both in Latine, and Engliſh, and this Clauſe for the Church left out of both. And certainly, this could not be done, but by the malicious cunning of that Oppoſite Faction. And though I ſhall ſpare dead mens names where I have not certainty; yet if you be pleaſed to look back and conſider who they were that Governed buſineſſes in 1571. and rid the Church almoſt at their pleaſure; and how potent the Anceſtors of theſe Libellers began then to grow, you will think it no hard matter to have the Articles Printed, and this Clauſe left out.

And yet it is plain, That, after the ſtir about Subſcription in the year 1571. the Articles were ſetled and ſubſcribed unto at laſt, as in the year 1562. with this Clauſe in them for the Church: For looking farther into the Records which are in mine own hands, I have found the Book of 1563. ſubſcribed by all the Lower Houſe of Convocation, in this very year of Contradiction, 1571. Dr. John Elmar, (who was after Lord Biſhop of London) being there Proloquutor : Alexander Nowel, Dean of St. Pauls, having been Proloquutor in 156$\frac{2}{3}$. and yet living and preſent and ſubſcribing in 1571. Therefore I do here openly in Star-Chamber charge upon that pure Sect this foul corruption of falſifying the Articles of the Church of England; let them take it off as they can.

I have now done, and it is time I ſhould, with the Innovations charged upon the Prelates, and fit to be anſwered here.

Some few more there are, but they belong to matter of Doctrine, which ſhall preſently be anſwered, Juſto Volumine, at large, to ſatisfie all well-minded people. But when Mr. Burtons Book which is the main one, is anſwered, (I mean his Book, not his Railing) neither Prynn, nor Baſtwick, nor any Attendants upon Rabſhakeh ſhall by me or my care be anſwered. If this Court find not a way to ſtop theſe Libellors Mouths and Pens, for me they ſhall rail on till they be weary.

Page 175. Yet one thing more I beſeech you give me leave to add. It is Mr. Burtons charge upon the Prelates, That the Cenſures formerly laid upon Malefactors are now put upon Gods Miniſters for their Vertue and Piety.

A heavy charge this too. But if he or any man elſe can ſhew that any man hath been puniſhed in the High Commiſſion, or elſewhere, by the Prelates, for Vertue and Piety, there is all the reaſon in the world we ſhould be ſeverely puniſhed our ſelves. But the truth is, the Vertue and Piety for which theſe Miniſters are puniſhed, is for preaching Schiſm and Sedition, many of their Sermons being as bad as their Libels; As Burtons Libel was one of his Sermons firſt. But whether this ſtuff have any Affinity with Vertue and Piety, I ſubmit to any Chriſtian Reader.

And yet Mr. Burton is ſo confident of his Innocency, even in this cauſe wherein he hath ſo foully carried himſelf, that he breaks forth into
Page 7. theſe words, I never ſo much as once dreamed, that Impiety and Impudency it ſelf, in ſuch a Chriſtian State as this is, and under ſuch a gracious Prince, durſt ever thus publickly have called me in queſtion, and that upon the open Stage, &c.

You ſee the boldneſs of the Man, and in as bad a cauſe, as (I think) in this kind ever any man had.

* Lib.1.Ep.3. I ſhall end all with a paſſage out of St. Cyprian *, when he, then Biſhop of Carthage, was bitterly railed upon by a pack of Schiſmaticks, his anſwer was, and it is now mine; They have railed both bitterly and falſly upon me, and yet Non oportet me paria cum illis facere; It becomes not me to anſwer them with the like, either Levities or Revilings, but to ſpeak and write that only which becomes Sacerdotem Dei, a Prieſt of God.

Neither ſhall I in this give way (though I have been extreamly vilified) to either grief or paſſion to ſpeak, remembring that of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal.37.8. Fret not thy ſelf, elſe ſhalt thou be moved to do evil.

Neither yet by Gods grace ſhall the Reproaches of ſuch men as theſe, make me faint or ſtart aſide, either from the right way in matter of pra-
Ibid.p.10. ctice, (they are St. Cyprians words again) or à certâ regulâ, from the certain Rule of Faith.

And ſince in former times, ſome ſpared not to call the Maſter of the houſe Beelzebub, how much more will they be bold with them of his houſhold, as it is in St. Matthew, *Chap.*10.25. And ſo bold have theſe men been; but the next words of our Saviour are, Fear them not.

I humbly crave pardon of your Lordſhips for this my neceſſary length, and give you all hearty thanks for your Noble patience, and your Juſt and Honourable Cenſure upon theſe Men, and your unanimous diſlike of them, and defence of the Church.

But becauſe the buſineſs hath ſome reflection upon my ſelf, I ſhall forbear to cenſure them, and leave them to Gods Mercy, and the Kings Juſtice.

July 27. 1631.

Inſtructions for Muſters and Arms, and the uſe thereof, by Order of his Majeſties Privy Council.

FIrſt of all, it is to be underſtood that there are three ſorts of diſtances, to wit, Open Order, Order, and Cloſe Order. Open Order, or the firſt diſtance is, when the Souldiers both in Rank and File ſtand ſix foot removed one from another.

The ſecond diſtance, or your Order is, when the Souldiers ſtand three foot removed both in Rank and File one from another, and this Order is to be uſed when they are embattelled, or march in the face of an Enemy, or when they come to ſtand, or when you will Wheel. But when you march thorow any Country, you muſt obſerve three foot only from File to File, and ſix from Rank to Rank. The third diſtance, or your Cloſe Order is commanded by this word Cloſe, which is, when there is one foot and a half from File to File, and three from Rank to Rank, and this is for the Pikes only, and muſt never be uſed, but when you will ſtand firm to receive the Charge of an Enemy. The Muskettiers muſt never be cloſer than the ſecond diſtance of three foot in ſquare, becauſe they are to have a free uſe of their Arms.

Becauſe the meaſure of theſe diſtances cannot be taken ſo juſtly by the eye, we take the diſtance of ſix foot between File and File, by commanding the Souldiers, as they ſtand, to ſtretch forth their arms, and ſtand ſo removed one from another, that their hands may meet.

And for the Ranks, we make account we take the ſame diſtance of ſix foot, when the butt end of the Pikes do almoſt reach their heels that march before. We take the ſecond order or diſtance of three foot between File and File, by bidding the Souldiers ſet their arms a Kenbow, and put themſelves ſo cloſe, that their elbows may meet. And we reckon we take the ſame diſtance between the Ranks, when they come up almoſt to the Swords point.

In exerciſing your motions, you are always to obſerve your Open Order of ſix foot in ſquare, in which the Company being firſt placed, you are to acquaint them to theſe terms of directions.

Stand right in your Files.
Stand right in your Ranks.
Silence.
To the right hand.
As you were.
To the left hand.
As you were.
To the right hand about.
As you were.
To the left hand about.
As you were.
Ranks to the right hand double.
As you were.
Ranks to the left hand double.
As you were.
Files to the right hand double.
As you were.
Files to the left hand double.
As you were.
Middlemen to the right hand double your front.
As you were.
Middlemen to the left hand double your front.
As you were.

It is to be noted when you are commanded to be as you were, you are ever to return by the contrary hand, from whence you came. As for example, If you did turn to the right hand, you are to return as you were to the left hand, and ſo in the reſt.

Ranks, to the right or left hand countermarch.
To the right or left hand, at diſcretion.
Files, to the right or left hand countermarch.
To the right or left hand as you were.

When you will countermarch to the right hand, the firſt Rank of Leaders only muſt advance one ſtep forward with the right leg, and then turn, and all the other Ranks muſt march firſt up to the place from whence the firſt Rank did Countermarch before they turn. So likewiſe if you will countermarch to the left hand, the firſt Rank muſt ſtep forwards one ſtep with the left leg, and then turn, and all the other Ranks behind muſt come up to that place before they turn, as before. The ſame order is to be obſerved when you will countermarch your Files.

In countermarching though both are here ſet down for diſtinction ſake, you are to name neither Ranks nor Files: But are only to ſay, To the right hand Countermarch, or to the left hand Countermarch.

Before you Wheel.

Ranks, to the right or left hand double.
Files, to the right or left hand, or to the middle, cloſe to your Order, to three foot between File and File.
Ranks, cloſe to your Order, to three foot between Rank and Rank.
To the right hand Wheel,
To the left hand Wheel,
Or Wheel about, } Which you liſt, and each as often as you liſt.

When you exerciſe a Company ſingle, you double your Ranks before you Wheel, in regard the Body is ſmall. But in a Diviſion, or greater Body, you cloſe firſt both your Files and your Ranks to your Order of three foot, and omit the doubling, and ſo Wheel.

When you will Wheel to the right hand, double your Ranks to the left hand, and when you Wheel to the left hand, double your Ranks to the right hand. For ſo the right and left hand Leaders will keep their places on that corner towards which you Wheel.

After you have Wheeled.

Ranks, backward open in double diſtance.
Files, open to your Order, that is, to three foot.
Ranks, as you were.

This manner of opening is uſed only in a ſingle Company. For in greater Bodies where the doubling is omitted, you open firſt your Ranks, and then your Files to your open Order of ſix foot, to bring them back again as they were.

By double diſtance is meant twelve foot. For ſo the Ranks (which before did double) falling out again into their firſt places, come juſt to the diſtance of their open Order of ſix foot, in which they were before they doubled.

In opening Ranks or Files, you muſt make all the Files or Ranks, ſaving the outermoſt on that hand from whence you mean to open (which muſt ſtand) to move all together till the ſecond Rank or File, from that which ſtandeth, have gotten its diſtance, and ſubſequently the reſt.

If you will have them cloſe their Files to the right or left hand, the outermoſt File on that hand you purpoſe to cloſe, muſt be commanded to ſtand, and all the reſt to cloſe to it.

Advance your Pikes.
Order your Pikes.
Shoulder your Pikes.
Charge your Pikes,
Order your Pikes.
Trail your Pikes.
Check your Pikes.

In charging, half the Ranks only muſt charge their Pikes, the other hindermoſt half of the Ranks do port their Pikes, that is, they carry them ſo couched over the heads of the formoſt, as may give them no offence, either in charging or retiring. Beſides, this way the Pikes are not ſo ſubject to be broken by the Shot of the Enemy, as when they are advanced.

Theſe following motions are to be performed both ſtanding and marching.

They muſt likewiſe obſerve when they charge ſtanding, to fall back with the right Leg, and marching to ſtep forwards with the left.

Charge your Pikes.
Shoulder your Pikes.
To the right hand charge.
Shoulder your Pikes.
To the left hand charge.
Shoulder your Pikes.
To the Rear charge.
Shoulder your Pikes.
Stand.
Order your Pikes.

For the Musket.

Theſe are the Poſtures which in this Book are to be obſerved: But in Exerciſing, you muſt only uſe theſe three terms of direction.

Make ready.
Preſent.
Give fire.

Your Muskettiers muſt obſerve in all their motions, to turn to the right hand, and that they carry the mouth of their Peeces high, as well when they are ſhouldered, as in Priming, as alſo when they hold their Pans guarded, and come up to give fire.

In advancing towards an Enemy, when they do not skirmiſh looſe and disbanded, they muſt give fire by Ranks after this manner: Two Ranks muſt always make ready together, and advance ten paces forwards before the Bodies, at which diſtance a Sergeant (or when the Body is great, ſome other Officer) muſt ſtand, to whom the Muskettiers are to come up before they preſent and give fire. Firſt, the firſt Rank, and whilſt the firſt gives fire, the ſecond Rank keep their Muskets cloſe to their Reſts, and their Pans guarded; and as ſoon as the firſt are fallen away, the ſecond preſently preſent and give fire, and fall after them. Now as ſoon as the two firſt Ranks do move from their places in the front, the two Ranks next it muſt unſhoulder their Muskets, and make ready, ſo as they may advance forward ten Paces, as before, as ſoon as ever the two firſt Ranks are fallen away, and are to do in all points as the former. So all other Ranks through the whole Diviſion muſt do the ſame by twos one after another.

A manner there is to give fire retiring from an Enemy, which is performed after this ſort.

As the Troop marcheth, the hindermoſt Rank of all keeping ſtill with the Troop, maketh ready, and being ready, the Souldiers in that Rank turn all together to the right hand, and give fire, marching preſently away a good round pace to the Front, and there place themſelves in Rank together juſt before the Front. As ſoon as the firſt Rank turns to give fire, the Rank next it makes ready, and doth as the former, and ſo the reſt.

We give fire by the Flank thus; The outermoſt File next the Enemy muſt be commanded to make ready, keeping ſtill along with the Body, till ſuch time as they be ready, and then they turn to the right or left hand, according to the ſight of their Enemy, either upon their right or left flank, and give fire all together: When they have diſcharged they ſtir not, but keep their ground, and charge their Peeces again in the ſame place they ſtand. Now as ſoon as the aforeſaid File doth turn to give fire, the outermoſt next it makes ready, always keeping along with the Troop, till the bringer up be paſt a little beyond the Leader of that File that gave fire laſt, and then the whole File muſt turn and give fire, and do in all points as the firſt did, and ſo all the reſt one after the other. A Sergeant, or (if the Troop be great) ſome other better qualified Officer muſt ſtand at the head of the firſt File, and as ſoon as the ſecond File hath given fire, and hath charged, he is to lead forward the firſt File up to the ſecond File, and ſo to the reſt one after another, till he hath gathered up again the whole Wing, and then he is to joyn them again in equal front with the Pikes.

Laſt of all the Troop or whole Wing of Muskettiers makes ready all together, and the firſt Rank without advancing gives fire in the place it ſtands in, and ſpeedily as it may, yet orderly, falls away, all the Ranks doing the ſame ſucceſſively, one after another.

The Arms of a Pikeman are, Gorget, Curats, Head-piece, Sword, Girdle and Hangers.

The Arms of a Muskettier are, a Musket, a Reſt, Bandeliers, Head-piece, Sword, Girdle and Hangers.

It is required, that the Muskets be all of a Bore, the Pikes of a length: But to the end this courſe may not by a ſudden alteration turn to a general charge and burthen upon the people, the Lords Lieutenants, and the Deputy Lieutenants are rather to uſe the way of advice and encouragement, as a matter which will be very acceptable to his Majeſty, who will take notice of the affection of ſuch as ſhall moſt readily provide Arms according to this order, then to enforce a preſent general obſervation thereof. But in caſe where the Arms ſhall be decayed, and muſt be renewed, this order is to be ſtrictly obſerved.

The Arms of Horſemen; Cuiraſſiers, are a Gorget, Curats, Cutaſes, Pouldrons, Vambraces, a left Hand-Gauntlet, Taces, Cuiſſes, a Cask, a Sword, Girdle and Hangers, a Caſe of Piſtols, Firelocks, Saddle, Bridle, Bitt, Petrel, Crupper, with the Leathers belonging to faſten his Piſtols, and his neceſſary ſack of carriage, and a good horſe to mount on.

The Arms of a Harquebuſier or Dragoon, which hath ſucceeded in the place of Light-horſemen (and are indeed of ſingular uſe almoſt in all Actions of War) the Arms are a good Harquebus, or Dragoon, fitted with an Iron work, to be carried in a Belt, a Belt with a Flask, Priming-box, Key, and Bullet-bag, an open Head-piece with cheeks, a good Buff Coat with deep Skirts, Sword, Girdle, and Hangers, a Saddle, Bridle, Bitt, Petrel, Crupper, with Straps for his Sack of neceſſaries, and a horſe of leſs force and leſs price than the Cuiraſſier.

In the exerciſe of the Foot Troops, the Companies are to be of hundreds only, beſides Officers, that they may be ſo much the nearer together to be trained and exerciſed with leſs pains to the Souldiers, and leſs loſs of time, when they ſhall be called together by their Captain.

The Company is to be divided into Files of ten in a File, the File is to be diſtinguiſhed into a Leader, a Bringer up, two Middlemen, and three between the Leader and his Middleman, and three between the Bringer up and his Middleman. When the Companies come together, they are to be exerciſed ten in depth (as the proportion beſt fitted to receive all charges, and perform all executions;) But in caſes of neceſſity in ſervice, and for exerciſe it will be requiſite to reduce them into five in File, and then thoſe two Middlemen become Bringers up, and then have a kind of charge over thoſe three between the Leader and the Bringer up, and will be of great uſe in preparing and exerciſing of the Souldiers in the practice of their Arms and Order. For it is not intended that the whole Companies ſhould be drawn together to be exerciſed: But that upon Sundays after Evening Prayer, and upon Holy days (as it hath been formerly uſed for Bow) the Leader, Bringer up, or Middlemen ſhould exerciſe together with his whole File, or ſuch a part as dwels moſt convenient for him. And further, that once in a Month, or ſix Weeks, the Captain, Lieutenant, or Ancient may (with the knowledge of the Deputy Lieutenant that dwells next him) upon a Holiday exerciſe a Squadron of his Company, or the whole, as ſhall ſeem good to the Deputy Lieutenant.

o Leader
o Middleman
o Middleman
o Bringer up.

The like form for the Horſe: But it is to be obſerved, that the Files of Horſe are never to be above ſix, but diſtinguiſhed by the names of Leader, Bringer up, and two Middlemen, and to be doubled to three deep, upon occaſion. And to avoid the great abuſe that is practiſed by thoſe that are inrolled to keep Horſes for the Kings Service, That the Leader, Bringer up, or Middlemen of the Files of Horſe, do exerciſe the Horſe upon Holidays and Sundays after Evening Prayer: And that the Captain by himſelf, his Lieutenant, or Cornet, may (with knowledge of the next Deputy Lieutenant) upon a Holiday, call together ſome Files, or a Squadron of his Company, to practiſe them in the exerciſe of their Arms. The Officers alſo both of Horſe and Foot-Bands, as well in the Chief, as Inferiours, Serjeants, Corporals, and Lamprizadoes, are to have a more ſpecial care for the ordinary exerciſing of the Souldiers of their Company, which dwell next unto them, and properly for them.

A ſpecial care and order muſt be taken that all thoſe that find a man to ſerve on Horſeback, whether they find the Horſe or the Man, or both, muſt not change the Horſe or Man at their pleaſure: For ſo it would be every day to practiſe a new Man, or a new Horſe, and the exerciſe be made vain. But they muſt take into conſideration, that the Man and Horſe deſigned to the Service of the King, hath (by the intention of the Law) been dedicated ſo to the Intereſt of the King, as they muſt always be in readineſs at the call of the Kings Officers, and may not be changed without the knowledge and conſent of the Captain, or Deputy Lieutenant next adjoyning, or by Warrant of the Lord Lieutenant. And this with this only limitation, that another ſufficient Man or Horſe be ſupplied in the room of the Man or Horſe made deficient, for a juſt cauſe well approved of. And as the Souldier, or Horſe may not be changed or diſcharged, without the knowledge of the Captain or Superiour Officers; So it is not lawful for the Captain to change or diſcharge any Man or Horſe (once inrolled) without the approbation of the Lord Lieutenant, or his Deputy.

A principal care is to be taken for the proviſion of the Arms, that they may be provided at ſuch rates as they are truly worth, that the people be not ſubject to the abuſe of undertakers for theſe buſineſſes:

And alſo for the furniſhing of every Shire with a competent proportion of Match, Powder, and Bullets, to which purpoſe directions have been heretofore already given. Nevertheleſs, it is not held neceſſary, until the Souldiers be perfect in their Poſtures, and ready managing of the Pike when they are armed, and the Musket together with the Reſt, that there ſhould be any expence of Powder at all: And then for ſome time to be exerciſed with ſome falſe fires; which is only a little Powder in the Pan: Nor at any time to blow away their Powder in vain; but that Powder which ſhould be allowed by the Country for training, be beſtowed only at Marks: In which caſe it is to be wiſhed, that little ſmall Prizes might be provided at the coſt of the Country, to be ſhot for at the Marks, which would give an ambition to men to carry them away, and would ſave the Country more in Powder than their value: And a deſire in men to render thamſelves perfect, would make them to find themſelves Powder with that money, which on thoſe days, and in thoſe times, would be worſe ſpent in an Alehouſe.

HAMILTONS Vindication, Anno 1638.

IT will, no doubt, ſeem ſtrange to ſee my name in Print, ſtanding ſo near theſe men who are Interlocutors in the Succeeding Pages, their profeſſion and mine being of ſuch different natures: But I ſhall intreat the ingenuous Reader to take notice of the neceſſity of this my doing.

I am by the three Anſwerers to theſe Demands wronged, and that by an injury of an high nature, challenged in Writing to have done that, which God doth know never entred into my thoughts; and for any thing the Anſwerers did, or do know, never came into my mind. And though by the Law of Challenges, they have challenged me, I may chooſe the Weapons (which certainly ſhould have been in another kind, had the Challengers been of another Profeſſion) yet being men of ſo holy a Function, I have thought good to make choice of their own Weapons; and by my Pen to do out that blot, which they by their Pen have laid upon me. And I have thought it fit to do it in a Schedule annexed to this Book (which for that cauſe only I have cauſed to be here Reprinted) that where mens minds perhaps may be poyſoned by ſwallowing an untruth in their Anſwers, ſo deeply wounding my Honour and Loyalty; this Antidote might be ready at hand to cure them, before they ſhould be fully tainted with it: As likewiſe ſuppoſing that if they ſhould be Printed ſeverally, many might meet with their Anſwers alone, which might leave in them a bad impreſſion of me; if they ſhould not be attended with this juſt and true expreſſion of mine.

The injuries wherewith I am violated by the three Anſwerers, are of two ſorts: One of them ſtrikes me alone, as his Sacred Majeſties High Commiſſioner: The other wounds me as his Majeſties Counſellour; and with me all of that honourable board. The former is this,

They deliver Affirmatively, That the Declaration which they tendered me of their late Covenant, was ſuch as I accepted, and was well pleaſed with. And this they ſet down twice for failing: In their anſwer to the firſt Demand towards the end, and in their anſwer to the third Demand a little before the middle of it: And that with ſuch confidence, as truly I cannot with any juſtice blame the Reader for believing of it, when it fell from the Pens of theſe men, whoſe Profeſſion is the teaching of truth.

But I ſhall deſire the Readers to ſuffer themſelves (notwithſtanding the prejudice of theſe mens perſons) to be undeceived by a plain averment of truth.

I am confident none of theſe three Anſwerers ever heard me ſay ſo, nor will they ſay they did. If they but heard it from others (which I do verily believe they did not, and ſhall do ſo ſtill, till they avouch their Authors) ſure no man can chooſe but miſs in them that civil prudence, which will not allow any diſcreet man to affirm that of any other; much leſs of a perſon of my quality, and at this time of my place; the foundation whereof ſhall be ſo frail and ſlippery, as report, which is always uncertain, and moſt times falſe.

For clearing the truth, I do aver upon mine Honour that I never ſaid ſo, I never thought ſo. And though that that Declaration was much bettered by the induſtry of ſome well-affected (from what was firſt intended) yet it gave me not ſatisfaction: And I dare boldly affirm, I never ſaid it would give my Maſter the Kings Majeſty any. My Juſtifiers in this ſhall be theſe Noblemen, Gentlemen, and others to whom I ever ſpoke, either publickly, or in private. I was indeed content to catch at any thing I could, when I could not obtain what I would: As being willing to do my Country-men that reſpect, as to the utmoſt of my power to recommend to my gracious Maſter, with all favourable conſtruction, even that which I then thought, and did know fell ſhort of juſt and home ſatisfaction. * And here, I do confeſs, I cannot charge it for a faulty miſtake upon the Readers of theſe Aſſeverations of the three Anſwerers, if they ſhould before this my Declaration, conceive that his Majeſty were in all probability like to reſt ſatisfied with that Declaration of the Covenant; having it delivered to them from men whom they have in all this buſineſs believed as much as themſelves, that his Majeſties Commiſſioner, who in all likelihood did know his Majeſties mind beſt, did reſt ſatisfied with it.

But his Majeſty hath juſt reaſon to charge me, if theſe Aſſeverations were true; as I have good reaſon to vindicate my ſelf, they being not true. The truth is, if theſe Aſſeverations be true, I do profeſs to the whole world, that his Majeſty hath a moſt juſt cauſe to diſcharge himſelf of me, and my ſervice, and to diſcharge me of all truſt in this, or any other Negotiation. For I profeſs, that I knowing his Majeſties conſtant miſlike of the ſaid Covenant, it muſt bewray in me, either breach of truſt, or want of judgment; If I ſhould go about to make either my ſelf, or the world believe, that my Maſter could receive ſatisfaction by ſuch an explanation.

And here I cannot diſſemble, but muſt ask leave to vent my ſelf thus far. Had theſe wrongs been put upon me by the Pens of other men, and not of thoſe whoſe Profeſſions I am forward and willing to believe (becauſe I would have it ſo) will not ſuffer them to embrace wilful and malicious deſigns: I ſhould juſtly have doubted, that there had been ſome men in this Kingdom, who being afraid of a ſetling and peaceable concluſion of this buſineſs, had gone about to raiſe in my Royal and Gracious Maſter a jealouſie of my ſlackneſs in my King and Countries Service, that ſo I might be called back, re infecta.

If any ſuch Enemies there be to the peace of this miſerable diſtracted Church and State, I beſeech God in time to diſcover them, and that all may end in covering them with ſhame and confuſion. The ſum of all I will ſay of this perſonal wrong offered to my ſelf is this: If theſe reverend and learned Gentlemen, the Anſwerers, in theſe untrue Aſperſions intended any harm to me, I ſhall only now requite them with a caſt of their own Calling, I pray God forgive them. If they intended me no harm, then I do expect that they will give my ſelf and the World ſatiſfaction in clearing me that I gave them no ground for theſe their Aſſeverations. And ſo being confident of his Majeſties goodneſs to all his Miniſters; among the reſt, to the meaneſt of them, my ſelf, eſpecially in this particular, that he will never be ſhaken in the opinion of my loyal and conſtant ſervice, upon ſuch ſlight, light, and groundleſs reports, I will ſay no more of that firſt point.

For that which concerneth my ſelf as a Counſellour, and the reſt of that honourable Board, averred by the three Anſwerers in their Anſwers to

* Nor is there any ground for their opinion of my acceptation of that declaration, unleſs they call receiving, accepting; and that was not in my power to refuſe, it being conceived in formal words of a ſupplication, and ſo tendered to me, who by my Royal Maſter his inſtructions was commanded to receive the Petitions of all his good and loyal ſubjects.

to the third and fourteenth Demand, I do here proteſt before Almighty God, that none of the Allegations alleged by the three Anſwerers, or any Petition given me by the Supplicants, moved me to give way, that the Order of the Council Table ſhould not paſs into an Act: for I did then, and do now avow, that I then was, and now am fully ſatisfied with his Majeſties moſt gracious Declaration; and that in my opinion all ought to have thought themſelves ſufficiently freed from fears of Innovations. But the true reaſon was this, I was ſo tenderly affectioned towards the peace of my Country, that I gave way to that, which many of honourable quality aſſured me, if it were not done, a preſent rupture might follow, and ſo conſequently the ruine of this Kingdom; which I was reſolved to keep off ſo long as poſſibly I could, retaining my fidelity to my Maſter. Which care of mine I find but ſlenderly requited, when it is made an argument to perſwade his Majeſties good Subjects to do that which is ſo diſpleaſing to him, and ſo unſafe for them. And yet even in this paſſage, it would have been expected from men of that Profeſſion, that nothing ſhould have paſſed but undoubted truth. In which point too they have failed, either as I hope by a miſtaking, or a miſ-informing. For the Miſſive once thought fit to be ſent to his Majeſty was never rent, but remaineth yet as it was: And we did not ſend it, becauſe we did not think, thanks to his Majeſty would be ſeaſonable in the name of the whole Kingdom, when we knew his Majeſty, by the laſt proceedings of many, and Proteſtations made againſt his Royal Declaration (pretended in the name of the whole Country) could not receive ſatisfaction.

To conclude, notwithſtanding this Perſonal wrong offered to me his Majeſties High Commiſſioner, I will carefully, chearfully, and conſtantly go on with this great buſineſs, wherewith he hath intruſted me. Which as I pray God it may proſper under my hands: So I praiſe God that he hath given me ſo chearful and willing a heart to go on in it: That if my life could procure the peace of this torn Church and Kingdom, to the contentment of my Royal Maſter, and comfort of his diſtracted Subjects; he who knoweth all things, knoweth likewiſe this truth: It is the ſacrifice of the world, in which I would moſt glory, and which I would moſt ſincerely offer up to God, my King, and Country.

HAMMILTON.

The

The Grievances given in by the Miniſters before the laſt Parliament in June 1633.

THe Miniſters ſtanding for the preſervation of the purity of Religion in Doctrine, Worſhip, and Goverment, aſſayed ſundry means to have his Majeſty rightly informed of the eſtate of our Kirk, but the ſucceſs was not anſwerable to their expectation. Yet having the opportunity of his Majeſties coming to his Native Country of Scotland to be Crowned, and hold his firſt Parliament, they adviſed upon ſome grievances to be preſented to his Majeſty and Eſtates. It was ordained by Act of Parliament 1594. that four of every Eſtate ſhould Convene twenty days before the beginning of the Parliament, to conſider all Articles and Petitions, which were to be given in, that ſuch things only might be put in form, and preſented to the Lords of the Articles in time of Parliament, as were reaſonable and neceſſary, and that ſuch, as were impertinent and frivolous, might be rejected. But it was not determined who ſhould make choice of the Perſons. Yet this was not obſerved before the laſt Parliament. But upon the 16 of May 1633. Intimation was made by Proclamation, that all ſuch, as purpoſed to give in any Articles or Petitions, deliver the ſame to the Clerk Regiſter betwixt that and the firſt day of June, to be preſented by him to ſuch of the Eſtates and Council, as ſhould be appointed to hear and conſider them. The Miniſters fearing not to be heard otherwiſe, appointed one of their diſtreſſed Brethren, Mr. Thomas Hogge, to preſent their grievances to him, which he preſented and delivered, and took inſtruments thereupon in the hands of a Notair.

Grievances and Petitions concerning the diſordered eſtate of the Reformed Kirk within this Realm of Scotland, preſented upon the 29 day of May 1633. by me Mr. Thomas Hogge, Miniſter of the Evangel, in mine own name, and in the name of others of the Miniſtry, likewiſe grieved, to Sir John Hay Clerk of Regiſter, to be preſented by him to ſuch as ought, according to the Order appointed, conſider them, that thereafter they may be preſented to his Majeſty and Eſtates, which are to be aſſembled at the next inſuing Parliament.

THe opportunity of this ſolemn meeting of your gracious Majeſty, and the honourable Eſtates convened in this High Court of Parliament, and the Conſcience of our duty to God and the Reformed Kirk within this Realm of Scotland, where we ſerve by our Miniſtry, conſtrains us to preſent in all humility to your Highneſs and Eſtates preſently aſſembled those our juſt Grievances and reaſonable Petitions following:

1. Albeit Vote in Parliament was not abſolutely granted to Miniſters provided to Prelacies, but only upon ſuch conditions as his Highneſs of happy memory, and the general Aſſemblies of the Kirk ſhould agree upon, which is evident

dent by the remit and proviſion expreſſed in the Act of Parliament holden at Edinburgh in December 1597. And albeit the manner of their Election and Admiſſion to the Office of Commiſſionary, and the particular conditions and cautions to be obſerved by Miniſters Vote in Parliament in name of the Kirk after long diſputation, were agreed upon by his Majeſty preſent in Perſon, and the general Aſſembly, and were appointed by them to be inſert in the body of the Act of Parliament, which was to be made concerning that purpoſe. Some Miniſters nothwithſtanding have been, and are admitted to Vote in Parliament, in name of the Kirk, as abſolutely, as if the Act of Parliament did contain no ſuch reference, and as if his Majeſty with the general Aſſembly had not agreed upon the manner of their Election and Admiſſion to that Office, or upon any limitations; whereby the Kirk hath ſuſtained great hurt and prejudice in her Liberties and Priviledges, and ſpecially by their frequent tranſgreſſing the firſt of the Conditions, although grounded upon the very Law of Nature and Nations. “That nothing be proponed by them in Parliament, Council, or Convention in name of the Kirk without expreſs Warrant and direction from the Kirk, under the pain of depoſition from their Office; Neither ſhall they keep ſilence, nor conſent in any of the ſaid Conventions to any thing that may be prejudicial to the liberty and Weal of the Kirk, under the ſaid pain. And the ſecond, That they ſhall be bound at every general Aſſembly to give account anent the diſcharging of their Commiſſion ſince the Aſſembly preceding, and ſhall ſubmit themſelves to their Cenſure, and ſtand to their determination whatſoever without Appellation, and ſhall ſeek and obtain Ratification of their doings at the ſaid Aſſembly under the pain of Infamy and Excommunication. Therefore our humble Supplication is, that the execution of the Acts of Parliament of matters belonging to the Kirk, to which they have voted in the name of the Kirk, without any authority or allowance from the general Aſſemblies of the Kirk, be ſuſpended, till the Kirk be heard, and that in time coming Miniſters have no otherwiſe Vote in Parliament, but according to the proviſion of the Act of Parliament, and the order of their entry to the Office of that Commiſſionary and limitation foreſaid agreed upon, as ſaid is.

2. Seeing Ratifications of Acts and Conſtitutions of the Kirk cannot be conſtrued to be a benefit or favour to the Kirk, unleſs the Ratifications paſs according to the meaning of the Kirk, and the Tenour of the ſaid Acts and Conſtitutions, without Omiſſion, Addition, or Alteration of Clauſes, Articles, or Words of importance, and that in the Ratification of the Act of the Aſſembly holden at Glaſgow, Anno 1610. which paſt in Parliament holden 1612. under the name of Explanation, ſundry Clauſes and Articles were omitted; as the ſubjection of Biſhops in all things concerning their Life, Converſation, Office, and Benefice, to the cenſure of the general Aſſembly, the cenſure of Biſhops in caſe they ſtay of the Cenſure of Excommunication, the continuing of the exerciſe of Doctrine Weekly, the neceſſity of the Teſtificat and aſſiſtance of the Miniſtry of the bounds for the admiſſion of Miniſters, and other Clauſes and Articles are added and inſert, as the different degrees of Archbiſhops, and Biſhops, the power of giving collation of Benefices granted to Biſhops, the diſponing of Benefices falling in their hands jure devoluto, the appointing of Moderators in Dioceſan Synods in caſe of their abſence, and ſome words of the Oath are changed: By all which Omiſſions, Additions, and Alterations, the Kirk hath ſuſtained, and doth ſuſtain great hurt in her Juriſdiction and Diſcipline. Our humble deſire therefore is, that the Kirk may be liberate from the prejudice of thoſe Omiſſions, Additions, and Alterations of the Act foreſaid.

3. Notwithſtanding the general Aſſemblies have been holden from the time of Reformation till the year 1603. at leaſt once in the year, and oftner pro re nata, Provincial Synods twice in the year, Weekly Meetings for Exerciſes and Presbyteries every Week, for matters to be treated in them reſpective, and their Liberties were ratified in Parliament Anno 1592. and by that, as a moſt powerful mean, bleſſed be God, Peace and Purity of Religion were maintained: And in the Aſſembly holden at Glaſgow 1610. when Commiſſioners Voters in Parliament provided to Prelacies were made liable to the Cenſures of the general Aſſembly, it was acknowledged that the neceſſity of the Kirk craved, that there ſhould be yearly general Aſſemblies; And the Miniſtry were then aſſured, that Liberty would be granted upon their requeſt, whereby they were induced to condeſcend ſo far to the Act then made, as they did, which Act alſo in the very entry thereof a requeſt to his Majeſty, that general Aſſemblies may be holden in all times coming once in the year, or preciſely at a ſet and certain time; Nevertheleſs the wonted Liberty of holding general Aſſemblies is ſuppreſſed, the order of the Provincial Synods confounded, Presbyteries in a great part diſordered and neglected, whereby Diviſions have entred into the Kirk, Miniſters have become negligent in their Callings, and ſcandalous in their Lives, the Godly are heavily grieved, the Weak are ſcandalized, erroneous Doctrine is delivered in Kirks and Schools without controlement; the Commiſſioners Voters in Parliament lie untried and uncenſured, and Atheiſm and Popery increaſe: Our humble deſire is therefore, that the Acts of Parliament, made in favours of the Aſſemblies of the Kirk, and eſpecially the Act of Parliament holden at Edinburgh in June 1592. be revived and ratified in this preſent Parliament.

4. Notwithſtanding the obſervation of Feſtival days, Private Baptiſm, Private Communion, Eſpieopal Confirmation of Children, have been rejected by this our Reformed Kirk, ſince the beginning of the Reformation; and it hath been declared by Act of Parliament in the year 1567. that ſuch only were to be acknowledged Members of this Reformed Kirk, as did participate of the Sacraments as they were then rightly miniſtred, which was without kneeling in the act of receiving the Sacramental Elements of the Supper, or immediate diſpenſing of the ſame to every Communicant by the Miniſter. And that it was Statute and Ordained in the ſame Parliament, that all Kings ſhould give their Oath at their Coronation to maintain the Religion then profeſſed, and that form of miniſtration of the Sacraments which then was uſed: nevertheleſs Paſtors and People adhering to their former profeſſion and practice are nicknamed Puritans, and threatned, not only without any good warrant, but beſide the tenour of the Act of Perth Aſſembly, which containeth no ſtrict injunction, and contrary to the meaning of the Voters, and to the proceedings of that Aſſembly, where it was profeſſed that none ſhould be preſſed with obedience to that Act: Therefore we humbly intreat that by Ratification of the Acts of Parliament, made before that Aſſembly, and by ſuch ways as ſhall ſeem good to your Gracious Majeſty, and honourable Eſtates aſſembled, your Majeſties good People, Paſtors and Profeſſors may both be purged from ſuch foul aſperſions, and may be freed from all dangers and fears which may occur by occaſion of that Act of Perth.

5. Albeit it be determined by the general Aſſemblies of this our Reformed Kirk, what Oaths Miniſters ſhould take at the time of their Admiſſion or Ordination, yet there is a new form of Oath deviſed and urged by the Admitters or Ordainers, upon intrants to the Miniſtry, together with ſubſcription to certain Articles deviſed by them without direction and warrant from any Aſſembly of the Kirk, yea, or Act of Parliament, whereby the entry to the Miniſtry is ſhut upon the beſt qualified, and others leſs able are obtruded upon the people, to their great grief and hazard of their ſouls: Our humble Petition therefore is, that all ſuch Oaths and Subſcriptions urged upon Miniſters at their entry or tranſplantation may be diſcharged.

6. Notwithſtanding there be Conſtitutions of the Kirk, and Laws of the Country for cenſuring of Miniſters before the ordinary Judicators Eccleſiaſtical; yet contrary to that Order, Miniſters are ſuſpended, ſilenced, and deprived, and that for matters meerly Eccleſiaſtical before other Judicators, which are not eſtabliſhed by the Authority or Order of the Country and Kirk: Therefore our humble Petition is, that Miniſters deſerving cenſure, be no otherwiſe cenſured than the Order of the Kirk doth preſcribe, and that ſuch as are otherwiſe diſplaced, be ſuffered to ſerve in the Miniſtry, as before.

The Preſenter attended in Edinburgh to compear, if need were, before ſuch as were to Convene to conſider the Articles and Petitions, which were given in to the Clerk Regiſter. But there was no appearance of any ſuch Convention. The Miniſters therefore directed the Brother above-named to preſent the Supplication following to his Majeſty, which he did upon the fifteenth day of June, in the Caſtle of Dalkeith, the ſame day that he was to make his entry in Edinburgh,

This happy occaſion, with ſtrong deſires long waited for by your Majeſties moſt humble and loving Subjects the Paſtors and Profeſſors of the Reformed Religion within this your Majeſties Kingdom of Scotland. The great fame, which hath often filled our Ears of your Majeſties moſt Pious and Princely inclination to Religion and Righteouſneſs, whence this Kirk and Kingdom from their ſingular intereſs in your Majeſties Birth and Baptiſm, have reaſon to look at this time for a comfortable influence: The Body of this Kingdom in heart joyning with us, and only waiting for the leaſt word from your Majeſties mouth: The Conſcience which we have, and which we truſt is manifeſt to all men that we are ſeeking neither Riches nor Honours to our ſelves, but that the ſum and ſubſtance of our deſires is to procure the advancement of the Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt, and to ſee your Majeſties flouriſhing Eſtates in your Kingdoms: All theſe and each of them move us to intreat in all humility your Gracious Majeſty to be favourable to our Petitions, which we have delivered to the Clerk of Regiſter to be preſented to your Majeſty and Eſtates at the approachiug Parliament, that they may be conſidered, and receive a gracious anſwer.

The King read the Petition at length. Yet there was no more heard of our grievances either among the Lords of the Articles, or in open Parliament, where nothing cometh in voting, but that which firſt muſt paſs the Lords of the Articles, and uſually what paſſed through their hands is concluded by the whole Eſtates in publick. Not only were our grievances ſuppreſſed, but alſo all former Acts concerning the Kirk were ratified. Howbeit it was well known that ſundry former Acts had wrought great diſturbance in our Kirk. An Act alſo in particular concerning the common habits of Kirkmen, (not of Surplice, or other like ſuperſtitious Veſtures, as many miſtake) was ratified and made a point of the Royal Prerogative. Small hope had we of any better event, conſidering the dependance either of Noblemen upon the Kings favour for the recovery of their broken Eſtates, or of ſome other men for preferment, or the fear of others to loſe it, all knowing very well the Kings bent and inclination.

For the better clearing of the equity of our grievances, I will ſet down theſe few obſervations:

Great oppoſition was made by many worthy men of the Miniſtry to Miniſters Vote in Parliament, Convention, or Council, and not without reaſon. When it was carried by Plurality of procured Voices in a general Aſſembly holden at Dundee, Anno 1597. againſt which and the two former Aſſemblies M. John Davidſon proteſted; the next care of the ſincere ſort was to have the Commiſſioner Voter in Parliament tied to a certain form of Admiſſion, and to ſome Cautions, that he degener not into a Roman or Anglican Biſhop.

He was to be recommended to his Majeſty, by the General Aſſembly, and to be admitted by the Synod as it then ſtood in integrity. The firſt two cautions ye have heard in the grievances. By the third, the Commiſſioner Voter in Parliament was bound not to prejudge the proviſion of other Kirks planted, or to be planted. By the fourth he was bound not to delapidat or diſpone any part of his Benefice without the advice and conſent of his Majeſty and the general Aſſembly, and to interdite himſelf to that effect. By the fifth, He was bound to attend faithfully upon his own particular Congregation, where he ſhall be Miniſter, in all the points of a Paſtor, and hereanent to be ſubject to the trial and cenſure of his own Presbytery and Provincial Aſſembly, as any other Miniſter that beareth not Commiſſion. By the ſixth Caution, In the Adminiſtration of Diſcipline, Collation of Benefices, Viſitation, and all other points of Eccleſiaſtical Government, he ſhall neither uſurp nor acclaim to himſelf any Power or Juriſdiction, farther than any of the reſt of his Brethren, under the pain of deprivation. By the ſeventh, That in Presbyteries, Provincial and general Aſſemblies, he ſhall behave himſelf in all things, and be ſubject to their cenſure, as any of the Brethren of the Presbytery. By the eighth, At his admiſſion to the Office of Commiſſionary, theſe, and all other Points neceſſary he ſhall ſwear and ſubſcribe to fulfil under the Penalties foreſaid, otherwiſe not to be admitted. By the ninth, In caſe he be depoſed by the general Aſſembly, Synod, or Presbytery from his Office of the Miniſtry, he ſhall loſe his Vote in Par ipſo facto, and his Benefice ſhall vaike.

Such as plotted the courſe of Epiſcopacy and aſpired to Prelacies were conſtrained for the preſent to condeſcend to theſe Cautions, but were not minded to ſtand to one jot of them longer than they ſaw occaſions to break looſe. Becauſe they were made countable by theſe Cautions to the general Aſſemblies, they procured firſt a Prorogation of the Diets of the Aſſemblies by the Kings Authority, and at laſt the bereaving of the Kirk of all liberty to indict any Aſſemblies, that ſo they might be freed from making any count at all. After they had gathered ſtrength and power to overrule Aſſemblies of their own deviſing, and after that ſome of the Miniſtry were baniſhed, others confined, a third ſort drawn up to Court, they procured a Convention at Linlithgow, Anno 1606. of Noblemen and Miniſters nominate by them, and recommended by the King to the Presbyteries to be ſent to that meeting. The name of a general Aſſembly was concealed in the Kings Miſſives. But ſoon after Presbyteries were charged with letters of horning to accept the conſtant Moderators choſen by that meeting, ſuch as were ſtiled vulgarly Biſhops in reſpect of their Benefices to be Moderators of the Presbyteries where they made reſidence. Synods likewiſe were urged to accept theſe Biſhops for conſtant Moderators, howbeit no ſuch thing was concluded at that meeting, but their Act falſified.

This moderation did not ſatisfie their ambitious humour, nor was it well accepted by Presbyteries or the Synods. In the year 1610, they were armed with the power of the High Commiſſion, of which they were not capable, and without conſent of the Eſtates, contrary to an Act of Parliament, Anno 1584. to ſilence and deprive, fine and incarcerate Miniſters, to command them to excommunicate ſuch as in their judgment deſerved that Cenſure, and to fine and impriſon other whatſoever ſubjects, After that they become thus great and terrible, and now able to extort any thing from ſervile Miniſters, they procured an Aſſembly to be holden at Glaſgow ſoon after, like that other at Linlithgow, but that there was more Gold dealt among Mercenary Miniſters at this Aſſembly.

Soon after, three of their number went to Court to be conſecrate Biſhops, returned and conſecrated the reſt of their Fellows, no ſuch thing being concluded at that meeting as the Office of a Dioceſan Biſhop, Anglican or Roman, that is, to be the proper Paſtor of all the Congregations within the Dioceſs, the power of Ordination reſiding in him, and of Juriſdiction flowing from him. The Presbyteries and Synods were only tied to theſe who were called Biſhops in reſpect of their Benefices in the points, and in the manner expreſſed, and upon truſt that they ſhould be liable to the cenſure of ordinary and ſet general Aſſemblies. But they were not content with ſundry Articles of that Act, howbeit the Aſſemby was overruled by themſelves, and they conſented, to the end that the Miniſters there convened might be induced to yield ſo far as they did. Therefore when the Act was ratified, Anno 1612. they conſented in Parliament to Additions, Alterations, and Omiſſions of ſundry Clauſes, as no doubt they had deviſed themſelves before. In the year 1617. they conſented in Parliament to the Election of Biſhops by Deans and Chapters, which was inhibited by the Acts of the Aſſembly holden 1578. and condemned in the ſecond book of Policy as Popiſh. It was likewiſe far different from the form of Election and Admiſſion agreed upon with their own conſents in the general Aſſemblies. What was proponed in Parliament for their advancement was granted by the Eſtates, and conſented to by themſelves, as no doubt they had deviſed. So they were their own carvers.

In the end they brought in Popiſh Ceremonies to vex the Miniſters and Profeſſors. and to give them ſome other ſubject to work upon, then to meddle with themſelves, and their uſurped Authority.

Becauſe they are conſcious to themſelves of the nullity of their Aſſemblies, and fear to want the concurrence of Synods and Presbyteries, they draw Miniſters and Profeſſors before their Court of High Commiſſion. But if this Court were not fortified and aſſiſted by the Lords of ſecret Council, by whom it was firſt authorized, their power in the High Commiſſion would be little regarded. Our bondage then reſolves upon the Council.

Whatſoever be the Uſurpation of the Prelates, the Miniſtry and Profeſſors are not to be excuſed. Firſt, for acknowledging or not opponing to their Aſſemblies. For the ſafety of Religion dependeth not upon Aſſemblies of whatſomever kind, but upon the liberty of free and right conſtitute Aſſemblies. As in the Common-weal he were not to be thought a faithful Patriot, who would not ſtand as much for the Liberty of a Parliament as his own Poſſeſſions, becauſe the ſafety of all other Liberties ſtandeth in the preſervation of that main Liberty. Next, becauſe cauſe they continue in ſubjection, notwithſtanding we have not the liberty of ordinary and ſet Aſſemblies to cenſure them accoding to the Cautions and Acts agreed unto by themſelves. Thirdly, becauſe they give further obedience than is required by the Acts of their own Aſſemblies, as if they had an abſolute power to direct and enjoyn as pleaſeth them. But the firſt is fountain of all our miſchief.

I have here ſubjoyned certain Propoſitions concerning Adoration before the bread in the Sacrament without the knowledge of the Author, who is known to be learned and judicious.

1. Beſides that manifeſt and groſs kind of Idolatry, whereby Divine or Religious Worſhip is given unto the Creature in ſtead of God, there is another more ſecret and ſubtile ſort, which rendereth not Divine Worſhip unto the Creature as it is conſidered in it ſelf, but as it carrieth a certain relation and reſpect unto God, who is to be worſhipped for himſelf, and therefore is commonly called Relative Worſhip. The reformed Kirks convince the Papiſts of manifold Idolatry of this kind, and howſoever the Papiſts gather together many fig-tree leaves to hide their nakedneſs, yet there is nothing more certain, than that both the Gentiles and Jews pleaſed themſelves in this ſort of Worſhip as may appear from Rom. 1. 20, 23. Deut. 4. 12, 15. and many other places.

2. As in the groſſer kind of Idolatry it matters not, as touching the point of Idolatry it ſelf, whether the object of Adoration, and that which we worſhip with divine honour, be the invention of our own head, or the Creature of God, as the Sun, Moon, or Stars, or made by our hands as an Image, or ſome thing ordained of God. And finally, whether it be a thing conſecrated or not, for the adoration of the Bread in the Sacrament is Idolatry, no leſs than the Adoration of the Sun in the Firmament. or the Adoration of an Image the work of mans hands. "For their Error is more tolerable who worſhip for "God a Statne of Gold or Silver, or an Image of any other matter, as the "Gentiles worſhipped their Gods, or a red Cloth lifted up upon a Spear, which "it reported of the Lappians, or living Creatures, as ſometime the Ægyptians, "nor theirs who worſhip a piece of bread. Coſter. Enchir. chap. 12. In like manner, in the other ſort of worſhip which is relative, it is all one matter touching the point of Idolatry, whether the ſecondary or ſubordinate object of our Adoration, and that which participates of the Worſhip of God, be a thing natural, as the Sun or the Moon, or a thing Artificial, as an Image, or ſome thing ordained of God, but for another end, as the Brazen Serpent, or a thing Conſecrated of God, but not to be worſhipped, as the Sacramental Bread, for although there be a very wide difference amongſt thoſe thinge in reſpect of Will-worſhip; And becauſe nothing can be a mean of the Worſhip of God, but that which is ordained of God, and the Sacrament is a mean of Gods Worſhip, an Image is not a mean, yet in the point of Idolatry there can be no difference at all, becauſe no Creature of whatſomever kind can ſo much as take of the Worſhip of God without the guiltineſs of Idolatry.

3. We fall into two evils, when we adore before an Image, one is, when we make the Image a mean or middle of the Worſhip of God without a warrant from God, whence it is that Adoration before an Image is Will-Worſhip; and although it had no other evil in it but this one, it behoveth to be (by interpretation, as they uſe to ſpeak, or by conſequence) Idolatry, for whoſoever appointeth of his own head a new manner or mean of Divine Worſhip, by conſequence alſo appointeth another God, which he thinks delighteth in that Form of Worſhip. The other evil is that Adoration before an Image is properly and formable Idolatry, becauſe thereby Religious Worſhip is rendred unto another than unto God, and in ſome meaſure and degree the Image is made partaker of the Worſhip of God, which is cleared at large by the Divines of the Reformed Kirks. Now in our Adoration before the Bread we are free of the former of the two evils, becauſe the Sacrament is a mean of Worſhip authorized by God, but we cannot poſſibly be free of the other evil, becauſe the Adoration before the Bread, and before an Image are altogether alike in reſpect of the participation of Divine Worſhip. They who are enemees to Images (ſaith Vaſquez in his ſecond Book of Adoration, diſp. 8. c. 13.) and uſe Images only for Hiſtory and remembrance, do not bow their knees, nor proſtrate themſelves before them: For ſo they ſhould adore them, with an external ſign of Worſhip. He who is religiouſly proſtrate before the Croſs (ſaith the Biſhop of Spalato, Book 7. pag. 293,) he muſt have the Croſs for the object of Adoration. Although Images were means of Worſhip ordained of God, ſuch as the Sacrament is, yet were it not lawful to Adore before them. And the Arguments whereby our Divines prove the Worſhip of Images to be Idolatry, aim not at this point to ſhew that Images are not lawful means of Worſhip, for that were nothing elſe but to prove that Worſhip before Images were Will-Worſhip, but they labour for this, that the Papiſts while they adore before Images, they give that unto the Creature which is proper unto God, and the Papiſts in this queſtion uſe not this defence, that Images are lawful means of Worſhip, but that the Worſhip of Images is relative, and reſolveth upon the patterns whoſe Images they are.

4. That we may have a further inſight in this truth, we muſt learn, as in other parts of Divine Worſhip, ſo in our Adoration before the Bread, to diſtinguiſh betwixt that which is internal in the mind, and that which is external in the ſenſes and geſtures of the body, or (as the Schoolmen ſpeak) betwixt the ſpirit of Adoration, which they make the inward affection of ſubjecting our ſelves to that which we adore; And the external mark or ſign of Adoration, which they alſo call the material part of Adoration, for ſuppoſe it were true that the whole thoughts and affections of the Soul were taken up, and exerciſed about the thing ſignified in the Sacrament, and that nothing were intended but to render the whole Worſhip unto God, yet the very nature of the Sacrament (which is well called the viſible word) of neceſſity doth require that our eyes, and therefore our geſtures, the bowing of our knees, and that whole material part of Adoration be directed toward the Elements in the Act of receiving, in ſo far that although the Elements were nothing elſe to the mind but only ſigns to bring us to the right remembrance of the thing ſignified, it cannot be eſchewed, but they muſt be the object of the outward Adoration of the body, which is directed toward them, and therefore Adoration before the Bread, muſt needs be the Adoration of the Bread, even as the Adoration before the Image, the Adoration of the Image, while the Image to his mind, that adoreth, is nothing elſe but a ſign, bringing the Pattern to his remembrance.

5. Since there be two kinds of Divine Worſhip, one immediate, as for example, Prayer, Thankſgiving, the religious hearing of the voice of God ſpeaking to us immediately: The other mediate, as the ordinary hearing of the Word, and receiving of the Sacrament. It is both lawful and ſutable to uſe the geſture of Adoration in Prayer, in Thankſgiving, and when we hear the immediate Voice of God, becauſe no viſible middle cometh in betwixt God and us that can be the Object of our Adoration: But in the ordinary hearing of the Word at the mouth of the Preacher, and in the act of receiving the Sacrament, it is neither ſuitable, nor lawful to adore, for that were to adore in a mediate Worſhip, or to adore mediately, which both by force of truth, and confeſſion of both ſides muſt be Idolatry.

6. It is therefore unlawful to adore before the bread, or to kneel in the very act of receiving the Sacrament, not only by reaſon of the danger of Bread-worſhip, wherein the Bread is adored inſtead of Chriſt by the ignorant multitude; neither is it only unlawful, becauſe it is Idolatry to adore before the bread for reverence and due regard of the Sacrament, which cannot be avoided by them who adore according to the meaning of the Article of Perth Aſſembly; But it is alſo unlawful, becauſe Adoration before the Bread, even in the very nature of the action it ſelf, is Idolatry, neither is it poſſible for any man to make his Adoration before the bread not to be Idolatry, except he will take away the Element, that is, the Sacrament it ſelf from the Sacrament, which is impoſſible.

7. And therefore they are to be commended, who far from all Idolatry, and from all peril and appearance of Idolatry, do ſit or uſe an ordinary Table-Geſture in the Supper of the Lord: Since neither the Evangeliſts, nor the Apoſtle Paul have written ſo much as one word, which may give the leaſt ſuſpition, or ground of conjecture, that Chriſt and his Apoſtles did change their ordinary and common form of ſitting at Table: Since it is certain from the whole frame of the Inſtitution, that the Supper of the Lord was an holy Feaſt or Banquet, and ſince by ſo doing the whole Inſtitution of Chriſt, which is very many ways defaced by kneeling, is keeped ſafe and ſound. It is not far from blaſphemy (ſaith Paræus*) to ſay, that the Kirk hath with greater wiſdom made any change in the Euchariſt, for what were that but to ſay, that the Kirk is wiſer than Chriſt himſelf, as if he had not known well enough, what was able to procure greateſt reverence to the Sacrament, or what ſhould carry with it the leaſt peril, which is a Blaſphemy worthy of the followers of Antichriſt.*

Mr. William Cowper, Miniſter at Perth, his Letter, written before he was Biſhop of Galloway, to Mr. George Graham, Biſhop of Dumblane, Anno 1606.

Brother,

I Have received your commendations from B. which were needleſs, if you had kept your wonted heart. As for me, I never hated you, your courſe wherein ye are entered I never loved. Although the fruit ye enjoy be ſweet, yet the end ſhall prove it never grew on the tree of life. Doing in a work of Conſcience with doubting turneth light in darkneſs, whereupon followeth induration. Whereof it followeth that many in our Kirk without feeling are Courſers againſt their Brethren, that have done more good in the Kirk for edification of others than ever themſelves did, having neither eyes to ſee, nor hearts to feel how dangerous their eſtate is, who cannot riſe but with the falling of many who in God have entered this Miniſtry, cloſing the Fountain that God hath opened. One of your own told me, long ere the laſt Miniſters went to England, that they were written for to Reaſon, but the end proved Priſon, and no appearance of returning to ſome of them. Theſe are the firſt fruits of your preferment. Here ye ſtand, and therefore I cannot ſtand with you, except it be to witneſs to God in mine heart againſt you, that ye have gone wrong. Ye hope in this courſe to do good, but it is hard for you to work miracles: At leaſt he will hold of evil: But how ſhall ye draw in a yoke with them that are drawing on evil dayly. Ye will not go beyond the Caveats of the general Aſſembly. But the anſwers given to the Commiſſioners of the Kirk at the laſt Parliament by the Chancellour (we enter not Biſhops according to an Act of the Aſſembly, but according to that which they were were an hundred years ſince) detexis fraudem. I heard it given, and ſo did the chief of themſelves, A. B. C. ye skar at them whom ye were blyth to ſee, ye like not the light ye loved, ye count theſe Preachings unpleaſant, wherein ye were wont to rejoyce. Theſe may tell you ye have fallen. Conſider your ſelf, where ye was, where ye are now, & quantulum illud ſit propter quod nos reliquiſti. Thus loving your ſelf, and not your way, I end.

Mr. Gawin Hammilton, Biſhop of Galloway, was ſent up to Court by the reſt of the Biſhops, after the Convention of the Eſtates, which was holden about the end of January 1609. I have here ſet down the Inſtructions or Memorials recommended to him by the reſt of the Biſhops, written by Mr. John Spotſwood, then pretend it Biſhop of Glaſcow, and ſubſcrived by him in the name of the reſt.

Memorials to be proponed to his moſt excellent Majeſty.

1. You ſhall relate the proceedings of the late Convention, and what affection ſome that were preſent keithed therein, that his Majeſty may be forſeen with mens diſpoſition, for the better choice of thoſe to whom the affairs ſhall be concredited.

2. You ſhall remember the care we have had of reclaiming the Marqueſs of Huntly, and the Earl of Arral from their errors, and the ſmall profit we have ſeen thereof, and inſiſt for his Majeſties favour to the Petition of our Letter.

3. Anent the Miniſters that are confined, your L. ſhall excuſe the requeeſt made by us in ſome of their favours, ſhewing how it proceeded, and further declare that of late they have taken courſe to give in ſupplications to the Council for their enlarging to a certain time, for doing their particular buſineſs at Seſſion and otherwiſe in the Country, and that ſome of them have purchaſed licence by the Votes of the Council, albeit we opponed. Therefore beſeek his Majeſty to remember the Council, that the confining of theſe Miniſters, was for faults done by them to his H. ſelf, and that they ſhould be acknowledged and confeſſed to his Majeſty and his H. pleaſure underſtood therein before the grant of any favour, otherwiſe they ſhall undo all that hath been hitherto followed for the peace of the Kirk.

4. Touching the erections, it is our humble deſire to his Majeſty that the Noblemen, in whoſe favours the ſame have been paſt, may take order for the proviſion of their Kirks, according to the conditions made in Parliament, or then diſcharge their erections: Which ſeems beſt to be done by an Act of this enſuing Seſſion of Parliament, for which his Majeſties Warrant would be had. And ſome ſuch like courſe would be taken for the Prelacies erected, which have paſt alſo the conſtant Plat, that the preſentation of Miniſters to the modified ſtipends at the vacanty of the Church ſhould be in his Majeſties hand, whereunto though his Majeſties expreſs commandment was given of before, no heed was taken by ſuch as had the charge of affairs.

5. Since this matter of the Commiſſariats importeth ſo much to the reformation of our Church Government, as this being reſtored in a little time, the reſt may be ſupplied which will be wanting, it ſhall be good to remember it by a ſerious Letter to my Lord of Dumbar, that we may know in due time what is to be expected. And ſince our greateſt hindrance is found to be in the Seſſion, of whom the moſt part are ever in heart oppoſite unto us, and forbear not to keith it when they have occaſion, you ſhall humbly intreat his Majeſty to remember our ſute for the Kirkmans place, according to the firſt Inſtitution, and that it may take at this time ſome beginning, ſince the place vacant was even from the beginning in the hands of the ſpiritual ſide with ſome one Kirkman or other till now, which might it be obteined, as were moſt eaſie by his Majeſties direction and Commandment, there ſhould be ſeen a ſudden change of many humours in that eſtate, and the Commonwealth would find the profit thereof.

6. Anent our Conference with the Miniſtry, your L. will declare the time that is appointed, and reaſons of the continuation of the ſame.

7. Becauſe in the time of Parliament chiefly, it ſhould be expedient to have the Biſhops to teach in the Pulpits of Edinburgh, his Majeſty would be pleaſed to commend this to my Lord of Dumbar by a particular Letter, and to require alſo the Miniſters of Edinburgh to deſire their help at that time, if it were for no other end, but to teſtifie their unity and conſent of minds to the Eſtates.

8. Becauſe the Kirk of Leith lieth deſtitute in a ſort through the Biſhop of Roſſe his age, and the impriſonment of Mr. John Murrey, and that the ſaid Mr. John is no ways minded, as appeareth, to give his Majeſty ſatisfaction, neither were it meet, in reſpect of his carriage, that he ſhould return to that Miniſtry, and to inſiſt in his deprivation with the Commiſſioners might perhaps breed us a new difficulty, if his Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed, we do hold it moſt convenient for the Errand, that the ſaid M. John be convened before the Council by his Majeſties command, and by them charged to waid in the Town of Newabbey, and ſome miles about, having liberty to teach that People, among whom he ſhall find ſome other ſubject to work upon than the ſtate of Biſhops. And for the proviſion of Leith, that his Majeſty would be pleaſed to command the Presbytery of Edinburgh, in regard of the Biſhop of Roſſe his age, and the ſaid M. Johns tranſportation by his H. appointment, to have care that ſaid Kirk of Leith be planted with all convenient diligence by M. David Lindſey, ſometimes Miniſter at Sant Andrewis, for whom both the people is earneſt, and we may have ſufficient aſſurance to his Majeſties ſervice. And in caſe the ſaid Presbytery prove wilful, that another Letter to the ſame effect may be ſent to the Commiſſioners of the General Aſſembly, who may take order to ſee that matter ended, if ſuch ſhall be his Majeſties pleaſure, and this would be done with all diligence convenient.

We cannot but remember alſo the miſorder keeped in the Country, that once was happily repreſſed, wearing of Guns and Piſtols, and humbly beſeech his Majeſty that ſome new courſe may be eſtabliſhed for ſearching of ſuch perſons, and delating of them to the Counſel, that they may be puniſhed, and the Theſaurer may have commandment to make choice in every Country of certain that ſhall be thought fitteſt to ſearch, who ſhall be known only to his L. ſelf, and ſatisfie them for their pains, to the end this inſolence may be reſtrained. Particularly it would be forbidden in the granting Commiſſions, that this liberty be not permitted, for this is one of the cauſes of their ſo open dealing, as ſaid is.

Theſe particulars, your L. would have care to propone to his Majeſty at ſome fit time, and ſee the anſwers thereof diſpatched accordingly.

Glaſgow by the warrant and at the deſire of the reſt of my Lords the Biſhops.

Mr. George Glaidſtones ſent this Letter following to the King in Auguſt 1612. whereby the Reader may perceive what were their Plots and preparations before the Parliament following in October, where the Act of Glaſgow was ratified, or rather altered.

Moſt gracious Soveraign,

AS it hath pleaſed your Majeſty to direct me, and my Lord your Majeſties Secretary for adviſing anent our Affairs to be handled in this approaching Parliament, ſo happily did I find him, and my Lord of Glaſgow both in this Town, and convened them both immediately after mine arriving, and with good adviſement we have made choice of theſe things which are moſt neceſſary, and have omitted theſe Articles which may ſeem to carry envy or ſuſpition, or which your Majeſty by your Royal Authority might not perform by your ſelf. But we all hold faſt this concluſion, that it is moſt neceſſary and convenient, both for your Majeſties Service, and weal of the Church, that the day, viz. the twelfth of October ſhall hold preciſely, to the which the Parliament was Proclaimed upon the twenty fourth of this inſtant. I will aſſure your Majeſty that the very evil will, which is carried to my Lord Chancellor by the Nobility and People, is like to make us great ſtore of friendſhip, for they know him to be our profeſſed enemy, and he diſſembled it not. I thank God, that it pleaſed your Majeſty to make choice of my Lord Secretary to be our Formaliſt, and Adviſer of our Acts: For we find him wiſe, faſt, and ſecret. We ſhall not be idle in the mean time to prepare ſuch, as have vote to incline the right way. All men do follow us, and hunt for our favour, upon report of your Majeſties good acceptance of me and the Biſhop of Cathnes, and ſending for my Lord of Glaſgow, and the procurement of this Parliament without advice of the Chancellour. And if your Majeſty will continue theſe ſhining beams, and ſhowes of your Majeſties favour, doubtleſs the purpoſe that ſeems moſt difficil, will be facilitate to your Majeſties great honour, and our credit, which if it were greater than it is, your Majeſty could receive no intereſſe. For beſides that no Eſtate may ſay, that they are your Majeſties Creatures as we may ſay, ſo there is none whoſe ſtanding is ſo ſlippery, when your Mayeſty ſhall frown as we: For at your Majeſties nodd we muſt either ſtand or fall. But we refer the more ample declaration of theſe purpoſes, and other points of your Majeſties Service, to the ſufficiency of my Lord of Glaſgow, and my good Lord Secretary, the fourteenth Biſhop of this Kingdom. But my Lord of Glaſgow and I am contending, to which of the two Provinces he ſhall appertain. Your Majeſty, who is our great Archbiſhop, muſt decide it. Thus after my moſt humble and hearty thanks for your Majeſties good acceptance, and gracious diſpatch lately which hath filled the Ears of all this Kingdom, I beſeech God to heap upon your Majeſty the plenty of all ſpiritual and temporal bleſſings for ever, I reſt

Your Majeſties moſt humble

Subject and Servitour

S. Andrewis.

Mr. William Struther one of the Miniſters of Edinburgh, and a Conformitane, howbeit he was content to accept a fat Biſhoprick, yet was content in end to forgo the lean Ceremonies to live in the greater eaſe and peace, as this Letter following, directed to the Earl of Airth, to be preſented to his Majeſty, teſtifieth.

My very good Lord,

I Viſit your L. with this Letter, and that for the end which I ſpoke more largely in conference, ever for the peace of this poor Kirk, which rent ſo grievouſly for Cerimonies. There is alſo ſome ſurmiſes of farther Novations of Organs, Liturgies, and ſuch like, which greatly augments the grief of people, but the wiſer ſort aſſure themſelves of his Majeſties Royal Wiſdom and Moderation, that his Majeſty would impoſe no new thing, if his Majeſty were timouſly informed of theſe, and the like reaſons.

1. Becauſe King James of happy memory, made the Marqueſs of Hamilton promiſe in his Majeſties name to all the Eſtates of this Land ſolemnly in face of Parliament, that this Church ſhould not be urged with any moe Novations than theſe five Articles, that then were preſented to the Parliament, upon which promiſe the Parliament reſted, and gave way the more chearfully that theſe Articles ſhould paſs in Act of Parliament.

2. Next, becauſe the motion, that is ſaid to be made to his Majeſty of theſe Novations, is made by and beſide the knowledge and conſcience of the Kirk of this Land, who are heavily diſpleaſed for that motion, and more becauſe it is alleaged to have been in their name, who knows nothing thereof but by report.

3. Becauſe our Church lies already groaning under two wounds, the firſt of the erection of Biſhops, the other of Kneeling. But if a third be inflicted, there is no appearance but of a diſſipation of this Church. In the firſt, people were only anlookers on Biſhops ſtate. The ſecond touched them more in celebration of the holy Sacrament, but yet leaſt arbitrary to them. But the third will be greater, becauſe in the whole body of publick Worſhip they ſhall be forced to ſuffer Novelties.

4. Becauſe the Biſhops are already publici odii victimæ, and born down with contempt, and that vexation is intolerable, when they depoſe any Brother for not conformity, they ſcarcely can find an expectant to fill the empty place, and that becauſe they become ſo odious to the Flock, that they can do no good in their Miniſty. But if any further Novation be brought in, the Biſhops will find ten for one to be depoſed, and that of thoſe who have already given obedience to the five Articles, who will rather chuſe to forſake their places, then to enter in a new fire of combuſtion.

5. Laſtly, becauſe it is obſerved by ſuch as are Judicious, that the former Schiſms have ſhaken the hearts of the People in Religion, and hath produced odium Vatinianum among Brethren, Popery is encreaſed in the Land, and if any further come in, it will be ſeen, that univerſally people will be made ſuſceptible of any Religion, and turn Atheiſts in groſs.

Your L. knows I am not one of thoſe who ſtand out againſt order, but do ſuffer for mine obedience, and therefore the more boldly I ſuggeſt theſe reaſons unto your L. I dwell in the moſt eminent part of this Land, and ſo I have occaſion to ſee more what is the fruit of a Schiſm. I profeſs an unſpeakable grief to ſee any thing done that may trouble the peace of a Church, and divide the hearts of a good people from a good King. Our fire is ſo great already, that it hath more need of water to quench it, than oyl to augment it.

Edinburgh the 28 of January 1630.

The Lord Keepers Speech in the Star-Chamber at ſuch time as he delivered the Judges their Charge from his Majeſty before they went their Circuits, Anno 1638.

My Lords the Judges,

HIS gracious Majeſty ever ſtudious and careful of the weal of his people, remembring the Term being now at an end, and that the Aſſizes draw near for you the Judges of the Realm to depart into your Circuits, and to divide your ſelves into all the parts of the Kingdom, and therefore hath required, that according to the uſual cuſtom in former times, ſomething ſhould be ſaid unto you in this place, that your ſelves may know and acknowledge to others the ſingular care and zeal of his Majeſty, for the maintenance of Religion, Juſtice, and Government throughout his Kingdom. The ſervice and performance of your Circuits, in the minds of ſome, obtains no further place, but only as a matter of Courſe, but they would ſoon change their minds if they wanted it but a while, and through the wiſdom and deep Judgment of his Majeſties Circuits in England, have place as one of the chiefeſt ways of Peace and Government, and upon a juſt and ſure ground, for by the Circuits comes an infinite eaſe to the Subjects both for travel and charge, to have publick Juſtice in all parts of the Kingdom diſtributed to men at home, even at their own doors as it were; The Circuits of the Juſtices of Aſſize, did ſucceed the ſeat of the Juſtices in Oyer, and by their trial and experience thereof ſo long, it is found ſo much better to the condition of the Government of this Kingdom, as that they have antiquated the form.

I have often ſpoke unto your Lordſhips in this place of many particular things examinable in your Aſſizes and Circuits, and therefore I may well both for your eaſe and my own forbear now any long diſcourſe, and contain my ſelf to ſome few particulars.

Religion requires the firſt place, for it is bruited, that Recuſants in many parts of the Kingdom do exceedingly encreaſe, which I am ſorry and unwilling to believe if but for your ſakes; For I do not well ſee, if it be true, how the Judges of the Realm will be eſteemed blameleſs, for ſure I am that from his Majeſty in this place you have been conſtantly and continually called upon; And therefore if they encreaſe ſo much in your Circuits, and ſo little in the Kings Treaſure, certainly there is a fault, that there is ſo few convicted: Beſides your ſelves, others owe a duty to their conviction, but they are ſubordinate, the Juſtices of Peace they bear a great ſway in this buſineſs; certainly from them, the Service receives ſtronger or weaker proſecution.

This I hold more ſeriouſly to be conſidered in this time, becauſe it is ſaid, and I am afraid too truly, that many men Popiſhly affected indeavour to pervert others, or deceive them for worſe ends; they do not ſtick to ſay, that the Biſhops and Prelates of our Church of England are inwardly affected that way, and they do not ſpare the Sacred Perſon of the King himſelf, but give out that the King in heart is a Papiſt, by the Statute of 2 R. 2. theſe are ſtiled to be horrible and falſe lies, of which great peril and quick deſtruction may enſue to the whole Kingdom; and therefore to the ſingular honour of his Majeſty, the bleſſed comfort to his Subjects well affected, and Terrours of ſuch as caſt ſuch aſperſions upon him, or the Prelates of the Kingdom.

An exemplary and remarkable piece of Juſtice hath this Term been done in this Court upon one Pickering, a Shropſhire man, for ſuch a Scandal againſt the King; he was brought from thence by Maſter Attorney to be here proſecuted againſt, though not in an ordinary way, but by the Kings own and immediate direction, and therefore held it my duty to make this mention of it here, that you may mention it in all places in your Circuits, and beat down thoſe ſcandalous rumours, that all men may know the ſincerity of the Kings heart, and how he doth diſtaſte all backſliding in Religion.

Next to the caſe of Religion, I am to put you in mind of the diſcovering and apprehending of Felons and other Capital Offenders, and of doing juſtice between party and party in all cauſes that ſhall come before you in your Circuits, his Majeſty doth expect a due and careful execution of Juſtice, according to the duty you owe to God, his Majeſty, and your Country.

But I may not forbear to mention a particular which I have often given you in charge, concerning the Kings Printed Orders, above eight years ago, wherein excellent rules are ſet down for the repreſſing and puniſhing of Vagabonds, imploying of Houſes of Correction, abridging of the number, and reforming the abuſes of Ale-houſes and Tipling-houſes, binding of Apprentices, and ſetting of work of poor People: Of theſe the Sheriffs and Juſtices of Peace were to give an account to you the Judges of the Realm, and you to render your account to the Council Board, wherein you have failed to do as it was expected from you: Therefore I am to put you in mind that a more exact account will be required from you herein, and therefore be more careful to call on the Sheriffs and Juſtices of Peace, that you may return an anſwer thereof to the King and State.

There is a great and general complaint at this time of Rates and Prizes, to which all things are enhaunſed in Corn, Hay, Cattel, Victuals, and all other things appertaining to the food or uſe of man. The time hath been when the Court of Kings Bench, and the Juſtices of Oyer, who are next unto the Juſtices of Aſſize, took theſe things to heart; there was never more need of a reformation in this kind than now, though in ſome things it may be attributed to Gods puniſhment upon us by unſeaſonable weather in the laſt and ſome former years, yet without doubt the greateſt part of it cometh from the malice and hard-heartedneſs of men, from Ingroſſers and foreſtallers; that do it to keep up the Markets for their own advantage. There can none ſo well give remedy to this as you the Juſtices of Aſſize, and the Juſtices of Peace ſhould take care of this for their own Commodity and Benefit, methinks that ſhould prevail with them, though it were not for the publick good. The Major that hath the Clerkſhip of the Market ought to ſeek this reformation, he hath it by Charter, but a great many of the Deputies under them take more care for their Fees, than to look to the duty of their Places, therefore it behoves you the Juſtices of Aſſize to take ſome pains to reform theſe abuſes.

One thing more I am to inſiſt upon, you have formerly received admonition from the King and Council Board, that care be taken that equal Rates throughout all your Circuits be made on the Kings Subjects; This is a thing worthy of his Majeſties care and your endeavour, it is a heavy thing that in caſes of publick Services, that thoſe that are rich ſhould put off all from themſelves, and lay it upon the poor and friendleſs, that is the general caſe, whether for the levying of men, providing of Munition, &c. generally I find the Landlord finds a way to eaſe his own Demeaſn, and lays the Burden upon his Tenant, and the rich man upon his poor Neighbours; I know well you have given this in charge to the Juſtices of Peace in your Circuits; But for all I ſee, it is followed ſo ſlowly in the Country, as if it were a thing not fit the undertaking, and ſo it vaniſheth, but his Majeſty will not be ſo ſatisfied, for every day at Council-Board Petitions come and complain of their great grievances in being ſo unequally taxed. And therefore his Majeſty doth require, that I ſhould declare in this place, and command in his Majeſties name, that you proceed heartily and quickly in this ſervice, that his Majeſty may receive a ſpeedy account of it.

I might ſpeak many things more, but I know to whom I ſpeak, you know them before I ſpeak them. Therefore for all other things that ſhall fall out to be examinable, or enquirable in your Circuits, as his Majeſty leaveth them, ſo do I, to your Wiſdoms and Judgments; and I do heartily pray, that both his Majeſty may receive honour, and his People a comfort, by the performance of your ſervice.

The Argument of Mr. Juſtice Hutton.

28. Aprilis Anno 14. Car. Regis Anno Dom. 1638.

A Scire Facias brought by the Kings Majeſty in the Exchequer againſt John Hampden.

Bucks ſſ.

The Caſe upon the Pleading appears to be this.

THe Kings Majeſty, by his Writ under the Great Seal of England, bearing date the fourth day of Auguſt, in the Eleventh year of his Reign, directed to the Sheriff of the County of Bucks, and to the Bailiff and Burgeſſes of the Borough and Pariſh of Buckingham, and to the Mayors of divers particular Towns in the ſaid County of Buckingham; and to all honeſt men in the ſame, and in all the Towns, Villages, and places in the ſaid County, ſendeth greeting: Reciting, that where he is given to underſtand, that certain Robbers, Pirates, and Spoilers by Sea, as well enemies to the name of Chriſtians, as Mahometans, and others being aſſembled together, not only to take and ſpoil our Ships, and the Goods and Merchandizes; but alſo the Goods and Merchandizes of the Subjects of our friends upon the Sea (and which had of old been uſed to be defended) at their pleaſures, and to take and carry the men in thoſe Ships into moſt miſerable Captivity, and there keep them.

And the King doth ſee that they daily provide Ships to vex our Merchants, and grieve our Kingdom, unleſs ſpeedy remedy be provided therein: And conſidering the perils which in theſe times of War are every where imminent.

The King for the defence of the Sea, the ſecurity of his Subjects, the ſafe conduct of the Ships, and Merchandizes, being willing (by Gods aſſiſtance) to provide, the rather for that he and his Progenitors, Kings of England, have been Lords of the Sea.

And where this charge of publick defence which concerneth all, ought to be ſupported by all, as by the Laws and Cuſtomes of this Realm of England it had been done.

Therefore the King by his Writ commanded, that a Ship of War of the burthen of Four hundred and fifty Tuns, fitted and furniſhed with all things neceſſary for War, and one hundred and eighty men able and ſufficient Victualled, and this to be done before the firſt of March: And then at that time to come, ſo prepared, furniſhed, and victualled, for the ſpace of twenty ſix Weeks then next following, and with Wages for ſo many Men of War for that time, to Portſmouth, into the company of ſuch other Ships of our Subjects, and our own as ſhall be there, under the government of ſuch a man, to whom before that day we ſhall commit the cuſtody of the Seas; and to go from thence with the King's Ships, and the Ships of other our faithful Subjects, for the defence of the Sea, and the repulſing and overcoming of any whatſoever, which ſhall moleſt and hinder the coming in, or going out of our Merchants, or others upon the Seas.

A power is given by the Writ to the Sheriff, and to the Mayors, and any two of them for Corporate Towns, whereof the Sheriff to be one, to aſſeſs what Sums the Mayors and Corporations ſhall pay towards this charge; if they do not, then to be done by the Sheriff alone.

A general power to the Sheriff, to aſſeſs all the Inhabitants of all other Towns, Villages, Hamlets, and places, and the Ter-tenants, other than ſuch as ſhall have a part of the ſaid Ship, or ſhall ſerve in the ſaid Ship, to contribute towards the neceſſary expence for the proviſion of the premiſſes, upon every man according to his Eſtate and faculty: And ſuch portions ſo to be aſſeſſed upon them, to levy by diſtreſs, or other due means.

A Power to name Collectors.

And a Power to commit to Priſon all ſuch as the Sheriff ſhall find rebellious, or contradicting the premiſſes; there to remain until the Kings Majeſty ſhall think fit to give order for their enlargement.

This Writ is dated Martii Anno 12 Car.

And by vertue of this Writ, Sir Peter Temple, then Sheriff of the ſaid County, did aſſeſs upon the Defendant twenty ſhillings, towards this charge, which was after allowed by the ſucceeding Sheriff, Sir Henry Proby, and the Defendant was required to pay it, but refuſed.

And then by a Certiorari out of the Chancery directed to thoſe Sheriffs, which had been Sheriffs betwixt the fourth day of Auguſt, in the Eleventh year, and the firſt of March then following, to certifie what Sum of money had been aſſeſſed upon the Defendant for contribution.

They certified the ſaid Sum of twenty Shillings.

The Writ of Mittimus bears date the 5. of May, Anno 13 Car. Regis

Then by a Writ of Mittimus, out of the Chancery, bearing date the fifth day of May, in the thirteenth year of the Kings Majeſties Reign, the Writ of 4. Auguſti Anno undecimo Car. And the Schedule returned into the Chancery, whereby the Defendant was ſo aſſeſſed, are ſent into the Exchequer, to proceed againſt the Defendant, for the levying of the Sum of Twenty Shillings, which he hath not paid, and proceed there to do that which of right, and according to the cuſtom, ought to be done for the levying thereof.

In this Writ of Mittimus it is contained, that the Writ bearing date the fourth of Auguſt, Anno 11. Car. was granted for the defence of the Realm, the ſafeguard of the Sea, the ſecurity of the Subjects, and for that the ſafety of the Kingdom was in danger.

But theſe cauſes are not expreſſed in the Writ, but other particular cauſes.

And upon the tenours of theſe Writs, depending in the Chancery, thus ſent into the Exchequer; this Writ (of Scire fac'.) is awarded, bearing date the twentieth day of May, in the thirteenth year of the King's Majeſties Reign, againſt the ſaid John Hampden, to ſhew what he hath to ſay for himſelf, why the ſaid Sum ſo aſſeſſed upon him and not paid, ought not by him to be ſatisfied, and to do further what that Court ſhould think fit to order.

To which Writ the Defendant appeared in Trinity Term, and prayed the ſight of the Writ of the fourth of Auguſt, and the Certiorari, and the Mittimus, and they are all entred (in hæc verba.)

Whereupon the Defendant did demur generally.

And Mr. Attorney General joyned in Demurrer, and the Record being read there and opened, the Court did adjourn it into the Exchequer Chamber, before any Argument there at the Bar.

The ſole Queſtion is, Whether this Scire Facias doth lie or not.

And I am of opinion that it doth not lie, but that Judgment ought to be given for the Defendant, both for the matter, and the manner of this proceeding.

And to the intent that whatſoever I ſhall ſay, may the better be underſtood; I will obſerve this order in my Argument.

Firſt, I will prove by ſeveral Acts of Parliaments, and by ſome Authorities in Books, and by ſome Reaſons, that the Kings Majeſty cannot at this day, impoſe any ſuch charge in general upon all his Subjects as this is, without their conſent in Parliament.

Secondly, I will give anſwer to ſuch Objections as have been made by the Kings Council, and by ſome of my Brothers againſt theſe Statutes, and to ſuch Caſes as they have applied to prove the contrary.

Thirdly, I will anſwer thoſe precedents, which have been inſiſted upon, to prove that the like charge hath been before impoſed by the Kings Progenitors, Kings of this Realm; And I will ſhew ſome precedents of more force to the contrary.

Fourthly, I will inſiſt upon the diſuſe of the attempt of impoſing any ſuch general charge, by this way, at any time ſince the beginning of the Raign of King Henry the Fourth, which is almoſt two hundred and fifty years ſince: And many other courſes and kinds of attempts, for levying of moneys: And this way not attempted till of late.

Fifthly, I will inſiſt upon the Writ of 4. Auguſti Anno 11. Car. That the matter therein compriſed doth not contain ſufficient Warrant, for the levying of ſuch contribution. And that the matter which is added in the Mittimus, cannot ſupply or make the Writ of 4. Auguſti ſufficient: And that the Scire facias it ſelf is inſufficient.

Laſtly, I will give ſome Anſwer to that which heretofore was objected by Mr. Solicitor: That the Judges had formerly by a ſubſcription to ſome Propoſitions, which they were required to anſwer, his Majeſty (as he conceived) reſolved this point already.

My Brother Jones hath been long, and I will obſerve my own method, and Anſwer him by my Argument; And I will contract that which I have to ſay, in as ſhort a manner as I can.

And for the firſt Point and Reaſon, which I do inſiſt upon, is, that this power to charge the people of this Realm at this day, by the King only, is taken away, bounded and limitted by divers Acts of Parliaments, to be done by conſent of the Subjects, and only in Parliament.

First, By the Statute of Magna Charta it is enacted that no Freeman ſhall be taken, or impriſoned, or diſſeiſed of his Freehold, or of his Liberties or Free Cuſtoms, or Outlawed, or Exiled, not by any means deſtroyed; neither will we come upon him, or ſend him to Priſon, but by lawful judgment of his Peers, or by the Law of the Land.

Anno 9. Hen.3. Magna Charta cap. 29.

This Statute, as appears by the Inſpeximus of King Edward the Firſt, Son of King Henry the Third, was made of the free good will of the King, for the good of the Church, and for the Amendments of the Kingdom.

See the Laſt Chapter of Magna Chart. cap. 38.

And if you look upon the laſt Chapter of Magna Charta, Cap. 38. the King grants, that he and his heirs will, for what concerns him, well obſerve and keep the ſame in his Kingdom, and will that as well Clerks, as Lay-men ſhall obſerve the ſame: And this was not done for nought, for the Clergy and Communalty, did give to the King for theſe Liberties, the fiſteenth part omnium mobilium, as appears in the ſame Chapter.

And further in the ſaid Chapter it is contained, that the ſaid King, for him and his Heirs did grant, that neither he, nor his Heirs ſhould do any thing, nor procure to be done any thing whereby theſe Liberties thus granted might be infringed or diminiſhed: And that if any thing were done by any other to the contrary, it ſhould be void, and held of no force; See the Statute.

Statute of 25 Edw. 1.

And then King Edward the Firſt his Son, in the five and twentieth year of his Raign, the very firſt Chapter of that Parliament, confirmed the Charter of Magna Charta, for the honour of God, and of the Holy Church, and profit of that Realm, with Writs to all Juſtices, Sheriffs, and others, that they cauſe the ſaid Charter of Liberties to be publiſhed: And to declare to the People, that we have confirmed them in all points; And that Our Juſtices, Sheriffs, and other Miniſters, which under us have the Laws of our Land to guide, ſhall allow the ſame. That is, to wit, the great Charter, as the Common Law, and the Charter of the Foreſt, for the wealth of our Realm.

And where my Brother Berkley did ſay in his Argument, that the words of the Statute of Magna Charta were, quod habeant libertates ſuas, but that there were no particular liberties: To that the Anſwer is eaſie, for it is in the Preamble, and the firſt Chapter, Habeant libertates ſubſcriptas tenendas in Regno noſtro Angliæ tenend. eis & hæredibus ſuis, imperpetuum. And it cannot be denied but that the Clauſes of the Writ of 4. Auguſti, which gives not only power to deſtrain, but if any be rebellious or contrariant to the premiſſes, to commit them to Priſon, there to remain until the Kings Majeſty ſhall for their deliverance think fit to order other ways, are directly contrary to the expreſs Letter of this Statute of Magna Charta, and ſo conſequently againſt the Law of the Land: For this Statute is made by the ſaid Statute of the five and twentieth of King Edward the Firſt, the Law of this Land.

This Statute of Magna Charta hath been ever ſince, and now is put in uſe for the great priviledge of the trial of the Peers of this Realm for Treaſon or Felony; For there [Peers,] is grounded upon the words of this Statute (viz.) Per legale judicium Parium ſuorum, as you may ſee in Stamford in his Book of the Pleas of the Crown, fol. 152.

Stamford, fol. 152.
25 Edward 1. cap. 5.

Then by the ſtatute of 25 Edw. I. cap. 5. It is Enacted, “And foraſmuch as divers people of our Realm are in fear, that the Aids and Taxes, that they have given to us before-time towards our Wars, and other buſiueſs, of their own grant and good will, howſoever they were made, might turn to a Bondage to them and their Heirs, becauſe they might be at any other time found in the Rolls: And likewiſe the prizes taken by our Miniſters through the Realm, we have granted for us and our Heirs, that we ſhall not draw any ſuch Aids, Taxes, or Prizes, into a Cuſtom for any thing that hath been done before, be it by Roll, or any other Precedent that may be found.

The Statute of 25. Edw. I. cap. 6.

And in the ſame Parliament, in the ſixth Chapter it is thus: "We have granted for us and our Heirs as well to Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Abbots, Priors, and other Folk of holy Church, as alſo to Earls, Barons, and to all other the Communalty of the Land, That for no buſineſs from henceforth, we ſhall take ſuch manner of Aids, Taxes, or Prizes but by the common conſent of the Realm, and for the common profit thereof: Saving the ancient Aids or prizes due and accuſtomed.

Obſerve the words in this Statute, that for no buſineſs he ſhall take any manner of Aids, Taxes, or Prizes, but by the common conſent of the Realm.

The Words of this Statute are ſo plain (for no buſineſs,) as they include all, and admit any expoſition.

34 Edward 1. cap. 1.

Then in 34 Edw. I. cap. 1. It is enacted, "No tallage nor aid ſhall be taken or levied by us or our Heirs in our Realm, without the good will and aſſent of Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Earls, Barons, Knights, Burgeſſes, and other Freemen of the Land.

14 Edward 3. cap. 1.

Then by a Statute made the fourteenth year of King Edward the Third, It is in this manner; "That whereas the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and Commons of our Realm of England in our Parliament holden at Weſtminſter upon Wedneſday in Mid-lent, in the fourteenth year of our Reign over England, and the firſt over France, have granted to us of their free and good will in aid of the ſpeed of our great buſineſs which we have to do, as well on this ſide the Sea, as beyond, the Ninth Sheaf, the Ninth Fleece, and the Ninth Lamb, to be taken by two years next coming after the making of the ſame; And the Citizens and Burgeſſes, of Cities and Burroughs, the very ninth part of all their goods; and the Foraign Merchants and others which live not of grain, nor of flock of Sheep, the fifteenth part of their goods to the value. We willing to provide for the indempnity of the ſaid Prelates, Earls, and other of the Commonalty, and alſo of the Citizens, Burgeſſes, and Merchants aforeſaid, will and grant for us, and our heirs to the ſame Prelates, Earls, Barons, and Commons, Citizens, Burgeſſes, and Merchants, that the ſaid Grant which is ſo chargeable, ſhall not another time be had forth in example, nor fall to their prejudice in time to come, nor that they be from henceforth charged nor grieved to make any aid, or to ſuſtain the charge, if it be not by common conſent of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and other great men, and Commons of our ſaid Realm of England; and that in Parliament.

25 Edward 3. cap. 8.

Then by the Statute made in the five and twentieth year of King Edward the Third, cap. 8. it is enacted, That no man ſhall be compelled to find men of Arms, Halberts, or Archers, other than ſuch as hold by ſuch ſervices, if it be not by common conſent and grant in Parliament, for that is againſt the common right of the Realm. Which laſt words, [for that is againſt the common right of the Realm] are in the Parliament Roll, but left out of the Printed Books of the Statutes.

Confirmed by an Act of Parliament in 4 Hen. 4.

And this Act of Parliament is recited by an Act of Parliament made in the fourth year of the Reign of King Henry the fourth, the thirteenth Chapter, and enacted and obſerved in all things.

1 Richard 3. cap. 2.

Then in the firſt year of King Richard the Third, and in the Second Chapter it is recited, That the Commons of this Realm, by new and unlawful inventions have been put to importune charge, eſpecially by a new impoſition, called, A Benevolence; It is enacted, that the Subjects and Communalty of this Realm, from henceforth in no wiſe be charged by any ſuch charge or impoſition, called a Benevolence, nor by any other ſuch charge.

Then comes the Act of Parliament, made in the third year of the Kings Majeſties own Reign, called the Petition of Right, whereby the Statute made in the time of King Edward the Firſt, commonly called the Statute, De tallagio non concedendo, is mentioned, and many particular incroachments recited to be made upon the Liberties of the Subject; And many particulars being recited, it is required to be enacted, that no Loan of money againſt the will and good liking of the Subjects, Billetting of Souldiers, and Mariners in mens houſes, there to ſojourn againſt their Wills, Commiſſions of Martial Laws in time of peace. They do therefore humbly pray you, that no man be hereafter compelled to yield or make any Gift, Loan, Benevolence, Tax, or ſuch like charge, without common conſent by Act of Parliament, whereunto his Majeſty conſented with this Subſcription. Soit Droit fait come eſt Deſire.

And theſe are the Statutes whereupon I relie, that this charge cannot be laid upon the Subject by this Writ only without the aid of ſome Act of Parliament.

Now for Authorities of Book Caſes, and other Authorities concurring herewith.

13 Hen.4. fol. 14, 15, 16.

Firſt, By the Caſe of 13 Hen. IV. fol. 14, 15, and 16. which were long debated, It appears that the King had granted an Office, for the meaſuring of Cloth in London, and a power to take ſo much for his labour.

There was a Writ under the Great Seal directed to the Mayor of London, commanding him to put the Patentee in poſſeſſion; and the Patentee had put it into practice, and divers had paid money to the Patentee: And yet after upon a return, that there was no ſuch Office, it is adjudged a good return; And it is there agreed, That the King cannot by his Patent create or erect a new Office, in charge of his people, without the ſpecial aſſent of the Commons: And the King cannot grant to any, that that he ſhall take of every Carriage that ſhall come over ſuch a Bridge ſuch a Sum; And it is ſaid there in the Sixteenth Leaf, that a common charge, though it ſound to the profit of the people, cannot be granted out of Parliament: And this in my opinion is a ſtrong caſe in the point.

Forteſcue in his Book de Laude Legum Angliæ, fol. 25. cap. 9.
He was made Lord Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, An. 19. Hen. 6. and made Chancellour of England as is ſaid in the Book.

Then ſee 37 Hen. VIII. Broke in Patents, Placito 100. The Kings Majeſty may erect Markets and Fairs with Tolls incident: For that concerns only ſuch as will buy: But the King cannot grant Toll Travert, nor a thorow Toll, nor alter or change Laws or Cuſtoms of the Realm, nor make Land deviſeable or Gavel-kind or Borough Engliſh, or change Gavel-kind or Borough Engliſh to be deſcendable to the Heir; which is ſo agreed in divers Books.

Then in the Book of Forteſcue, of his commendation of the Laws of England; It is thus written in the Ninth Chapter, the five and twentieth Leaf, The King of England cannot alter or change the Laws of his Realm at his pleaſure; For why, he governeth his People by Power, not only Royal, but alſo Politick: If his power over them were only Royal, then he might change the Laws of his Realm, and charge his Subjects with Tallage and other burthens without their conſent; And ſuch is the Dominion which the Civil Law purports, when they ſay, that the Will of a Prince hath the force of a Law: But from this much differeth the Power of a King, whoſe Government over his people is Politick; For he can neither change Laws without the conſent of his Subjects, nor yet charge them with ſtrange impoſitions againſt their wills. Rejoyce therefore, O Soveraign Prince, and be glad that the Laws of your Realm, wherein you ſhall ſucceed, are ſuch; For it ſhall exhibit to you and your People no ſmall ſecurity,and comfort.

The ſame Author, cap.36. fol.84.

And the ſame Author, fol. 84. cap. 36. ſaith thus; That the King by his Officers (though the Owners would ſay nay) may take neceſſaries for his houſe at a reaſonable price to be aſſeſſed by the Conſtable; Nevertheleſs he is bound by the Law to pay therefore, either preſently, or at a day to be limited by the higher Officers of the houſe: For by the Laws he may take away none of his Subjects goods, without due ſatiſfaction for the ſame; neither doth the King there either by himſelf, or his Servants and Officers, levy upon his Subjects Tallages, Subſidies, or any other burthens, or alter their Laws, or make new Laws, without the expreſs conſent and agreement of his whole Realm in his Parliament.

And thus I have done with the Poſitive part of my Argument, and will indeavour to be ſhorter in the reſt.

The Second Part.

NOw in the ſecond place I will give an Anſwer to all ſuch Objections that have been made by the Councel of the King at the Bar; and by ſome of my Brothers in their Arguments againſt theſe Statutes.

Object. 1.

Reſp. 1.

Firſt, it hath been Objected, that the Statute de Tallagio non concedendo was not a Statute. And this was inſiſted upon by Mr. Solicitor, and not without many probabilities of the Kings not then being in England, and many other things by him alleaged; Yet becauſe it hath been agreed by all that have argued ſince, that it was and is an Act of Parliament, and is ſo recited in the Petition of Right, I will ſay no more to that; But thereby, and by his inſiſting ſo much upon that to be no Statute, I do conceive that he underſtood that Statute to be, (as indeed it is) a forcible Statute againſt this impoſition of a charge by Writ, without the conſent of the Parliament.

Object. 2. The ſecond Objection was; That the words, Aids, Tax, and Tallages, do not extend to this proviſion of Ships of War, and men for defence, and that there is no exception of the aids which are due to the Kings Majeſty, for making his Eldeſt Son Knight, nor aids for Marriage, nor other aids by Tenures.

Reſp. 2. The Anſwer is eaſie: For the words of the Statute of the fourteenth year of King Edward the Third, are, That they ſhall not from henceforth be charged or grieved, to make any aid, or to ſuſtain any charge.

Theſe are words ſo general, that all is comprehended which charges all; And for the aids of making the Eldeſt Son Knight, and the other aids, they are not general to charge all, but particular, ſuch as are charged by Tenure, and need no Exception,

And yet in the Statute of 25 Edward III. cap.8. there is an exception (of other than thoſe which hold by ſuch Tenure) which Exception was needleſs, becauſe no charge of any in particular is within any of the Acts of Parliament; but ſuch as are general, and extend to charge all the Subjects of the Realm, as this doth.

Object. 3. There hath been another Objection made againſt the Statute of 14 Ed.III. that it ſhould be but temporary, for the time of the continuance of thoſe Wars; And my Brother Berkley did except to this Statute, becauſe it is not mentioned in the Petition of Right.

Reſp. 3. To this there needs no other Anſwer, than the Statute it ſelf, firſt the Preamble, and then the body of the Act, (viz.) That from henceforth they ſhall not be compelled to make any aid, or ſuſtain any charge but by the common conſent of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, Great men, and Commons of our Realm of England, and that in Parliament; This is an abſolute Statute.

It is true, that the latter Clauſe whereby the King was pleaſed, that the profits to be made of his Wards, Marriages, Eſcheats, and other profits ſhould be diſpoſed of for the maintenance of the Realm of England and of his Wars in Scotland, France, and Gaſcoyn, and elſewhere, during the ſaid Wars, This was a matter of the Kings Bounty and Grace, and was to continue no longer; And to ſay, that becauſe it was not particularly mentioned amongſt other in the Petition of Right, therefore it ſhould be of no force, doth not ſtand with any reaſon to impeach the Statute, nor many others that are not there enumerated.

Object. 4. The laſt and greateſt Objection that hath been made, firſt by my Brother Crawley, and after by others, and inſiſted upon by my Brother Jones, is, That this is a Prerogative, or Power Royal, ſo incident to the Kings Majeſty, that it cannot be taken away by any Act of Parliament; And it was ſaid, it is proprium quarto modo: And in proof thereof it was affirmed, that when there was in the beginning of King James his Reign a purpoſe to have taken away all Tenures by an Act of Parliament, and to have ſhut up the Court of Wards; I1 was reſolved by the Judges, that ſuch a Statute had been void.

Reſp. 4. Firſt, I do agree, that there are many things ſo incident in power to a King, as are not in the power of any Parliament to take away, as appears by the Caſe of 1 Hen. VII. of the diſpoſing of the right of the Kingdom, power of making War and Leagues, the power of the Coin, and the value of Coines, and many other Monarchical Powers and Prerogatives which to be taken away, were againſt natural reaſon, and are incidents ſo inſeparable, that they cannot be taken away by Parliament.

And yet I will ſhew you, and prove, that Acts of Parliament have bounded, limited, and qualified the Kings ancient and inherent Prerogatives of like nature, and of as great importance as this is.

Ploy.fol. 332. The Caſe of Mines.

It is ſaid of Ploydon, in the caſe of Mines, fol. 332. That every Prerogative that the King hath, contains in it ſelf a matter of Preſcription, and as it is there ſaid, That before the Statute of 2 Edw. III. cap. 12. if one held his Land by Knights Service of the King in Capite, and had aliened that Land in fee, without the Kings Licence, the Land was forfeited to the King; And the King ſhould have had the Land to him and his Succeſſors for exer; The King willeth and granteth, that the King ſhall not hold them as forfeit: But ſhall take a reaſonable Fine, to be aſſeſſed in the Chancery by due Proceſs.

And in the ſame Book, fol. 322. The Kings Majeſty might by Prerogative have taken Woods in any mans Wood, for the repair of his Caſtles: But by the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 21. he is excluded of that, the words are [Neither We, nor our Bayliff, nor any other for us] ſhall take Wood of any other mans, to repair our Caſtles, nor to do any other thing with them, but by good will of him whoſe Wood it is.

Fol.322.

And by the Statute of 25 Edward III. cap. 1. It is enacted that from thenceforth, neither he, nor any of his Heirs, ſhall take title to preſent to any Benifice of the right of another, of any time of his Predeceſſors.

25 Edw. 3. cap. 1.
11 Hen. 4. fol. 7, 8.

And the King brought a Quare Impedit, and made title to an avoidance in the time of King Edward the Firſt, Son of King Henry the Third; And the Defendant pleaded this Statute, and upon debate and Argument, although it was alleaged, that this Statute had not been put in uſe, It was adjudged, that being a Statute in force, it might be put in uſe: And ſo it was judged againſt the King.

And this is a ſtrong proof, that in one of the moſt ancient Prerogatives incident to the King of Nullum tempus occurrat Regi, which is grounded upon many Reaſons, yet by an Act of Parliament this Prerogative was taken away.

See the Statute of 7 Hen. VIII. cap. 3. The Informer is limited to begin his Suit within a year, and the King within two years, and not after, hereby the Kings Prerogative of Nullum tempus is taken away, and limited to two years.

The Statute 7 Hen. 8. cap.3.

The Statute of 21 Jac. cap. 2. whereby our late King James, of famous memory, was content to exclude himſelf to make any title to Lands, whereof he hath not been in poſſeſſion, or which have not lawfully been put in charge within ſixty years: But enacted, that ſuch perſons as do hold thoſe Lands, ſhall hold them ſtill without trouble: And that Patent of concealment, or defective title, ſhall not be a putting in charge, or ſtanding in ſuper within that Statute.

21 Jac. cap.2.

I might be infinite in this, but I will conclude with the Statute of 21 Jac. cap. 14. That where the Kings Majeſty by his Royal Prerogative, may inforce the Subject in informations of intruſions, to plead eſpecially, and to ſhew his title, or to loſe the poſſeſſion, The Kings Majeſty out of his gracious diſpoſition towards his loving Subjects, and at their humble ſuit (being willing to remit a part of his Ancient Regal Power) is well pleaſed that it be enacted, and be it enacted, That where the Kings Majeſty hath been, or ſhall be out of poſſeſſion, for the ſpace of twenty years, or ſhall not have taken the profits of any Lands, or Tenements, within the ſpace of twenty years; That in ſuch caſe the Defendant may plead the general Iſſue, if they think fit, and ſhall not be preſſed to plead ſpecially; and ſhall retain the poſſeſſion, till the title be tried and found for the King. And that no Scire facias ſhall be brought to put the party to a ſpecial pleading, where an information may be fitly brought.

21 Jac. cap.14.

By theſe, and many other of the like nature, it muſt be agreed, that ancient, Regal, and inſeparable Prerogatives, and Powers, may be, and have been qualified, bounded, and limited for the eaſe and benefit of the Subjects.

And give me leave to ſay this of Parliaments, that they have been eſteemed by the wiſdom of former times, to be ſo neceſſary, as there were Acts of Parliament heretofore made in the time of King Edward the Third; which which you may ſee *Anno 36 Edw.3.cap.*10. That for the maintainance of Articles and Statutes, and for the redreſs of divers miſchiefs and grievances which daily happen, it was Enacted that a Parliament ſhould be holden every Year.

Bracton. fol.1.

Another reaſon is, that they have been eſteemed neceſſary for determining of difficult matters: And therefore Bracton, who wrote in the time of King Henry the third, fol.1. Leges Anglicanæ & conſuetudines approbatæ conſenſu utentium, & ſacramento Regis confirmatæ; mutari non potuerunt nec deſtrui ſine conſenſu & conſilio eorum, quorum conſenſu & conſilio fuerunt promulgatæ: ſin autem aliqua nova & inconſueta emerſerint, quæ prius uſitata cum fuerunt in Regno, & obſcurum ſit eorum judicium, tunc ponentur judicia in reſpectu uſque ad magnam Curiam, ubi per conſenſum Curiæ terminentur.

The Statute of Wincheſter 13 *Edw.*1. lib. 2.*Edw.*3.fol.7.

See to this purpoſe an excellent Caſe in 2 *Edw.*3. fol. 7. upon the Statute of Wincheſter, where a Robbery was done, and a Recovery againſt the Hundred next adjoining, and a Levy made of the Biſhop of Coventries Tenements, of the Hundred in Staffordſhire. The Biſhop came into Court and pleaded a Charter of Exemption made by King Richard the Firſt: And for the difficulty upon the Charters, and upon the Expoſition of the words of the Statute, there came a Writ to remove the Record into the Parliament, Quindecim Paſch. and the Sheriff was appointed to attend there with the money levied.

Vid. le Regiſt. fol.274.

See the Regiſter, where it appears that certain Meſſengers had from the Pope ſerved Proceſs upon an Officer of the Court of Chancery, then held at York, to command him by thoſe Bulls to appear at Rome: And for this Contempt, the Party who ſerved the ſaid Proceſs, was committed to the Caſtle of York: And at length the Kings Majeſty by the intreaty of divers of the Great Men of the Realm, was content, upon taking Bond, that he ſhould anſwer the ſaid Contempt, ad proximum Parliamentum, ubicunque illud ſummoniri contigeri, to deliver him out of Priſon.

The Statute of Wincheſter 2. cap.28.

Then the Statute of Wincheſter 2. the 28. chap. of Concordent Clerici in Cancell. de novo Brevi, vel attendent in proximum Parliamentum.

The further neceſſity and eſtimation which have been taken to be of Parliaments, is the number and frequency of them. For you may ſee by the Commentaries upon *Littleton, fol.*100. that before the Conqueſt, and in the Conquerors time, and after, till the end of King Henry the Third's time, there were Two hundred Eighty Seſſions of Parliament; and ſince almoſt Two hundred.

Doctor and Student, fol. 12.

Another Reaſon, as I conceive, to be collected out of the Oath, which the Kings of this Realm take at their Coronation, which is printed in Magna Charta, whereby the King agrees to give conſent to ſuch Laws, as ſhall be propounded for the profit and good of the Kingdom.

And that, I conceive, is the cauſe, that when Bills come up, being agreed by both the Houſes, the Kings Majeſty, to thoſe he doth not allow, or not like of, doth make no direct denial, but Le Roy de aviſera. For nothing can be done without the Kings conſent, who hath ſole power to Call, to Prorogue, and to Diſſolve Parliaments at his pleaſure. And I know not whether the laſt meeting in Parliament, either by ill choice of the Members of that Houſe, or by the great increaſe of the number, or by the ambitious humours of ſome Members of that Houſe, who aimed more at their own Ends and Deſigns, than the general Good of the Commonwealth; things were ſo carried, not as was uſed in ancient time, but ſo diſaſtrouſly, that it hath wrought ſuch a diſtaſte of this Courſe of Parliaments, as we, and all that truly love the Commonwealth, have juſt cauſe to be ſorry for it.

The Third Part.

NOw I come to my third Head, that is, to give Anſwer to ſuch Precedents as have been ſhewed and inſiſted upon, to prove that the Kings of this Realm have made ſuch Impoſitions, even in the matter of Shipping.

The firſt Precedent.

And herein firſt they have inſiſted upon a Tribute, or Impoſition, called Dane-gelt, which was begun in Etheldreds time, which, as it was ſaid, was double, ad placandos Danos, vel ad coercendum Danos, which was very grievance and of long continuance: For as it was ſaid by my Brother Crook, it was firſt Ten Thouſand pounds yearly, then increaſed to Sixteen Thouſand, then to Twenty four Thouſand, then to Thirty ſix Thouſand yearly. And from Twelve pence for every hide of Land, to Twelve Shillings for every hide of Land.

This Tribute continued after the Danes, for in the time of the Normans it became to be called a Tallage, or Tax, King Henry the Firſt granted to the Citizens of London to be quit and free from Dane-gelt. And the ſame King about the 30. year of his Reign, in redemption of his Sin did grant that Danicum Tributum ſhould be totally releaſed for ſeven years, as it appears in Sir Henry Spelmans Book intituled Gloſſarium, *fol.*200. Spelm. fol. 200.

*Reſp.*1.

To this I give this Anſwer, That by the Statute of 34 *Edw.*1. De Tallagio non concedendo but by Parliament, this was taken away: And thereupon enſued a ſtrong Argument, that if ſuch a thing as the Dane-gelt, which had ſo long continued, were not taken away by theſe Acts of Parliament, it might have been put in uſe: For no man will maintain that this Tribute of Dane-gelt can now be impoſed at this day by the Kings Writ under the Great Seal, which it might be, if theſe Statutes had not taken it away.

34 *Edw.*1. c.8.

And for this purpoſe, in the Statutes made 34 *Edw.*1. *cap.*8. the King grants to Clerks and Laymen, that they ſhall have their Laws, Liberties, and Free Cuſtome, as they have uſed the ſame at any time when they had them beſt: And if any Statutes have been made, or any Cuſtoms brought in by Us, or Our Anceſtors to the contrary, that they ſhall be void and fruſtrate for evermore.

And concerning the generality of Precedents, which have been made uſe of on the one ſide, and on the other, out of Membrana's Patents and Commiſſions, and Anſwers to Petitions in the Rolls of Parliament (10 Petitions.) I am very ſorry that ſuch obſolete and ancient things have been mentioned; many of which in my judgment, had been better to have ſlept in ſilence, than to have been ſpoken of in theſe times.

But herein is a ſtrong command, and as great neceſſity; And yet there was a Clauſe in theſe Commiſſions, viz. Et veſtrum quod ad illud poſueritis, cum illud ſciverimus in exitibus ballivat allocari fatiemus.

2 *H.*4. num.22.

And in 2 *Hen.*4. Parliament recites, That where divers Commiſſions were made to divers Cities, Boroughs, and Towns, to command the making of certain Barges and Billingers, without the aſſent of Parliament, and in another manner than had been done before: The Commons did pray the King that the ſaid Commiſſions might be repealed, and that they ſhould be of no force, or effect. And the King anſwered, that the ſaid Commiſſions ſhould be repealed for ever.

But for the great neceſſity of ſuch Veſſels for the defence of the Realm, in caſe that the Wars do come, the King will commune of this matter with the Lords, and after he will ſhew it to the Commons to have their conſent.

And ſo I leave theſe Precedents, which together with ſome other Objections, have been fully anſwered by my Brother Croke, and proceed to my farther point.

The Fourth Part.

THat is, That ſince the time of R.2. and H.4. there hath been no ſuch thing attempted, and that this diſuſe is a ſufficient matter to prove the unlawfulneſs. For ſince that time, though there have been in the Reigns of many Kings, occaſion of employments both of Ships for the defence of the Sea, and ſervice of the Land, yet the courſe and order of defence hath been by ſeveral other ways: as by Commiſſions to provide Men to ſerve for Wages, and by Indentures of Covenants, which were very frequent to be made between the Captain and the King, that he ſhould Covenant to ſerve with ſo many Men, for ſuch particular times, and for ſuch Wages, as were compriſed therein, and the Precedents of Modern Times, have been this way all for Wages.

This is proved by an Indenture made in 15 Ed.4. and Sir W. Pirton Kt. reciting that the King had diſpoſed of an Army of 4000 men for the Narrow Seas, and the keeping of them; and that he ſhould have conſtantly 460 men under him, for four Moneths, the Kings Majeſty was to find the Ships furniſhed with Guns, Powder, Artillery, and Victual, and that the ſaid W. Pirton ſhould take Wages for every of his Company, viz. two ſhillings a Week, and the times appointed for the payment thereof.

And 28 H.8. it appears by a Letter under the Privy Signet then, when by command Men were raiſed in the County of Lancaſter, and by command coming towards the County of Lincoln to aid the ſuppreſſion of Rebels, the Rebels having ſubmitted before they came, they were comanded to return, and for their charges in their entertainment, and conveying of them, a reaſonable Bill ſhould be made, and ſent to the King by a truſty Meſſenger, and he would cauſe a convenient recompenſe to be delivered accordingly.

And for that which hath been inſiſted upon, that there hath been Commiſſions of Array, and proviſion for Arms, and for preparing Armor from time to time, it is not to be denied, that firſt by ſeveral Statutes, as that of Wincheſter, and divers ſince, the Armor and Weapons, wherewith the Subjects of this Realm have been charged, are ſeveral, and changed according to the variety of times, as things have grown out of uſe, and other manner of proviſion more ſerviceable and neceſſary, for which there have been directions for Views, and for Training and Diſciplining of Souldiers to be prepared for defence. That this hath been in uſe no man can, or ever could deny, or affirm the contrary. And in all the Prerogatives which have been before by Mr. Attorny General urged that the King hath intereſt in mens Goods, and to execute his Writs by his Sheriffs upon mens perſons, and in their Lands, for giving Poſſeſſion, and for levying Amerciaments and Fines, and power to put ſome of his Subjects out of their Poſſeſſions, and to deliver the Poſſeſſion thereof to others; as it appears in Ploydon in Mancells Caſe, which was vouched by Mr. Attorney General.

This is very true, for this is a thing which the King is bound to do for the good of his Subjects.

For as it is agreed in 34 *H.6.fol.*14. The Kings Majeſty is bound to keep his Courts of Chancery, and all his other Courts, at his own charge. And 39 *H.6.fol.*40. The King is bound to do Law and Right to all his Subjects, which without theſe Powers and Prerogatives would not be performed.

Out of theſe and the like of Murage and Pontage, there can no ſound Argument be drawn to warrant the proviſion of Ships, and Men, and Furniture for War, when the King will ſo appoint.

But, I conceive, that it hath been generally agreed by all the Judges (nullo contradicente) that if this Writ of *Aug.*4. which is proviſion of a Ship and Furniture, and Men, had been to have authorized the Sheriffs to have levied monies of the Subjects for that purpoſe, that then the Writ could not have given power to have done it, becauſe that would have been expreſly againſt the Statutes; And if that be granted, then conſidering that theſe Writs to the Sheriffs, are accompanied with Inſtructions commanding and directing the Levying of Mony, and proportioning what Sum is to be raiſed in every County for that Service: As in the County of York, and in the County of the City of York, the ſum of 12000 l. and the ſum of 8000 l. for the County of Lincoln: and ſo a proportion of mony for every County for that purpoſe. The conſequence may be this, That this Levy which hath obtained the name of Ship-mony, and wherein no endeavour hath ever been made for preparing any ſuch Ship, or Furniture, or Men, as the Writ in it ſelf purports, is not purſued, or warranted by this General Levy of Shipmony. For it is a Rule, Id quod non poteſt fieri directè, ex obliquo fieri non debet.

I confeſs that divers of the Kings of this Realm, have upon ſome pretended occaſions, taken upon them by perſuaſion of ſome Great Men in their time, and aſſumed a Royal and Monarchical Power, to levy Monies by Commiſſions, and have extended that Power very far; whereof you may read, that in the 17. year of K. H. 8. C. Woolſey was charged to have been the cauſe of directing Commiſſions into all Countries for the levying of the 6. part of all mens Goods, and the 6. part of their Plate, for that the King was then determined to make War with France, and to paſs the Sea himſelf. This being attempted by enforcing ſome, and ſending others to Priſon, it grew to be ſo generally diſliked, that the People roſe up in divers Countries, and then the K. diſclaimed that it was done without his privity. The Card. charged it to be done firſt by the conſent of the Council; which they denied. Then he charges the Judges to be conſenting, which being untrue, the Card. took it to himſelf; and all the Commiſſions were recalled: you may ſee it at large ſet down in divers Chronicles. And in the latter time of our gracious Q. El. upon pretence of want for Expeditions in Ireland, there was a general Benevolence required, and it went on for a time, and ſo far as it came to be voluntarily levied in the Inns of Court. And I can ſpeak it of my own knowledge, I paid a ſum, I think but 20 s. and others paid likewiſe. But not long after (as it was ſaid) when the Q. was informed that this Benevolence was expreſly againſt the Statute of R. 3. and againſt the Laws, and diſtaſtful; all the monies levied was commanded to be reſtored, and repaid, and mine was, and the reſt was ſo to others, as I heard, and do verily believe: and this was attempted by ſo gracious a Queen.

17 *H.*8. Anno Dom. 1225.

The Attempt to have Benevolence for Q. Eliz.

And to ſpeak nothing of the Commiſſion dated the thirteenth day of October, in the ſecond Year of our gracious Soveraign Lord the Kings Majeſty, for the loan and levying of the five Subſidies which was effected, and acknowledged after not to be warranted by the Laws and Statutes: This point is apparent, that in time of neceſſities, theſe illegal or Monarchical powers have been aſſumed in the time of other Kings.

And hereupon I conclude theſe points, That the Statutes have taken away this power of charging the Subjects of this Realm with any general and publick Charge, Aid, or Tallages, or burthens for any buſineſs, but only by their conſent in Parliament, and no Uſage Precedent, or Cuſtom, if any ſuch have been, can by Law take away the force of theſe Acts of Parliament, ſo long as they ſtand in force.

And I do abſolutely believe, that if the Kings Majeſty had not been perſuaded by ſome opinions, that this courſe was warranted by Law and Cuſtom of the Realm, that he would not have attempted the ſame.

The Fifth Part.

NOw I proceed to the fifth Part; That the Matter which is contained in the Writ of Auguſt 4. Anno 11. Car. doth not contain ſufficient matter to warrant this Levy.

Firſt, The words of the Writ are not any affirmance directly of any danger, for they are but Quia datum eſt nobis intelligi: this is but of Information, and not ex certa ſcientia, which are of more force. The other words are but of Information or Suggeſtion.

Then for the matter, it contains onely theſe points, That there are many Pirats and Sea-Robbers congregated upon the Sea, to take away ſome of our Subjects into miſerable captivity, and to hinder our Merchants to bring in their Merchandizes and Goods, and the Goods and Merchandizes of the Subjects of our Friends coming and traffiquing hither, and ſpoiling of our Merchants: And for that the Sea hath been, and ought to be defended by Gentem Anglicanam, and they intending to trouble the Kingdom.

And we conſidering the danger every where now imminent, and deſiring the defence of the Realm, the ſafe-guard of the Sea, the ſecurity of our Subjects, the ſafe conducting of the Ships of our Merchants, and of their Merchandizes, to come into our Realm, and to go forth of the Realm, and willing to provide for their aid, do therefore direct this Writ.

Here is no matter of any publick danger to all the Subjects, no intended coming upon the Land, but to rob and ſpoil as Pirates by Sea, and Conſpirators to moleſt Merchants, to hinder Traffique, to take ſome Priſoners, as have been done heretofore, ſometimes by the Dunkirkers, and many times by the Pirats to Argiers.

All this is but ſuch a defence as doth require but the ordinary defence, to the which the Kings Majeſty is ſolely bound for to ſee performed, for the ordinary benefits that he hath of Cuſtoms, and Subſidies of Wines, and other profits, beſides the Tonnage and Poundage; and the Ships which are provided by the Cinque Ports, for which they have many Priviledges.

This matter contained in the Writ, by all the particulars doth not comprize any general aſſault or attempt to be made for taking of any Towns, as hath been before time.

Another reaſon to prove that the Writ hoth not contain ſufficient matter to induce a general charge (is to be collected.) That this being perceived, it is contained more amply, and laboured to be aided and ſupplied by the words put into the Mittimus, which are of more efficacy; For therein is contained, which is not in the Writ of 4. Auguſti: Quod pro Defenſione Regni, & tuitione Maris; And for that, Salus Regni noſtri Angliæ & populi noſtri periclitabitur: And the recital of [Datum eſt nobis intelligi] is omitted, but hereby affirmed poſitively.

And where my Brother Berkley inſiſted; that the matter contained in the Mittimus was ſufficient to ſupply the Writ of 4. Auguſti, if it were not ſo fully expreſſed as it ſhould have been.

Thereunto I make this Anſwer, Quod in initio non valet, tractatu temporis non convaleſcet: Beſides the date of the Writ of Mittimus of the fifth of May, Anno 13 Car. Regis, which is almoſt two years after the Writ of 4. Auguſti did iſſue; And this is a very late ſupply; And therefore that caſe was vouched by my Brother Berkley, which was Dowmans Caſe, Anno 25. & 26. Eliz. and reported by my Lord Coke in his Ninth Book, wherein it is adjudged that when a Fine or Recovery is ſuffered, and no uſes declared, That an Indenture ſubſequent declaring that the Fine or Recovery was to ſuch uſes, ſhall be ſufficient in Law to lead to the Uſes of thoſe proceeding Aſſurances; Which I agree to be good Law. But that doth not reſemble this Caſe, for this muſt be good in the foundation, or no ſubſequent declaration can make that good which at the firſt was not. And that I prove by two Caſes directly adjudged. 25 & 26 Eliz. Coke l.6.f.1. in Dowmans Caſe

The firſt is Vernons Caſe, Anno 14 Eliz. adjudged and reported by my Lord Coke in his Fourth Book upon the Statute of Joynture, A man intending to make a Joynture to his Wife to bar her of her Dower, maketh a Feoffment of his Land to the uſe of himſelf for life, and then to the uſe of a Friend for his life, and then to the uſe of his Wife for a Joynture; Although by ſucceſs of time it hapneth that the Friend die in the life of the Feoffer, and ſo the Wives Eſtate becomes immediate to begin upon her Husbands death, and might have been a good Joynture, if it had be ſo made at firſt, yet this Caſe is adjudged to be no Joynture, for it was not good in the Foundation, and that which was defective in the Original, is not good by any accident ſubſequent. Coke. 4. Vernon. Caſe.

And in the Lord Cheneyes Caſe reported by my Lord Coke in his Fifth Book, *fol.*62. in the four and thirtieth year of Queen Elizabeth, It is reſolved upon the Statute of Wills, that the Eſtate contained in a Will in writing, which is the foundation and ground, muſt be ſuch as is expreſſed in the written Original Will, and that no averment or ſubſequent proof of intention or explanation can add or ſupply any thing to that Original. Coke l.5.f.68. Le Seigneur Cheneyes Caſe.

And as in theſe Caſes the original foundation cannot be ſupplied by ſuſequent addition; So the Writ of 4 Auguſti being the Original, cannot be ſupplied by ſubſequent explanation.

Another Exception is, that by the Writ, all the Kings Majeſties Subjects are to be rated and taxed to contribution, other than ſuch as have part in the Ship, or elſe do ſerve therein. And hereby the Sheriff of every County muſt either not be taxed, or not contribute, for it is inconvenient, nor can be done, that every Sheriff ſhould tax himſelf. Except. 2. 8 *Hen.*6.19. 18 *Hen.*3. 9 Eliz.

Next for the Writ of Certiorare, that is very unuſual to be directed to two ſeveral Sheriffs, being then no Sheriffs, to certifie what Taxations they had made upon that Writ; They were then no Officers: But it ſhould either have come by Inquiſition, or by the return of the then preſent Sheriff, to have ratified what his Predeceſſors had done in their times, and not this way which was never before heard of.

And then touching the Scire facias it ſelf, I am of opinion that it doth not lie, for many cauſes:

Reaſon 1. Firſt, The Sum ſo aſſeſſed doth not appertain to the King; And for the Kings Majeſty to have a Scire facias, for to inforce him to do or pay that which belongs to another is not uſual.

Secondly, It is not ſhewed that any Ship, or proviſion of Men, or Munition, was prepared or provided, which is a contempt in the Sheriff.

Thirdly, The direction by the Writ is to diſtrain, or to commit to Priſon ſuch as ſhall refuſe; and no other courſe appointed by the ſaid Writ, for the levying thereof.

Fourthly, The Scire facias ought to be awarded out of a Preſentment, or Inquiſition, whereby the matter may be found, whereby the King is entituled, or upon ſome Preſentments which concern the Common-wealth, as Preſentments that a common Bridge is in decay, and that either a particular man is bound to repair it, or that it is in default of the County, or of the Inhabitants of ſuch a Hundred; And the like for repair of High-ways: There I agree as was ſaid by my Brother Trevor, a Scire Facias is uſually awarded out of the Exchequer; But I conceive theſe prove, that without a Preſentment or Inquiſition that no Scire facias doth properly lie, or ought to be awarded.

And therefore I will conclude this with the Caſe of 2 Edw. III. fol. 2. The King by his Writ directed to the Sheriff of Lancaſter, reciting, That where Sir John Langton had delivered divers Sums of money to one Robert his Companion, to come to the King in aid of his Wars in Scotland, and the ſaid Robert did not come, but did ſpoil and did take the Goods and Chattels of divers of our Subjects in the ſaid County, and did rob, and ſpoil, and waſte the Goods of our Subjects to the value of two thouſand pounds ut accepimus le Roy, command to the Sheriff, De attach the body of the ſaid Robert, and he was attached, and did not appear: And by his Counſel alleaged, that upon this Suggeſtion, the King being not otherwiſe appriſed by indictment or otherwiſe, this ſuit did not lie for the King, and the parties grieved may have their Suits.

And thereupon the Court was adviſed, and took time to ſpeak with the Chancellour, to ſee if he had any matter, out of which the ſaid Writ was awarded: And afterwards, becauſe this Writ was grounded upon a ſuggeſtion againſt the Common Law, therefore the ſaid Robert was diſcharged, which is a ſtranger Caſe than ours. And for theſe Reaſons I conclude this Part, that no Scire facias ought to be awarded in this Caſe.

The Sixth Part.

NOw it remains to give Anſwer to that which hath been before objected, and ſpoken of only by Maſter Solicitor, that the Judges had before given their opinions to warrant the legality of this charge, and ſubſcribed their names.

Firſt, I do affirm, and it doth appear by my Argument, that this Caſe now in queſtion doth not concern nor contradict the matter of the Subſcription; for the matter whereunto the Subſcription was made, is, That when the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom is in danger, that then for the defence of the Kingdom from ſuch danger, the King may by Writ impoſe the proviſion of Ships with furniture and men.

But if only there be Pirats and Robbers of the Sea, aſſembled together at Sea to rob, ſpoil, and take the Goods and Merchandizes that are to be brought into the Kingdom, and ſafe conducting of the Merchants from ſpoil, as no other particular thing is alleaged in the Writ of 4. Augusti, I think it will be granted that this doth not by our opinions inable the King to make ſuch a general charge upon that occaſion.

But if there were an intended Invaſion, and that known to the Kings Majeſty, whom it concerns moſt, and upon ſuch an intentien, in ſuch a caſe of neceſſity, which is and may be termed a time of ſuch danger, as it may be fit to prepare for defence of the Realm, then I am of opinion, that in ſuch a caſe, all that hath been ſaid, that Neceſſitas eſt Lex temporis, and Salus Reipublicæ eſt ſumma Lex, and then Silent inter arma leges, might be juſt cauſes for that time only to make a preparation of Ships. And in this caſe here doth not appear that there was not any one Ship provided or prepared by the Sheriff.

The King is the ſole Owner and Lord of the Sea, and hath power thereof: And as it was agreed in a notable Caſe that was adjudged in the Exchequer Mich. the fourth year of King James againſt one Bates, wherein I was then of Council, the King may lay an Impoſition upon Foraign Commodities to be brought into this Realm, for there was five ſhillings laid upon every hundred weight of Currants, over and beſides the two ſhillings ſix pence for Poundage: And Bates having notice of this Impoſition, brought in a Ship fraughted with Currants, and paid the two ſhillings ſix pence for Poundage, but refuſed to pay the five ſhillings for every hundred weight: And upon information, the Caſe was argued at the Bar, and at the Bench; and it was adjudged, that the Impoſition was lawful, and that the King in his Prerogative had totum dominium maris, and that all the Ports were the Kings, and that the King had ſole power to reſtrain or forbid the going beyond the Sea; the ſole appointment into what Countries the Merchants ſhould or might trade, and to appoint into what Countries they ſhould not trade. And for theſe reſpects, the King was to maintain the Ports, to provide for the ſafety of the Merchants, and to clear aud ſcowre the Narrow Seas from Pirats and Robbers, for the doing whereof was added the Tonnage and Poundage by grant in Parliament. Mich. 4. Jac. Bates his Caſe.

Laſtly, Theſe ſudden Opinions, when Judges hear no Arguments, are of no ſuch force as to bind them to continue the ſame opinion: But that when they ſhall have heard Arguments, and be better informed, they may alter and change, which hath uſually hapned. Beſides, as it is very well known, we were not all of opinion, but the greater number then concurring, the Subſcription was for conformity, as ſometimes is uſed in ſuch caſes.

Laſtly, It hath been objected, that the Defendant by his general Demurrer hath confeſſed all the matters to be true, which are ſurmiſed in the Scire facias. Object. upon the Defend. general Demurrer.

To

Reſp. 1. To this it is anſwered, That a Demurrer confeſſeth the matters of fact, which are ſufficiently alleaged; but ſuch matters of fact as are not ſufficiently alleaged, thoſe are not confeſſed, but left to the judgment of the Court.

Coke l.4.f.43. in Hudſons Caſe. Fol.71.Hinds Caſe. See theſe Caſes ſo adjudged and reſolved in theſe Books, *Coke Lib.*4. *fol.*43. in Hudſons Caſe, matter ſufficiently alleaged eſt confeſſe: And according to this it is agreed in Hinds Caſe, in the ſame Book, *fol.*71.

33 & 34 Eliz. The very expreſs Caſe, is that of Birton upon Uſury, which was An. 33 & 34 Eliz. where it is adjudged that the Demurrer confeſſeth nothing that is ſufficiently alleaged; as where a matter of Uſury is alleaged, and is not ſo ſufficiently alleaged, that it appears to be Uſury, the Demurrer doth not confeſs that to be Uſury, as is pretended.

So likewiſe in this Caſe, the Demurrer general doth not, nor can ſupply the defect of the matter which ſhould have been comprized in the Writ of 4. Auguſti. The Demurrer confeſſeth that there was ſuch a Writ, but doth neither confeſs the lawfulneſs thereof, nor the defect of the inſufficient alleaging of any matter which ſhould have been contained therein.

And thus with as much brevity and perſpicuity as want of memory, and other infirmities which attend upon my Age would ſuffer me, and without either Preamble or Proteſtation, I conclude with that which my Brother Berkley uſed in the beginning of his Speech, That the People of this Realm are Subjects, and not Slaves; Freemen, and not Villains; and therefore not to be taxed De alto & baſſo, and at will, but according to the Laws of this Kingdom.

And therefore I conclude, that neither for the matter, nor for the manner, this Writ of Scire facias brought in this Court of Exchequer, upon the tenour thereof, can be maintained. And therefore in my opinion I adviſe the Barons to give Judgment accordingly for the Defendant.

This is the ſame which I did deliver in my Argument in the ſame manner that I did argue.

The

The Argument of Sir George Crooke, Knight, one of the Judges of the Kings Bench, upon the Caſe of the Scire facias out of the Exchequer, againſt John Hampden, Eſq; Decimo quarto Aprilis, Anno Domini 1638.

The Caſe is this upon the Record.

THe King, by Writ under his Great Seal, dated 4. Auguſti, Anno 11. of his Reign, directed to the Sheriff of the County of Bucks, and to all the men of that County, commandeth them in theſe words:

The motives of the Writ, which are five

1. Quia datum eſt nobis intelligi, Quòd Prædones quidam Pirati, ac maris Graſſatores, tam nominis Chriſtianæ hoſtes Mahumetani, quàm alii congregati, Naves, ac bona, ac mercimonia non ſolùm Subditorum noſtrorum, verùm etiam Subditorum amicorum noſtrorum in mari, Quòd per gentem Anglicanam ob olim defendi conſuevit, nefariè diripientes & ſpoliantes ad libitum ſuum, deportavere hominesque in eiſdem in captivitatem miſerimam mancipantes.

2. Cumque ipſos conſpicimus navigium indies præparantes ad Mercatores noſtros ulterius moleſtand', Et ad regnum gravand', niſi citiùs remedium apponatur, eorumque conatum viriliùs obvietur.

3. Conſideratis etiam periculis quæ undique his guerrinis temporibus imminent; Ita quòd nobis & Subditis noſtris defenſionem maris & regni omni feſtinatione quâ poterimus accellerare convenit.

5. Cumque onus iſtud defenſionis quod omnes tangit, per omnes debeat ſupportari, prout per legem & conſuetudinem regni Angliæ fieri conſuevit.

The charges in the Writ are three.

Vobis præfatis Vicecomitibus, Ballivis, Burgenſ. Majoribus, probis hominibus, & omnibus aliis quibuſcunque ſupramentionat' in Burgis, Villis, Villatis, Hamlettis, & locis ſupradictis, eorumque membris in fide & ligeancia, quibus nobis tenemini, & ſicut nos & honorem noſtrum diligitis: Necnon ſub foriſfactur' omnio quæ nobis forisfacere poteritis firmiter injungemus.

The commands of this Writ, which are five.

Mandamus quòd unam novem de guerra, portagii 450. dolior cum hominibus, tam magiſtris peritis, quàm marinariis volentior & expertis centum & octoginta ad minus, Ac tormentis tam majoribus quàm minoribus, pulide tormentario, ac haſtis, & telis, aliiſque armatoriis neceſſariis pro guerra ſufficien': Et cum duplici Eſcippamento, necnon victualibus uſque ad primum diem Martii tunc proximè ſequentem, ad tot homines competen'; & ab inde in viginti & ſex ſeptiman' ad cuſtagia veſtra tam in victualibus, quàm homin' ſalariis, & aliis ad guerram neceſſariis per tempus illud ſuper defenſionem maris in obſequio

By virtue of this Writ, Mr. Hampden is aſſeſſed to twenty ſhillings for his Land in Stoke Mandivil in that County, which not being paid, is certified (amongſt others) into the Chancery upon a Writ of Certiorari, dated 9. Martii, Anno 12 Car. by a Schedule thereunto annexed: And by a Writ of mittimus Teſte, 5. Maii, 13 Car. this Writ of quarto Auguſti, Anno 11 Car. and the Writ of Certiorari, and the Schedule annexed is ſent unto the Exchequer, with a command there to do for the levying of the ſums ſo aſſeſſed and unpaid (Prout de jure, & ſecundùm legem regni noſtri Angliæ fuerit faciend'.) Whereupon a Scire facias iſſued out of the Exchequer, reciting the ſaid Writs, to warn Mr. Hampden, amongſt others, to ſhew cauſe why he ſhould not be charged with this money. Upon this, he being ſummoned, appeareth, and demands the hearing of thoſe Writs and Schedule, which being entred, thereupon he demurreth in Law.

And whether judgment upon this whole Record be to be given againſt John Hampden, that he is to be charged or no, that is the queſtion: For he is the only party in this Caſe: And there is no Cauſe, why any man ſhould ſay, that the queſtion is, Whether Judgment ſhould be given for the King, or for the Defendant; for, as this Caſe is, the King is no party to the Record, but only it is a judicial Proceſs out of the Exchequer, grounded upon thoſe former Records for the Defendant, to ſhew cauſe why he ſhould not be charged, which hath been very elaborately argued by the Defendants Counſel (who demurred) that he ſhould not be charged; and by the Kings Counſel very learnedly and elaborately argued, that he ſhould be charged.

This Caſe is a caſe of great weight, and the greateſt Caſe of weight that ever we read argued by Judges in this place; and therefore adjourned into this place, for advice of all the Judges: For of the one ſide it is alleaged, that it concerneth the King in his Prerogative and Power Royal; And on the other ſide, that it concerneth all the Kings Subjects in their Liberties, their Perſons, and their Eſtates: For which cauſe, it hath made ſome of us to wiſh and move among our ſelves, that it might have been (by his Majeſties favour) heard and determined in another place by his Majeſty, and his great Council of his Realm: Where all conveniencies and inconveniencies might have been conſidered of, provided for, and prevented for preſent and future times, and not to be argued only by us, who are accompted his Majeſties Counſel at Law; wherein if any thing be done amiſs, the fault muſt light upon us, as miſ-adviſing the King therein: But ſeeing that it hath pleaſed his Majeſty, that the ſame ſhould be argued and determined in this place, whoſe pleaſure we muſt obey, I muſt give my beſt advice upon my Oath to the beſt of my skill; wherein, I hope not to trench upon his Highneſs Prerogative, which we are all bound by our Oaths, to the beſt of our skills, to maintain, and not to ſuffer to be diminiſhed; nor upon his Royal Power: But truly to deliver what I conceive the Law to be, concerning the Caſe in Queſtion.

Wherein I muſt confeſs, I have been much diſtracted, having heard ſo learned Arguments on both ſides at the Bar; and ſo many Records and Preſidents cited on either ſide: But they did not ſo much move me; for the Counſel have on either ſide preſſed ſuch Reaſons and Arguments, and cited ſuch Records, as they thought convenient for the maintaining of their opinions; and perhaps with a prejudicate opinion, as I my ſelf, by mine own experience, when I was at the Bar, have argued confidently: And as I then thought the Law to be of that ſide for whom I argued; but after, being at the Bench, weighing indifferently all Reaſons and Authorities, have been of a contrary opinion: And ſo the Law hath been adjudged contrary to that opinion, which I firſt confidently conceived; but that which hath moved me moſt, and maketh me moſt miſtruſt mine own judgment in this Caſe, is, That all my Brothers (who have all argued upon their Oaths, and, I preſume, have ſeen the Records and Preſidents cited on either ſide) have all argued one way, with whoſe opinions I ſhould willingly have concurred, if I could have ſatisfied mine own judgment with their Reaſons; but not being ſatisfied, I have learned, that I muſt not run with a multitude againſt mine own Conſcience: For, I muſt ſtand or fall unto mine own Maſter; and therefore I ſhall ſhew mine own Reaſons, and leave my ſelf to the judgments of my Lords, and others my Brethren: And whatſoever ſhall be adjudged, I muſt ſubmit unto, and ſo do wiſh all others; and do now determine mine opinion to be, That, as this Caſe is, judgment ought to be given for the Defendant.

But before I proceed to the Argument, I deſire to remove two difficulties, Firſt, that by the Demurrer the danger of the Kingdom is confeſſed, and ſo to be a Caſe of neceſſity.

To this I anſwer, that the Demurrer confeſſeth not matters in fact, but where the matter is legally ſet down, but if it be not a legal proceeding, then the Demurrer is no confeſſing of the matter in fact.

This appears in the Book Caſe of 5 Hen. VII. fol. 1. and Cook, lib. 5. fol. 69. in Burtons Caſe, that a Demurrer is no confeſſing in matters of fact; but where the matter precedent is ſufficiently pleaded and laid down, and ſo it is holden in all our Books.

The ſecond difficulty is, that this Caſe is ſo reſolved by all our opinions under our hands, That this Writ was legal, which was much preſſed by Maſter Solicitor.

To this I anſwer, that it is true, I have ſet down mine opinion under mine hand unto a Caſe in February 1636. which is, that when the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, his Majeſty may, by Writ under the Great Seal of England, command all his Subjects of this Kingdom at their charges to provide and furniſh ſuch number of Ships with Men, Victuall, and Munition; and for ſuch time as his Majeſty ſhall think fit for the defence and ſafeguard of the Kingdom from ſuch danger: And that his Majeſty may compel the doing thereof (in caſe of refuſal and refractorineſs) and that in ſuch caſe his Majeſty is the ſole Judge of the danger, and when, and how the ſame is to be prevented and avoided.

To this opinion, I confeſs, I then with the reſt of the Judges ſubſcribed my hand: But I then diſ-aſſented to that opinion, and then ſignified mine opinion to be, that ſuch a charge could not be laid by any ſuch Writ, but by Parliament; and ſo abſolutely in that point one other did agree with me, and diſſent from that opinion which was after ſubſcribed; and ſome others in ſome other particulars from that which was ſubſcribed: But the greater part ſeeming to be abſolutely reſolved upon that opinion, ſome of them affirming, that they had ſeen divers Records and Preſidents of ſuch Writs, ſatisfying them to be of that judgment, I was preſſed to ſubſcribe with them: For that the greater opinion muſt involve the reſt, as it was ſaid to be uſual in Caſes of references. And that the leſſer number muſt ſubmit to the opinion of the more, although they varied in opinion; as it is in our Courts, if three Judges agree in opinion againſt one or two, where there is five Judges, judgment is to be entred per Curiam, if the major part agree, and the others are to ſubmit unto it.

So in Caſes of conference and certificate of their opinions, if the greater part did agree and ſubſcribe, the reſt were to ſubmit their opinions: And this (by more ancient Judges than my ſelf) was affirmed to be the continual practice; and that it was not fit, eſpecially in a Caſe of this nature, ſo much concerning the ſervice of the King, for ſome to ſubſcribe and ſome to forbear their ſubſcription. And that although we did ſubſcribe, yet it did not bind any, but that in point of judgment, if the Caſe came in queſtion judicially before us, we ſhould give our judgments as we ſhould ſee cauſe, after the hearing of Arguments on both ſides, and not to be bound by this ſudden reſolution.

Hereupon I conſented to ſubſcribe; but I then ſaid, in the mean time the King might be mis-informed by our Certificate under our hands, conceiving us all to agree together, and give him this advice under our hands, and not know that there was any that diſſented, or was doubtful: But it was then ſaid, the King ſhould be truly informed thereof. And thereupon, we that did diſſent, did ſubſcribe our hands with ſuch proteſtations as aforeſaid, onely for conformity, although contrary to the opinion I then conceived.

But this being before Arguments heard of either ſide, or any preſidents ſeen, I hold that none is bound by that opinion: And if I had been of that opinion that was ſubſcribed, yet now having heard all the Arguments of both ſides, and the Reaſons of the Kings Counſel to maintain this Writ, and why the Defendant is to be charged, and the Arguments of the Defendants Counſel againſt the Writ, and their Reaſons why the Defendant ſhould not be charged to pay the money aſſeſſed upon them: And having duly conſidered of the Records and Preſidents cited and ſhewed unto me, eſpecially thoſe of the Kings ſide, I am now of an abſolute opinion, that this Writ is illegal, and declare my opinion contrary to that which is ſubſcribed by us all. And if I had been of the ſame opinion as was ſubſcribed, yet upon better adviſement, being abſolutely ſetled in my judgment and conſcience, in a contrary opinion, I think it no ſhame to declare, that I do retract that opnion: for, Humanum eſt errare, rather than to argue againſt mine own conſcience: And therefore now having (as I conceived) removed theſe difficulties, I proceed to my Argument, and ſhall ſhew the Reaſons of mine opinion, and leave the ſame, as I have ſaid, to my Lords and Brethren.

My Reaſons and Grounds that I ſhall inſiſt upon, are theſe:

1. That the command, by this Writ of *Aug.*4. 11 Caroli, to make Ships at the charge of the Inhabitants of the County (being the ground of this ſuit, and cauſe of this charge) is illegal, and contrary to the Common Law, not being by authority of Parliament.

2. That if at the Common Law it had been doubtful, yet now this Writ is illegal, being expreſly contrary to divers Statutes prohibiting any general charge to be laid upon the Commons in general, without conſent in Parliament.

3. That it is not to be maintained by any Prerogative, or Power Royal, nor allegation of neceſſity or danger.

4. That admitting it were legal to lay ſuch a charge upon Maritine parts, yet to charge an Inland County, as the County of Bucks is, with making Ships, and furniſhing them with Maſters, Mariners and Souldiers at their charge which are far remote from the Seas, is illegal, and not warranted by any former Preſident, &c.

5. I ſhall examine the Preſidents and Records cited to warrant this Writ, which have been all the principal grounds of the Arguments to maintain the ſame. And I conceive, there is not one Preſident or Record in any precedent time, that hath been produced and ſhewed unto me, that doth maintain any Writ to lay ſuch a charge upon any County, Inland, or Maritine.

6. I will examin this particular Writ, and the ſeveral parts thereof, and do conceive that it is illegal, and not ſufficient to ground this charge upon the Defendant.

1. The Motives of this Writ are not ſufficient to cauſe a Writ to be ſent.

2. The Command of the Writ, to prepare a Ship at the charge of the Inhabitants, with Munition and Men, is againſt the Common Law and Statutes.

3. That to lay a charge of finding Victuals, and Wages of Souldiers and Mariners, is illegal, and contrary to the Common Law, and divers Statutes in point.

4. The power of Aſſeſment given to the Sheriff alone, and to diſtrain for this, is illegal, and not warranted by any Preſident.

5. The power of impriſoning is illegal, and contrary to divers Statutes, and not warranted by the Preſidents.

6. That the Percloſe of the Writ, and the practice of it, is contrary to it ſelf, and oppoſitum in objecto.

7. If this Writ were legal, yet the manner of Aſſeſment by the Sheriff, as it is certified, is not warranted by the Writ: So conſequently this ſum cannot be demanded of the Defendant by virtue of this Writ.

8. That the Certiorari and Scire facias, iſſued not out legally; and ſo conſequently no judgment can be given againſt the Defendant thereupon.

For the firſt point, that this Writ of *Aug.*4. 11 Car. is againſt the Common Law: my Reaſons are theſe:

1. Becauſe that this is the firſt Writ, ſince the Conqueſt, that went to any Inland County, to prepare a Ship with Men and Munition, for ought appeareth by any Record that hath been ſhewed; and where there was never any preſident before, by the Rule of Mr. *Littleton, fol.*23. the Law is not conceived to bear any ſuch Writ. And Sir Edward Coke in his Commentary upon *Littleton, fol.*81. ſaith, that where there is no example, it is a great intendment, that the Law will not bear it.

So I conceive here, there never having been a preſident before of any ſuch Writ to the Sheriff and Inhabitants of a County, to prepare a Ship with Men and Munition, upon any occaſion whatſoever, that it is againſt the Common Law to award ſuch Writs.

2. For that the Common Law of England ſetleth a Freedom in the Subjects, in reſpect of their perſons, and giveth them a true property in their Goods and Eſtates, ſo that without their conſent (that is, their actual conſent, or implicit, by a common Ordinance, which they conſented unto by a common aſſent in Parliament) it cannot be taken from them, nor their Eſtate charged. And for this purpoſe the Law diſtinguiſheth between Bondmen, whoſe Eſtates are at their Lords will and diſpoſition; and Free-men, whoſe property none may invade, charge, nor take away, but by their own free conſent. But here in this Caſe is a charge laid upon the Subjects, without their conſent; and therefore not warranted by Law; which is proved by theſe Authorities.

Coke in his *Rep. l.*8. *f.*92. in Francis Caſe, ſetteth down this Rule, Quod noſtrum eſt, ſine facto ſeu defectu noſtro amitti, ſeu in alienum transferri non poteſt.

Mr. Lambert, fol. 24. ſetting down the Laws of England which were confirmed by William the Conquerour, hath theſe words: Inter alia, volumus & concedimus, quod omnes liberi homines Monarchiæ Regni ſui prædicti, habeant & teneant, terras ſuas bene & in pace liberas ab omni exactione injuſta, & ab omni Tallagio (not mentioning there injuſta) Ita quòd nihil ab eis exigatur præter ſervitium juſte debitum: Hereby it appears, there is an abſolute freedom from all Tallage. 17 King John in Matt. Paris, fol. 246. The King doth grant and confirm unto his Barons and Commons inter alia, theſe Liberties following: Nullum Scutagium vel auxilium ponamus in Regno noſtro, niſi per Commune Concilium Regni noſtri, niſi ad redimendum corpus noſtrum, filium noſtrum primogenitum mill' faciend' ciend', vel ad primogenitam filiam noſtram maritand'. By this it appears, what was then conceived to be amongſt others, their Liberties, and then confirmed, which was, that no aid ſhould be put upon them but by Parliament; for the Parliament was then called Commune Concilium.

That the Law is ſo, appeareth by the Treatiſe written by Forteſcue, who had been Chief Juſtice of England, and then Chancellor of England in King Henry the Sixth's time, when he wrote the Book entituled, De laudibus Legum Angliæ. For fol. 25. cap. 9. he ſaith thus, That the King of Eugland cannot alter nor change the Laws of England at his pleaſure.

For, Principatu non Regali, ſed & politico ipſe populo ſuo dominatur: If his power were Royal onely, then he might change the Laws, Tallagia quoque & cætera onera eis imponere, ipſis inconſultis; but adds, that the King of England, ſine Subditorum aſſenſu Leges mutare non poteſt, nec ſubjectum populum renitentem onerare impoſitionibus peregrinis, And in chap. 13. fol. 31. he compares the King and Subjects of England, to the Head and Body natural, Ut non poteſt caput corporis Phyſici nervos ſuos commutare, neque membris ſuis proprias vires, & propria ſanguinis alimenta denegare: ſic nec Rex, qui caput corporis politici eſt, mutare poteſt Leges corporis illius, nec ejuſdem populi ſubſtantias proprias ſubtrahere reclamantibus eis, aut invitis: Thus he in this place: But in fol. 84. cap. 36. he ſeems to ſay, In hoc individuo Rex Angliæ nec per ſe, nec miniſtros tallagia, ſubſidia, aut quævis onera alia imponit Legiis ſuis, aut Leges eorum mutat, aut nova condit, ſine conceſſione vel aſſenſu totius Regni ſui in Parliamento ſuo expreſſo: which words ſeem ſo general, that in no caſe he may do it.

So it appeareth by the Book Caſe, 13 *H.*4. *fol.*14. that the grant of the King which tendeth to the charge and prejudice of his People in general, is not good, unleſs by Parliament. But it is agreed there, that Grants of Tolls, of Fairs, of Pontage, of Pikage, Murage, Ferrying, or ſuch like, which are for the profit, good, and eaſe of them that will take benefit thereof, and not compulſory to any to pay, but to them that will take the benefit of ſuch Fairs, &c. and being very ſmall and reaſonable ſums, the Law doth give allowance unto them: but if they were great ſumms, that tend to the charge of the People, the Law will judge them void.

This appears in Sir Edward Cokes Reports, *lib.*5 *fol.*63. in the Caſe of the Chamberlain of London, That an Ordinance made by the Common Council of London, where they have a Cuſtom by the ſaid Common Council, to make reaſonable Ordinances to bind all within the City concerning Clothes to be brought to Blackwel-Hall, there always to be viewed, and meaſured, and ſearched before they were ſold, and a penny appointed for the Officer that did that ſervice; That ſuch a charge was reaſonable, for that it was for the publick benefit of the City and Commonwealth: And a pecuniary penalty laid for not performance of that Ordinance was allowed. *Ibid. fol.*64. in Clarks Caſe, is reſolved, That an Ordinance made by the aſſent of the Plaintiff himſelf, and other Burgeſſes for the Town of S. Albans, of a ſmall Tax upon the Inhabitants of the Town towards the erection of the Courts, and other neceſſaries for the Term to be kept there; it was allowed to be good, and did bind the Plaintiff, being by the Plaintiffs own conſent, and for the publick good of the Town.

Alſo Coke, *l.*11. *fol.*86. in Darcies Caſe, citeth this out of *Fitzherb. Natur. Brev. f.*122. That every Grant of the King, hath this condition in it, tacite or expreſs, Quòd patria per donationes illas magis ſolito non oneretur, ſeu gravetur.

And as by Grant the King cannot charge his People, ſo neither can he by Writ lay any charge upon his People, but by their conſent, or where they have apparent benefit thereby. And that is the reaſon of the Writ in the Regiſter, fol. 127. Fitzherb. Nat. Brev. fol. 113. where, by breach of the Sea-wall, any innundation of the Country, the King, who is Pater Patriæ, and taketh care for the good and ſafety of his People, ſendeth out his Commiſſioners to enquire by whoſe default any ſuch breach happened, and to cauſe all that had Lands and Commons near adjoining, which may have benefit of incloſed Marſhes, or loſs by ſuch Innundation, to be contributary to the making up of the Sea-walls; and this is done by a Jury: But this charge cannot be laid upon a County or Town in general, but particular men that have benefit or loſs, or may have loſs or benefit thereby: And this is done upon enquiry of a Jury before the Sheriff or Commiſſioners appointed,

So it is at this day upon the Commiſſion of Sewers, as appeareth by Coke, lib. 10. fol. 142. in the Caſe of the Iſle of Ely; That the Taxation by the Commiſſioners of Sewers muſt be upon every particular man that hath, or may have loſs or benefit by ſuch Innundations, and making up the Walls, and cannot be laid upon any remote parts, which are out of the level of ſuch loſs or benefit: And it muſt be certain and particular upon perſons certain, by reaſon of Land or Profit, and cannot be laid in general; But in theſe Caſes there is a particular loſs or benefit, and in particular places, and but in petty charges; and then where the Law alloweth that which in reaſon is to be done, that may be done, without a ſpecial Statute; for, De minimis non curat Lex: but in this caſe there is a general charge through the Kingdom, which the Law doth not permit without common conſent in Parliament.

Object. But it hath been alledged, that this charge hath been impoſed for the proviſion of the publick ſafety and defence of the Kingdom; And may not this be done, when every one hath advantage by it?

Solut. To this I ſay, When imminent danger and cauſe of defence is, there muſt be defence made by every man (when the King ſhall command) with his perſon; and in ſuch a caſe every man, as it is ſaid in the preſident, is bound per ſe & ſua to defend the Kingdom. And I think no man will be ſo unwiſe, but that he will exponere ſe & ſua for the defence of the Kingdom, when there is danger; for otherwiſe he is in danger to loſe ſe & ſua. But to lay a charge in general upon a Kingdom, either for making or preparing of Ships or Money in lieu thereof, is not to be done but by Parliament, when the charge is to be born in general of all the Subjects.

To prove further, that no man may have his goods taken from him but by his conſent, appeareth by a Record in Mic. 14. E. 2. Rot. 60. in the K. Bench in a Writ of Error brought upon a Judgment given in Durham; where, in an Action of Treſpaſs by W. Heyborne againſt W. Keylow, for entering his houſe, and breaking his Cheſt, and taking away 70*l.* in mony, the Defendant pleading Not guilty, the Jury found a ſpecial Verdict, That the Scots having entered the Biſhoprick with an Army into Durham, and making great burning and ſpoils, the Communalty of Durham met together at Durham, whereof the Plaintiff was one, and agreed to ſend ſome to compound with them for money to depart, and were all ſworn to perform what Compoſition ſhould be made, and to perform what Ordinance they ſhould make in that behalf: and thereupon they compounded with the Scots for 1600. Marks. But becauſe that was to be paid immediately, they all conſented that William Keylow the Defendant, and others, ſhould go into every mans houſe to ſearch what ready money was there, and to take it for the making of that ſum, and that it ſhould be repaid by the Communalty of Durham: And thereupon the Defendant did enter into the Plaintiffs houſe, and did break open the Cheſt, and took the 70. pounds, which was paid accordingly towards that Fine. The Jury were demanded whether the Plaintiff was preſent, and did conſent to the taking of the money; they ſaid, No: Whereupon the Plaintiff had judgment to recover the ſaid 70. pounds and damages; for that otherwiſe he had no remedy for his money ſo taken, and the Defendant committed in execution for the ſame: And thereupon the Defendant Keylow brought a Writ of Errour in the Kings Bench, and aſſigned his Errours in point of Judgment, and there the judgment was reverſed:

1. Becauſe the Plaintiff Heybourne had his ſufficient remedy againſt the Communalty of Durham for his money.

2. Becauſe he himſelf had agreed to this Ordinance, and was ſworn to perform it; and that the Defendant did nothing but that he aſſented unto by his Oath: and therefore is accompted to do nothing but by his conſent, and as a Servant unto him; therefore he was no Treſpaſſer: And therefore the judgment given in Durham was reverſed, becauſe he had aſſented to that Ordinance; though he was afterwards unwilling, yet having once conſented, his Goods were lawfully taken: By which it appeareth, that if he had not particularly conſented, ſuch an Ordinance could not have been good to bind him, although this was in a caſe of great danger, and for defence.

In the ſecond Year of King Richard the Second, Pars prima, The Parliament Roll proved this directly: although it be no Act of Parliament, yet the Record is much to be regarded, for it ſheweth what the Law was then conceived to be: For, Scroope the Lord Chancellor then ſhewed to all the Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, that all the Lords and Sages had met together ſince the laſt Parliament, and having conſidered of the great danger the Kingdom was in, and how Money might be raiſed in a caſe of imminent danger, which could not ſtay the delay of a Parliament, and the Kings Coffers had not ſufficient therein; The Record is, That they all agreed, that money ſufficient could not be had without laying a charge upon the Communalty; which (ſay they) cannot be done without a Parliament. And the Lords themſelves for the time did ſupply the ſaid neceſſity with money they lent. Which Record proved directly, that this charge, without an Act of Parliament, is illegal.

So upon this Reaſon I conclude, That this Writ compulſorily to charge the Subjects againſt their Wills, is not warranted by any Books, and therefore illegal.

If this Writ ſhould be allowed, great inconveniencies would enſue, which the Law always will avoid, and not permit any inconveniences.

That if ſuch a charge may be laid upon the Counties by Writ, without aſſent of Parliament, then no man knoweth what his charge may be; for they may be charged as often as the King pleaſeth, and with making as many Ships, and of what burthen, and with what charge of Munition, Victuals, and Men, as ſhall be ſet down: Wherein I doubt not, but if the Law were ſo, the King, being a very pious and juſt King, would uſe his power very moderately; but Judges in their judgments, are not to look to preſent times, but to all future times, what may follow upon their judgments.

That this inconvenience may be, it appears by the Dane-gelt, firſt appointed in time of neceſſity to redeem them from the cruelty of the Danes, which often changed, and ſtill increaſed: for in Anno Domini, 991. when it began, it was ten thouſand pounds; and Anno Domini 994. it was increaſed to Sixteen thouſand pounds; and Anno Domini 1002. it was increaſed to Twenty four Thouſand pounds; and Anno Domini 1007. it was increaſed to Six and thirty Thouſand pounds; and in Anno Domini 1012. it was increaſed to Eight and forty Thouſand pounds. So if this Writ be well awarded, it may be at pleaſure what bounds it ſhall have.

Alſo there were never but one ſingle Subſidy and two Fifteens uſed to be granted in Parliament, until the one and thirtieth Year of Queen Elizabeth, and then a double Subſidy and Four Fifteens were granted, Sir Walter Mildmay, then Chancellour of the Exchequer moving for it, and ſaying, his Heart did quake to move it, not knowing the inconveniences that ſhould grow upon it; but ſhewed great reaſons for ſo moving of it, being immediately after the Spaniſh Invaſion: and ſo it was granted. Afterwards in the Five and thirtieth Year of Queen Elizabeth, treble Subſidies, and Six Fifteens were granted: and in the three and fortieth Year of Queen Elizabeth, Four Subſidies and Eight Fifteens; and yet theſe were not accompted grievous, neither would it have been, if it had been Ten Subſidies, becauſe in Parliament, and convenient times and means appointed for the levying of them.

Tonnage and Poundage were granted to this end, 13 R.2. (and have continued ever ſince by ſeveral Grants) that the King might have monies in his Purſe againſt time of need for extraordinary occaſions; eſpecially for the defence of the Realm, and for guarding the Seas, as it is eſpecially declared by the Statute of 1 Jac. and former Statutes.

Object. But it is ſaid, that Tonnage and Poundage is not granted now to the King; Therefore the King is enforced to take theſe extraordinary Courſes.

Solut. Though it be not granted, yet I think it is taken; and I doubt not but to the ſame intent, and for the ſame purpoſe for which it was firſt granted; which was for the defence of the Kingdom, and the guard of the Seas.

Therefore in caſe of danger and neceſſity, every Subject, for defence of the Kingdom, is bound Ligeanciæ debito, as ſome Records ſay; and Ligeanciæ ſuæ vinculo aſtricti, as others ſpeak: Se & ſua totis viribus & poteſtate exponere, &c. And in ſuch a caſe the King may command the perſons of his Subjects, and arreſt their Ships to wait on his, to defend the Sea: Yet this alſo (when they go out of their Counties) at the Kings charges. But to command the Subjects by Writ to build new Ships, or to prepare Ships at their charges, or to lay a common charge on the Subjects in general, for matter of defence or avoidance of danger, is not warrantable by the Common Law.

2. Another inconvenience is, That it is left in the power of the Sheriff to charge any mans Eſtate at his pleaſure; taxing ſome, and ſparing others, as his affection leadeth him. And ſometimes by colour thereof, levying more than be need, and enriching himſelf; which power the Law never alloweth him, although it were in leſs matters; as to make an Aſſeſsment for the breach of the Sea-walls, but to do it by a Jury, and not himſelf alone.

So for theſe Reaſons I conclude this Writ is againſt the Common Law, and ſo illegal.

For the ſecond point, I conceive, if the Common Law were doubtful in this, whether ſuch a charge might be impoſed by Writ, yet now it is made clear by divers expreſs Statutes, that the King is not to lay any charge upon his Subjects, but by their conſent in Parliament: and that is by many Acts of Parliament in force, and not repealed. And there is no doubt but the Kings by Statute may bind them and their Succeſſors not to lay any ſuch charge, every King being bound by Oath to perform the Statutes of his Realm.

The Statute of 25 *Edw.*1. which is in theſe words: 25 *Edw.*1.

Foraſmuch as divers People of our Realm are in fear that the Aids and Taxes which they have given us before time towards our Wars and other buſineſs of their own Grant and Good Will (howſoever they were made) might turn to a Bondage to them and their Heirs, becauſe they might be at another time found in the Rolls; and likewiſe for the Prizes taken throughout our Realm by our Miniſters, We have granted for us and our Heirs, that we ſhall not draw any ſuch Aids, Taxes, or Prizes into a Cuſtom for any thing that hath been done heretofore by any Roll, or any other Preſident that may be found.

Ibidem, cap.6. Moreover We have granted for us and our Heirs, as well to Arch-biſhops, Biſhops, Abbots, Priors, and other Folk of Holy Church; As alſo to Earls, Barons, and to all the Communalty of the Land, that for no buſineſs from henceforth we ſhall take ſuch Aids, Taxes, nor Prizes, but by the common aſſent of the Realm, and for the common Profit thereof, ſaving the ancient Aids and Prizes due and accuſtomed. Which are the expreſs words of that Statute. Ibid.cap.6.

Now what thoſe ancient Aids were, is well known, viz. that they were, ad redimendum corpus, ad filium primogenitum militem facien': Et ad filiam primogenitam maritandam. Which Aids concern not the Subjects in general, but particular men were liable thereunto by their tenures: ſo this ſaving needed not to have been; for the Body of the Act extended not to them, but to general Aids of the Kingdom.

However, if this Salvo, as it hath been objected, would preſerve this Aid now in queſtion; yet the Statute made afterwards de Tallagio non concedendo, being without any Salvo, takes it away: which Statute Raſtal in his Abridgment, *fol.*441. in his Title of Taxes, abridgeth in this manner;

Anno 25 Edw.1. It is Ordained, That the Taxes taken, ſhall not be taken in Cuſtom, nor but by the aſſent of this Realm, except the ancient Aids and Taxes.

And there the Taxes of Wool of forty ſhillings a Sack is releaſed.

Ibidem 2. That no Tallage by us or our Heirs in our Realm, be put or levied, without the aſſent of the Arch-biſhops, Biſhops, Earls, Barons, Knights, Burgeſſes, and other Free Commons of our Realm, That nothing be taken from henceforth in the Name, or by reaſon of Male tout of a Sack of Wool, Statutum de Tallagio non concedendo.

Maſter Solicitor laboured much to prove, that there was no ſuch Statute de Tallagio non concedendo. Object.

1. For that it is not to be found in the Rolls of Parliament.
2. For that it is not ſet down, when it was made.
3. That it was but an Abſtract out of Confirmatio Chartæ libertatum.

Maſter Attorney ſaid, he would not deny it to be a Statute, neither would he affirm it; but yet it did not extend to take away the Aid demanded manded by Prerogative, or Power Royal, for defence of the Kingdom.

Solut. To this I anſwer, that it was never doubted to be a Statute, until this Argument; and that it is a Statute, appeareth;

1. For that it is printed in the Book of Statutes as a Statute.

2. It is recited in the Petition of Right, 3 Car. to be a Statute.

3. To that, that it is not found in the Rolls, I anſwer, That many Statutes which are known Statutes, are not found in the Rolls, as Magna Charta is not.

And as touching the time, I conceive it to be made in 34 *Edw.*1. *cap.*1. for ſo it is ſet down in the great printed Book of Statutes, Anno 1618. to be the firſt Chapter of the Statutes therein made, viz. in theſe words:

No Tallage or Aid ſhall be taken or levied by us or our Heirs in our Realm, without the good will and aſſent of Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Earls, Barons, Knights, Burgeſſes, and other Free men of the Land.

And that it is a Statute, all my Brethren the Judges have agreed.

The onely doubt then is, Whether this Statute extendeth to Aids for defence of the Kingdom: which I think it doth; for it is the preciſe words, That no Tallage or Aid ſhall be taken or levied, but by conſent in Parliament: which extendeth to all manner of Aids.

Bod. fol.97. Edw.1. Bodin ſaith *fol.*97. by a Law made in the time of Edw. 1. that it was provided and enacted, That no Tax, Tallage, nor Aid, ſhall be impoſed, but by Grant in Parliament. And by this Law the Subjects of England have defended themſelves ever ſince, as with a Buckler: whereby it appeareth that notice was taken of this Law in Foreign parts, and ſo held ſtill to be a Statute in force.

14 Edw.3. c.1. The next Statute is 14 *Edw.*3. *cap.*1. which reciteth the Grant of the great Subſidy of the ninth Fleece of the ninth Lamb, &c. (formerly granted) and thereupon theſe words follow:

We, willing to provide for the Indemnity of the ſaid Prelates, Earls, Barons, and other the Communalty of the Realm; and alſo of the Citizens, Burgeſſes and Merchants aforeſaid, will and grant for us and our Heirs, to the ſame Prelates, Earls, Barons, and Commons, Citizens, Burgeſſes, and Merchants, that the ſame Grant ſhall not be had forth in example, nor fall to their prejudice in time to come: Nor that they be from henceforth charged nor grieved to make any Aid, nor ſuſtain charge, if it be not by the common Aſſent of the ſaid Prelates, Earls, Barons, and other Great Men, and Commons of the ſaid Realm of England, and that in the Parliament: and that all the Profits ariſing of the ſaid Aid, and of Wards Marriages, Cuſtoms, and Eſcheats, and other Profits ariſing of our ſaid Realm of England, ſhall be ſet and diſpended upon the maintenance of the ſafeguard of this Realm of England, and of our Wars of Scotland, France and Gaſcoin, and in no place elſewhere, during our ſaid Wars.

By this Statute it appeareth, that it is expreſly provided, That the Subjects ſhould not be from thenceforth charged nor grieved to make any aid, nor ſuſtain any charge, but by common aſſent, and that in Parliament; which is as expreſs as may be, and excluſive to any charge otherwiſe; which I conceive, was made againſt the appointment of making or preparing, and ſending of Ships at the charges of the Towns whence they were, or ſending Men out of their Counties at the charges of the County.

Now, where it is alledged by my Brother Weſton, and my Brother Berkley, Berkley, that this was but a temporary Statute, and ended when his Wars ended, which appeareth by the laſt Clauſe, for employment of thoſe profits of his Wards, &c. towards thoſe Wars : I conceive it appeareth to be an abſolute and perpetual Statute; for it is granted for him and his Heirs, which is in perpetuity : And alſo it appears by Plowd. his Commentaries, *fol.*457. in Sir Thomas Wroth's Caſe, where a grant is by the name of the King, which is in his politick capacity; this extended againſt him, his Heirs and Succeſſors, although they be not named.

Alſo the intendment of this Law appeareth to be for the ſecurity of the Subjects from thenceforth for all future Ages; and then the Office of Judges is, as appears by Sir Edward Cokes Reports, lib. 3, fol. 7. and Plowdens Commentaries in Byſton and Studs Caſe, to conſtrue Statutes according to the true intent of the makers thereof, which was in this Caſe, That it ſhould be a perpetual ſecurity for them, And to little purpoſe it had been to make a Statute to continue but during the time of the Wars.

Alſo where it is alleaged, that the Statute of 14 *Edw.*III. is not mentioned in the Petition of Right, which is ſome Argument that it was not conceived to be a continuing Statute. Object.

To that I anſwer, that in that Petition of Right it is ſaid, That by the Statntes there recited, and other the good Statutes of this Realm, the Subjects ſhall not be compelled to contribute to any Tax, Tallage, Aid, nor other like charge not ſet by Parliament, in which this Statute is as well intended, as other Statutes, and as far, as if it had been expreſly cited. Sol.

Alſo it appeareth by all the Books of Statutes, that this Statute is Printed as a Statute continuing, whereas others expired, are ſo ſet down as expired.

21 *Edw.*III. pars 2. m. 11. A Subſidy being granted by Parliament, viz. Forty ſhillings of every Sack of Wooll tranſported before Michaelmas following, and Six pence of every twenty ſhillings of Merchandize, for the ſafe guarding of the Merchants, defence of the Coaſts, &c. 21 *Edw.*3.p.2. m.11.

After Michaelmas, viz. 31. Octob. 21 *Edw.*III. by Writ the Collectors were commanded to continue the Collection of thoſe Subſidies until Eaſter. But 26. Novemb. 21 Edw. 3. the King by Writ commanded the ſtay of the Collection of the ſixpence in the twenty ſhillings, and to continue the Collection of the Subſidies upon the Sacks of Wool until Eaſter.

22 Edw. III. Parliament, mem. 16. the Parliament being holden in Lent, the Commons complained of this continuance of the Collection of the Subſidy upon the Sacks of Wooll longer than the Parliament had granted it; and provided, that it ſhould not be continued longer than Eaſter by the procurement of no perſon. 22 Edw. 3. m.16.

By this it appeareth, that the Parliament being careful, that the time for levying of a Subſidy granted, ſhould not be inlarged by any power, much leſs would they admit of a Writ, to lay a charge without grant by Parliament.

25 *Edw.*III. *m.*8. it was enacted, That no man ſhould be compelled to find men at Arms, other than ſuch as hold by ſuch Services, except it be by common aſſent in Parliament. 26 *Ed.*3.m.8.

By this appeareth, that if men be not compellable to find a man at Arms, unleſs it be by common aſſent in Parliament, much leſs is any bound to be contributory to the preparing of a Ship with 180. men at Arms, and Victuals, and Wages of the Souldiers for a time, unleſs it be by common aſſent in Parliament.

Rot. Parliamenti 2 *Hen.*IV. *nn.*22. (an Act of Parliament, as I account in the very point) is in theſe words: For that of late divers Commiſſions were made to divers Cities and Burroughs within the Realm, to make Barges and Barringers, without aſſent in Parliament, and otherwiſe than hath been done before theſe hours; The Commons do pray the King, that thoſe Commiſſions may be repealed, and that they may not be of any force or effect, to which it is anſwered: That the King willeth, that the ſaid Commiſſions be repealed in all points, which is an abſolute and perfect Statute; but then there is added theſe words: But for the great neeeſſity that he hath of ſuch Veſſels for defence of the Realm, in caſe that the Wars ſhall happen, he will treat with his Lords of this matter, and afterwards will ſhew it unto the Commons, to have their counſel and advice in this point: So by this Record it appeareth, that the Commons did conceive, That no Cities, Burroughs, nor Towns, without aſſent in Parliament, were to be charged with the making of ſuch Veſſels, to which the King agreeth. And from that day to this very day, (until the making of theſe Writs) in no Age (although the Kingdom hath been many times in danger of Invaſion, and hath been invaded) there do appear any Records that ever I have ſeen, or any Writs directed to any Towns or Cities, at their charges to make or prepare any Ships or Veſſels whatſoever.

Object. And whereas it hath been objected, and eſpecially inſiſted upon by my Brother Berkley, That this latter part (that the King will treat with his Lords concerning them, and after confer with the Commons) is a gentle denial of that Act, as the experience is at this day: Roy ſe aviſera, is a denial of an Act.

Solut. Hereunto I anſwer, That it is an abſolute Act; for it is an abſolute aſſent unto the Petition, and that which came after, was but a plauſible excuſe; for that ſuch Commiſſions had gone out, and this further conſultation never appeared to be made, nor ever any ſuch Writ or Commiſſion for ſuch Veſſels to be made, went out ever ſince until this Writ.

13 *H.*4. nu.10. 13 *Hen.*IV.*nu.*10. A grant is of a Subſidy of Woolls, Woolfels, Hides, and other things there mentioned, and of Tonnage and Poundage for one year, for the defence of the Marches of Callice, &c. and for the defence of the Realm, and ſafeguard of the Sea: And therein is this expreſs proviſo, viz. Provided always, that this grant of a Subſidy of Wools, &c. and of Tonnage and Ponndage in time to come, ſhall not be taken in example, to charge the Lords or Commons of this Realm with any manner of Subſidy, for the ſafeguard of Callice, &c. nor for the defence of the Realm, nor for the ſafeguard of the Seas, unleſs it be by the wills of the Lords and Commons of this Realm; and that by a new grant to be made, and that in full Parliament to come. By this it appeareth, that it was then provided, That no charge ſhould be laid upon the Lords or Commons, no not for the defence of the Realm, but by grant in full Parliament.

13 *H.*4. nu.33. 13 Hen. IV. nu. 33. A Petition was in Parliament, reciting, that there was an Office granted of Alnager within London, and the Suburbs of the ſame, with Fees to that appertaining, where any ſuch Office never was, nor any ſuch Fees appertaining thereunto; and that by colour thereof they levy upon the ſale of every Broad-cloth, an half penny of the Buyer, and an half penny of the Seller; and upon ſale of every hundred Ells of Canvas, a penny of the Seller, and a penny of the Buyer, wrongfully againſt the Statute in the time of your Highneſs Progenitors made to the contrary; by which it is ordained, That no Tallage nor Aid ſhall be granted nor levied, without aſſent and conſent of the Lords and Commons of your Realm, as by the ſaid Statute fully is declared: Wherefore they pray, that ſuch Letters Patents thereof made ſhall be void, and holden for none: And this was granted; whereby it appeareth, that it is declared then in Parliament, that theſe Statutes were, and did continue, that no Tallage or Aid ſhall be levied without grant in Parliament.

1 Rich. III, cap. 2. It is enacted in theſe words: Our Soveraign Lord the King remembring how the Commons of this Realm by new and unlawful inventions, and inordinate covetiſe againſt the Laws of this Realm, have been put to great ſervitude, and importune charges and exactions; and eſpecially by a new impoſition, called a Benevolence, whereby divers Subjects of this Land againſt their Wills and Liberties have paid great ſums of money, &c.

It is enacted and ordained, That the Subjects and Commons of this Realm from henceforth ſhall in no wiſe be charged by ſuch charges or impoſition, called a Benevolence, or by ſuch like charge: And that ſuch exactions, called a Benevolence, before that time taken, ſhall be taken for no example, to make any ſuch, or any like charge of any his Subjects of this Realm hereafter; but ſhall be damned and adnulled for ever.

By this it appeareth, that it is expreſly provided, That the Subjects ſhall not be charged by way of Benevolence, which is in nature of a free gift, or ſuch like charge, that is, no charge of money ſhall be upon the Subject for any pretence whatſoever, be it for defence in time of danger, or the guarding of the Seas.

The laſt and concluding Statute is the Petition of Right, made in the third year of his Majeſties Reign, where reciting, that it was enacted by a Statute made in the time of Edward the Firſt, commonly called, Statum de Tallagio non concedendo, that no Tallage or Aid ſhall be laid or levied by the King or his Heirs in this Realm, without the good will and aſſent of the Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Earls, Barons, Knights, and other the Freemen of the Communalty of this Realm: And by a Statute of 25 Edw. III. That none ſhall be compelled to make any loans to the King, becauſe ſuch loans were againſt reaſon, and the franchiſe of the Land: And by another Statute, That none ſhall be charged by any impoſitions, called a Benevolence: By which Statutes, and other the Statutes of this Realm, your Subjects have inherited this freedom. That they ſhall not be compelled to contribute to any Tax, Tallage, Aid, nor other like charge not ſet by Paliament: And then they pray, that none hereafter be compelled to make or yield any Gift, Loan, Benevolence, Tax, or any ſuch like charge, without common conſent by Act of Parliament.

And after five other things there mentioned, the concluſion is, All which they pray as their Rights and Liberties: Unto which the King anſwers, Let right be done, as is deſired, which is a full and perfect Statute, ſhewing in this point the Liberties of the Kingdom prayed and allowed, which was not done without the advice of the Judges then being, whereof I was one; whoſe opinions were then demanded, and reſolved, that the ſame did not give any new Liberty, but declared what the Liberty of the Subject was in this amongſt others, that they ſhould not be compelled to be contributory to any Tax, Tallage, Aid, nor any like charge not ſet by Parliament.

By reaſon of all which Statutes, eſpecially of thoſe of 25 Edw. I. 34 Edw. I. and 14 Edw. III. being in the Negative and in force, I conceive that thoſe Writs, to lay ſuch a charge, is againſt the Law, and ſo the aſſeſſment by colour thereof not lawful.

Object. Now, whereas the precedent Arguments have been, that the Kingdom being in danger, therefore theſe Writs went forth for the making of Ships, becauſe there could not be ſo ſuddenly any Parliament called: And the Parliament is a ſlow body; and the Kingdom may be loſt, whileſt there is conſultation: And the danger is conceived to be very great, becauſe the firſt Writ of 4. Auguſti ſo mentioneth, that the Pirates provide a great Navy to infeſt the Kingdom, and it is fit with ſpeed to provide a remedy; and that the Writ of Mittimus mentioneth, that Salus Reipublicæ periclitabatur: And we muſt believe theſe ſuggeſtions to be true; for the Kings Certificate by this Writ is, Recordum ſuperlativum, as Maſter Solicitor and my Brother Berkley termed it; and we muſt leave it upon the Kings conſcience (if it be not true) to lay ſuch a charge upon an untrue ſuggeſtion: And the Defendant alſo by his Demurrer hath confeſſed all the ſuggeſtions in the Writ to be true; therefore it muſt be conceived, that the Kingdom was in great danger, and preſent remedy muſt be had by making theſe Ships, and may be commanded by thoſe Writs, and not to ſtay for a Parliament: And my Brother Crawley ſaid, It may be, that if a Parliament were called, they will not yield to the going forth of ſuch Writs, although the Kingdom were never ſo much in danger: And this charge, in reſpect of the making of defence, is not within the intention of theſe Statutes; and if it had been expreſly mentioned within a Statute, that ſuch a charge ſhould not be impoſed, it had been a void Statute, and contrary to the Law, that the Kingdom ſhould not be defended.

Solut. 1. To all theſe I anſwer, That the matter now in queſtion is upon the Writ of 4. Auguſti. whether that be legal, or not; and the ſuggeſtions therein be ſufficient or not for the Writ of Mittimus, mentioning that Salus Reipublicæ periclitabatur, at the day of iſſuing forth the Writ of 4. Auguſti (which is a year and a half after the firſt Writ) doth not help it, And this is not notified to the Sheriff and Inhabitants of the County, to make them the more careful, and in the greater contempt, if a Ship were not provided: But it is only a notification to the Barons of the Exchequer, that the ſame was the reaſon why the ſaid Writ iſſued forth.

2. That the ſuggeſtions are not abſolute, that any ſuch danger was, or ſuch Navy was prepared by the Pirates, but only mentioneth, Quia datum eſt nobis intelligi, that the Pirates had done ſuch miſchief, &c.

3. If ſuch ſuggeſtions had been abſolutely ſet down, yet we are not always bound abſolutely to believe them, becauſe many times untrue ſuggeſtions are made in Writs and Patents; and yet it doth not lie upon the Kings conſcience, neither doth the Law impute any fault to the King, if any ſuch be; for the Law doth always conceive honourably of the King, that he cannot, nor will not ſignifie any untruth under his Great Seal; but is abuſed therein, and the Law imputeth it to them that ſo miſ-informed the King, and thruſt in ſuch ſuggeſtions into the Writ:

And therefore all Patents grounded upon untrue ſuggeſtions are accounted void.

4. That the Demurrer confeſſeth nothing but that which is legally and well ſet down; but if it be illegal, the Demurrer confeſſeth it not, but is well offered for that cauſe.

5. If the Kingdom were in danger, yet a charge muſt not be laid in general upon the Subjects, without their conſent in Parliament; for either the danger is near, and then preſent proviſion muſt be made by mens perſons, and the preſent Ships of the Kingdom, which the King may command from all parts of his Kingdom, as need ſhall require; but cannot command money out of mens Purſes, by diſtraining their goods, or impriſoning their perſons: But if the danger be further off, by reaſon of any forein combinations (as it is conceived it may be here) then proviſion muſt be made of Ships by all the Kingdom for defence; then (as Philip de Comines ſaith, *fol.*179.) that cloud is ſeen afar off, before that the tempeſt fall, eſpecially by a forein War; and ſuch invaſions cannot fall ſo ſoon, but that the King may call his Sages together, and by conſent make proviſion for ſuch defence.

So I ſay here, if there be time to make Ships, or prepare Ships at the charges of the Counties; then is there time enough for his Majeſty (if he pleaſe) to call his Parliament, to charge his Commons by conſent in Parliament to have a ſubſidiary Aid, as always hath been done in ſuch caſes; and they are not ſo long coming or meeting, when they come but to make proviſion for defence, being all their ſafeties,

For it appeareth by Coke, lib. 9. *fol.*1. in his Epiſtle, that King Alfred made a Law, that the Parliament ſhould be held twice every year; and oftner, if need require, in time of peace: So that it was then conceived, it was neceſſary to have Parliaments often to redreſs inconveniences.

Cok.lib.9.f.1.

Alſo by a Statute made 4 Edw. III. *cap.*14. It is enacted, that a Parliament ſhall be held once every year, and oftner, if need be: Alſo by a Statute made 36 Edw. III. cap. 10. It is enacted, for redreſs of miſchiefs and grievances that daily happen, a Parliament ſhall be holden every year; as another time was ordained by a Statute, which I think referreth to 4 Edw. III. Alſo it appeareth by the ſpeed that was in the Parliament held in the third year of his Majeſties Reign, five Subſidies were granted, two of them to be paid within few days after the Seſſion of Parliament ended; and therefore might (as this caſe is) been ordered and provided for by Parliament, within ſeven months, as the time was between the Teſte of the Writ, and the time prefixed for Ships to be prepared and ſent.

4 Ed.3.ca.14.

36Ed.3.c. 10.

4 Edw. 3.

Where it is objected, that the Parliament perhaps would not have conſented, and ſo the Kingdom might have been loſt.

It is anſwered, That it is not to be preſumed, that the Parliament would deny to do that which is fit for the ſafety and defence of the Kingdom, their own Eſtates and Lives being in danger if the Kingdom were not ſufficiently defended; for it is a Rule, Nihil iniquum eſt præſumendum in Lege: So of the High Court of Parliament, that they would not deny that which is fitting: But I confeſs I do think, if it had been moved in a Parliament, they would never have conſented to theſe Writs, they never having been awarded before ſince the Conqueſt; and if they had conſented, they would have taken a courſe how the ſame ſhould have been made with moſt conveniency, and not to leave it to the Sheriff to tax them when and how he would.

7. To that which hath been ſaid, That this charge is not within the intention of the Statutes, and that a Statute to prohibit ſuch a charge for defence were void: I anſwer, That it is true, if a Statute were that the King ſhould not defend his Kingdom, it were void, being againſt Law and Reaſon; but a Statute that Money ſhall not be charged or levied, nor that men ſhall be charged to make or prepare Ships at their own charges, without common conſent in Parliament, I conceive it a good Law, and agreeable to Law and Reaſon; and the King may by Parliament reſtrain himſelf from laying ſuch a charge but by conſent: And then the King, being a juſt and pious King as ever governed the Kingdom (which we that ſerve in his Courts of Juſtice have daily experience of) would not aſſent unto, or ſuffer any ſuch charge (if he may be truly informed) that the impoſing of this charge were againſt any one Law of his Kingdom, as this is againſt ſo many; but would ſay, as it is ſaid in the Statute made in the 25 Edw. III. de proviſoribus, reciting the Statute of Carlyes, made 35 Edw. I. That the Pope ſhould not be permitted to preſent to Benefices, That he was bound by his Oath to ſee that and other Laws in force, and not repealed, to be performed, That he would not ſuffer ſuch charges to be laid, contrary to the Laws and Statutes of his Realm; and would do as the late famous Queen Elizabeth did, having required a charge upon divers her Subjects by particular Letters from the Lords of her Council of ſeveral ſums of money, for preſent help towards her Wars in Ireland, hearing that one of her Judges being convented before her Lords for not payment of it, thereby diſcouraging others to pay it, anſwered, that it was againſt the Law that the ſame ſhould be impoſed, there being an expreſs Statute againſt it, which he being a Judge, was bound by his Oath to ſignifie; he being, as much as in him was to be, a conſervator of the Queens Oath in that behalf: The Queen, I ſay, was very angry, that ſuch an impoſition had been made againſt Law, and commanded, that it ſhould be ſtopped from further gathering, and to ſome that had paid their Moneys, the ſame were reſtored: And therefore the principal and only fault in the charging of his Subjects by theſe Writs (if they be unlawful, as I conceive they are) is in thoſe that deviſed them, and informed him that they were lawful, and ſuch as his Progenitors had from time to time uſed to ſend out; and in his Judges, who have affirmed it to be lawful: Therefore upon this point I conclude, That this charge by this Writ is illegal, and is no ſufficient cauſe to charge the Defendant.

Object.

Where it hath been much urged and argued by Maſter Solicitor and Maſter Attorney, that this Writ is warranted by the Kings Prerogative and power Royal, to ſend forth ſuch Writs for defence and ſafety of the Kingdom in time of danger.

Solut.

To this I anſwer, That I do not conceive, that there is any ſuch Prerogative; for if it were a Prerogative, I ſhould not offer to ſpeak againſt it, For it is a part of our Oaths that are Judges, to maintain the Kings Prerogative to the beſt of our skills, and not to ſuffer the ſame to be diminiſhed; but if it be (as I have argued it is) againſt the Common Law, and againſt ſo many Statutes, that the Subjects ſhould be inforced to ſuſtain, or to contribute to any charge, without their eſpecial aſſent, and common aſſent in Parliament, then there is no ſuch Prerogative: For whatſoever is done to the hurt or wrong of the Subjects, and againſt the Laws of the Land, the Law imputeth that Honour and Juſtice to the King (whoſe Throne is eſtabliſhed by Juſtice) that it is not done by the King, but it is done by ſome untrue and unjuſt Informations; and therefore void, and not done by Prerogative.

Bract.lib.3. fol.107.

This appeareth by the authorities of our Books; for Bracton who is an ancient Writer in our Law, ſaith, Nihil aliud poteſt Rex in terris, cum ſit miniſter Dei,& ejus Vicarius,quàm de jure poteſt: And there a little after, Itaque poteſtas ſua juris eſt, & non injuriæ; cum ſit author juris, non debet inde injuriarum naſci occaſio unde juris naſcuntur. Sir Edw. Coke in the eleventh Book of his Reports, in the Caſe of Magdalen Colledge, where the queſtion was, Whether Queen Elizabeth, having taken a long Leaſe of a Colledge, being conceived to be againſt the Statute of 13 Eliz. was ſought to be maintained by her Prerogative; but reſolved it could not, being againſt a Statute, by which ſhe was bound, although not named; and there fol. 72. it is ſaid, Hoc ſolum Rex non poteſt facere, quod non poteſt juſtè agere.

Plowd. Com. fol.246,247.

Plowdens Comment, fol. 246 & 247, in the Lord Berkley's Caſe it is ſaid, that the Prerogative of the King cannot do wrong, and his Prerogative cannot be any warrant to do any wrong to any.

Plowd. Com. fol.487.

Plowdens Comment, *fol.*487. in Nichols Caſe, it is ſaid by Juſtice Harper, Although the Common Law doth allow many Prerogatives to the King, yet it doth not allow any that he ſhall wrong or hurt any by his Prerogative.

21 *Ed.*3. f. 47.

21 Edw. III. fol. 47. in the Earl of Kents Caſe it is ſaid, That if the King under his Great Seal do make any grant to the hurt of any other, he ſhall repeal and avoid it Jure Regio; for the King is accounted to be abuſed by untrue ſuggeſtions, when he is drawn to do any wrong to the hurt of any other, much more, I ſay, when he is drawn to do any thing to the hurt of his Subjects in general.

Cok. l.11. f.86.

Sir Edward Coke, lib. 11. fol. 86. in Darcies Caſe it is ſaid, That every grant of the King hath this condition unto it, Tacitè or expreſſè: Ita quòd Patria per donationem illam magis ſolito non oneretur ſeu gravetur.

Doct.& Stud. fol.8.

The Book called Doctor and Student, fol. 8. ſetting down, that the Law doth veſt the abſolute property of every mans goods in him, and that they cannot be taken from him, but by his conſent, ſaith, That is the reaſon, if they be taken from him, the party ſhall anſwer the full value thereof in damages: And ſure I conceive, that the party that doth this wrong to another, ſhall, beſides the damages to the party, be impriſoned, and pay a Fine to the King, which in the Kings Bench is the tenth part of as much as he payeth to the party: So then, if the King will puniſh the wrong of taking of goods without conſent between party and party, much more will he not by any Prerogative take away any mans goods without his aſſent, particular or general.

So I conclude, that I conceive there is not any ſuch Prerogative, to award ſuch Writs, to command men to ſuſtain ſuch charge, or to be contributory to it, and to be diſtrained or impriſoned for not payment thereof.

Alſo I conceive, that this is not an Act of Royal power; for if it be illegal to impoſe ſuch a charge, then is it not accounted as a matter of Royal power, but as a matter done upon an untrue ſuggeſtion, and a matter of wrong done; and wrong is not imputed to the King, for he can do no wrong, but it is imputed unto them who adviſed him to this courſe.

Royal power, I account, is to be uſed in caſes of neceſſity and imminent danger, when ordinary courſes will not avail; for it is a Rule, Non recurrendum eſt ad extraordinaria, quando fieri poteſt per ordinaria; as in caſes of Rebellion, ſudden Invaſion, and in ſome other caſe, where Martial Law may be uſed, and may not ſtay for legal proceedings; but in a time of peace and no extreme neceſſity legal courſes muſt be uſed, and not Royal power.

31 H.8.c.8. Therefore, where by the Statute of 31 Hen. VIII. cap.8. which was made upon ſuppreſſion of Abbies, when Rebellions were begun to be ſtirred, it is recited, That ſudden occaſions happen which do require ſpeedy remedies, and for lack of a Statute the King was inforced to uſe Royal power; it was enacted for the reaſons therein mentioned, That the King, by the advice of his Council therein named, two Biſhops, two chief Juſtices, and divers others, and the more part of them, by his Proclamation might make Ordinances for puniſhment of offences, and lay Penalties, which ſhould have the force of a Law (with a Proviſo, that thereby no mans Life, Lands, or Goods ſhould be touched or impeached:) So that therein Royal power was fortified by a Statute; yet that Statute took care, that no Lands or Goods ſhould be taken or prejudiced: But yet that Statute was thought inconvenient, and therefore by a Statute of 1 E. VI. the ſame was repealed. 1 E. 6.

Bract.l.2.c.24. fol. 55. Coke l. 7. fol.11. Bracton, lib.2. cap.24. fol.55. and the ſame is cited in Coke, lib. 7. fol.11. in Calvins Caſe, Regis Corona eſt facere juſtitiam & judicium, & tenere pacem, ſine quibus Corona conſiſtere non poteſt, nec teneri.

Coke l.7.fol.5. Coke, lib.7. fol.5. in Calvins Caſe, cited out of Forteſcue, Rex ad tutelam Legis, corporum, & bonorum erectus eſt; which being ſo, he cannot take any mans Goods, or charge them without his aſſent, by any Prerogative or power Royal.

Alſo there can be no ſuch neceſſity or danger conceived, that may cauſe theſe Writs to be awarded to all Counties of England, to prepare Ships at ſuch charge, and with ſuch Men and Munition, without conſent in Parliament.

For the Laws have provided means for defence in time of danger without taking this courſe, for that the King hath power to command all, or any Perſons of his Kingdom, to attend with Arms at the Sea-coaſts, or any other parts of the Kingdom; and alſo by his Officers to make ſtay or arreſt all or any the Ships of Merchants, and others having Ships, or as many as he pleaſeth, to go with his Navy to any parts of his Kingdom for defence thereof, and to attend thoſe to whom he appointed the guard of the Sea or Sea-coaſts, at ſuch times and places as they ſhould appoint: And this hath been always taken and conceived to be ſufficient for defence againſt any Prince whatſoever; and yet the ſame was in times when the Navy of England was not ſo ſtrong, as now by the bleſſing of God, and good providence of his Majeſty it is: That this courſe was then ſo taken, it appeareth by divers Records, viz.

23.Ed.1.m.4. 23. Edw. I. m.4. The Record reciteth, that the French King had prepared a great Navy upon the Sea, and purpoſed to invade the Kingdom, Et linguam Anglicanam de terra delere; and thereupon the King commanded all his Ships and Men with Arms to be in a readineſs to defend the Kingdom.

10 Ed.3. m.16. Scot. 10 Edw.III. m.16, reciteth, that certain Gallies in the parts beyond the Seas were prepared with proviſion of Men and Arms, and other neceſſaries of War, and ready to invade the Land; command was, that divers Ships ſhould be in a readineſs to defend, and the Ships of the Ports of Ireland to be ſent to England to help to defend the Kingdom.

10 Ed.3.m.22. Scot 10 Edw.3. m.22. A Writ was to the Bailiff of Southwales, reciting, that the Scots and divers others confederating together, prepare themſelves to Arms and Ships in a great number, and intend to invade the Kingdom; command to them was, to have one Ship ready upon the Sea to defend their Coaſts.

12 Ed.3.m.10. Alman. 12 Edw.3. m. 10. A Writ to the Major of London, Quia hoſtes noſtri in Galliis, cum multitudine non modica congregati, in diverſis partibus regni hoſtiliter ingreſſi ſunt, & civitatem prædict' celeriter ſi poſſunt invadere proponunt; The King commandeth them to ſhut up the City towards the Water, and to put all their men in Arms, ready to defend, &c.

12 Ed.3.m.13. Alman. 12 Edw. 3.m.13. At the ſame time, like Writs went out to twenty other Towns upon the Sea-coaſts.

26 Ed.3.m.5. Franc. 26 Edw. 3. m. 5. A Writ to the Earl of Hunt. and others; Quia adverſarii noſtri Franciæ, Nos & Regnum noſtrum invadere machinantes, magnum navigium parari fecer' & armari, nedum ad Regnum noſtrum Angliæ ſubitò attrahend', ad nos & dom. noſtr', & totam nationem Anglicanam pro viribus ſubvertend', &c. Commanding them to guard all the Coaſts of Kent, and to array all able men with Arms, to be ready to defend the Sea-coaſts.

5 H.4. m.28. 5 Henr.4. m.28. A Commiſſion is to Thomas Morley, and others; Quòd cum inimici noſtri Franciæ, Britan. Scotiæ, & alii ſibi adhærentes, inter ſe obligat' magna potentia armat' ſuper mare in æſtate proxim' futur' ordinaverunt, & intendunt Regnum noſtrum Angliæ invadere, &c. Commanding them to array men with Arms to defend, &c.

4 H.8.p.2. 4 Henr. 8. Pars 2. The King by Proclamation into the County of Kent ſheweth, that it is come to his knowledge of certain, that his ancient Enemy the French King, hath prepared and put in readineſs a great and ſtrong Navy, furniſhed with Men of War to invade the Kingdom of England, the King appointed the Lord of Alburgeny and others, to put men in array, and to be ready to defend that County.

Anno 1588. when the great Invaſion was by the Navy termed the Invincible Navy, which was foreſeen long before, this courſe of preparing Ships by every County of the Kingdom, was not taken or appointed; yet in all theſe times, when there appeared ſuch danger of Invaſions, there never went any ſuch Writs into any the Counties of England to provide Ships, but the Navy of England, and the Army of England was always accounted ſufficient for the defence of the Kingdom. So I conclude this point, that I conceive this courſe cannot be taken by any Prerogative or Royal power, nor any allegation of neceſſity or danger.

4. For the fourth point, I conceive that if it were legal to lay ſuch a charge upon Maritine parts, yet to charge any Inland County with making of Ships, and furniſhing them with Maſters, Mariners, and Souldiers at their charge, which are far remote from the Seas, is not legal, nor warranted by any former preſident; for it commandeth an unreaſonable and impoſſible thing: And then the Writ commanding ſuch a thing as is unreaſonable and not poſſible for the parties commanded of themſelves to perform, without help of other Counties, is always illegal; for it is a Rule, that Lex non cogit ad impoſſibilia; therefore if one by Covenant bind himſelf to do a thing impoſſible, the Covenant is void. This appears by the Book-Caſe in 40 Edw.3. fol.6. where the Caſe is expreſly, that if a man do covenant to do a thing that is impoſſible, the Covenant is void, and the deed is void in that reſpect. Alſo the Book in 2 Ed.4. fol.2. If a Feoffment be made upon Condition to be void if the Feoffee do not a thing which is impoſſible, this Feoffment is good, and the condition void, for it was the fault of the Feoffor to annex ſuch a condition; and this appeareth by the caſe of an Arbitrement. If the Arbitrator award that one ſhall enter into Bond with ſuch a one as his Surety to pay a ſum of Money, or to do any other act, it is void as to the finding of a Surety at the leaſt; for it is not in his power to compel him to be his Surety, therefore the Law accounteth it unreaſonable, and ſo void. And this appeareth by the Book-Caſe, 17 Edw.4.fol.5. wherein it is ſo reſolved.

So this Writ commanding the Sheriff and Inhabitants of an Inland County to find a Ship furniſhed with Maſters and Mariners, whereas there is not any Shipwright that hath skill to make Ships, nor any Maſters or Mariners ever there inhabiting to guide a Ship; (for they are ſtill converſant about matters of the Plough, and feeding Cattel, and Husbandry, and are trained up by Muſters for skill of Arms to defend the Countries, and not with Sea affairs; for moſt of the County never ſaw a Ship, nor know what belongeth to Maſters or Mariners of Ships; and the Country is not bound to ſeek out of the County for ſuch men, and perhaps if they ſhould, they cannot know where to hire them:) Therefore when ſuch Writs to Inland Counties have been awarded to find a Ship with Maſters and Mariners, it being conceived by miſ-information that they were Maritine Towns, and had Ships and Mariners dwelling with them, the truth thereof being made appear to the contrary, they have been diſcharged, as appears by a Record in 13 Edw.3. pars 2.m.14. where a Writ went to the Admiral of the Fleet, thoſe parts upon complaint to the King, by the men of Bodmin in the County of Cornwal, that they were unjuſtly charged to find a Ship with Maſters and Mariners, whereas that Town was no Port Town, nor adjoining to the Sea, but far within the Land, nor ever had Ships lying there, nor Mariners, nor Seamen, nor ever uſed to find any ſuch for Sea ſervice; and that their Major and Officers were impriſoned for not finding ſuch a Ship; thereupon the King appointed to have it enquired, whether their allegations were true, and if it were true, ſignified that he would not have them ſo unjuſtly charged, but that they ſhould be diſcharged thereof: which ſheweth that it was then accounted unjuſt to lay ſuch a charge upon a Town, that was an Inland Town, and had no Mariners inhabiting in it; much more when ſuch a charge is upon an Inland County, which is much further remote from the Sea, and cannot perform by themſelves that which the Writ commandeth.

But this Record being objected by the Defendants Counſel, Maſter Solicitor gave Anſwer, that the ſame was becauſe the Admiral of his own Authority had charged them, which was not according to his Commiſſion, for he was onely to charge the Ports and Sea Towns; but that the ſame may not be done by the Kings Writ, the Record doth not prove.

But to this I Anſwer, That I conceive it is all one when ſuch a charge is laid upon a Town by Writ, which is an Inland Town; for ſo it appeareth by another Record of the ſame Year, viz. 13 *Edw.*3. pars 1. *m.*14. where a Writ was directed to the Admiral of the Fleet, Ab ore Thameſiæ verſus partes Occidentales, reciting where the King by his Writ to the Town of Chicheſter, had commanded the Major and Communalty there, that they ſhould make unam Navem, & duos Eſcularios de guerra parari, with Mariners and Men at Arms to be at Portſmouth ſuch a day, to go with the Kings Ships; and that they had complained that they had not, nor ever had any Ships arriving in that Town, nor had any Sea-men or Mariners dwelling there; and that it appeared unto the King by Inquiſition of a Jury returned into his Chancery, this Allegation to be true: Therefore becauſe the King would not have them indebitè prægravari (for ſo be the words of the Record) the King commandeth the Admiral that they ſhall not be troubled nor diſtrained for not performance of ſuch ſervice; whereby it appeareth, that if they, being within few miles of the Sea, ſhould not be charged to find ſuch a Ship, much more Inland Counties, which are much further remote from the Seas, are not juſtly to be charged with finding any Ships and Mariners: Therefore I conclude this point, that I conceive this Writ, in that reſpect, is not legal, nor warranted by any former Preſident.

The fifth and great Point hath been (and indeed the chief Argument hath been a multitude of Records and Preſidents which have been cited, that ſhould warrant theſe Writs, and) that the King hath done nothing, but what his former Progenitors have done, and have lawfully done, and that he doth now but more majorum, and that which always in ancient times hath been done and allowed; and therefore ought now to be allowed.

I confeſs this Allegation much troubled me, when I heard thoſe Records cited, and ſo learnedly and earneſtly preſſed by Mr. Solicitor, and afterwards by Maſter Attorney, to be ſo clear, that they might not be gainſaid; but that they proved a clear Prerogative, or at leaſt a Royal power, that the King might do ſo, eſpecially when my Brother Weſton and my Brother Berkley, who had ſeen the Records, preſſed them, and relied upon them for the reaſons of their judgments, I ſay, I was much doubtful thereupon, until I had peruſed all thoſe Records ſent me by the Kings Counſel, and ſatisfied my judgment therein.

But now I anſwer, That if there were any ſuch Preſidents (as I ſhall ſhew that there is not one ſhewed to me to prove this Writ to be uſual) yet it were not material, for now we are not to argue what hath been done de facto, for many things have been done which were never allowed; but our Queſtion is, What hath been done, and may be done de jure: And then, as it is ſaid in *Coke lib.*4.*fol.*33. in Mittons Caſe, Judicand' eſt legibus, non exemplis: and *lib.*11. *fol.*75. in Magdalen Colledge Caſe it is ſaid, Multitudo errantium non parit errori patrocinium: and *l.*4.*f.*94. in Slades Caſe. Multitude of Preſidents, unleſs they be confirmed by Judicial proceedings in Courts of Record, are not to be regarded; and none of theſe were ever confirmed by Judicial Record, but complained of.

But to give a more clear anſwer unto them, I ſay, that in my opinion, upon view and ſerious reading of all the Records that have been ſent me on the Kings part (for I have read them all over verbatim) and I preſume they ſent all that were conceived to be material; and I having taken notes of every one of them, and diligently conſidered of them, I cor-conceive there is not any Preſident or Record of any Writ which maintains this Caſe; for there is not any Preſident or Record of any ſuch Writ ſent to any Sheriff of any Inland County, or Maritine County, to command the making of Ships at the charge of the County, but this is the firſt Preſident that ever was ſince the Conqueſt, that is produced in this kind. But it is true, that before 25 Ed. 1. there have been ſome Writs to Maritine Towns and Ports, and other Towns, as London, &c.

Where they have had Ships, and Mariners to provide and prepare Ships, and to ſend them to places where the King pleaſed to appoint upon any juſt cauſe of fear of any danger, for defence; and great reaſon that they having Ships, and Maſters of Ships, and Mariners, ſhould be at the Kings command to bring all, or as many as he pleaſeth, for defence of the Sea and Kingdom, being thoſe that had the moſt benefit of the Seas, and likely to have the loſs, if the Seas and Coaſts were not duly guarded, and thoſe were moſt commonly appointed to be at the Kings charge; but ſometimes, upon ſome neceſſity, they were appointed to be at the charge of the Towns and Parts adjoining, which I think was the true cauſe of the complaint in Parliament, in 25 Ed. 1. and the making of that Statute for ſtaying that courſe; for there is no Record afterwards of any ſuch Writ in King Edward the Firſt's time, after that Statute to Maritine Towns, to prepare or ſend Ships at the charge of the Towns. And none after, until the time of Edw. 3. And then the Wars being between him and the French K. in An. 10, 11, 12, 13 of Ed. 3. were the moſt Writs awarded to the Maritine Towns, to ſend Ships at their charge ſufficiently furniſhed. And thoſe, I think, were the principal cauſe of the making of the Stat. of 14 E. 3. c. 1. and after that Stat. no ſuch Writs, nor any Commiſſions for that purpoſe were awarded to make any Ships at the charge of Maritine Towns, until 1 R. 2. m. 18. when Writs were awarded to many Maritine Towns, and Inland Towns, for the making of Ships, which Record was much preſſed by Maſter Attorney, and afterwards by my Brother Weſton, and my Brother Berkley to prove that this courſe was, and might be practiſed after the Statute of 14 E. 3. for ſending forth ſuch Writs, and allowed. But that Record is fully ſatisfied, for it was grounded upon an Ordinance in Parliament, in 1 R. 2. m. 52. that all ancient Cities, Boroughs, and Towns that would have their Liberties confirmed, ſhould have them confirmed, without any charge of Fine, ſave onely to make a Ship of War for defence of the Realm; ſo this was not compulſory to any, but voluntary to thoſe that would have their Liberties confirmed. And afterwards in 1 H. 4. Commiſſions were awarded for the making of ſuch Veſſels for War; but thoſe iſſuing forth, without any Ordinance of Parliament, were complained of in Parliament, 2 H. 4. m. 22. as to be againſt the Liberty of the Subject, as appeareth by the Statute before recited, and the Commiſſions expreſſly repealed. And ſince that time of 2 H. 4. no ſuch Writs iſſued forth in any Age to any Maritine Town, to cauſe Ships, or prepare Ships at their own charge for the Kings ſervice, until theſe late Writs.

And now I ſhall take a ſhort view of all the Records that have been cited, and ſent unto me; and leave them to the judgment of my Lords and others, if any of them prove theſe Writs to be uſual and legal.

Scot. 10 *Ed.*3. m.16. A Writ to the Admiral of the Fleet from the mouth of Thames unto the Weſt Parts, to keep upon the Seas the Ships of the Cinque Ports, and other Ships arreſted to defend the Kingdom againſt any attempt of Invaſion.

The like Writ was then to the Admiral of the Fleet from the mouth of the Thames unto the North parts, with like Command to hold the Ships together upon the Sea.

Scot. 10 Ed. 3. m.16. A Writ commanding the Ships of the Ports of Ireland to be ſent hither to guard the Seas here.

10 *Ed.*3.m. 12 A Writ to the Bailiffs of Yarmouth, to cauſe the men of that Town to contribute to the charges of the Ships, and Men, and Victuals ſent from thence for the defence of that Kingdom.

Scot. 10 *Ed.*3. m.21. A Writ to all the Liberties and Men of South-Wales, to have one Ship riding upon the Seas for the defence of thoſe parts.

Ibid. The like unto the men of North-Wales.

Scot. 10 *Ed.*3. m.21. A Writ to the Arrayers of men for the County of Berks, to compel them of that County aſſigned and aſſeſſed for the keeping of the Sea-coaſts in the County of Southt. to go to Portſmouth by a day therein appointed.

Alm. 12 *Ed.*3. m.12. A Commiſſion, reciting that the King had appointed all the Ships from the mouth of the Thames Northward to be arreſted, and to cauſe them to be furniſhed with Munition, Men, and Victuals, and to be brought to Yarmouth; and that the men of Lin refuſed to contribute to the expences of the charge of the men ſent in the Ship from that Town, and the furniſhing of that Ship; and therefore commanded the Commiſſioners therein named, to aſſeſs them that refuſe ſo to contribute, and to diſtrain them for it.

Alm. 12 *Ed.*3. m.13. The like to compel the men of Bardſey, to contribute for the expences of the Men of that Town.

Clauſ. 12 *Ed.*3. m.16. The like to compel the Men of Surrey and Suſſex, to contribute to the expences of the Men of thoſe Counties, that attended for the guarding of the Sea-coaſts there.

12 *Ed.*3. m.8. A Writ to all Archbiſhops, Biſhops, &c. and to the Sheriff of Kent, and to the Barons of the Cinque Ports, and all others in that County, commanding them to be aſſiſting to J. de Cobham, to whom the Cuſtody of the Seas in thoſe parts is committed, and to defend thoſe Coaſts againſt Foreign Invaſion.

Alm. 12 *Ed.*3. m.10. A Writ to the Major of London, reciting the danger of Invaſion, &c. commanding to ſhut up the Gates towards the Water, if the Enemies approach.

A Writ to the Bayliffs of Yarmouth, reciting by his Writ he had commanded four Ships of War of that Town to be made ready with Men, Munition, and victuals for three months, at the charges of the Town, to be brrought to Orewell, and that they failed to come at their day, to the great peril of the Land; therefore commandeth the Bayliffs to compel them at another day therein prefixed to be at the ſame place. There it is ſet down that the like Writs were awarded to the Bayliffs of ſeventeen other Towns, for the ſending their Ships, being charged ſome for one Ship, and ſome for two Ships.

Alm. 13 Ed.3. m.12.

A Superſedeas for the Abbot of Gwaverra to find a Ship as he was appointed, becauſe he found divers men at Arms in the Iſle of Wight.

A Superſedeas for the Abbot of Ramſey for being charged with Arms for the guarding of the Coaſts of Norfolk for his Lands in Norfolk, becauſe he was by command attending with all his forces in the County of Huntington, for the ſafety of thoſe parts.

Clauſ.13 Ed.3. m.38.

A Writ of Superſedeas to the arrayers of Arms in the County of Oxon', to diſcharge John Mandit to ſerve there, becauſe he attended in Wiltſ.

Clauſ.13.Ed.3. m.14.

A Writ, &c. to the Arrayers of Arms in the County of Wilt. which is only concerning the payment of Souldiers Wages, who attended to guard the Sea-coaſts.

Clauſ.13 Ed.3. m.14.

Theſe being all the Records ſhewed, it appeareth that there were no Writs iſſuing out in thoſe times to any Sheriffs of Inland Counties, or Maritine Counties, to make or prepare Ships for any occaſion whatſoever, but only to Maritine Towns, to ſend their Ships, or to prepare Ships at their own charges.

The Records ſince 14 *Ed.*III. ſhewed me, do not ſhew any Writs to be awarded to any Maritine Towns, to prepare Ships at the charge of the Towns.

But thoſe Records of 1 Rich. II. and 1 Hen. IV, which I have before anſwered, and the Records ſince that time ſhewed unto me (except ſuch as I have formerly mentioned in my Argument) are theſe:

A Commiſſion to Nicholas de Cartlape, to array men to reſiſt the Scots.

Scot.20 Ed.3. m.14.

A Writ to the Mayor of York, to array all their men to be ready when they ſhall be required.

Ibid.

A Commiſſion concerning arrays of men in the Counties of Derby and Nottingham, and to puniſh ſuch as came not when they were appointed.

20 Ed.3.m.15.

A Writ to the arrayers of men in the County of Southampton to diſcharge the Abbot of Bettaile to find Arms for the Sea-coſts there.

Rot. Franc. 21 E.3.m.31.

A Commiſſion to John de Bodingham for the cuſtody of the Ports and Maritine parts in Cornwal, and to array all the men to be in a readineſs.

Franc. 25 E.3. m.20.

Note, all theſe Records are only for arrays of mens, and none for preparing Ships.

☞ Nota.

There it is ſet down, that the like Commiſſions are to others in ſeveral Counties.

A Commiſſion to the Earl of Huntington, to have the cuſtody of the Ports in Kent, and to array men, and to ſet up Beacons, &c. which is the firſt I obſerve in that kind.

Franc.26 Ed.3. m.5.

The like Commiſſions were then to ſeveral other perſons, to array men in ſeveral Counties, as Warwick, Oxon. Berks, Bucks, &c.

Franc.46 E.3. m.31. A Writ to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, reciting the danger of invaſion by the French to hurt the Church and Kingdom, to array all his Clergy in his Dioceſs, &c. to be ready to go with the Kings Forces to defend, &c.

The like Writs to all other Biſhops in the Kingdom.

Franc.50 E.3. m.47. A Writ to the Arrayers of Men in the County of Norfolk, and to the Sheriff of Norfolk, commanding them to command all great men and others, that had Manſions upon or near the Sea-coaſts, to reſort with all their Families for defence of thoſe Coaſts.

The like to the Arrayers, and to the Sheriffs of ten other Maritine Counties.

Scot.29.Ed.3. m.13. A Commiſſion to the Biſhop of Durham and others, to array men in Durham, Cumberland, and Northumberland, to reſiſt the Scots.

Franc.40. E.3. m. 31. A Writ to William Hench and others, to remove with all their Families to their houſes upon the Sea-coaſts.

In the time of Richard the Second.

1 R.2.m.7. A Writ to the Bayliff of Scardeburgh, becauſe the Town was upon the Coaſts of the Sea, and in danger by invaſion, carefully to look to the cuſtody thereof &c.

Eod.Rot.m.12. A Writ to the Mayor and Bayliffs of Oxon, to repair the Walls of the Town, and to compel thoſe that had Lands there to contribute to the expences thereof.

This Record hath been much urged by Maſter Sollicitor and Maſter Attorney, that if the King have ſuch a power to command the Walls of a Town to be repaired, much more to command Ships to be made, which are the Walls of the Sea, and conſequently the Walls of the Kingdom. But this is clearly anſwered, for that it is but a private charge of a private Town, and that had been formerly ſo walled, and for defence and ſafety of the Town, and none charged but thoſe that have benefit thereby, and ſo proveth nothing to the Caſe in queſtion.

Eod.Rot.m.42. One Writ to the Sheriff of Kent, and another to the Sheriff of Eſſex, commanding an Ordinance made, &c. by the King and his Council, for ſetting up of Beacons, and keeping watch about them.

Scot.7 R.2. m.8. A Writ to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury to command all his Clergy between ſixteen and ſixty to be arrayed and put in Arms, both Horſe and Foot, according to their qualities, to be ready to defend the Kingdom.

Franc.11 R.2. m.13. A Writ to a Serjeant at Arms, to array all Ships of War in the Ports of Plimouth and Dartmouth, and other parts in the County of Cornwal, and to bring them to Hawks Hook to go with the Kings Majeſties Ships.

In the ſame Roll are divers other Writs to divers other Serjeants at Arms, to arreſt the Ships in divers other Ports.

Scot.21 R.2. m.3. A Commiſſion to the Duke [illegible] to array men in the Weſt Marches towards [illegible] to reſiſt the Scots.

[illegible] 1 & 4 m. 11. A Writ to the [illegible] and Nottingham, reciting that the King [illegible] intended with a great Power to invade the Kingdom, [illegible] to proclaim in all parts of his [illegible] they ſhould put themſelves in [illegible] degrees, to be ready upon two days [illegible]

The like Writs were then directed to the Sheriffs of Lincoln, York, and Lancaſter.

Clauſ. 1. H. 41. m. 12.

A Writ to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, reciting Satis informati eſtis qualit. inimici noſtri Franc. & alii ſibi adhærentes, cum magna claſſe navium, cum magna multitudine armator' ſuper mare congregat', diverſas villas per Coſteram regni noſtri invadere, & nos & regnum noſtrum deſtruere, & Eccleſiam Anglicanam ſubvertere intendunt & proponunt: Thereupon commandeth, that the Clergy in that Dioceſs be arrayed and armed, and to be ready at the Kings command to go againſt the Enemy.

Note, that although this great danger be mentioned, yet no command to any County to prepare Ships.

The like Writs were then awarded to every Biſhop in England.

Pat. 5 H. 4. pars 2. m. 28.

A Commiſſion to Thomas de Morley and others, and to the Sheriffs of Norfolk and Suffolk, and to the Bayliffs of great Yarmouth, reciting, Quod cum inimici Franc. Britan. Scot. & alii ſibi adhærentes, inter ſe obligat. magna armat. ſuper mare in æſtate proxim. futur. ordinaverunt & intendunt regnum invadere, &&c. commandeth to ſurvey that Town of Yarmouth, and to fortifie it.

Note here alſo, notwithſtanding ſuch great danger mentioned, and ſuch diſtance of time, yet that no Writs iſſued to any Counties to prepare Ships.

A Commiſſion to array all men at Arms in the Weſt-Riding in Yorkſhire, to be ready to defend thoſe parts,

Pat. 3. H. 5. pars 2. m. 37.

The like Commiſſions to others in nineteen ſeveral Counties.

Pat. 13 H. 6. m. 10.

Commiſſions for arraying men for defence of the Kingdom, if invaſion ſhall be, and for repreſſing of Rebels.

Pat. 39 H 6. m.
Pat. 39 H. 6. m. 12.

Commiſſions unto George Duke of Clarence and others, to array men men for defence.

Pat. 39 H. 6. m. 1.

A Commiſſion to John Lord Howard, to be Captain of all the Forces.

Pat. 10 Ed. 4. m. 12.

A Commiſſion to Marqueſs Mountague, to array and put in Arms all men beyond Trent.

Pat. 10 Ed. 4. m. 12.
Pat. 49 H. 6. m. 22.

A Commiſſion to Richard Fitz-Hugh, &c. and to the Sheriff of Yorkſhire, to array and cauſe to be armed all able perſons, Abbots, and others, to be ready to defend the Kingdom.

Pat. 1 H. 7. pars .
1 H. 7. pars 3.

A Writ to the Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk to proclaim in all parts of thoſe Counties, for that there was like to be open Wars between Charles of France, and the King of Romans, and great Navies are prepared of either ſide, commandeth that watch and ward be kept, and Beacons kept, to give warning that every man be ready, if need be, to come and defend the Kingdom.

A Writ to the Sheriff of Kent, commanding him to proclaim in his County that the King be certainly informed, that the French King hath prepared and put in readineſs a great and ſtrong Navy, furniſhed with Men of War, to invade this his Kingdom; therefore commandeth all men, between the Age of ſixteen and ſixty to put themſelves in Arms, and to be ready to defend the Kingdom at an hours warning.

4 H 8 pars 2.

Commiſſioners went to take view of all the Horſes of England for ſervice, and to ſurvey all the Arms, and to have them all put in readineſs, as neceſſity ſhould require.

11 Eliz.

Now it appeareth upon view and examination of all theſe Records, moſt of them being cited by Maſter Solicitor and Maſter Attorney in their ſeveral Arguments, that there are none to prove the ſending of any ſuch Writs to Inland or Maritine Counties to prepare ſuch Ships, although there hath been many times great danger; nor yet any Writs to Maritine

Towns after the Statute of 14 *Edw.*III. to charge them to find any Ships at their charges: So then I conclude this point, that I conceive this Writ is not warranted by any former Preſident.

Now I come to examine the points of this Writ, whether the ſame be legal, and warranted by any former Preſidents, and I conceive it is not:

1. Firſt, The motives mentioned in the Writ are, Quia datum eſt nobis intelligi, which is no certain information, quòd quidam prædones & maris graſſatores, did take the Kings Subjects, Merchants, and others, and carried them into miſerable captivity.

2. Cumque ipſos conſpicimus navigium indies præparantes ad mercator' noſtros moleſtand', & regnum noſtrum gravand'. All theſe and thoſe following I conceive are not ſufficient motives, and were never in any Preſident before to have a Royal Navy prepared, for the former Preſidents are, that great Princes in open times of hoſtility had provided great Navies with Munition and Souldiers, with intent to invade the Kingdom, as appeareth by the former Preſidents: And againſt ſuch Proviſion it was neceſſary to provide a Royal Navy, the Kings Ships, and all the Ships of the Kingdom to be gathered to withſtand them; but to make ſuch preparation againſt Pirates, it was never put in any Writ before: For when Pirates infeſted the Seas, they came as it were by ſtealth to rob and to do miſchief, and they never dare appear, but when they may do miſchief, and eſcape away by their lightneſs; but againſt them the uſual courſe hath been, that the Admiral or his Deputy with ſome few Ships have ſcoured the Coaſts, and not to imploy a whole Navy, and this appeareth by the Record of 25 Edw. I. *m.*9. where William Leybourn, the Admiral, was appointed upon ſuch an occaſion with ten Ships to lie upon the Seas; and the uſual practice hath been, when they hover upon the Seas, by ſending a few Ships of War to ſcatter them, and to make them abſolutely to flee away: And there is no doubt of loſs of the Dominion of the Seas by any Act that Pirates can do, neither convenient that every County of the Kingdom ſhould prepare Ships againſt them.

2. The command of this Writ to provide a Ship of 450 Tuns at the charges of the County, furniſhed with Maſters and Mariners, which is impoſſible for them to do for the reaſons before alleaged; and therefore is illegal, and not warranted by former Preſident.

The command of the Writ to find Wages for the Souldiers for twenty ſix weeks after they come to Portſmouth, when they are out of their Counties, and in the Kings ſervice, is illegal, being againſt the courſe of Preſidents in divers times, and againſt divers expreſs Statutes: And this appeareth by divers Records, 15 Joh. In the Writs of Summons of the Tenants by Knights Service, it is expreſly mentioned, that after their ſorty days Service (for ſo many days they were to do Service by their Tenures) they ſhould be ſatisfied ad denarios Regis.

Paſch. 26 Edw. I. amongſt the Writs of the Exchequer it is there ſet down, that the Footmen of Cheſhire, being 1000. which were appointed to go to the defence of the Borders upon Scotland, would not ſtir out of the County without their Wages; and there is ſet down, that one therein named was ſent down with money to pay the ſaid Footmen.

Mich. 26 Edw. I. Inter Brevia irretornab. in the Exchequer, by reaſon of the invaſion of the Scots, many thouſands of Souldiers were taken from divers parts of the Kingdom, ad vadia Regis, and there mentioned, that Clerks were ſent down with money to pay the Souldiers of ſeveral Counties their Wages.

30 Edw. 1. In the Exchequer in accompt the Wages of Land-Souldiers for ſeveral Counties, and the Wages of Mariners, are ſet down what the Wages that was paid came to by day both by Sea and Land.

Trin.31.E.1. Inter Brevia in the Exchequer, the Wardens of the Marches of Scotland ſignified unto the Barons, that the men of Cumberland and Weſtmerland, appointed for the defence of the Marches, would not ſtir out of their Counties without Wages. whereupon order was given for Wages for them.

19 Edw. 2. Commiſſions went out to pay the Souldiers, which ſerved out of ſeveral Counties for defence againſt Scotland.

Hill. 2. *Ed.*3. *Rot.*16. In the Exchequer it was ordered in Parliament, that where ſome Souldiers had received of ſome of the Kings Officers moneys for their Wages, were fain to give bond for repayment, that thoſe bonds ſhould all be redelivered.

But to clear all doubts, the expreſs Statute of 18 Ed. III. cap. 7. is, That men of Arms, Hoblers, and Archers, choſen to go in the Kings Service out of England, ſhall be at the Kings Wages from the time they go out of their Counties where they were choſen, until the time they come home again.

19 *H.*7.cap.1. 11 *H.*7. cap.1. Thoſe that had any grant of Lands from the King, and thoſe that had any Offices of the grant of the King, are to ſerve the King in his Wars, but in both it is appointed, they ſhall have Wages from the time they come from their houſes, until they ſhall return.

2 & 3 *E.*6.c 2. It is enacted, That no Captain receiving Souldiers ſerving by Sea or by Land, ſhall receive any Wages for more Souldiers, or more time than they ſerve, and ſhall enter the days of their entring into Wages upon pain, &c.

All which Records and Statutes do prove, that the Souldiers ſhould be at the Kings Wages; therefore the command for Souldiers Wages for twenty ſix Weeks when they go from Portſmouth, is illegal, and expreſly againſt the ſaid Statutes: and ſo the Aſſeſsment being entire, as well for the Wages as the other charges, I hold to be clearly illegal, and not to be demanded.

4. That the command of this Writ to the Sheriff to aſſeſs men at his own diſcretion, is not legal, nor warranted by the Preſidents; for the Preſidents are commonly that aſſeſsments for contribution for making or ſetting out of Ships, have been by Commiſſioners, which by preſumption had knowledge of ſuch matters as commonly Sheriffs have not. Alſo this leaveth to the Sheriff too great a power to value mens eſtates, as to inhaunce whom he will, and to favour whom he will.

5. That the power to the Sheriffs and Mayors of Towns, &c. to impriſon, eſpecially as it is uſed for non-pament of money, is illegal, and expreſly againſt divers Statutes; for it is provided by *Magna Charta, c.*29. Quod nullus capiatur vel impriſonetur, nec ſuper eum ibimus niſi per judicium Parium ſuor' vel per legem terræ.

Alſo in 5 Ed. III. *cap.*9. that none ſhall be attached, or his goods ſeized contrary to the form of the great Charter.

Alſo by the Statute made *Mich.*37. *Edw.*III. *cap.*18. it is recited, that by that great Charter none ſhould be taken or impriſoned but by due Proceſs of Law, yet by colour of this Writ the Sheriff may impriſon any perſon, yea, any Peer of the Realm; for although Peers are not to be arreſted upon ordinary Proceſs between party and party, as it was reſolved in the Counteſs of Rutlands Caſe, in Coke l. 6. *fol.*32. yet for a contempt, and upon Proceſs of contempt, which is always for the King, any Peer may be impriſoned, as it is reſolved by all the Lords and all the Judges in the Star-chamber in the Earl of Lincolns Caſe: And ſo the Sheriff by colour of this Writ may arreſt any Peer, as for a contempt in not paying; but by the Book caſe, 2 Ed. III. *fol.*2 it is reſolved, that a Writ to impriſon one upon ſuggeſtion before he be indicted, and without due Proceſs of Law, was illegal; ſo for the caſe I hold this Writ to be illegal.

6. The laſt Clauſe of this Writ is, That by colour of this Writ more ſhould not be gathered than will be ſufficient for the neceſſary expences of the premiſſes; and that none that levy any money towards theſe contributions, ſhall detain the ſame with them, or imploy the ſame to other uſes: And that if more than did ſuffice were collected, it ſhould be paid amongſt thoſe that paid, after a rateable proportion. Theſe are reaſonable Clauſes; but as the courſe is taken, it is not to be performed: For no Ship, nor Tackling, nor Munition, nor Men, nor Wages, nor Victuals being provided, it is not to be known whether more be gathered or leſs than would ſuffice; and there being money gathered, it is of neceſſity either detained with the Collector or Sheriff, or imployed to other uſes than are appointed by the Writ, ſo the Writ is not performed; and the money aſſeſſed and collected is not duly made nor collected, and the money aſſeſſed and unpaid, cannot be duly demanded.

7. Admitting that the Writ were legal, and the Commands therein legal, yet the Aſſeſsment, as it is certified, is not ſufficient to charge the Defendant; for it is not certified that any Ship with Munition and Men, and Wages for Men, and Victuals, were prepared, and this is a year after the time that it ſhould have been prepared and ſent to Portſmouth; and if it were not prepared, there is no cauſe to charge the Defendant: And that not appearing to be done, it ſhall be 'conceived not to be done; for if a man be charged with money in conſideration of a thing to be done before a certain time, if the thing be not performed according to the time, none can be charged for not being contributory to it after the time is paſt; for it is in nature of a condition precedent, to have a duty or ſum of money to be paid after the condition performed, and there he that will have the duty, muſt ſhew that the condition is performed: This appeareth in the Caſe of 15 *H.VII.*1.& *Coke l.*7. *fol.*9.Ughtrees Caſe. And if the Ship be not prepared according to the Writ, nor money imployed for preparing a Ship, for and in the name of the County, then every one that paid any money, either voluntarily, as in obedience to the Writ, or compulſorily upon diſtreſs, may demand their money again of the Sheriff, or of them that received it; for as they paid their money, ſo it muſt be diſpoſed of, and cannot be diſpoſed of otherwiſe by any command whatſoever, although it be under the Great Seal; for the command being under the Great Seal to prepare and furniſh a Ship to ſuch purpoſe as in the Writ is mentioned, and they paying it to that purpoſe, it cannot be otherwiſe diſpoſed, although it be more for their advantage: For private men having intereſt therein, that cannot be taken from them, nor diſpenſed withal; therefore in *Coke, lib.*7. *fol.*27. in the caſe of Penal Laws it is reſolved, That if the Penalty appointed to be forfeited upon a Penal Statute be given to the poor of the Pariſh where the offence is committed, the King cannot diſpence with the Penalty for that offence, becauſe the poor have an intereſt therein; but if the Penalty be given, part to the King, and part to the poor, the King may diſpenſe with his own part, but not with the part of the poor.

Object. And where it is ſaid,that this is by way of accommodation,becauſe the Country cannot well know how to provide to content, and perhaps with more charge. Solut. To this is anſwered, they muſt do it at their peril, if the Writ be legal, and then if it be done, they ſhall have the benefit thereof; for as my Brother Weſton and my Brother Berkley have both agreed, if the Ship were made when the Service is done, the County for which it was made ſhall have the benefit of the Ship and the Munition, and of the ſervice of the Men, being made more expert againſt another time, and the Ship may with ſome eaſie charge ſerve again, and nothing loſt but the expences of the Victuals, and the Kingdom ſhall be ſo much the more ſtrengthened by having ſo many Ships made or prepared; and they may have account of their money how it was beſtowed, and if any ſurpluſage be gathered, to have it reſtored; And that the Law is ſo, that if money be received of the County, and not imployed accordingly, the party ſo receiving it is accountable to pay a Fine for the ſame to the King, and to the County for the Money,appeareth by two Records, the one in Hill. 16 *Ed.*III. *rot.*23. in the Kings Bench,where two Souldiers were indicted, for that they 8 Ed. III. taking three pounds apiece towards their armour, and to the bringing them to the place where they were appointed to ſerve the King in England in Wars, went not, but tarried ſtill in their houſes,and retained the Armour and the Money they had received for that purpoſe: They thereupon being convented,pleaded not guilty; and the one was found to go in ſervice according to the appointment, ſo he was diſcharged: And the other was found that he received the Money, and went not to do the ſervice, nor reſtored the Arms nor Money; thereupon he was committed to the Priſon,and paid to the King a Fine, and found Sureties to pay the Money to the Hundred again, from whom he had received it.

The other was *Hill.*20 *Ed.*III. rot. 57. in the Kings Bench, where two High Conſtables were indicted for that they 8 Ed. III. had received ſix Marks of the Towns in their Hundreds to ſet forth Souldiers and had not ſet them forth, but retained the Money, which they denying, it was found that they had received the money for that purpoſe,and disburſed 41 *s.*6 d. thereof towards the ſetting forth of Souldiers, but had retained 38 s. 6 d. and not disburſed it; thereupon they were fined and impriſoned,and after inlarged upon Sureties to pay the Money they had retained undisburſed at the next time when the King commanded Souldiers for thoſe parts; By both which Records, being for offences done ſo long before, it appeareth that thoſe that have received Money of the Country to prepare Ships, they are anſwerable unto the King or his Succeſſors to pay a Fine for their imployment of it otherwiſe,and are chargeable to thoſe of the County of whom they received it, for repayment thereof.

8. For the laſt point I conceive, that this Certiorari directed to the two that were late Sheriffs at the time of the Aſſeſment, and not to the Sheriff that was at the time of the Certiorari awarded; who is the only and immediate Officer to return the Writs, is not legal; for it is the firſt that hath been ſeen of that kind, For all Writs are directed to ſome immediate Sheriff,requiring him to demand of the former Sheriffs what they did upon the former Writ, and they are to return to him what hath been done, and he to return the ſame to the Court,whereunto he is the immediate Officer, and the former are not any Officers.

So the Scire fac' thereupon grounded I conceive is not good, alſo the Scire facias to warn Mr. Hampden ad oſtend' ſi quid pro ſe habeat, &c.

quare de prædict. viginti ſolid. onerare non debet, not ſhewing to whom, is uncertain and inſufficient.

Thereupon I conclude upon the whole matter, That no judgment can be given to charge the Defendant.

Judgment was given againſt M. Hampden by the greater part of the Judges: And when the Judges had delivered their Opinions, the Barons gave Judgment Quod oneretur, &c.

Afterwards in this preſent Parliament begun at Weſtminſter, 3. Novembris, Anno Dom. 1640. the Commons took into their conſiderations the extrajudicial Opinions of the Judges, the Ship-writs, and this Judgment againſt Mr. Hampden; and being read openly in the Houſe, after long debate, Die Lunæ, ſeptimo die Decemb. 1640. theſe four ſeveral Votes paſſed upon them, without ſo much as one Negative Voice to any of them, (viz.)

1. That the charge impoſed upon the Subjects for the providing and furniſhing of Ships, and the Aſſeſments for raiſing of money for that purpoſe, commonly called Ship-money, are againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Subjects right of Property, and contrary to former reſolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right

Charles Rex.

When the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, whether may not the King by Writ under the Great Seal of England command all the Subjects in this Kingdom at their charge to provide and furniſh ſuch number of Ships, with Men, Victual, and Munition, and for ſuch a time as he ſhall think fit, for the defence and ſafeguard of the Kingdom from ſuch danger and peril, and by Law compel the doing thereof, in caſe of refuſal or refractorineſs; And whether in ſuch caſe is not the King the ſole Judg both of the danger, and when and how the ſame is to be prevented and avoided?

The Certificate of Sir John Denham, Knight, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, concerning Ship-money, 26. Maii, Anno Dom. 1638.

May it pleaſe your Lordſhips, I had provided my ſelf to have made a ſhort Argument, and to have delivered my Opinion, with the Reaſons; but by reaſon of want of reſt this laſt night, (my old Diſeaſe being upon me) my ſickneſs and weakneſs are greatly increaſed, inſomuch that I cannot attend the buſineſs as I deſire. And if my Opinion be required, it is for the Plaintiff.

Jo. DENHAM.

Serjeants Inn in Fleetſtreet
26. Maii, 1638.

His ſecond Certificate, directed to the Lord Chief Juſtice Bramſton, 28. Maii, 1638.

My Lord,

Underſtanding that ſome miſconſtruction was taken by ſome in the Declaration of mine Opinion, which I deſired your Lordſhip the laſt Saturday to deliver in my name; for farther ſatisfaction therein, although I was moſt deſirous to have paſſed my Vote in ſilence in this Work of weight, by reaſon I heard not the laſt four Arguments, yet I delivered my Opinion for the Plaintiff, which I took to be Hampden, by reaſon it appeared by the Record, that he coming in upon Proceſs, Quæritur ſe colore præmiſſorum graviter vexari, & hoc minus juſte, &c. which ſatisfied me that he was Plaintiff. And therefore I now declare my Opinion for Mr. Hampden, who did demur.

I ſhall onely deliver theſe two Reaſons for maintaining of my Arguments.

The firſt is, That his Majeſty is, Sola & Suprema Juſtitia Regni: And the Rule of the Law is, and hath always been, That his Majeſty can do no wrong. And thereupon ariſeth another Rule in our Law, (which I give for my ſecond Reaſon) That the Kings Majeſty (being of an incorporate capacity) can neither take any Lands or Goods from any of his Subjects, but by and upon a Judgment of Record, which according to our daily experience in the Exchequer, there muſt precede ſome Judgment in that or ſome other Court of Record, whereby his Majeſty may be entituled either to the Lands or Goods of a Subject. As namely, where Seizure of Goods of a Subject is made for his Majeſty, either upon Outlawries, Attainders, or matters of the like nature, as in Caſes of Seiſure in the Court of Exchequer, where Seiſures are given by the Statute: yet without a Judgment in that Court, upon a Trial for the King, the Goods are not to be recovered to the uſe of the King, as forfeited.

Upon conſideration whereof, and comparing the ſame with his Majeſties Royal Writ, I find no Judgment thereupon had or given, which were the chiefeſt Reaſons of my opinion for Mr. Hampden.

28. Maii, 1638.

Sir John Finch Knight, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, his Argument touching the Ship-money in the Exchequer Chamber, June 9. 1638.

A Writ under the Great Seal of England, dated Auguſt 4. 11 Car. went to the Sheriff of Buckinghamſhire (Sir Peter Temple) commanding that a Ship of 450 Tun and 180 Men, to be furniſhed with all Ammunition and Tackling at Portſmouth, for 26 Weeks, to go with other of his Majeſties Ships, and of the Subject, to defend the Dominion of the Sea and Realm, being in danger; and for to aſſeſs all his Majeſties Subjects, and all the Inhabitants within the ſaid County: and all Occupiers, Tennants there, that have no part in a Ship, nor ſerve in the ſame, to contribute for and towards the preparation and ſetting forth of the Ship according to their abilities.

The Record of Certiorar. ſaith Stoak Mandevile is within the ſaid County, and was aſſeſſed at a reaſonable rate; and that the ſum of 20 s. was aſſeſſed upon the Lands of J. Hampden Eſq; as by a Schedule of March 9. 12 Car. annexed unto the Certiorar. may appear.

Whereupon a Mittimus, May 5. 13 Car. with the Certiorar. and Schedule was directed unto the Barons of the Exchequer to do there for the ſum unpaid prout de jure & per legem & conſuetud. Reg. noſtri fuer. faciend.

A Scire fac. upon this went forth of the Exchequer to warn Mr. Hampden to ſhew cauſe why he ſhould not pay the 20 s. upon the return of which Mr Hampden appeared, and demanded Oyer of the Writ Certiorar. Mittimus, and Scire fac. and upon hearing of them read, he demurred, and Mr. Attorney joined, then my Lord Chief Baron, and the Court of Exchequer, andjourned it to the Exchequer Chamber, deſiring the advice of all his Majeſties Judges, and look what advice we, or the greater number of us give, the Court ought and muſt give Judgment upon it accordingly.

In the debating of this Caſe, there have been great variety of Opinions amongſt the Judges; a thing uſual and frequent in all great Caſes and Conſultations, which ſhews commonly the difficulty of the thing, and argueth a candor and clearneſs in the Judges, between whom Combination and Conſpiracy would be moſt odious. All that have gone before me, have in one thing agreed, that it is the greateſt Cauſe that ever came in any of our memories, or memorial of our Predeceſſors.

As the Sun ariſing in the Horizon ſhews not the Figure ſo clear, as when it is beholden in the Meridian, ſo by mixing many impertinencies with the Caſe in Judgment. It hath been apprehended to be of a more tender conſequence then indeed it is; yet tender and weighty it is, if equally weighed in one ballance, we may put the Regal power, or rather the Regality it ſelf in the other, the Priviledges and Liberty of the Subject in his Perſon and Eſtate.

To look upon either of theſe, or both, through the multiplying glaſs of Affection, is to hold neither of them true; neither can they be ſo truly diſcerned, much leſs to multiply by the glaſs of Fanſie, and therefore Juſtice need to hold the Beam ſtrait.

I cannot fear my ſelf, when Vulgar Cenſure hath executed it ſelf upon every one that hath delivered himſelf in this matter, yet I will not ſay, Domine poſuiſti me in lubrico loco, for we that do ſit here, do move in a Sphere, and ſhould be like the primum mobile, according to whom all others are to ſteer their courſe, and Judges themſelves muſt move ſteadily upon their right Poles, as I hope this Court will.

What Judge ſoever he be that is elevated by popular applauſe, or animated by the contrary to accumulate honour, is fitter rather to live fece Romuli quam in policia Angliæ.

Nor will I loſe time, remembring the ſtrickt Oath of a Judge, who ſhould expell all the reſpects, and ſpeak his conſcience, I hope none of us forget the duty we owe to God and the King, end Commonwealth, and to our ſelves; I ſhall eddeavour to ſatisfie my Conſcience in all that that I ſhall ſay, and they forget their duty to the yrſt, and humanity towards us, thet ſay or think the contrary of any one of us, ſome of us have Fortunes and Poſterities, and therein have given Hoſtages to the Commonwealth, and as much intereſt in this caſe as Mr, Hampden.

Thoſe that want thoſe bleſſings want thoſe temptations that make them dream of (or hunt for) Honour, or Riches to perpetuate their Name and Families: To them nothing can be more precious than the balm of integrity, which will preſerve their names and memories; It cannot be preſumed but that we ſhould ſpeak our Conſciences ſince we well know ſhortly (as the Pſalmiſt ſays) Corruption ſhall ſay, I am thy father, and the Worm, I am thy mother.

In handling this caſe no man can think I ſhall do other than right herein; I am troubled rather for a method, than matter; rather how to diſpoſe what I find, than find what to diſpoſe; I ſhall endeavour ſhortly and cleraly, (conſidering the time I have to ſpend, and the weightineſs of the matter about which I am to ſpeak) to deliver my opinion with the reaſons of it, and my endeavour ſhall be rather to contract than omit,

I have, with the beſt care I could, taken my notes of all that hath been ſaid for or againſt Mr. Hampden, and have, according to the meaſure of my underſtanding, weighed and pondered all that hath been ſpoken both at the Bar, and by my Brothers, and beſtowed many hours in meditation about them, which the time of reſt and repoſe might have challenged.

Before I enter into the Caſe, I ſhall ſpeak of the ſteps and degrees by which this cauſe hath come to judgment, whereby it will clearly appear with what Clemency, Wiſdom, Juſtice, and Goodneſs his Majeſty hath proceeded in this buſineſs.

The firſt Writ went out to the Port Towns and Maritine parts of the Land the twentieth of October, 10 R. Car. upon advice taken between his Majeſty and his Council, before then of thoſe Writs I can ſay nothing, for I was commanded at that time to attend another ſervice about another employment, the Forreſt of Deane, but it is well known the reſolution taken by his Majeſty therein was grounded and relied upon the judgment and learning of Mr. Noy, Attorney General, a man of great Learning, and one that had great inſight into Records, by whom the matter was firſt prepared, collected, and digeſted, and afterwards imparted to ſome of his Majeſties learned Council, and afterwards to ſome other eminent perſons of the Commonwealth of no leſs judgment and knowledge of the Laws of this Realm; and upon conſultation with my Lord Chief Baron, and his Majeſties Barons of the Exchequer, his Majeſty commanded thoſe Writs to be ſent forth, againſt the legality of which nothing hath bee truly alleaged; it is true, they are not in Judgment properly before us, and if method did not preſs it, I ſhould not have mentioned them.

1. Octob. 10. of his Majeſties Reign his Majeſty was pleaſed to command me to ſerve in the place that now I do, and thoſe Records, Writs, Commiſſions, and other Preſidents were brought to me, as they had been formerly to my Lord Chief Juſtice, and my Lord Chief Baron, and we there did confer together, and delivered our opinions in writing under our hands.

Upon view and diligent peruſal of a multitude of ancient Records, and Writs, and other Preſidents of E. I. E. II, and E. III. and other Records of other Kings Reigns; we delivered our opinions in theſe words, That the Dominion of the Sea belongeth to the King, and that he is ſole Lord and Proprietor of the ſame; in which reſpect his Excellent Majeſty theſe Regalities and Royal Powers is to defend againſt all Hoſtile Actions, Intruſions, and Invaſions, as well the good of his Subjects as ſtrangers, importing and exporting their Commodities; and for the defence of the Kingdom, and for the better performing whereof the Cinque Ports have been required to prepare ſuch a certain number of Ships of divers Burdens, and Men of Arms, and at ſuch times at their own charges from time to time as the ſame Writs and the preſent occaſion required, and for the time and place, and reſidence of their attendance his Majeſty was the ſole Appointer and only Judge, and this was the conſtant uſe in the Reigns of thoſe Kings, and this was agreeable to the Common Law of England, 15, Novemb. 1634. before the next Summer his Majeſty finding the danger to grow general, and conceiving there was little reaſon that the Maritine parts ſhould bear the whole charge. for that the whole Realm was intereſted therein; afterwards he required our opinions, viz. my Lord Chief Juſtice, my Lord Chief Baron, and my ſelf, in June 1635. After conference together, we delivered our opinions, and upon conſultation conceiving the reaſon of the Preſidents before, and the rule of the Law and Reaſon requiring that when the whole Kingdom was in danger, the defence that concerned the whole Kingdom ſhould he born by all the Subjects of the Kingdom: This was firſt verbally delivered to his Majeſty, and afterwards we put it in writing under our hands in thoſe words prout, &c. whereas the charge of defending the Sea had been impoſed upon the Cinque Ports, ſo where the whole Kingdom is in danger, the whole charge ought to be maintained by all the Subjects of the Realm.

And amongſt other Writs, this to the Sheriff of Buckingham went forth at the time aforeſaid, after which his Majeſty finding ſome queſtion made of the legality of it, he called all his Judges, not ſingle, or any one in a Corner, but becauſe he would have every one of them truly informed, required them to adviſe together, and every one of them by themſelves to give his opinion, according to which we ſeverally, and every man by himſelf, and all of us together delivered our opinions under our hands in this manner, viz.

That when the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, of which your Majeſty is the ſole Judge, your Majeſty may by writ under your Great Seal of England command all the Subjects of this your Kingdom at their charge to provide and furniſh ſuch a number of Ships with Men, Munition, and Victuals, and for ſuch a time as your Majeſty ſhall think fit, for the defence and ſafety of the Kingdom from ſuch danger and peril, and that by the Law your Majeſty may compel the doing thereof, in caſe of refuſal, which (the Clauſe his Majeſty was ſole Judge of was only put in by ten of us) my Brother Hutton, having not ſeen nor weighed the Preſidents, took time to adviſe, and gave no opinion at this Conference between us; and my Brother Crook had the ſame reaſon, being not acquainted with thoſe Writs, but yet ſubſcribed his opinion ſingly by himſelf, December 1635. (viz.)

That where the good and ſafety of the Kingdom is in danger, of which his Majeſty is the ſole Judge, his Majeſty may command all his Subjects at their charge to provide and furniſh ſuch Ships at Sea with men and Munition as ſhall be neceſſary for the defence thereof, and this I hold to be agreeable to Law and Reaſon.

Though I received nothing of this his opinion in his Argument, yet he ſtill holdeth it, wherein I obſerve:

1. That the King is the ſole Judge of the danger, and whether it be imminent.

2. Not only that the King may in ſuch danger command his Subjects to defend the Kingdom in caſe of neceſſity, but that the charge of the defence ought to be born by all the Realm in general, which opinion was more independent than the reſt, for that our opinion before it had relation to the Preſident of Maritine parts, but this was that the Subject might be charged abſolutely; and this was delivered by him readily and chearfully without heſitation, he will not deny it; I ſpeak not of this as of a thing whereby he ought to have been concluded, but that all the world ſhould know that his Majeſties Regal and Legal Power go hand in hand together, and that his Princely love and affection to his Subjects is ſuch that he is willing to prevent all miſtakes, and I ſpeak it alſo to this end, that when Judges ſingly deliver their opinions to the King not examining the reaſons that moved them unto it we ought to ſee very good and pregnant reaſon to vary from that opinion, though it be not binding.

This his Majeſty required for his own private ſatisfaction, and this I dare boldly ſay was ſo delivered by us, that no one Judge knew the opinion of the reſt.

When his Majeſty found ſlackneſs in ſome of his Subjects in contributing towards this charge, and thinking that it proceeded rather from miſunderſtanding of the Law than from want of duty, as deſirous of his Princely love to avoid all miſtakes, did upon the ſecond of February, 1636. ſend a Letter to all us his Majeſties Judges and Barons of the Exchequer, thereby requiring our ſeveral opinions about which we all conferred, and the particulars, wherein our opinions were required, had been long thought upon, and conſidered of before, or elſe we were much to blame, for we had it time enough to think upon it; and though our anſwer was returned the ſeventh of the ſame Month of February, yet we had it in our conſiderations from June 1635. fifteen Months before the anſwer before the anſwer returned, there was no ſurprize, I will ſpare to name our opinion then delivered, for it hath been repeated before, when we came to the debate and voting of this, we broke the Writs into ſeveral parts and queſtions, as,

Firſt, When the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, whether it ought not to be defended at the charge of the whole Kingdom, and agreed it was una voce nullo contradicente, that it ought.

Secondly,

2. Whether the Charge of the Defence might not be commanded by the King; which was alſo agreed that it might.

3. Whether the King was not the ſole Judge both of the danger, and when and how it was to be prevented, wherein my Brothers (Hutton and Crook) did agree it likewiſe, that he was ſole Judge of the danger. What their Opinions are now, and wherein they differ, I ſhall with their good leaves, examine; and their Reaſons and Differences (though indeed of the Kings being the ſole Judge in their Arguments, my Brother Crook ſpake nothing of his Opinion therein, nor my Brother Hutton nothing againſt it) but we delivered not our Opinions upon the (by,) nor was it ſo required by his Majeſty. It was then alſo declared by all of us, that we delivered not our Opinions as binding Opinions; nor were they ſo required by his Majeſty. Of all which, I dare boldly ſay, his Majeſty was truly informed; and this was alſo ſoon after publiſhed at his command, and recorded by my L. Keeper and L. Privy Seal; the firſt of them uſing many Arguments and ſound Collections, delivered it in charge of his Majeſties Judges to deliver it in their Circuits, which might have ſatisfied any that reſpected not their own private benefit, and Mr. Hampd. of all, I think, hath the leaſt reaſon to complain, being aſſeſſed but 20 s. a contemptible ſum, in reſpect of his annual Revenue, to bring this Caſe to Judgment. Yet his Majeſties clemency appears to be great herein, in that he would not debar any to queſtion the lawfulneſs of it, though he hath permitted Arcana Imperii, nay, Imperium ipſum, I would to God I could not ſay, even too licentiouſly debated at this Bar. I ſpeak it not by way of reprehenſion, but admonition to the Counſel who are to be commended in that they have done their duty faithfully for their Clients; yet I may ſay ſuch a Ravel and diving into the Kings Revenue, and ſecret Eſtates of Princes, and what ſucceeding Kings may be or do, it doth not well become theſe preſent Times: it would not have been endured in the beſt preceding Times.

It was not well done to doubt ſucceeding Poſterity, that promiſe as much as any of their Predeceſſors have done before us for the good of the Common-wealth.

It was not well to clog the Cauſe with ſo many Preſidents, impoſſible to be throughly obſerved; but our example (I hope) ſhall be a bar hereafter, and our care ſhall be to prevent it, being a great hindrance to the expedition of Juſtice, and cauſes of great expence to the Subjects long attendance about their Cauſes here, which may prove a greater charge than in providing Ships for defence of the Realm.

I come now to the Caſe as it ſtands in Judgment before us, wherein my Method ſhall be,

1. Firſt to examine what the Caſe is.

2. Secondly, I wil give my Opinion of the Caſe, with the Reaſons thereof.

3. I will anſwer the Objections made againſt it.

4. Fourthly, I will ſpeak of the Form and Quality of the Writ 4. Aug. the Certiorar', the Mittimus, and the Scire Fac. out of the Exchequer, and to all theſe with what brevity I can, I will ſpeak, according to the weight of the Caſe, where variety of Opinions give juſt cauſe to ballance them; the Caſe muſt riſe out of the Record, and muſt ſtand or fall upon that.

1. Firſt for the Caſe it ſelf; and therein firſt I will ſhew what danger there is, that is, the Ground of the Charge.

2. What things there are to maintain it: As for other things they tend unto the deſtruction of the Caſe.

Firſt, I am of Opinion that the danger of the whole Kingdom ought to be expreſſed clearly, for elſe the ground-work faileth; for if no danger, no reaſon for the charge, I am of opinion, that in the Writ 4. Aug. it ought to be expreſſed, and not in the Mittimus; though as my Brother Jones obſerved, the Mittimus comes time enough to Mr. Hampden to give him notice, yet he was not liable to the Charge, but by the Writ 4. Aug.

It is objected that the danger is not clearly expreſſed, for it is not upon words of certainty, but by way of incertainty, quod datum eſt nobis intelligi.

Secondly, For the Cauſes of the Writ, that it hath not relation to the danger of the Kingdom, but to defend the Sea-coaſts againſt Pirats, &c. they are not worthy of a Royal Navy, as my Brother Crooke alſo obſerved.

But I hold firſt, that the danger is ſufficiently expreſſed, certum eſt ſicut ſe res habet, datum nobis eſt intelligi, a thing very ordinary with us, and in all former Writs ex relatione, &c, Quod vulgaris opinio eſt, &c.

Although my Lord Chief Baron parallel'd this to the Caſe of Pattents, Ex certa ſcientia (which is nothing alike) for there before the King paſs away Land, he may be informed he may do it; but I hold as this Caſe is, the danger will not permit to be examined whether there be juſt cauſe of fear, for then it might receive delays, which are dangerous, and the Kingdom be loſt while we are diſputing.

And then for the Phraſe it ſelf, datum eſt nobis intelligi, it is ſufficient that the King knows there is danger; and therefore if it had been but onely intelligimus, none can deny it, but it had been ſufficient; and what difference is there between intelligimus, & datum eſt nobis intelligi, that ſets forth the knowledge of the danger, and this ſhews the means whereby he doth know it, ut datum eſt nobis intelligi, this goes farther than ex auditu rumor eſt, &c. therefore unleſs the King ſhould go out of the Kingdom to ſee the danger, can it be otherways expreſſed?

Secondly, I hold that the danger it ſelf, with the motives in the Writ, are ſufficient; alſo the motives are great depredations of the Subjects Goods and Life. But it is not upon this I reſt, for this hath relation to Pirats leading divers Chriſtians into Captivity, theſe are good motives, and (as one of my Brothers ſaid well) though theſe have relation to Pirats; yet Bellum Piraticum points at us as much terror as Hannibal ad Portas.

I ſhall not much rely upon that, that the Enemies of Chriſtendom, and of this Nation, did prepare ad Mercatores noſtros ulterius moleſtand', nos ad regnum gravand' niſi citius remedium apponatur, &c. But this, Conſideratis periculis quæ undique his guerrinis temporibus imminentibus ita quod nobis & ſubditis noſtris defenſionem maris & regni omni feſtinatione qua poterimus convenit, &c. ſhews otherwiſe than for the Pirats: this Defence was requiſite. Therefore the next Clauſe is, Nos volentes defenſionem Regni, tuitionem Maris, ſecuritatem Subditorum noſtrorum, &c. And therefore that Salva conductione Navium & Merchandizarum quæ ad regnum noſtrum Angliæ venerint & de eodem regno ad partes exteras tranſeunt, &c. take not away the former words, or limit them. As for the Clauſe in the Mittimus, I ſtand not upon it; nor that Salus Reg. & Pop. noſtri Angl. periclitabitur, &c. admit there had been no preamble or expreſs mention of danger, I hold the Command it ſelf is ſufficient ſetting forth of the danger; which is, that the Ship be with other his Majeſties Ships, and the Ships of other his Majeſties Subjects at Portſmouth the firſt day of March next following: the words of the Record be, Exinde cum Navibus noſtris & Navibus aliorum fidelium Subditorum noſtrorum pro tuitione

Maris & defenſione noſtrorum & veſtrorum,&c. and particularly to expreſs the danger is not neceſſary; for the King, the ſole Arbiter of Peace and War, beſt knows it. And it was the practice in former times, and ſo no wiſdom for the King, who is the ſole Arbitrator of Peace and War, to expreſs the danger in particular, when Arms uſually go before Heralds; nor is it the uſe of Princes to Complement, to tell the Enemy that they will, or intend to invade their Lands, and therefore I hold, though it might be more clear, yet ſatis eſt quod ſufficit, I in my own conſcience am ſatisfied the danger is certain enough expreſſed in the Writ, and ſo I have done with, firſt, the Particular (the Danger) which was the ground of this Writ. As to the ſecond Particular:

What is alledged to be for the preventing of that Danger. My Brother Hutton and my Brother Crook would have it to be raiſing of Money by reaſon of the Clauſe in the Writ for the diſtribution of the Surpluſage; but the Record is, ad aſſidend. omnes homines & ad contribuendum Navem vel partem Navis non habentes,&c. which ſhews that it cannot be for Money; neither is there any colour for Money, for it is to find a Ship: and if they have not of their own, they muſt build or buy one with their Money. But there is a great deal of difference between payment of Money, and finding of a Ship: and if my Brother Crook be required to find a Lighthorſe and Arms, he muſt buy one, or hire with his money, if he have none, but yet the Charge is not onely for Money, but to find a Lighthorſe.

But my Brother Crooks Objection is, if any Surpluſage remain it ſhall be divided, and ſo the Sheriff is to detain no part of it, but imploy it for the Publick Good, and not convert it to his own private benefit.

To this I anſwer, That this ſhews the equality of the Charge, which is fitteſt to be by payment of money.

Object.

My Brother Crook hath further objected, that an Inland County cannot build a Ship, a great trouble for the County of Buckingham, ſo far from the Sea, to build a Ship.

To this I anſwer, that thoſe of Bucks. may hire a Ship, if they may not build one, and the words are but (parare) not for the Building, but Preparing a Ship: and it was not meant that they ſhould build it there, but that they ſhould contribute to the Building of a Ship in the moſt fit and convenient place.

Now in my opinion the King knowing and declaring the whole Kingdom to be in danger, and neceſſarily requiring his Subjects to defend and provide for this danger at Sea, the King may thereupon command all his Subjects to provide Ships to join with his Navy Royal againſt the Enemy of the whole Realm: and it is clear in the Caſe, and was the meaning of us all, that the King muſt join in the Charge, it being far from us to excuſe the King in his rateable part.

My Reaſons that the King may thus charge his Subjects to join with him in the Defence:

1. The Defence of the Kingdom muſt be at the Charge of the whole Kingdom in general.

2. That the Power of laying the Charge is by the Policy and Fundamental Laws of this Kingdom ſolely inveſted in the King.

3. The Law that hath given this Power to the King to do theſe things, hath given him Means to put theſe things in Execution.

In all theſe I ſhall ground my ſelf upon Authorities in Law, and Preſidents in all Ages.

1. Firſt, That the defence of the Kingdom muſt be at the charge of all the Kingdom, I ſhall prove from the Law of Nature, which is, that every thing in nature ought to defend it ſelf.

2. From the Rule of Reaſon, for quod omnes tangit ab omnibus ſupportari debet.

3. Thirdly from the true uſe of all that we enjoy, which muſt be abuſed if not imployed to and for the good alſo of thoſe that come after us; and neceſſary it is for our poſterity to have all ſure and ſafe. A good Patient will ſpare ſome bloud to preſerve his own health, and a good Huſband will ſpare ſome piece of his beſt ground for Ditches and Fences to preſerve the reſt; and he is an ill Husband that finds not ſafety in that he doth.

4. From the Law of Property; As every one hath a particular property in his own goods, ſo every one hath a property in general in anothers goods, for the common good. For the Common-wealth hath a property in every Subjects goods, not onely in time of War, but alſo in time of Neceſſity. In Peace therefore if one take away my goods without my conſent, I have my Action and recover Damage. Doctor and Student ſays, both a Treſpaſs of Lands and Goods is puniſhable by Indictment, and Treſpaſs at the Kings Suit, as well as at the Subjects: and this is by reaſon of the publick Intereſt that the King hath in every Subjects Goods for the Common good.

Now the Rule and Maxim before, ſo clearly and fully put and agreed by all, is, that in caſe of neceſſity that is apparent, the Subject ought to defend the Kingdom; and my Brother Crook agreed in caſe of danger, ſo it be imminent, all men are bound in their Perſons and Eſtates to defend the Land and the Kingdom. And when he ſays they muſt then exponere ſe & ſua, I think he means a man that takes and goes a Journey, may carry his money with him, ſe & ſua, id eſt, bona & catalla ſua, or elſe means the King cannot command their money without their conſent, of which I will ſpeak in its proper place.

I come now to the ſecond part of my general Head, which is the Power of laying this Charge.

By the Fundamental Laws and Policy of this Kingdom, the ſole Intereſt and Property of the Sea, &c. is in the King; I will not ſpeak of the Original of this Monarchy, this is fit rather for Civilians, Hiſtorians, or the Pen of a Divine, than a Judge at Weſtminſter-Hall; nor will I ſpeak of the Diviſion of Monarchies. The Poets ſay, that Saturn was the firſt Founder of Kingdoms; onely this I will ſay, that for the excellency of the Government of this Kingdom, through Gods bleſſings, that none are more happy than we. Look and ſee in other Nations, and tell me if you can find out any place where they can, and do enjoy thoſe Mercies of Peace and Plenty which we do. For as we may juſtly ſay, O Fortunatos nimium bona ſi ſua noverint Britannos: Nor will I perplex my ſelf with the Original of this Nation and Monarchy. Some Stories are fabulous, and others doubtful, nor any ſo clear as to ſet it forth certainly, though they ſpeak truly what is ſufficient for us to know: Nor is he the pooreſt man, Qui non poteſt numerare pecus; nor be one of the worſt Gentlemen, that cannot ſhew the Original of his Pedegree. The excellency of this Monarchy is ſufficient, that it is a Monarchy; and that is moſt true which Forteſcue ſaith of our Laws and their excellency: I agree Forteſcue was a Lord Chief Juſtice in H.6. time, but not Chancellor of England. Sea and Land make our Kingdom, and the King is Sponſus Regni. Magdalen Colledge Caſe, Sir John Davies Report, Stat. 24. H.8. 25 H.8. 1 Eliz. & 1 Jac. the Soil of the Sea belongs to the King, who is Lord and ſole Proprietor of them; and good reaſon why it ſhould, as is well maintained by Mr. Selden, that worthy and learned Author, and I hope ſhall be by his Majeſty, and maintained with the Soveraign of the Sea, without whoſe Navy this Authority can do little good.

The King holds his Diadem of God onely, all others hold their Lands of him, and he of none but of God onely: But this is but to light a Candle for others. From hence onely I will obſerve that none others can ſhare with him in his abſolute Power.

A Parliament is an Honourable Court, and I confeſs it an excellent means of charging the Subject, and defending the Kingdom, but yet it is not the onely means.

An Honour the laſt Parliament 4 Car. 1. was pleaſed to beſtow upon me, which never any ſhall with more reſpect remember than my ſelf, whom they were pleaſed to chuſe for their Speaker.

And, as my Brother Hutton ſaid, I conceive it a fit way by Parliament to charge the Subjects; and I wiſh ſome for their private humour had not ſowed the Tares of Diſcontent in that Field of the Commonwealth, then might we have expected and found good Fruit; but now the beſt way to redeem this loſt privilege (for which we may give thoſe thanks onely) is to give all opportune appearance of obedience and dutifulneſs unto his Majeſties command.

The Two Houſes of Parliament, without the King, cannot make a Law, nor without his Royal conſent, declare it: he is not bound to call it but when he pleaſeth; nor to continue it but at his pleaſure. Certainly there was a King before a Parliament, for how could there elſe be an Aſſembly of King, Lords, and Commons, and then what Soveraignty was there in the Kingdom but this? His Power then was limited by the poſitive Law, then it cannot be denied, but originally the King had the Soveraignty of the whole Kingdom.

Thirdly, The Law that hath given this Power, hath given means to the King by his Authority to put it in execution. It is a very true Rule, The Law commands nothing to be done, but it permits the ways and means how it may be done, elſe the Law ſhould be imperfect, lame, and unjuſt, therefore the Law that hath given the Intereſt and Soveraignty of defending and governing the Kingdom doth alſo give the King power to charge his Subjects for the neceſſary defence and good thereof.

And as the King is bound to defend, ſo the Subjects are bound to obey. Corbets Caſe. For the defence of the Kingdom, the Subjects are bound to obey, and to come out of their own Counties, if occaſion be, and to provide Horſe and Arms in Foreign Wars, and ſuch as are compellable now to defend, Guns inſtead of Bows and Arrows, ſo Munition, as Powder and Shot, &c. Then if the Sea and Land be but one entire Kingdom, and the King Lord of both, the Subject is bound as well for the defence of the Sea as of the Land; and then as are bound to provide Ships, Men, Victuals, and neceſſaries for that defence. And for us Iſlanders, it is moſt neceſſary for us to defend our ſelves at Sea; therefore it was the great Argument in 88. [illegible] with the Royal and invincible Navy of [illegible] land, and it was reſolved unanimouſly, that it was better to fight with them at Sea, though we loſt the Battle, than our Ships to ſuffer them to land.

But then there was Hannibal ad portas. To this I ſhall anſwer afterwards, but here the Maritine Towns ſhall not help the Inland, nor the Inland the Maritine, but each of them bear their own charge, and defend themſelves; but of this I ſhall ſpeak hereafter yet undoubtedly.

Now I ſhall endeavour clearly to prove this by authority in Law, that there is no expreſs authority againſt it, though there have been ſome Books cited by my Brother Hutton, and my Brother Crook, (which I ſhall anſwer in their due place amongſt other objections) yet there is not one Authority or Opinion, much leſs Reſolution or Judgment, in neceſſary time of danger, that ſays the King may not charge the Subject for the defence of the Kingdom.

Secondly, All theſe Authorities that prove the King is truſted with the defence of the Kingdom, and in divers caſes gives him Aids, Taxes, Subſidies, &c. prove that the Subject is bound, in caſe of danger and neceſſity to pay them for defence of the Kingdom.

Thirdly, All the Authorities of Murage, Pontage, Saltpeter, &c. ſhew that for the good of the Publick the King is intereſted in the eſtate of the Subjects, and may charge them much more (if for the well-being) than when the being it ſelf of the Common-wealth is at Stake, and in danger.

Fourthly, The Authorities of commanding the perſon of the Subject to come out of their own Counties proves the power of commanding the perſon of the Subject into Foreign parts, as in the King, much more the Eſtates of men ſhould be at his command in caſe of neceſſary defence of the Kingdom.

Fifthly, All the Commiſſions of arraying men in Ed. I. time, Ed. III. Ed. IV. Hen. VII. and Hen. VIII. time, &c. they are all granted upon the ſame reaſon, and went out for the neceſſary defence of the Kingdom; theſe Preſidents are not to command the perſon, but a Ship only juxta facultates ſuas, which are anſwerable in reaſon to the ancient Preſidents from Authorities. I come to Preſidents.

Preſidents though they be not Judgments, yet they ſhew the practice of the Law, and what better Book have we in the Law than the Book of Preſidents? Or what is there of more authority than that, for we have not the twelve Tables for our Common Law.

The Common Law is but the common uſage of the Land, and therefore the Preſidents alleaged by the Kings Council are of good authority to prove the Law in this caſe, wherein I ſhall not name the particulars, they have been well remembred by Maſter Attorney and Maſter Solicitor, but I will mention the ſubſtance of them.

The firſt Statute was before the Conqueſt, in the Times of Edgar, Alfred, Etheldred, &c. the uſe was to defend the Kingdom at the charge of the whole Kingdom by the Edict of the King.

A ſtrong inference from the Preſident of the grant to the Clergy and Church of divers Priviledges with theſe exceptions of pontium, &c. in the time of Edgar, Alfred, Etheldred, &c.

The Council of Enoch in Edgar's time, about 606. 621. mentioned by the learned Antiquary Sir Henry Spelman, fol. 510, and after theſe follow hæ ſunt conſtitutiones, &c. fol. 523. in which are excellent things good for Church and Commonwealth, Cap. 23. Navales expeditiones, if it be no Act, yet nothing is more like an Act of Parliament; Take the phraſe of thoſe times, and certainly it was either an Act of Parliament, or a proof of the Kings Power, that without Parliament he might charge the Subject for the defence of the Kingdom in caſe of danger, and the word Expedition is uſed for War, and ſometime for an Army, as Caſſiodorus, giving the reaſon of the Navy, ſays; in the third place it ſhews the practice of the Kings of England to charge their Subjects for the defence of the Kingdom in caſe of danger.

Now, if this charge of Dangil be not taken away by any of the Acts of Parliament, it remains ſtill, ſays my Brother Hutton, and ſo I think it doth, or ſomething in lieu of it, for it is not taken away by the Act of Parliament.

1. In theſe Preſidents obſerve firſt, that they are all upon the ſame common Reaſon that this is.

2. Theſe Writs are not limited for their number or time; ſo that they prove the power was in the King to charge his Subjects.

3. In theſe Preſidents ſome were to Inland Counties, as Huntington, Bedford, Buckingham, Leiceſter, Oxford, Berks, &c. and though they went not generally to all Counties at one time, yet they went to them as occaſion was; and if the danger had required, the King, might if he had pleaſed, have ſent to all, as well as to ſome.

But becauſe there was never any time when all the Munition in the Kingdom was drawn at one time to one place, may it not therefore be done? The commanding ſometimes of one, ſometimes of another, is an Argument they may all be commanded, as occaſion requires.

I do not build my opinion upon confuſed Notions, but on Matters digeſted, on Preſidents of weight, the chiefeſt in reſpect of time; and after the making of Magna Charta, 9 Hen. III. 13 Hen. III. m. 48. 18 Hen. III. m. 7. and 13 Edw. III. m. 77. 23 Edw. III. m. 4. 28 Edw. I. m. 23. and many other in Edw. I. time, there is proving Conribution towards the maintenance of the Sea-coaſts from Inlands, as 25 Edw. I. m. 13. Abbot of Robertſbridge Caſe is a full Preſident, notwithſtanding all that hath been ſaid; ſo 9 Edw. II. parte, 1. 20 Edw. II. m. 7. 2 Edw. III. Scot. Roll. 7 Edw. III. m. 9. 10 Edw. III. m. 16, 17. 11 Edw. III. 12. (14, 15, 16. 18 Edw. III. 46 Edw. III. m. 34.) 25 Edw. III. Rot. Franciæ m. 9. 29 Edw. III. 1 Rich. II. 1 Hen. IV. and yet Henry the Fourth had as much reaſon to pleaſe the People as any King of England; ſo in Hen. V. though buſied in the glorious Conqueſt, or rather recovery of France. God forbid we ſhould ſee thoſe times; ſo in Edw. IV. Hen. VI. Hen. VII. Hen. VIII. by way of offenſive War, Writs and Commiſſions to their Subjects to contribute towards it; ſo in Queen Elizabeths time Commiſſions towards the maintenance of the Kingdom, 11 Eliz. 41 Eliz. Commiſſion to the Earl of Nottingham, 88. Letters from the Lords of the Council, which Letters had the Queens Writ, but my Brother Crooke anſwered all theſe with this Rule of Law, Judicandum eſt legibus non exemplis; to this I anſwer him, That Examples and Preſidents are good Law, they are Authorities out of the Law, and declare what the Law is, and what of more certainty, Edw. Digeſt of Writs. Theſe are inſtar oracula legis, Preſidents drawn up by the Clerk ſometimes, though they paſs ſub ſilentio, yet are they good Authorities in the Law.

The Abbot of Robertsbridges Caſe as a Preſident of great Authorities.

Object. No Preſidents go to Inland Counties.

Solut. I anſwer, in truth the Preſidents are quite otherways, for ordinary defence they go to Maritine Coaſts only: But where the danger is general to Inland Counties, and after another manner, for this I refer you to my Brother Weſtons Argument; theſe ſhould not be ſo frequent, for firſt this danger was but ſeldom.

Secondly, Becauſe then we had double hoſtility, one from France by Sea, and another by Land from Scotland, examine the Preſidents therefore.

The third Objection that my Brother Crooke made, is, that we are compellable by our Preſidents to Arms, but not with any Sum of money.

I anſwer with my Brother Jones, Bona corporis are above bona fortunæ, but this power of the liberties of the perſons of his Subjects he agrees is in the King, then I ſay more reaſon that their Eſtates ſhould be in his power in this caſe of neceſſary defence.

Secondly, The Preſidents Warrants the quite contrary and Wages have been paid to Souldiers by the Subjects in this caſe,

The third thing that I ſhall obſerve in this caſe is the anſwering of all theſe Objections which have been made againſt it, which were three.

1. That the Writ was againſt the Common Law.
2. That it was againſt the Statute Law.
3. Many inconveniences grow thereby.

Firſt, It is againſt the Common Law, firſt, becauſe it is without Preſident, this is the firſt of this kind ſince the Conqueſt, and where there is no Preſident the Law will not bear it; Littleton, fol. 32. My Lord Cooks Commentaries upon it puts divers Caſes to the ſame purpoſe.

I anſwer, There are Preſidents for it, and the Law is ſo that the King may charge his Subjects towards the defence of the Kingdom in this Caſe.

The ſecond Objection is, that it is againſt the freedom of the Subject, that hath a true property in his goods, which cannot be taken away without his actual or implyed conſent, *Lambert, fol.*294. Forteſcue Magna Charta, 17 King John, Matthew Paris, fol. 242. Forteſcue, 9. *Chap.*13, &c. 13 Hen. IV. Chamberlain of Londons Caſe, Regiſter, fol. 127. Fitz. N. B. &c.

I anſwer, That that authority of Lambert, rehearſing the Laws of the Conquerour, is Volumus & concedimus, ut omnes liberi homines totius Monarchiæ Regni noſtri habeant & teneant terras ſuas & poſſeſſiones ſuas bene & in pace liberos ab omni injuſta exactione & ab omni Tallagio, ita quod nihil exigatur aut capiatur niſi per Commune Conſilium, &c. it cannot be conſtrued that they ſhould not be charged, but that they ſhould be free from all unjuſt Taxes; The King is not concluded by the ſubſequent words, omne tallagium, this cannot be ſo general but the King may impoſe juſt charges towards the neceſſary defence of the whole Kingdom, for this is meant plainly by the word Tallage, it appears Tallagium is derived from a French word, and is indeed a cutting word, and therefore injuſta exactio, which ſhews that for the moſt part it is taken in the worſt ſenſe, and as my Brother Crooke ſaid it, and the manner of expounding it muſt be from the Law.

Secondly, My Brother Crooke quite left out theſe words following, (that declare and expound the former,) viz. Statuimus & firmiter præcipimus, ut omnes liberi homines totius Regni prædict. ſint fratres conjurati ad Monarchiam noſtram, & ad regnum noſtrum pro viribus ſuis & facultatibus, contra inimicos pro poſſe ſuo defendendum & viriliter ſervandum, &c, whereby it is apparent, firſt, that the Kingdom is to be defended by the whole Kingdom pro facultatibus, with their goods, as well as viribus, by their perſons.

Secondly, It comes after the Chapter of Tenures, and ſervices, by which they are bound to defend terras & honores ſuos, &c. which ſhews that he meant not to free any from the charge of defending of the Kingdom in caſe of neceſſity.

Object. The third Objection is the Charter of King John, Nullum Tallagium imponatur niſi per commune Conſilium.

Solut. I anſwer, the words are concerning the defence of his own Perſon and Kingdom, and therefore it is excepted, niſi ad redimendum corpus noſtrum; and in the original Act theſe words are left out, Scutage, Murage, and other Aids there mentioned, ſhew that only thoſe were meant that were of private benefit were not to be impoſed by the King upon his Subjects without Parliament, but not to bar himſelf for the publick good.

The fourth Authority was Forteſcue, which was moſt inſiſted upon by my Brother Crooke.

Before I come to the words themſelves, note firſt, the time when he wrote that Book, It was after all the Acts of Parliament that took away the Regal Power, yet it mentioneth not them, ſo as it muſt needs relate to the Common Law, it was writ when the Civil Wars were between the two Houſes and himſelf in exile, no time was it then to diſpleaſe the People.

Secondly, It ſhews the differences between Kingdoms, when a Monarch rules that challengeth all power over his Subjects, and between a Monarch that governs according to poſitive Laws.

The words that ſeem to be againſt this charge are in Forteſcue 9. *cap.*26. Rex Angliæ Politicæ imperans genti ſuæ, nec legem ipſe ſine ſubditorum aſſenſu mutare poterit, nec ſubjectum populum renitentem onerare impoſitionibus peregrinis, Cap. 13. fol.32. Rex caput corporis politici mutare non poteſt leges Corporis illius nec ejuſdem populi ſubſtantias proprias ſubtrahere reclamantibus eis aut invitis, & Cap. 39. fol.84. which my Brother Crooke ſays is the expreſs Authority in hoc individuo, the words are, Neque Rex Regno Angliæ ibidem per ſe aut Miniſtros Tallagia, ſubſidia aut quævis onera alia imponit ligeis ſuis, aut leges eorum mutat vel novas condidit ſine conceſſione vel aſſenſu totius Regni ſui in Parliamento ſuo expreſſo, &c.

From them all I take the true meaning of him to be, and I hold firſt that the Kingdom ought to be governed by the poſitive Laws of the Land, and that the King cannot change nor make new Laws without a Parliament.

Secondly, The Subject hath an abſolute property in his Goods, Poſſeſſions, and Eſtate, nor to his own uſe the King cannot take them.

Thirdly, Nor for his own uſe the King cannot lay any Burden, Tallage, Tax, or Impoſition without the Subjects conſent in Parliament.

Fourthly, For the benefit of Trades the King may lay fitting Impoſitions, and may command that which is for neceſſary defence of the Kingdom, which is no command of charge, but command of imploying.

Fifthly, I anſwer therefore to the great Objections that liberty of the Subject is loſt, and the property is drowned which they have in their Eſtates.

First, I ſay, all private property muſt give way to the publick, and therefore a treſpaſs to private men is puniſhed by Indictment, becauſe it is an offence of the Publick Weal, and though every man hath a property in his Goods, yet he muſt not uſe them to the detriment of the Common Wealth; a man may give his Graſs or Corn when it grows, or when it is in his Barn, but if he will cut it unuſefully or Burn or deſtroy his Corn, or if he throw his Goods into the Sea that it may periſh, theſe are crimes puniſhable by the Common Law; ſo tranſporting of Commodities againſt the publick good; therefore the direction of thoſe Statutes for reſtraint hereof are from the Common Law, and the reaſon of this is becauſe the publick property muſt take place, and if in petty buſineſs it may be, then much more in time of publick and great neceſſity and danger, and it is rather an averment of the Subjects property, that in caſe of neceſſity only they may be taken away, than contrary to it.

My Brother Hutton and my Brother Crook agree, that all are bound in caſe of neceſſity exponere ſe & ſua totis viribus to defend the Kingdom, and may he not command a part with more reaſon than all?

In the next place I ſhall remove a ſcandal that hath been put upon the King, how that his Majeſty hath meant to make a private, perſonal and annual profit by it.

What he hath done is well known, and I dare confidently ſay, all hath been ſpent without any account to himſelf, and that his Majeſty hath been at great charge beſides towards the ſame purpoſe; and I heard it from his own Royal mouth, he ſpake it to me and my Lord Bramſton, that can teſtifie as much, that he ſaid it never entred into his heart to make ſuch uſe of it, and ſaid he was bound in conſcience to convert it to that uſe it was received for, and none other, and that he would ſooner eat the money than convert it to his own private uſe, therefore he that thinks the King makes a Revenue of it, doth highly ſlander his Majeſty, but let Kings be as David was, men after Gods own heart, yet they will not want a Shimei to rail on them.

Object. But though, bleſſed be God, his Majeſty is ſo gracious and loving to his Subjects, and ſo juſt that we need not fear that he will charge them but upon urgent neceſſity, we know not what ſucceeding Ages may do.

Anſw. It is not well to blaſt ſucceeding Ages, and if they ſhould hereafter charge unreaſonably without cauſe, yet this Judgment warrants no ſuch thing; Again, it is no Argument to condemn the true uſe, becauſe it may be abuſed; and again the Law implies as great truſt in the King as this, the King may pardon all offences, but if he ſhould, then none could be ſafe, the King may make Peace and War at his pleaſure, but yet ſhould he make Peace when Peace would ruine us, or War when War would undo us, it would be worſe than this, therefore it cannot be ſuſpected that the King would do any thing againſt Law and the publick good of the Kingdom, therefore the Law ſays, The King can do no wrong, for he is Sponſus Regni, as in Magdalen Colledge caſe.

Anſw. Theſe Caſes are nothing againſt this, but rather for it.

Object. The Record of 14 Rich. II. Rot. 60. Leavers Caſe in the Kings Bench in an Action of Treſpaſs for taking away his Goods without his conſent, had Judgment to recover in Durham, but the Caſe was; One Leaver of the Town of Durham Plaintiff, brought his Action againſt another for entring into his houſe, and taking away his Goods, and ſixty pounds of Money; the Defendant pleaded not guilty, and the Jury found upon a ſpecial Verdict that the Defendant took away his Mony, but upon this occaſion, the Scots had invaded the Realm, and were in Durham, and would not be gone without a certain Sum of money, whereupon the Inhabitants aſſembled, and amongſt the reſt the Plaintiff was one, and they made an Order to abide the Ordinance of the greater part, which was to give the Scots the Money deſired, and becauſe the money was to be paid preſent down, therefore they made another Order to ſearch in all mens houſes, and to take away what Money they found, according to which the Defendant ſearched the Plaintiffs Houſe, and took away ſixty pounds, and becauſe it was without conſent, the Plaintiff had Judgment to recover in Durham, but upon ſpecial Verdict it was reverſed in the Kings Bench, becauſe with his conſent. Indeed the reaſons were (1.) becauſe he had ſufficient remedy againſt the Commonalty. (2.) He did it as a Servant.

Solut. But I anſwer firſt, that though the Ordinance was good by conſent, yet it followed not that it was void without conſent, the queſtion is there only, whether good by conſent.

Secondly, It follows not but that all men without conſent are bound to contribute towards general charge for neceſſary defence.

Object. Another Objection made by my Brother Crooke was 2 Rich. II. parte prima, where all the Lords and Sages met together after Parliament, and it was agreed by the Lords, that they could not charge without Parliament, this was a Declaration of the Law in Parliament, and an Act of Parliament, &c.

Solut. I anſwer, That it was no Act, but a Declaration in Parliament of the Law, and indeed no Declaration, but a relation by the Chancellour.

Secondly, If it had been a Declaration, yet it had not been binding without the King.

Thirdly, It is no Preſident of a good Book; it was when the King was young, and the Parliament had the Regency, Councellours, Treaſurers, and all his Officers about his Perſon were choſe by Parliament, and therefore no wonder they endeavoured to pleaſe the Parliament.

Fourthly, It is a Preſident that they (id eſt) the Lords could not charge the Commons by themſelves.

Again, the Caſe was not for the defence of the Kingdom, but Wars in France, Scotland, and Ireland; theſe were the many Wars.

Though Subjects may be charged for neceſſary defence of the Kingdom, yet if Forein Wars be together with them it is otherways, and therefore in the Parliament before ſuch charge belongs not to them, and therefore they hold they ought not to bear it, and ſo that Rule of Gaſcoigne 14 Hen. IV. fol. 4. and no man ſhall be charged without Parliament, where Bulwarks were built, &c. it proves not though it implies, that if it had concerned the Kingdom, it had been otherwiſe.

Object. The next Objection was the great inconvenience that would hereupon enſue, If ſuch a charge may be, then none knows what this charge will be, for the King may command it as often as he pleaſeth, an example hereof they put of Dover-[illegible], that in 15 years grew from 12000 l. to 48000 l. [illegible] provided againſt that incertainty, and limited it [illegible]

Sol. [illegible] this, that if the danger increaſe, ſo muſt the charge; again the King may command all Perſons when, and as often as he pleaſes he may do it; Is not this a great Inconvenience? And yet that abates not the Writ; my Brother Crooke ſhewed how Subſidies increaſed, and yet no inconvenience in that he conceived; and indeed this ſhews the proviſion of charge muſt be according to the danger.

Secondly, No abuſe of any thing muſt take away the true uſe thereof.

Thirdly, We cannot ſuſpect that there will be ſuch abuſe, Ubi confidit Deus & lex & nos etiam confidemus, God and the Law hath truſted his Majeſty, and we ſhould not diſtruſt him; in time of imminent danger, tempore belli, any thing, and by any man may be done, Murder cannot be puniſhed; yet ſays my Brother Crooke, the King cannot charge his Subjects in no caſe without a Parliament, no not when the Kingdom is invaded actually by the enemy; but truly, as I think, he was the firſt, ſo I think he will be the laſt of that opinion; eſpecially having delivered that the King is ſole Judge of the danger before, as indeed he is, and the King is ſole Judge of the danger, not any have denied it, and therefore elſe it ſhould be no danger but when every one ſhall ſay you ſhall judge that the Kingdom is in danger.

Secondly, There hath and may be as great danger when the Enemy is not diſcerned as when in Arms, and on the Land.

In time of War, when the courſe of Law is ſtopped, when Judges have no power or place, when the Courts of Juſtice may ſend out no Proceſs, in this caſe the King may charge his Subject, you grant; mark what you grant, when there is ſuch a confuſion as no Law, then the King may do it, dato uno abſurdo infinita ſequuntur.

2. There may be time of War in one part of the Kingdom, and the Courts of Juſtice may ſit, as in in the 14 *Hen.*III. Rich. II. *Hen.*VII. time, War was in ſome part of the Land, yet the Judges ſate at Weſtminſter Hall.

1. Now whether a danger be to all the Kingdom, or to a part, they are alike perilous, and all ought to be charged.

2. The King may charge the Subjects for the defence of the Land, and now the Land and the Sea makes but one entire Kingdom, and there is but one Lord of both, and the King bound to defend both.

3. Expectancy of danger, I hold, is ſufficient ground for the King to charge his Subjects; for if we ſtay till the danger come, it will be then too late, it may be.

4. And his averment of the danger is not traverſable, it muſt be binding, when he perceives and ſays there is a danger, and in 88 the Enemy had been upon us, if it had not been foreſeen, and provided for before it came: but I will not determine the danger now, do we not ſee our Potent Neighbours, and our great enemies heretofore, were they not prepared for War? And was there not another Navy floated upon the Sea, and was not the Dominion of the Sea threatned to be taken away? As long as this danger remains, I ſhall bleſs God for ſuch a King as will provide for the defence of the Kingdom timely, and rejoyce to ſee ſuch a Navy as other Nations muſt vail to, and we are not in caſe without it, and ſhould loſe our glory beſides.

Object. The next Objection of my Brother Crooke was, that there is a means provided by Parliament, which will not with-hold Aid for the defence of the Kingdom, and it were a ſin to deny it in caſe of neceſſity.

And in Ed I. time Ed. II. & 4 Ed.III. a Parliament was to be held every year for the defence of the Kingdom, & propter ardua Regni. I anſwer, that might well be, but then in the time of Ed.I. Ed.III. there was Pleas in Parliament, but thoſe are now laid aſide, and that the Subjects ought to give the King Subſidies; I will not ſay, that inferring that they will not do it, nor am I apt to believe it; but I hold Parliaments are the excellent means for the defence of the Kingdom, and yet they are not the only means, for then the Parliament, and not the King, ſhould be the ſole Judge, and have the defence of the Realm, or elſe it ſhould give the King a charge of defence without power and means.

The Objection of the Kings Revenues, Tenures, and Prerogative, they have been unfitly remembred, they have been fully anſwered.

The Statutes of Tonnage and Poundage to the King for and towards the defence of the Seas, and the other Acts of Parliament that reſtrain the Kings Power, ſo that now he cannot charge the Subject without his conſent in Parliament: I ſhall anſwer in the next place, and before I come to the particular Acts I will ſhew you what, in my opinion, they may do.

Acts of Parliament may take away Flowers and Ornaments of the Crown, but not the Crown it ſelf; they cannot bar a ſucceſſion, nor can they be attainted by them; and Acts that bar them of poſſeſſion are void.

Secondly, No Act of Parliament can bar a King of his Regality, as that no Lands ſhould hold of him, or bar him of the Allegiance of his Subjects, or the relative on his part, as truſt and power to defend his people; Therefore Acts of Parliament to take away his Royal Power in the defence of his Kingdoms are void, (as my Lord Chief Baron ſaid) they are void, Acts of Parliament to bind the King not to command the Subjects their Perſons and Goods, I ſay their Money too, for no Act of Parliament makes any difference. Now to the particular Statutes objected.

Firſt, 25 Ed I. cap. 5. confirmatio cartand. the words are theſe, Aids or Taxes granted to the King ſhall not be taken for a Cuſtom or Preſident, and Cap. 6. moreover, we have granted for us and our Heirs, that for no buſineſs from henceforth we ſhall take ſuch manner of Aids, Taxes, nor Prizes due and accuſtomed; and Cap. 7. a Releaſe of Toll upon every Sack of Wool, and grant that we will not take ſuch things without their common aſſent and good liking, ſaving to us and our Heirs the Cuſtoms granted by the Commons aforeſaid.

As to the other Statutes de Tallagio non concedendo, Cap. 1. nullum Tallagium imponetur niſi per Commune Conſilium Regni noſtri, Cap. 2, 3, 4, 5, &c.

Firſt, Theſe words muſt have relation to the Aids before, and there be divers Aids, as ſome by Tallage, ſome by way of Prize, of goods, and ranſom of his Majeſties Perſon, &c. the King thereupon makes this grant, which hath relation to ſuch Aids as were granted voluntarily. Secondly, ancient Aids are there reſerved as redeeming of the Kings body pur faire fitz Chevalier & pur Marrier ſon filius Eigne, and to all other ancient Aids which are to be underſtood with an ad redemendum corpus, &c.

And to the Statute De Tallagio non concedendo in ſome Books it is not in Print, but mentioned in Magna Charta, Raſtal, and Petition of Right, 3 Car. 1628. to be in 24 and 25 Edw. I. and therefore I anſwer, firſt, it is not in the Parliament Roll; and there is varience about it, and therefore it is but an Abſtract, and no ſubſtantial Statute.

But ſince it hath paſſed for a Statute, and it is poſſible it may be ſo. I agree with all the reſt of my Brothers that it is a Statute, and then I anſwer, firſt that Nullum Tallagium imponetur, &c.

That is, No unlawful Talliage ſhall be impoſed upon the Subject without his conſent, or elſe Aid pur fair faitz Chivaleir & pur Marrier Eigne fil, ſhould not have been excepted.

Secondly, No Aid ſhall be impoſed but by the Contribution of the King and People; and here the King is taxed as well as they.

Thirdly, An Act of Parliament can by no means take it away, much leſs by thoſe general words.

Object. In 14 E. 3. *c.*1. No man from henceforth ſhall be chargeable, but by common conſent in Parliament.

Reſp. That though it be but temporary in ſome parts, yet it is binding onely ſecundum Subjectam materiam. And the words are general, as in the other Statute De Tallagio; beſides the Practice in that Kings time and after, beſt interpret it.

Obj. 25 E. 3. *c.*8. No finding Men at Arms, unleſs by conſent, much leſs finding of Ships.

Reſp. This takes not away any former Law, and therefore the Preſidents following, 4 *H.*4. ſhew that it reacheth not this Caſe.

Obj. 2 *H.*4. m. 2. which is abſolute in the point, ſaith my Brother Crook, where a Commiſſion went forth for the Defence of the Sea, whereof complaint was made in Parliament, with deſire that it might be repealed, and it was ſo.

Reſp. I am of the contrary opinion, for the Petition was that it might be releaſed; and the Anſwer was but this, That it ſhould, but the King would treat with his Council about it; and it was but a Repeal of his Commiſſion then onely.

Obj. 1 *R.*3. *c.*2. where the King grants that he would not hereafter charge them by Benevolence, or any ſuch Charge, but that they ſhould be dampned by the Law, by no ſuch Charge or Impoſition, (i.e.) by no ſuch Charge of Money.

Reſp. That Statute is onely againſt Benevolence, and made by a King, that had reaſon, as we all know, to pleaſe the People for his own ends.

Obj. The Statute of Tonnage and Poundage granted for the defence of the Sea; the words are, That no Talliage or Aid ſhall be without Act of Parliament. Secondly, That the King hath means to defend the Realm, with a Proteſtation not to draw it into an Example. 4. 13 *Henr.*4. Parl. Rol. No. 10.

Reſp. I will not argue whether Tonnage and Poundage was before this Act of Parliament, nor that time out of mind, they were granted unto the King; but my Anſwer is, That they are onely for the ordinary defence of the Sea, and the Proteſtation of 4 *H.*4. is a Proteſtation of the Commons, and this Charge is not taken away thereby; and Tonnage and Poundage is for and towards the defence of the Sea. So all the Acts are, and ſo I agree. But for Extraordinaries, and but Solely in caſe of danger of the whole Kingdom that they ſhould not be granted, cannot be collected out of thoſe Grants.

Obj. The ſeventh Objection is, the Petition of Right 3 Car. that no Charge ſhall be impoſed upon the Subject but by Parliament.

Reſp. I was then Speaker of the Lower Houſe, and have reaſon to remember what then was made; and I ſay, Firſt, That there is no mention of this Caſe; Secondly, There was no new thing granted, but onely the ancient Liberties confirmed, taking notice of the Proteſtations of the Commons, not to bind the King for his ancient Right.

3. Look upon the Prayer, what is deſired, and the main ſcope was firſt generally againſt Loans, and this could not be included in theſe words; ſecondly Impriſonment without Cauſe: thirdly, Billiting of Souldiers: 4. Mariners lying within the Land.

I have now done with my third general Head. I come to the fourth and laſt, touching the Form and Legality of the Writ.

Firſt for the Legality of the Writ, and the Objections touching the neceſſity, I have anſwered before; the main Objection is to the Body of the Writ.

1. The Command to charge the Sheriff to levy and aſſeſs Money according to his diſcretion, which is not legal, for that the Sheriff ſhould make it per Sacramentum, by the Oath of a Jury, as in the Writs of Partition, Diſtribution, per Rata, &c.

Object. Per. Ch. Baron. & Juſ. Crook. The Aſſeſment of the Shetiff is not warranted by the Preſidents, they do it not upon their Knowledge, but Preſumption of mens Eſtates: and from thence they ſpeak againſt the too vaſt power given to the Sheriff to inhance it as they pleaſe.

Secondly, The inconvenience is great hereby, for there is by this means a great inequality in the Aſſeſment.

Reſp. I anſwer firſt to the Aſſeſment per Sacram. no reaſon why it ſhould be here; for it is not done in the Commiſſions to levy Subſidies, much leſs ſhould it be done here for a matter of great haſte. And beſides, the Sheriff is truſted with more, for he hath the truſt of the whole County, and takes an Oath to execute his Office juſtly, whereof this is one part.

As to this they ſay there is no Preſident for it. Firſt I ſay, That there is no Preſident, that it hath been done by Jury, but always by the Sheriff, or ſuch whom the King was pleaſed to truſt; and ſince one muſt be truſted, none more fit than he.

Secondly, By Example we ſee he ſpeeds all, and is moſt ready for it.

Thirdly, I ſay the Writ leads not the Aſſeſment, it commands the Ships to be provided, ſo if that be done, there is no neceſſity of an Aſſeſment. And if the Towns and Counties ſay they will provide a Ship, and do it, then no Aſſeſment requiſite: but if they do it not, then the Sheriff is to levy it, that the Defence may be ſeaſonable, ſo as the Clauſe of Aſſeſment ſhews the manner of it; when a multitude is to join, none more fit than he to do it, and no way better to write to him to do it, according to mens abilities.

Fourthly, The Clauſe of Aſſeſment is not onely to the Sheriff, but to the Head-Officer of the Town and Burrough; and though the diſcretion of the Cauſe be to the Sheriff, yet it appears not that it is limitted to him ſolely.

Obj. And whereas it was ſaid that the Sheriff cannot Aſſeſs himſelf, and the Preſidents warrant not this Aſſeſment by the Sheriff.

Reſp. I anſwer, all the Preſidents are not againſt it, but commonly it is not ſo, and yet there have been a multitude of Preſidents thus.

As to the inequality of it, Mr. Hampden had the leaſt cauſe of any man in England to complain, conſidering how he was rated. Again, All that the Writ commands is but an Aſſeſment, juxta facultates ſuas ita quod omnes, &c. And if the Sheriff do otherwiſe, and wrong the Subjects, he is anſwerable, by divers ancient Preſidents, it appears that where the Sheriffs have been faulty this way they have been puniſhed. And Sir Walter Nortons Caſe now depending in the Star-chamber concerns this, for this abuſe in levying this charge, being High-Sheriff of Lincolnſhire.

Truly I think as my Lord Chief Baron ſaid, if there had not been an inequality by the abuſe of the Aſſeſſes, the Charge had not been complained of, yet the like inequality is in Subſidies, and this is no juſt cauſe of exception againſt it, but of accuſation againſt the Sheriff, who is to anſwer it.

And I can ſay truly, that his Majeſty hath been very careful to prevent and remedy the abuſes herein, and hath often ſate daily preſent in Council Chamber to give his advice herein himſelf, and upon his Command Reformation hath been in divers places, and it hath been given in charge to all his Judges in their Circuits to endeavour the ſame in all parts; and I my ſelf, by his Command have rectified Rates in this kind unequal, and I doubt not, if neceſſity of danger ſhall ſtill require it, or again it may hereafter be done with all equity.

Object. Second Objection, That the Sheriff cannot Tax himſelf, for then he ſhould be Judge and Party in one Cauſe; nor can he commit himſelf; and if he be omitted out of the Aſſeſment, then it cannot be equal, nor cannot be according to the Writ that commands all ſhould be aſſeſſed according to their abilities rateably.

Reſp. I anſwer, This prima facie carries ſome ſhew in it, but examine Cauſes of leſs conſequence, and it is eaſily anſwered: The Juſtices of Peace in levying of Subſidies make rates for themſelves, the Commiſſioners of Sewers tax their own Lands, and ſo if by Jurors it were done, it would be the like; there muſt be either new Aſſeſſors appointed, or they themſelves muſt do it, that would bring delays, and this requires haſt and expedition, and therefore fitteſt for this buſineſs. Authorities in Law there are divers herein, as the Writ for levying Expences for Knights of the Shire, Direction is to the Sheriff to do it, who aſſeſſes himſelf, and yet he is to execute it. So in a Writ of Diſcovery de bonis Inhabitantium, the Sheriff is chargeable with his part, yet to execute it; if a Fine be laid upon the whole County, he levies it, yet is chargeable with his part towards it.

Obj. The Writ is directed probis hominibus, and theſe cannot be charged in an Inland County.

Reſp. What difference there is inter probos homines, between Inland Counties and Maritine Counties I know not. The 24 of Edward the Third, a Writ whereby they were charged in caſe of Neceſſity, as to Yarmouth, it was probis hominibus, &c. true, a Grant by the King probis hominibus generally is void, 1 Henr. 7. Dier. Philip. & Mar. 7 Eliz. 4. 14.

But a Commiſſion or Writ to Aſſeſs them good enough probi homines, that they know not nor ſee not, it is not material for that would make them ſole Judge of the danger, when as the King onely is, and this is not traverſable neither.

Obj. The Writ commands Inland Counties to find a Ship and Mariners which is impoſſible, and Lex non cogit ad impoſſibilia, and for this my Brother Crook put the Common Caſes that general return 49 Edw. 3. 6. and Impoſſibilities are void, but a Covenant for impoſſible things is void, but a Bond may be good.

Reſp. I anſwer now to the point of Impoſſibility, and poſſibly the Ship may be built in an Inland County, though to carry it to Portſmouth is impoſſible, but it is poſſible to provide a Ship and Mariners, as the Writ commands, which may very well be done with Money.

Obj. But we have none but trained Souldiers, no Mariners, our County conſiſts in Tillage, and our Men are brought up to the Plough and Husbandry.

Reſp. I anſwer, We have the like occaſion of Ploughs and Husbandry in Kent, and we have many places no Maritine Towns, ſome lie 20 miles from the Sea, and yet we are juſtly charged to find a Ship; Preſidents we have as well as you in Oxfordſhire and Buckinghamſhire, or elſe none ſhould be charged but Port Towns, and in particular no Law or Statute to exempt them; until Alfreds time there was no diſtinction of Maritine or Inland Counties, for then all England was but one Maritine County.

Obj. The payment of Souldiers Wages for 26 Weeks to be in the Kings Service, is againſt many Preſidents, as 16 Edw.2. 10 Edw. 3. and intirely for Wages to be paid by the County, is againſt all the Preſidents, and Tenants by Knights Service after 40 days, are to be paid by the King: and other Preſidents my Brother Crook cited, when divers refuſed to go out of their own County till paid, and order taken for their Pay by the King. And whereas the Counties had given Bond for payment of Souldiers Wages, they were cancelled, and Order made in Parliament that Souldiers ſhould be at the Kings pay; 2 Edw. 3. 16, 18 Edw. 3. cap. 7. &c.

Reſp. Theſe are eaſily anſwered, for theſe Preſidents prove no more than payment of Wages de facto, and ſo the King may pay it where it is not due; and for their refuſal, I have nothing to do with that now: but 10 *Ed.*3. m. 2. there is mention made of Berkſhire Men commanded to carry their Souldiers out of their own County at their own coſts, and when the Souldiers refuſed to go thence, no charge or payment; for Souldiers uſed to be paid by their County as in that caſe, and they were forced to go, and did go, and did ſtay there three years; ſo 13 *Ed.*3.m.8.

Obj. 1 *Edw.*3.m.14. none compelled to go out of their County without Wages paid, 18 Edw. 3.m. 6, 7. That none ſhould go out of the Inland Counties, and not onely thoſe that had Offices and Patents to ſerve the King, but all with this Proviſo, that the King ſhould pay them their Wages.

Reſp. 1 Edw. 3. It is clear, and hath the Exception in caſe of neceſſity, and to be done as in times paſt.

18 Edw. 3. It is expreſſed in the Act, when they go to the Kings Wars out of the Kingdom, 18, 19 Henr. 7. &c. Theſe are all but declarative to the Common Law, Corbets Caſe, the Reaſon is becauſe Legeance of the Subject is not natural but local.

But that the King ſhall give Wages within this Kingdom, there is no Act of Parliament for it now; it was reſolved in the Exchequer, that the Sea and Land made but one entire Kingdom, and ſo no going out of the Kingdom here; and conſequently the payment of the Souldiers Wages within the Kingdom is not againſt Law.

Object. The laſt Objection is, that the Writ is illegal, becauſe contrary to Magna Charta; nullus liber homo impriſonetur.

Reſp. As touching the Objection of the Nobility, that they are priviledged from impriſonment, it might well have been ſpared, and I know not wherefore it was ſpoken, unleſs to make them think they were more intereſſed than the reſt of his Majeſties Subjects in this caſe.

But yet I ſay, Noblemen may be impriſoned upon contempt, as my Brother Crook knows well, and it was reſolved in the Earl of Lincolns Caſe in the Star-Chamber.

It is true, that upon ordinary Proceſs they are not to be brought to Trial, or Impriſoned.

Now I anſwer, There is no Impriſonment in Queſtion, but the Aſſeſment onely why he ſhould not pay the Money aſſeſſed, or to ſhew cauſe to the contrary.

Secondly, Were the Form illegal, for Form and Circumſtance, yet this makes not the Command it ſelf illegal for Subſtance.

Certior. Object. Exceptions to the Certiorar' are theſe; Firſt, The direction of it to two Sheriffs out of their Office, when as the Sheriff in being, ought onely to return it.

Reſp. Of this there is little doubt, nothing more frequent for the Certiorar' to iſſue out of the Chancery to two Parties, as to the Executors or the Judge that took the Fine and is removed, and ſo upon Commiſſion to take a Fine by Dedimus poteſtatem, in this Caſe the Writ is inter brevia retornabilia, and this muſt remain with the old Sheriff, and are never delivered over by the Jury to the new Sheriff. In Hubbarts Caſe in the Kings Bench, being convict of Hereſie before Sir Julius Cæſar Judge of the Admiralty certificate to him, after Maſter of the Rolls, and directed to him; ſo in caſe of my Lord Paget.

Obj. The Writ is without Return (ſaith my Lord Chief Baron) and the Certiorar' which is a year and a half after, cannot renew it.

Reſp. That ſhall not be the determining of it, onely for the time limited expiring, ſhall not deprive one of his juſt debt.

It is not ſufficient, becauſe it appears not that Mr. Hampden was Tenant or Tertenant, or that Stoke Mandevil was within the County of Buckingham.

Obj. Secondly, It appeareth not that there was any Munition or Ship appearing.

Reſp. I anſwer, It doth ſufficiently appear that Mr. Hampden was Tertenant, for that the Certiorar' is to the Sheriff, who certifieth that he was Tenant, for it is in purſuance of the Writ; the words are, Virtute brevis Domini Regis huic Schedul' annex' certifico quòd Virtue & ſecundum epigentiam, &c. Aſſeſſani Anglicè have aſſeſſed ſuper ſeperales homines & terræ tenentes Comitat' Bucks. prædict. quorum nomina ſubſcribuntur, &c. it relates to the place there, Tenants in the County of Bucks. and makes Mr. Hampden one, and this in buſineſs of Knighthood was done and in no other manner.

Obj. Secondly, it appears not that the Ship was prepared.

Reſp. To this I anſwer, Firſt, that the Ship was done according to the Command of the Writ.

Secondly, It was prepared.

Thirdly, If none had been prepared, the fault was for that they paid not their money.

For the Exceptions to the Mittimus, I ſay nothing, becauſe I told you the Caſe reſts not upon theſe words, ut ſalus regni periclitabitur, and which is onely but to bring it to iſſue.

Scir. Fac. Object. Exceptions to the Scire fac'; as, Firſt, that the King is not entituled to bring the Scire fac': ſo there is no cui oneretur, to whom he ſhould pay the money, for whoſe good or benefit Mr. Hampden ſhould ſatisfie the money aſſeſſed.

Reſp. I anſwer, The King is intereſſed in all actions of publick good, and ſhall recover accordingly, as in Caſes of High-way, Pontage, Murage, &c. much more when it is for the general defence of the Realm; firſt, in quare impedit, between two Common Perſons, though the King be neither Plaintiff nor Defendant, yet the King ſhall recover therein. Many times in Caſe of a Common Informer, the King recovers the one Moiety, though not Party. So it was in the Caſe of Knighthood, though no Suite was depending. Again, all Writs in the Kingdom are the Kings Writs: though no Fine, much more here for the defence of the Realm; and it is uſual for the Kings Attorney to compel men to perform charitable uſes, and the King may queſtion any one for them in the Caſe of Aurum Reginæ, by Proceſs out of the Exchequer. Again, Where it is ſaid Quare ipſe de prædicta ſumma ſuper ipſum Aſſeſſ. & non ſolut' in Schedula præd' Spec' onerari, & inde ſatisfac' debeat prout ulterius ſibi præceptum, &c. For though the Writ be in the Kings name, yet it is but for the performance of the work and charge; and though it appears not who were Collectors or Aſſeſſors, yet it appears it was done.

Upon publick Service Proceſs goes forth in the Kings name, but it is not then ſo fit it ſhould be expreſſed in particular for the King, when as it is for the general good onely. Was not the Record made by my Brother Denham, though none more conſtantly or cheerfully did ſubſcribe to his Majeſties Letter; neither was the Scire fac' without his advice, being the apteſt courſe, and better than Treſpaſs.

Obj. But the objection that he made was, That the King cannot do any wrong, nor take without Record; as in Seiſure upon Outlawry, Attainder, or the like: and in this Caſe there is no Record upon the Writ 4. Aug. no Judgment, &c.

Reſp. I anſwer, This Scire fac' is not annexed to the Writ, &c. as a new Action that Mr. Hampden, Oneretur & inde ſatisfaciet, and after that Judgment upon the Writ, and upon his ſaying nothing why revocetur, there ſhall be a good Record upon which he ſhall be charged, 3 Q. Eliz. L. Dier, 156. Ignoramus is ſufficient title for the King, and ground for a melius inquirend'.

Obj. No Scire fac' lies upon the tenor of a Writ 39 Henr. 6. fol. 34. 21 Eliz. L. Dier, fol. 205.

Reſp. I anſwer, a Scire fac' upon a Recognizance will lie in Chancery, but upon the Record there, yet in a Debt, often an Action of Debt lies upon the tenor of a Record, 39 Henr. 6. the doubt was becauſe the Party might be ſubject to a double Execution, elſe one upon the Record there, and another upon the tenor of the Record in another Court 33 Edw. 3. title tenure by tranſcript 8 Henr. 5. F. H. Error' Scire facias Regiſter fol. 51. Record was before the Juſtices of the Kings Bench, the tenure was out of the Treaſury to the Barons of the Exchequer, and it is the uſual Order, if Recognizance be forfeited, to certifie the tenor of the Recognizance; ſo of a Fine of Amerciament, &c. to certifie the Tranſcript: ſo the Tranſcript was ſent from Ireland upon an Act of Parliament, a Scire fac' thereupon went againſt Hebron Baron in England; ſo in Debt upon the Tranſcript of a Record from Ireland a Scire fac' here went forth.

Obj. Objected it was in the laſt place by my Lord Chief Baron, that Judgment in this Caſe would be fruitleſs, and none ſhould take benefit by it upon this Record, and he puts divers Caſes wherein Judgment in ſuch Caſe ought not to paſs.

Reſp. I anſwer, My Lord Chief Baron, with a Judgment of his own Caſe of Knighthood, reſolved here in this Court; the Caſe was this, The King by Writ 5 Januarii, in the firſt of the Kings Majeſties Reign, commanded the Sheriff of Barkſhire, that all that had 40*l.* a Year, ſhould be in the Chancery 31 Januarii following, to take upon them the Order of Knighthood, Sir Jo. Darrel Sheriff of Barkſhire, made his return (as the Sheriff of Buckingham here) all that are not Knights under the name of Illorum, and ſets down their names; Mittimus thereupon went out of the Chancery, reciting the ſubſtance of the former Writ, Vobis mittimus præſentibus, &c. with a Clauſe to enquire after ſuch as were not returned, and to Fine them; and upon this Writ of Diſtringas to the Sheriff, my Lord Chief Baron and my Brother Denham know what Judgment was given; wherein I obſerve,

1. Not the Record but the Tenor of the Record was ſent into the Exchequer, yet returnable in the Chancery.
2. For returning the names of the Defaulters, done there as here.
3. Upon the Diſtringuas thereupon, was had Execution, much more then here upon the Scire fac'.
4. There was no more Judgment of Record to warrant it than here in this.

Now I come to conclude, I have been ſomewhat too bold in taking more time than is uſual, but I did it to ſatisfie my own heart, according to which I muſt give my Judgment. What I have omitted, I refer to the reſt of my Brothers that went before me, and to my Lord Chief Juſtice that comes after me. The Reaſons I ſhewed you whereupon I conceive by the Common Law and Fundamental Policies of this Kingdom, that the King, may charge his Subjects for the defence of this Kingdom; and that the King may charge his Subjects to contribute towards the defence thereof when it is in danger; and I hold that the King is ſole Judge of the danger, and ought to direct the means of defence: and therefore this Writ of Scire fac. and all the Proceedings in this Caſe are well grounded according to Law. My Opinion therefore is, that Mr. Hampden ſhall be charged with the 20*s.* aſſeſſed; and that my Lord Chief Baron ought to give Judgment accordingly.

Edward Hide Eſq; afterwards Lord Chancellor of England, his Speech in Parliament at the carrying up to the Lords the Opinion of the Houſe of Commons in the Caſe of Ship-money.

My Lords,

THere cannot be a greater Inſtance of a ſick and languiſhing Commonwealth, than the buſineſs of this day. Good God! how have the Guilty theſe late years been puniſhed, when the Judges themſelves have been ſuch Delinquents. 'Tis no marvel that an irregular, extravagant Arbitrary Power, like a Torrent, hath broke in upon us, when our Banks, and our Bulwarks, the Laws, were in the Cuſtody of ſuch Perſons. Men who had loſt their Innocence could not preſerve their Courage, nor could we look that they who had ſo viſibly undone us, themſelves ſhould have the virtue or credit to reſcue us from the Oppreſſion of other Men. It was ſaid by one who always ſpoke excellently, That the twelve Judges were like the twelve Lions under the Throne of Solomon, Under the Throne in Obedience, but yet Lions: Your Lordſhips ſhall this day hear of ſix who (be they what they will be elſe) were no Lions, who upon vulgar fears delivered up the pretious Forts they were truſted with, almoſt without aſſault; and in a tame eaſie Trance of Flattery and Servitude, loſt and forfeited (ſhamefully forfeited) that Reputation, Awe, and Reverence, which the Wiſdom, Courage, and Gravity of their Venerable Predeceſſors had contracted and faſtned to the places they now hold, and even rendred that Study and Profeſſion, which in all Ages hath been, and I hope now ſhall be of an Honourable Eſtimation, ſo contemptible and vile, that had not this bleſſed day come, all men would have had that quarrel to the Law it ſelf, which Marcius had to the Greek Tongue, who thought it a Mockery to learn that Language, the Maſters whereof lived in Bondage under others. And I appeal to theſe Unhappy Gentlemen themſelves, with what a ſtrange Negligence, Scorn, and Indignation, the faces of all men, even of the meaneſt, have been directed towards them, ſince (to call it no worſe) that fatal Declenſion of their Underſtandings in thoſe Judgments of which they ſtand here charged before your Lordſhips.

But (My Lords) the Work of this Day, is the greateſt Inſtance of a Growing, and Thriving Commonwealth too, and is as the Drawing of a fair and laſting Day of Happineſs to this Kingdom.

It is in your Lordſhips Power (and I am ſure it is in your Lordſhips will) to reſtore the dejected broken People of this Iſland to their former Joy and Security, the Succeſſors of theſe Men to their own Priviledge and Veneration: Et ſepultas prope leges revocare.

So theſe Judges enter themſelves and harden their Hearts by more particular Treſpaſſes upon the Law: by Impoſitions and Taxes upon the Merchants in Trade: by Burdens and Preſſures upon the Gentry in Knighthood before they could arrive at that univerſal Deſtruction of the Kingdom by Shipmoney, which promiſed reward and ſecurity for all their former Services, by doing the Work of a Parliam. to his Maj. in Supplies, and ſeemed to delude Juſtice, in leaving none to judge them, by making the whole Kingdom party to their oppreſſion.

My Lords, the Commons aſſembled in Parliament hope that your Lordſhips will call theſe Judges ſpeedily before you to anſwer theſe Articles laid to their charge, that the Nation may be ſatisfied in your Lordſhips Juſtice upon them, as their Crimes demerit.

A Letter of the Tenor following was written to the Lord Major and Sheriffs of the City of London.

AFter, &c. Whereas his Majeſty hath ſent you his Writ to provide two Ships 560 Tuns apiece, beſide Tonnage, to be furniſhed with Men, Tackle, Munition, Victual, and other neceſſaries, to ſet forth for the ſafeguard of the Seas, and defence of the Realm, at the charges of the City of London and the Liberty thereof. And by the ſaid Writ hath commanded that you ſhall without delay make an Aſſeſment, and after proceed on in the further execution of that Service, as by the ſaid Writ appeareth. We are by his Majeſties Direction and expreſs Commandment to let you know, that he hath upon important and weighty Reaſons, concerning not onely his Majeſties own Honour, and the ancient Renown of this Nation, but the ſafety of your ſelves, and all his Subjects, in theſe troubleſom and Warlike times, ſent out the aforeſaid Writ to you, and the like unto all other Counties, Cities, and Towns throughout the whole Kingdom, that as all are concerned in the mutual defence one of another, ſo all might put to their helping hand for the making of ſuch preparations as (by the bleſſing of God) may ſecure this Realm againſt thoſe Dangers and Extremities which have diſtreſſed other Nations, and are the common Effects of War, whenſoever it taketh a People unprepared. And therefore as his Majeſty doubteth not of the readineſs of all his Subjects, to contribute thereunto with chearfulneſs and alacrity, (wherein the City of London, as being the moſt eminent place, ought to give example to all the reſt) ſo he doth eſpecially require your care and diligence in the ordering of this buſineſs ſo much concerning his Majeſty and all his People, that no inequality or other miſcarriage may either retard or diſgrace the Service, which in it ſelf is ſo juſt, honourable, and neceſſary. For which cauſe we have, by his Majeſties directions ſent you, together with the ſaid Writ, theſe enſuing Advices and Inſtructions, for your better proceedings.

I. Therefore, becauſe perhaps you are not throughly acquainted with the Charge of ſuch Maritine Preparations, and the miſtaking thereof might hinder the Service: We have thought good to let you know, that upon a due and juſt calculation, we find that the charge of two Ships of that burthen ſo manned and furniſhed, will be 14000 l. which you are to levy according to his Majeſties deſire, and the intention of this Board, with as much equality and indifferency as poſſibly you may, uſing the Power given you by the ſaid Writ, with ſuch moderation as may occaſion the greater readineſs in all to contribute, and may give no cauſe to any to grudge or repine for any partiality or inequality in the Aſſeſments.

II. When you have ſetled the General Aſſeſſment, we think fit that you ſhould ſubdivide the ſame, and make the particular Aſſeſments in ſuch ſort as other common payments upon that City and the Liberties thereof are moſt uſually ſubdivided and aſſeſſed.

III. And to the end this may be effected with more equality and expedition, you may give direction to the Aldermen in their ſeveral Wards, and their Deputies, and ſend forth your Warrants to the Conſtables of the ſeveral Precincts, requiring them to call unto them ſome of the moſt diſcreet and ſufficient men of every Precinct, to conſider with them how the Sum charged upon each Precinct may be diſtributed and divided with moſt equality and indifferency, and to return the ſame to you in Writing under their Hands, with all poſſible expedition. Which being done, you are to ſign the Aſſeſſment ſet on the ſeveral perſons of every particular Pariſh, if you approve thereof. And if for inequality you find cauſe to alter the ſame in any part, yet after it is ſo altered, you are to ſign the ſame, and keeping a true Copy thereof, you may thereupon give order for the ſpeedy Collecting and Levying of ſuch Sums accordingly, by ſuch as are uſually imploied for Collections of other common Charges and Payments. And when any ſhall be by them returned to you, either to have refuſed or neglected to make payment, you are without delay to execute the Writ upon them, cauſing Diſtreſſes to be taken of them, and to be ſold for payment of their Aſſeſſments and the juſt Charges thereupon ariſing, and the Overplus of the Diſtreſſes to be rendered back. In the ſaid ſeveral Aſſeſſments of each Pariſh, you are to cauſe to be particularly expreſſed how much every Clergy man is rated, &c. As in the Fourth Inſtruction of the Letter entered at large.

IV. As in the Fifth Inſtruction of the Letter aforeſaid.

V. If any Conſtables or other Officers refuſe or neglect to do their Duties, &c. as in the Sixth Inſtruction of the ſaid Letter at large.

VI. If you find or underſtand of any perſons that are refractory, or that do unneceſſarily delay the payment of what ſhall be aſſeſſed upon them for the ſaid Service, whereof you muſt frequently and often call for an Accompt from the Conſtables, Officers, and others intruſted under you, you are preſently without any delay, partiality, or reſpect of perſons, to proceed roundly with them (of what Quality or Condition ſoever they are) according to his Majeſties Writ, and not to defer medling with them to the laſt, or until others have paid, as was done by ſome Sheriffs of Counties in former Years, whereby all the trouble and burthen was caſt upon the end of the Year: and thoſe that were refractory gained time above thoſe that were well-affected to the ſaid Service.

VII. Laſtly, and for all other matters not particularly mentioned in theſe Inſtructions, you muſt upon all occurrences govern your ſelves according to the Writ to you directed, and as may beſt accompliſh the Service committed to your truſt, wherein you are to uſe all poſſible diligence to effect the ſame with ſpeed, that the money for this Service may be timely collected and paid, as that proviſions may be ſeaſonably bought and provided, to furniſh and ſet forth the Fleet at the day expreſſed in his Majeſties Writ. And as you ſhall herein perform your duties with diligence, you may be aſſured to recover both favour and thanks from his Majeſty. And ſo we bid, &c.

Dated and ſigned at ante.

Alſo a Letter to the ſame effect ſent with his Majeſties Writs to the Sheriffs of the ſeveral Counties of England and Wales.

The Subſtance of the Lord Falklands Speech in Parliament, concerning Ship-money.

Mr. Speaker,

The Conſtitution of this Common-wealth hath eſtabliſhed, or rather endeavoured to eſtabliſh to us the Security of our Goods, and the Security of thoſe Laws which would ſecure us and our Goods, by appointing for us Judges, ſo ſetled, ſo ſworn, that there can be no oppreſſion, but they of neceſſity muſt be acceſſary; ſince if they neither deny nor delay us Juſtice, which neither for the great nor little Seal, they ought to do; the greateſt Perſon in this Kingdom cannot continue the leaſt violence upon the meaneſt. But this Security hath been almoſt our ruine; for it hath been turned, or rather turned it ſelf into a Battery againſt us: and thoſe perſons who ſhould have been as Dogs to defend the Sheep, have been as Wolves to worry them.

Theſe Judges, to inſtance not them onely, but their greateſt crime, have delivered an Opinion, and Judgment in an extrajudicial manner, that is, ſuch as came not within their cognizance, they being Judges, and neither Philoſophers, nor Politicians. In which when that is ſo abſolute and evident; the Law of the Land ceaſes; and of general Reaſon and Equity, by which particular Laws at firſt were framed, returns to his Throne and Government, where Salus Populi becomes not onely ſuprema, but ſola lex; at which, and to which end, whatſoever ſhould diſpenſe with the King, to make uſe of any money, diſpenſes with us to make uſe of his,and one anothers. In this Judgment they contradicted both many and learned Acts and Declarations of Parliaments; and thoſe in this very Caſe, in this very Reign, ſo that for them they needed to have conſulted with no other Record, but with their Memories.

2. They have contradicted apparent Evidences, by ſuppoſing mighty and eminent dangers, in the moſt ſerene, quiet, and halcion days that could poſſibly be imagined, a few contemptible Pirats, being our moſt formidable Enemies, and there being neither Prince nor State, with whom we had not either Alliance, or Amity, or both.

3. They contradict the Writ it ſelf, by ſuppoſing that ſuppoſed danger to be ſo ſudden, that it would not ſtay for a Parliament, which required but forty days ſtay, and the Writ being in no ſuch haſt, but being content to ſtay ſeven times over.

It ſeemed generally ſtrange, that they ſaw not the Law which all men elſe ſaw, but themſelves. Yet though this begot the more general wonder, three other particulars begot the more general indignation.

When they had allowed to the King, the Sole Power in Neceſſity, the Sole Judgment of Neceſſity, and by that enabled him to take both from us, what he would, when he would, and how he would, they yet continued to perſuade us,that they had left us our Liberties and our Properties.

And, which I confeſs moved moſt, that by the tranſformation of us from the ſtate of Free-Subjects (a good Phraſe, under Doctor Heylins favour) unto that of Villains, they diſable us by legal and voluntary Supplies to expreſs our affections to his Majeſty, and by that to cheriſh his to us, that is, by Parliaments.

The Cauſe of all the miſeries, we have ſuffered, and the Cauſe of all the Jealouſies we have had, that we ſhould yet ſuffer; is, That a moſt excellent Prince hath been moſt infinitely abuſed by his Judges, telling him that By Policy he might do what he pleaſed.

We muſt now be forced to think of aboliſhing of our grievances, and of taking away this Judgment and theſe Judges together, and of regulating their Succeſſors by their exemplary puniſhment.

Mr. St. Johns Speech to the Lords in the Upper Houſe of Parliament, January 7. 1640. Concerning Ship-Money.

My Lords,

THe Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes of the Commons Houſe, have intruſted me with a Meſſage to your Lordſhips, of a general and a very high Concernment; ſo general, that the whole Body of the Kingdom, both Peers and People, are intereſſed in it; of ſo high a conſequence, as that there is nothing that can concern us nearer.

It is one of the Grandia Regni, ſo great, as that I ſhall not need to preſent it to your Lordſhips in a Multiplying-Glaſs, it will appear too big in its own dimenſions.

2. It is not that Shipmoney hath been levied upon us, but it is that Right whereby Shipmoney is claimed; which if it be true, is ſuch as that it makes the payment of Shipmoney the gift and earneſt penny of all we have.

It is not that our perſons have been impriſoned for payment of Shipmoney, but that our perſons and (as it is conceived) our lives too, are upon the ſame ground of Law, delivered up to bare Will and Pleaſure.

It is that our Birth-right, our Anceſtral-right, our condition of continuing Free-Subjects is loſt; that of late there hath been an endeavour to reduce us to the ſtate of Villainage, nay to a lower.

It is true, the Lord might tax his Villain De haute & de baſſe, might take all his Lands and Goods, the Villain had no Property againſt the Lord, the Villain he could not Ire quo voluit, he had no liberty of perſon, the Lord might impriſon him at his pleaſure; but the Villains Life was his own, and not his Lords, the Law ſecured him that. But, My Lords, as the Law ſtands now declared, it is diſputable, whether it doth ſo much for us.

My Lords, The ſubject of this Meſſage is, to preſent the ſenſe of the Commons to your Lordſhips; That the Laws of the Realm inſtituted at firſt, and freely aſſented unto, and choſen by their Anceſtors for the preſervation of themſelves and Us their Deſcendants, in our Perſons, Lives, and Eſtates, have been of late intruſted unto ſuch hands, as have endeavoured to force upon them a contrary end to that for which they were ordained, from Defenſive to turn them to Offenſive; and in ſtead of Protecting us, to make the Laws the Inſtrument of taking from us all we have. Thoſe carriages which have produced this Senſe of the Commons, I am commanded at this preſent to declare to your Lordſhips.

They are certain Extrajudicial Opinions delivered by the Judges at ſeveral times, the one in November 1635. the other a year after in February 1636.

The Shipwrits that have iſſued to all the Counties of England, for theſe many years laſt paſt without intermiſſion: The principal thing in theſe Writs which I am to preſent to your Lordſhips, is not the Charge and Burthen which hath been thereby impoſed upon the Subjects, though that be great, but the declarations in them of the Law, and of the Right whereby this burthen may be impoſed.

The laſt is, that Judgment in Maſter Hampdens Caſe in the Exchequer upon theſe Shipwrits.

My Lords, The two laſt, that is, the Shipwrit, and the Judgment, becauſe they are very long, I am onely to open them without reading, and to deliver them to your Lordſhips; the other two I am to read them, and then to deliver them to your Lordſhips.

Ship-money.

The firſt Opinion in November 1635. was read, as followeth.

I Am of opinion, that as where the benefit doth more particularly redound to the good of the Ports or Maritine parts, as in caſe of Piracy or Depredations upon the Seas, there the charge hath been, and may be lawfully impoſed upon them according to preſidents of former times; ſo where the good and ſafety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, (of which his Majeſty is the onely Judge) there the charge of the Defence ought to be born by all the Realm in general. This I hold agreeable both to Law and Reaſon.

My Lords, theſe opinions were delivered by the Judges ſeverally and apart, they were procured by the ſolicitation of my L. Finch; The Judges, as he ſeverally procured their hands, were by him enjoined Secreſie accordingly; theſe Opinions walked in the dark for a Year and upwards: afterwards the procurer of them, my Lord Finch, liked them ſo well, as that he preſumed to deliver them to his Majeſty. By his procurement a Letter was directed from his Majeſty to the Judges for the delivery of their opinions in theſe, and ſome other additionals. The former that hath been read is more modeſt, it is onely that his Majeſty is the ſole Judge of the danger, and that the Iſland as well as the Maritine Towns are chargeable to the defence of the Kingdom.

It is not declared in theſe, that this charge may be impoſed by his Majeſty alone, for the expreſſion is onely, that the charge may lawfully be impoſed, ſay not by whom.

In the other Opinions they proceed à malo ad pejus, and ſpeak plain Engliſh, which follow in hæc verba.

The CASE.

CHARLES REX,

WHen the Good, and the Caſe and Safety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom in danger, whether may not the King by Writ under the Great Seal of England, Command all the Subjects in this Kingdom at their charge, to provide and furniſh ſuch number of Ships with Men, Victuals, and Munition, and for ſuch time as he ſhall think fit, for the defence and ſafeguard of the Kingdom from ſuch danger and peril, and by Law compel the doing thereof, in caſe of refuſal or refractorineſs; and whether in ſuch caſe, is not the King the ſole Judge both of the danger, and when, and how the ſame is to be prevented and avoided?

C. R.

Judges Anſwer.

MAy it pleaſe your moſt excellent Majeſty, we have according to your Majeſties Command, ſeverally, and every man by himſelf, and all of us together, taken into ſerious conſideration the Caſe and Queſtions ſigned by your Majeſty, and encloſed in your Royal Letter; and we are of opinion, that when the Good and Safety of the Kingdom in general is concerned, and the whole Kingdom is in danger, your Majeſty may by Writ under the Great Seal of England, command all the Subjects of this your Kingdom, at their charge to provide and furniſh ſuch number of Ships, with Men, Victual, and Munition, and for ſuch time as your Majeſty ſhall think fit, for the Defence and Safeguard of the Kingdom, from ſuch danger and peril: And that by Law your Majeſty may compel the doing thereof, in caſe of refuſal or refractorineſs; And we are alſo of opinion, that in ſuch caſe your Majeſty is the ſole Judge both of the danger, and when, and how the ſame is to be prevented and avoided.

Theſe Opinions were ſubſcribed by all the Judges in Serjeants-Inn-Hall; they were afterwards publiſhed in the Star-Chamber, that the Subjects might take notice of them; and that they might never be forgotten, they are enrolled in all the Courts of Weſtminſter-Hall, in perpetuam Rei memoriam: Your Lordſhips will be pleaſed to give me leave to repeat them in their plain and legal ſenſe; which I conceive to be thus:

That his Majeſty, as often as himſelf pleaſeth, may declare that the Kingdom is in danger; That ſo often, for prevention of ſuch danger, his Majeſty by his Writ under the Great Seal of England, may alter the property of the Subjects Goods, without their Conſent in Parliament, and that in ſuch proportions as his Majeſty ſhall think fit; and beſides the altering of the Property of their Goods, for the prevention of ſuch danger, may deprive them of the liberty of their Perſons, and of their Lives, and that in ſuch manner as himſelf ſhall pleaſe.

1. The firſt of theſe (viz.) that his Majeſty may declare the danger, as often as he pleaſeth, is made good in theſe words, That the King is the ſole Judge of the danger, and when the ſame is to be prevented and avoided.

2. The ſecond, That ſo often he may alter the property of the Subjects Goods, without conſent in Parliament, in theſe words; That his Majeſty may, by Writ under the Seal of England, command and compel all the Subjects of the Realm, at their charge, to provide and furniſh Ships.

3. That this may be in what proportion his Majeſty ſhall pleaſe, in theſe words; That his Majeſty may command them to provide and furniſh ſuch number of Ships, with Men, Victuals, and Munition, and for ſuch time as his Majeſty ſhall think fit.

4. The laſt (viz.) that which concerns our Perſons, in theſe two Clauſes.

1. That his Majeſty, in caſe of refractorineſs, may compel the doing of it; This compulſion in caſe of refractorineſs, includes the Perſon, as well as the Eſtate: Nay, it ſounds more in the Perſonality than otherwiſe. For the other, viz. Whether this Perſonal Compulſion may extend ſo far as to Life, I humbly leave it to your Lordſhips condſiderations, upon the other Clauſe; that is, That his Majeſty is the ſole Judge of ſuch danger, and when, and how the ſame is to be prevented: whether the words, how it is to be prevented, in this caſe of Perſonal Compulſion, doth not leave the manner of it wholly in his Majeſties breſt.

My Lords, If theſe Opinions extend onely to Ship-money, it is enough; his Majeſty takes what he will, and when he will; if all be taken to day, and afterwards by diſſent or my own labour, I get a new Stock or livelyhood, that is no more mine than the former; ſo that there is no Property left unto the Subject, though the opinions go no further. But, my Lords, Ship-money is not the whole extent of them, Ship-money, by theſe opinions, is not due by any peculiarity in Ship-money: but Ship-money is therefore due, becauſe his Majeſty is the ſole Judge of the danger of the Kingdom, and when, and how the ſame is to be prevented, becauſe his Majeſty for the defence of the Kingdom, may at his will and pleaſure charge the People; this is the ground: and upon the ſame reaſon the Compulſion may be as well for the making and maintaining of Caſtles, Forts, and Bulwarks, making of Bridges, for tranſporting his Armies, for proviſion of Wages and Victuals, for Souldiers, for Horſes and Carriages, it may be multiplied in infinitum.

It may be done when the good and ſafety of the Kingdom is concerned, this extends to all things, and at all times, Qui jacet in terra, non habet unde cadat.

If theſe opinions be Law, I humbly leave it to your Lordſhips conſiderations, whether the Government be not Imperium legibus ſolutum. The next thing I ſhall offer to your Lordſhips, is the Ship-writs; a Tranſcript of one of them directed to the Sheriff of Dorſetſhire, I ſhall deliver; all the reſt being of the ſame Form. Becauſe that Writ is long, I ſhall open it briefly; it is to this effect.

There is a Declaration in it, that Salus Regni periclitabatur, that the ſafety of the Kingdom was in danger.

Therefore the Inhabitants of the ſeveral Counties are commanded for the Defence of the Kingdom, for the Cuſtody of the Seas, for the Safeguard of the Merchants from Piracy, inward and outward, that they ſhould provide a Ship of War, furniſhed with Guns, Gun-Powder, double Tackle, and all other neceſſaries; and this Ship thus furniſhed at a day ſet, to be brought to Portſmouth, to be provided for 26 Weeks of Mariners Wages, Victuals and other neceſſaries, and for the doing of this, Authority is given to the Sheriffs of the ſeveral Counties, to aſſeſs every of the Inhabitants ſecundum ſtatum & facultates ſuas, according to their Eſtates and Means; and further power given him by Diſtraining and ſelling of the Diſtreſs to levy theſe Moneys, Si contrarios invenerit, then to impriſon their Perſons. And further declares, That all this may be done, ſecundum Legem & conſuetudinem Regni. The ſenſe I conceive is briefly thus: That by the Laws of the Kingdom, when his Majeſty ſhall declare that the Kingdom is in danger, he may alter the Property of the Subjects Goods, and impriſon their Perſons; nay, that not onely his Majeſty, but the Sheriffs may impriſon their Perſons. By the Law the Lord might impriſon his Villain, but could not transfer that Power to his Bailiff, or to any other, it was Perſonal. That the execution of this Power over the Perſons of the Subjects hath gone no further than their Impriſonment, whether therein we be not wholly beholden to his Majeſties Grace and Goodneſs, and nothing at all to the Opinions of the Judges, I leave it to your Lordſhips conſiderations.

The laſt thing is, the Judgment in the Exchequer, in the thirteenth year of his now Majeſties Reign, againſt Maſter Hampden, the Record is very long, I ſhall briefly open it to your Lordſhips, Quarto Auguſti 11 Caroli, there iſſued Ship-writs to the ſeveral Counties, amongſt the reſt to the County of Bucks. the Sheriff aſſeſſed the Inhabitants; ſome of them made default, and did not pay; upon a Certiorari out of the Chancery, directed to the Sheriff, he certifies the Perſons that made default, together with the Summons aſſeſſed upon them. From the Chancery by Mittimus, theſe Certificates were ſent into the Exchequer, to the intent Proceſs might iſſue againſt the defaulters. A Scire Facias iſſued to the Sheriff of Bucks. who thereupon amongſt other, returns, that Maſter Hampden hath been aſſeſſed Twenty ſhillings, for ſome Lands in Stoke-Mandevil in that County, which he had not paid, Maſter Hampden appeared, and upon his appearance demands Oyer of the Ship-writs, and the other Proceedings, after his hearing thereof and underſtanding the Contents, he demurs in Law, that is, demands the Judgment and Opinion of the Judges, whether this Writ was ſufficient in Law, and to force him to pay the ſaid Twenty ſhillings.

This being a great and general caſe, the Barons of the Exchequer deſired the aſſiſtance of the reſt of the Judges, who did join accordingly. The Caſe came to be argued, there were four Arguments, two on Maſter Hampdens ſide, and two on the other ſide, the firſt was in Michaelmas Term, after Alhallontide, and all the four Arguments were ſpeeded before Chriſtmas day, two of them in the Term, and no longer time would be procured for the reſt, but the ſhort Vacation between Michaelmas Term and Chriſtmas, it was a Caſe of ſo little concernment, that whereas in Weſtminſter-Hall, Term after Term is uſually given to argue any demurrer, this muſt be argued betwixt Alhallontide and Chriſtmas, throughout after the Arguments, the Council on both ſides were commanded to bring before the Judges the Records and Authorities cited, they were brought, and for the eaſe of the Judges, many of them on Mr. Hampdens part were abbreviated on the backſides, thoſe abbreviations were commanded to be expounded; afterwards the Caſe came to Argument at the Bench, there the Caſe was judged, and by the greater part of the Judges judgment was given againſt Mr. Hampden; when the Judges had delivered their Opinions, it was the Barons part to give judgment; the Judgment was, Quod ſeparalia brevia prædict. & return. eorundem ac Schedulum prædict. eiſdem annex. ac materia in eiſdem content. ſuffecerit in lege exiſten. ad præfatum Ioannem Hampden de prædict. viginti ſolidis ſuper ipſum in forma & ex cauſa prædict. aſſeſſis onerand. Ideo conſideratum eſt per eoſdem Baron. quod prædictus Johannes Hampden de eiſdem viginti ſolidis oneratum exinde ſatisfaciat.

My Lords, this Judgment is a full and plenary execution of the former Opinions of the Judges, and of the Ship-writs, for ſo much as it concerns our propriety; It was given in Mr. Hampdens Caſe only; but binds all the Subjects for ſo binding; it is as that an Honourable perſon, now in my eye, in a Caſe depending in the Kings Bench, was denied any argument or debate, concerning the right of Ship-money, for no other reaſon, but that it had been by the former Judgment adjudged already in the Chequer,

My Lords, theſe extra-judicial opinions of the Judges, theſe Ship-writs, and this Judgment, are thoſe carriages which have introduced this ſence of the Commons, that the fundamental Laws of the Realm concerning our property and our perſons are ſhaken.

My Lords, The Commons have taken the extrajudicial opinions publiſhed and inrolled, and the reſt ſeverally into conſideration, they have been read openly in the Houſe, and after long debate, and long rather in conſideration of the greatneſs of the matter, than of the difficulty of it, they came to vote, four ſeveral Votes paſſed upon them, the Votes paſſed without ſo much as one Negative voice to any of them.

The Votes were in ſubſtance, that they were againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Right of the Property, the Liberties of the Subject, contrary to the former reſolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right.

The extrajudicial Opinions inrolled, they Voted in the whole, and every part of them to be contrary to all theſe, for they did conceive that in theſe Opinions, there was not any one Clauſe that was agreeable to the Law, but that throughout they were contrary to the Laws.

My Lords, The things which the Commons took into their conſideration, before they proceeded to their Votes, were the proceedings in the Parliament held 3 Car. when the Petition of Right was framed.

The Commons went no higher, the Reaſon inducing them thereto, was, becauſe in that Parliament all thoſe three had been debated, Propriety of Goods, Liberty of Perſons, and Security of our Lives.

Two of them, that is, Propriety of Goods, and Liberty of Perſons, by the occaſions of the Commiſſions for the Loan, and the Inſtructions wherewith theſe Commiſſions were accompanied, that concerning our lives, by occaſion of the Commiſſions that had iſſued, for the executing of Martial Law.

They conceive, that if any thing concerning theſe had paſſed both Houſes and his Majeſty, or the judgment of both Houſes without his Majeſty, it would be in vain to look further, that it would be actum agere; Nay, my Lords, they had a farther conſideration, that if thoſe were already ſetled in that Parliament, it would not only be derogatory to the Juriſdiction of Parliament, but dangerous to look higher as that they would infer a defect in thoſe Proceedings, and caſt an aſperſion upon that Parliament; I am commanded now to preſent to your Lordſhips conſiderations, thoſe things which ſatisfie the Commons, which are theſe three:

1. The Commiſſions for the Loans, with the Inſtructions.
2. A Commiſſion called the Commiſſion of Exciſe.
3. An Addition of Saving, which was deſired by your Lordſhips to have been added to the Petition of Right, at the time of the framing of it.

The Caſe upon the Commiſſion for the Loan, ſtandeth thus:

13. Octob. 2 Caroli, divers Commiſſions were directed to ſundry Commiſſioners, to the number of ſixty or ſeventy Lords and Gentlemen, in the ſeveral Counties iſſued, whereby a compulſary Aid by way of Loan was required of the Subject, ; the cauſes and grounds of this Demand are in the Commiſſions expreſſed to be theſe:

The King found the Crown ingaged in a War, by advice of both Houſes of Parliament; that not only the King and the Subject; but alſo his Allies beyond-Sea, were in danger.

The parts beyond-Sea where our Cloth is vented, and from whence we have moſt of our Proviſion for Shipping, were indangered; His Majeſties Treaſures were exhauſted, and his Coffers empty. A Parliament had been ſummoned, but no Supply.

Unavoidable neceſſity both at home and abroad, multiplied the enemies: Great and mighty preparations, both at Sea and Land, threatned the Kingdom daily.

Not only the Kings honour, but the ſafety and very ſubſiſtance of the King and People, and of the true Religion abroad, are in apparent danger of ſuffering irreparably, unleſs not only a ſpeedy, but alſo a preſent ſtop be made; which cannot admit ſo long delay as the calling of a Parliament: The People aſſured on the Royal Word of a King, that not one penny ſhould be beſtowed, but upon thoſe publick ſervices only, wherein every of them, and the whole body of the Kingdom, their Wives, Children, and Poſterity, have their perſonal and common Intereſts.

The Commiſſioners diligence commanded as they tendred the Kings honour, and ſafety of the Realm; Here Salus Regni periclitabatur, the whole Kingdom was in danger, as in the Judges Opinions, and as in the Ship-writs and judgment in the Exchequer. Nay, my Lords, further; the ſafety and very ſubſiſtance of the King, People, and true Religion were in danger of ſuffering irreparably, the dangerous inſtance, not a ſpeedy, but a preſent ſtop muſt be made, the ſupply could not ſtay for a Parliament; at this time his Majeſties Coffers were exhauſted, the King found the Crown engaged in this War, before the Acceſs of it to himſelf, and that by advice in Parliament; all this expreſſed, only lending of Monies for prevention required; but it was a compulſary thing, and became compulſary, by the inſtructions to bind over to the board, and impriſonment for refuſal. Theſe Commiſſions were in the Parliament, 3 Car. Firſt reſolved in the Commons Houſe to be againſt Law, afterwards by your Lordſhips, and conſented unto by his Majeſty, and are declared to be ſo in the Petition of Right, and the impriſonment of the Subjects for refuſal, declared in the Petition of Right to be againſt Law.

My Lords,

The next is the Commiſſion called the Commiſſion of Exciſe, this was dated ultimo Febr. it was dated after the Summons to that Parliament: This Commiſſion iſſued to thirty three Lords, and others of his Majeſties Privy Council; the Commiſſioners are thereby commanded to raiſe Moneys by Impoſitions, or otherwiſe; as in their judgments they ſhall find to be moſt convenient.

The cauſes wherefore theſe Moneys are to be raiſed are expreſſed to be theſe:

The defence and ſafety of the King and People, which without extreameſt hazard of the King, Kingdom, and People, and of the Kings Friends and Allies beyond Seas, cannot admit no longer delay: inevitable neceſſity, wherein form and circumſtance muſt rather be diſpenced withal, than the ſubſtance loſt.

The Commiſſioners not to fail therein, as they tendred his Majeſties Honour, and the ſafety of the Kingdom and People.

Here Salus Regni periclitabatur, the whole Kingdom declared to be in danger, in greater and nearer, than in the opinions of the Ship-writs or Judgments in the Chequer.

In the Parliament, 3 Caroli, this Commiſſion was adjudged by the Commons to be againſt the Laws of this Realm, and contrary to the Judgment given in the Petition of Right, and after a conference with your Lordſhips, deſired his Majeſty that it might be cancelled: The then Lord-Keeper ſhortly after brought it cancelled to your Lordſhips in the Houſe, and there ſaid it was cancelled in his Majeſties preſence: You ſent it cancelled to the Commons to be viewed, who afterwards ſent it back to your Lordſhips.

My Lords, The laſt is the addition of ſaving, deſired to be added to the Petition of Right, which was in theſe words:

We humbly preſent this Petition unto your Majeſty, not only with a care of preſerving our own Liberties, but with due regard to leave entire the Sovereign power, wherewith your Majeſty is truſted, for the Protection, Safety, and Happineſs of Your People: Your Lordſhips Deſire of this addition to the Petition of Right, was taken into conſideration by the Commons; and after debate, it was thought fit by them to be rejected. A Conference was had with your Lordſhips, and Mr. Noy appointed by the Commons to declare the reaſons of their reſolution. Your Lordſhips not receiving ſatisfaction at that Conference, whether this Addition ſhould he rejected or not: It was again debated in the Commons Houſe, they ventured upon the ſame bottom again; It was thereupon reſolved to be rejected, the reaſons of their rejections were theſe in Summe.

Firſt, They confeſs, that if theſe words were taken as a bare propoſition only, without any further reference to the Petition of Right; that it was a true propoſition.

That is, that the Law hath truſted the King with Sovereign power for the protection, ſafety, and happineſs of the People.

But if it ſhould be added to the Petition of Right, as was deſired; then was it not true, but would make the Petition of Right ſelo de ſe, and wholly deſtructive to it ſelf in all the parts of it; that it would proceed à bene diviſis, ad mala conjuncta: For then the Petition of Right, as they reſolved, would have this ſenſe.

Whereas in the Petition of Right, it is ſaid, that no Aid Tax, Tallage, or other Charge whatſoever, may be impoſed upon the People, without their free Conſent in Parliament; it would have this conſtruction. It is true, it cannot be done by the Kings ordinary power, but it may be done by that Sovereign power wherewith the Law hath entruſted his Majeſty for the protection, ſafety, and happineſs of the People.

So likewiſe for impriſonment, that they ought not to be impriſoned without due Proceſs of Law. It is true ordinarily, that the King may impriſon by his Sovereign power, wherewith the Law hath entruſted him for the protection, ſafety, and happineſs of the People.

So that, for that Martial Law, That the Subjects Lives ought not to be taken away, unleſs by due Proceſs of Laws: It is true ordinarily, but the King may do it by his Sovereign power, wherewith the Law hath intruſted him for the protection, ſafety, and happineſs of the People: Whereby they conceived that it would not only make the Petition of Right to be wholly deſtructive of it ſelf, but likewiſe this Petition of Right would leave the Subjects in a far worſe condition than it found them; for it would neceſſarily infer, that which is againſt the Law: viz. that the King by his Sovereign power, when he pleaſed to declare that it was for the Good of the People, might do all this.

Your Lordſhips at a Conference of both Houſes, engaged on the part of the Commons by Serjeant Glanvile, and Sir Henry Martin, received ſatisfaction from theſe reaſons; and conſented to the Leaving out of this Addition; and accordingly, the Petition of Right paſſed, and is printed without it.

My Lords, Theſe were the things I was commanded to preſent unto your Lordſhips: Other things there were, as the Sentence againſt Biſhop Manwaring; but theſe weighed ſo much with the Commons, as that they conceived they needed no more.

My Lords, Theſe Preſidents of that Parliament, and theſe Opinions of the Judges, the Ship-writs, and the Judgments in the Exchequer; they are like the two Buckets of a Well, if one go up, the other muſt go down: Non bene conveniunt.

My Lords, We have not cited theſe Preſidents out of diffidence that your Lordſhips had forgotten them; but becauſe others have; or that we diſtruſt your Lordſhips Juſtice, if you had forgot them. For before theſe were, your Lordſhips concurred in opinion with your worthy Anceſtors, that firſt gave them. Their Noble bloud runs in your veins. It is now to confirm your own Judgments as well as theirs: In your Lordſhips breaſts, there are the ſame Magazines and Fountains of Honour and Juſtice, as were then; theſe Judgments and proceedings were the Actions of both Houſes, the danger by the violation is equal.

The Commons ſee nothing in the Judges opinions or judgment, why they ſhould recede from their former judgments, they hope the ſame from your Lordſhips.

Beſides, my Lords, that the Caſe is now much varied from what it was then; not only in the matter, but as it concerns the Honour and Juriſdiction of this great Judicatory, the Parliament.

The breach of Priviledges in the members is tenderly reſented, becauſe that without this freedom, they cannot advice and conſult concerning the Ardua Regni.

But when they have done all, to have their Judgments and their Acts of Parliament overthrown by the Judges afterwards, this makes Parliaments to be nothing, this ſets up the Judges above the Parliament, this puts us out of hope of redreſs; if they may overthrow the Proceedings of that Parliament of 3 Caroli, they may by the ſame reaſon overthrow the Actions of this, and of all future Parliaments.

My Lords, This was not the practice of their Predeceſſors; though but in private cauſes, if difficulty of Law aroſe, they always conſulted this Oracle, and thence received their Anſwer how to give Judgment. Judgments in the Higheſt Court of Weſtminſter Hall, I mean, in the Kings Bench; where the proceedings are (coram Rege) are here reverſable by Writ of Error. In cauſes of great and general concernment, they ever adjourned them hither, as things too high for them.

Qui conſulta patrum, qui leges juraque ſervat, doth well; they have taken that in their hands they had not to do withal; and how they have handled the matter, your Lordſhips have heard.

The Judges, as is declared in the Parliament, they have here made themſelves the Executioners of them; they have endeavoured the deſtruction of the Fundamentals of our Laws and Liberties. Holland in the Low-countries lies under the Sea, the Superficies of the Land is lower than the Superficies of the Sea: It's Capital therefore for any man to cut the Banks, becauſe they defend the Country.

Roll of 11 *Rich.*2. are the Executors of the Statutes and of the Judgments and Ordinances of Parliament, they have here made.

Beſides our own, even foreign Authors, as Comenius obſerves, that the Statute de Tallagio, and other old Laws, are the Sea-walls, and banks, which keep the Commons from the inundation of the Prerogative.

Theſe Pioneers, they have not only undermined theſe Banks, but they have levelled them even with the ground.

If one that was known to be hoſtis Patriæ, had done this, though the damage be the ſame, yet the guilt is leſs.

But the Conſervatores Riparum, the Overſeers intruſted with the defence of theſe banks, for them to deſtroy them, the breach of truſt aggravates, nay, alters the nature of the offence.

Breach of truſt, though in a private perſon, and in the leaſt things, is odious amongſt all men; much more in a publick perſon, and in things of great and publick concernment, becauſe great truſt binds the party truſted to greateſt care and fidelity.

It is Treaſon in the Conſtable of Dover Caſtle to deliver the Keys to the known Enemies of the Kingdom; becauſe that Caſtle is the Key of the Kingdom: Whereas if the Houſe-keeper of a private perſon deliver poſſeſſion to his Adverſary; it is a Crime ſcarce puniſhable by Law.

The Judges under his Majeſty, are the perſons truſted with the Laws; and in them, with the Lives, Liberties, and Eſtates of the whole Kingdom: This truſt of all we have, is primarily in his Majeſty; and from him delegated to his Judges.

His Majeſty, at his Coronation, is bound by his Oath to execute Juſtice to his People, according to the Laws; thereby to aſſure the People of the faithful performance of this great truſt. His Majeſty again, as he truſts the Judges with the performance of this part of the Oath: So doth he likewiſe exact another Oath of them for their due execution of Juſtice to the People, according to the Laws; hereby the Judges ſtand intruſted with this part of his Majeſties Oath.

If therefore the Judges ſhall do wittingly againſt Law, they do not only break their Oaths, and therein the common faith and truſt of the whole Kingdom, but do, as much as in them lies, ſmeer and blemiſh the Sacred Perſon of his Majeſty with the odious and hateful ſin of Perjury.

My Lords, The hainouſneſs of this offence is moſt legible in the ſevere puniſhments which former Ages have inflicted upon thoſe Judges, who have broken any part of their Oaths wittingly, though in things not ſo dangerous to the Subject, as in this Caſe in queſtion.

Sir Thomas Wayland, Chief-Juſtice of the Common Pleas, Edw. I. was attainted of Felony for taking Bribes, and his Lands and Goods forfeited; as appears in the Pleas of Parliament, 18 Edw. I. and he was baniſhed the Kingdom as unworthy to live in that State, againſt which he had ſo much offended.

Sir William Thorpe, Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, in Edw. III. time, having of five perſons received five ſeveral Bribes, which in all amounted to 100 pounds; was for this alone adjudged to be hanged, and all his Lands and Goods forfeited, the reaſon of this Judgment is entred in the Roll in theſe words:

Quia prædict. Willielmus Thorpe, qui Sacramentum Domini Regis erga Populum ſuum habuit ad cuſtodiendum, fregit malicioſe, falſe, & rebelliter quantum in ipſo fuit; becauſe that he, as much as in him lay, had broken the Kings Oath made unto the People, which the King had intruſted him withal.

There is this notable Declaration in that Judgment; that is, that this Judgment was not to be drawn into example, againſt any other Officers who ſhould break their Oaths, but only againſt thoſe Qui prædictum ſacrum fecerunt, & fregerunt, & habent leges Angliæ ad cuſtodiendum; that is, only to the Judges Oaths, who have the Laws intruſted to them.

This Judgment was given 24 Edw. III. the next year in the Parliament 25 Edw. III. it was debated in Parliament, whether this Judgment was legal; & nullo contradicente, it was declared to be juſt, and according to the Law: And that the ſame Judgment may be given in time to come upon the like occaſion. This caſe is in point, that it is death for any Judge wittingly to break his Oath, or any part of it.

This Oath of Thorpe is entred in the Roll, and is the ſame verbatim with the Judges Oath, in 18 Edw. III. and the ſame which the Judges now take.

Your Lordſhips will give me leave to obſerve the differences between that and the Caſe in queſtion.

Firſt, That of Thorpe was only a Selling of the Law by retail to thoſe five perſons, for he had only five ſeveral Bribes of thoſe five perſons; the paſſage of the Law to the reſt of the Subjects, for ought appears, was free and open.

But theſe Opinions are a conveyance of the Law by whole-ſale, and that not to, but from the Subject.

In that of Thorpe, as to thoſe five perſons, it was not an abſolute denial of Juſtice, it was not a damming up, but a ſtreightning only of the Channel.

For whereas the Judge ought Judicium reddere, that is, the Law being the Birth-right and Inheritance of the Subject, the Judge when the parties in ſuit demand judgment ſhould redare, freely reſtore this right unto them; now he doth not dare but vendere with the hazard only of perverting Juſtice; for the party that buys the judgment may have a good and honeſt cauſe.

But theſe Opinions, beſides that they have coſt the Subjects very dear, dearer than any; nay, I think I may truly ſay, than all the unjuſt judgments that ever yet have been given.

Witneſs the many hundred thouſand pounds which under colour of them have been levied upon the Subject, amounting to ſeven hundred thouſand pounds and upwards in money paid unto the Treaſurer of the Navy; beſides what the Subjects have been forced to pay to Sheriffs, Bayliffs, and others, which altogether, as is conceived, amounts not to much leſs than a Million; Beſides the infinite vexation of the Subjects by Suits in Law, binding them over to attendance at the Council-board, taking of them from their neceſſary Employments in making of Aſſeſſes, and Collections, and Impriſonments of their Perſons.

I ſay, my Lords, beſides what is paſt, to make our miſeries compleat, they have, as much as in them lies, made them endleſs; for by theſe Opinions they have put upon themſelves and their Succeſſors an impoſſibility of ever doing us Right again, and an incapacity upon us of demanding it ſo long as they continue.

My Lords, in that ſore Famine in the Land of Ægypt, when the Inhabitants were reduced to the next door to death; for there they ſay, Why ſhould we die for bread? Firſt, they gave their Money; next, their Flocks and Cattel; and laſt of all, their Perſons, and their Lands for Bread, and all became Pharaoh's; but by this Lex Regia, there is a tranſaction made, not only of our Perſons, but of our Bread likewiſe, wherewith our Perſons ſhould be ſuſtained. That was for Bread, this is of our bread. For, my Lords, ſince theſe Opinions (if we have any thing at all) we are not at all beholding to the Law for it, but are wholly caſt upon the mercy and goodneſs of the King.

Again, There the Ægyptians themſelves ſold themſelves, and all they had to the King; if ours had been ſo done, if it had been done by our own free conſent in Parliament, we had the leſs cauſe to complain; but it was done againſt our wills, and by thoſe who were truſted, and that upon Oath, with the preſervation of thoſe things for us.

My Lords, The Laws are our Forts and Bulwarks of defence: if the Captain of a Caſtle, only through fear and cowardiſe, and not from any compliance with the Enemy, ſurrender it; this is Treaſon; as was adjudged in the Parliament, 1 Rich. II. in the two Caſes of Grymes and Weſton, and in the Caſe of the Lord Gray for ſurrendring of Barwick-Caſtle to the Scots in Edw. III. time, though good defence hath been made by him, and that he loſt his eldeſt Son in maintenance of the Siege; and yet the loſs of a Caſtle loſeth not a Kingdom only, but the place and adjacent parts, without trouble to the Whole.

But by theſe opinions there is a Surrender made of all Legal defence of propriety, that which hath been preached, is now judged, that there is no meum & tuum between the King and the People, beſides that which concerns our perſons.

My Lords, The Law, it is the Temple, the Sanctuary, whither the Subject is to run for ſhelter and Refuge: Hereby it is become Templum ſine numine, as was the Temple built by the Roman Emperour, who after he had built it, put no gods into it.

We have the Letter of the Law ſtill, but not the ſenſe.

We have the Fabrick of the Temple ſtill, but the Goddeſs, the Dii-Tutelares are gone.

But, My Lords, this is not all the Caſe (that is) that the Law now ceaſeth to aid and defend us in our Rights, for then poſſeſſion alone were a good title, if there were no Law to take it away, occupanti concederetur & melior eſſet poſſidentis conditio. But this, (though too bad) is not the worſt; for beſides that which is privative in theſe Opinions, there is ſomewhat poſitive For now the Law doth not only not defend us, but the Law it ſelf is made the inſtrument of taking all away.

For whenſoever his Majeſty or his Succeſſors ſhall be pleaſed to ſay that the Good and ſafety of the Kingdom is concerned, and that the whole Kingdom is in danger: Then when and how the ſame is to be prevented, makes our perſons and all we have liable to bare Will and pleaſure.

By this means, the Sanctuary is turned into a Shambles, the Forts are not ſlighted, that ſo they might neither do us good or hurt: But they are held againſt us by thoſe who ought to have held them for us, and the mouth of our own Cannon is turned upon our ſelves.

My Lords, in theſe expreſſions, there is no reflexion upon his Majeſty. It is only that thoſe Judges would have forced upon the Law an unnatural and contrary motion, his Majeſties carriage in the buſineſs cleers his Juſtice.

The firſt Opinion of the Judges under their hands, was procured by my Lord Finches ſollicitation only, and by him brought to his Majeſty. Theſe Opinions procured the Letter from his Majeſty for the Opinions inrolled, wherein, as likewiſe in the Caſe in the Chequer, the Judges were left free, as was acknowledged by two of the Judges in the Chequer-Chamber, who argued againſt thoſe Opinions, with this Proteſtation, That if there were any miſcarriages in that buſineſs, it muſt fall wholly upon themſelves; that the King was blameleſs.

My Lords, We know his Majeſties Juſtice is the faireſt, the richeſt Diamond in his Crown, the duſt which theſe men would have blown, and forced upon it, is faln ſhort, and with your Lordſhips helping hands, it will, we hope, be caſt upon their own faces, a fitter place for it than the other.

My Lords, The Oaths of the Judges as they bind them to the due adminiſtration of Juſtice to the Subjects, according to the Laws; ſo, as they be of the Kings Council, by their Oaths they are bound lawfully to counſel him; that is, when their Opinions are demanded, they are to deliver them according to the Law.

I ſhall therefore put your Lordſhips in mind of the memorable Proceedings againſt theſe Judges who have broken this part of their Oath, in that notable Parliament held the eleventh of Richard the ſecond.

In this Parliament, judgment of High Treaſon was given againſt eighteen ſeveral perſons, and all (ſave one of them) of eminent rank, three Privy Counſellours, the Archbiſhop of York, the Duke of Ireland, and Earl of Suffolk, the Biſhop of Exeter, the Kings Confeſſor, five Knights, ſome whereof had been Servants to Edward the Third, and all ſave one, Servants to the then King, and ſome of them of noble Diſcent, ſix Judges, Lockton, the Kings Serjeant at Law, Blake of the Kings Council at Law, and Uske the Under-Sheriff of Middleſex: Of theſe eighteen, eight were executed (that is) Sir Robert Treſilian the Chief Juſtice, five Knights, Blake of the Kings Counſel at Law, and Uske the Under-Sheriff; three, that is, the Archbiſhop of York, Duke of Ireland, and Earl of Suffolk, fled.

The reſt had their lives pardoned, but were baniſhed; their Lands and Goods forfeited, and little Penſions allowed them during their Lives: It was made Felony for any one to procure their Pardons, and they to be dealt withal as Traitors, if they returned from their baniſhment. And of thoſe Eighteen Perſons, all ſave three were impeached by the Commons.

The Offences which procured theſe Exemplary Puniſhments, although their Proceedings be long, and comprehended all that was done in this Parliament, I will briefly open them to your Lordſhips. During the Minority of that King, by ill Counſel of ſome near his Perſon, there were miſcarriages in Government. In the tenth Year of his Reign, and the twentieth of his Age, a Parliament was holden; in that Parliament in aid of good Government, and of due execution of the Laws, a Commiſſion was awarded to twelve ſeveral Peers, and others of greateſt wiſdom and fidelity: the Commiſſioners had Power in all things concerning the Houſhold, Courts of Juſtice, and the Revenues; in a word in all things concerning the good of the Realm, with full power finally to determine and put in execution for the Honour of the King, the better Governance of the Peace and Laws of the Realm, and Relief of the People.

This Commiſſion was to endure one Year, at the Years end the King would be of full Age.

My Lords, The endeavouring to overthrow this Commiſſion iſſued by Authority of Parliament for the welfare of the Realm, upon pretence that it trenched upon the Royal Power, tended to the diſheriſon of the King, and derogation of the Crown, together with the deſtruction of the Commiſſioners who procured it, and put the ſame in execution, upon pretence that they and ſome others had in Parliament forced the Royal Aſſents.

My Lords, The Conſpiring to overthrow this Commiſſion, and the Procurers of it, is the Caſe in brief; for although there be divers other Articles againſt many of them, yet this was the ground-work of all; and this ſingly and alone is declared in all the Proceedings in that Parliament to be Treaſon. Of theſe Eighteen Perſons condemned, five of them were Plotters (viz.) the Archbiſhop, Duke of Ireland, Earl of Suffolk, Triſilian the Chief Juſtice, and Sir Nicholas Bramber; theſe inſinuated into the King, that this Commiſſion was in diminution of his Kingly Power, that the Procurers of it had extorted his Royal Aſſent, and that this was Treaſon: thereupon Blake, one of the Kings Counſel at Law was adviſed withal; who declared his Opinion that it was Treaſon: he was commanded to prepare an Indictment of Treaſon againſt the Commiſſioners, and ſome of the Procurers of it, who had been Active therein.

The Indictment was drawn by him, which is entered in the Roll, and is to this effect:

That they had traiterouſly conſpired amongſt themſelves in the Parliament, to make this Commiſſion by Authority of Parliament againſt the Regality of the King, to his Diſheriſon, and Derogation of the Crown; That they compelled the Kings conſent, and that they confederated and bound themſelves to maintain one another in ſo doing.

It was intended that they ſhould be tried upon this Indictment in Middle-

Middleſex or in London; Uske the Under-Sheriff of Middleſex was acquainted with the buſineſs, who was to prepare things for the effecting of this Deſign, ſome of the Parties to be indicted not being Peers; which he performing accordingly, was therefore executed.

The five Plotters, that the King might the more confide in their Counſels, (for ſo are the words of the Record) and that under the colour of Law, they might cover their malice from the King and the Kingdom, before the Trial was to be had, they adviſe the King to demand the opinion of ſome of the Judges, that is, of the two Chief Juſtices, and Chief Baron, the Judges of the Common-Pleas, ſix in number, and of Lockton the Kings Serjeant; Blake of the Kings Counſel at Law, was commanded to draw up theſe Queſtions for the Judges Opinions, who did it accordingly.

For the drawing up of theſe Queſtions, and the Indictment, Blake was condemned and executed.

The Queſtion being drawn into Writing, the Judges were ſent for to Nottingham Caſtle, where, in the Kings preſence they were commanded upon their Allegiance to deliver their opinions.

1. The firſt Queſtion was, Whether the Commiſſion was in derogation of the Crown? They anſwered, that it was.

2. The ſecond Queſtion was, Whether the perſuading and urging the Kings conſent in Parliament thereto, was Treaſon? They anſwered, that it was. Though there were ſome other Queſtions asked, all concerning Parliamentary Proceedings, yet theſe were the main, and thoſe for which they were condemned, as appears by the Replication of the Commons to the Judges Anſwer; and by the words of the Judgment, (viz.) That they knew that this Commiſſion was awarded in Parliament, that it was for the Publick Good, that they knew of the Traiterous Intents to deſtroy the Procurors of this Commiſſion, that they knew the Law, and that it was not Treaſon, and had delivered their Opinions thereby under colour of Law, to cover their Treaſonable intent: and therefore Judgment of Treaſon was given againſt them, and againſt Locton the Kings Serjeant at Law, who had ſubſcribed the Opinions with the Judges.

Sir Simon Burley, one of the five Knights that were executed, was condemned onely for conſpiring the death of the Procurors of this Commiſſion; and although there be other Articles againſt the reſt, yet this alone is adjudged Treaſon in the ſeveral Judgments againſt every one of the Eighteen.

1. My Lords, It is obſervable in all theſe Judgments, that they are adjudged Traitors, as well againſt the Perſon of the King, as againſt the Common-wealth.

2. Secondly, It is there declared upon great advice taken, that in Treaſons which concern the King and Kingdom, they are not bound to proceed according to the Rules of the Common Law, and inferiour Courts, but according to the Courſe of Parliaments, ſo as may be for the common Good.

3. Thirdly, Judgment was given in Parliament, and Execution awarded, and afterwards a Bill of Confirmation paſſed, in reſpect of their Lands, to give them from a day paſt; and for Declaration, that this ſhould be no Precedent to Inferiour Courts to adjudge the ſame Caſes Treaſon, ſave onely in Parliament.

Theſe Judgments were not hudled up in haſte, but they were given upon long and mature deliberation. Theſe Judgments were the whole work of that Parliament, and the Proceedings againſt the five Plotters were begun the fourteenth of November, and the Judgments were not given till the thirteenth of February following, which was a quarter of a Year. And is declared in the Roll, that they ſpent a long time, and took great pains to examine the Evidences, the better thereby to ſatisfie their own Conſciences and the World.

I inſiſt the more upon this to take away all blemiſh from theſe proceedings. It is true, my Lords, theſe Judgments were afterwards, in the Parliament of 21 *R.*2. revoked and made void.

But, my Lords, that Parliament of 21 R. 2. of Revocation, was held by force; as it is declared in the Parliament Rolls of 1 *H.*4. *Nov.*21,22. that it was held viris armatis, & ſagittariis immenſis.

The Knights of Parliament were not elected by the Commons, per meos exigit, ſed per regiam voluntatem: and ſo the Lords, ſummoniri fecit Rex Dominos ſibi adherentes.

My Lords, By theſe Proceedings it doth appear that this Parliament of Revocation was no free Parliament, if at all it deſerve the name of a Parliament. But to put all out of doubt, the Parliament of 1 *H.*4. *No.*48. theſe Judgments of Revocation are declared to be erronea, iniqua, & omni juri & rationi repugnantia, erronious, wicked and contrary to all Right and reaſon; and in the Parliament of 1 *H.*4. in Print theſe Attainders are confirmed: ſo that theſe Judgments of Attainder have the Authority of two Acts of Parliament, both of them of force at this day.

Your Lordſhips will give me leave to obſerve the differences and agreements, between the offences of thoſe, and of the preſent Judges, and as well in the way and manner of Procurement, as in the matter of them: for the manner of Procurement, thoſe Judges in R. the Second's time, were in the Kings preſence, and as it is in the Parliament Roll of 1 *H.*4. *Nov.*18. they were violenter attracti, violently drawn to deliver their opinious, and that metu mortis & cruciatus corporis, for the fear of death and tortures of the bodies; and at their Trials ſeverally, they ſay, that in part violence had been offered to their perſons; becauſe they had differed in the delivery of their Opinions. My Lords, This was ſuch a miſcarriage in the Judges, theſe Circumſtances conſidered, as might cadere in virum fortem & conſtantem: But, my Lords, Fear or Cowardize, is no Plea for delivering up of the Forts and Bulwarks of the Kingdom.

But in the preſent buſineſs, there is none of all this; it came from within, there is no outward force. In thoſe of R. 2. it was Actus unicus, once done at Nottingham Caſtle; if the Judges had been put to it the ſecond time, perhaps the reſt, as well as ſome of them, had repented, and would not have done it over again: For Belknape, the Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, the ſame day declared his ſorrow, and ſaid, That now there remained nothing but a Horſe, a Hurdle, and a Halter; and Fulthorp, another of them, the next day declared his grief, for what he had done, But here after the Opinion in November 1635. a Year after, viz. 1636. they proceed à peſſimo ad pejus peſſimo, for that was with additions; moſt of them declared their opinions in their Circuits, and a year after confirmed it again by the Indictment in the Exchequer, here it was done year after year in cold bloud: one murderous blow whereupon death follows, is Felony, but to multiply wounds upon the dead body and to come again in cool bloud to do it, it ſhews the height of malice. In theſe two things they agree:

1. That which the Judges did in Richard the ſeconds time, they did it againſt their own knowledge; they knew the Commiſſion was done by Act of Parliament; ſo here they knew the Petition of Right damned the Commiſſions of Loans, a ſtronger Caſe than that, they ſubſcribed; many of them knew that the Commiſſion of Exciſe was damned in Parliament; they knew the other proceedings in Parliaments, and if they had forgotten them, they were afterwards put in mind of them; they needed not to have conſulted with Books and Journals of Parliaments, ſaving onely with their own memories.

2. They agree in this, That their Opinions tended to the ſubverſion of the Laws and Statutes of the Kingdom; for in that of *R.*2. the offence was, the endeavouring to overthrow Parliaments and Parliamentary proceedings, the Conſpiracy of the death of the Procurers was onely an aggravation. It was not Treaſon to conſpire the death of a Privy Counſellour, or to kill a Judge, unleſs he be upon the Bench, and in that Caſe it is Treaſon, becauſe of the malice, not of the Perſon, but to the Law; ſo that there the Treaſon lay in this, not that they conſpired barely againſt their Perſons: but with reference to their proceedings in Parliament, and thereby to overthrow the Acts of Parliament, wherein theſe perſons had been principal Actors. But in this again they diſagree; for in that Caſe there was onely a Conſpiracy, no death followed to the Procurers of the Commiſſion, nor was the Commiſſion overthrown; all that was done, was onely this, That a Warrant was directed to the Lord Major of London, for apprehending their perſons to bring them to Trial, which yet was not done. But here (after the Opinions delivered) Judgment was afterwards given by them in the Exchequer, and Execution awarded thereupon; for ſo much as concerns our property.

And likewiſe in the Kings Bench, where the Judges after the Judgments in the Exchequer, refuſed to hear any more debate of the matter; and ſo for the liberty of our perſons, by keeping divers of the Subjects in Priſon Term after Term for not paying Shipmoney, and other things depending upon thoſe Opinions, when they had been brought before them upon their Habeas Corpus.

4. In that of *R.*2. it was for overthrowing but of one Act of Parliament, which was likewiſe introductive of a new Law; for the Commiſſion had no riſe from the Common Law, for in truth it was derogatory to the Crown: It had onely the ſtrength of the Parliament to ſupport it, which was ſufficient, it was for the common Good.

But here the endeavour was at once not to blow up one Act of Parliament, but all; and theſe not introductive, but declaratory of the Common Law, as was the Petition of Right, the Statutes there mentioned, and the Reſolutions.

That of *R.*2. was but the blowing up of the Upper Deck; this, of the Common Law, and the Statutes too, and the old Foundations and the Structures built upon them, all together.

In that of *R.*2. it was onely to overthrow a Temporary Act of Parliament, that was to continue no longer than one year; but this to make an eternal devaſtation (for toties quoties) to the Worlds end; as his Majeſty or his Succeſſors ſhall ſay that the Kingdom is in danger, may theſe Opinions be put in execution; and likewiſe they are enrolled in all the Courts of Weſtminſter-Hall in Perpetuam rei memoriam.

The Sin againſt the Holy Ghoſt is therefore unpardonable, becauſe it takes from the party Repentance, the means of Pardon. To put us therefore into a caſe of deſperation, ſome of them have publickly, and upon the Bench declared, that this Prerogative is ſo inherent in the Crown, as that it cannot be taken away by Act of Parliament.

As they have put an impoſſibility upon themſelves, ſo would they put an impoſſibility upon his Majeſty, your Lordſhips and the whole Parliament, for ever righting us again.

My Lords, Contraria juxta ſe poſita magis eluceſcunt, I have preſented your Lordſhips with the obliquity of the ill Judges in *R.*2. time; give me leave to preſent your Lordſhips with one example of a contrary nature. And that was in Queen Elizabeths time, in the 29 Year of her Majeſties Reign: She erects a new Office in the Common Pleas, for the making of Superſedeas on Exigents that iſſued there, ſhe grants it to Richard Cavendiſh, her Servant, ſends to have him admitted, but the Judges delay the doing of it for this reaſon, becauſe the Prothonotaries and Phillizers claimed the making of thoſe Writs. The Queen ſends a ſharp Letter, and commands them forthwith to admit him; yet the Judges forbear: The Queen ſends a ſharper Letter, commanding them to ſhew the Reaſons of their Contempt and Diſobedience to the then Lord Keeper, and the Earl of Leiceſter, no mean men in thoſe days; the Judges deliver their Reaſons why they had refuſed, and it was becauſe others claimed the making of thoſe Writs.

The Queen ſends a fourth peremptory meſſage for their admitting him, with this Reaſon, That if the others were put out, they were rich and able men, and that her Courts of Juſtice were open, where they might demand their Rights,

This was not to take away the Right, but to put them to their Action.

The Judges humbly returned this Anſwer, That the Queen had taken her Oath for the due execution of Juſtice, according to the Law; that they did not doubt, but that when her Majeſty was informed, that it was againſt Law, ſhe would do what befitted her; for their parts they had taken an Oath to God, to Her and the Common-wealth, and if they ſhould do it without Proceſs of Law, before them, and onely upon her command, put the other out of poſſeſſion, though the Right remained to them, it were a breach of their Oaths; and therefore if the fear of God were not ſufficient, they told her the puniſhment that was inflicted upon their Predeceſſors for breach of their Oaths: (citing thoſe of Thorpe of *R.*2. time) that they might be ſufficient warning to them. The Queen hearing of theſe Reaſons was ſatisfied, and the Judges heard no more of the buſineſs.

This remains under the hands of Anderſon the Lord Chief Juſtice in a Book of his Reports.

Theſe Judges have had examples of both kinds before them, they might have choſen the good, and refuſed the bad.

My Lords, Beſides theſe Judgments and Opinions, the Commons will in due time bring up theſe Judges with their other Judgments, Corpora cum cauſis, for your Lordſhips will eaſily conceive that they who have done this, have done more; the principal of them, I mean my Lord Keeper, ſtands accuſed before your Lordſhips of High Treaſon. He is not here, Juſtice goes pede lento, ſed certo, it will overtake him at the laſt.

The next ſtep that is making after him, are the Articles of his Impeachment, which with your Lordſhips patience, are now ready to be opened and delivered to your Lordſhips.

Mr. HOLLIS his Speech in the CASE of Sir RANDAL CREW.

Sir Randal Crew Chief Juſtice diſplaced for his Integrity.

MY LORDS,

THeſe Gentlemen have preſented unto your Lordſhips the ſad Object of Juſtice perverted, Liberty oppreſſed, of Judgment turned into Wormwood, the Laws, which ſhould be the Bars of our Grates to protect us, keep us, and all that is ours in ſafety, made weak and impotent, to betray us unto the hands of Violence; in ſtead of Props to ſupport us, become broken Reeds to deceive us, and run into our ſides when we lean upon them; even ſo many Snares to entrap and entangle us.

And all this by the perfidiouſneſs of thoſe who are intruſted with our Laws, who call themſelves the Guardians, and the Interpreters of the Law; but by their accurſed Gloſſes have confounded the Text, and made it ſpeak another Language, and another Senſe, than ever our Anceſtors, the Law-makers intended.

Our Anceſtors made Laws to keep themſelves, their Poſterity after them, in the poſſeſſion of their Eſtates: theſe Judges could make the Law it ſelf rob us, and deſpoil us of our Eſtates. Were we invaded or perſecuted at any time for pretended Crimes, or rather becauſe they were free from Crimes? And did we put our ſelves upon a Legal Defence, and ſhelter our ſelves under the Buckler of the Law, uſe thoſe lawful Weapons which Juſtice, and Truth, and the Common Right of the Subject did put into our hands, would this avail us? No: Theſe Judges would make the Law wreſt our Weapons from us, diſarm us, take away all our Defence, expunge our Anſwers, even bind us hand and foot, and ſo expoſe us naked and bound to the mercileſneſs of our Oppreſſors. Were our Perſons forced, and impriſoned by an Act of Power, would the Law relieve us when we appealed unto it? No: It would join hands with Violence, and add Bitterneſs to our Sorrow. Theſe Judges would not hear us when we did cry; no Importunity could get a Habeas Corpus: Nay, our Cries would diſpleaſe them, and they would beat us for crying; and overdo the Unjuſt Judge in the Goſpel, with whom yet importunity could prevail.

My Lords, The Commons of England finding themſelves in this lamentable Condition, by the wickedneſs of theſe Judges; it is no wonder that we complain of them. It is no wonder if the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, aſſembled in Parliament, have ſent up ſome of their Members to ſtand upon Mount Ebal to curſe theſe Judges; to denounce a Curſe upon them who have removed our Land-marks, have taken away the Bound-Stones of the Propriety of the Subject, have left us no Meum & Tuum; but he that had moſt Might, had moſt Right, and the Law was ſure to be of his ſide.

It hath been the part of theſe Gentlemen who have ſpoken before me, to pray for Juſtice upon thoſe men, who would not do Juſtice to others. My Lords, I come upon another Errand, and yet for Juſtice too; for there is Juſtice upon Mount Gerizim, as well as upon Mount Ebal. It is as great a point of Juſtice to give a Bleſſing, a Reward where it is due, as Puniſhment where Puniſhment is due: for Reward and Puniſhment, Præmium & Pœna be the two Legs that Juſtice walks on, and Reward is her Right Leg, the more noble and the more glorious Supporture of that Sacred and Divine Body, that which God himſelf, the Foundation of Juſtice doth more delight in.

Tardior ad Pœnas Deus eſt, ad Præmia velox;

Puniſhment is good as Phyſick in the Conſequence, Reward as wholeſom and nouriſhing Food in the Eſſence; the one we do, becauſe we muſt do it as Neceſſary; the other, becauſe we love to do it, as being Pleaſing and Delightful.

Your Lordſhips then, I doubt not, will as willingly join with the Commons in doing good to a good Judge, as in puniſhing of the bad.

My Lords, We honour them, and reckon them Martyrs for the Commonwealth, who ſuffer any thing by defending the Common Right of the Subject, when they will not part with their own Goods contrary to Law; when indeed their private Intereſt goes along with it, or rather before it; and the Publick Concernment ſeems to come but in a ſecond place. Such were thoſe many whom theſe Judges have oppreſſed; yet theſe men we magnifie, and judge worthy of Praiſe and Reward.

But what Honour then is he worthy of, who meerly for the Publick, hath ſuffered himſelf to be diveſted and deprived of his Particular; ſuch a Judge as would loſe his Place, rather than to do that which his Conſcience told him was prejudicial to the Commonwealth? is not he worthy of double Honour?

And this did that worthy Reverend Judge, the Chief Judge of England at that time, Sir Randal Crew, becauſe he would not, by ſubſcribing, countenance the Loan in the firſt Year of the King, contrary to his Oath and Conſcience, he drew upon himſelf the Diſpleaſure of ſome great Perſons about his Majeſty, who put on that Project, which was afterwards Condemned by the Petition of Right, in the Parliament of Tertio, as unjuſt and unlawful; and by that means he loſt his Place of Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench; and hath theſe 14 Years, by keeping his Innocency, loſt the Profit of that Office, which upon a juſt Calculation, in ſo long a Revolution of time, amounts to 26000 l. or thereabout. He kept his Innocency when others let theirs go; when himſelf and the Commonwealth were alike deſerted: which raiſes his Merit to a Higher Pitch. For to be honeſt when every body elſe is honeſt, when Honeſty is in Faſhion, and is Trump, as I may ſay, is nothing ſo meritorious; but to ſtand alone in the Breach, to own Honeſty when others dare not do it, cannot be ſufficiently applauded, not ſufficiently rewarded. And that did this good old man do in a time of general Deſertion, he preſerved himſelf pure and untainted.

Temporibuſque malis auſus is eſſe bonus.

My Lords, The Houſe of Commons are therefore Suitors unto your Lordſhips, to join with them in the Repreſentation of this good mans Caſe unto his Majeſty, and humbly to beſeech his Majeſty to be ſo good and gracious unto him, as to give him ſuch Honour (the quality of this Caſe conſidered) as may be a noble Mark of Sovereign Grace and Favour, to remain to him and his Poſterity; and may be in ſome meaſure, a proportionable Compenſation for the great loſs he hath with ſo much Patience and Reſolution ſuſtained.

Indict' Thomæ Harriſon Cleric. 4. Junii Termino Trinitat' 14 Caroli Regis. Annoq; Domini 1638. inter Placita Regis iſto eodem Term. Coram Dom. Rege apud Weſtmonaſt. &c.

Midd. ſſ.

Before this time (that is to ſay) upon Thurſday next after the Holy Trinity, before our Sovereign Lord the King in this Court, by the Oaths of Twelve Men of this County, it is preſented, That whereas our Court of Common Pleas hath been an ancient Court of Record for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice between his Majeſties Subjects in Common Pleas, ariſing throughout the Realm of England. Whereas it is againſt the Crown and Dignity of his Majeſty, and againſt the Laws and Cuſtoms of this Kingdom for any perſon to diſturb any Juſtice of the ſaid Court, the Court of Juſtice, the Court being open, and the Judges Judicially ſitting; Whereas Juſtice Hutton for divers years is, and hath been one of the Juſtices of the ſaid Court of Common Pleas, notwithſtanding Thomas Harriſon of Creek in the County of Northampton Clerk, not having the fear of God before his eyes, but by the inſtigation of the Devil being moved, maliciouſly imagining with himſelf, and compaſſing in his mind by what means he may greatly and malitiouſly ſcandalize and defame the ſaid Richard Hutton, one of his Majeſties Juſtices of the ſaid Court of Common Pleas; and maliciouſly imagining and intending, as much as in him is, to ſcandalize, and vilifie, and bring into Contempt the ſaid Richard Hutton, of his Life, Goods, Lands, and Tenements, and to incite and provoke the diſpleaſure of our King againſt the ſaid Richard Hutton, and him the ſaid Richard Hutton to be eſteemed a Traitor to the Kings Majeſty, and to the Peers of this Realm, and withal, the Loyal Subjects of the King, and alſo for to diſturb the ſaid Court of our King, and the Juſtices of the ſaid Court being preſent in the ſaid Court, and there judicially ſitting, and to hinder the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, 4. Maii, 14 of his Majeſties Reign, at the City of Weſtminſter in the County of Middleſex, that is to ſay, in the Great Hall of Pleas there, that is to ſay, the Court before himſelf, the Court of Chancery, and the Court of Kings Bench in the Great Hall of Pleas, being open, and the Juſtices of the ſaid Courts there being preſent, and there Judicially ſitting, and there diligently hearing the Matters and Cauſes of his Majeſties People of this Realm of England, and in miniſtring the Laws of this Kingdom to his Subjects. The ſaid Thomas Harriſon, then and there, of his own malice, evil mind, and evil intention, in the preſence and hearing of the Juſtices of the ſaid Court of Common Pleas, and divers of the Serjeants at Law, and many Honourable, and others of his Majeſties faithful Subjects, falſly and maliciouſly did accuſe the ſaid Richard Hutton of High Treaſon, and then and there, maliciouſly, openly, and with a high voice, did ſpeak and pronounce thoſe ſcandalous, venemous, and malicious words with a loud voice; I (the ſaid Thomas Harriſon meaning) do accuſe Mr. Juſtice Hutton, (the ſaid Richard Hutton) one of the Juſtices of his Majeſty, (of the ſaid Common Pleas, meaning) of High Treaſon, to the great hurt and derogation of our Sovereign, his Crown, and Dignity, and the great Contempt of the ſaid Court of Common Pleas, and to the diſturbance of the Juſtice, and Laws of the King, and this his Realm, and of the Juſtices of the King, and the Adminiſtration of Juſtice in the ſaid Court of Common Pleas, to the evil example of other Offenders, and to the infamy, diſgrace, and deſtruction of Richard Hutton, and againſt the peace of his Majeſty.

To this the ſaid Thomas Harriſon hath pleaded Not guilty, and hath put himſelf upon the Country and the Kings Attorney of this Court. Likewiſe you are now to enquire whether the ſaid Thomas Harriſon be guilty of this crime yea or no.

Mr. Serjeant Heath.

May it pleaſe your Lordſhip, and you Gentlemen of the Jury, you do hear, by the reading of the Record that here is an Indictment preferred in the behalf of the King againſt Thomas Harriſon, who is now at the Bar, and it is for a notable and inſolent Contempt done in this Hall againſt Juſtice Hutton, and the Laws of this Kingdom: The Indictment ſets it forth thus, that the Court of Common Pleas is an ancient Court, and that it is againſt the Crown and Dignity of the King, and the Courts of Juſtice, that when the ſaid Courts were ſitting, they, nor any of the Miniſters of the ſaid Courts, ſhould not be diſturbed. It is further ſaid, that Mr. Juſtice Hutton is, and, for many years paſt, hath been one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and the Defendant, who is now at the Bar, Mr. Harriſon, a Clerk, being moved with malice againſt the Perſon of Mr. Juſtice Hutton, and intending to bring Mr. Juſtice Hutton into the Kings high diſpleaſure, and to hazard the loſing of his Life and his Eſtate, and the forfeiture of his Goods, and to diſturb the Peace of the King and the Courts of Juſtice ſitting, did falſely and maliciouſly the fourth of May laſt, in Weſtminſter Hall, in the City of Weſtminſter (the Courts ſitting) this Court, and the Court of Chancery, and the Court of Common Pleas, this Defendant boldly, and audaciouſly, and maliciouſly did ruſh to the Bar of the Court of Common Pleas, Mr. Juſtice Hutton, and Mr. Juſtice Crawley then and there ſitting, they attending to the Service of the ſaid Court; There, with a loud voice, ſpake to Mr. Juſtice Hutton, ſitting as a Judge. I do accuſe Mr. Juſtice Hutton of High Treaſon; This offence being committed in this manner, and in this place, and with ſuch a boldneſs, is ſaid to be of a high nature, and to the contempt of the Crown and Dignity of all the Courts of Juſtice, where the King is wholly intereſſed: whether this offence my be puniſhed, that is the force and intent of this Indictment.

My Lords, To this the Defendant hath pleaded Not guilty, we that be of the Kings Counſel ſhall make it apparent that this Defendant did do this, and in this manner as is ſet forth.

Mr. Attorn.

I deſire that this Examination may be read; but let him ſee whether it be his Hand, yea, or no.

Mr. Harriſon.

It is my Hand.

The Examination of Thomas Harriſon, of Creeke, in the County of Northampton, Clerk, being examined before my Lord Chief-Juſtice Brampſton. That it is true, that whereas Mr. Juſtice Hatton, and Mr. Juſtice Crawly, ſitting in the Court of Common Pleas, he came to the Bar, and there publickly did charge the ſaid Juſtice Hutton with High Treaſon; And being demanded, What was the point of High Treaſon? He charged him:

1. In denying the Kings Supremacy.
2. Next, Moving of the People to Sedition.

He charged him with High Treaſon as aforeſaid. Further, he was asked, Why he charged him with the firſt; and how he doth deny the Kings Supremacy?

He anſwers, That by Common fame upon Saturday laſt, in the Exchequer Chamber, he did deliver his Opinion, That the King had no lawful power to levy the Ship-money. Being asked, Whether he heard the Argument? He anſwered, He heard it not, but received it from the Common report of others.

Being further asked, Why he charged him with the ſtirring up the People to Sedition? He anſwered, That was becauſe, by the report of divers near to the place where this Examinant dwells, the People go on more and more in their ſtubbornneſs, refuſing the paying of Ship-Money, the which is contrary to the opinion of all the Orthodox Divines of this Kingdom; and in that Mr. Juſtice Hutton, riding that Circuit, hath given the People ſuch an encouragement to their diſobedience. Being further asked, Whether any other Perſon did know of this his intent? He anſwered, That there were two others with him, but they did not know any thing of his intention till they heard it ſpoken at Bar. Being asked, Why he made choice of this publick way? The reaſon, ſaith he, was, becauſe that he did deliver his opinion publickly, therefore he thought that to be the beſt way; and if it had been done in a private Treaſon, he thought it fit to acquaint it in a private way.

Thomas Harriſon.

Mr. Attorn.

May it pleaſe your Lordſhip, and you of the Jury, the Priſoner at the Bar, Mr. Harriſon, ſtands indicted of a very foul and horrible offence, of a forged and falſe accuſation, framed and contrived out of his own brain, it ſhould ſeem it was out of ſome rooted and inveterate malice; a thing for which there is no colour nor evidence for truth; and himſelf confeſſeth, that it was upon the ground of Common Fame, he charged this Reverend Judge with High Treaſon, and that he denied the King's Supremacy; and the reaſon was, becauſe that he heard of a Common Fame that the Judge had delivered his opinion, that the King had no power to levy Ship-money.

2. Becauſe that he ſtirred up the Kings Subjects to Sedition; and he giveth that for a reaſon, in that the People of Northampton do go on in a ſtubborn refuſal of the payment of the Ship-money in regard of the Judges opinion.

My Lord, This is a heavy thing for to accuſe any man of Treaſon, whereby he ſhall forfeit his Lands and Goods, and loſe his life; and ſurely by the old Law this falſe Accuſer ſhould undergo the ſame puniſhment as he ſhould that was accuſed, if he had been found guilty.

My Lords, The Office of a Judge is a place of great honour and truſt.

2 K. 2. 1, 5, &c.

Of Honour, for the Judges of the Kings Bench and Common Pleas are reckoned inter magnates Regni, and the diviſors and publiſhers of falſe lies and tales againſt them are branded for Authors of debates and diſcords between the King and his People, and ſubverters of the Realm.

Of truſt, for he is truſted with the adminiſtration of equal Juſtice between the King and his Subjects, and the Lives, Fortunes, and Eſtates of men; Therefore being a place of ſo great honour and truſt the ſcandal is the greater; and offences and crimes againſt them have been puniſhed not with ordinary puniſhment.

25 Edw. III. 1. pr. It is declared to be Treaſon to kill a Judge in execution of his Office.

Our Books ſay, That if one draw a Weapon upon a Judge ſitting in Judicature, though he ſtrike him not, he ſhall be impriſoned during life, and forfeit his Goods and Lands, and loſe his Right Hand.

Though the offence be not done to the Judge, yet being in the Judges preſence (the Courts ſitting) as if one ſtrike a Juror, or any other perſon in Weſtminſter Hall, ſitting in the Courts, it hath been puniſhed with the loſs of Hand, Goods, and Lands during Life; this appeareth, 19 E. 3. Judgment, 174. 22 E. 3. 13. Mich. 6 Ed. 3. Coram Rege, Rot. 55. Stamfords Pleas of Crown, 38.

The offence of Mr. Harriſon is not for accuſing Judge Hutton, or any other of Treaſon, for God forbid but that ſhould be lawful where there is juſt cauſe; But to do it without any colour of ground, and to forge a falſe Accuſation out of his own brain, and to act in ſuch an inſolent and mad way againſt a reverend Judge, ſitting in the Seat of Judgment, this is the offence.

37 Hen. 6. 3. If one call another Traitor, an Appeal lieth before the Conſtable and Marſhal, and if the Appellant be killed in Battel, it is Juſtifiable.

30 lib. Aſſ. one called Juſtice Seaton Traitor; and anſwered well in Damages, as appeareth more at large in the Record than in the Printed Book.

Mich. 5 Car. in Banco Regis, Nich. Jeoffes was indicted and fined in the King's Bench, for writing a Petition, wherein he ſaid the Lord Chief-Juſtice Crook was a Traitor.

Treaſons are declared by the Statute 25 E. 3. and this Gentleman may expound a Text, he cannot expound Statutes, for this is proper for the Judges of the Realm.

He is not to judge what is Treaſon, and what not, Tractent fabrilia fabri, let him keep himſelf within the compaſs of his own profeſſion.

This offence is Contra coronan & dignitatem, and the Scandals againſt the King's Judges and Miniſters, trench upon the King himſelf, and and therefore his Royal Majeſty, deteſting this odious and foul fact in the Priſoner at the Bar, hath commanded us his Counſel to give evidence.

The Perſon of the Party accuſed is beſt known to your Lordſhips to be a moſt grave, honeſt, learned, and reverend Judge, and, I preſume, free from any thought of Treaſon.

Mich. 33. 34. Ed. 1. coram Rege in this Court, Rot. 75. Roger de Higham, Juſtice of Oyer and Terminer, gave Judgment for Mary, late the Wife of William Bruce Plaintiff, againſt William Bruce in the Chequer-Chamber.

This William de Bruce was of a Noble Family; he asked this Roger, Whether he would avow the Judgment? And he told him, yes, Now ſays de Bruce, Roger, Roger, thou haſt thy will, which of long time thou haſt ſought. The Judge asked him, What was that? He ſaid, My ſhame and loſs, and this I will think on; for this offence in a kind of implicite way, taxing the Judge of injuſtice. He was indicted, and confeſſed the Indictment, as Mr. Harriſon, the Record ſaith, Et quia ſicut honor, & reverentia qui Miniſtris Domini Regis ratione officii ſui faciuntur, ipſi Regi attribuntur, ſic dedecus & contemptus miniſtris ſuis fact. eidem Domino Regi inferuntur, conſideratum eſt quod prædictus Willielmus de Bruce diſtrictus in corpore, capite nudo, tena depoſita eat è Banco Domini Regis ubi placita tenentur in Aula Weſtmonaſterii per medium Aulæ prædictæ cum curia plena fuerit, uſque ad Scac. ubi deliquit & ibidem veniam petat à præfato Rogero, &c. Et poſtea committitur Turri London ibidem moratur. ad voluntatem Regis.

My Lords, I doubt not but you will maintain the honour of a Judge, and puniſh this Delinquent according to his demerits, his offence contained in the Indictment is confeſſed in his Examination, and by himſelf oretenus.

Therefore you of the Jury ſhall not need to depart from the Bar, but find him guilty.

The PROTESTATION of the Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burroughs, Miniſters, and Commons, &c. in Anſwer to the King's Declaration of the ninth of September.

The Proteſtation.

WE Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burgeſſes, Miniſters, and Commons, his Majeſties true and Loyal Subjects; That whereas our continual Supplications, Complaints, Articles, and Informations, preſented, firſt, to the Lords of his Majeſties Privy Council, next to his Sacred Majeſty; and laſt from time to time to his Majeſties Commiſſioners; our long attendance, and great patience this Twelve-Month by-gone, in waiting for ſatisfaction of our moſt juſt deſires, our Zeal to remove all Rubs out of the way, which were either mentioned unto us, or could be conceived by us as hinderances of our pious intentions, aiming at nothing but the good of the Kingdom, and preſervation of the Kirk, which by Conſumption or Combuſtion is likely to expire, delighting to uſe no other means but ſuch as are legal, and have been ordinary in this Kirk ſince the Reformation, and labouring, according to our power and intereſt, that all things might be carried in a peaceable manner, worthy of our Profeſſion and Covenant, our Proteſtation containing a hearty thankſgiving for what his Majeſty, in his Proclamation from his Juſtice had granted of our juſt deſires, and our Proteſts and hopes for ſo much as was not as yet granted. All theſe made us confidently to expect from his Majeſties Royal and Compaſſioned diſpoſition towards this his Native Kingdom, that a free general Aſſembly and Parliament ſhould have been indicted, as the ordinary and moſt proper remedies of our grievances, and did conſtrain us to renew our Petition, earneſtly entreating, that his Majeſties Commiſſioner would be pleaſed to repreſent unto his Majeſty the condition of this Kirk, and Kingdom, crying in an extreme exigence for preſent help, with the lawfulneſs of the remedies preſcribed by his Majeſties Laws, required by us, and preſented to him in ſome particular Articles, which his Grace promiſed to recommend to his Majeſty, and to do his beſt endeavours for obtaining the ſame; eſpecially the firſt Article, that there might be indicted a full and free general Aſſembly, without prelimitation either in the conſtitution and members thereof, in the order and manner of proceeding, or in the matters to be treated: And if there ſhould be any queſtion or doubt about one of theſe, or ſuch like particulars, that the determination thereof might be remitted to the Aſſembly it ſelf, as the only proper and competent Judge.

And now, after ſo many Supplications, Complaints, Articles, and Informations; after our neceſſary Proteſtation, expreſſing the humble thankfulneſs and continued deſires of our hearts after ſo long expectation, and ſo much dealing, having with open Ears, and attentive minds heard his Majeſties Proclamation, it is our deſire, purpoſe, and endeavour ſo to proceed that we may upon the one part ſtill be thankful to God and the King, for the leaſt blink of his Majeſties Countenance, and the ſmalleſt Crums of Comfort that fall unto us from his Majeſties Royal hands; Beſeeching the Lord yet further to enlarge his Majeſties heart, for our full ſatisfaction and rejoycing, to the honour of God, the good of this Kirk and Kingdom, and his Majeſties never dying fame and glory; that his wiſe government and Zeal to the Service of God, may be a meaſure and pattern of deſires to all Generations hereafter, when they ſhall be wiſhing for a religious and righteous King: And on the other part, that Chriſt our Lord, the King of Kings, through our neglect or lukewarmneſs may want no part of his Sovereignty and Dominion; and that in our Religion, which is more dear unto us than our lives, we deceive not our ſelves, with that which cannot ſatisfie, and make up the breach of this Kirk and Kingdom, or remove our fears, doubts, and ſuſpicions of the innovations of Religion.

This hath made us to obſerve, and perceive that his Majeſties Proclamation doth aſcribe all the late diſtractions of this Kirk and Commonwealth, to our conceived fears of the Innovation of Religion and Law, as the Cauſe and occaſion thereof, and not to the Innovations themſelves, with which we have been for a long time, and eſpecially of late, heavily preſſed and grieved, as if the Cauſe were rather in apprehenſion and fancy than in reality and ſubſtance, That the Service Book, and Book of Cannons are not ſo far diſcharged by this Proclamation, as they have been urged by Preceding Proclamations; for this Proclamation only diſchargeth the practice of them, and reſcinds the Acts made for eſtabliſhing their practice, but doth not reſcind the former Proclamations; namely, that of the 19 of February at Sterling, and that of the fourth of July at Edinburgh, which gives an high Approbation to theſe Books, as fit means to maintain Religion, and to beat down all Superſtition, and withal declares his Majeſties purpoſe, to bring them into this Kirk in a fair and legal way; And thus both our fears that they may be introduced hereafter, muſt ſtill remain, and the liberty of the General Aſſembly by ſuch a Declaration of his Majeſties Judgment, is not a little prejudged in the minds of ſo many as wiſely conſider, and compare the preceding Proclamations with this which we now hear; although others who looking upon one ſtep, and not upon the whole Progreſs, run on raſhly, and neither conſidering what they are doing, nor with whom they are dealing, may be eaſily deceived. Qui pauca videt cito Judicat, a ſhort ſight maketh a ſudden Judgment.

That it is declared in this Proclamation, that his Majeſty neither intendeth to innovate any thing in Religion or Laws, or to admit of any change or alteration in the true Religion already eſtabliſhed and profeſſed in this Kingdom: And withal, this is interpoſed, that the Articles of Pearth are eſtabliſhed by the Acts of Parliament, and general Aſſembly, and diſpenſation of the practice only granted, and diſcharge given, that no Perſon be urged with the practice thereof; and conſequently, his Majeſties intention for the ſtanding of the Acts of the Aſſembly and Parliament, appointing the Articles of Perth, is manifeſt, which is no ſmall prejudice to the freedom of the general Aſſembly, That while the Proclamation ordaineth all his Majeſties Subjects to be liable to the tryal and cenſure of the Judicatories competent, and that none of them ſhall uſe any unlimitted and unwarranted power; likewiſe that no other Oath be adminiſtred to Miniſters at their entry, than that which is contained in the Act of Parliament: In both theſe Articles the Biſhops are meaned, who are only thereby for the preſent curbed, againſt their exorbitancy and enormities in exercizing their Office; but the Office of Biſhops is thereby not only preſuppoſed as unqueſtionable, but alſo ſo ſtrongly eſtabliſhed, that his Majeſty declareth for the preſent, his intention to admit no innovation therein: Which is more evident by the indiction of the Parliament; warning all Prelates to be preſent, as having voice and place in Parliament; and by the indiction of the Aſſembly, warning all Archbiſhops and Biſhops (for ſo are their divers Degrees and Offices Eccleſiaſtical here deſigned and ſuppoſed) to be preſent, as having place and voice in the Aſſembly, contrary to the Caveats, Acts of the Kirk, and our Declinator: And thus a third and great limitation is put upon the general Aſſembly. The Proclamation, by reaſon of theſe many limitations, and prejudices of the liberty of the Aſſembly in the very points which have wrought ſo much woe and diſturbance in this Kirk and Kingdom, and wherein the liberty of the Aſſembly is moſt uſeful and neceſſary at this time, can neither ſatisfie our grievances and complaints, nor remove our fears and doubts, nor cannot (without Proteſtation) be admitted by us his Majeſties Subjects, who earneſtly deſire that truth and peace may be eſtabliſhed; and that for the reaſons following:

1. To keep ſilence in any thing that may ſerve for the good of the Kirk, whether it be in Preaching, Prayer, or in propoſing and voycing in a Lawful Aſſembly of the Kirk, is againſt the Word of God, Iſa. 62. 6. Ye that are the Lords remembrancers, keep not ſilence, and give him no reſt till he eſtabliſh, and till he make Jeruſalem a praiſe in the earth: 1 Kings 18. 21. like the halting of the people between two opinions, and their not anſwering a word when the Lord called them to give a teſtimony, Acts 20. 20. I have kept back nothing that was profitable unto you: And again, 1 *Cor.*12. 7. *Mat.*15.18. *Rom.*1. 18. *Rev.*2.14, 20. and 3.15. and therefore to keep ſilence, or not to meddle with corruptions, whether in Doctrine, Sacraments, Worſhip, or Diſcipline, in a general Aſſembly of the Kirk, convened for that end, were the ready way to move the Lord to deny his Spirit unto us, and to provoke him to wrath againſt our proceedings, and might be imputed to us for prejudice, for colluſion, and for betraying our ſelves and the Poſterity.

2. This Predetermination is againſt our Supplications and Proteſtations, wherein we have ſhewn our ſelves ſo earneſt for a Free General Aſſembly, contrary to every limitation of this kind; ſo far prejudging the liberty thereof, is againſt the Confeſſion of Faith regiſtrated in the Parliament, 1567. declaring, that one Cauſe of the Councils of the Kirk is for good policy and order to be obſerved in the Kirk, and for to change ſuch things as men have deviſed, when they rather foſter Superſtition than edifie the Kirk uſing the ſame, and is againſt our late Confeſſion, wherein we have promiſed to forbear all Novations, till they be tried; which obligeth us to forbear now, and to try them in an Aſſembly, and by all lawful means to labour to recover the former purity, and liberty of the Goſpel, to which this limitation is directly repugnant, our liberty in a general Aſſembly, being the principal of all lawful means ſerving to that end.

3. This were directly contrary to the nature and ends of a general Aſſembly, which having authority from God, being convened, according to the Laws of the Kingdom, and receiving power from the whole collective body of the Kirk, for the good of Religion, and ſafety of the Kirk, whatſoever may conduce to theſe good ends in Wiſdom and Modeſty ſhould be proponed, examined, and determined without prelimitation, either of the matters to be treated, or of the liberty of the members thereof; it being manifeſt, that as far as the Aſſembly is limited in the matters to be treated, and in the members to be uſed, the neceſſary ends of the Aſſembly, and the Supreme Law, which is the ſafety of the Kirk, are as far hindred and prejudged.

4. This limitation is againſt the Diſcipline of the Kirk, which Book.2. Chap.7. declareth this to be one of her liberties, that the Aſſembly hath power to abrogate and aboliſh all Statutes and Ordinances concerning Eccleſiaſtical matters that are found noyſom, and unprofitable, and agree not with the time, or are abuſed by the People, and againſt the Acts of the general Aſſembly, like as the pretended Aſſembly 1610. declareth, for the common affairs of the Kirk (without exception or limitation) it is neceſſary that there be yearly general Aſſemblies: And what order can be hoped for hereafter, if this Aſſembly indicted after ſo long intermiſſion, and ſo many groſs corruptions, be limited, and that more than ever any lawful Aſſembly of the Kirk was, when it was obſerved?

5. It is ordained in Parliament, 11. Act 40 King James 6. anent the neceſſary and lawful form of all Parliaments, that nothing ſhall be done, or commanded to be done, which directly or indirectly prejudge the liberty of free voicing or reaſoning of the Eſtates, or any of them in time coming. It is alſo appointed in Parl. 6. Act 92. King James 6. that the Lords of Council and Seſſion proceed in all Civil Cauſes intended or or depending before them, or to be intended, to cauſe or execute their Decrees, notwithſtanding any private writing, charge, or command in the contrary, and generally by the Acts of Parliament, appointing every matter for its own Judicatory, and to all Judicatories their own freedom. And therefore much more doth this liberty belong to the Supreme Judicatory Eccleſiaſtick in matters ſo important as concerneth Gods Hononr and Worſhip immediately, the ſalvation of the peoples Souls, and right conſtitution of the Kirk, whoſe Liberties and Priviledges are confirmed, Parl. 12. King James 6. Parl. 1. King Charles, for if it be carefully provided by divers Acts of Parliament, eſpecially Parl. 12. Act 148. King James 6. That there be no foreſtalling or regrating of things pertaining to this natural life: What ſhall be thought of this ſpiritual foreſtalling and regrating, which tendeth to the famiſhing or poyſoning of the Souls of the People both now and in the generations afterward?

6. It were contrary to our Proteſtations, Proceedings, and Complaints againſt the late Innovations. And it might be accounted an Innovation and uſurpation as groſs and dangerous to us, and the Poſterity, and as prejudicial to Religion as any complained upon by us, to admit limitations, and ſecret or open determinations, which belongeth to no Perſon or Judicatory, but to an Aſſembly, or to conſent to, and approve by our ſilence the ſame Predeterminations, it were to be guilty of that our ſelves, which we condemn in others, we may eaſily judge how the Apoſtles before the Counceil of Jeruſalem, the Fathers before the Nicene Council, and our Predeceſſors before the Aſſembly holden at the Reformation, and afterwards would have taken ſuch dealing.

Which ſaid Reaſons are expreſſed before in the latter end of the year 1638. to ſhorten this Proteſtation, which if all had been put together would have been very tedious.

For theſe and the like Conſiderations in our name, and in the name of all who will adhere to the late Covenant, ſubſcribed by us, and ſealed from Heaven, we (from our Duty to God, our Native Country, our ſelves, and the Poſterity, leſt our ſilence import a ſatisfaction of our deſires, and a ſtopping of our Mouths from neceſſary ſupplication for things yet to be obtained from his Majeſties juſt and gracious diſpoſition) are conſtrained to declare and proteſt:

Firſt, That the Cauſe and occaſion of the diſtractions of the Kirk and Commonwealth are no ways to be imputed unto us, or our needleſs fears, but to the Innovations and Corruptions of Religion, which againſt the Acts and Orders of this Kirk, and the Laws of this Kingdom, have been preſſed upon us the People of God, and his Majeſties Loyal Subjects, who, although under great thraldom, were living in peace and quietneſs, labouring in all godlineſs and honeſty to do our duty to God and man.

Secondly, We proteſt that all queſtions and doubts that ariſe, concerning the freedom of the Aſſemblies, whether in the conſtitution and members thereof, or in the matters to be treated, or in the manner and order of proceeding, be remitted to the determination of the Aſſembly it ſelf, as the only proper and competent Judge.

And that it ſhall be lawful for us being authorized with lawful Commiſſions, as at other times, when the urgent neceſſity of the Kirk ſhall require, ſo in this exegence to aſſemble our ſelves at the Diet appointed, notwithſtanding any impediment or Prorogation to the contrary; And being Aſſembled againſt all Qualifications and Predeterminations, or preſuppoſals to propone, treat, reaſon, vote, and conclude, according to the Word of God, Confeſſion of Faith, and Acts of Lawful Aſſemblies, in all Eccleſiaſtical matters, pertaining to the Aſſembly, and tending to the advancement of the Kingdom of Chriſt, and good of Religion.

Thirdly, And ſince Archbiſhops and Biſhops have no Warrant for their Office in thi Kirk, ſince it is contrary both to Reaſon, and to the Acts of the Kirk, that if any have Place or Voice in the Aſſembly, who are not Authorized with lawful Commiſſions, and ſeeing both in common equity and tenour of this Proclamation, they are made liable to the Trial and Cenſure of the Aſſembly: We proteſt that they be not preſent, as having Place or Voice in the Aſſembly, but as rei to Compeer for underlying Trial and Cenſure upon the general Complaints already made, and the particular Accuſations to be given in againſt them: And that the warning given by his Majeſties Proclamation, and this our Proteſtation be a ſufficient Citation to them to compeer before the Aſſembly, for their Trial and Cenſure in Life, Office, and Benefice.

Fourthly, We ſolemnly proteſt, that we do conſtantly adhere to our Oath, and ſubſcription of the Confeſſion of Faith, and Covenant lately renewed and approved with rare and undeniable evidences from Heaven of the wonderful workings of his Spirit in the hearts both of, Paſtors and People through all the parts of the Kingdom. And that we ſtand to all Parts and Clauſes thereof, and particularly to the Explanation and Application, containing both our Abjuration of, and our Union againſt the particular Evils and Corruptions of the Time; a Duty which the Lord Time eſpecially craveth at our hands.

5. We alſo proteſt, That none of us who have ſubſcribed, and do adhere to our ſubſcription of the late Covenant, be charged, or urged, either to procure the Subſcriptions of others, or to ſubſcribe our ſelves unto any other Confeſſion or Covenant, containing any derogation thereunto, eſpecially that mentioned in the Proclamation, without the neceſſary Explanation and the Application thereof, already ſworn by us, for the Reaſons above expreſſed: and becauſe, as we did in our former Proteſtation appeal from the Lords of his Majeſties Council, ſo do we now by theſe renew our ſolemn Appeal, with all Solemnities requiſite, unto the next free General Aſſembly and Parliament, as the onely Supreme National Judicatories competent, to judge of National Cauſes and Proceedings.

6. We proteſt, That no Subſcription, whether by the Lords of the Council or others of the Confeſſion mentioned in the Proclamation, and enjoined for the maintainance of Religion, as it is now already, or at this preſent time eſtabliſhed, and profeſſed within this Kingdom without any Innovation of Religion or Law, be any manner of way prejudicial to our Covenant, wherein we have ſworn to forbear the practice of Novations already introduced, &c. till they be tried in a Free Aſſembly; and to labour by all lawful means to recover the Purity and Liberty of the Goſpel, as it was eſtabliſhed and profeſſed before the aforeſaid Innovation.

And in like manner, that no Subſcription aforeſaid, be any derogation to the true and ſound meaning of our worthy Predeceſſors, at the time of their ſubſcription, in the Year 1581. and afterward. Withall, warning and exhorting all men who lay to heart the Cauſe of Religion againſt the Corruptions of the Time, and the preſent Eſtate of Things, both to ſubſcribe the Covenant, as it hath been explained, and neceſſarily applied; and as they love the Purity and Liberty of the Goſpel, to hold back their hands from all other Covenants, till the Aſſembly now Indicted be Convened, and determine the preſent Differences and Diviſions, and preſerve this Country from contrary Oaths.

7. As his Majeſties Royal Clemency appeareth in forgiving and forgetting what his Majeſty conceiveth to be a Diſorder, or done amiſs in the proceeding of any; ſo are we very confident of his Majeſties approbation, to the integrity of our hearts, and peaceableneſs of our ways and actions all this time paſt; and therefore,

We proteſt that we will ſtill adhere to our former Complaints, Proteſtations, lawful Meetings, Proceedings, Mutual Defences, &c. All which, as they have been in themſelves lawful, ſo were they to us preſſed with ſo many Grievances in his Majeſties abſence from this Native Kingdom, moſt neceſſary, and ought to be regarded as good Offices, and pertinent Duties of Faithful Chriſtians, Loyal Subjects, and Senſible Members of this Kirk and Commonwealth.

As we truſt at all occaſions to make manifeſt to all good men, eſpecially to his Sacred Majeſty, for whoſe long and proſperous Government, that we may live a peaceable and quiet life in all godlineſs and honeſty, we earneſtly pray.

Whereupon a Noble Earl, James Earl of Montroſs, &c. in name of the Noblemen, Mr. Alexander Gibſon Younger, of Dury, in name of the Barons, George Porterfield Merchant, Burgeſs of Glaſcow, in name of the Burroughs, Mr. Harry Rollock Miniſter at Edinburgh, in name of the Miniſters, and Mr. Archibald Johnſton Reader hereof, in name of all who adhere to the Confeſſion of Faith and Covenant lately renewed within this Kingdom, took Inſtruments in the hands of three Notars preſent at the ſaid Mercate Croſs at Edinburgh, being invironed with great numbers of the aforeſaid Noblemen, Barons, Gentlemen, Burroughs, Miniſters, and Commons, before many hundred Witneſſes, and craved the Extract thereof; and in token of their dutiful reſpect to his Majeſties Confidence of the equity of their Cauſe, and Innocency of their Carriage, and hope of his Majeſties gracious acceptance, they offered in all humility, with ſubmiſs reverence, a Copy thereof to the Herald.

Whereas in ſome of the Libellous Books and Pamphlets lately publiſhed, the moſt Reverend Fathers in God, the Lord Archbiſhops and Biſhops of the Realm, are ſaid to have uſurped upon his Majeſties Prerogative Royal, and to have proceeded in the High Commiſſion, and other Eccleſiaſtical Courts, contrary to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, It was Ordered by his Majeſties High Court of Star-Chamber, the Twelfth day of June laſt, that the Opinion of the two Lords Chief Juſtices, the Lord Chief Baron, and the reſt of the Judges and Barons, ſhould be had and certified in theſe particulars, viz. Whether Proceſſes may not iſſue out of the Eccleſiaſtical Courts in the names of the Biſhops? Whether a Patent under the Great Seal be neceſſary for the keeping the Eccleſiaſtical Courts, and enabling Citations, Suſpenſions, Excommunications, and other Cenſures of the Church? and, Whether the Citations ought to be in the Kings name, and under his Seal of Arms; and the like for Inſtitutions, and Inductions to Benefices, and correction of Eccleſiaſtical Offences? Whether Biſhops, Archdeacons, and other Eccleſiaſtical Perſons, may or ought to keep any Viſitation at any time, unleſs they have expreſs Commiſſion or Patent under the Great Seal of England to do it, and that his Majeſties Viſitors onely, and in his name and right alone? Whereupon his Majeſties ſaid Judges having taken the ſame into their ſerious conſideration, did unanimouſly concur and agree in Opinion, and the firſt day of July laſt certified under their Hands, as followeth, That Proceſſes may iſſue out of Eccleſiaſtical Courts in the name of the Biſhops; and that a Patent under the Great Seal is not neceſſary for the keeping of the ſaid Eccleſiaſtical Courts, or for the enabling of Citations, Suſpenſions, Excommunications, and other Cenſures of the Church; and that it is not neceſſary that Summons, Citations, or other Proceſſes Eccleſiaſtical in the ſaid Courts, or Inſtitutions, or Inductions to Benefices, or Correction of Eccleſiaſtical Offences by Cenſure in thoſe Courts, be in the Kings name, or with the ſtile of the King, or under the Kings Seal, or that their Seals of Office have in them the Kings Arms: And that the Statute of Primo Edwardi Sexti, cap. ſecundo, which Enacted the contrary, is not now in force: And that the Biſhops, Archdeacons, and other Eccleſiaſtical Perſons, may keep their Viſitations as uſually they have done, without Commiſſions under the Great Seal of England ſo to do.

Which Opinions and Reſolutions being declared under the Hands of all his Majeſties ſaid Judges, and ſo certified into his Court of Star-Chamber, were there Recorded. And it was by that Court further Ordered the fourth day of the ſaid Moneth of July, that the ſaid Certificate ſhould be enrolled in all other his Majeſties Courts at Weſtminſter, and in the High Commiſſion, and other Eccleſiaſtical Courts, for the ſatisfaction of all men, that the Proceedings in the High Commiſſion, and other Eccleſiaſtical Courts, are agreeable to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm.

And his Royal Majeſty hath thought fit, with advice of his Council, that a publick Declaration of theſe the Opinions and Reſolutions of his Reverend and Learned Judges, being agreeable to the Judgments and Reſolutions of former times, ſhould be made known to all his Subjects, as well to vindicate the legal proceedings of his Eccleſiaſtical Courts and Miniſters, from the unjuſt and ſcandalous imputation of Invading or Intrenching on his Royal Prerogative, as to ſettle the minds, and ſtop the mouths of all unquiet Spirits, that for the future they preſume not to cenſure his Eccleſiaſtical Courts or Miniſters in theſe their juſt and warranted proceedings. And hereof his Majeſty admoniſheth all his Subjects to take warning, as they will anſwer the contrary at their perils.

The Kings Pleaſure Declared, to confirm to his Subjects their Defective Titles, Eſtates, and Poſſeſſions (as well by colour of former Grants, as without any Grant from the Crown) by his Commiſſion lately renewed and granted to that purpoſe.

WHereas the Kings moſt excellent Majeſty, in his gracious favour towards his loving Subjects, did not onely renew his Commiſſion of Grace, but alſo by his Proclamation given at Whitehall, dated the ſixth day of December, in the fourth Year of his Reign, did Declare, That in his gracious intention towards his ſaid Subjects, that he had authorized the Lords, and others of his Privy Counſel, and others of his Judges, and Counſel learned, by his ſaid Commiſſion to Sell, Grant, and Confirm to ſuch of his Subjects whom it might concern, their Defective Titles, Eſtates, and Poſſeſſions in ſuch Mannors and Lands which they did enjoy, not onely under colour of ſome defective, void, or inſufficient Grants, or by Letters Pattents of Concealments; but alſo for thoſe Mannors and Lands which they did poſſeſs meerly by Intruſion and Uſurpation, without any colour of Right and Title, they never having had any Grants thereof at all, either from his Majeſty, or any of his Predeceſſors; and yet their ſaid Eſtates and Poſſeſſions are not ſetled by the Act of Parliament made in the One and twentieth Year of the Reign of his Dear and Royal Father King James of bleſſed Memory, lately deceaſed, ſed, intituled, An Act for the General Quiet of the Subjects, againſt all Pretences of Concealments; conceiving that his ſaid Subjects would have been as forward to have embraced his ſaid intended Grace towards them, for their own good and relief, as he was graciouſly pleaſed to offer it them. But his Majeſty finding the contrary, and the ſame wholly to be neglected, might now in Juſtice and Reaſon reduce to the Crown, all ſuch other Mannors and Lands whereto his Highneſs hath Right and Title, and which were not ſetled by the ſaid Act to the increaſe of his Revenue.

But his Majeſty not being willing to conſtrue this in the worſt ſenſe, and having nothing more in his Princely deſire, than the general Good of his Subjects, preferring their Peace and Quiet before his own Benefit, hath once more, not onely renewed, but alſo for the greater relief of his ſaid Subjects, enlarged his ſaid Commiſſion of Grace to ſundry his ſaid Lords, and others of his Privy Council, Judges, and Counſel Learned, giving them the like Authority to compound with ſuch of his loving Subjects whom it may concern, and ſhall ſeek Compoſition at their hands, for any of the Mannors, Lands, Tenements, and other the Hereditaments of the ſeveral natures and qualities contained and expreſſed in the Schedule, which his Majeſty hath cauſed hereunto to be annexed; whereby each one whom it concerneth, may take knowledge, for what and how he may be relieved by the ſaid Commiſſion, if in time, and by a due courſe he ſhall ſeek the ſame.

But his Majeſty doth further declare his Royal Pleaſure by this publick Declaration to be, That if thoſe whom it may concern, ſhall not by, or before the Feaſt of All-Saints next, attend his Majeſties Commiſſioners, for ſuch moderate and reaſonable Compoſitions as ſhall be found fit and equal for them, for or concerning any of the ſaid Premiſſes ſo by them intruded upon, and unjuſtly detained from his Majeſty, that his Majeſty will not in prejudice of his juſt Title and Revenue, defer his own Benefit any longer, but either take a legal Courſe for the reducing of ſuch of the ſaid Mannors and Lands, and other the Premiſſes (of ſuch perſon and perſons as ſhall any longer neglect this his gracious Offer) to the increaſe of his Revenue, or otherwiſe grant the ſame over unto ſuch others as ſhall be Suitors to him for the ſame.

And his Majeſty the better to be informed who embraceth this his Royal Grace, and who neglecteth the ſame, hath appointed and commanded Robert Tipper of Grays-Inn his Majeſties Servant, to attend his Majeſties Commiſſioners, as in former times he hath done, who is to acquaint his Majeſties ſaid Commiſſioners with the ſtate of the ſeveral Caſes of thoſe that ſhall ſeek a Compoſition as aforeſaid, and who do accept this his Majeſties Grace, and who not, whereupon ſuch further proceeding may be had, according to their ſaid ſeveral neglects, as his Majeſty in his Wiſdom ſhall think fitteſt.

Given at Whitehall the Seven and twentieth day of May, in the ſixth Year of the Reign of King Charles, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland.

A Proclamation for Adjournment of part of TRINITY TERM.

The Kings moſt Excellent Majeſty finding that the Infection of the Plague is at this preſent ſcattered and diſperſed in the City of London, and Suburbs, and ſome Pariſhes adjoining to the ſame; and weighing the danger and inconveniencies which may fall out, by the reſort of his Subjects from all parts of the Kingdom to his Cities of London and Weſtminſter, for their neceſſary Cauſes and Suits, the next Term: and being providently careful to prevent all Occaſions that may tend to the increaſing or diſperſing of the Plague; hath thought good (by the advice of his Privy Council) to publiſh his Royal Pleaſure, to adjourn ſome part of Trinity Term next; that is to ſay, in, and from the ſecond Return thereof, called Octabis Trinitatis, until Tres Trinitatis, being the laſt Return of the ſame. And that to be for ſuch Cauſes onely, and for ſuch intent and purpoſe, as hereafter is expreſſed.

And therefore his Majeſty doth hereby Signifie and Declare his Will and Pleaſure is, That Writs of Adjournment ſhall be directed to the Juſtices of either Bench, and to the Judges of all other his Majeſties Courts, to whom like Writs have been uſually directed, giving them power to adjourn the next Trinity Term, in, and from Octabis Trinitatis next, until Tres Trinitatis then next following; and the ſaid Adjournment to be made the firſt day of the ſaid Octabis Trinitatis, called the day of the Eſſoigns; and his Majeſty conſidering in his Princely Wiſdom the prejudice that may grow to many of his Subjects in their Cauſes and Suits if that Term ſhould be wholly Adjourned, hath therefore by the Advice of his ſaid Council determined, to have ſome part thereof to be holden and continued for ſome few days in the beginning and ending of the ſame, as is before Declared; wherein, nevertheleſs, his Majeſties intention is, that the ſame days ſhall be uſed onely for the better expediting and continuing Cauſes and Suits, and Returning and Suing out of Proceſs, and for ſuch other like things as may be performed and done in the abſence of the Parties by their Attornies; And therefore his Majeſty doth hereby Declare his Will and Pleaſure to be, That in the ſaid Term there ſhall be no Trials by Juries, or any Judgments upon Demurs, or ſpecial Verdicts, or ſuch like in any of his Courts of Kings Bench, Common Pleas, or Exchequer; And alſo, that there ſhall be no Judicial hearing, or Determining of any Cauſes or Matters, in any of his Courts of Star-Chamber, Chancery, Exchequer-Chamber, Court of Wards, Dutchy-Chamber, or Court of Requeſts, during the ſaid Term: And that no Party ſhall need to be preſent in perſon for any ſuch Cauſes or Suits, but the ſame may be attended and done by their Attornies. And his Majeſty doth hereby further Notifie and Declare, That no Party ſhall be compelled or need to appear in perſon in any of his Majeſties ſaid Courts at any time during the ſaid Term, but may make their Appearance by their Attornies ſaving onely in Caſes of Out-Lawry, and other the Caſes mentioned in the Proviſo hereafter following: And alſo that no Juries, or any whom the ſame may concern, ſhall be compelled, or need to appear in any of his Highneſſes Courts at Weſtminſter, at any time during the ſaid Term, for any Cauſe or matter whatſoever, unleſs it be for ſome ſpecial and important Cauſe for his Majeſties Service only: Provided nevertheleſs, and his Majeſties Pleaſure and Commandment is, that all Collectors, Receivers, Sheriffs and other Accomptants, and all other perſons that ſhould or ought to account, or pay any Sum or Sums of money in any of his Majeſties Court of Exchequer, Court of Wards and Liveries, or of his Dutchy of Lancaſter, or in any one of them, or enter into any Account in any of the ſaid Courts ſhall repair to the accuſtomed places at Weſtminſter, and there to pay, aud do in every behalf, as though no ſuch Proclamation or Adjournment had been had or made.

And his Majeſties further Pleaſure and Commandment is, That all Sheriffs ſhall Return into his Majeſties Court of Exchequer, Court of Wards and Liveries, and Dutchy of Lancaſter, all manner of Writs and Proceſs iſſued out of the ſame Courts, and Returnable in Trinity Term next, which in any ſort concern his Majeſties Revenues, Debts, or Duties, at or before the days of Returns thereof into ſuch Offices from whence the ſaid Writs and Proceſs did iſſue: And that all Commiſſioners likewiſe Return all manner of Commiſſions and Inquiſitions Returnable the ſame Trinity Term, and from the ſaid Court ſent, whereby his Majeſty is to receive Profit and Commodity.

And all Sheriffs, Collectors, and all manner of Accomptants, and every perſon that is to pay any kind of Debt or Duty unto the Kings Majeſty, in any of the ſaid Courts, do either by themſelves, their Deputies, or Attornies, pay the ſame in ſuch ſort as they ought to have done, if no ſuch Proclamation or Adjournment had been made, or elſe to ſuſtain ſuch Damage of Iſſues, Seiſure, Fine, Amerceament, and Penalty to be impoſed upon them, as hath been accuſtomed, without any hope to be diſcharged thereof. And that all Sheriffs by themſelves, or their ſufficient Deputies, ſhall give their attendance at the day appointed for their Oppoſal in the Court of Exchequer, to anſwer their Returns before his ſaid Barons, as hath been heretofore accuſtomed: and if any default ſhall be made by any of the perſons aforeſaid, that then (in reſpect of the Kings preſent neceſſary and extraordinary charges) Serjeants at Arms and Purſevants ſhall be ſent to bring them up to anſwer their Contempt and ſlackneſs in payment.

And his Majeſties further pleaſure is, and he doth expreſly Require and Command, That all and every perſon and perſons, who by any of his Majeſties former Proclamations have been required to depart from the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, Suburbs and Liberties thereof, and places adjoining, and to reſide in the Country, do conform themſelves accordingly, and that they preſume not to remain here, after the end of this preſent Eaſter Term, under pretence of Law-Suits, or otherwiſe. And becauſe his Majeſty hopeth, that by the ſending away of thoſe multitudes of perſons inhabiting in the Country, there may be a better opportunity for the Magiſtrates in and near the City of London to Govern the ſaid City and the parts adjacent, in ſuch ſort as that the Sick and Infected may be ſevered and kept from the Whole; whereby, and by the Bleſſing of God, the further ſpreading of the Infection may be ſtaid.

Therefore his Majeſty doth eſpecially Charge and Require, as well the Lord Maior and Aldermen of the City of London, as the Juſtices of Peace, and all other Officers and Miniſters within Weſtminſter, Middleſex, Surry, and Kent, to take ſpecial care, that as well the Orders lately publiſhed by his Majeſties direction, as ſuch other as ſhall be found neceſſary for preventing the ſpreading of the Infection, be from time to time ſtrictly put in execution: And alſo that all other Juſtices of Peace in all other Counties, Maiors, Bailiffs, and Chief Officers of Cities and Towns Corporate, and other places within their ſeveral Juriſdictions, be careful to do the like, as there ſhall be occaſion, as they tender his Majeſties Royal Commands, and the Common Safety of his Kingdoms and People in theſe times of Danger.

Given at our Honour of Hampton-Court the Seven and twentieth day of May, in the Twelfth Year of our Reign of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland.

The Intentions of the Army of the Kingdom of Scotland, Declared to their Brethren of England, by the Commiſsioners of the late Parliament, and by the General, Noblemen, Barons, and other Officers of the Army.

THe beſt Endeavours and greateſt Works wherein the good Hand and Providence of God have been moſt evident and ſenſible, and the hearts and intentions of Men, called to be the Inſtruments, moſt pious and ſincere, Though they found approbation with the Wiſer Sort, and ſuch as are given to Obſervation, yet they have ever been ſubject to be miſconſtrued by blind Suſpicion, to be reproved by Cavelling Cenſure, which maketh place for it ſelf to enter, where it findeth none, and to be condemned of the Ignorant, but moſt of all of the Malicious, who cannot be pleaſed, even when God is beſt pleaſed; and when men ſeek to approve themſelves to every ones Conſcience, but in their hearts wiſh rather that the Temple ſhould not be Built, Religion never Reformed, and they themſelves, Iſſachar like, couch between the two Burthens, than that they ſhould be in their Worldly Projects or Poſſeſſions oppoſed or troubled. The deliverance of the People of God of Old from the Ægyptian Servitude, the Redemption of the Church by the Son of God, and the Planting of Chriſtian Religion by his Servants, and the Vindication of Religion from Romiſh Superſtition and Tyranny, which are the greateſt and moſt wonderful works of God, have been moſt bitterly calumniated, and ſpitefully ſpurned againſt by the Wicked.

The Nature and Quality of this good work wherein the Lord hath honoured us to be Actors, and the experience which we have found of continual oppoſition ſince the beginning, may teach us, if we be not as the Horſe and Mule which have no Underſtanding, that we are to expect the gain-ſaying of Sinners, and that nothing can be hatched in Hell by Satan, or prompted by his Suppoſts on Earth, which will not be produced to make us, and the Cauſe of God which we maintain, odious to all men, but moſt of all to our Neighbors and deareſt Brethren. When we ſhall now enter into England it will be laid to our charge that we mind nothing but Invaſion, and that no leſs hath been intended by us from the beginning, than under the pretext of ſeeking our Religion and Liberties to enrich our ſelves with their Poſſeſſions and Goods: But our peaceable carriage many years paſt before the time of thoſe late Troubles, our Informations, Declarations and Remonſtrances publiſhed to the World, wherein we have Curſed all National Invaſion, and our willingneſs when we were in Arms, to lay them down, upon the ſmall hopes of injoying our Religion and Liberties; and our forbearing now, by way of Repriſal, to ſatisfie our ſelves upon the Ships and Goods of our Dear Brethren of England, for thoſe Ships and Goods of ours that have been taken by the Kings Ships, which poſſibly we might have been able to do, had not Juſtice forbidden us to take from them, whom we are aſſured, neither wiſh us harm, nor have done us wrong, will be conceived by the Wiſe and well affected to be more plain and ſure evidences of our meaning, than all that Malice can deviſe, or Calumny can expreſs againſt us.

Neither have any new Emergents altered, but rather confirmed our former Reſolutions: for although both before and ſince the late Pacification we have been highly injured by ſome Papiſts and Prelats, and their Adherents there, who have been, and are ſtill ſeeking no leſs, than that we ſhould no more be a Church or Nation; and therefore themſelves cannot think but we muſt accompt of them as Gods Enemies and ours: Yet above all the favours we have received from the Good People and Body of the Kingdom of England, One there is which hath highly honoured them before the World, and endeared them unto us more than before, which ſhall never be forgotten by us, and we hope ſhall be thankfully remembred by our Children, and Childrens Children aſter us, to all Generations; that when upon miſinformation the Council of England had concluded to raiſe Force againſt us, when the Parliament of Ireland had offered their Perſons and Eſtates for ſupply againſt us; when all Plots and Policies were ſet on work, and Publick Declarations by Authority were made, and the Parliament called for this very end, when we had been traduced, and Proclaimed as Traitors and Rebels at every Pariſh Church, yet ſo wiſe, ſo grave, ſo juſt was that High Court of Parliament (to their everlaſting honour be it remembred) that no threatnings nor fears, no promiſes nor hopes, no fineneſs nor cunningly deviſed ſuggeſtion could move them to decern a War, or grant any Subſidy for a War againſt us, but rather by their Speeches, Complaints and Grievances parallel to ours, did juſtifie the Cauſe (ſo much as in them was) which we defend. This rich and recent favour doth ſo bind our hearts, that were our Power never ſo great, we ſhould judge our ſelves the unworthieſt of all men, and could look for no leſs than Vengeance from the righteous GOD, if we ſhould move hand or foot againſt that Nation ſo comfortably to us repreſented in that Honourable Meeting. In this our thankful acknowledgment, we deſire that the City of London may have their own large ſhare, as they well deſerve by the noble profeſſion they have given of their conſtant affection to Religion, and the Peace of both Kingdoms, notwithſtanding the continual aſſaults of the miſleaders of the King againſt them, always rendring them ſeditious in his ears. And if this which doth ſo convince us ſhall not be thought ſufficient to ſatisfie all the good People of England: We now before God and the World make offer in general, and we make offer to ſo many of them as ſhall require it in particular, of the ſtrongeſt and moſt inviolable bond of our ſolemn Oath and Religious atteſtation of the Great Name of GOD, who is our fear and dread, and from whom we hope for a bleſſing upon our Expedition, that we intend no Enmity or Rapine, and ſhall take no mans goods, nor engage our ſelves in bloud by fighting, unleſs we be forced unto it, which we may look for from the Papiſts and Prelates: But if any ſuch thing ſhall come from godly men, or good Patriots, who love the truth of Religion, or the Kings Honour, and their own Liberty, both the rule of Charity (which entertaineth no ſuſpicion where there is no evil deſerving) and the ſoul of Wiſdom (which teacheth that both Nations muſt now ſtand or fall together) do forbid us to apprehend. All the deſign of both Kingdoms is for the truth of Religion, and for the juſt Liberty of the Subject, and all the devices and doings of the Enemy are for the oppreſſing of both; that our Religion may be turned into Superſtition and Atheiſm, and our Liberty into baſe Servitude and bondage. To bring this to paſs they have certainly conceived, that the blocking up of this Kingdom by Sea and Land would prove a powerful and infallible means: For, for either within a very ſhort time ſhall we through want of Trade, and ſpoyling of our goods be brought to ſuch extreme Poverty and Confuſion, that we ſhall miſerably deſire the Conditions which we now deſpiſe, and decline, and be forced to imbrace their will for a Law, both in Church and Policy, which will be a Precedent for the like miſery in England, who timouſly foreſeeing it may be taught by their and our danger to be more wiſe; or upon the other part, we ſhall by this Invaſion be conſtrained furiouſly and without order to break into England, which we believe is the moſt earneſt deſire of our common Enemies, becauſe a more ſpeedy execution of their deſign: For we doubt not but upon our coming Clamours will be raiſed, Poſts ſent, and Proclamations made, through the Kingdom. to ſlander our pious and juſt intentions (as if this had been our meaning from the beginning) to ſtir up all the Engliſh againſt us, that once being entred in Bloud, they may with their own Swords extirpate their own Religion, lay a preſent foundation with their own hands for building of Rome in the midſt of them, and be made the Actors of their own and our ſlavery to continue for ever. But in this admirable opportunity of vindicating of true Religion and juſt liberty, if Divine Providence be looked upon with a reverent eye, and men fearing God, and loving the Kings Honour, and Peace of both Kingdoms, ſhall walk worthy of their Profeſſion, although the Enemies have obtained ſo much of their deſires, as by cords of their own twiſting, to draw us into England, yet may their main deſign be diſappointed, the Rope which they have made brought upon their own necks, and their wiſdom turned to fooliſhneſs, which we have reaſon to hope for from that Supreme Wiſdom and Power which hath in all the proceedings of this work turned their devices upon their own pates that plotted them.

In our Informations, Remonſtrances, and the true Repreſentation of our proceedings ſince the laſt Pacification, we have ſo far expreſſed the wrongs which we have ſuſtained, and the diſtreſſes which we ſuffer, as may make manifeſt our preſſing neceſſity to take ſome other courſe for our preſent relief, than ſuch Petitions, Supplications, and Commiſſions, as we have uſed before with leſs ſucceſs than could be expected of a Kingdom from their native King. Before we ſtirred ſo much as with a Petition, we endured for many years, not only the continual oppoſition of the truth, and power of Religion by Prelates and Papiſts, but alſo the violation of all our Liberties, and almoſt the total ſubverſion of our Religion, which was our comfort in the ſight of God, and the glory of this Nation in the ſight of other Churches, who by the teſtimony of their Divines made our Reformation the meaſure of their Wiſhes, and would have redeemed it with their greateſt worldly loſſes, when groſs Popery was notoriouſly obtruded upon us in the Book of Canons and Common Prayer, without conſent or knowledge of the Churches; and the Plot of the Prelates and Papiſts wholly diſcovered how to ſettle it in both Nations: We added to our former ſufferings no other Arms but Prayers and tears unto God; and Petitions to our King, which were utterly rejected; the Books and corruptions againſt which we petitioned highly exalted, and by the inſolent advice of thoſe who govern now his Councils, labour to eſtabliſh their own ill acquired greatneſs upon our oppreſſion, and the ruins of our Religion and Liberties. We were forbidden to inſiſt, under the pain of High Treaſon, when we found our ſelves thus oppoſed and born down; ſtill inſiſting in our humble deſires we ſolemnly renewed our ſolemn and National Oath and Covenant for preſerving of our Religion and Liberties, and of his Majeſties Authority, knowing the violation of that Oath to be the guiltineſs which had procured our woes, and that our Repentance and turning to God were the means by his bleſſing for a good ſucceſs: When contrary to our deſerving and expectation his Majeſty was moved by wicked Counſel to march toward us with an Army, we chooſed rather to neglect ſuch courſes as might ſerve for our humane ſafety, than to fall in ſeeming diſobedience to our King, or to give the ſmalleſt diſtaſte to our Brethren in England, and therefore diſbanded our Forces, delivered all Holds which were craved, in teſtimony of our obedience, and ſo far complied with his Majeſties pleaſure, that notwithſtanding the determination of our lawful former Aſſembly, called by his Majeſty, we were contented that a new free Aſſembly and Parliament ſhould be appointed, where all things both concerning our Religion and Liberties might again be conſidered and eſtabliſhed. When matters Eccleſiaſtical were determined in the Aſſembly according to the Conſtitutions of the Church, in the preſence, and with the conſent of his Majeſties Commiſſioner; and the Parliament was convened for perfecting the work, although we walked therein ſo warily that no juſt provocation was given to his Majeſty, yet contrary to the Laws and Cuſtoms of this Kingdom, the Parliament ſo certainly promiſed, when his Majeſty was free of thoſe bad Counſellours, was (being egain in their power) by their advice prorogued, which to ſhew our invincible obedience we were centent to ſuffer, and did ſend up our Commiſſioners to London to render the reaſons of our Demands. When our Commiſſioners and Petitions of the Parliament, called by his Majeſty, were ſo far rejected, that they were never ſeen or heard. We ſend up our Commiſſioners again with our Propoſitions, which contained nothing but what was neceſſary for the peace and Good of the Kingdom, and was granted to us before under his Majeſties hand, yet could they find no anſwer at all, which will be wondred at, and hardly believed by ſo many as are ſtrangers at Court, and know not the Biſhop of Canterbury, and the Lieutenant of Ireland, with the aſſiſtance of the too too powerful Faction of the Hiſpanioliz'd Papiſts labour to ſhew their zeal for his Majeſties greatneſs, by oppreſſing the juſt Liberties of the free Subjects, and the Reformed Religion in all the three Kingdoms: But in place of the gracious Anſwer which we expected, our Commiſſioners were reſtrained, and one of the Noble men impriſoned; Garriſons of Strangers ſet over our heads, in an inſolent and Barbarous way exerciſing their cruelty, even againſt Women and Children; our Ships and Goods taken and ſunk, and the Owners ſtript naked, and more inhumanely uſed at the Commandment of abuſed Authority, by the Subjects of our own King, than by Turks and Infidels, and great Armies prepared againſt us, with a terrible Commiſſion to ſubdue and deſtroy our ſelves, our Religion, Liberties, Laws and all. In this extremity for us to ſend new Commiſſioners and Petitions were againſt ſenſe and experience, thoſe that Govern the Kings Counſels being far from any inclination or intention to ſatisfie the juſt deſires and grievances of the Subjects, as they have made manifeſt by breaking up of the Parliament in both Kingdoms, (though we know them to be often countervoted by many of that Honourable Board, more candid and peaceably minded.) To ſit ſtill in ſenſeleſneſs and ſecurity, waiting for our own deſtruction at the diſcretion of our mercileſs enemies (which were it not at this time with the Cauſe of God would move us the leſs) is not only againſt Religion, but Nature, teaching and commanding us to ſtudy our own preſervation. To endure continual threatnings, and ſo great hoſtility and invaſion from year to year, which is the profeſſed policy of our enemies is impoſſible, and when we have examined our own ſtrength, more than we are able to bear. We have therefore, after much agitation and debating with and amongſt our ſelves, reſolved to have our proceedings, which have been canvaſed by ſo many, and are brought to ſome point of determination in our own Parliament, to be better known to the Kings Majeſty, and the world, and eſpecially to the Kingdom of England, that againſt all falſe and artificial relations,they being nakedly ſeen to be what they are, we may obtain a better grounded and more durable peace for the injoying of our own Religion,and Laws; and as we deſire the unworthy Authors of our Troubles, who have come out from our ſelves to be tried at home, and juſtice to be done upon them according to our own Laws, ſo ſhall we preſs no further proceſs againſt Canterbury, the Lieutenant of Ireland, and the reſt of thoſe pernicious Counſellours in England, the Authors of all the miſeries of both Kingdoms, than what their own Parliament ſhall diſcern to be their juſt deſerving. When we look upon this work of Reformation from the beginning, and perceive the impreſſions of the Providence of God in it, we are forced in the midſt of all our difficulties and diſtreſſes to bleſs God for his Fatherly care and free love to his Church and Kingdom, and to take courage and ſpirit to proceed in patience and perſeverance whither he ſhall go before us, and lead us on. When the Prelates were grown by their Rents and Lordly Dignities, by their power over all ſorts of his Majeſties Subjects, Miniſters and others, by their places in Parliament, Council, Colledge of Juſtice, Exchequer, and High Commiſſion, to an abſolute Dominion and Greatneſs, and ſetting the one foot upon the Church, and the other upon the State, were become miſerably Inſolent; even then did the work begin, and this was the Lords opportunity. The beginnings were ſmall, and promiſed no great thing, but have been ſo ſeconded and continually followed by Divine Providence, preſſing us from ſtep to ſtep, that the neceſſity was invincible, and could not be reſiſted. It cannot be expreſſed what motions filled the heart, what tears were poured forth from the eyes, and what cries came from the mouths of many thouſands in this Land at that time, from the ſenſe of the love and power of God, raiſing them as from the dead, and giving them hopes after ſo great a deluge and vaſtation to ſee a new world, wherein Religion and Righteouſneſs ſhould dwell. When we were many times at a pauſe, and knew not well what to do, the fears, the furies, the peeviſhneſs, and the plots of our dementat Adverſaries opened a way unto us, and taught us how to proceed; and what they deviſed to ruine us, ſerved moſt againſt themſelves, and for raiſing and promoting the work. O Providence to be adored! Although neither Counſel nor Seſſion, nor any other Judicature hath been all this time ſitting, and there have been meetings of many thouſands at ſome times, yet have they been kept without tumult or trouble, and without exceſs or riot, in better order and greater quietneſs, than in the moſt peaceable times have been found in this Land. When we were content at the pacification to lay down Arms, and with great loſs to live at home in peace, our wicked Enemies have been like the troubled Sea when it cannot reſt, whoſe waters caſt up mire and dirt, and will have us to do that which it ſeems the Lord hath decreed againſt them. The purity of our intentions far from baſe and earthly reſpects, the bent and inclination of our hearts in the midſt of many dangers, the fitting of inſtruments, not only with a deſire and diſpoſition, but with ſpirit and abilities to overcome oppoſition, and the conſtant peace of heart accompanying us in our ways, which beareth us out againſt all accuſations and aſperſions, are to us ſtrong grounds of aſſurance that God hath accepted our work, and will not leave us: We know the Lord may uſe even wicked men in his ſervice, and may fill their Sails with a fair gale of abilities, and carry them on with a ſtrong hand, which ſhould make us to ſearch our hearts more narrowly. But as this ought not to diſcourage his own faithful Servants, who out of love to his Name intend his honour, walk in his ways, find his peace comforting them, his Providence directing them, and his preſence bleſſing them in their Affairs. So can it not be any any juſt ground of quarrelling againſt the work of God. Yet all theſe our incouragements which have upholden our hearts in the midſt of many troubles, could not make our entry into England warrantable, if our peace (which we earneſtly ſeek and follow after) could be found at home or elſewhere. Where it is to be found we muſt ſeek after it, and no ſooner ſhall we find it clearly ſecured to us, but by laying down our Arms, and by the evidences of our peaceable diſpoſition, we ſhall make it manifeſt to the world, and eſpecially to the Kingdom of England, that we are ſeeking nothing elſe but peace, and that our taking up of Arms was not for Invaſion, but for Defence. No man needeth to plead by poſitive Law for neceſſity. It is written in every mans heart by nature, and in all actions we find men have received it by practice, that Neceſſity is a Sovereignty. A Law above all Law is ſubject to no Law, and therefore is ſaid to have no Law. Where Neceſſity commandeth, the Laws of Nature and Nations give their conſent, and all poſitive Laws are ſilent and give place. This Law hath place, ſometimes to excuſe, ſometimes to extenuate, and ſometimes to juſtifie and warrant actions otherwiſe queſtionable: And no greater neceſſity can be than the preſervation of Religion, which is the Soul; of the Country, which is the Body; of our Lives, who are the Members; and of the honour of our King, who is the Head. All theſe at this time are in a common hazard, and to preſerve and ſecure all, we know no other way under the Sun. (And if any be ſo wiſe as to know it, we deſire to hear it, and ſhall be ready to follow it) but to take order with our common Enemies where they may be found, and to ſeek our aſſurance where it may be given. The Queſtion is not, Whether we ſhall content our ſelves with our own poverty, or enrich our ſelves in England? That Queſtion is impious and abſurd. Neither is the Queſtion, Whether we ſhall defend our ſelves at home, or invade our Neighbours and deareſt Brethren? This alſo were unchriſtian and unreaſonable. But this is the Queſtion, Whether it be Wiſdom and Piety to keep our ſelves within the Borders till our Throats be cut, and our Religion, Laws, and Country deſtroyed? Or, ſhall we beſtir our ſelves, and ſeek our ſafeguard, peace, and liberty in England; whether we ſhall do or die, whether we ſhall go and live, or abide and periſh? Or more largely to expreſs all, Whether we who are not a few private perſons, but a whole Kingdom, ſhall lie under the burden of ſo many accuſations, as ſcarcely in the worſt times have been charged againſt Chriſtians, receive the Service Book, and the whole body of Popery, embrace the Prelates and their abjured Hierarchy, renounce our ſolemn Oath and Covenant, ſo many times ſworn by us, loſe all our labour and pains in this Cauſe, and forget our former ſlavery and wonted deſires of redemption at the deareſt rate; tickle the minds of our enemies with joy, and ſtrengthen their hands with violence, and fill the hearts of our Friends with ſorrow, and their faces with ſhame becauſe of us; deſert and diſhonour the Son of God, whoſe Cauſe we have undertaken, whoſe Banner we have diſplayed, and whoſe truth and power hath been this time paſt more comfortable to us, than all the peace and proſperity of the world could have rendered, and draw upon our ſelves all the Judgments which God hath executed upon Apoſtates ſince the beginning, and ſhall we fold our hands, and wait for the perfect ſlavery of our ſelves and our Poſterity, in our Souls, Bodies, and Eſtates, and (which is all one) fooliſhly to ſtand to our defence where we know it is impoſſible? Or ſhall we ſeek our relief in following the Calling of God (for our neceſſity can be interpreted no leſs) and entring by the door which his Providence hath opened unto us, when all ways are ſtopped beſide. Our Enemies at firſt did ſhroud themſelves ſo far under the Kings Authority, that they behooved to ſtand or fall together, and that to Cenſure them was Treaſon againſt the King. Now we have ſhewn that a Kings Crown is not tied to a Prelates Mitre, and that the one may be caſt unto the ground, and the other have a greater luſtre and glory than before. Now they take themſelves to another ſtarting hole, and would have men to think that to come into England againſt them is to come againſt England, and to purſue them, although Legally, is to invade the Kingdom where they live; as if the cutting away of an Excreſcence, or the curing of an Impoſtume were the killing of the Body. Let them ſecure themſelves under the ſhelter of their own Phantaſies, but we are not ſo undiſcerning, as like mad men to run furiouſly upon ſuch as we firſt meet with and come in our way: For although it cannot be denied but the wrongs done to us, as the breaking of the late Peace, crying us down as Rebels and Traytors, the taking of our Ships and Goods, the Impriſoning of our Commiſſioners; the Acts of Hoſtility done by the Engliſh in our Caſtles: Had they been done by the State or Kingdom of England, there might have been juſt cauſes of a National quarrelling, yet ſeeing the Kingdom of England convened in Parliament have refuſed to contribute any Supply againſt us, have ſhewn themſelves to be preſt with grievances like unto ours, and have earneſtly pleaded for redreſs and remedy, and a Declaration made that his Majeſty out of Parliament will redreſs them, which might be a cure for the grievances of particular Subjects: But National grievances require the hand of the Parliament for their cure; for preventing whereof the Parliament was broken up and diſſolved. Neither do we quarrel with the Kingdom for the Injuries which we ſuſtain, but our quarrel is only with particular men, the Enemies of both Nations: Nor can they quarrel with us, for taking order with the prevalent Faction of Papiſts and Prelates, the Authors of ſo many woes to both Nations.

Let all who love Religion and their Liberty joyn againſt the common Enemies, and let them be accurſed that ſhall not ſeek the preſervation of their neighbour Nation, both in Religion and Laws, as their own; as knowing that the ruine of one will prove the ruine of both. And knowing well (as having from their own Counſels diſcovered it) that the ruine of both was intended, and that it was ever their plot and purpoſe, that if they could not engage our deareſt Brethren, and neighbour Nation in a War for our deſtruction; then to give us ſome ill aſſured peace, which might bind our hands, and hold us quiet, until the yoak of bondage were more heavily and unremovably laid upon our Brethren of England by the help of ſuch an Army as was pretended to be gathered againſt us, rooting out the Godly people, and active ſpirits of that Nation, and all thoſe who, as good Patriots, ſtand well affected to Religion, and their juſt Liberties, and might be ſuſpected would dare ſtir for the defence and maintenance of either, and thereafter eaſily find ground to break again with us, when they were once aſſured that we were like to ſtand alone: And all the benefit of our Peace ſhould be, to be laſt deſtroyed.

And as we atteſt the God of heaven, that thoſe and no other are our Intentions, ſo upon the ſame greateſt atteſtation do we declare, That for atchieving thoſe ends, we ſhall neither ſpare our pains, fortunes, nor lives, which we know cannot be more profitably and honourably ſpent. That we ſhall not take from our Friends and Brethren from a Thread even to a Shooe Latchet, but for our own moneys, and the juſt payment: That we come amongſt them as their Friends and Brethren, very ſenſible of their by-paſt-ſufferings, and preſent dangers both in Religion and Liberties, and moſt willing to do them all the good we can, like as we certainly expect that they (from the like ſenſe of our hard condition and intolerable diſtreſs which hath forced us to come from our own Country) will joyn and concur with us in the moſt juſt and Noble ways for obtaining their and our moſt juſt deſires. And when our own moneys and means are ſpent, we ſhall crave nothing but upon ſufficient ſurety of payment how ſoon poſſibly it can be made, what is neceſſary for the entertainment of our Army, which we are aſſured ſo many as love Religion and the peace of both Kingdoms will willingly offer, as that which they know we cannot want, and in their wiſe foreſight will provide the way to furniſh neceſſaries, and to receive the ſurety. This courſe being kept by both ſides, will neither harm our Brethren (for they ſhall be ſatisfied to the laſt farthing) nor our ſelves, who look for a recompenſe from the rich Providence of God, for whoſe ſake we have hazarded the loſs of all things.

The eſcapes of ſome Souldiers (if any ſhall happen) we truſt ſhall not be imputed to us, who ſhall labour by all means to prevent them more carefully, and puniſh them more ſeverely than if done to our ſelves, and in our own Country. Our profeſſed Enemies the Papiſts, Prelates, with their Adherents, and the Receivers of their Goods and Geir, we conceive will be more provident than to refuſe us neceſſary ſuſtentation, when they remember what Counſel was given by them for Declaring all our Poſſeſſions to be forfeited, and to be diſpoſed of to them as well deſerving Subjects.

We ſhall demand nothing of the Kings Majeſty but the ſettling and ſecuring of the true Religion and Liberties of this Kingdom, according to the Conſtitutions and Acts of the late Aſſemblies and Parliament, and what a juſt Prince oweth by the Laws of God and the Country to his grieved Subjects, coming before him with their humble deſires and ſupplications. Our abode in England ſhall be no longer time than in their Parliament, our juſt Grievances and Complaints may be heard and Redreſſed, ſufficient Aſſurance given for the legal trial and puniſhment of the Authors of their and our Evils; and for Reforming and injoyning their and our Religion and Liberties in peace, againſt the Machinations of Romiſh contrivance acted by their degenerate Country-men. Our returning thereafter ſhall be with expedition in a peaceable and orderly way, far from all moleſtation; and we truſt the effect ſhall be againſt Papiſts, the extirpation of Popery; againſt Prelates, the Reformation of the Church; againſt Atheiſts, the flouriſhing of the Goſpel; and againſt Traitors and Firebrands, a perfect and durable Union and Love between the two Kingdoms: which He grant who knoweth our Intentions and deſires, and is able to bring them to paſs. And if any more be required, God will reveal it, and go before both Nations, and if God go before us, who will not follow, or refuſe to put their necks to the work of the Lord?

The Battel of Lutzen, 1632. when the King of Sweden was ſlain, with Circumſtances preceding the ſame.

THe King being arrived at Naumburg upon Thurſday November the firſt, (old Style) took order to have his Army lodged in the Field, Town, and Suburbs. The ſame day the King went out upon a Party, for diſcovering of the Enemy. After him, that Afternoon, went theſe three Gentlemen of the Engliſh Nation, Lieutenant-Col. Francis Terret, or Terwhit, Sergeant-Major John Pawlet, and Captain Edward Fielding; Theſe three going alone by themſelves, to a forſaken Village, where there were two ways thorow it (the King having gone the left-hand way, and they now taking the right) fell into an Ambuſh of the Crabats: The firſt, and the laſt named of theſe three, were taken Priſoners by two Rit-maſters of the Crabats: One of them, named Potnick, a Greek Captain. Theſe two Gentlemen, being carried Priſoners into the Imperial Leaguer, were on the day of the Battel kept Priſoners in the Rear of the Enemies Army, and after the Battel haled into Prague among the fleeing Imperialiſts. They were the firſt night carried into Weiſſenſels, where Walenſtein then lay in the Caſtle of it. He ſent the Count of Pappenheim to them, the ſame Evening; to enquire of the King of Swedens Strength, Lodging, and Intentions. The moſt of the Imperial Foot lay now in, and near about this Weiſſenfels: Seven or eight hundred of them keeping Guard upon the Market-place. The Imperialiſts then gave out themſelves to be 50000. but it appeared to be ſpoken by a figure, and to terrifie the King: For that they were not any thing near that number.

To return to the King: His Majeſty the next day (being Friday) in Perſon viſited all the Avenues and Paſſes about the Town, and went out again with great Parties of Horſe, to take ſome Priſoners, by whom to learn ſomething of the Enemies. Finding that the Imperialiſts lay ſtill; and that the Paſſes, by which he ſhould have gotten to them, were both dangerous and difficult: He returned at night again, and gave order to entrench the Army before Naumburg towards Weiſſenfels. Till the Trenches could be made, the Army lay in the Field: After which, the Foot were enquartered in the Town and Suburbs, and the Horſe in the next Villages: Some two or three thouſand being only left abroad all night to watch the Trenches.

Upon Sunday, November 4. came there a Saxon Boor to Naumburgh unto the King, with a Letter in his hand, to ſhew. The Letter was written by the Count Coloredo, Sergeant Major-General of the Imperial Army, unto an Officer of his, that lay with his Regiment at Querfurdt, on the Weſtern ſide of the River Sala, right againſt Hall, and ten Engliſh miles from it. Coloredo had enforced this Boor to carry this Letter; And the Contents of it were to this purpoſe: That the Generaliſſimo had ſent the Count of Pappenheim to take the Hall-Caſtle: That his men of Querfurdt ſhould march up to joyn with Pappenheim: And that the next Morning the Imperial Army was to part from Weiſſenfels. This Letter ſeems to have been written upon the Saturday night: According to which date, it agrees rightly with Walenſteins diſcamping from about Weiſſenfels; which was indeed done upon the Sunday; after that Pappenheim was diſpatched towards Hall-Caſtle.

Upon this Intelligence, his Majeſty the ſame day, Duke Bernard, and Serjeant-Major Kniphauſen, being at a Council of War, the King propounded the great queſtion unto them two; Whether that in Pappenheims abſence, (he being gone to take in Hall-Caſtle) the Duke of Fridland alone were to be ſet upon? Duke Bernard was for the valiant Affirmative: That the advantage was good; and that ſeeing they knew not how how long they ſhould enjoy the opportunity of this diviſion; Walenſtein was preſently to be attacked. But Major Kniphauſen was for the ſober Negative; and that the Enemy was not to be fought withal: His reaſons were two:

Firſt, No man is to fight, but when he is apparently ſtronger than his Enemy, which the King at this time was not.

Secondly, No man is to attack a ſtronger Enemy, unleſs compelled by a preſſing and unavoidable neceſſity: That is, either to force his paſſage when he is hemmed in; or when hunger and want of Victuals conſtrain him to it. Neither of which being the Kings caſe, there was no reaſon for preſent fighting.

Theſe Reaſons ſo far prevailed with the King, that giving over all thoughts of preſent fighting, he was reſolved to have left a Garriſon in Naumburg, and to have marcht with his whole Army to conjoyn with the Dukes of Saxony and of Lunenburg, who deſigned to joyn their Forces to the Kings Army, being eight thouſand Horſe and Foot.

The King being thus reſolved, ſends Poſt unto the Elector of Saxony, to inform him of his purpoſes, and to lay the Plot for their uniting. The King deſired him to come to Eilenburg, upon the Weſt of the River Mulde, 14 miles Weſt of Torgau, where the Duke then lay with an Army of 4000 Foot, and as many Horſe: whereof 2000 Foot and 1500 Horſe were the Duke of Lunenburgs.

Walenſtein the ſame Sunday, drew out from Weiſſenfels, leaving a Captain onely with his Hundred Men, for the keeping of the Caſtle. Thence marched Walenſtein unto Lutzen, two Dutch Leagues to the Eaſt of it: where, and in the Dorps round about it, his whole Army enquartered.

The next day being Monday Novemb. 5. the King according to his former Reſolution, parted out of Naumburgh, to go towards the Duke of Saxony, leaving the Town and Garriſon under the Command of the Saxon Colonel Vitzdum. For the more lightneſs and expedition in his March, he commanded his Baggage to ſtay with the Garriſon ſtill in Naumburgh, for a day or two; being he thought but onely to have gone and joined with the Elector of Saxony, and then to have returned again to Naumburgh. He ſuppoſing withal, that Pappenheim being now abſent, and Walenſteins men not together, that he ſhould not be diſturbed in his March. About Four, before day-light (the Drums having beaten ever ſince One of the Clock) on the Monday morning he advances towards Pegau. The King having notice of Walenſteins forſaking Weiſſenfels, ſends by the way, to take in that Caſtle. The Hundred Men that Walenſtein had left in it, did Coloredo come ſo timely to fetch off, that he had done it a very little before the Swedes coming.

In the middle of his March, about ten of the Clock the ſame Forenoon, came there ſome Gentlemen riding, and ſome Boors running to the King, with advice that the Imperialiſts were lying ſtill in ſeveral Dorps and Villages hard by, about Lutzen, without any intelligence at all of the Kings being in motion. This the King being informed of, calls preſently his High Officers to a Council of War, to adviſe what were beſt to be determined. His Majeſty even then, (and then firſt) put on the Reſolution for Fighting; openly ſpeaking it out, That he now verily ſuppoſed that God had given his Enemies into his hand. Ho! Brave Occaſion, ſays the Duke of Saxon—Lawenburg: Now God bleſs us (ſay divers great Officers) it is a happy opportunity. And truly ſo it was; for divers Priſoners (even then brought in by the Kings Parties, and by Boors) being by the King examined whether they had any Alarm in their Quarters, of his Marching: freely confeſſed that they had none, and ſo much was evident enough, for that they were now ſurprized in their Quarters. Thus thought all the Officers: all being reſolved to fall on preſently; and indeed there was great reaſon for it: for could the Kings Army have fallen in amongſt thoſe Villages, he had given a Camiſado to ſeveral of their Quarters at once, have cut off all ſingly, for that they could never have come together, to unite their Forces, or have ſuccoured one another. This was evident.

The Gentry and Boors that brought him the intelligence, told him Lutzen was but hard by: which the King was in good hope of, for that he was even then in ſight of it. The Army advanced ſtoutly, and doubled their March upon it: but their Legs found it a longer way than their Eyes, it being a ſad Campagnia, full eight Engliſh miles of ground to Lutzen. Beſides all this, was there a filthy Paſs in the way, at a Bridge over a River, (where but one or two men could go over abreſt) which hindred the Army full two hours going. By this hindrance, was it even night before the Army could get within two Engliſh Miles of Lutzen.

This ill-favoured Paſs was within two Engliſh Miles of Lutzen, and in the Village that belonged to it, were there two Imperial Regiments of Horſe (one of them Crabats) enquartered. Theſe having a little notice of the Kings coming, had gotten up their Horſes, and taken up a high Hill on the other ſide of the Paſs next to Lutzen; they made as though they would have diſturbed the Kings paſſage, but they did not, the Kings Foot marching fairly over, with ſome Horſe amongſt them. Some of the Kings Foot were ſtill marching over, till it was dark night or within it. Thoſe that got over firſt, entertained a ſlight Skirmiſh with the Imperial Horſemen, without any loſs to the King, killing ſome 50 or 100 of them, and taking one Crabats Enſign. And now the King taking another Hill (right againſt that which the Imperialiſts poſſeſſed) he from thence let fly ſome pieces of Ordinance amongſt them, which cauſed them to take the benefit of the night, with ſome confuſion to march off in.

And here the King being ſurprized with the darkneſs, was forced to ſit down in the open Fields with his Army, himſelf lying in his Coach, as other Officers did that had them. Here lay he all night in Battalia, every Regiment lying down in the ſame order that they had marched, with their Arms by them. The Pike-men they ſtuck up their Pikes an end by them; and every Rott (that is every ſix) of Muſquetiers bringing their Muſquets to their Rott-maſter, he ſet them right up with their mouths upward, and bound them together with a piece of Match, where they ſtood ready at hand for all occaſions.

The Imperial Army was in a terrible Hubub at the Kings coming over the Paſs; for now was the Alarm ſent in hot to all the ſeveral Dorps and Quarters, even from Lutzen unto Hall and Leipſich. Order upon pain of Death was given, for every man of the Imperial Army, with all ſpeed poſſible, to repair towards Lutzen, to their Generaliſſimo. Preſently upon this began all the Regiments to draw together, ſome of which were all night upon their Marches, and ſome Horſe that Quartered very far off, being not able to reach up till 10 of the Clock the next morning. And thus (even then) did the Miſt ſo long keep off the King next morning, till his Enemies could be made ſtrong enough for him.

As every Regiment came in, ſo were they put into order, which continued all night long, as the two Engliſh Gentlemen (then Priſoners there) obſerved. About 10 at night did Walenſtein begin to think of the places moſt advantagious for the planting of his Ordnance; ſome of which having mounted upon the Windmill-hills, he then began to caſt up a Trench of Earth about them. All night and next morning his Dragoons and Pioneers wrought with their Spades about the High-way, and to make the Ditches or Drain by it, ſerve them for a Breſt-work to lodge their Muſquetiers in. And this was their work too, all the next miſty morning, which fatal Weather gave them alſo the more reſpite to recover their fears and wearineſs, and to fortifie themſelves againſt their unconquered Enemy. And thus was the night (the laſt night to ſome thouſands) over-paſſed.

The King now over the Paſs, had put himſelf into a neceſſity of Fighting; and being thus engaged, the ſooner he fought, the better: for that his Enemy ſhould be the leſs provided for him.

Tueſday (that fatal ſixth of November) at laſt began to draw near, and alas it came all too early. A gentle Miſt, as if fore-dooming how black a day it would be, did his good will to have kept it Night ſtill; and the Sun, as if his great eye had before hand over-read the fatality of the following day, ſeemed very loth to have begun it. But the Martial King, even forcing himſelf to awaken time, and haſten on Mortality, would needs make theſe Clocks and Larums of the Wars, his fatal Drums, to beat two hours before day-light. Arm, Arm, repair to your Colours, keep your Order, ſtand to your Arms. Theſe were the morning Summons to awaken the hearty Souldiers from a cold, a hard, and earthly Lodging. The Army was eaſie to be put in order, for that the moſt part of it had lain and ſlept in Battalia. One while was the King purpoſed to have advanced and fallen on preſently: but the War being Gods Cauſe, he would, like David, and himſelf, firſt ask Council of the God of Battels, and at leaſt recommend his own Cauſe unto him. The Drums having beaten the firſt march, he cauſed Prayers to be read to himſelf by his own Chaplain D. Fabritius; and when there were Miniſters at hand, the ſame was done through every Regiment of the Army.

The Morning proved ſo miſty, that it was not poſſible to ſee which way to march, nor where to find an Enemy to ſtrike at. And this (unluckily) ſtaid the Kings thoughts from advancing preſently. This was a Fog of advantage unto Walenſtein, who purpoſing but to ſtand his ground, (which by working all night about the Ditch and High-way, his Pioneers had made more troubleſom to be aſſaulted) was now reſolved that, if he muſt fight, he would there abide the firſt ſhock; and no way to ſeek the Battel, or to move towards his Adverſary.

About Eight of the Clock the Miſt brake up, and but for one miſchance in it, promiſed as fair a day as ever was ſixth of November. As it began to clear, the King took occaſion to encourage up his Souldiers; and going to his own Subjects firſt, he to this purpoſe beſpake them.

The Kings Oration to the Sweeds.

My dear Brethren, carry your ſelves bravely this day; fight valiantly, in Gods name, for your Religion, and for your King. This if you do, Gods bleſſing, and the Peoples praiſes, ſhall be your guerdon: and you for ever ſhall even be laden with an honourable and glorious memorial: nor will I forget to reward you nobly. If you play the Pultrons, I here call God to witneſs, that not a bone of you ſhall ever return again to Sweden.

To the Germans.

To the German Troops this was the Oration. O you my Brethren, Officers, and Fellow-Souldiers of the German Nation! I here moſt earneſtly intreat and beſeech you, to make full trial of your valour this one day againſt your Enemies; fight manfully againſt them this day, both with me, and for me. Be not faint-hearted in the Battel, nor for any thing diſcouraged. Set me before your eyes, and let me be your great example.

Theſe Orations of the Kings, being from both Nations, with a horrid claſhing of their Armour, and with chearful Vows, and Acclamations, anſwered; the King as chearfully then replied: And now, my hearts, let us on bravely againſt our Enemies: And God proſper our endeavours. Sprightfully withal caſting his eyes towards Heaven, he with a loud voice ſent up this forcible Ejaculation, Jeſu, Jeſu, Jeſu, Vouchſafe thou this day, to be my ſtrong helper; and give me courage this day to fight for thy glory, and the honour of thy great names ſake.

The Kings Prayer.

His Attendance.

His Royal Perſon was that day waited upon by Duke Francis Charles of Saxon-Lawenburg, and by ſome of his Majeſties own neareſt Servants.

The Lord Crailſham alſo, Great Maſter or Marſhal of his Majeſties Houſhold, had the leading of a Body of Reformadoes, which were eſpecially commanded to wait upon the Kings own perſon. And amongſt theſe were our Engliſh and Scottiſh Gentry and Officers, whom the King had at Schlenſing heretofore reformed. Of this Body (which conſiſted of ſeveral Nations) were there ſtill ſeven or eight to be cloſe about the King, ready to be ſent with Orders up and down the Army, who were ſtill ſupplied by Crailſham. The King was that day attired, as uſually he was accuſtomed, in a plain Buff Coat, and unarmed. Some report that a tenderneſs in his ſhoulder, where a Muſquet Bullet had a long time ſtuck, would not ſuffer him to endure Armour. And therefore when he was this morning deſired to put on his Corſlet, he ſaid, The Lord was his Armour; and refuſed it.

His Watch-word.

The Kings Watch-word, was the ſame which had been of ſo good an Omen before at Leipſich, Gott mit uns, God with us. The General Walenſteins being now the ſame which Tillies then was, Jeſus Maria. This was the Kings order of embattailing his whole Army, which now (after he had left ſome at Naumburgh, and at Weiſenfels, was between 17 and 18000 men) he divided into two Fronts; and each of theſe into the Wings and Battel, with their Reſerves. Each of the Wings was compoſed of ſix ſeveral Regiments or Squadrons of Horſe, lined with five ſeveral Bodies of commanded Muſquetiers; every one of which Bodies had two ſmall Drakes or Field-Pieces, which advanced playing ſtill before them. The Battel in each Front, conſiſted of four Brigades of Foot, a Reſerve of Front, and a Reſerve of Horſe hindmoſt of all, betwixt the two middle Brigades of the Reer, or ſecond Front. Before each Brigade marched ſix Pieces of greater Ordnance. And this was the firſt ſight of the Figure.

His Order.

The Right Wing was led by the King himſelf; the firſt Brigade Bodies of Commanded Muſquetiers, were commanded by the Count of Eberſtein. The Horſe Squadrons of the Left Wing were committed unto the Glory of the Day, Duke Bernard of Saxon-Weymar. The five Bodies of Foot in the Left Wing, were the charge of the Colonel Gerſdorff. The Battel made up of the four Brigades of Foot, was commanded to the Swediſh Count of Nieles, Colonel of the Kings Life-guards. The four Foot Brigades of the ſecond Front, or Reer, were commanded by Dodo Kniphauſen, Serjeant Major General of the whole Army, to whoſe fair Conduct the Victory is alſo much beholden. The Horſe of the Right Wing were entruſted to Colonel Claus Conrade Zorn of Bulach, by which name of Bulach he is commonly known. The Horſe of the Left Wing were committed to Prince Ernest of Anhalt. The Reſerve of Foot was commanded by Colonel John Henderſon a Scottiſh Gentleman: and the Reſerve of Horſe by Col. Ocem of the Palatinate.

Walenſteins Order.

The Imperial Army had his Excellency the Generaliſſimo thus ordered. He firſt drew it all up into one mighty Front: which he then divided into three Bodies. His Right Wing of Horſe (whoſe end was near the Town of Lutzen) was committed to the Count Ridolfo Coloredo, that day Serjeant Major General of the Army. This Wing had alſo its Commanded Muſquetiers, beſides ſome others that were lodged in the Gardens by the Town aforeſaid. This Wing having alſo the advantage of the Windmills, and their Hills, by the Town ſide, made uſe of thoſe Natural Batteries for the planting of nine Pieces of Ordnance; the Mills and Millers

Houſe ſerving them alſo for a good ſhelter. The Battle or middle Ward, was commanded by the Duke of Fridland himſelf, whoſe place was ſaid to be in the head of that great Regiment of Piccolominies Horſe, which was in the very middle of the Foot Regiments. The left Wing oppoſite to the right Wing, was led by Colonel Hendrick Holck, newly made Lieutenant-Felt-Marſhal unto Pappenheim, who but commanmanded untill Felt-Marſhal Pappenheim ſhould be come into the Field.

The Figure deſcribed.

All this Imperial Order of Embattailing, is preſented in one mighty Front; ſo namely, as it appeared to the Kings people, and to him that took the Figure of it: ſince (very largely) Cut and Imprinted in Copper, by John Jacob Gabler of Leipſich; who alſo by the Kings own directions, after the Battle at Leipſich, made a deſcription laſt year, and ſet forth the Figures of the Battle of Leipſich. And the manner of the ſame Figures of the Battle of Leipſich, we have in have in this alſo followed. We know that betwixt every Brigade of Foot, there ſhould be ſo much room left, as that another Brigade might advance up in the diſtance between them being the breadth of one of them.

Having thus deſcribed the Order, the Field of the Battle would next be conſidered of. The King had a North-Eaſterly march of it, from Naumburgh towards Lutzen; ſo that the riſing of the Sun was ſomething within a while favourable. The Wind alſo (that little that was) blew fairly for him; ſo that the King very joyfully ſpake it, I thank God I have both Wind and Sun to favour me.

The Country was a goodly vaſt Level and Campaign as Corn Lands could be, even as far almoſt as the Eye could rove over. And yet was the place of Battle ſubject to as many accidents (and Walenſtein was Maſter of them all) as a plain Country almoſt could be. The King right in his way of advancing, had a wet Ditch (made by hand) called the Floſſgraben, cut traverſe to him, ſo that he was fain to edge about to the Right with his whole Army, to paſs by it; and then to edge as much to the Left again, to put himſelf right before the Enemy. The Imperial Army was embatled all along beyond a broad High-way, which led from Lutzen unto Leipſich. On this ſide of this, was there a kind of a broad Drain, or a Ditch, which ſerved for bounding and ſaving the Plowed Lands, and to keep withall the High-way the drier. This had Walenſteins Pioneers beſtowed ſome coſt upon: ſo that putting ſome Commanded Muſquetiers down into it, it ſerved them as well as a Trench or Breſt-work. This was ſo troubleſom for the Kings Horſmen, that many of them were overturned and left behind, in the getting over to charge Walenſtein; for indeed there were divers Gaps through it, which the Horſe juſtling for, overturned one another. The ground alſo, behind the Ditch, had two little riſings, and thoſe did Walenſtein make choice of, for the planting of ſome Pieces: That part of the High-way alſo towards Lutzen, had an old Trench or dry Ditch drawn to it, which being nothing of it ſelf, but a Boundary for Lands; that alſo did Walenſtein put Muſquetiers into, which ſerved them like the High-way Ditch, for a Parapet or Breſt-Work. A pretty diſtance beyond the High-way, near unto the Town of Lutzen, were there three or four Windmills, amongſt which, another Party ſtood. Behind theſe had Walenſtein lodged ſome Muſquetiers, and the Mill-hills ſerved as natural Batteries for him to plant nine Pieces of Ordnance upon. Between the Mills and the Town, were there divers Gardens with Mud-walls round about them; and in theſe alſo (in one of them three hundred being after found dead) had he cauſed

Muſquetiers to be placed. Leipſich High-way, as it went ſloping along, ſo had he cauſed his men to bend and hang towards it.

And now to the Action. The Sun having by nine of the Clock clearly diſpelled the Fog, it proved as promiſing a morning as ever was ſixth of November. And now the King ſhot his looſing or Warning-piece; and ſo advanced.

The King advances.

Being paſſed the the Floſs-graben, he left alſo the Dorp of Churſitz behind him: betwixt which and his Army, he left his Coach and his Ammunition Wagons, of which there were not above 100 at moſt, the King having left the reſt at Naumburgh, with no purpoſe of fighting. The King advanced, till he came with the end of his right Wing within Muſquet-ſhot of a little Wood: having all the way a full view of the Imperial Army.

That Walenſtein much over-powered the King in number, may appear by the mighty long Front that he put out, near two Engliſh miles from one Wings end to the other. This is alſo to be conſidered, that Walenſteins Diſcipline is to march ten deep in a File; whereas the King was no more but ſix deep of Foot, (I mean) and of the Horſe but three or four deep, according as the Brigades were either ſtronger or weaker. Beſides this, that Walenſteins Files were all the way almoſt as deep again; his Ranks alſo were in Front ſo much longer, that the King was fain to ſend for Bulach, and all the Squadrons of Horſe, from the right Wing of the Reer, or ſecond Front, to imp out his Feathers at the end of the right Wing, for fear that Walenſtein ſhould ſurround him. Theſe Squadrons, when General Major Kniphauſen found out of their places, he ſent a Gentleman to his Majeſty, to know whether he had otherwiſe imployed them. The King was at the ſame time likewiſe ſending the Duke of Saxon-Lawenburg unto Kniphauſen, to tell him that he would but uſe them in that firſt Charge,and then return them back again to their Order. The Duke meeting with the Gentleman, and telling him thus much, both then returned to their places.

The King wondred not a little at it, when he ſaw how fair a Clew Walenſtein ſpread; affirming to thoſe about him, That if he had any Seconds behind his firſt Front, he could not judge him to be leſs than 30000.

True it is indeed, that Walenſtein had given out Proviant Commiſſions for 40000. and ſometimes for 50000. Men; but yet had he not ſo many fighting Men, for that there were at leaſt 10000 Women, Servants, and Children, and ſuch Hangbies belonging to the Army, which are to be diſcounted. Beſides this, it is to be conſidered, that Walenſtein had but one Front, and the King two. So that we may well allow Walenſtein to be 20000 in the firſt Front, at the very firſt ordering of the Battle. After which accounting thoſe that were ſtill coming in, even till 10 a Clock, and Papenheims Horſe and Dragoons, which came in about One or Two of the Clock; and his Foot, (who, as was thought made the ſecond fierce Charge towards night,) and then (doubtleſs) theſe could not be fewer than 10 or 12000 which made up in all 30000 fighting men.

The Armies being come within Cannon-ſhot, the great Ordnance began to play one upon another terribly. The Air roar'd, and the Earth trembled, and thoſe manly hearts that feared not dying, were yet very loth to have no more play for their lives, than to be beaten to pieces with the Bullet of a Cannon. And here had Walenſtein, ſurely, a great advantage over the Kings Army: for his Ordnance being all ready planted upon ſteddy and fixt Batteries, the Cannoneers traverſed their Pieces, and delivered their Volleys with more aim than the Kings men could poſſibly, who were in motion ſtill, and advancing. His Majeſties Cannon, ever after it was diſcharged, was there left to be brought after; the Army ſtill advancing, and marching away from it. The King liked not this ſport, for that the Imperial Cannon did his men far more ſpoil and execution, than he poſſibly could again return them. Seeing therefore no good to be done this way, he commands his Army to advance upon the very mouth of the Cannon, and to charge towards the High-way, and to beat out thoſe Muſquetiers that were lodged in it.

The Imperial Army ſtood their ground all this time, expecting that the fierceneſs of their Enemies Charge, would indifferently well be abated by that time they had beaten out thoſe Muſquetiers, and had put themſelves out of Order and Breath, with ſcrambling over the Ditches. And indeed the place being almoſt mans height, many of the Kings Horſemen were there left tumbling up and down; but of the reſt that got over, this was the order of their Charge: The Commanded Muſquetiers, and the Foot of the Swedes Brigade having cleared the High-way. The whole Front advanced to charge together.

The Order of the firſt Charge.

This whileſt they were doing, the little Drakes or Field-Pieces (two of which marched before every body of Muſquetiers that lined the Horſe of the Wings) were firſt fired, and the Muſquetiers at the ſame time giving their firſt Salve, the Horſe then charged home upon the Imperial Horſe, by the Drakes and Muſquetiers, ſomething before diſordered. This Order was held in the firſt Charge by the whole Front of the Army.

But I muſt now leave the Battle and left Wing engaged, to ſpeak of the Right Wing: Firſt, where the King in perſon commanded.

The Kings Speech of the Imperial Curiaſiers.

The King at his firſt advancing, having obſerved whereabouts in the Imperial left Wing (now oppoſite to him) the Crabats were marſhalled; and where the Curiaſiers, who were compleatly armed in black Harneſs Cap-a-Pee, he calls the Finniſh Colonel Stolhanſche to him, (as 'tis likely he did other Colonels, as he rode along) and pointing to the Enemy, As for thoſe Fellows (meaning the Crabats) I care not for them, ſays the King, but Charge me thoſe black Fellows ſoundly, for they are the men that will undo us. Thus much did Stolhanſche himſelf oftentimes (and at Table) relate unto divers Gentlemen of the Engliſh and Scottiſh Nation; ſome of which tell the Kings words from Stolhanſches mouth, this way; Charge me thoſe black Fellows ſoundly, for 'tis propheſied they ſhall be the ruine of me. But this word Propheſie, others confeſs that they heard not.

The Couragiouſneſs of the King.

The King was deſigned to fight, at the head of the Smalanders Squadron, himſelf was ſtill the foremoſt, with his Piſtol in one hand, and his Sword in the other. The Oſtro Goths, or the Uplanders did now advance and charge the Enemy. Perchance theſe three now got the ſtart, and were ſomething more forward than the three Squadrons of the Ingermanlanders; the Weſt Goths, and the Finlanders, towards the end of the Wing.

Theſe three Squadrons, indeed, fell not on at the ſame place with the King, but advanced directly upon the Faces of thoſe three Imperial Regiments of Curiaſiers. Nor were they blamed after the Battle for any ſlackneſs, or not charging: For that the King (as we told you) had ordered Stolhanſche to charge thoſe Curiaſiers ſoundly. And as for Bulach, and thoſe Squadrons of his, now placed to the right hand of Stalhanske and his Fins; they were in the very beginning of the Encounter ſo diverted, that they could not charge right forward, as the King expected. And for that, this is the true Reaſon. That Regiment of Crabats in the very end of the Imperial left Wing, did in the very beginning of the Battel, wheel about betwixt the Wood and the end of the Kings right Wing, and there endeavour to fall upon the Swediſh Ammunition Wagons in the Rear of the Army. Theſe Crabats would have made a foul pudder among the Ammunition, and have blown up moſt of the Powder doubtleſs, had not Bulach had an eye of them. He giving a home Charge upon them, beat them off from the Wagons for the preſent, but the Swediſh Colonel facing about, to return to his own place again, was by the Crabats charged upon the Croops, and put to ſome diſorder. And this diſarray is eaſie enough to be believed, for that the manner of the Crabats fighting, being but for a ſpurt, and in no good order; whoſoever will anſwer their Charge, muſt neceſſarily do it in diſorder too, or elſe they cannot follow the Crabats, to do any good upon them. And juſt now fell the Miſt again, which did this good in that part of the Battel, that this diſorder among the Swediſh Horſe was not diſcerned, and ſo no advantage taken of it.

The Crabats wheeling about upon the Kings Waggons.

Are beaten off by Bulach.

In this interim, yea, at this inſtant, it is ſaid the King was ſlain, it being 11 of the Clock when the Miſt fell again.

All this while are the Imperialiſts Maſters of the Kings Body, and of the Ground they had beaten the Swedes from. They had the King in their poſſeſſion, and there they ſtript him, every man being greedy to get ſome part of his Spoils, that they might hereafter glory to have taken it from the King of Sweden.

Several Reports there went abroad the Army, of the Circumſtances of his manner of dying, ſome relating it one way, and ſome another; but all with ſorrow agree he was ſlain.

The Noiſe of the Kings death was preſently diſperſed abroad; but yet belief was not fully given to it, for that ſome Priſoners affirmed he was but hurt, and carried in a cloſe Coach, following his white Enſign. The Swediſh Priſoners that reported him to be but wounded, were thoſe that were taken ſo ſoon as ever he offered to retreat. But that they ſaid he was carried off in his Coach, &c. was their judgment, that being wounded, it was likely he would go off in his Coach, which at firſt ſtood behind the White Regiment, but was gone out of the Field when the Crabats fell upon the Kings Waggons.

His death was not certainly known, but to ſome few of the Great Ones, (no not to thoſe of his own Wing) for 24 hours after: all believing what was, either by Art or Errour, given out, how that he was but carried off wounded.

The Kings death conceal'd from his own Army.

Return we now unto the Battel, and to the right Wing again. The Miſt that we before told you of, was not (by their own ſide) judged to be any way prejudicial, but advantagious rather unto the Swediſh; ſeeing that the Imperialiſts, who had now the better of it, were by the falling of this Miſt ſo arreſted, as that they purſued not the Retreat which they had put the Swediſh unto. The Rumour likewiſe of the Kings death, made them ſo to clutter about the Body, that alſo ſtaid them.

All this while were the four Foot Brigades of the Swediſh Battel, pell-mell at it: And they (even by my Spaniards confeſſion) got ground ſpace of thoſe Imperialiſts whom they had attacked. And now alſo did Stalhanſk (who certainly had an Item given him of the Kings death, or great danger) charge ſo fiercely towards that very place, that he beat off the Imperialiſts, and recovered the Body; which he brought off naked, after it had been a full quarter of an hour in the Enemies poſſeſſion. And now was Piccolominis Regiment ſoundly peppered. The Swediſh both Foot and Horſe, after an hours fight, beating all the Imperialiſts along before them, till they had driven them to the very Gallows behind them. And now did the Swediſh get poſſeſſion of thoſe ſeven Pieces of Ordnance of Piccolominius. Theſe Ordnance were the eaſier to be taken, for that they plaid not; Walenſteins Powder-Waggons were by miſchance blown up, ſo that his Cannon were ſcarce heard of all the day after.

And thus ended the ſecond Charge: For by this time was the Miſt become ſo extraordinary, and by the ſmouk ſo thickened, as the Swedes could not ſee how to purſue their advantage; and here was the Miſt become as beneficial to the Imperialiſts, as it had been favourable before unto the Swediſh. In this time fell there ſo terrible an affrightment in the Imperial Army, that 1000, or 1500 Dutch Horſe ran all away together. One of them was by a Gentleman of our Nation (then Priſoner in their Rear) over-heard to ſay: Oh I know the King of Sweden well enough, I have ſerved him; he is left at the latter end of the day. But the chief fright was among the Ladies, the Captains Wives, and other Women, then behind the Army. Many Gentlewomen got out of their Coaches, cut aſunder the Harneſs, and mounted ſtradlings upon the bare horſe backs, and away they ſpudded among the Souldiers. Now went the Waggon-horſes and the Ordnance-horſes to it; all were ridden away with, divers Women and Children were there trodden to death. Nor would the Horſemen turn head, notwithſtanding they heard the Charge preſently again renewed, and thoſe about the Mills all this time at it; Till they were gotten over a Paſs, four or five Engliſh Miles from the place of Battel. The fright ſo purſued them, though no body elſe did, That coming to this Paſs, the Officers drew out their Swords, and laſht and beat off the Souldiers to give them way to get over. There were at leaſt four or five thouſand People of them, and they quartered themſelves confuſedly up and down in the Villages which the Boors had forſaken: Nor durſt they ever return into the Battel. Amongſt theſe was my Author carried away: From whom I learned it.

After a little pauſe, the Count of Pappenheim, with his Horſe and Dragoons, arrived; whom ſome will needs have to have been in perſon at the beginning of the Battel. By his coming was the Charge thereabouts renewed. He put himſelf into the Imperial left Wing, (which was moſt diſtreſſed, and which had been reſerved for him:) to be oppoſite to the Swediſh right Wing; where he ſuppoſed the King in Perſon had commanded. Juſt as he was ordering his Horſe, he was ſtruck with a Bullet of a Falconet, or ſmall Sling-piece, about the ſhoulder, of which he died preſently: Even ſo ſoon as he was taken down from his horſe, to have been carried into Leipſick. This was a brave fighting Gentleman; whoſe body was by Walenſtein carried into Prague; where it was to be ſeen publickly. The Emperour (as a little French Relation affirmeth) had newly ſent the Collar of the Golden Fleece unto him and Walenſtein: Which honour before ever he received, he was, in the place where he ſhould have worn his Order, thus dubbed with a Sling-piece.

He had made his Will a little before: Had ſhriven himſelf, and Communicated at a dry Maſs: And made this ſhort Teſtament upon it. His Soul he commended to God, his Body (if he were ſlain) to the Emperour; and his Wife and Children unto Walenſtein.

His being ſlain, his Officers, flocking about him, were heard to cry, Oh! our General is ſlain: Immediately whereupon his Horſe turned head, and ran out of the Battel without ſtroke ſtriking, back again towards the Weſer, and the Lower Saxony.

But the Walenſteiners, whom Pappenheims coming had ſet on, fell to it afreſh: Piccolomini advanced, and Terſica with their Cavalry; and the Foot Regiments ſeconded them with extremity of reſolution. And now began the ſoreſt, the longeſt, and the obſtinateſt Conflict, that had been ſince the King was killed. The Charge was ſuſtained by the Swediſh, with much gallantry, and never was Battel better fought: Nor ſeldom have Battalions ever ſtood, amongſt whom ſo much ſpoyl hath been committed. Full two hours were they in hot Battel. On the Imperial ſide was Piccolominis twice or thrice ſhot; Sergeant Major Brauner ſlain, and ſo was a young Count of Wallenſtein. The Abbot Fulda was at this Charge alſo ſlain. And think then how many Officers and Common Souldiers was it likely that theſe great Commanders did take along to wait upon them to the next world.

On the Swedes ſide, the chief of the ſpoyl light upon the two middlemoſt Brigades of Foot belonging unto Grave Nels, and Collonel Winckle: The Imperialiſts charged with ſo much fury, and with Battalions of two or three thouſand in a Regiment, that they by force drove the Swediſh to the retreat in the plain field, and (as the moſt ſay) even then recovered their ſeven Pieces of Ordnance. Grave Neiles, Colonel of the Life-guards (which is the Yellow Regiment) was there ſhot a little above the knee, of which, being carried off ſpoyled, he after died. Out of this Brigade, did the Imperialiſts carry away ſeven Colours, and to tell the truth, the Kings own Company, which ſerved here among the Guards, loſt their own Enſign or Standard Royal too. He that had carried the Colours was after ſeen with his Sword in his hand, but his Clout was miſſing.

Colonel Winckles Blue Regiment likewiſe found as hard treatment. Himſelf (a brave man) was ſhot in the Arm a little above the Elbow, and in the hand, and carried out of the Battel. His Lieutenant, Caſpar Wolff, was ſlain upon the place, and moſt of his Colours taken. Theſe two Brigades were of the flower of the Army; old Souldiers of ſeven or eight years ſervice, (the moſt of them) and whom the King had there placed, for that he moſt relied on them. Theſe old Blades ſtood to their Arms ſtoutly; and the adverſe Writers confeſs, that their dead bodies now recovered the ſame ground, which living they had defended. Theſe were old beaten Souldiers indeed, but it was ſo long ſince they had been laſt beaten, that they had by this time forgotten to run away. This is the reaſon they were ſo ſhattered; that when, towards night, they were to have faln on again, both theſe Brigades put together, could not make one Squadron ſtrong, which is but the third part of one of them.

The Swedes Brigade fared ſomething better, becauſe near unto the Horſe: And yet there came not above four hundred off, alive or unwounded. Duke Bernards Brigade was ſomething more out of Gunſhot, for that they were next the Horſe of the left Wing. Yet here was Colonel Wildeſtein ſhot in the Breſt, of which he after died: Duke

Bernard, Lieutenant Col. Winkler being ſlain upon the place. In this ſore bickering, the ſpoyl, on the Imperial ſide, fell moſtly upon old Bruners and young Walenſteins Regiments, both which were here killed; with full half, if not two thirds of the Souldiers. Theſe Regiments performed their duties ſo valiantly, and Walenſtein himſelf took ſuch ſpecial notice of them, that he a long time after (if not ſtill) maintained them in his own houſe at Prague for it. Henderſons Reſerve of Foot in the mean time had alſo their ſhare in the knocking: One of the Offices and uſes of the Reſerve, being ſtill to ſupply and ſecond where moſt need is; with freſh men to dearn up the holes, and ſtop up the gaps of the ſlaughtered. And whereas thoſe four Brigades of the Van had ſo terribly been ſhattered, General-Major Kniphauſen had out of his care ſent up theſe two Brigades of the Count of Thurn, and the Colonel Mitzlaff to relieve them. After a while he ſent them up thoſe four Squadrons of Horſe, who ſo well (altogether) reſtored the encounter, that the Imperialiſts began to give ground; which the Swedes ſo far purſued, till they had recovered the ſeven Pieces again, and four others at the left hand of them.

Look we now aſide, to ſee what was done in the Reer, and left Wing, by Kniphauſen and Duke Bernard. General Major Kniphauſen having ſent two Brigades of his four, and four Squadrons of Horſe to the relief of the Vantguard, ſent alſo his other two Horſe Squadrons, commanded by the Prince of Anhalt, and the Lieutenant of Baron Hoffkirch, unto Duke Bernard. As for the other two Brigades of Foot, (his own and Boſens) together with Oems his Reſerve of Horſe, theſe did Kniphauſen ſtill keep by him in the Reer of the Battel.

Duke Bernard had as hard a Chapter of it, as any man againſt the Imperialiſts right Wing, at the Wind-Mills, and (ſurely) had the moſt renowned Don Quixot been there, there had been exerciſe enough for his valour at theſe Wind-Mills. Soberly, This was the hardeſt Poſt for advantage of ſituation, all the field over: And Count Coloredo as well maintained it againſt him. Never man did more gallantly behave himſelf (avoucht it) that firſt and laſt, in this and other places, he charged ſeveral times, one after another. And Coloredo gave Duke Bernard leave to charge all: He had ſo good an advantage of the two Ditches and the Wind-Mills, that he would not ſcarce offer upon Duke Bernard.

The brave young Duke, preſſing on in the beginning of the fight, had ſet the Town of Lutzen on fire: His Reaſon being, that ſeeing if he would get the Wind-Mills, he muſt with the end of his Wing even touch (as it were) the very Walls of the Town. Should Coloredo, then, have firſt filled thoſe Walls with Musketteers, they muſt needs have ſo ſorely galled his Horſemen, that there had been no coming near: Nor could Horſe and Piſtols have done any ſervice againſt Walls and Musketteers. In one of theſe Charges, did Coloredo ſo Thunder upon Duke Bernard, that the valiant Prince thought it not unſouldier-like done to ſhelter himſelf behind the Millers houſe.

At this time (as we told you) did Major Kniphauſen keep his two Brigades, and Oems his Reſerve, together un-engaged: Doing no more with them, than fair and ſoftly advance them towards the Enemy; at ſuch a time as he ſaw the Brigades of the Van to get any ground of them. The diſtance of his Reer from Front was about ſix hundred paces; and that ſcantling he ſtill kept himſelf behind the other. This was no ſmall occaſion of the winning of the Battel: Seeing that ſo often as any of the Van were diſordered, and put to the retreat; they with him, ſtill find a whole great Body together, unbroken, by the ſight of which they reſumed new courage, and were ſet in order again.

And very glad was Duke Bernard when, in the next breaking up of the Miſt, he came and found Kniphauſen in ſo good order; whom (as he openly profeſſed) he feared to have found all to pieces. For now, betwixt three and four of the Clock (which was not long before Sun-ſet) did the Miſt break up; and there was a fair half hour after it. At which time Duke Bernard going abroad, to over-view the poſture and countenance of the Army: (which ſince his hearing of the Kings death, the Miſt and ſmoak had not ſuffered him to diſcover any thing of) he came now along by the Battel unto the right Wing, ſpeaking to the Officers and Souldiers, and encouraging them to a new on-ſet; plainly he found the whole Army (except Kniphauſens part) in no very good order; which he and Kniphauſen (who took much good pains likewiſe about it) did their beſt to reduce them to. When the word was given for a new Charge, Alas Comrade, (ſaid the poor Souldiers one to another) muſt we fall on again? Come, ſays the other, (embracing him) Courage; if we muſt, let us do it bravely, and make a day on't. As Duke Bernard was leading on, the Imperial Generaliſſimo ſent his two Colonels, Perſica and Piccolomini, to diſcover in that clear weather what the Swedes were a doing: Who brought his Excellency word again, that they were rallied about the Wood, and in very good order advancing towards him.

This (no doubt) made the Imperialiſts hearts quake to think upon the terrour of a fourth Charge. And now could the Swedes diſcover the Imperial Horſe, retreating in indifferent good order towards the Wind-Mills: Whereupon they bringing forwards ten Pieces of Cannon, and turning thoſe likewiſe upon them, which were before taken, they gave the Imperial Horſe ſuch a rouſing Salve of great Ordnance, and charged ſo upon it, that they put them into diſorder. And here (as my Spaniſh Relator ſays) did the Generaliſſimo light upon a ſlight fillip by a favourable Muſket Bullet, which made no wound, but left a blew remembrance only upon him.

And now were the Imperialiſts beaten round about, even to the very Wind-Mills, the Swedes being Maſters of the ground that they ſhouldered the others out of. But juſt now, a little before Sun-ſet, fell the fatal Miſt again; which ſo haſtened on the night, that the Swedes could not well ſee which way to purſue their Enemies. Duke Bernard, in his coming back, was thus heard to ſay, Merciful God! but for this Miſt, we had even now gotten the victory. Hence went he back again over all the Batallions, to his own Poſt again, towards which he now perceived the Imperialiſts to be making.

And now by Sun-ſetting was all the Field clear of the Imperialiſts, excepting only about the Windmills: And there plainly were both Coloredoes and Duke Bernards men, faln off one from another, like two Duellers leaning on their Swords to break breath again. Certainly, they had ſo banged one another, that neither of both were in order: But either Party ſhot at adventure right forward, and let the Bullet find his own way, as it could, through that night of ſmoak and miſtineſs. Thoſe Muſketiers which (we told you) were lodged in the mud-walled Gardens, were ſeen to give fire continually, but no men to be diſcerned. And the Swedes at adventure ſhot at them again: And as at [illegible] they got ground, they [illegible] into the [illegible] so many Caſtles. Here [illegible] of them.

[illegible] in the edge of the Evening [illegible] been finiſhed. [illegible] [illegible]heims Foot were even now arrived from [illegible] a freſh Charge, about the Wind-Mills. Thus [illegible] the Army, Pappenheims Foot are come, Pappenheims Foot are [illegible] the Swediſh believed.

[illegible] the Service (after [illegible] an hour [illegible]) turned into the Wind-Mills. The Imperialiſts [illegible], like [illegible] of a dying body, ſtruggled hard at the laſt caſt, for life; [illegible] the time, as fierce a Charge of it, as any had the day before [illegible]. To withſtand this now, does Kniphauſen bring his [illegible]; with whom are the other two of Thurns and [illegible] that he had before ſent to the relief of the Vanguard; [illegible] had not ſo cruelly been ſhattered. Now alſo Duke [illegible], rallying [illegible] the Horſe together, advanced to the Charge. The Imperialiſts [illegible] down ſome Muskettiers into the croſs [illegible], which not a little troubled the Swediſh. Once or twice [illegible] to force that Trench, and to ſtorm over it: But it was [illegible] and dangerous in the dark, that they did but over-tumble [illegible] and were fain to keep on the other ſide of it, to bring up [illegible] Muſkettiers, and from thence to give their Volleys. The beſt of it was, that it was not above 100 paces diſtant from the High-way, cloſe behind which the Imperialiſts were ranged. That which moſt galled the Imperialiſts, was the Swediſh Ordnance, which on the right-hand Flank of them [illegible] on the nearer ſide of the High-way, were now turned upon them. This moſt cruel and hot fight continued till about five a Clock in the Evening, much about which time the Walſteiners, or Pappenheimers, or both together, fell off in the dark, and gave it quite over.

A Decree of Starre-Chamber concerning Printing, made the eleventh day of July laſt paſt. 1637.

In Camera Stellata coram Concilio ibidem, undecimo die Julii, Anno decimo tertio Caroli Regis.

This day Sir John Bankes Knight, his Majeſties Attourney General pro-duced in Court a Decree drawn and penned by the advice of the Right honourable the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, the moſt Reverend Father in God the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury his Grace, the Right Reverend Father in God the Lord Biſhop of London, Lord High Treaſurer of England, the two Lord Chief Juſtices, and the Lord Chief Baron, touching the regulating of Printers and Founders of Letters, whereof the Court having conſideration, the ſaid Decree was directed and ordered to be here publiſhed, to the end the ſame may be publick, and that every one whom it may concern may take notice thereof, The Court hath now alſo ordered, That the ſaid Decree ſhall ſpeedily be Printed, and that the ſame be ſent to his Majeſties Printer for that purpoſe. Whereas the three and twentieth day of June, in the eight and twentieth year of the Reign of the late Queen Eliz. and before, divers Decrees and Ordinances have been made for the better government and regulating of Printers and Printing, which Orders and Decrees have been found by experience to be defective in ſome particulars; And divers abuſes have ſithence ariſen, and been practiſed by the craft and malice of wicked and evil diſpoſed perſons, to the prejudice of the Publick; And divers libellous, ſeditious, and mutinous Books have been unduly printed, and other Books and Papers without Licence, to the diſturbance of the Peace of the Church and State: For prevention whereof in time to come, It is now Ordered and Decreed, That the ſaid former Decrees and Ordinances ſhall ſtand in force with theſe Additions, Explanations, and Alterations following, viz.

I. Imprimis, That no Perſon or Perſons whatſoever ſhall preſume to Print, or cauſe to be Printed, either in the parts beyond the Seas, or in this Realm, or other his Majeſties Dominions, any ſeditious, Schiſmatical, or offenſive Books or Pamphlets, to the ſcandal of Religion, or the Church, or the Government, or Governours of the Church or State, or Common-wealth, or of any Corporation, or particular Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, nor ſhall import any ſuch Book or Books, nor ſell or diſpoſe of them, or any of them, nor cauſe any ſuch to be bound, ſtitched, or ſowed, upon pain that he or they ſo offending, ſhall loſe all ſuch Books and Pamphlets, and alſo have, and ſuffer ſuch correction, and ſevere puniſhment, either by Fine, Impriſonment, or other corporal puniſhment, or otherwiſe, as by this Court, or by his Majeſties Commiſſioners for Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical in the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be inflicted upon him, or them, for ſuch their offence and contempt.

II. Item, That no Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, ſhall at any time print or cauſe to be imprinted, any Book or Pamphlet whatſoever, unleſs the ſame Book or Pamphlet, and alſo all and every the Titles, Epiſtles, Prefaces, Proems, Preambles, Introductions, Tables, Dedications, and other matters and things whatſoever thereunto annexed, or therewith imprinted, ſhall be firſt lawfully licenſed and authorized only by ſuch Perſon and Perſons as are hereafter expreſſed, and by no other, and ſhall be alſo firſt entred into the Regiſters Book of the Company of Stationers; upon pain that every Printer offending therein, ſhall be for ever hereafter diſabled to uſe or exerciſe the Art or Myſtery of Printing, and receive ſuch further puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fitting.

III. Item, That all Books concerning the Common Laws of this Realm ſhall be printed by the eſpecial allowance of the Lords Chief Juſtices, and the Lord Chief Baron for the time being; or one or more of them, or by their appointment; And that all Books of Hiſtory, belonging to this State, and preſent times, or any other Book of State affairs, ſhall be licenſed by the Principal Secretaries of State, or one of them, or by their appointment; And that all Books concerning Heraldry, Titles of Honour and Arms, or otherwiſe concerning the Office of Earl Marſhal, ſhall be licenſed by the Earl Marſhal, or by his appointment; And further, that all other Books, whether of Divinity, Phyſick, Philoſophy, Poetry, or whatſoever, ſhall be allowed by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or Biſhop of London for the time being, or by their appointment, or the Chancellours, or Vice-Chancellours of either of the Univerſities of this Realm for the time being.

Always provided, that the Chancellour or Vice-Chancellour of either of the Univerſities, ſhall Licence only ſuch Book or Books that are to be Printed within the limits of the Univerſities reſpectively, but not in London, or elſewhere, not medling either with Books of the Common Law, or matters of State.

IV. Item, That every Perſon and Perſons, which by any Decree of this Court are, or ſhall be appointed or authorized to Licence Books, or give Warrant for imprinting thereof, as is aforeſaid, ſhall have two ſeveral written Copies of the ſame Book or Books, with the Titles, Epiſtles, Prefaces, Proems, Preambles, Introductions, Tables, Dedications, and other things whatſoever thereunto annexed. One of which ſaid Copies ſhall be kept in the publick Regiſtries of the ſaid Lord Archbiſhop, and Biſhop of London reſpectively, or in the Office of the Chancellour, or Vice-Chancellour of either of the Univerſities, or with the Earl Marſhal, or Principal Secretaries of State, or with the Lords Chief Juſtices, or Chief Baron, of all ſuch Books as ſhall be licenſed by them reſpectively, to the end that he or they may be ſecure, that the Copy ſo licenſed by him or them ſhall not be altered without his or their privity, and the other ſhall remain with him whoſe Copy it is, and upon both the ſaid Copies, he or they that ſhall allow the ſaid Book, ſhall teſtifie under his or their hand or hands, that there is nothing in that Book or Books contained, that is contrary to Chriſtian Faith, and the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Church of England, nor againſt the State or Government, nor contrary to good life, or good manners, or otherwiſe, as the nature and ſubject of the work ſhall require; which Licenſe or Approbation ſhall be imprinted in the beginning of the ſame Book, with the name or names of him or them that ſhall authorize or licenſe the ſame, for a teſtimony of the allowance thereof.

V. Item, That every Merchant of Books, and Perſon and Perſons whatſoever, which doth, or hereafter ſhall buy, import, or bring any Book or Books into this Realm, from any parts beyond the Seas, ſhall before ſuch time as the ſame Book or Books, or any of them be delivered forth, or out of or their hand or hands, or expoſed to ſale, give and preſent a true Catalogue in writing of all and every ſuch Book and Books unto the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, upon pain to have and ſuffer ſuch puniſhment for offending herein, as by this Court, or by the ſaid High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fitting.

VI. Item, That no Merchant, or other Perſon or Perſons whatſoever, which ſhall import, or bring any Book or Books into the Kingdom, from any parts beyond the Seas, ſhall preſume to open any Dryfats, Bales, Packs, Maunds, or other Fardals of Books, or wherein Books are; nor ſhall any Searcher, Waiter, or other Officer belonging to the Cuſtom-houſe, upon pain of loſing his or their Place or Places, ſuffer the ſame to paſs, or to be delivered out of their hands or cuſtody, before ſuch time as the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or Lord Biſhop of London, or one of them for the time being, have appointed one of their Chaplains, or ſome other learned man, with the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, or one of them, and ſuch others as they ſhall call to their aſſiſtance, to be preſent at the opening thereof, and to view the ſame: And if there ſhall happen to be found any ſeditious, ſchiſmatical, or offenſive Book or Books, they ſhall forthwith be brought unto the ſaid Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, or one of them, or to the High Commiſſion Office, to the end that as well the Offender or Offenders may be puniſhed by the Court of Star-Chamber, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, according to his or their demerit; as alſo that ſuch further courſe and order may be taken concerning the ſame Book or Books, as ſhall be thought fitting.

VII. Item, That no Perſon or Perſons ſhall within this Kingdom, or elſewhere, imprint, or cauſe to be imprinted, nor ſhall import or bring in, or cauſe to be imported or brought into this Kingdom, from, or out of any other his Majeſties Dominions, nor from other, or any parts beyond the Seas, any Copy, Book or Books, or part of any Book or Books, Printed beyond the Seas, or elſewhere, which the ſaid Company of Stationers, or any other Perſon or Perſons have, or ſhall by any Letters Patents, Order, or Entrance in their Regiſter Book, or otherwiſe, have the right, priviledge, authority, or allowance ſolely to Print, nor ſhall bind, ſtitch, or put to ſale, any ſuch Book or Books, upon pain of loſs and forfeiture of all the ſaid Books, and of ſuch Fine, or other Puniſhment, for every Book or part of a Book ſo imprinted, or imported, bound, ſtiched, or put to ſale, to be levied of the Party ſo offending, as by the power of this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit.

VIII. Item, Every Perſon and Perſons that ſhall hereafter Print or, cauſe to be Printed, any Books, Ballads, Charts, Portraicture, or any other thing or things whatſoever, ſhall thereunto, or thereon print, and ſet his and their own name or names, as alſo the name or names of the Author or Authors, Maker or Makers of the ſame, and by, or for whom any ſuch Book, or other thing is, or ſhall be Printed, upon pain of forfeiture of all ſuch Books, Ballads, Charts, Protraictures, and other thing or things, Printed contrary to this Article; And the Preſſes, Letters, and other Inſtruments for Printing wherewith ſuch Books, Ballads, Charts, Portraictures, and other thing or things ſhall be Printed, to be defaced and made unſerviceable, and the Party and Parties ſo offending, to be fined, impriſoned, and have ſuch other corporal puniſhment, or otherwiſe, as by this Honourable Court, or the ſaid High Commiſſion reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit.

IX. Item, That no perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſhall hereafter Print, or cauſe to be Printed, or ſhall Forge, Put, or Counterfeit, in, or upon any Book or Books, the Name, Title, Mark or Vinnet of the Company or Society of Stationers, or of any particular perſon or perſons, which hath, or ſhall have lawful Priviledge, Authority, or Allowance to print the ſame, without the conſent of the ſaid Company, or Party, or Parties, that are or ſhall be ſo priviledged, authorized, or allowed to Print the ſame Book or Books', Thing or Things, firſt had and obtained, upon pain that every perſon or perſons ſo offending, ſhall not onely loſe all ſuch Books and other things, but ſhall alſo have and ſuffer ſuch puniſhment, by impriſonment of his Body, Fine, or otherwiſe, as by this Honourable Court, or High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, it ſhall be to him or them limitted or adjudged.

X. Item, That no Haberdaſher of Small Wares, Ironmonger, Chandler, Shop-keeper, or any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, not having been ſeven years Apprentice to the Trade of a Bookſeller, Printer, or Book-binder, ſhall within the City or Suburbs of London, or in any other Corporation, Market-Town, or elſewhere, receive, take, or buy, to barter, ſell again, change or do away any Bibles, Teſtaments, Pſalm-Books, Primers, Abces, Almanacks, or other Book or Books whatſoever, upon pain of forfeiture of all ſuch Books ſo received, bought or taken as aforeſaid, and ſuch other puniſhment of the Parties ſo offending, as by this Court, or the ſaid High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought meet.

XI. Item, For that Printing is, and for many years hath been an Art and Manufacture of this Kingdom, for the better encouraging of Printers in their honeſt, and juſt endeavours in their Profeſſion, and prevention of divers Libels, Pamphlets, and ſeditious Books Printed beyond the Seas in Engliſh, and thence tranſported hither;

It is further Ordered and Decreed, that no Merchant, Bookſeller, or other perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſhall imprint, or cauſe to be imprinted, in the Parts beyond the Seas, or elſewhere, nor ſhall import or bring, nor willingly aſſiſt or conſent to the importation or bringing from beyond the Seas into this Realm, any Engliſh Books, or part of Book, or Books whatſoever, which are or ſhall be, or the greater, or more part whereof is or ſhall be Engliſh, or of the Engliſh Tongue, whether the ſame Book or Books have been here formerly Printed, or not, upon pain of the forfeiture of all ſuch Engliſh Books ſo imprinted or imported, and ſuch further Cenſure and puniſhment, as by this Court, or the ſaid High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought meet.

XII. Item, That no Stranger or Foreigner whatſoever, be ſuffered to bring in, or vent here, any Book or Books printed beyond the Seas, in any Language whatſoever, either by themſelves or their ſecret Factors, except ſuch onely as be free Stationers of London, and ſuch as have brought up in that Profeſſion, and have their whole means of ſubſiſtance and livelihood depending thereupon, upon pain of Confiſcation of all ſuch Books ſo imported, and ſuch further penalties, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to beimpoſed.

XIII. Item, That no perſon or perſons within the City of London, or the Liberties thereof, or elſewhere, ſhall erect or cauſe to be erected any Preſs or Printing-houſe, nor ſhall demiſe, or let, or ſuffer to be held or uſed, any Houſe, Vault, or Celler, or other Room whatſoever, to, or by any perſon or perſons, for a Printing-houſe, or place to Print in, unleſs he or they which ſhall ſo demiſe or let the ſame, or ſuffer the ſame to be ſo uſed, ſhall firſt give notice to the ſaid Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers for the time being, of ſuch demiſe, or ſuffering to Work or Print there, upon pain of impriſonment, and ſuch other puniſhment as by this Court, or the ſaid High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit.

XIV. Item, That no Joiner or Carpenter, or other perſon, ſhall make any Printing-preſs, no Smith ſhall forge any Iron-work for a Printing-preſs, and no Founder ſhall Caſt any Letters for any perſon or perſons whatſoever, neither ſhall any perſon or perſons bring, or cauſe to be brought in from any parts beyond the Seas, any Letters Founded or Caſt, nor buy any ſuch Letters for Printing; unleſs he or they reſpectively ſhall firſt acquaint the ſaid Maſter and Wardens, or ſome of them, for whom the ſame Preſs, Iron Works, or Letters are to be made, forged, or caſt, upon pain of ſuch Fine and Puniſhment, as this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall think fit.

XV. Item, The Court doth declare, that as formerly ſo now, there ſhall be but Twenty Maſter Printers allowed to have the uſe of one Preſs or more, as is after ſpecified, and doth hereby nominate, allow, and admit theſe perſons whoſe names hereafter follow, to the number of Twenty, to have the uſe of a Preſs, or Preſſes and Printing-houſe, for the time being, viz. Felix Kingſton, Adam Iſlip, Thomas Purfoot, Miles Fleſher, Flesher, Thomas Harper, John Beale, John Legat, Robert Young, John Haviland, George Miller, Richard Badger, Thomas Cotes, Bernard Alsop, Richard Biſhop, Edward Griffin, Thomas Purſlow, Richard Hodgkinſon, John Dawſon, John Raworth, Marmaduke Parſons. And the Court doth further Order and Decree, That it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Lord Biſhop of London, for the time being, taking unto him or them ſix other High Commiſſioners, to ſupply the place or places of thoſe, which are now already Printers by this Court, as they ſhall fall void by Death, or Cenſure, or otherwiſe: Provided that they exceed not the number of Twenty, beſides his Majeſties Printers, and the Printers allowed for the Univerſities.

XVI. Item, That every perſon or perſons, now allowed or admitted to have the uſe of a Preſs, and Printing-houſe ſhall within ten days after the date hereof, become bound with Sureties to his Majeſty in the High Commiſſion Court, in the ſum of three hundred pounds, not to print, or ſuffer to be Printed in his Houſe or Preſs, any Book or Books whatſoever, but ſuch as ſhall from time to time be lawfully licenſed, and that the like Bond ſhall be entered into by all, and every perſon and perſons that hereafter ſhall be admitted or allowed to Print, before he or they be ſuffered to have the uſe of a Preſs.

XVII. Item, That no allowed Printer ſhall keep above two Preſſes, unleſs he hath been Maſter or Upper Warden of his Company, who are thereby allowed to keep three Preſſes and no more, under pain of being diſabled for ever after to keep or uſe any Preſs at all, unleſs for ſome great and ſpecial occaſion for the Publick, he or they have for a time leave of the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, to have or uſe one or more, above the foreſaid number, as their Lordſhips, or either of them ſhall think fit. And whereas there are ſome Maſter Printers that have at this preſent one, or more Preſſes allowed them by this Decree, the Court doth farther Order and Declare, That the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, do forthwith certifie the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Lord Biſhop of London, what number of Preſſes each Maſter Printer hath, that their Lordſhips, or either of them, taking unto them ſix other High Commiſſioners, may take ſuch preſent order for the ſuppreſſing of the ſupernumerary Preſſes, as to their Lordſhips, or to either of them ſhall ſeem beſt.

XVIII. Item, That no perſon or perſons do hereafter reprint, or cauſe to be reprinted, any Book or Books whatſoever (though formerly Printed with Licence) without being reviewed, and a new Licence obtained for the Reprinting thereof. Always provided, that the Stationer or Printer be put to no other charge hereby, but the bringing and leaving of two printed Copies of the Book to be printed, with the before expreſſed of written Copies, with all ſuch Additions as the Author hath made.

XIX. Item, The Court doth Declare, as formerly ſo now, That no Apprentices be taken into any Printing-houſe, otherwiſe than according to this proportion following, (viz.) every Maſter Printer that is or hath been Maſter or Upper Warden of his Company, may have three Apprentices at one time and no more, and every Maſter-Printer that is of the Livery of his Company, may have two Apprentices at one time and no more, and every Maſter-Printer of the Yeomanry of the Company may have one Apprentice at one time and no more, neither by Copartnerſhip, Binding at the Scriveners, nor any other way whatſoever; neither ſhall it be lawful for any Maſter-Printer when any Apprentice or Apprentices ſhall run or be put away, to take another Apprentice, or other Apprentices in his or their place or places, unleſs the name or names of him or them ſo gone away, be raced out of the Hall Book, and never admitted again, upon pain of being for ever diſabled of the uſe of a Preſs or Printing-houſe, and of ſuch further puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be impoſed.

XX. Item, The Court doth likewiſe Declare, That becauſe a great part of the ſecret Printing in Corners, hath been cauſed for want of orderly imployment for Journeymen-Printers. Therefore the Court doth hereby require the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, to take ſpecial care that all Journeymen-Printers, who are Free of the Company of Stationers, ſhall be ſet to work, and imployed within their own Company of Stationers; for which purpoſe the Court doth alſo Order and Declare, That if any Journeyman-Printer, and Free of the Company of Stationers, who is of honeſt and good behaviour, and able in his Trade, do want Imployment, he ſhall repair to the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, and they or one of them, taking with him or them one or two of the Maſter-Printers, ſhall go along with the ſaid Journeyman-Printer, and ſhall offer his Service in the firſt place to the Maſter-Printer under whom he ſerved his Apprentiſhip, if he be living, and do continue an allowed Printer, or otherwiſe to any other Maſter-Printer whom the Maſter and Wardens of the ſaid Company ſhall think fit. And every Maſter-Printer ſhall be bound to imploy one Journeyman, being ſo offered to him, and more, if need ſhall ſo require, and it ſhall be ſo adjudged to come to his ſhare, according to the proportion of his Apprentices and Imployments, by the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, although he the ſaid Maſter-Printer with his Apprentice or Apprentices be able, without the help of the ſaid Journeyman or Journeymen to diſcharge his own Work, upon pain of ſuch puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit.

XXI. Item, The Court doth Declare, That if the Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers, or any of them, ſhall refuſe or neglect to go along with any honeſt and ſufficient Journyman-Printer, ſo deſiring their aſſiſtance, to find him imployment, upon complaint and proof made thereof, he or they ſo offending, ſhall ſuffer impriſonment, and ſuch other puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be impoſed. But in caſe any Maſter-Printer hath more imployment than he is able to diſcharge with help of his Apprentice or Apprentices, it ſhall be lawful for him to require the help of any Journyman or Journymen-Printers, who are [illegible] Journyman or Journymen [illegible] or neglect it when he or [illegible] impriſonment, and undergo ſuch puniſhment as this Court ſhall think fit.

XXII. Item, The Court doth hereby Declare, That it doth not hereby reſtrain the Printers of either of the Univerſities from taking what number of Apprentices for their Service in Printing there, they themſelves ſhall think fit. Provided always, that the ſaid Printers in the Univerſities ſhall imploy all their own Journymen within themſelves, and not ſuffer any of their ſaid Journymen to go abroad for Imployment to the Printers of London, (unleſs upon occaſion ſome Printers of London deſire to imploy ſome extraordinary Workman or Workmen amongſt them, without prejudice to their own Journymen, who are Freemen) upon ſuch penalty as the Chancellor of either of the Univerſities for the time being, ſhall think fit to inflict upon the Delinquents herein.

XXIII. Item, That no Maſter-Printer ſhall imploy either to work at the Caſe, or the Preſs, or otherwiſe about his Printing, any other perſon or perſons, than ſuch onely as are Free-men, or Apprentices to the Trade or Myſtery of Printing, under pain of being diſabled for ever after to keep or uſe any Preſs or Printing-houſe, and ſuch further puniſhment as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be impoſed.

XXIV. Item, The Court doth hereby Declare their firm reſolution, that if any perſon or perſons that is not an allowed Printer, ſhall hereafter preſume to ſet up any Preſs for Printing, or ſhall work at any ſuch Preſs, or Set, or Compoſe any Letters to be wrought by any ſuch Preſs; he or they ſo offending, ſhall from time to time, by the Order of this Court, be ſet in the Pillory, and Whipt through the City of London, and ſuffer ſuch other puniſhment, as this Court ſhall Order or think fit to inflict upon them, upon complaint or proof of ſuch offence or offences, or ſhall be otherwiſe puniſhed, as the Court of High Commiſſion ſhall think fit, and is agreable to their Commiſſion.

XXV. Item, That for the better diſcovery of Printing in Corners without Licence; The Maſter and Wardens of the Company of Stationers for the time being, or any two licenſed Maſter-Printers, which ſhall be appointed by the Lord Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, or Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, ſhall have power and authority to take unto themſelves ſuch aſſiſtance as they ſhall think needful, and to ſearch what Houſes and Shops (and what time they ſhall think fit) eſpecially Printing-houſes, and to view what is in Printing, and to call for the Licence to ſee whether it be licenſed or no; and if not, to ſeize upon ſo much as is printed, together with the ſeveral Offenders, and to bring them before the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, that they or either of them may take ſuch further Order therein as ſhall appertain to Juſtice.

XXVI. Item, The Court doth Declare, that it ſhall be lawful alſo for the ſaid Searchers, if upon Search they find any Book or Books, or part of Book or Books, which they ſuſpect to contain matter in it or them, contrary to the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Church of England, or againſt the State and Government, upon ſuch ſuſpicion to ſeize upon ſuch Book or Books, or part of Book or Books, and to bring it, or them to the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, who ſhall take ſuch further courſe therein, as to their Lordſhips, or either of them ſhall ſeem fit.

XXVII. Item, The Court doth Order and Declare, That there ſhall be four Founders of Letters for Printing allowed, and no more; and doth hereby nominate, allow, and admit theſe perſons, whoſe names hereafter follow, to the number of four, to be Letter-Founders for the time being, (viz.) John Griſmand, Thomas Wright, Arthur Nichols, Alexander Fifield. And further, the Court doth Order and Decree, that it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Lord Biſhop of London for the time being, taking unto him or them, ſix other High Commiſſioners, to ſupply the place or places of thoſe who are now allowed Founders of Letters by this Court, as they ſhall fall void by Death, Cenſure, or otherwiſe.

Provided, that they exceed not the number of four, ſet down by this Court. And if any perſon or perſons, not being an allowed Founder, ſhall notwithſtanding take upon him or them, to Found or Caſt Letters for Printing, upon complaint and proof made of ſuch offence or offences, he or they ſo offending, ſhall ſuffer ſuch puniſhment as this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall think fit to inflict upon them.

XXVIII. Item, That no Maſter-Founder whatſoever, ſhall keep above two Apprentices at one time, neither by Copartnerſhip, Binding at the Scriveners, nor any other way whatſoever; neither ſhall it be lawful for any Maſter-Founder, when any Apprentice or Apprentices, ſhall run or be put away, to take another Apprentice, or other Apprentices in his or their place or places, unleſs the name or names of him or them ſo gone away, be raſed out of the Hall Book of the Company whereof the Maſter-Founder is Free, and never admitted again, upon pain of ſuch puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be impoſed.

XXIX. Item, That all Journymen-Founders be imployed by the Maſter-Founders of the ſaid Trade, and that idle Journymen be compelled to work after the ſame manner, and upon the ſame penalties, as in caſe of the Journymen Printers is before ſpecified.

XXX. Item, That no Maſter-Founder of Letters ſhall imploy any other perſon or perſons in any work belonging to the Caſting or Founding of Letters, than ſuch onely as are Free-men or Apprentices to the Trade of Founding Letters, ſave onely in the pulling off the Knots of Metal hanging at the ends of the Letters when they are firſt Caſt, in which Work it ſhall be lawful for every Maſter-Founder to imploy one Boy only that is not, nor hath been bound to the Trade of Founding Letters, but not otherwiſe, upon pain of being for ever diſabled to uſe or exerciſe that Art, and ſuch further puniſhment, as by this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit to be impoſed.

XXXI. Item, That every perſon or perſons whatſoever, which ſhall at any time or times hereafter, by his or their confeſſion, or otherwiſe by proof be convicted of any of the offences, by this, or any other Decree of this Court made, ſhall before ſuch time as he or they ſhall be diſcharged, and over and above their Fine and puniſhment, as aforeſaid, be bound with good Sureties, never after to tranſgreſs, or offend in that or the like kind, for which he or they ſhall be ſo convicted and puniſhed, as aforeſaid; And that all and every the Forfeitures aforeſaid (excepting all Seditious Schiſmatical Books or Pamphlets, which this Court doth hereby Order to be preſently burnt) And except ſuch Books as the Forfeitures are already granted by Letters Patents, ſhall be divided and diſpoſed of, as the High Commiſſion Court ſhall find fit. Always providing that one moitie be to the King.

XXXII. Item, That no Merchant, Maſter, or Owner of any Ship or Veſſel, or any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſhall hereafter preſume to land, or put on Shore any Book or Books, or the part of any Book or Books to be imported from beyond the Seas, in any Port, Haven, Creek, or other place whatſoever, within the Realm of England, but only in the Port of the City of London, to the end the ſaid Books may there be viewed, as aforeſaid: And the ſeveral Officers of his Majeſties Ports are hereby required to take notice thereof.

XXXIII. Item, That whereas there is an Agreement betwixt Sir Thomas Bodley Knight, Founder of the Univerſity Library at Oxford, and the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Company of Stationers, (viz.) That one Book of every ſort that is new printed, or re-printed with Additions, be ſent to the Univerſity of Oxford for the Uſe of the Publick Library there; The Court doth hereby Order and Declare, That every Printer ſhall reſerve one Book new printed, or reprinted by him with Additions; and ſhall before any publick venting of the ſaid Book, bring it to the Common Hall of the Company of Stationers, and deliver it to the Officer thereof, to be ſent to the Library at Oxford accordingly, upon pain of Impriſonment, and ſuch further Order and Direction therein, as to this Court, or the High Commiſſion Court reſpectively, as the ſeveral Cauſes ſhall require, ſhall be thought fit.
